UNM NEWS MINUTE #4 SEPT. 22, 1999

1. ON THE COVER OF THE ROLLING STONE...

Ann Ramenofsky, associate professor of anthropology, graces the cover of the Fall issue of American Archaeology. The lead article features UNM's archeology field school in New Mexico's Galisteo Basin where Ramenofsky and her students are examining a archeological site that is one of the best examples of early Spanish-Indian contact found anywhere in the U.S.

2. ANTHROPOLOGY REDUX:

UNM osteologist Joseph Powell, is also interviewed in the new issue of American Archaeology. Powell talks about bridging the gap between differing scientific and Native American interests in studying human skeletal remains.

3. PRESSING BUSINESS:

UNM Press celebrates its 70th year of publishing by heading into space – cyberspace that is. Check out their new web site at: <http://www.unmpress.com>

4. PRISON REPORT:

Bert Useem, professor of sociology and director of the Institute for Social Research, is the co-author of a September, 1999 report "Right-Sizing Justice: A Cost-Benefit Analysis of Imprisonment in Three States." The project was sponsored by the Center for Civic Innovation at the Manhattan Institute.
