CARRIZOZO THE SPOTLESS TOWN

All Residents Will Unite in General Clean-Up Asked For by Those in a Position to Demand it

LOOK OUT FOR FINE AND SIXTY LONG DAYS IN JAIL

To better safeguard the public health and to make Carrizozo the "spotless town," the indiscriminate dumping of trash within the confines of the town is going to be stopped. Complaints have been lodged in large numbers by many of our citizens and the officers of the law have decided that now is the time to take action.

The Outlook believes the unclean condition of our town, in several spots, is the result of carelessness in a large degree. Again, we believe if we had some one on whom as a citizenry, we could depend to regularly haul the trash which is continually accumulating to an established garbage lot there would be very little cause for complaint.

For the sake of our general health and our civic pride these things must be taken care of, and the best time in the world to "start something," looking to this end is right now. It is inconceivable that any one living in Carrizozo is opposed to having a clean town—well-kept lots, streets and alleys. In the past the Civic League has kept a watchful eye on the town and have had clean-up days and this organization has done heroic work for the betterment of these conditions here. However, it is understood this band of faithful women have decided to turn this work over to the county and district officers; and finding that the status law expects them to look after these matters, the officers are in this issue of this paper calling the attention of the public to the provisions of the act which prohibits the deposit of any, filth, litter, refuse, carcass or other deleterious matter along any public road or highway or near any inhabited building. The penalty for so doing is also mentioned—a fine of not more than $50.00 and imprisonment in the county jail for not more than sixty days, or both such fine and imprisonment, according to how the court feels in the matter, should it ever become necessary for the court to enforce this law.

Until Carrizozo takes its rightful place in the class of incorporated towns and such things are by the town government provided for, it seems to us some one should constitute himself the official "garbage man" and make regular trips over town for the purpose of collecting and hauling off the refuse matter he to be paid a nominal sum for his work by the people whom he serves. And the garbage lot, or dumping ground, should be established in some place where it can not possibly become a nuisance to any one.

In endeavoring to take care of just such problems as this argues eloquently for the town incorporation now being discussed by many of our citizens. With a town government all such matters will be taken care of promptly and equitably.

WATSON COMPLIMENTED

In casting up the work cut out for them, the new state tax commission pays a deserved compliment to Dr. T. W. Watson, our county treasurer, when it says:

In other words, $400,000,000 worth of property must be on the tax rolls this year. There is that much, in the state and possibly twice as much, but the problem is, will, the assessors find it and have the nerve to put it in their assessments, and then, will the collectors in each county do as well as Dr. Watson of Lincoln county has done with his 1913 tax duplicate, collecting 96 percent of it, even though only a small portion of the taxes of Lincoln county come from the railroads, which pay the bulk of taxes in such counties as Luna and Valencia, and pay them promptly."

LECTURE BY DAIRY EXPERT

Prof. R. W. Latta, a dairy expert of the New Mexico Agricultural College will lecture here at the Crystal Theater, on the advantages and profits of dairying in Lincoln County. The date set for the lectures is Wednesday, March 24. Prof. Latta will lecture both in the afternoon and evening, giving those an opportunity to attend at night who are unable to do so in the afternoon. It is hoped that a large attendance will be present as a great many of our citizens have been agitating the question of the establishment of a creamery in Carrizozo, and Prof. Latta will give out some very valuable information along that line. R. S. Trumbull, agricultural expert of the E. P. & S. W. system will also be present and speak on farming and silos in connection with dairying. Don't fail to be present.

BROWNING-MURRAY

Tuesday afternoon at the hour of three o'clock, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Baird, in this city, occurred the marriage of Mr. Bert Browning and Miss Blanche Murray. The ceremony was performed by Justice of the Peace Ed. Massie, in the presence of a few friends and relatives. Mr. and Mrs. Browning are among Lincoln County's most estimable young people and are well known throughout this section. The bride is the oldest daughter of H. Doyle Murray, of Tione, and has many friends in Carrizozo. After the ceremony the happy couple left for Deming and other points down the line where they will visit for some time, after which they will locate in El Paso where they will make their future home. The Outlook joins their many friends in extending congratulations.

TO LAS CRUCES SUNDAY

H. B. Hamilton will leave for Las Cruces Sunday to be present at the opening of the spring term of court for that county on Monday next. It is anticipated that at this time of court the bank failure cases will be taken up, and unless a change of venue is asked for by the defendant, some of them tried. It is understood that the attorney general will assist in the prosecution of Smith.

STATE TREASURER REFUSES TO PAY

Believes There is a Question as to Legality of Law Passed After Hour of Adjournment for Legislature

JUDGE HEWITT HAS IDEA EMERGENCY CLAUSE IS NIL

As an aftermath of the late legislative session, wherein the deficiency appropriation bill was passed over the governor's veto on Friday afternoon, March 15, when, according to the governor and his advisors, including the attorney general, the session had expired, Jose D. Sena has made a formal demand on the state auditor for a warrant covering his back salary. The state auditor prefers to know just where he is at before drawing these warrants, and it is not improbable that the question of what was the last legislative day of the session will be thrashed out in the courts.

In this connection, it is interesting to consider the views of Hon. John Y. Hewitt, our representative in the lower house, who advances the opinion that the emergency clause, as formulated and used on a number of the bills passed by the legislature, is a weak protection and that such acts can be nullified upon test in the courts. In this regard Mr. Hewitt says:

"There has been considerable discussion of late as to the validity of some of the bills passed at the present legislature, and especially those passed without printing, or without having been read on different days, as required by Section 15 Article 4, of the constitution, which provides:

No bill except bills to provide for the public peace, health and safety, and the codification or revision of the laws, shall become a law unless it has been printed and read three different times in each house, not more than two of which readings shall be on the same day and the third of which shall be in full.

"It is urged by some that compliance with this clause of the constitution is not necessary when there is attached to the bill what is known as the 'emergency clause' provided for in Section 23 of Article 4.

In those states having the same or similar constitutional provisions the courts have held that the question as to when an emergency exists, so as to make the act take effect at an earlier date than it would otherwise be in force, is one solely within the discretion of the legislature, and the courts will not disturb or question that discretion. The decisions are all based and proceed upon the hypothesis that such acts have been legally passed.

"The books are full of court decisions wherein it has been universally held that statutes are void when it is shown that the constitutional methods have not been observed and their enactment by the legislative branch. To this line of discussions there have been no exceptions so far as I have observed. No emergency or other clause or provision could cure the want of compliance with the essential provisions of the constitution.

"It is a fact known to all who have taken the trouble to inform themselves on the subject, that no bill introduced in either house of the last session can be seriously held to be or to be considered a bill to provide for the public peace, health and safety, nor are any of these bills for the codification or revision of the laws, unless the one passed adopting the compilation of Judge Mechem and others may be so considered.

"If, then, none of these pretended enactments has been for the purposes named, and if any of them have failed to meet the requirements of the constitution in the course of their passage through the legislature, all that have so failed are a nullity and the courts will so declare them whenever the question of their validity is presented for adjudication, which it probably will be; nor could any emergency clause so freely and indiscriminately applied in my opinion cure the fatal effect.

ORGANIZE SOCIAL CLUB

Last Monday evening a number of young men met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Hamilton for the purpose of organizing a social club.

The evening was partly spent in cards and music. Refreshments were served, after which the boys got down to business. They have secured a club room and have thrown the doors open to any young man that wishes to become a member.

The officers elected were as follows: Louis Adams, Pres.; Wayne Hamilton, Vice-Pres.; Dewey Heron, Sec.; Ralph Jones, Treas.; El Jones, Supervisor; Roy Baird, Guard Con.

TAYLORS STORE BURGLARIZED

Burglars effected an entrance through the side door of the N. B. Taylor & Sons hardware store last Tuesday night and so far as the proprietors have been able to ascertain, they are out goods costing them in the neighborhood of $85.00. The thieves secured five rifles and a searchlight, and possible some other merchandise which so far has escaped the notice of the owners. Up to this writing no clue to the perpetrators has been uncovered.

TWELVE TRAMPS PINCHED

Walker Hyde, the company officer at this point, mixed a little business with his St. Patrick dance last Wednesday evening and took time to stroll out along the right-of-way and take into custody twelve tramps who was supposed to have set fire to some ties belonging to the company. Mr. Hyde is alleging the destroying of sixteen of these ties, which are valued at about a dollar each, although he believes there were more destroyed. Complaint has been filed in Justice Massie's court.

GRAND VIEW HOTEL RE-OPENS

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Morse moved down from Corona the first of the week and took charge of the Grand View Hotel which has been closed down for the past month. Since taking charge the place has been thoroughly renovated and furnished throughout, giving them a nice, inviting, home-like hotel. Mr. and Mrs. Morse formerly lived here and have many friends who welcome their return to Carrizozo.

ST. PATRICKS BALL

The St. Patrick's ball given by the railroad employees at the E. P. & S. W. Club House Wednesday evening, has been pronounced the best dance ever given in the city. About 60 couples were present and dancing was continued until 1 o'clock. Everything around the Club House was decorated in green, even the lights were lighted with green electricity and we will venture to say that if there is a green-eyed Irishman in town he was right there. Mgr. Mudge is strictly on the job in giving Irish dances.

INCORPORATION IS BEING CONSIDERED

Many Property Owners Believe Time is Propitious to Organize Town Under Provisions of the Village Act

WILL EQUITABLY SOLVE PERPLEXING PROBLEMS

To incorporate Carrizozo under the village act is the subject now being considered by a number of our residents. In view of the stand taken by the Outlook for civic improvements generally, it is probably unnecessary for us to say that we believe the town should be incorporated. It is the wise thing to do—it is the same manner in which to solve the problem of making a town out of our community.

We want and we need good sidewalks and the town lighted. We need these things and we ought to have them. We have passed the experimental stage as a community and have really arrived at the dignity of a mighty good town firmly established as a business center and as a community of home loving people. More and more are visitors and possible investors arriving in our midst for a view of the landscape, and we believe we have let them ramble down the middle of the street long enough. It would look better and there would be a desired degree of dignity if we were able to furnish them a sidewalk, even if it is not of cement, and a light at night won't do any particular harm.

The Outlook is not in favor of a town organization which will be in any way extravagant. We are not able at this time to do big things, and we do not anticipate that any board of trustees elected under the proposed incorporation act would be inclined that way. It is well known that a neighborhood with a common purpose can accomplish much for themselves with a very little actual outlay of money. This is the object in view in this matter. We hope to have the town improved by the installation of some serviceable but inexpensive sidewalks, keep up the streets to their present condition, as to some, and vastly improved as to others; to keep the rubbish out of our city limits, and generally to look after the welfare of the community as a whole, and have the community as a whole bear the slight burden of this good work.

The Outlook hopes Carrizozo will incorporate and that it will do so without delay.

OPERETTA

The Operetta "Pauline" will be given in the High School auditorium on Friday evening, April 2d. The tuneful and rollicking melodies and attractive conversations are sure to please. This is by far the most elaborate entertainment ever attempted in Carrizozo and is bound to be appreciated by all who attend. Tickets will be placed on sale at an early date and no effort spared to make them valuable to the buyer. Remember the date Friday evening, April 2d.

GONE TO CHICAGO

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Franklin left for a month's visit at their home in Chicago Wednesday evening. Mr. Franklin is interested in mining development in the Jicarilla district and has uncovered some excellent property. His trip east is the nature of combined business and pleasure trip.

The MAID of the FOREST

SYNOPSIS.

Joseph Hayward, an ensign in the United States army, on his way to Fort Harnar, meets Simon Girty, a renegade whose name has been connected with all manner of atrocities, also headed for Fort Harnar, with a message from the British general, Hamilton. Hayward guides him to the fort. At General Harnar's headquarters Hayward meets Rene D'Auvergne, who professes to recognize him, although he has no recollection of ever having seen her before. Hayward volunteers to carry a message for Harnar to Sandusky, where Hamilton is stationed. The northwest Indian tribes are ready for war and are only held back by the refusal of the friendly Wyandots to join. The latter are demanding the return of a prisoner, a religious warrior, whom they believe to be a prisoner. Hayward's mission is to assure the Wyandots that the man is not held by the soldiers. Rene asks Hayward to let her accompany him. She tells him that she is a quarter-blood Wyandot and a missionary among the Indians. She has been in search of her father, who insists that she has seen Hayward before, but in a British uniform. Hayward refuses her request and starts for the north, accompanied by a scout named Brady and a private soldier. They come on the trail of a war party and to escape from the Indians take shelter in a hut on an island. Hayward finds a murdered man in the hut. It proves to be Rene D'Auvergne, a former French officer who is called by the Wyandots "white chief." Rene appears and Hayward is puzzled by her insistence that they have met before. Rene recognizes the murdered man as her father, who was known among the Indians as "Wah-jee-tah." Brady starts seeing a band of marauding Indians in the vicinity and with them Simon Girty. Brady's evidence convinces the girl that there is a British officer by the name of Hayward, who resembles the American and who has escaped from the island of off. Reconnoitering around the cabin at night Hayward discovers a white man in a British uniform and leaves him for dead after a desperate fight.

The three guns spoke at once, the smoke of their discharge for an instant blotting out the scene, yet not before I saw war-bonnet crumple up beside the stump, and a warrior just behind him leap into the air with both arms flung out. I gripped the fresh gun beside me, and fired again into a huddle of fleeing figures, hearing the sharp crack of the two others, as the blue smoke blew back into my eyes. One Indian fell forward clawing at the ground; another staggered wildly, yet kept his feet. A chorus of yells rent the air, and the fleeing forms vanished into the fringe of woods.

Brady glanced about from his loophole, and motioned me with his hand. I crossed hurriedly to join him, again the soldier.

"What is it? Can you guess what they mean to do?"

"No, but they seem to be forming there to the right; bend down here; see, back among those trees. Aye! and your red-coat is among the devils, I've caught glimpse of him twice!"

I grasped the situation in a glance. Brady moved to the next loophole, and knelt down. Opposite me I could distinguish an Indian or two, skulking in the tree shadows, well out of range—sentries, no doubt, stationed to guard against any possibility of our escape. Yes, and there were others also along the fringe of forest to the left, although only occasionally did a half-naked form fit into view. They were forming for assault, for a swift rush forward, trusting that the suddenness of their attack would put them across that open space without great danger. They had tried stealth and failed; now they would try recklessness.

I pressed back the wooden shutter, kneeling to look out. For an instant, blinded by the bright light, I saw nothing, then, back in the edge of the timber, I could dimly distinguish the groups of savages, stripped for fighting, their naked bodies gleaming. I knew little then of Indian warfare, yet it occurred to me that the representatives of each tribe were gathered together, and I watched the war-bonnets moving from group to group, as final orders were passed among them. Only once did I catch a glimpse of the red jacket, as its wearer stood at the foot of a huge tree, suddenly outlined by a ray of sun finding opening through the leaves above. As I caught view of him, he flung up one red arm, a rifle grasped to his hand, and, as if it was a signal, voices after voice whooped in savage yell, the noise blending into one fierce scream, horrible and menacing. Above even this had volume of sound there was a shout of command, emphasized by the discharge of a dozen guns. Then out of the smoke, springing forth into the open, I saw the devils come. It was as if hell had broken out and belched them forth.

"Shawnees!" roared Brady. "Give it to 'em!" and he pulled trigger.

Describe what followed no man could. It was pandemonium, uproar, action, no two seconds the same. I fired twice, three times, leaping back to grasp a gun from the bench, and groping my way through smoke. My eyes smarted, perspiration streamed down my face. I heard the bark of rifles, voices calling within, wild echoing yells without. Over the barrel of my rifle I could distinguish the naked forms of savages, leaping amid the smoke wreaths, stumbling, clutching at the air with empty hands. Then all at once they disappeared, vanished as if by magic. Smoke clung to the ground, yet amid its swirls I could perceive no movement; the fierce yelling ceased. What this sudden cessation meant I could not guess, but my hand reached instinctively for powder and ball. Then another yell, louder, more deadly with ferocity, smote my ears; bullets chugged into the logs, some one near me gave utterance to a roar of pain, and blows crashed against the barred door. I thrust my rifle forward—a tomahawk struck the protruding barrel as I pulled trigger, and I was flung backward to the floor, blood streaming from my shoulder. I could hardly breathe in the thick smoke; I could see nothing, yet out of the babel of noise I was conscious of Brady's voice yelling an order:

"The door! Barricade the door!"

I staggered to my feet and dragged the bench forward; some one gripped the table along with me, and together we hurried it on top, our bodies holding it there. I had dropped my rifle, but some one thrust another into my hand. Blood streamed down into my eyes from a cut on my forehead, blinding me so I saw nothing, yet my fingers touched a hand. Even then I felt the thrill of that contact.

"You, Rene! Go back! For God's sake, go back!" I sobbed breathlessly. Just an instant she grasped me, clung to me, her head pressing against my sleeve.

"Yes, monsieur!"

Then she was gone; I reached out for her, but she was no longer there. Tomahawks crashed into the wood of the door; there was a sound of splintering. Brady ripped out an oath, a wild yell of triumph echoed without. Through a nearby loop-hole some savage thrust his gun, and fired blindly, the sudden flash lighting the mark. In the instant red glow I caught a glimpse of the interior—a body lying before the fireplace, of Schultz still on his knees, rifle in hand, of Brady gripping an ax, his head bare, a ghastly wound on the side of his face. Then the smoke hid all.

Something crashed against the door, shaking the whole cabin; again and again the blow fell, the tough wood bursting asunder, the stout bar bending, yet snapping back once more as the sockets held. Amid the din of shouts, the crash of wood, my eyes met Brady's.

"You're hurt?"

"Ay!" spitting out blood before he could answer. "Jaw shot."

The door crashed in, the great butt of a tree coming with it, and half blocking the passage. All that remained was instantly filled with savage figures. Into the mass of them I fired my last shot, the flame of discharge searing the hideous faces. Then I was hurled to the right, shoulder to shoulder with Schultz, gripping my gun barrel with both hands, swinging it like a flail. I crushed the skull of a savage, drove the butt into the face of another, saw the flash of a tomahawk held up for an instant the soldier's reeling body, only to throw it aside, smashed the red hand held out to grip him as he went down; drew back a step in search of more room, and with one mighty sweep of my weapon cleared a circle before me. God! It was ghastly, inhuman, devilish! Those behind pushed and yelled; there was no escape! I saw painted faces, naked shoulders; wild eyes glared hatred into mine; tomahawk and knife flashed. The butt of my gun smashed, I gripped the iron, my teeth clinched, and blood on fire. I had no sense of fear left, no consciousness of peril. I wanted to strike, to kill, to bruise those hideous faces, to batter them into pulp. The rage of conflict seized me; there swept over me the ferocity of the Indians.

I gave back, compelled by the mere force of numbers hurled against me, yet kept clear a space no savage left unhurt. I felt in my arms the strength of a dozen men, and not the grip of a red hand reached me. The fiends snarled and struggled, but the fierce swing of the iron bar crushed them back. It was twilight where I stood at bay, the narrow opening, almost blotted out by those struggling figures striving to enter, to me, was a mere blotch, an inferno of movement and sound. Through a dim, red haze, where blood dripped before my eyes, I had glimpses of uplifted arms, of distorted faces, of glittering weapons. Once there was a gun shot, the sudden flash flaming into my eyes; twice tomahawks, turning in the air, grazed my cheek; a knife, desperately hurled from out the ruck, struck the iron, shaking my arm as it fell. I felt no pain, no weakness; I was going to die, but it would not be alone. I rushed forward, treading on bodies, battering at shoulders and heads. I heard yells, shrieks, groans, cries of horror and agony. The frenzied war-whoop rang in my ears; an order roared out over the babel. I have no recollection of being touched, yet some force hurled me back. I stumbled over the bodies, yet somehow kept my feet. I was breathless, weak, reeling upon my legs, everything before my eyes shrouded in mist. Yet the instinct to fight remained; I knew nothing else.

Suddenly I became aware that Brady and I were together, that we were foot to foot, his deadly ax rising and falling as though he was a woodsman in the forest. Out of the mad din in my ear came the sound of his voice in broken, breathless sentences.

"Good boy! Good boy! Ay! That was a blow. Stand to it, lad; they'll tell of this fight on the border. Oh, you will, you painted devil—that finished you! Do you see Red-Coat back there, Hayward? Ay! I'd like one swipe at him, but the coward keeps safe. Strike lower man! They're creeping in on us. That's the kind. Ah! I thought so; they're taking us from behind—quick, lad, back to the wall!"

I got there; God only knows how—but I was alone. I felt the force of the rush that struck him down; it had lifted me bodily and hurled me against the logs. Yet I kept my feet, kept my grip on the twisted iron, and struck blindly. The whole cabin seemed jammed with red demons; they piled on me, jerked the bar from my grasp. Once, twice, I sent clenched fist against painted faces; then it was over with. I never saw nor felt the blow that felled me; I went down into darkness, and they trampled me under foot.

CHAPTER XIII.

The Help of Mademoiselle.

The sound of a voice speaking, apparently far off, was the first thing of which I was dimly conscious. The language was French, and, for what seemed a long time, no word sounded familiar. My mind was blank of any distinct impression, although there appeared to float before me, in recollection of some former existence, the face of mademoiselle. Her wonderful eyes were gravely smiling through a strange mist that appeared to hide all else in its circling folds. I could not get away from their silent pleading, their invitation. Then somehow that speaking voice became hers, and I picked out a word here and there, detached, meaningless, and yet recognizable. I struggled to arouse myself to her actual presence.

The struggle must have been physical as well as mental, for I became conscious of pain, a sharp pang shooting through my body, as if a knife had been twisted in a deep wound. The agony brought me wide awake, my eyes open, staring about, yet scarcely realizing where dream and reality met. "Monsieur," the voice was a whisper at my ear; I could even feel her soft breath on my cheek. My eyes instantly opened, and looked into her face as she bent above me. "Do not move, do not speak aloud—but listen. I knew you were not dead; I found you first and kept them away, but there is no time now for me to explain. Are you badly hurt?"

"I cannot tell, mademoiselle—those heavy bodies will not let me move."

She glanced about swiftly, as if in fear of being seen; then released my limbs dragging the two dead Indians aside. I felt cramped, lifeless below the waist, yet as the blood began to circulate I knew there was no serious injury. She stared into my face as I worked the numbed muscles, and her eyes told me that she was frightened. "We are alone here?"

"Yes, for the moment," breathlessly. "It is your only chance; I have prayed and schemed to get to you. We mustn't lose an instant. Can you move, monsieur? Can you even crawl a dozen feet?"

"Where—where do you want me to go?" I asked faintly, inspired to effort by the firm, eager grip of her hand. "Tell me; I'll try."

"There—just to the left of the fireplace. It is the one chance, monsieur. They will be back, those fiends, they will burn the cabin. Mon Dieu! Try! Try!"

I got to my knees once more, the plea of her voice yielding strength and determination. At whatever cost I would make the effort to please her. With teeth clenched tight, I fixed my eyes on the spot indicated and started. Terrible was the effort!

But I made it inch by inch. I shall never know how the deed was accomplished—only that she helped, and I fought on. I had to; she asked me;

there were tears in her eyes. No matter if it did hurt, if I was blind, if I reeled on hands and knees like a man drunk—I must go there. I had not the faintest thought of why she urged me on, of what hope animated her. And when I finally gave out, helpless to advance another inch, my face came down hard on a slab of stone beside the chimney. She uttered a low sob of despair, and left me an instant.

"I—I am so sorry, monsieur," she faltered. "But you must hold out—you must!"

"Is it any farther? What do you want me to do?"

"No, no—only you will need strength; it will only take a minute now. See, monsieur."

She gripped the flat stone against which I had fallen, prying it with the broken blade of an Indian knife that lay on the floor, until her fingers found hold, and ended it up against the chimney. A narrow black opening was exposed, I stared down with lack-luster eyes, startled, but unable to realize the purpose. Driven by fear she wasted no time in either explanation or urging. Doubtless my face told its own story, and made her desperate. With a strength I had not supposed her slender body possessed, she dragged me about, until my feet dangled helplessly in the opening.

"Now push yourself down, monsieur! I say you must! It is not far, not more than four feet—it is not to hurt, no, no. You will come easy to the bottom. Good! That is the way. See, I will hold tight to you like this."

Helped by her, yet exercising all my remaining strength, and now comprehending her plan, I sank slowly into the hole, but so numb were my limbs, that the instant the girl released her grasp, I sank limply to the bottom, resting there, leaning against the side wall, looking eagerly up at her face framed above me in the narrow opening.

"You are safe, monsieur? You are not hurt?" she asked in trembling anxiety.

I murmured a word or two, for I had exhausted all my strength. She must have accepted this as reassurance, for she lifted her head, and glanced swiftly above. Then she reached down to me the pannikin of water.

"I cannot wait longer," she whispered. "Some one will come. Here: take this, monsieur; put it down carefully—ah! that was fine. Wash out your wounds and the blood from your face. It will be dark, but fear nothing. I will come again to you soon."

"Where does this tunnel lead?" I asked, as her hand grasped the stone slab.

"To the cave cellar at the rear; where we first met—but you must wait for me to come, monsieur."

I saw the shadow of the stone descending, shutting out the light.

"Just one question more, mademoiselle," I managed to articulate. "Is Brady dead?"

I could dimly perceive the outline of her face.

"No, monsieur, he is a prisoner."

Slowly I made effort to explore my wound. This was most painful, as my rough shirt was held to my flesh by congealed blood, and had to be torn away. I possessed no knife, but stuck to the work manfully, my teeth clinched, my face beaded with perspiration, until I separated the last shred, and could explore the wound with my fingers. It proved deep and ragged enough, but had penetrated nothing vital. If I could stanch the flow of blood, and bind it up so as to prevent its being reopened, there should be no serious result. I went at this as best I could in the dark, and, by sense of touch, groaning at the pain, I swabbed out the wound until it practically ceased to bleed, and then bound it up with a silk handkerchief and a strip torn from my shirt.

Resetting a Shoulder.

A dislocated shoulder may be replaced with scarcely any pain by the following procedure, according to Dr. Julius Caesar of Rochester, England:

Dress the patient of his coat and waistcoat. Place him on the ground in a sitting posture. Grasp the wrist of the dislocated arm and have a third person grasp the wrist of the other arm. Raise both arms simultaneously over the head, taking care to keep them parallel, and extending them upward till the patient is just raised from the ground. At this point a click is heard and felt. This is the sound of the arm bone going back into its socket.

There are some dislocated shoulders that cannot be reduced this way, but they are the rare exceptions.

Training the Young Cow.

Two Washington youngsters were visiting their father's country place in Virginia when one of them observed:

"Marie, I don't see how cows can eat grass. Do you?"

Marie gave the question appropriate consideration and then replied:

"I suppose it's like this: When the cows are young the mother cow keeps saying to her children: 'If you don't eat grass you shan't have any pie.'"

MOTHER! LOOK AT CHILD'S TONGUE

If cross, feverish, constipated, give "California Syrup of Figs"

A laxative today saves a sick child tomorrow. Children simply will not take the time from play to empty their bowels, which become clogged up with waste, liver gets sluggish; stomach sour.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, or your child is listless, cross, feverish, breath bad, restless, doesn't eat heartily, full of cold or has sore throat or any other children's ailment, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," then don't worry, because it is perfectly harmless, and in a few hours all this constipation poison, sour bile and fermenting waste will gently move out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. A thorough "inside cleansing" is oftentimes all that is necessary. It should be the first treatment given in any sickness.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask at the store for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Adv.

Face to Face.

Suddenly they found themselves, just as our story opens, face to face in the ditch.

"You!" he whispered, strong emotion almost disguising the clothes on his breath.

It was some moments before either could speak for hicoughs.

Then he stuttered softly, "You!"

"You!" she mumbled.

They leaned toward each other, as though the end of their noses were magnets, instead of rosy headlights. Then he bawled, "You!"

SAGE TEA AND SULPHUR DARKENS YOUR GRAY HAIR

Look Years Younger! Try Grandma's Recipe of Sage and Sulphur and Nobody Will Know.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray; also ends dandruff, itching scalp and stops falling hair. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is messy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy." You will get a large bottle for about 50 cents. Everybody uses this old, famous recipe, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger. GAS, DYSPEPSIA AND INDIGESTION

"Pape's Diapepsin" settles sour gassy stomachs in Five minutes—Time It!

You don't want a slow remedy when your stomach is bad—or an uncertain one—or a harmful one—your stomach is too valuable; you mustn't injure it. Pape's Diapepsin is noted for its speed in giving relief. Its harmless, non-toxic, certain, unfailing action in regulating sick, sour, gassy stomachs, its millions of cures in indigestion, dyspepsia, gastritis and other stomach troubles has made it famous the world over.

Keep this perfect stomach doctor in your home—keep it handy—get a large fifty-cent case from any dealer and then if anyone should eat something which doesn't agree with them; if what they eat lays like lead, ferments and sours and forms gas; causes headache, dizziness and nausea; eructations of acid and undigested food—remember as soon as Pape's Diapepsin comes in contact with the stomach all such distress vanishes. Its promptness, certainty and ease in overcoming the worst stomach disorders is a revelation to those who try it.—Adv.

Mistaken Diagnosis—Doctors Guess Wrong Again

About five years ago I wrote to you that I had been a terrible sufferer from kidney and bladder troubles, and that my physician informed me that my left kidney was in such condition that there was no hope for my recovery. I was advised to try your Swamp-Root as a last resort, and after taking four fifty-cent size bottles, I passed a gravel stone which weighed ten grams. I afterwards forwarded you this gravel stone. Have had no return of any trouble since that time and cannot say too much in favor of your wonderful preparation, Swamp-Root, which cures, after physicians fail.

Very truly yours,

WILL WORK NO HARDSHIPS

In advocating the incorporation of Carrizozo under the village act, the Outlook feels perfectly safe in saying that it will work no hardship on any one within the territory of the incorporation. The law fixes the limit of taxation which is very small. This will fall on all according to what they own—every one will be called on to contribute equitably, and even the "plutoerats" will not miss the infinitesimally light contribution he will be called on to make, while the small holder will hardly be scratched. No one need to worry over cement walks and paved streets. We would like to have them, but we know we cannot get them at this time. Incorporation means simply that we will all contribute our share to well kept streets, cheap but serviceable sidewalks, street lights and a clean town. Isn't it worth it?

ONLY HEARSAY

It is all hearsay so far as the Outlook is concerned, but the rumor comes to us that there is one property owner in Carrizozo who does not want the town incorporated. If this is true, we are mildly surprised as the report also says this enterprising and industrious individual wants the streets kept up, wants sidewalks built and wants the town electrically lighted. But he does not want to contribute anything to the accomplishment of the result. Thus, the leech seems to be in our midst—the whoost who in the whole "Who's Who."

"My message is to keep your eyes on 1916", says Prof. W. H. Taft. What's the matter with keeping them on 1915, especially in Carrizozo. Things are going to happen here this year and 1916 will see a better town in every particular, made so by "doing things" in 1915.

It is time right now to determine whether vacant lots hereabouts shall be devoted to spring vegetables or baseball or left to produce the traditional crops of tin cans, dead dogs and unearned increment.

Bringing American sailors as prisoners of war to an American port is enough to make the proud eagle bird, this nation's noble emblem, go out behind the woodshed and scratch for worms.

If the commander of the Prinz Eitel Friedrich is detained until he explains the sinking of that American ship he may not be able to take any further part in the war.

This is a good time for likely New Mexico men to begin thinking how it would look to see "Gov." printed in front of their names.

At the current prices of meat, the bounty of five cents now offered for rabbits by New Mexico seems a niggardly dole.

It might help if somebody would hold Carranza while Secretary Bryan delivered a chautauqua lecture to him.

Billy Sunday is not to go to Boston until next year. No doubt Billy realizes that it will take some time to acquire the Boston language sufficiently to make himself understood there.

Villa's threat to join Carranza in case of foreign intervention is not important inasmuch as foreign intervention, if any there be, will be for the purpose of suppressing both factions they might as well be dealt with jointly as separately.

It is reported that the South Carolina penitentiary is gradually filling up again. It seems when Governor Bleasie emptied the institution he neglected to burn it down.

NOGAL

The Holiness Persuasion held services last Sunday in the Henley chapel.

Rev. Fourth and family have moved here from Oklahoma and will be permanent residents.

Many teams are now passing over the Nogal hill. The roads are yet in a very bad condition.

Work on the electric line from White Oaks to Parsons by the Alto Light and Power Company will be resumed in a day or two as the snow is melting very rapidly.

The intended wedding last week was postponed on account of the groom being burned by an explosion of powder. As the party is rapidly improving the tangled knot will be tied shortly.

What might have been a serious accident terminated in a badly skinned face. Adam Zumwalt dropped a lighted cigarette on a lot of black powder with the result as above stated, and the destruction of the roof of the shanty as Adam went through with it. He has not smoked another cigarette since the accident.

LINCOLN

Mrs. Laekey has been sick for some time, but is recovering.

A number of deer have been seen in this neighborhood recently.

A number of the neighbors spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Hulbert.

Mrs. Geo. W. Hagee who has been visiting in Lincoln with her daughter for several weeks, left for her home above Fort Stanton Monday.

The roads which have been almost impassable for some time are improving rapidly and will soon be in fair condition if the weather continues favorable. The mails thru here have been very irregular for some time, it being almost impossible to get through on account of the unusual fall of snow and rain. There has been more snow and rain in this section during the past winter than at any other time for a good many years and the ground is now in good condition for plowing.

NEWSPAPERS WIDELY READ

Old Circus Manager Finds Them Better Today for Advertising Purposes Than Billboards.

"The billboards don't tell a story any more," said an old circus manager recently. "They were good when they were a novelty, and for that matter have uses yet, because there are exceptions to every rule, and a rule that won't bend will break."

"The newspapers create an atmosphere. You get right close to a man, and with his pocket and home. It's like being introduced to some one and taking him out to lunch to get better acquainted."

"In the circus world we have to get immediate results from our advertising. In most places we play only a day. It is too late to tell people what a good show we had after we have left town. There was a time when billboards told them this because the circus was practically alone in the field of great pictorial displays, but nowadays everything on the billboards is 'circused,' so we lose our 'punch.' Hundreds of men read the papers now where one read twenty or thirty years ago. They look to the newspapers to entertain, to instruct, to advise and direct. Births, deaths, marriages, prize fights, weather predictions, sermons. Wall street reports, near philosophy, the latest music for the turkey trot. Where do you go to find it? Just in the columns of the daily papers, of course, and I don't think I was wrong when I figured out that ninety per cent. of the people would look in the same place for information regarding the coming of the circus."

I object to the term "advertising expenses." Right advertising is not an expense and never was. It is an investment, a business endowment policy, which, almost from the start can be made to pay its own premiums and a large profit, besides accumulating a fund that guarantees the advertiser every dollar of his investment.—George Dyer.

Best Time to Impress Public.
"If business men," says a Chicago writer, "lie down during the summer months, saying to themselves nothing can be accomplished in the heated season, they are taking a fatal view of business—fatal because neglect of any chance to add to the volume of their trade is a lost opportunity. The fault is their own."

"Such business men forget one powerful factor in advertising—the opportunity of the public to read advertisements."

"No period of the year affords such an opportunity as does the heated season. People ensconced in comfortable spots, feeling too indolent to engage in any active pursuit, turn to reading matter for a means of enjoyment, recreation and time-passing."

"In such a time, when business cares are laid aside temporarily, the mind is in the most receptive mood of any period of the year. Impressions made by reading are strongest and strong, pungent advertising forces itself on the attention in a way to fix the impressions gained indelibly on the mind."

Advertising an Asset.
"Advertising as an indestructible asset" was the subject of the address given by Robert Frothingham before the members of the Buffalo (N. Y.) Ad. club the other day. Human demands are created by some form of publicity, he said, and the one and only way to secure this publicity is through advertising. Another fact that the captains of industry have just discovered is that advertising forms a bond of sympathy between the advertiser and the public, according to Mr. Frothingham, and this bond of sympathy is becoming more and more essential in the business of the present day. Where there is ample and friendly advertising, there will never be an awakening of public distrust, concluded Mr. Frothingham.

Prepare for the hot summer days now, by getting a Revonco coal oil cooker at N. B. Taylor & Sons. Has all the latest improvements.

HIGHWAY IMPROVEMENT

TO STUDY ROAD CONDITIONS

Detailed studies of local road building systems in 100 counties are now being carried on by the department of agriculture in co-operation with the state highway departments and local road authorities.

The purpose of this study is to discover the points of excellence and defects in existing local methods of building and maintaining roads which will aid the state authorities to put local road management on a systematized basis. The co-operating state authorities have been asked to designate counties that present typical and exceptional features as to topography, character of road materials, methods of construction and maintenance, administrative organization, methods of road financing and traffic conditions. From these lists 100 counties will be selected, and in these counties the division of road economics will make intensive studies.

This investigation is prompted by the fact that there is at present very little knowledge as to the most effective and economical methods by which a county can develop its roads. At present the methods of financing local road improvements vary from calling on farmers for a certain number of days labor in lieu of a road tax, or the use of county prisoners in road construction, to bond issues or maintenance of roads from dramshop license funds.

The department will study all of these systems with the view to determining what system or combination of systems works best in actual practice.

There is, however, at present no standard system of keeping accounts for road building and maintenance, and as a result, while some counties know to a penny the purpose for which money was spent, others have no definite check or reporting system. Among various counties with the same conditions, cost for excavation or other labor is anything but uniform, and many counties, because of the absence of definite knowledge, fail to use local and cheap materials and construct roads which are unnecessarily expensive for their purpose, or which will wear out before the bond issues are redeemed. The investigation will include a careful study of the use of convict labor in road construction.

In connection with the scientific study, the department's highway engineers will advise freely with local officials as to improvements, and thus give each county visited the advantage of direct co-operation, engineering supervision and assistance.

These investigations, it is believed, will yield important economic data bearing especially on the benefits and burdens of road improvement and showing the extent to which financial outlay under given typical conditions is justifiable.

The heads of state highway departments are manifesting great interest and are co-operating cordially in this work. These data when obtained will be published and thus made accessible to all county and state road officials.

REGRETS LEAVING COUNTY

Lexington, Okla., Mar. 10, 1915
To Editor Carrizozo Outlook

Carrizozo, New Mexico.

I saw an article in your paper on taxing mortgages.

Now I believe that mortgages should be taxed just the same as other property. I will try in my awkward way to show you why John and Jim comes to town each with $5000. John decides to put his money in real estate and live stock; Jim puts his in mortgages and notes drawing interest. Each of these men invest the same amount of money. If mortgages were not taxed the one that bought real estate and stock will pay taxes in your county on five thousand dollars and the one that bought mortgages would pay no taxes at all. Would this be a fair law to tax one and not the other?

Now you see loan companies of other states as well as yours, could invest thousands of dollars in your state in mortgages and notes and not have to contribute one cent to help keep up the expenses of your state. As a general rule money that is borrowed on mortgages is spent for making a crop on land or the running expenses of raising live stock, waiting for the calves or lambs to get large enough to sell, or until the sheep is shorn and the wool is sold. Therefore, it does not enhance the value of the property only in a very few cases, so if the mortgages were not taxed there would be but very little of this mortgage money taxed through the borrower, as it does not make the borrower's taxes any higher and it is only justice to the borrower that the mortgage holder should help to keep up the state, town and county that he has invested his money in. For if he had put his money in real estate and other property he would have had to pay taxes, so why not pay on his investment if it is mortgages.

The last time I wrote to the Outlook it was owned and edited by Lee Rudiselle, it was the White Oaks Outlook. I advised my many friends in that county then to write for single statehood, it was at the time they were trying to make one state out of New Mexico and Arizona.

I lived in Lincoln county, N. M. about thirty years. I established the Postoffice of Alto, New Mexico, and owned that place for five years and I have regretted many times the day I sold out and left that county.

BENEFIT OF IMPROVED ROAD

Among Many Other Things It Attracts Investors Looking for Advantageous Locations.

A long stretch of improved road is one of the best advertisements a state can have. It attracts a class of tourists who are able and willing to pay for entertainment. It brings investors who are looking for advantageous locations. It includes agricultural investigation and consequent immigration and investment, not only along the line of the road, but in other accessible sections. It changes, by the sheer force of publicity, backward localities into progressive ones; enhances value, and brings into general notice resources which had only been known locally; or, if known, not appreciated.

The advantages which such stretches of main roads cause to accrue are advantages which affect the entire state, as well as the localities themselves. It should, therefore, be assumed as a principle that such main roads should be built, in whole or in part, by the state; that their management and maintenance should be in the hands of the state authorities.

ADVERTISING IS LIKE TEACHING

"Advertising," writes a man who has thoroughly studied the subject, "is a broad term. A great deal of advertising is merely published, for the sake of giving information and not with any indefinite idea of creating a favorable attitude in the public mind. A person may obtain information from books on any subject, but the teacher would not encourage this as the best method of developing the mind, or securing an education. The successful method, adopted by the teacher, as evolved by some of the world's greatest thinkers, is based on the fact, that our memory retains those things, which are repeated again and again. Such things as the multiplication table and spelling, become so firmly fixed in the mind, as to be almost instinctive. Advertising, to be successful, must accept this same psychological fact, as its basis.

"Let us consider, for example, how one is taught to speak German. Suppose you devote two hours, each day for a year, to this study, you would unquestionably acquire some knowledge of the language; but, if you merely devote an hour or two a week, the same period, little would be accomplished; or if you devote two hours, each day, for three or four months, then stop three or four months, begin again for a similar period and discontinue your study again, your mind would retain comparatively little, by following such a plan. Follow the latter plan in advertising and the public will know little about your school. Follow the former plan and, at the end of the year, they will have a fair knowledge of what you offer. Suppose you keep up studying German, two hours each day, for a period of three years. At the end of that time you will have acquired such a knowledge of the language, that it will be really a part of yourself. Keep up an advertising campaign, persistently, for three years, and the knowledge of your institution will be as much a part of the mental make-up of the regular readers of the newspaper, in which you advertise, as the German language would be of your own, after consistent study. If you continue to devote some time, each day, year after year, to speaking, or reading German, you will retain what you have acquired and strengthen your ability as a German student. Keep up your advertising, year after year, and you will gain the cumulative effect.

"Suppose a student does study German, each day for a year. Does he know it all? Can he stop? No; he has only begun. Suppose the advertiser advertises, daily for a year. He may accomplish little, the first few months, but at the end of the year, he sees fair results. Can he stop? No; he has hardly begun. It may take a German student several years to really master the language and it may take you, as an advertiser, just as long to make your institution thoroughly well known. Suppose the student stops his practice in speaking and reading German. Gradually he will lose the knowledge, that he has acquired, while by devoting some time each day, he could have retained his knowledge. Let an advertiser stop advertising and it is surprising, how soon the public loses sight of him.

"There is both an art of teaching and a science underlying it. Both, to be successful, must influence the human mind. Much can be accomplished in teaching, by appealing to the emotional side. It is likewise true, that in advertising, it is possible to play upon the feelings of the reader. In both, however, it is necessary to take into consideration, how knowledge is acquired. Things, which are done over and over again, finally become, apparently automatic. The advertiser must present his case in a variety of ways, but must depend upon exactly the same method.

"The most important things to be remembered, in order to make a success of advertising, is that it takes time and constant repetition to secure results of real value. No learning good can be accomplished in either teaching, or advertising, in any other way. Frequent repetition, extending over a considerable time, is absolutely necessary, and this frequent repetition can only be accomplished by newspaper advertising.

"Any kind of an announcement, a circular, a hand-bill, or a telephone message will give information. That, however, is not essentially advertising. If you want to make your name a household word, you must do it by the same method that the teacher uses,—frequent repetition."

It Finished Him.
There was a man who hustled not—
To luck he trusted;
He would not advertise a dot—
And so he rusted,
And likewise busted.

ADVERTISING TO GET RESULTS

The Right Kind Certain to Bring an Increase of Business for the Merchant.

Advertising is simple to some people and very difficult and complicated to others. The former class never spends a dollar on printing ink without the assurance of good returns. The other class sometimes spends thousands of dollars without the slightest result.

Is it a mystery? Not at all. A thoroughly experienced person can tell beforehand whether an advertising campaign will pay. It is not easy to say just what form of advertisement will give the best results, but it is easy enough to select the method of advertising which will give such results.

There is a right way and a wrong way of conducting an advertising campaign, and good advertisements and good mediums may prove worthless if the advertiser has chosen the wrong way.

Speaking generally, the mail-order system is one of the wrong ways, although it may pay individuals. It is merely a substitute, a temporary substitute, for the true and tried old system of retailing merchandise. Take the case of the retail grocer who sells a private blend of tea and who is trying to build a big demand through the mails. He may ultimately create a fair business by mail, but it should be obvious even to himself that a far wider outlet awaits a similar article pushed through the usual trade channels.

Mail order business is an unnatural business and is not likely to be a permanent feature of the country's commerce.

The magic of advertising? That's right. The magician's wand cannot do the expected job with one wave, however, nor can it work its wonders through a single chain of mediums.

The public must be reached, and each of these branches of the advertising job must receive proper treatment. If one is neglected in the least there will be disappointment. The retailer's advertising task is, as a rule, much simpler than the manufacturer's, except, of course, when he wishes to push his own private brands into general distributive channels.

FATE TOO MUCH FOR CHICAGO MAN

Buffeted by Misfortune, He Was Unable to Understand World.

HAD ROSEATE DREAMS

His Feet Were on the Road to Success When Demon of Ill-Luck Intervened and Haunted Him to Grave.

Chicago.—Joseph Macaluso died in a Chicago hospital a few days ago, and he died without understanding the world. Several months ago Macaluso sat in his squalid home in the metropolis of the lakes, trembling with the bitterness that filled his heart. He was dying then, and he cried out to a visitor: "Why should they do this to me? Why should I suffer like this? My children have nothing to eat and I have nothing to eat, and we are cold and I—I am dead soon. Why?"

The man who couldn't understand wasn't railing against poverty.

Hoped to Make a Fortune.

Macaluso had come to America with a wife and dreams of a fortune. He had worked and succeeded, saving a little of the money he made each month, investing it in a store. He was a laborer with ambitions. Things were looking rosy.

"America—I tell you there is no country like it," Macaluso used to say.

Then one day two men with United States badges came and arrested him. He was wanted in Italy for the murder of a boy. Macaluso, unable to believe what had happened, pleaded and fought in vain. He was extradited.

Lay in Prison for a Year.

They tore him from his home and family and left them to snif for themselves. While Macaluso was being carried across the sea his wife spent the savings of the happy years. While Macaluso was being detained in an Italian dungeon awaiting trial his wife sold the furniture they had bought in the happy years.

For one year Macaluso waited in a dark cell, his skin growing yellow, his eyes black and lustrous with the fever that was eating into his strength. For a year his wife washed clothes.

Came and Arrested Him.

scrubbed floors and each week sold another piece of furniture.

The Victim of a Mistake.

Then Macaluso went on trial. It was a mistake. The Italian government had made a mistake; the American government had made a mistake. They begged Macaluso's pardon, but wouldn't pay his fare back across the ocean.

Charity raised the money, and Joe came home. He found his wife and his little girl, Angelina, living in a squalid rear flat. They were destitute. They had spent everything.

Joe, pale and trembling, couldn't get work. He grew worse in health. Deeper and deeper the bitterness of his life sank into him and finally Joe was taken to the hospital. His lips, thin as the edge of paper and as colorless, trembled in a remembered prayer as he was dying.

His wife and family were unable even to raise the money to bury him. They, too, do not understand

No Voice for Singing.
Vivian, age three, and Marion, age
two, were doing the street car tango.
Accompanied by their mamma, they were on their way to town. They were standing on the car seats, and, of course found added motion to their terpsichorean endeavors in the swaying of the car. Then they turned to a song and dance turn.
Suddenly the car stopped, but the singing continued, and, of course, the attention of the passengers in the car was directed to the children.
Vivian stopped singing, but Marion continued.
Vivian frowned, but Marion did not stop.
"Marion," she finally said rather sternly, "you must not sing; you

PLAN FOR CLEAN EGGS

Sunshine Is Necessary for the Health of Laying Hens.

Poultryman Should Follow Nature's Plan and Make Winter Months Comfortable to Fowls—Furnish Plenty of Nests.

(By A. C. SMITH)
Sunshine is absolutely necessary for the health and vigor of the laying hen. Low windows should be set so that the sun will shine into every part of the house during some part of the day. Roosts should be placed on a level, and not too high, as the hens are apt to injure themselves either by crowding, falling or flying against a projection about the house. Keep the windows in the poultry house clean.
Rub them repeatedly with old newspapers. Sunshine in winter is the greatest of tonics.

When poultrymen and farmers realize that the sooner they follow nature's plan and make the winter months as near like spring and summer months, the sooner they will realize the height of their ambition—win-necessary. Plenty of nesting material prevents breakage and insures clean eggs.

An ample and clean litter on the floor is also very essential when an A-1 clean product is sought. Particularly is this true when the hens are allowed outdoors during wet weather. The litter acts as a foot mat for the hens on their way to the

KEEPS COWS' STALLS CLEAN

Device Shown in Illustration to Prevent Animals From Standing in Gutters With Hind Feet.

The sketch shows a device to keep the cows from standing in the gutter with their hind feet and making a filth in the stall when they step out, then lying down in the mess, writes A. C.
Dillon of Lincoln County, Colo., in Farmers Mail and Breeze. Some have the habit where movable stanchions are not used. This device works to perfection and sometimes cures cows of the habit.

You will need two pieces of 2 by 4.
Cut them to fit your gutter as shown in Fig. 1. Angle off one end so the cow does not lie on a sharp corner.
make two half-diamond cuts in these pieces and set in the cross pieces.
These are made of 3 by 3 and are securely nailed. If the gutter is very wide you may have to put in three strips, as a cow used to standing in the gutter will soon find she can get her feet down between the strips. If you have two or more cows that have this trick stand them together. You can make the strips long enough for several cows and put extra 2 by 4 pieces in to support the strips. Lift the rack and place it back to the wall before turning out the cows. This device effectively cures your heifers of the habit.

Seed Corn From Shock.

Seed corn taken from shock corn which has stood in the field most of the winter has been found to give no better germination test than one and one-half per cent in some instances.
Such corn cannot be used for seed with any degree of success. Corn is not allowed to dry out well in the shock, and when frequent freezing and thawing begins the vitality of the corn soon vanishes.

Green Feed for Hens.

Sprouted oats are a splendid green feed for hens in winter and may be quite easily supplied on any farm.
They are fed when they have reached a height of about three inches.

ter eggs. Getting winter eggs is really quite easy if given a little thought and study. Using the gray matter in your skull will make you a successful poultryman.

Poultry keepers may easily reduce the percentage of dirty or soiled eggs, and losses entailed to insignificant figures.

First, an ample number of nests is,
of course, necessary, but an ample number means no more, than, and probably not as many as, are usually directed by poultry writers. Laying houses are, as a rule, provided with a sufficient number, but where the keeper falls down is in failing to supply enough nesting material and floor litter.

Obviously the nesting material must be clean, or the eggs become soiled by contact, and it must be sufficient in quantity, or the eggs are often broken by dropping upon the hard floor of the nest. In houses where the dropping boards are above the nests, and the custom is to sand the boards, small stones often drop into the nest and breakage results when newly laid eggs fall upon them. The condition of nests should be noticed daily, and the nesting material replenished when

PROPER FEEDING OF A COLT

Badly Stunted Weanling Had Hard Time Trying to Make Horse of Itself—Give Some Grain.

Too many young foals, just before and after weaning, and, in fact, throughout the whole winter, are obliged to take pot luck with the older horses and mules, and as a result are stunted. A badly stunted weanling has a hard time trying to make the horse of itself that it would had its opportunity been better early in life.

From the time the foal begins to notice the feed box it should have access at frequent intervals, if not constantly, to feed of its own. Oats, either whole or meal, are good for the real young foal; oatmeal is preferred by some.

As the foal increases in age and size, and its ability to eat grain improves, other feeds should be put into the box, forming a grain mixture.
Oats, bran and corn, equal parts by weight, may well form the bulk of this mixture. To this may well be added a small amount of linseed oil meal; about 2 per cent to 3 per cent by weight of the total mixture.

DAIRY NOTES

Regularity in feeding is of supreme importance with the dairy cow.

Keep the floors warm. Cold floors cause much loss in milk in winter.

In salting butter one ounce of salt to a pound of butter is generally about right.

Dairy barn ventilation should be furnished by a system, not by cracks and drafts.

The successful dairyman is the man who puts thought into his work. He is a student of conditions.

On warm days let the cows out in the yard for a change and to get in the sun. When cold keep them in the stables.

THICK, GLOSSY HAIR FREE FROM DANDRUFF

Girls! Beautify Your Hair! Make It Soft, Fluffy and Luxuriant—Try the Moist Cloth.

Try as you will, after an application of Danderine, you cannot find a single trace of dandruff or falling hair and your scalp will not itch, but what will please you most, will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair, fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—growing all over the scalp.

A little Danderine immediately doubles the beauty of your hair. No difference how dull, faded, brittle and scraggy, just moisten a cloth with Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. The effect is immediate and amazing—your hair will be light, fluffy and wavy, and have an appearance of abundance; an incomparable luster, softness and luxuri-ance, the beauty and shimmer of true hair health.

Get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any store and prove that your hair is as pretty and soft as any—that it has been neglected or injured by careless treatment—that's all. Adv.

Human Nature.

"My landlady has the right idea about running a boarding house."

"Yes?"

"You never hear anybody complaining of the service at her house."

"Indeed?"

"That's the truth. Instead of giving her boarders a chance to complain, she makes them think she's doing them a favor to let them stay there and the result is that they would put up with almost any inconvenience rather than leave."

Careless.

"I see by your sign that you are a dispensing chemist."

"Yes, sir."

"What do you dispense with?"

"With accuracy, sir."

"I thought so. That last prescription I had made up here nearly killed my wife."

Why Not, if This Happened?

A Yale professor who died the other day left an estate valued at $975,000.
The first thing we know a newspaper reporter is going to die and leave his widow $500,000 in gilt-edge securities and not less than $100,000 life insurance.

National Congress of Mothers.

The National Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teachers associations at their recent executive board meeting in Atlantic City, N. J., started a National Congress of Mothers' endowment fund, $5,000 having been subscribed for that purpose.

She also had found her voice.
"You!" she yowled.
"Oh!" he said remorsefully, "this is wrong of us!"
She sighed acquiescence, and they parted.
Forgive them, reader. They had been divorced only a week!

KNOW NOW

And Will Never Forget the Experience.

The coffee drinker who has suffered and then been completely relieved by changing from coffee to Postum knows something valuable. There's no doubt about it.

"I learned the truth about coffee in a peculiar way," says a California woman. "My husband who has, for years, been of a bilious temperament decided to leave off coffee and give Postum a trial, and as I did not want the trouble of making two beverages for meals I concluded to try Postum, too. The results have been that while my husband has been greatly benefited, I have myself received even greater benefit."

"When I began to drink Postum I was thin in flesh and very nervous.
Now I actually weigh 10 pounds more than I did at that time and I am stronger physically and in my nerves, while my husband is free from all his ills."

"We have learned our little lesson about coffee and we know something about Postum, too, for we have used Postum now steadily for the last three years and we shall continue to do so."
"We have no more use for coffee—the drug drink. We prefer Postum and health."

Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

Postum comes in two forms:
Regular Postum—must be well boiled, 15c and 25c packages.

Instant Postum—is a soluble powder.
A teaspoonful dissolves quickly in a cup of hot water and, with cream and sugar, makes a delicious beverage instantly. 30c and 50c tins.

The cost per cup of both kinds is about the same.

"There's a Reason" for Postum.

Neuralgia

Especially in the piercing pain of neuralgia or the dull throb of headache is Sloan's Liniment wonderfully relieving. Laid lightly on the part where the pain is felt, it gives at once a feeling of comfort and ease that is most welcome to the overwrought sufferer.

Hear What Others Say:

"There are no liniments that equal Sloan's. My husband has neuralgia very often, he puts Sloan's on his face and that is the last of it."—Mrs. V. J. Brown, Route 1, Box 181, Holly, Tenn.

"I have used Sloan's Liniment for family use for years and would not be without it. We have raised a family of ten children and have used it for croup and all lung trouble; also, as an anesthetic for wounds, of which children have a great many, it can't be beat. My wife sprained her ankle last summer and it was in bad shape.
Sloan's Liniment applied enabled her to be so good as ever in a week. I have used it several times for sprains and rheumatism."—John Newcomb, R. R. No. 2, Kraluk, Iowa.
