Summit Policy Not In Discord, Reagan Says

GENEVA (AP) — President Reagan, inspecting summit sites Sunday as he prepared to meet his Kremlin counterpart, sought to brush aside evidence of administration discord on arms policy, but the Soviets turned up the heat and described the episode as an attempt "to torpedo the arms control process."

Reagan spokesman Larry Speakes said, "We are not changing our views one whit" as a result of the leak of the "Weinberger letter."

In the letter, Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, who was left off the U.S. summit delegation, warned Reagan against agreeing to several arms positions when he meets Tuesday and Wednesday with Mikhail Gorbachev.

The Soviet leader arrives Monday, but he was well represented, telling reporters the summit will be a "trial-by-fire" test of Reagan's commitment to arms control, and denouncing in advance the arms policies Reagan brings with him to the summit table.

A key member of the American delegation, insisting on anonymity, said he thought the summit would produce some U.S.-Soviet agreements. He said odds that they would agree to hold periodic summit meetings, were "more than 50 percent." And he said it was "highly likely" that the summit would produce an agreement for the two superpowers to guard against proliferation of nuclear weapons to other countries.

National Security Adviser Robert McFarlane, part of the administration blitz on the Sunday TV talk shows, said "if we try hard," there might be agreements on cultural exchanges, opening new Soviet and American consular offices and the resumption of air service between the two countries.

McFarlane, on NBC's "Meet the Press," sought to erase the picture of internal discord painted by the Weinberger letter and said the administration stands as one on the key issues.

Weinberger, an outspoken hard-liner who is represented by two subordinates in the U.S. summit delegation, advised the president to oppose any joint commitment to continue observance of the unratified 1979 Salt II treaty and to oppose any interpretation of the 1972 Anti-Ballistic Missile (ABM) treaty that would restrict testing of the president's "Star Wars" defense program.

Speakes told reporters Reagan had no intention of making any decisions about a SALT II extension until the issue can be taken up next month after Reagan hears the views of Weinberger, Secretary of State George Shultz and others.

McFarlane called the letter leak "unfortunate" and told hundreds of reporters at the International Press Center here that Weinberger feels the same way and "is taking steps to find out how it occurred."

Administration officials were apparently hoping the Soviets would not take the matter seriously, and Speakes told reporters, "I'd be willing to put five bucks right here that General Secretary Gorbachev will not say a word about the Weinberger letter."

But Soviet official Georgy Arbatov, briefing reporters here Sunday, was quick to discuss the subject, describing the Weinberger letter as "a direct attempt to torpedo the arms control process" and saying it exposed a struggle between adminis-

UNM Series on Nuclear Issues Coincides with Summit

By David Gomez

Groups and individuals affiliated with the University of New Mexico will sponsor a week-long series of discussions, prayer groups and video presentations on nuclear war and U.S. defense policy to coincide with the U.S.-U.S.S.R. summit talks this week in Geneva, Switzerland.

However, speakers from the government or military were not considered for inclusion in the series until organizers were questioned on their intent by the New Mexico Daily Lobo.

The Daily Lobo asked forum organizers if the New Mexico Public Interest Research Group, a sponsor of the series, was serving the public interest by not inviting government or military representatives to participate.

"I wouldn't know if it's an exclusion by us, but people have ample opportunity for hearing the administration's point of view on arms negotiations or relations with the Soviets," said Kevin Bean, a member of the PIRG Board of Directors.

He said the DOD point of view is represented in one of the scheduled films by a former secretary of defense.

"We never intended this to be a debate between the two opposing sides," Bean said. "We're hoping to generate some discussion on the issue; we're hoping to get some debate rather than a one-sided discussion, rather than one side saying, 'Yes, this is true.'"

During a telephone conversation Sunday, series organizer Spence Waleitis originally said participation of the military in a public forum depended on the discretion of the panel organizer.

Later he said he would call the speaker's bureau at Kirtland Air Force Base Monday morning to invite their representatives to the forum.

"It didn't occur to me because of the educational format (of the series)," Waleitis said. "I only asked those people who are easily accessible to me at a moment's notice."

The panel invited by Waleitis includes Herb Grover of biology; Larry George, Alan Reed and Jay Sorenson of political science; retired weapons physicist Gordon McClure

Mark Rutledge of United Campus Ministries; and Kent Zook of the Albuquerque Peace Center. Most of the panelists on the UNM faculty are involved with the formation of a Peace Studies program at the University.

"The aim of the series is to discuss the issues behind the summit, to see what the implications of policy are, to see what the hardware looks like," Waleitis said. "It's more like a teach-in."

"Whatever information we present at this forum can't match the resources of the Department of Defense," Waleitis said. "They have the largest educational complex in the world."

Video presentations are scheduled Monday through Thursday from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. with an hour-long discussion to follow. Monday's presentation is set for the foyer outside of the Student Union Building Ballroom. All others are scheduled for SUB 231-E. The presentations are:

■ Monday — Program outside of SUB Ballroom. CBS documentary, "Defense of the United States and Western Europe."

■ Tuesday — British Broadcasting Company production on nuclear winter, The 8th Day Prayer meeting at UNM Alumni Chapel, 12 p.m. to 1 p.m.

■ Wednesday — ABC documentary, The Fire Ignited, on the Strategic Defense Initiative.

■ Thursday — Leading Double Lives, a presentation on the psychological effects the threat of nuclear war has on some people.

A group of high school students listens to a presentation by a representative from the Anderson School of Management in the SUB ballroom Saturday. More than 900 high school seniors from all parts of New Mexico attended UNM's Senior Day, sponsored by the Department of School Relations.

Summit Attitudes Polled

NEW YORK (AP) — Fifty percent of Americans feel the Geneva summit meeting this week will improve U.S.-Soviet relations and one-third believe it will lead to an arms-control agreement, according to a recent New York Times-CBS News poll.

The poll, published Friday, also indicates that 75 percent believe President Reagan "really wants an arms-control agreement," compared with 47 percent who think Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev does.

The poll of 1,659 adults was conducted by telephone between Nov. 6-10. It has a margin of error of 3 percentage points.

The president and Gorbachev were seen as willing "to make real concessions" to get an agreement by 36 percent to 21 percent, respectively. Only 17 percent saw both men as prepared to compromise.

When asked what the United States should do if forced to choose between developing a defensive system in space or giving it up and negotiating, 53 percent said the United States should give up a space defense, while 33 percent would forgo negotiations, the Times said.

Hijackers Go On Trial

GENOA, Italy — The four men charged with hijacking the Italian luxury liner Achille Lauro and a man accused of being their accomplice go on trial today for illegal possession of arms and explosives.

A second trial for kidnapping and murder is expected later but no date has been set.

Separating charges is a relatively common practice in Italy in complicated cases involving terrorist-related crimes. Judicial sources say the reason for the immediate trial is to give prosecutors time to investigate the more serious charges. The four men claimed to be motivated by the Palestinian cause.

The five are charged with illegally bringing to Italy four Soviet-made automatic rifles, eight hand grenades and nine detonators, and with illegal possession of the weapons. Conviction can bring three to 12 years imprisonment and a fine.

Deputy Prosecutor Francesco Meloni said the trial was expected to last one day.

Envoy Has 'Hope' For Hostages

LONDON — Terry Waite, the archbishop of Canterbury's special envoy, returned Sunday night from Lebanon after a secret meeting with kidnappers holding four Americans hostage and declared "progress is being made."

Waite, who spent five days in Lebanon, left London's Heathrow Airport to report immediately to Archbishop Robert Runcie, primate of the Anglican Communion, at Lambeth Palace. He said he would confer with U.S. officials in Europe on Monday.

Before leaving Beirut, Waite said he would fly to London and then Washington. But authoritative church sources said he probably will meet in London with U.S. officials, whom the sources did not identify.

Waite told reporters in London that he had "hope" after meeting with the kidnappers, but he repeated the warning he gave during a stopover at Rome's Leonardo da Vinci Airport, saying, "The situation is still very difficult and dangerous. I still regard that lives are at risk."

Waite's meeting was seen as the first real breakthrough in the long hostage drama. It is believed to be the first contact between a Western intermediary and the kidnappers, thought to belong to the Shiite Moslem extremist organization Islamic Jihad, or Islamic Holy War.

Waite, speaking earlier Sunday to reporters in Beirut, said he was satisfied that the four who wrote to Runcie are alive and well, but when asked if he had seen any of them, he said, "No comment."

Baez Sings for Solidarity Leader; Calls Him Hero

WARSAW, Poland — American singer Joan Baez met with Solidarity founder Lech Walesa Sunday and gave an evening concert at a Gdansk church attended by hundreds of Solidarity supporters.

"It's been really an enormous response, and for me something very moving and meaningful," Miss Baez said in a telephone interview from Gdansk following the concert. "The overwhelming thing . . . is the feeling that is missing in so many parts of the world, particularly in the United States, the actual solidarity with each other here. It knocks the wind out of you."

Walesa, winner of the 1983 Nobel Peace Prize, joined Miss Baez at a morning Roman Catholic Mass at St. Brygida's Church in Gdansk, the port city where the now-outlawed Solidarity trade movement was founded five years ago. Baez is on a six-day private visit to Poland and said Walesa is one of her "very few heroes left in the world."

To improve your love life.

Tear here.

Semicid, a vaginal contraceptive suppository, is an effective form of birth control that doesn't interrupt the mood. Because Semicid is so small and discreet, it's almost like using nothing at all.

There's no mess, no smell. No unpleasant taste. Nothing to remove. And it's available without a prescription.

And Semicid works. It contains the most effective contraceptive spermicide you can buy, nonoxonyl-9. And it has no hormones that can cause unpleasant side effects. One Semicid is approximately as effective as vaginal foam contraceptives in actual use, but is not as effective as the Pill or IUD. Ask your doctor about it. (Some Semicid users experience irritation in using the product. For best protection against pregnancy, follow package directions. And its essential to insert Semicid at least fifteen minutes before intercourse.) If your doctor has told you that you should not become pregnant, ask your doctor if you can use Semicid.

Stop using messy clumsy birth control methods. Try Semicid, and see how it can improve your love life.

Letters The Only Issue Is Freedom

Editor:

It would perhaps be best to ignore the inflammatory, uncharitable, unAmerican, unChristian, illogical letter of Scroggins of Nov. 11, but since in his long-winded epistle he failed to discuss the only issue in the INS decision to deport Margaret Randall, I will take up my pen, briefly, to enlighten him.

What Scroggins (or Senator Domenici or anyone else) may think about Ms. Randall's writings and about the nature, definition, and responsibility of American citizenship — these are not issues of the case. Ms. Randall is applying for permanent residency in the United States, and the INS denial of that request violates the McCarran-Walter Act and the First Amendment.

If you want a free country, you will support Margaret Randall's request for residency; if you don't want a free country, then let the government kick her out.

Nuclear Power Option

Editor:

I was very happy to see the matter of nuclear energy discussed in the Daily Lobo lately. Too often the public associates beneficial nuclear power with the holocaust of nuclear weapons. The two are as different as the coal industry is to gunpowder.

Actually, many problems do exist for the nuclear industry, not the least of which is the horrendous cost and time invested in a single nuclear power plant. However, much of this is caused by public opposition (mainly stemming from inaccurate information) and poor management.

Also, the problem of nuclear waste does need to be stressed and in fact, researchers are working hard to find solutions, the WIPP site being just one project.

Regarding a recent article, however, a few remarks from Lynda Taylor of Southwest Research need to be corrected. She states that the plutonium from nuclear power plants is sold to the government. This is simply not so. The plutonium at a plant needs to undergo several reprocessing stages before it can be used for either weapons or research. This reprocessing has not taken place in the United States since the Carter administration. The government has its own facilities for producing plutonium, all under tight security.

Taylor also claims that the data from Three Mile Island was misrepresented because officials could not account for all the iodine-131 released. In fact, the chemical circumstances at TMI caused most of the I-131 to solidify in a salt so that it was not polluting the air.

Nuclear power is a valuable option which needs to be explored for the future, and the present! As with any issue though, both sides will present biased information which leaves the public to sort out the facts for themselves.

Glamorizing Prostitution Mocks Efforts To Control It

By Richard Cohen
Washington Post Writers Group

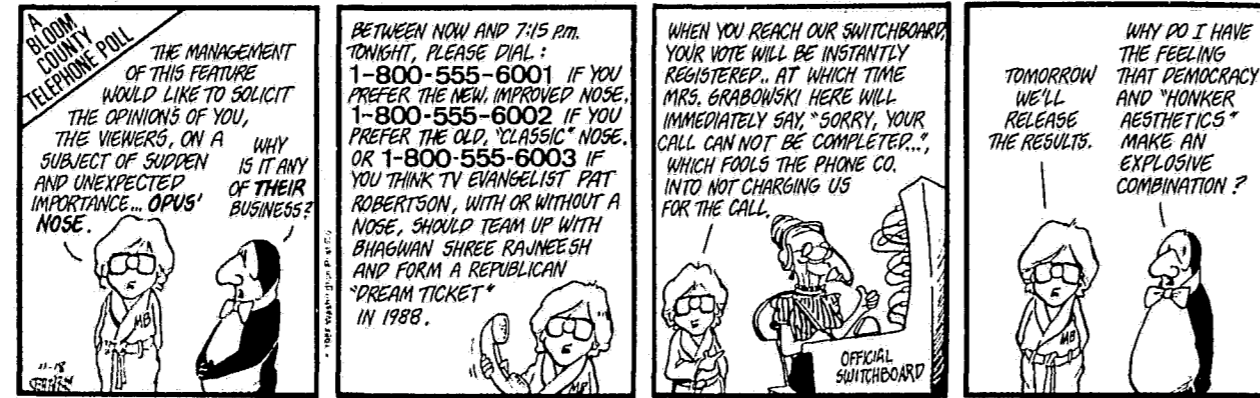

WASHINGTON — The New York Criminal Compensation Board has received a claim for money damages. It comes from a former neighbor of the notorious and (given book and movie deals) suddenly rich Sidney Barrows, known to headline writers the world over as the Mayflower Madam. The former neighbor claims she was forced to move because of Barrows' "all-night bordello operating full-scale next door." She is, she claims, a crime victim.

What a relief! For lo these many months we have been reading about the arrest and conviction of the well-born and well-connected Barrows as if the cliché about prostitution being a victimless crime was entirely true. Here, at last, is a woman asserting the opposite. It's true that compared to many crime victims, hers is a minor complaint. But for the moment it will have to do. After all, the real victims of prostitution rarely complain.

Proposal May Cut Funds For Some Grad Students

By Juliette Torre

Graduate students in small departments may be hurt financially if a proposal to re-allocate money from a Graduate Student Association program to various departmental organizations is passed.

The Student Research Allocation Committee program, which receives about $27,000 from the GSA budget, is used to allocate money to individual graduate students for research and projects.

The proposal would put most of that money into the coffers of departmental graduate student organizations, such as the Mechanical Engineering Graduate Association and the Graduate Students in Anthropology group. The amount of money given each organization would reflect the number of members in each group.

GSA President John Hooker said increasing the amount of funds to the departments would be "a tremendous help to the professional schools, like business and law."

"(But) it would be a blow to students in smaller arts and sciences departments," he said.

"One concern is, can GSA afford to subsidize a small group in a given year?" Hooker said. "Professional schools are most certain that we cannot. The majority of recipients are from arts and sciences. SRAC exists to help individual graduate students."

Hooker said the SRAC program provides grants ranging from $100 to $175 to about 190 graduate students each year. The grants cover expenses such as travel, he said.

However, in recent years GSA has received a "wealth of requests," Hooker said. "We have been successful in advertising and word-of-mouth. We cannot support all the requests we receive."

"The issue is to try to give the departments more control over the funds," said Dan Pilon, a GSA representative who supports the proposal. "The people in the SRAC subcommittee have a difficult job. In effect we are asking them to be experts on all individual research projects they receive requests for."

Pilon concedes the proposal could hurt graduate students from smaller departments, such as biology, geology and anthropology, which have traditionally taken advantage of the SRAC's individual funding program.

"We fully recognize that it does hurt research-intensive (departments) that have depended on SRAC in the past," Pilon said. "The people that benefit (from the proposal) are large organizations and other organizations that do not use SRAC intensively."

Hooker said GSA gives about $25,000 to departmental graduate student organizations through pro-rated benefits, based on the number of graduate students in the department. GSA gives $3 per graduate student per semester currently.

The proposal would increase the pro-rated benefits from $3 to $6.

"We're trying to offer two avenues (for graduate student funding)," said Hooker, "part through groups and part through individual support through SRAC."

Microscope Gives Dept. a New Outlook

By Ben Neary

After 23 years, the University of New Mexico biology department has a new electron transmission microscope. Standing about four feet tall, the burnished orange tube from the Zeiss optics company in West Germany cost $86,000.

A gray cable runs from the guts of the machine to the top of the air-tight tube and blasts electricity into a tungsten filament. The white-hot filament emits a stream of electrons — negatively charged subatomic particles.

The electrons, focused by magnetic fields within the tube, pass through tiny shavings of the substance to be viewed — accounting for the term "transmission" — and burn their image onto photographic paper.

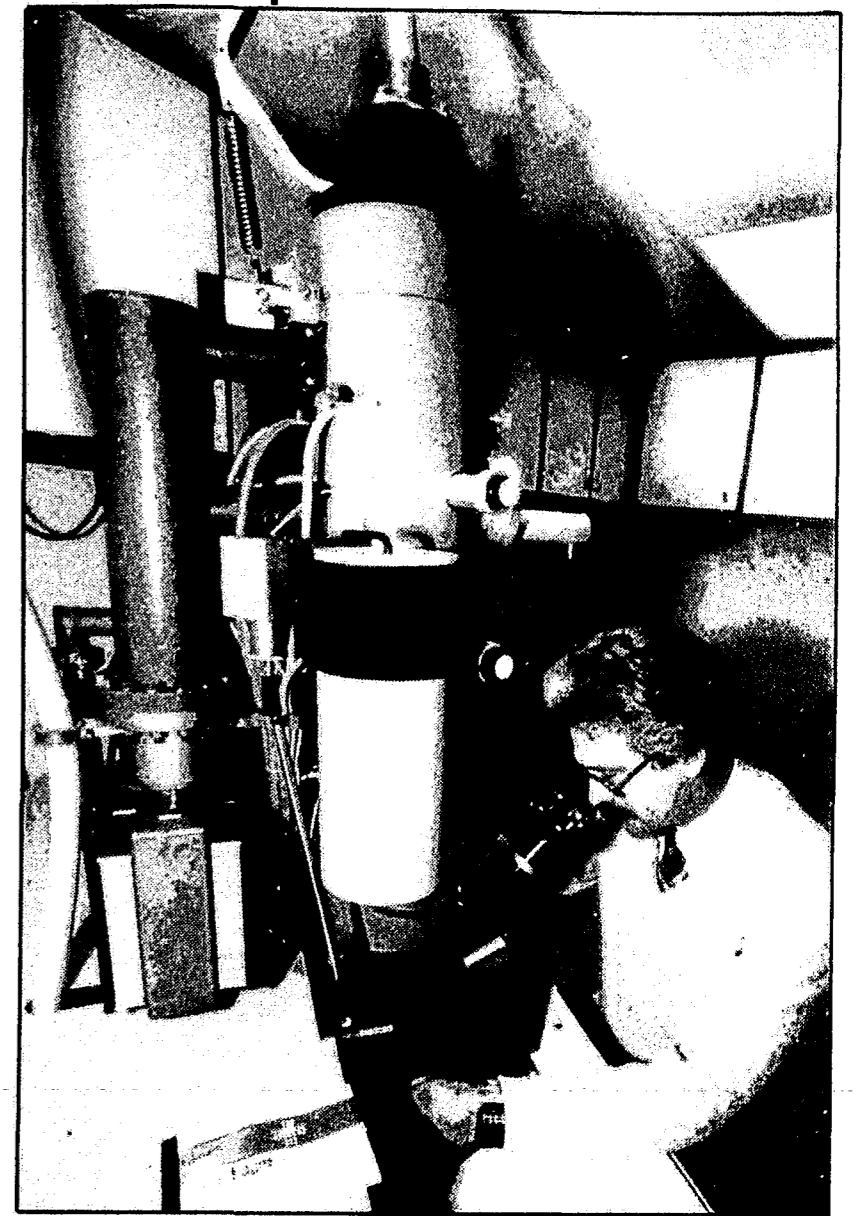

At maximum magnification, after the film is developed, the final image is 440,000 times the original. Near its maximum magnification, the microscope shows portions of individual animal cells as terrain similar to the Utah Badlands.

"It's really top of the line," said Dr. Robert Chiovetti, a UNM associate biology professor. A specialist in electron microscopy, Chiovetti came to UNM three years ago to develop the biology department's microscopy lab.

The National Institute of Health, through the Minority Biomedical Research Program, supplied the money for the microscope.

The old microscope — painted a bleak industrial green — sits in a basement hallway, a victim of expansion and modernization. "When I first came here one of the rooms we worked in was a storage room under a stairwell," Chiovetti said. "When you include the darkroom, we had everything packed into a little less than 400 square feet."

Now with more than 1,300 square feet, business is brisk. "I run kind of mission microscopy and enrollment is limited to about eight people. "There's definitely a demand for those classes," he said. "Next year's classes are already booked unofficially. Unfortunately, we haven't been able to have an expansion in the number of students."

That Was Then Gets Mixed Review

By Kelly Richmond

S.E. Hinton's That Was Then, This Is Now is the last of her four novels to make it to the silver screen. Like The Outsiders, Rumblefish and Tex, and unlike the "teen-exploitation" movies that have been so common lately, That Was Then... tries to take a serious look at the problems of young people.

Emilio Estevez (Repo Man, Breakfast Club) stars as Mark, a high school student who has lived with his best friend Bryon (Craig Sheffer) since the death of his own parents. In the course of the film, the pair's friendship is sorely tested by Bryon's relationship with a girl and by Mark's inability to grow up.

Growing up is what this film is all about. The transition from childhood to adulthood is what makes the high-school years so interesting. Unlike Porky's, Losin' It, ad nauseum, That Was Then... treats people this age as human beings, not as horny morons.

Since That Was Then... was one of my favorite books when I was younger, I really enjoyed the film. Other fans of the book should be quite pleased with this adaptation. The screenplay, by Estevez, is very faithful to the original novel. Little of importance has been removed or changed and much of the dialogue has been retained. The ending, unfortunately, has been slightly diluted to keep the film from being as profoundly depressing as the novel.

However, most people who are unfamiliar with the book will probably find the movie heavy-handed and melodramatic. Director Christopher Cain evidently has some potential (he directed the critically acclaimed Stone Boy) but his direction of That Was Then... is so subtle it has the feel of a made-for-TV movie.

The acting by the two leading men, on the other hand, is accomplished and believable. Estevez is without a doubt the best actor of the young actors in the so-called "brat-pack." Looking more than over like his father, actor Martin Sheen, he has a way of totally captivating the audience's attention whenever he is on screen.

City Bans Youths from 'Explicit' Concerts

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Unescorted children ages 13 and under are barred from city-owned venues where certain sexual acts are sung about or depicted onstage, under a new ordinance enacted 7-3 by the City Council.

"I don't think the framers of the Constitution had in mind these kinds of activities in front of 11- and 12-year-olds," Mayor Henry Cisneros, a council member, said during Thursday night's three-hour debate on the issue.

The ordinance prohibits unaccompanied children from performances where there is explicit reference to anal copulation, bestiality, sadistic or masochistic sex, sexual relations with a child or a corpse, exhibitionism, rape or incest. No wholesale checking of identifications was ordered, and enforcement will largely be left to ushers. "It's obscene to me that we are even discussing this," local rock promoter Jack Orbin said. "We will research it thoroughly and challenge it in court."

Cisneros, who advocated the "common-sense" measure, said it is the first of its kind in the nation. The ordinance makes promoters responsible for monitoring the age of youngsters attending concerts, and violators would be subject to a fine of up to $200.

ENROLL IN AMERICA'S LARGEST MANAGEMENT TRAINING PROGRAM.

Becoming an officer in today's Army... which also includes the Army Reserve and Army National Guard... requires getting the right kind of management and leadership training. What's the best way to get it? By enrolling in America's largest management training program—Army ROTC.

In the Army ROTC 4-year program, you'll acquire discipline of mind and spirit, and the ability to perform under pressure. We call it learning what it takes to lead.

It'll pay off, too. First, during your last two years of college, when you'll start receiving up to $1,000 a year. And, most of all, on graduation day, when you receive a commission along with a college degree.

The Rucker Express Rolls On

Sets Two Single Game Records

Billy Rucker (12), despite being blindsided by a Cowboy defender, set two Lobo single-game yardage records Saturday night in the Lobos' only home win of the season.

By Jay Raborn

On a night when a former University of New Mexico quarterback sought to recapture memories of his college days, another signal-caller came into his own to spoil the former's hopes.

Former All-Western Athletic Conference signal-caller Rocky Long returned home as a Wyoming assistant coach to relive his glory days, only to see current UNM starter Billy Rucker throw for a career high en route to the Lobo football team's 41-16 rout over visiting Wyoming on Saturday.

Solidifying his hold as the Lobos' No. 1 quarterback, Rucker set two single-game individual records in leading the nation's fourth-rated offense to 591 yards on the night. The Gallup native's 458 yards through the air and 487 total yards broke Lobo records of 452 and 440, respectively, set by Brad Wright against Texas Tech in 1978.

Playing its last home game of the season, the defense, not about to be overshadowed by its teammates, held Wyoming's wishbone attack to 396 yards, its lowest output on the season. Harassing Artesia product Scott Runyan throughout the night, UNM yielded its lowest point total of the season.

"I'm really happy for the kids, they did a great job tonight," Lobo Coach Joe Lee Dunn said. "We just had a great all-around effort. Billy did a super job and the defense finally didn't give up the long pass."

The Lobos needed only 11 seconds to score on its first possession, when Rucker hit Tori Brown with a 75-yard passing strike down the middle. Bill Bell tackled on the extra point and UNM held a 7-0 advantage with 10:43 remaining in the first quarter.

UNM extended its lead to 14-7 when Rucker fought off two tacklers and sprawled into the end zone on a fourth-and-1 call. The Cowboys cut the margin to 14-10 midway through the second quarter, but the Lobos added 10 points before the period's end to take a commanding 24-10 halftime lead.

Kevin Burgess out of the backfield proved to be Rucker's favorite target, as the running back finished the night with 184 yards on nine receptions.

But it was freshman sensation Terance Mathis who sealed the victory for UNM, splitting the Cowboy defense on a 31-yard scoring play for a 34-10 with a 1:03 left in the third quarter. Both teams added fourth-quarter TDs.

Greene May Sit Out This Year

By Johnny Moreno

Junior wingman Hunter Greene tore two ligaments in his left ankle during Thursday's practice and will be lost to the University of New Mexico men's basketball team for a least two months.

Greene said Sunday his ankle, which is in a partial cast, still hurts but he can wiggle his toes. UNM Head Trainer Tow Diehm said the cast will be removed in about 7 to 10 days so the ankle can be checked for swelling.

Another cast will then be put on. "It's a common injury in basketball," Diehm said.

"It doesn't seem fair," a dejected Head Coach Gary Colson said Sunday. "He's worked so hard since August 24th. It was sort of a freak play. He makes a great play and then comes down on somebody's foot."

Colson said both junior transfer Kelly Graves and freshman Michael Moore will see more playing time. "Maybe with the two of them, they can take up the slack," the coach added.

Moore had been considering whether to redshirt, but Greene's injury apparently renders that question moot. On the other hand, Greene will have to decide whether he should become a medical redshirt. Diehm said Greene will be out of action for at least two months.

"Right now the wise move is to take your time," Colson said, referring to Greene's need to eventually rehabilitate the ankle. Greene has until Friday to make a decision and it is thought that he will sit out the year. Colson said he should "probably redshirt."

Leonard Ortiz

Lobo Daven Quelle keeps her eye on the volleyball in a Friday night match against Utah. UNM closed out its 1985 season over the weekend with back-to-back losses to the Utes and BYU Saturday. The Lobos finished the season at 8-17 overall and 2-10 in High Country Athletic Conference play.

UNM raised its record to 3-7 and 2-5 in WAC play, while Wyoming fell to 2-8, 1-6.

"It's just great to get another win under our belt," Dunn said. "Our kids, especially our offense, seems to be coming together right now. Hopefully we can go out winners next week."

The Lobos finish the season Saturday night at San Diego State. The game will be televised live by Channel 14 at 7 o'clock.

CARMEL, SO YOU'RE 21. Let's go get drunk. You're buying. Phil.

YO PI PI Activities: We still know where you live your wonderful pledges.

CCC: LUKE 12:58 — YOU'LL be hot entering this direction.

C.G.: HOW WAS dessert? Sorry I couldn't be there. W/b to the Baler.

HEY SUBMAN, WE'RE swatching you. Keep watching for more clues. The Swatch Club.

TO MANUEL: With the Micholob hat: I saw you playing pool Wed. Would like to see you again. You watching edimer.

JOE: WHY DON'T you wait to go on patrol until after your room is clean. That way if you apprehend any suspects, you won't be embarrassed. FT.

N.E.S.T.

KY: WE SAMARITANS are not sad or sorry that you've surrendered your samaritanship seeing as you could not sacrifice your stipend for saccharine delights. We hope you are serene, not senescent. This asquidation squibble is significant. Your specious stature resembles euphuism; stillifier our strain and stress. Don't slander or subvert our sociability. Otherwise smutiful sanctions will sup-pervene. Seriously, your salubrious self is a satisfying surprise. The Samaritans.

HEY M.G. LIGHTEN UP. Connie pinkos and pinko punkers aren't all that bad. Maid Marion.
