Dick Halford
Opens Office

Richard Halford recently announced the opening of his new firm, Richard Halford, Architect. His offices are located in Santa Fe at 412 Canyon Rd.

Dick came to New Mexico about seven years ago from Clear Lake, Iowa. As it is with a lot of New Mexicans he was here just for a vacation; however, after looking the state over and especially Santa Fe he was much impressed and decided to make this his home.

While still on vacation Dick applied for and received a job with W. C. Kruger and Associates. While with this firm he was employed as a structural engineer and project architect.

Dick received his formal education at Iowa State College in Ames, Iowa, where he graduated with a B.S. Degree in Architectural Engineering. He received his professional engineering license in New Mexico in 1956 and became a registered architect in 1958. He is a corporate member of the American Institute of Architects and has been associated with the AIA since his days at Iowa State College.

The offices of Richard Halford, Architect, will handle both architectural and engineering work; however, the accent will be in the field of architecture.

Dick resides in Santa Fe with his wife Louise and daughter Patsy.
