Bridal Song By ALICE WILSON

As the mist clings to the mountain's breast
So do I cling to thee!

As a mother bird watches over her nest
So do I watch over thee.

As a child takes the hand of an older child
And tries to walk as he—
So do I match my steps with thine
And walk with thee!

Temerity By ALICE WILSON

I called a fearsome name in wounded pride
When all my faith and credulence had died.
But when my life blood froze at one chill breath,
I knew that I had summoned to my side
The awful form and majesty of—Death!
