1938

A Better Place

Max Kaufman

Follow this and additional works at: https://digitalrepository.unm.edu/nmq

Recommended Citation

This Contents is brought to you for free and open access by the University of New Mexico Press at UNM Digital Repository. It has been accepted for inclusion in New Mexico Quarterly by an authorized editor of UNM Digital Repository. For more information, please contact disc@unm.edu.
The New Mexico Quarterly

idged in the same manner that his other book, Texas Cowboys, did; he rode the range as one of them ... Revolt on the Border, Stanley Vestal's new book, will be published by Houghton Mifflin; it is the story of the Santa Fe Trail and of the dangers that lay at the end of it in the year of 1846, as well as the romance, drama, and fact which revolved around such lives as Bent, Kearney, and La Tules, queen of the gambling dens ... The University of New Mexico Press will publish a notable volume honoring the seventieth anniversary of Dr. Edgar L. Hewett, pioneer archaeologist and educator. The book is a product of some thirty of his co-workers and friends from many lands and fields. A partial list of contributors are: Carl Sumner Knopf, A. V. Kiddner, F. H. H. Roberts, H. B. Alexander, F. W. Hodge, Arthur Riggs, D. D. Brand, and many others; all of whom are outstanding scholars in the fields of art, religion, history, philosophy, and sociology.

Hasta la proxima vez, Julian Keleher.

A Better Place
By Max Kaufman

If every one could feel the harm
Of an evil mind and arm,
And make his faculties unfold
To meet the needs of young and old,
If the forces that men cede
Were not gobbled up by greed
But spread out until every one
Could share the good that has been done,
If deeds were truthfully recorded,
If guilt were punished and good rewarded,
If every eye would be alert
To avoid inflicting hurt,
If for every pain that's suffered
Reservoirs of balm were offered
By the whole united race,
The world would be a better place.