Employee Spotlight: Jennifer Eggleston

"A box is just not a box. If you open one up, you will see how it is specially designed for each object."

-by Jennifer Eggleston

The Center for Southwest Research and Special Collections is renowned for its historical manuscripts, books, photographs, architectural drawings, and other library materials relating to New Mexico, the Southwestern U.S., and Latin America. On any given day, many individuals (students, scholars, community members, etc.) are in the Anderson reading room studying and working with materials from the Center's vast collection. The preservation of these items and ensuring that they continue to be available to future researchers is always a priority. As a Conservation Technician in the Center, Jennifer Eggleston plays a key role in this process, and in doing so, she contributes to the Center's overall mission of preservation and engagement.

THANK YOU!

Many thanks to all of the student employees, staff, and faculty who hosted the University Libraries' information table at this summer's Discover Fairs and Fall 2018 Welcome Back Days! Your time and commitment to the students and UNM Community is greatly appreciated.

Dean's Suite Bookshelves: UNM Press Books Feature

by Ashley Nowikowski, UL&LS Dean's Office Student Employee

There is a new section along with the variety of books housed in the Dean's Suite. As mentioned last month, our colleagues at the UNM Press donated several recent publications. Some of the titles include 50 years at the Pit, 60 Short Hikes in the Sandia Foothills, and Eco-Travel New Mexico.

Eco-Travel New Mexico: 86 Natural Destinations, Green hotels, and Sustainable Adventures by Ashley M. Biggers, published in 2017, is a part of the Southwest Adventure Series published by the UNM Press. Click here to read more.
