CIVIC LEAGUE HOLDS MEETING

Pursuant to a call published last week the Civic League society met at the Crystal theatre last Monday afternoon. The purpose of the meeting was to elect officers for the ensuing year and to outline a plan for civic improvement for the same period.

Upon the presentation of a formal motion, the old officers were re-elected, not a dissenting vote being cast against the retention of the old officers. The officers are: Mrs. W. L. Gumm, President; Mrs. H. B. Hamilton, Vice President; Mrs. A. J. Rolland, Treasurer; Mrs. G. J. Dingwall, Secretary.

The principal work planned for the year was the fencing, improving and beautifying of the local cemetery.

Four committees were appointed to start the work as follows: Publicity: Mesdames Hamilton, Crawford and Kimbell. Posting: Mesdames French, Mudge and Miss Cole. Plans: Mesdames Tennis, Sager, Reilly. Visiting: Mesdames Sager, Lesnet and Lacey.

These committees are directed to report at the meeting of the society next Monday afternoon, at three o'clock at the Crystal Theatre, at which time and place further and definite arrangements will be completed for the summer work.

The meeting last Monday afternoon was not only largely attended by old members, but many new members presented applications and the roll of membership very materially increased. The meeting was altogether harmonious and unity of effort seemed to be uppermost in the minds of all members.

WANTS SQUARE DEAL IN NEW TEXT BOOKS

Governor McDonald's Aim is to do What is Best for People, but Opposes Needless Change in Texts

CONTRACTS TO BE LET MAY AGGREGATE NEARLY $50,000

That he stands for a square deal for every book company now bidding on contracts to supply text books for the public schools of New Mexico for the next six years, but that he personally is opposed to changing books now in use for others unless there is an apparent necessity, was pointed out by Governor William C. McDonald as president of the state board of education in a brief address of welcome to the two score or more bookmen and bookwomen assembled in Santa Fe this week.

Extra seats had to be placed in the senate chamber at the capitol to accommodate the throng of representatives of publishing concerns who are seeking the contracts that will be let by the state board, aggregating some $50,000 in books of a dozen or more subjects. In welcoming these visitors here the governor, in a pleasing address, sparkling with humor, commented among other things on the presence of the several saleswomen, says the New Mexican.

The governor said that everything done by the state board is to be without prejudice and also without favoritism. He reminded the salesmen that the superintendent of public instruction is elected by the people and the people will have to look after him but that the governor appoints the other members of the board and the governor will look after them. He then pointed out that the presence of so many representatives of the great school book publishing companies of the country will tend to furnish much information on text book matters, and the members of the state board are eager to learn all they can.

In emphasizing the importance, in his opinion, of making as few changes as possible in text books, the governor pointed out the possibility of entailing extra expense to parents of pupils if the books are changed. He added that his aim is to do what is best for the people of the state.

The board then got down to work to hear the many claims of the many book companies' representatives. A cleverly arranged schedule placed all of the companies in alphabetical order with all of the subjects up for discussion also in alphabetical order, beginning with the American Book Company and the subject of arithmetic. It is predicted that eight days will be required to hear all of the arguments.

It was soon discovered that readers and arithmetics are the most numerous for consideration, such as the type, the subject matter, the illustrations, and the expense. It is said that there are two great methods in vogue in putting out readers. One is to "crib" everything from other works and the other is to employ clever writers to compose original articles. In the matter of illustrations, work done in Europe at a lower cost than at home in America may figure in the consideration.

As regards arithmetics, there are two kinds: Those that follow the system of repetition and those that deal entirely by subjects.

It developed that even a subject like penmanship has ten representatives present, one for each system.

By the time all of the salesmen have spoken it is thought that every member of the board of education will have a pretty fair idea of the problems that confront the average American small boy and girl in the grades.

CARRIZO DIDN'T WAIT

The people of Carrizozo didn't wait for Arbor Day to plant trees. The governor has issued his proclamation designating Friday, April 2, as the day on which all the people of the state shall plant a few trees, thus beautifying their particular lot, the whole to add to the appearance of each locality. But Arbor Day was not considered here—at least it was anticipated, if thought of at all. In ordering the trees for the court yard square, Dr. Watson had sent to him on consignment a good many more than he needed and now he finds he will have to order more trees, as his supply is entirely exhausted. The people were anxious to get the trees and shrubs and plant them immediately, and as a consequence the doctor has disposed of 300 shade trees of the North Carolina poplar variety, 15 cherry trees and about 100 rose bushes. The sixty or more shade trees he will plant in the court yard he will have to order.

SIPPEL FLIES THE COOP

Charles Sippel, who has been confined in the county jail since the fore part of last January, eluded the officers last Wednesday and has made his get away. He was tried before Justice Ranniger at Oscura for breaking into the dwelling house of R. J. Stoddard and stealing a suit of underwear. After hearing the evidence the justice found him to be guilty of burglary and bound him over to the grand jury.

CLEAN UP THE TOWN

The bunch of travelers apprehended by officer Hyde last week were given five days on the streets by Justice Massie and they have been doing good work under the direction of Sheriff Chaves and his overseers. A great deal of trash and filth has been collected and hauled off the streets and vacant lots and the appearance of the town has been much improved.

SUBSCRIBERS NOTICE

Since taking charge of the Outlook we have mailed out several hundred dollars worth of statements to those who were indebted $1.50 or more, and those whose subscription had expired we mailed statements to them for the advance subscription now due. Some have remitted, but the majority have remained as silent as the seven spirits. We kindly ask every one indebted to us to send in their remittance at once. It seems a little unfair for us to have to pay interest to keep our business going when we have due us in amounts from $1.50 up, enough to pay all we owe. In fact we cannot understand why a subscription to a newspaper should be the last obligation considered, when most of those indebted are able to pay promptly. A payment now will be appreciated.

CIVIC LEAGUE WILL BEAUTIFY CEMETERY

Propose to Devote its Energies During the Coming Year to This Sacred Plot of Ground

WILL FENCE TRACT AND PLANT TREES AND FLOWERS

At its meeting last Monday afternoon the Civic League re-elected Mrs. W. L. Gumm president, Mrs. H. B. Hamilton vice president, Mrs. Geo. J. Dingwall treasurer and Mrs. A. J. Rolland secretary.

It is the purpose of the league this year to devote its energies to beautifying the local cemetery. However, there is considerable preliminary work to be done. It is the desire of the ladies to enclose the tract in a stock proof fence, and this in itself will take some money and considerable work. It is further proposed to scrape the avenues, thus clearly defining them together with the walks. The various committees have been appointed and are now at work, and on next Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock at Bank hall a meeting will be held at which the reports of these committees will be received and the estimate of the cost will doubtless be presented.

The league desires that at the meeting next Monday, everyone in Carrizozo who is interested in the work the league proposes to do this year, be present and assist by their presence. All are eligible to become members and it is hoped that there will be a large attendance.

SUICIDE AT HONDO

Joseph Storms, probably the oldest American resident of Lincoln county committed suicide at Hondo Tuesday morning at 11:10 a. m., by shooting himself in the head with a small pistol, and died at 3:15 p. m. the same day.

"Uncle Joe" as he was familiarly called, had been quite feeble for several months, and had no doubt become despondent. That he had contemplated suicide for quite a while is evidenced by the fact that he had ordered the pistol from a mail order house several weeks ago but had never removed it from the package in which it came through the mail till Sunday or Monday last.

The deceased was born in Tippecanoe county, Indiana, April 4, 1834, and came to Lincoln county in 1866, at which time he located the homestead at the junction of the Rio Bonito and Rio Ruidosa, where he lived continuously till about a year ago.

The remains were buried in the cemetery at San Patricio, beside those of his wife who died about seven years ago.

COURT YARD IMPROVEMENTS

William Barnett has this week plowed up the court house yard preparatory to the planting of grass seed, in an effort to have a lawn grown. Some sixty or more shade trees will be planted, also, and at the April meeting of the board of commissioners sidewalks for the lot will be considered.

SYNOPSIS.

Joseph Hayward, an ensign in the United States army, on his way to Fort Hammad, meets a young girl, a runaway whose name has been connected with all manner of atrocities, also headed for Fort Hammad, with a message from the British general, Hamilton. Hayward guides her to the fort. At General Hammad's headquarters Hayward meets Rene D'Auvray, who professes to recognize him, although he has no recollection of ever having seen her before. Hayward volunteers to carry a message for Hammad to Mandakah, where Hamilton is stationed. The northwest Indian tribes are ready for war and are only held back by the refusal of the friendly Wyandots to join. The latter are demanding the return of Wa-pa-tee-tah, a religious teacher, whom they believe to be a prisoner. Hayward's mission is to assure the Wyandots that the man is not held by the soldiers. Rene asks Hayward to let her accompany him. She tells him that she is a quarter-blood Wyandot and a missionary among the Indians. She has been in search of her father, she insists that she has seen Hayward before, but in a British uniform. Hayward refuses her request and starts for the north accompanied by a scout named Brady and a private soldier. They come on the trail of a war party and to escape from the Indians take shelter in a hut on an island. Hayward finds a murdered man in the hut. It proves to be Rene D'Auvray, a former French officer who is called by the Wyandots "white chief." Rene appears and Hayward is puzzled by her insistence that they have met before. Rene recognizes the murdered man as her father, who was known among the Indians as Wa-pa-tee-tah. Brady reports seeing a band of marauding Indians in the vicinity and with them Simon Girty. Brady's evident concern is the girl that there is a British officer by the name of Hayward, who resembles the American. They find escape from the island cut off. Recounting around the cabin at night Hayward discovers a white man in a British uniform and leaves him for dead after a desperate fight. The Indians capture the cabin after a hard struggle in which Hayward is wounded. Rene saves Hayward from death at the hands of the savages and conceals him in the cellar of the cabin.

CHAPTER XIII—Continued.

I got to my hands and knees, determined to discover for myself the nature of the passage. Any form of action was better than merely to lie there inert. I had to creep forward, and found barely room for the passage of my body. My wound still hurt sufficiently to make me cautious of every movement, and consequently my advance was slow. There never was blacker darkness; it was like a weight pressing me back, and the silence was like that of the grave. I could hear my own breathing, but my hands and knees made no sound on the earth floor. Whatever of savage fury was occurring above, no echo found way to where I burrowed below. To all appearance the tunnel ran in a direct line; at least I could discover no evidence of deviation.

I stopped to rest a moment, sitting cross-legged, my head barely escaping the roof. Suddenly from out that intense darkness before me, came a peculiar sound. Intensified by the long silence, and the contracted walls, I could not tell whether it was cough or groan. Something—man or animal—was certainly there in the tunnel hiding, crouched in the darkness, unaware as yet of my presence. Then it would not be an animal; it must be a man.

I got upon hands and knees again, slowly and with utmost caution, aware that if I was to escape notice I must advance as stealthily as a wild cat, the slightest sound would carry far in that gallery. I moved forward a yard, two, three yards, extending one hand out into the dark and feeling about carefully, before venturing another inch. Mine were the movements of a snail.

I had almost convinced myself there was nothing there, either brute or human; yet some instinct continually told me there was. I felt an uncanny presence, and an ill-defined sense of danger I could not cast off. I came to a pause, actually afraid to go on, my flesh creeping with strange horror. I rested on one knee, my face thrust forward as I stared blindly into the awful blackness. I even held my breath in suspense, listening for the slightest movement. Merciful God! Some one—something—was actually there! I could hear now the faint pulsing of a breath, as though through clogged nostrils; now, and a meaningless muttering of the lips.

CHAPTER XIV.

A Struggle Underground.

I remained poised, breathless, huddled in the dark, hesitating. A dozen considerations flashed through my mind, as I swiftly decided what to do. I could scarcely hope to move backward without noise; nor, if I succeeded, would I be any better off with him still blocking the passage. There was nothing for it then but to come to hand grips. But the fellow, whoever he might be—whether white or Indian—was doubtless armed, while I was weaponless. To get him right was a desperate chance, yet a chance which must be taken. Fortunately I had him blocked his heavy breathing being unmistakable, and evidence also that the man remained unaware of my presence. I shifted one foot forward to get firmer purchase, and then grasped for him through the darkness. My hand came in contact with a shoulder; then gripped a mass of long hair. He gave vent to a sudden cry, started, almost inhuman in its wildness, struggling backward so quickly my other hand closed on air. But I held hard to what I had, dragged off my balance, feeling his fingers after my throat. There was no room for us to do otherwise than claw at each other. After that first cry neither of us uttered a sound, but I closed in on him, getting a stronger grip. He was a man, a white man, for he wore a rough coat, and his face was covered with a growth of straggly, coarse whiskers. Enemy or friend I could not be sure, nor did I find opportunity to discover. We both fought like beasts, resorting to teeth and nails.

His one object was to wrench himself loose, but my fortunate grip on his hair foiled this effort. Yet both his hands were free, the one clutching my throat; but, in those first breathless seconds, I could not locate the other. He was lying on his side, with right arm underneath. Fearful of a weapon, I let the fellow gouge at my throat with long, ape-like fingers, while I struggled fiercely to expose the hidden hand. If it proved empty I knew I could handle the man; that I possessed the strength to draw him to me, to crush him into subjection within the vise of my arms. Straining every muscle I could bring into play, I succeeded in forcing him over onto his face. But he was a cat, wiry, full of tricks. In some manner he twirled his arm out of my grip. There was a flash of reddish yellow flame searing across my eyes, an awful report, like an explosion in my stunned ears. Where the bullet went I will never know, but I saw the man's face leap out at me from the darkness—just an instant of reflection, as though thrown against a screen by some flash of light—the unmistakable face of a negro.

Yet startled as I was by this apparition, his view of me had no less an effect. Even in that single instant of revelation, the hate in his eyes changed to fear, to uncontrollable panic; his lips gave vent to a wild cry, an exclamation in mongrel French, and, before I could stiffen in resistance, or recover from my own shock, the fellow flung his pistol at me, and jerked free. The flying weapon tore a gash in my scalp, but his haste and fear proved his own undoing. Half stunned as I was by the blow, I heard him spring to his feet, the dull crash of his head as he struck the hardwood slab of the low roof, and then the thud of a body on the tunnel floor. In his haste, his desperation, his strange fright, he had forgotten where he was, and attempted to spring erect. My head reeled, the blood from this new cut trickling down my cheek. The negro lay motionless in the darkness; I could not even distinguish his breathing, although I hesitated, listening intently, half fearing some trick.

What had frightened the fellow so? What had brought that look of insane terror into his eyes? It was as if he stared at a ghost, the very sight of which had crazed him. I mastered my own nerves, and crept forward along the passage, feeling blindly in advance with one outstretched hand, until it came in contact with the man's figure.

With clenched teeth, I touched the coarse hair with my fingers; then the forehead. The flesh retained some warmth; yet the feeling was not natural—it seemed lifeless. For the instant this appeared impossible. Why, he did it himself; he crashed his own skull against the slab. Yet I could not make the affair seem real, or probable. And a negro! I had seen few of the race, but had always been told they were of thick skull; but if this man was actually dead, his head must have been smashed like an egg-shell. And it was—I found the gash a moment later, the jagged edge of bone. The fellow was dead, stone dead; there was no heat to his heart, no throbbing pulse. Still dazed by the discovery, I ran my fingers along the roof overhead, hoping to find something there which would account for the mystery. No flat surface could ever have jabbed that wound. Ah! I felt it—the sharp point of a stake protruding between the logs. The poor fellow had struck that with sufficient force to penetrate the brain.

I conquered my abhorrence, and searched him, finding tobacco, a knife—an ugly weapon—flint and steel, a few coins, and some powder and rifle balls. There were no pistol bullets, and the thought occurred to me that the smaller weapon probably did not belong to him; he had appropriated it elsewhere. I crept about, and across the body, searching for it in vain, but I found the rifle, and took time to test its flint, and load it.

I was still engaged at this task, blindly feeling about in the dark for everything needed, and always conscious of that dead body beside me, when I suddenly detected smoke—not the puff of powder which still clung to the passage, but the acrid, pungent odor of burning wood. Even as I began to breathe the fumes they increased in intensity; the narrow tunnel filling rapidly with the smoke waves, and setting me to coughing. I realized at once what had happened. Mademoiselle's word of warning coming back to mind—they were burning the cabin, and through some orifice the smoke was being swept down into this underground passage. If there were no outlet, no way by which it could escape again to the open air, I must die there in that black hole, choked and suffocated. I might be there forever beside this hideous negro; lie there until our bones rotted, and we also became earth. The horror of the thought brought me to my knees. Already the air was stifling, my lungs laboring heavily for breath as the smoke clouds filled the passage. Only as I bent my nostrils close against the earthen floor could I find life-giving air.

Even in my terror I clung to the negro's rifle desperately. The entrance leading forth into the cave-cellar must be closed, or the smoke cloud would never be so dense and suffocating. To open it might require strength, the blows of the gun stock. If I retained power to burst my way through I must hurry. Already I felt my head reel dizzily, my open lips gulping for air. I crept forward recklessly in the dark, bruising my body against the sides of the tunnel, actually feeling the thickening smoke swirl about me in dense clouds. I gasped for breath, and drew a bit of cloth about nose and mouth in slight protection. I was panic-stricken, overcome by sudden horror, yet some nature within compelled me to struggle on. Suddenly I came to a body lying lengthwise of the passage, the head to the south. This new discovery was a shock, yet seemed to affect me little.

I crawled over him, as though he was no more than a stone in the path, yet as one hand came down in the dark on the upturned face, I experienced a sudden thrill—the flesh was warm, the man lived. Barely had my numbed mind grasped this helplessly, when my rifle barrel, thrust before me, struck the end of the passage, the faint sound of contact signifying wood. Not three feet extended between the man's head and this barrier which blocked us from the outside air. Desperate, half crazed indeed, not only by my own situation, but also by the memory of those bodies behind in the dark tunnel, I found scant knee-room in the small space, and fumbled madly about for some latch. The surface was of wood, roughly faced, but smooth, save for what might be a handle in the middle, a mere strip, bevelled to give finger-hold. I pulled at this in vain; then pushed with my shoulder against the oak, but the wood held firm. Weak as I was, and in so crumpled a position, I could bring to bear but small strength. To batter the door down was the only hope left; no matter what noise resulted, or the possibility of capture by the savages, I could not lie there and choke to death in that place of horror. Better any danger than such a fate. I drew back and struck, the power of fear giving strength to my arms. Again and again I drove the iron-bound rifle stock against the hard oak. I left the center and attacked the sides, feeling the wood give slightly. Encouraged by this I redoubled my efforts, concentrating my blows on one spot, until certain the tightly jammed door was being driven from the groove. It was hot and stifling; the perspiration streamed from me; the smoke was suffocating, deadly. I gasped and choked, my head swam with dizziness. I felt my strength ebbing away; despair clutched me. Yet I struck—no longer with clear intent, but automatically, driving the heavy gun butt against the slowly yielding wood, with every pound of strength I had left. It seemed as if I had struck my last blow—I believe now I had; I believe my body fell with it—I cannot remember clearly—only I know the wood gave way, and I fell forward into light and air, my face without, my body still in the tunnel.

Merciful mother! How I gulped in those first refreshing breaths; how the clogged lungs rejoiced. I glanced back into the tunnel, suddenly remembering the man who still lived. If he were out, the door might be forced back into place again, that volume of smoke suppressed.

I refastened the cloth across my face, and crept back into the tunnel until I was able to grip the fellow's arms. He was a large man, clothed as a white; I even thought I felt bridle on his elbows; and as I drew him toward me by a mighty effort, the light streaming in revealed a red jacket.

CHAPTER XV.

I Meet My Double.

The probability that the man was a British officer, whose life depended on my exertions, served me now, as matter who he might prove to be, whether friend or foe, he was of my race and blood, and evidently the victim of treacherous attack. First of all I must get him out of that stifling hole into pure air, and discover the nature of his injuries. It was no easy task dragging the heavy body through the narrow entrance, and across the dislodged door. It had to be accomplished by sheer strength of arm, for I worked on my knees, choked by the foul atmosphere, almost blinded by the smoke, and unable to find purchase. Yet foot by foot I won, until, exhausted by the effort, I hauled the limp form free of the barrier, and against the side wall of the cellar.

I leaned against the wall as the waves of smoke thinned, and drifted out through the open door. At last there was but a thin vapor showing against the blue expanse of sky. It occurred to me the blue was shading into gray, as if approaching twilight. I retained no sense of time; so much had occurred I felt I had been confined for hours in that tunnel; when I first emerged and perceived light I could scarcely realize that it was yet day; that all had occurred—the fight in the cabin, my rescue, the horrors of the tunnel—within so short a space. There suddenly swept over me the fresh memory of it all; I saw the faces, heard the voices. And they were dead, those men I had companioned with; they had gone the long journey, some quickly, mercifully, and Brady in the agony of torture. How it nauseated me! The swift reaction leaving me sobbing like a child, my hands pressed over my eyes. All at once I experienced the full horror, and broke down as weak as a babe. I remember now how my knees shook, so that I sank down to the earth floor; ay! and how I prayed, my voice a mere senseless murmur, yet, no doubt, clear enough to God's ears.

I felt tempted to get outside, and discover where the raiders had gone; their trail might reveal much, if it could only be found before night came. I had straightened up, determined to try the venture when a movement below, and the muffled sound of a voice speaking English, reminded me of the soldier. Descending from out the sunlight I could perceive little in the darker cave-cellar. The red jacket was, however, sufficiently conspicuous to convince me that the man was sitting up, his back against the wall.

"I don't know who you are, friend," he called out heartily, "only you look to be white. By any luck do you speak English?"

"Not much of anything else," I answered, endeavoring to discover his features. "I'm of the blood."

"Ay! With a colonial twang to it, unless my ears lie. Is that the story? So! Then what in God's name are you doing here?"

I could not take the measure of the fellow, his face remaining indistinct in the shadows, but there was a reckless ring of good-fellowship in his voice which inspired me to frankness.

"I came this way with a message for the Wyandots. I belong to the garrison of Fort Hammad."

"An officer?"

"Yes."

"Holy smoke, man, but you certainly stumbled into a hornet's nest. Didn't you know all the northwest tribes have declared war? That it has actually begun?"

"No; it was in the hope of preventing such a catastrophe that I was sent. Word was brought us that the Wyandots would not join the confederation."

"Who brought such word?"

"Simon Girty. He bore a letter from Hamilton, and sought information regarding the disappearance of a Wyandot chief."

"Wa-pa-tee-tah?"

"That was the name."

The man laughed, but the sound was not altogether pleasant.

"There is a touch of humor to your tale, my friend," he said slowly, "although I doubt if you will be able to perceive it. Girty and Hamilton may have had reasons of their own for a bit of byplay; egad! They failed to consult me. But as for this Wa-pa-tee-tah, that chanced to be my business, although just now, and in the presence of the enemy, we will let the discussion go. Diplomacy never reveals its cards, and I have become more diplomat than soldier. What am I then—a prisoner?"

Famous British Soldier.

One hundred years ago March 8 a British army under Gen. Sir Thomas Graham attempted to take by storm Bergen-op-Zoom, a strongly-fortified place in Holland. After forcing an entrance to the fortress the British had their retreat cut off, and nearly all were cut to pieces or taken prisoners. For the bravery he displayed in action Gen. Sir Thomas Graham was raised to the British peerage under the title of Baron Lynedoch. He was one of the celebrated British commanders in the Napoleonic war; and was in command of a wing of the British army at the great battle of Waterloo. He lived to the advanced age of ninety-three years, his death occurring in 1843.

Sick headache, biliousness, dizziness, coated tongue, foul taste and foul breath—always trace them to torpid liver; delayed, fermenting food in the bowels or sour, gassy stomach.

Poisonous matter clogged in the intestines, instead of being cast out of the system is reabsorbed into the blood. When this poison reaches the delicate brain tissue it causes congestion and that dull, throbbing, sickening headache.

Cascarets immediately cleanse the stomach, remove the sour, undigested food and foul gases, take the excess bile from the liver and carry out all the constipated waste matter and poisons in the bowels.

A Cascaret tonight will surely straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist means your head clear, stomach sweet and your liver and bowels regular for months. Adv.

Horrible Thought.

Five-year-old William is given to asking questions, and always his good-natured mother tries to supply him with the desired information. One day after many questions regarding the deity, William broke a brief silence to remark:

"Mother, nobody knows so much about God as you do. 'Sposin' you was to die, who'd tell the other people what to believe?"

Inventions by Women.

Some of these inventions were: War games, a coasting sleigh with a single runner, a golf bag support, a cup-supporting attachment for use in buffet lunches, an improved metallic railway tie, a fencepost, a washable quilt cover, a ceramic basket to hold a rod for towels, a device for whipping cream, a sanitary paper cuff, a shoe with flexible sole, a bottle protector and numerous others.

THE DOCTOR'S WIFE

Agrees With Him About Food.

A trained nurse says: "In the practice of my profession I have found so many points in favor of Grape-Nuts food that I unhesitatingly recommend it to all my patients."

"It is delicate and pleasing to the palate (an essential in food for the sick) and can be adapted to all ages, being softened with milk or cream for babies or the aged when deficiency of teeth renders mastication impossible. For fever patients or those on liquid diet I find Grape-Nuts and albumen water very nourishing and refreshing."

"This recipe is my own idea and is made as follows: Soak a teaspoonful of Grape-Nuts in a glass of water for an hour, strain and serve with the beaten white of an egg and a spoonful of fruit juice for flavoring. This affords a great deal of nourishment that even the weakest stomach can assimilate without any distress."

"My husband is a physician and he uses Grape-Nuts himself and orders it many times for his patients."

"Personally I regard a dish of Grape-Nuts with fresh or stewed fruit as the ideal breakfast for anyone—well or sick."

In stomach trouble, nervous prostration, etc., a 10-day trial of Grape-Nuts will usually work wonders toward nourishing and rebuilding and in this way end the trouble. Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

COW EATING BEAR
CAUSES BIG FURORNew Jersey Farmer Interferes and Has Time of His Life.

New York—According to information brought by courier from Montague, an outpost in the wilds of Sussex county, N. J., that section is being ravaged by cow-eating black bears, who are not above taking a chance on a well fed farmer. The other day, so 'tis said, an unusually woolly bear chased "Bill" Cummings, a well-known settler, up a tree, after he got tired of having "Bill" chase him.

An armed force of neighbors shooed the bear away and helped "Bill" out of the tree, where he told of a wild chase

Chased Bill Up a Tree.

Through the underbrush. The bear in question, probably the most impolite and daring ever seen about Montague, is reported to have waddled into the corral of Charles Jennings, where it fastened its teeth in a calf. Mr. Cummings on his way to Jennings' home saw the theft and yelled "Shoo there, boss," with little or no effect.

Enraged at this he gave chase to the bear, which fled, still clinging to the calf. After a wild chase through the dense forests which border Sussex county, particularly near the curb lines, the bear lost his temper and the calf at the same time and turned irritably toward his pursuer. Mr. Cummings noting the angry expression in the bear's eye hurried to the nearest giant of the forest and crawled to the highest branch, from whence he was released by his neighbors. The bear got away.

SEVEN HOURS AT MOVIES

Georgia Bride Obeyed Her Husband's Order to Wait Until He Returned.

Athens, Ga.—R. E. Burton of Colbert, married only a few weeks ago, lost his wife in a motion picture house here recently. In Athens, for shopping, he decided to buy his bride a gift and took her to the "movie" to wait until he had done his purchasing. Returning, he searched the picture house over three times, and, failing to find her, reluctantly left for his home on the evening train, hoping that she had found a car or buggy among the relatives here for the day, and, having missed him, was on the way to greet him at home.

He failed to find her at home, and nobody had seen her. The young man was almost prostrated with anxiety and uneasiness. In the meantime the young wife sat patiently awaiting his return—from four o'clock in the afternoon until the house closed at eleven at night. She saw him enter the house, she stated, and wondered why he did not join her and sit a picture through. She spent the night with friends here, who phoned her husband's relatives, the nearest way they could reach him, about midnight.

ALFALFA ON DRY LAND

There is No Crop More Profitable for Hay.

Plant is Deep-Rooted and Must Have Soil in Which to Sink That Long Tap Root—Subsoiler is Often Necessary.

Most of this western country can grow alfalfa. To be sure there are some failures, especially with those just starting out, but when the conditions necessary for the crop are known it will be grown with as much success as the farmers to the east of us grow clover. As far as its value is concerned there is no more profitable hay crop. A ton of alfalfa is worth in feed value about what a ton of bran is worth. Say it is worth $15 and that an acre yields from one and one-half to three tons per acre, then the crop would be worth from $22.50 to $45.00 per acre. Easy figures, you say. Yes, and also they are figures that anyone with a little effort can obtain.

Alfalfa is a deep-rooted plant and therefore it must have ground in which it can sink that long tap root. writes Leon H. Robbins in Dakota Farmer. Break up that plow sole, for no root can penetrate that, and if the undersoil is hard it should be loosened up as deep as possible. Sometimes it is necessary to use a subsoiler. Use a field that is clean and free from standing water. If the early spring water freezes on the field it will kill the alfalfa by freezing out the crown of the plant.

If the field is not free from weeds then the farmer should spend at least one year killing out the weeds on the field. Summer-till the land to kill the weeds. Work the field early in the spring by disking it, and then plow the land so that the plowing will be finished at least by the first of July. Plow deep, and by that the writer means plow so that the plow sole will be broken up. Till the field the remainder of the season to conserve moisture and kill every weed. The next season, disk shallow early in spring to conserve the moisture and work as often as is necessary with the disk or harrow until seeding time. Seed in June, about the 10th to the 25th, after the ground is good and warm so that the alfalfa will come up quickly. In many places it is best to sow the crop in rows about 24 to 30 inches apart. If sown in rows two pounds of seed per acre will do. When sown broadcast, five pounds of good seed is enough per acre.

Do not clip the crop the first season unless necessary to kill the weeds. Clipping sets the crop back too much and it is also liable to come too late so that the crop will not get enough growth for winter protection. It is best not to cut even a hay crop too late. Or in other words, late enough so that there is not time between the cutting and cold weather for the crop to get six inches high. This is also true about pasturing.

Give the crop the best of care until it is well established at least. Then the returns will be gratifying. Most all alfalfa fields will need inoculating. This is best done by dirt from some well-inoculated field. If dirt is used, it should be used on a cloudy day at the rate of not less than 200 pounds of dirt per acre. Scatter the dirt by hand broadcast and harrow it in at once. Fields that are not inoculated never produce well, the plants always look yellow and sickly. Maximum yields are obtained from well-titled, well-inoculated alfalfa fields.

Businesslike Dairying.

The facts that so many dairy farmers prosper in spite of their methods is convincing proof that the same business conducted in a businesslike way could be made very profitable.

ECONOMICAL USE OF WATER

Dry Farmer Should Carefully Select Drought-Resistant Plants for Forage and Grain Crops.

To use as economically as possible the water stored in soils, one must needs make up a list of crops from those known to be drought-resistant. Among those plants of known ability to resist drought to a great degree are alfalfa, kaoliang, milo, sudan grass and other grain sorghums, common sorghum to a lesser degree, and corn, though a heavy feeder on soil moisture, is yet able to live through all but extreme conditions of drought because of the fact that it is inter-titled.

Some of the varieties of the small grains are notably superior as drought resistors, such as Gatami and Swan Neck barley and Kubanka wheat. From the list of drought-resisting forage and feed and grain crops the dry farmer will do well to select carefully and wisely. The experimental data on this point is readily available.

Catarrh of Kidneys Cured By Peruna

"I had Catarrh of the Kidneys and Bladder. I Am Very Thankful For Peruna. I Feel Well, My tongue is clear, I have no bitter taste in my mouth. I am glad to say I do not need Peruna any longer, I am perfectly well. I have Peruna in the house all the time. When I have a cold or when I do not feel well I take Peruna. We were all sick with the grip last winter. We took Peruna and it helped us. Peruna is the best medicine for grip or colds."

Taking Precautions.

"Mother," said little Bob, who is devoted to his tender maternal comrade but strong in his individual tastes and fancies, "I like everything you cook except spinach."

"But, dear," smiled mother, "I never do cook spinach."

"I know it, mother," the little lad smiled back quaintly, "but I just said it so you never will."

IMPORTANT THAT PUBLIC SHOULD KNOW ABOUT GREAT KIDNEY REMEDY.

The testimonial I am to give you comes unsolicited. I have been suffering from lumbago for ten years and at times was unable to stand erect. A Mr. Dean of this city, saw me in my condition (bent over) and inquired the cause. I told him that I had the lumbago. He replied, "If you get what I tell you to, you need not have it." I said I would take anything for ease. He said, "You get two bottles of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root and take it, and if it does not fix you O. K. I will pay for the medicine myself." I did so and am a well man. For five months I have been as well as could be. Before I took your Swamp-Root was in constant pain day and night. This may look like advertising, but it seems to me most important that the public should be made familiar with this treatment as it is the only one I know which is an absolute cure. I owe a great deal to Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and am anxious that others situated as I was should know and take advantage of it. Hoping that this testimonial may be of benefit to some one, I am,

NEW LAW ON DESERT LAND GREAT BENEFIT

the value of not less than one dollar and twenty-five cents per acre, and that he has, in good faith, used the land for agricultural purposes for three years and the payment to the receiver, at the time of final proof, of the sum of seventy-five cents per acre; Provided, That in such case final proof may be submitted at any time within five years from the date of the entryman's election to proceed as provided in this section, and in the event of failure to perfect the entry as herein provided, all moneys theretofore paid shall be forfeited and the entry canceled.

THE ACT CLEARLY OUTLINED

Desert land entrymen of the West have been vastly aided, protected and encouraged by the passage, during the closing hours of congress of a bill giving such entryman three to five years additional time in which to make final proof of their claims or purchase them by nominal cash payment, or convert desert claims to homesteads if they cannot get water.

Senator Shafroth, aided by the Colorado delegation, succeeded in pushing the measure through as a "rider" to the general deficiency bill. The house accepted the amendment, and the president signed the bill. By the wording of the new law all persons who made entry on desert claims before July 1, 1914, are included in its workings.

There are three sections to the law. The first provides for an extension of not to exceed three years from the date of allowance of such extension to all entrymen who have complied with the law as to yearly expenditures and who can show proof that there is reasonable prospect, if the extension be granted, of being able to make final proof of reclamation, irrigation and cultivation.

The second section provides that where a desert land entryman can show an expenditure, in good faith, of $3 an acre in the attempt to reclaim the land and where there is no reasonable prospect, if the shorter extension were allowed, of being able under existing laws to get sufficient water to effect proper reclamation, such entryman may be given five years from the date of his application in which to perfect the entry in the manner required of a homestead entryman.

The third section is an enlargement of the second. It provides that any entryman entitled to the benefit of the second section may, if he shall so elect within sixty days from the notice thereto provided, pay to the receiver of the local land office 50 cents an acre. Thereafter he may perfect his entry on proof that he has put upon the land agricultural improvements to the value of $1.25 an acre and has used the land for agricultural purposes for three years, and has paid to the receiver, at the time of final proof, the sum of 75 cents an acre.

FIVE YEARS TO PERFECT ENTRY

Electing to proceed along this line, the entryman shall have five years from the date of making the election. In the event he fails to perfect his entry as provided under the new law and by his election, then all moneys paid shall be forfeited and the entry canceled.

Assignees and those holding relinquishment rights are included in the workings of the law the same as original entrymen. It is believed that the new law will do much to relieve the strain on present entrymen and insure their going through with their projects.

Thus in time becoming the owners of valuable tracts at small outlay of actual money.

All extensions are left to the discretion of the secretary of the interior, and application to him for the benefits of the new law must be made through the local land office.

STATE SONG

Much attention has been attracted by the song "Fair New Mexico" both the words and music of which were composed by Miss Elizabeth Garrett, daughter of the late "Pat" Garrett of Lincoln county. Miss Garrett has given several musical recitals in Carrizozo and has relatives and many friends in this city. The song which was recently adopted by the legislature as the state song, was first rendered in Santa Fe on February 26. The words are as follows:

Under a sky of azure

Where balmy breezes blow,

Kissed by the golden sunshine

Is Nuevo Mexico;

Home of the Montezuma

With fiery hearth aglow

State of the deeds historic,

Is Nueva Mexico.

Refrain

O fair New Mexico

We love, we love you so,

Our hearts with pride overflow

No matter where we go;

O fair New Mexico.

We love, we love you so

The grandest state we know,

New Mexico.

Rugged and high Sierras

With deep canons below,

Dotted with fertile valleys

Is Nuevo Mexico;

Fields full of sweet alfalfa,

Richest perfumes bestow;

State of the apple blossom,

Is Nuevo Mexico

Days that are filled with heart dream

Nights when the moon hangs low

Breathing its benediction,

O'er Nuevo Mexico.

Land with its bright manana

Coming through weal and woe,

State of our esperanza

Is Nuevo Mexico.

BETTER ROADS

The people who groan under the high cost of living and wonder why necessities of life like potatoes and cabbages and turnips and apples should be rotting on the farms when they would bring high prices in the cities do not realize the condition of the country roads. When roads are bad farmers experience difficulty in getting their produce to market. When roads are very bad there are states of the weather in which the hauling of heavy wagon loads from farms to railway stations becomes impossible.

The farmer would like to sell what he grows. The city dweller would like to buy it. Both have an interest in the building and maintenance of good roads, providing at all seasons of the year available highways between the cities and the farms.

Sometimes roads that would be in fair condition for teaming are cut up by reckless automobilists. The wanton destruction of highways by auto scorches should not be permitted.

Automobile owners as a class have done much to improve some of the roads, but on the whole western roads are a disgrace. There must be aroused public sentiment in favor of good roads. There will be when it is realized that good country roads are a benefit to all classes of the community.

COST OF REPAIRING WAGONS

Farmers' Profits Are Greatly Decreased in Various Ways by Neglected Thoroughfares.

How much do you suppose it costs you a year to repair your wagons and harness on account of bad roads? How much does it cost you a year for shoes and clothing that are ruined by your children wading through the mud to school? How much does it cost you a year for medicine to cure your children's colds contracted in wading through the mud to school and church? How much of a damage a year to you is the mud that prevents your children from attending school; or damage to them, rather in the loss of an education? How much damage to you are our bad roads in preventing your going to market? You are perfectly willing to spend money in the buying of reapers and mowers and other farm machinery. You are willing to purchase carriages and harness. At the price potatoes are today, one load would be the average farmer's tax for ten years for good roads. At the end of that time the roads would be good, and you could vote to rescind the law if you wanted to and you would have your good roads and no tax for thirty or forty years, the balance of your life.

Advertising Talks

ADVERTISING ADVICE FOR THE MERCHANT

Branch of Business That Requires Careful Study, But Brings Good Returns.

Advertising copy should be prepared with care and should be given as much attention as is given to buying goods. Every effort should be made to be truthful and not to exaggerate. There is no necessity for using big words or flowery language. Eighty-five per cent. of the people to whom you are appealing in your ads do not understand big words if you use them, and it is that 85 per cent. that you want to get into your store. Have your advertising copy read simple and direct, so that a child can understand. And after you have written an ad, read it over yourself and see how it sounds. Set aside a certain hour or period of your business day to your advertising, just the same as you open your mail when you go to the store the first thing in the morning. It is the right arm of your business, and it can make or break you. Give it your thought and attention. Study your competitor's advertising and compare it with your own.

Urges Use of White Space.

Use cuts or pictures to illustrate your ads if you can, and use white space. Don't endeavor to fill up every nook and corner of your space. A small ad well displayed, with an attractive illustration or white space around inside the border, will many times attract more readers and bring better results than a larger ad crowded with type. The same is true of your windows. Don't try to put all your merchandise in your display windows. A few articles tastefully displayed, with price tags or descriptive lines, in an attractively decorated window will reach more people than filling up that window with a lot of stuff which people look at, and then pass on without remembering anything they have seen.

Clerks Should Read Ads.

Insist upon your clerks reading your ads and paying particular attention to them. I would not have a clerk in my store who did not take a daily newspaper and who did not take enough interest in his or her work to read my ads, not only to know whether anything was being advertised in their department, but also endeavor to impress them with your desire to have their suggestions in regard to selling more goods in their department. A great many times a wide-awake clerk can suggest to a department head or manager that a certain line of goods is not selling, and an ad with a cut price on these lines the next day will start them moving.

Insist that your clerks familiarize themselves with your store and your store policy, and in every possible way make them appreciate that they must go out of their way to please every customer, and give as much attention and be as pleasant with a customer buying five cents' worth of goods as one buying $50 worth. The five-cent customer today may be a $50 customer tomorrow.

George Fitch on Advertising.

George Fitch, the humorist, in a recent article on advertising, said: "Advertising began when the eager merchant went out on the street and jogged the pedestrian by the elbow to get his attention. This was wearisome work, and sometimes the pedestrian hit back. Nowadays the merchant can jog a million men by the elbow through the public print, while he himself is beating a worried golf ball out of a sand pit."

"Advertising is a peddler who brings the wares of the world into the house each day and tells you how cheap and good they are."

"By advertising a man can dispose of a mountain of sawdust at one dollar per cubic foot. Without advertising he can offer frankincense and myrrh to all corners free of charge until the stuff spoils on his hands."

"Advertising makes millionaires and presidents, makes great actors out of fur coats with indifferent fillings, supplies widows with husbands, babies with homes and deserts with people. Advertising gets some people into society and others into jail. Advertising supports literature and makes nations boom. The country which advertises waxes exceeding great in immigration problems, while the land which has no press agents crumbles away and is discovered by archaeologists in the dim presently."

"Advertising made Homer great thousands of years after he was born, and introduced Rembrandt to admiring friends 1,000 years after he had retired from circulation. Chicago consists of Goshen, Ind., plus advertising. Advertising has kept Sarah Bernhardt young and attractive for sixty-several years—and the lack of it made Poe starve at forty."

The Engine of Business

Advertising is the engine of business, but even an engine needs coal and water before it can accomplish anything. Advertising needs your thoughtful study and a personality and sense.

SIZE OF FARM HORSE

Farmer Wants Animal to Draw Plow and Buggy.

Team, Well Built, With Snap and Spirit Is Desired—Huge Drafters Are Better Adapted to City Manufacturing Concern.

(By J. M. HILL.)

Neither the massive drafter nor the diminutive pony are what the average farmer needs. Being an average man he wants a medium sized horse, one that will do farm and road work combined. One that will draw a plow, harrow or wagon and possibly a carriage or buggy, for the average farmer these days goes to church, pays some social visit and likewise goes to the country town, courthouse or post office pretty regularly.

An 1,500 or 2,000 pound drafter won't fill the bill for these varied requirements; neither will a 700 or 800 pound scrub.

The average farmer wants something between and between, as the saying is. I should say from 1,200 to 1,400 pounds—a team well built with some snap and spirit, one that the owner or the hired man will hold the reins over with a feeling of pride and pleasure. Let the large manufacturing concerns in the city use the huge drafters.

I knew a team of 1,300 pound horses some years ago. One man drove them consecutively for nine years hauling cord wood in the summer and fall months. Both of these horses were by sires who had a liberal strain of thoroughbred blood in their veins.

They did farm work regularly until corn was laid by, then they were put to hauling on the road. They were true and staunch draft horses.

were never known to get stalled but once in nine years, and they were never driven with a whip.

At twenty-five years of age each they were serviceably sound and were full of life.

Think of it! Twenty-one years of hard regular service and still able to earn their feed. They were of the weight, size and breeding and, besides, had been well taken care of all their lives.

I know a young farmer this year who is starting out and who bought two heavy, awkward drafters and also a 1,000 pound mare of good breeding. He worked the mare in the team with the two big fellows and whenever he had occasion to take a trip in his buggy, always drove the mare, letting the others rest, and still she held her own and kept in good order.

Too much has been written and said advising the average farmer to use heavy drafters. Let him sell them at big prices and use a more medium-sized horse on the farm.

One year's experience will show him that he is right.

Feed for Dry Cows.

Dry cows should not be stuffed with expensive grain feeds, but coaxed to consume enough cheap, rough feeds to keep them in good, vigorous condition.

Profitable Hay Crop.

Hay is a crop that is usually profitable when it has an adequate market not too far from the farm. It is one of our most widely and generally distributed crops. On some farms, however, hay occupies the land for only one year of the rotation when it might profitably be continued a year longer.

Cause of Lumpy Fields.

It is a bad practice to turn stock into the corn field on days when the ground is soft. Lumpy soil in the spring is due very much to this practice.

Avoid Overfeeding.

Be careful not to overfeed the first week of fattening. It is better to feed lightly three times a day.

Teach the Colt Manners.

Be kind but firm with the colts, and teach them good stable manners.

Disease Producers.

Damp floors are productive of disease.

CAREFUL SELECTION OF SEED

Everlasting Persistency in Applying Method and System That Achieves Success for Farmers.

The system of seed selection which has been taught by the seed experts of the agricultural colleges was especially designed for the years when the germinating quality of seed is doubtful, but it applies with equal force when the best of seed quality prevails.

The farmer who makes advancement in his crop growing is the one who carefully selects his seed each year, who applies the seed tester to each ear of corn that he uses for seed. It is the everlasting persistency in applying system and method to this work that achieves success and guarantees reliability, says Twentieth Century Farmer. The local seed grower is one of the very useful persons in the community. He cannot maintain his position or hold his business if he is not systematic, careful, persevering and honest. He must of necessity be reliable, and so can take no chances in guessing at the germinating quality of his seed.

The germinating quality of seed measured by its per cent of properly developed germination is the selling standard that seed testing has established. These tests of seeds should be authoritative and made a basis of guaranty to the purchaser. Seed growers and seed dealers in every community are engaged in a very responsible work. Upon their representation depends the planting of thousands of acres of crop, involving tens of thousands of dollars in value, which means crops and money value produced or lost, depending upon the reliability of the seed used.

POINTS ON RAISING CALVES

Good Shelter Should Be Provided—Furnish Abundance of Alfalfa Hay—Give Some Grain.

Give the calves shelter, but this need not be too tightly built. A shed open on the south with a yard so they can go in and out as they please is about the thing. Bed this down nicely with some straw.

Fix a rack so they can pull the hay through the slats and not waste it, and keep this full of the finest, greenest alfalfa you can get. A mixture of crushed oats and crushed wheat or of oats and bran will be good for them.

If you are buying young calves not yet ready to wean, feed them twice a day on sweet skim milk, warmed up to the temperature of fresh milk. If they are very young, feed them three times a day, a quart or three pints at a time. After they are a month or so old you can give them a gallon each twice a day.

Chaff meal or similar preparations are very satisfactory to replace milk. Keep a mixture of dry cornmeal, bran or other ground grains where the calves can get it as they wish. Keep the pens clean and let the calves have plenty of air, light, sunshine and pure water.

TWO POPULAR POULTRY WAYS

Intensive and Colony Systems Have Good Features—Farmer Is Inclined to Save Steps.

There are two popular ways in which to raise poultry, the "intensive system" and the "colony system." The first of these aims to save steps, and accomplishes this purpose. Long stationary houses are used. It is easier, however, to keep the birds healthy and to reproduce the stock under the second system.

Under the colony system, the birds are allowed free range, the houses, which hold about one hundred hens each, being placed from two hundred to two hundred and fifty feet apart, so that the stock will not kill the grass. This system may be adapted to reverse winter conditions by drawing the colony houses together in a convenient place at the beginning of winter, thus reducing the labor during the cold months. The first system is more suited for hens used solely for the production of market eggs than for those used to breed stock.

Winter Chills Bring Kidney Ills

A spell of cold, damp weather is always followed by a fine crop of kidney troubles and backache.

Colds and chills damage the kidneys. Other troubles common to winter weather are just as bad. Grip, tonsillitis, quinsy, pneumonia or any other infectious disease hurts the kidneys by overloading the blood with poisons. The kidneys get worn, weak and inflamed trying to work it off.

It isn't hard to strengthen weak kidneys though, if you act quickly. At the first sign of backache, dizzy spells, headaches, loss of weight, nervousness, depression and painful, irregular kidney action, start using Doan's Kidney Pills. Rest the kidneys by simple eating, avoidance of overwork and worry, and getting more rest and sleep. A milk diet is fine.

This sensible treatment should bring quick benefit and prevent serious kidney diseases like dropsy, gravel and Bright's disease.

ommended kidney remedy in the world. You'll decide it worth a trial, when you read this enthusiastic testimony.

Helpless From Pain

Doan's Kidney Pills Brought the First Relief

John T. Swanton, 248 Johnson St., Trinitas, Colo., says: "I was confined to my bed for three months with rheumatism and I was perfectly helpless. Finally when I got up I had to use crutches to get around. From that time on I had attacks of kidney trouble. I was greatly annoyed by the frequent passages of the kidney secretion, causing me to be disturbed several times during the night. My spells I have been hardly able to get up at dawn. I spent a great deal of money doctoring and trying advertised medicines, but not until I began using Doan's Kidney Pills did I find the results I had been looking for. This medicine rid me of the pain in my back, regulated the passages of the kidney secretion and made my kidneys normal. I have been able to work every day since and I can say that Doan's Kidney Pills have made me feel like a different man."

Troubles for Him.

The big cousin was talking to the small one. "Beryl," she said, "are you anxious to be a man?"
"Sure I am," the six year old answered promptly.

"Why? When you're grown up you'll just have a peck of troubles."

"I won't," drawled Beryl, confidently. "When I'm a man I won't have any troubles, 'cause I'm going to be a bachelor."

SYRUP OF FIGS FOR A CHILD'S BOWELS

It is cruel to force nauseating, harsh physic into a sick child.

Look back at your childhood days. Remember the "dose" mother insisted on—castor oil, calomel, cathartics. How you hated them, how you fought against taking them.

With our children it's different. Mothers who cling to the old form of physic simply don't realize what they do. The children's revolt is well-founded. Their tender little "insides" are injured by them.

If your child's stomach, liver and bowels need cleansing, give only delicious "California Syrup of Figs." Its action is positive, but gentle. Millions of mothers keep this harmless "fruit laxative" handy; they know children love to take it; that it never fails to clean the liver and bowels and sweeten the stomach, and that a teaspoonful given today saves a sick child tomorrow.

Ask at the store for a 5-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on each bottle. Adv.

GRANDMA USED SAGE TEA TO DARKEN HER GRAY HAIR

She Made Up a Mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to Bring Back Color, Gloss, Thickness.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray; also ends dandruff, itching scalp and stops falling hair. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is messy and troublesome. Nowadays, by asking at any store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," you will get a large bottle of the famous old recipe for about 50 cents.

Don't stay gray! Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time, by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy.—Adv.

HEIGHT OF LITTLENES

Last week in sending out statements to delinquent subscribers, we happened to get a prominent Carrizozo citizen on our list who did not take very kindly at receiving a statement for a newspaper subscription, and at first opportunity he proceeded to tell us just what he thought of a man so little of soul. He called us a "Short Horse," "Tight Wad," "Cheap Skate," and in fact everything, but a gentleman, and informed us that such actions on our part would hurt our business. He did not forget to remind us that he had been a reader of the Outlook since it was established at White Oaks, some nine years ago and that it had never cost him a cent and, that that was the first time he had ever been asked to contribute anything for its support, saying that if we were going to reverse the policy of the paper so that in the future he would have to pay the same as an ordinary citizen, for us to remove HIS name from our list. We have been in the newspaper business for sixteen years and have had dealings with some pretty hard customers but for a real, genuine case of unmitigated gall this certainly caps the climax. Notwithstanding all of this he is a prominent citizen of Carrizozo. With all the logical arguments that could be produced, this Prominent? citizen could not realize that subscription and advertising was all that a newspaper had as its stock in trade and its only source of revenue. This same Prominent? citizen's name has been removed from our list and this same Prominent? citizen will in the future have to subscribe and "Pay In Advance" as an ordinary, private, individual or borrow the paper from his neighbor if he reads it in the future. Since the removal of this Prominent? citizen's name from our list the Outlook, (to our surprise) continues to move on like a thirsty ox to its watering place.

TRY IT ONCE

The ranchers and dry farmers in the Carrizozo valley should not neglect to plant a good crop of Sudan grass as it appears to be the hay plant that the Southwest has been looking for all these many years. It has been grown here in the dry land sections for about six years, yielding a ton of hay in dry seasons, and about four tons an acre during an ordinary season. It has done well in the dry sections of Kansas, Oklahoma, eastern Colorado and many parts of New Mexico. Even over in Curry county this hay is being grown to a good advantage. Surely it will grow here in Carrizozo valley if given an opportunity.

ARBOR DAY PROCLAMATION

How much forests influence climate is not appreciated generally? The importance of this ought to be emphasized and impressed upon the minds of our people. One who plants, cares for and adds to our resources a tree, is a public benefactor. If we can produce forests on our arid plains we may change our climate.

By law and custom it is made the duty of the Governor to set aside one day of each year for tree planting. This, however, is only to emphasize the importance of the work. The planting of trees in the various localities must necessarily be governed by local conditions.

Therefore, For the purposes contemplated, I do now designate and proclaim:

FRIDAY, APRIL 2, 1915 AS ARBOR DAY

I earnestly and urgently recommend that this day be celebrated by all the people of New Mexico in the true spirit of progress, as having a distinct bearing on our future welfare.

Appropriate exercises should be held in all of our schools when the import of the day can be thoroughly impressed upon the young minds. All who are able to do so ought to be encouraged and assisted in the work of planting trees and shrubs for beautifying and enriching the school grounds. Nor should older people forget or overlook in their present haste and anxiety for fulfillment of temporary desire, the future welfare and growth of the state and its people for whom we are now holding in trust the bounty of nature, so that it may be transmitted not only unimpaired by us but expanded and enlarged as the heritage of the future.

I request county school superintendents to give notice of this proclamation and so far as practicable arrange for the proper observance of the true spirit of the day.

Done at the Executive Office this 22nd day of March, 1915

SUBSCRIBERS NOTICE

Since taking charge of the Outlook we have mailed out several hundred dollars worth of statements to those who were indebted $1.50 or more, and those whose subscription had expired we mailed statements to them for the advance subscription now due. Some have remitted, but the majority have remained as silent as the seven spirits. We kindly ask every one indebted to us to send in their remittance at once. It seems a little unfair for us to have to pay interest to keep our business going when we have due us in amounts from $1.50 up, enough to pay all we owe. In fact we cannot understand why a subscription to a newspaper should be the last obligation considered, when most of those indebted are able to pay promptly. A payment now will be appreciated.

PROFIT in BASKET WILLOWS

Prepared by the U.S.
Department of Agriculture

THE BASKET WILLOW IS THE MOST PROFITABLE OF THE WILLOWS FOR THE GROWER.

BASKET WILLOW MADE BY A NEW METHOD, WHICH SAVES AMERICAN GREEN PLANTATION.

THE growing of basket willows could be profitably carried on much more extensively in the United States than is now the case. In recent years the department of agriculture has distributed many thousands of cuttings in different parts of the country, and although in many instances the experiments have been failures, there is no longer any doubt that willows can be grown everywhere except in arid and semiarid regions, at high altitudes, and in some portions of the South. Commercially, they are now grown only in a few areas, notably in New York, Wisconsin, Pennsylvania and Ohio. They may, however, prove a remunerative crop. Estimates published in Farmers' Bulletin No. 622, "Basket Willow Culture," indicate that an average annual net profit of from $84 to $52 an acre may be expected.

In selecting a site for a willow holt, the first consideration is moisture. Water should be within from two to six feet of the surface, and the supply constant and sufficient. It is better, however, to select a site which may be too dry, rather than one which may be too wet. Where the moisture conditions are favorable basket willows will grow on a wide range of soils, although they do best in a loose, sandy loam. Excessively acid or excessively alkaline soils should be avoided. It is desirable, too, that the wind have free access to the holt, since this minimizes the danger from insects. The neighborhood of large areas of woods is also undesirable, for it is difficult at best to keep the holt clean. For this reason it is advisable that holts be established on land which has been previously cultivated. Many failures, it is said, are due to lack of proper preparation of the ground. If possible, a previous crop of corn or potatoes should be planted. Late in the fall the land should then be plowed and left to weather during the winter.

All basket willow holts are started from cuttings from shoots or branches. Since the plants last from twelve to fifteen years or longer, the best stock should be selected for this purpose. Of the many varieties, only the American green and the patent Lemley or Lemley should be selected. These require less cultivation than the purple willow, are easily grafted and bring good prices.

Where cuttings are purchased, the prices should range from one dollar per thousand for ten-inch cuttings to five dollars per thousand for two-year-old 14-inch cuttings. For less than one thousand the prices are frequently much higher. Many persons, however, have begun the cultivation of willows with a few hundred cuttings, and have gradually enlarged their holt as their supply and knowledge both increased. The better the physical conditions the less necessary it is to have large cuttings, but under any circumstances two-year-old planting stock makes a thrifter growth at first than cuttings from one-year-old shoots.

The best time to plant is very early in the spring, when the weather is cool, the soil moist and the cuttings show little if any growth. When set in their holes the cuttings should not protrude more than two inches above the surface of the ground. The holes should be barely large enough to receive the cuttings, never deeper than necessary. A sharpened iron rod is perhaps the best implement for making a hole. The point should be abrupt rather than long, since otherwise the space at the bottom would be too narrow for the cutting and an open air space would be created underneath the plant.

Spacing, a matter of importance which depends largely upon the variety of willow planted, is discussed in some detail in Farmers' Bulletin 622, which will be sent free upon application.

The bulletin also describes in detail the best methods of cultivating and harvesting the crop. The great trouble, it is said, is the difficulty of obtaining the necessary labor for peeling. At times it is almost impossible to secure labor at any price, although the actual difficulties of peeling are comparatively few. The harvesting itself should cost approximately five dollars a ton, green weight.

The demand is extensive and varied and a large quantity of imported willow is being used in this country, although manufacturers, it is believed, would prefer the American-grown if it could be obtained.

There are many uses for the basket willow, familiar in Europe, which have not developed in this country as yet. It would seem, therefore, as though the industry might prove a profitable one for farmers who are willing to familiarize themselves with it. It must be remembered, however, that a certain amount of exact knowledge is required for success, and that a poorly managed holt rarely yields a profit, no matter how favorable the conditions may seem.

TO RUN MOTORS BY GAS COKE

Inoffensive Fuel, According to Figures, Is Only One-Third Cost of Paraffin.

In view of the high and increasing cost of motor spirit special interest attaches to an experiment of the National Steam Car company, which has placed upon the streets of London a motor omnibus adapted to use ordinary gas coke as fuel, instead of paraffin, says the Times of that city. The omnibus is equipped with a new form of multitubular boiler, and it is claimed that the running costs of the gas coke are one-third the cost of paraffin. The vehicle carries enough coke for a 60-mile journey and the consumption per mile is four pounds of coke and one-half gallon of water.

The roar, flame and smell which are sometimes associated with steam motors are obviated in the coke motor. Prolonged tests were carried out by the chief commissioner of metropolitan police before the new type was accepted for service, and since it has been running careful observation has been kept.

The chassis is constructed without a chassis with chassis designed for commercial work under less stringent conditions than those of the omnibus service.

The Dewar trophy was awarded to the company by the Royal Automobile club, which regarded the National coke motor trial as the most meritorious performance of the year.

DRAW WEALTH FROM FARMS

Enormous Sum Annually Gathered in by Tillers of the Soil in the United States.

From Farms in 1914 the United States produced a yield worth $10,000,000,000. Could cotton have been marketed as usual the total would have been close to half a billion more. Ten billion dollars representing honest work! Ten billion dollars untainted money! And going mostly into the pockets of the workers themselves, with little reaching the purses of labor exploiters. The beautiful thing about this great item of our national wealth, next to its cleanliness, is the fact that it can be increased indefinitely by a more general adoption of scientific agriculture. In fifteen years it has been doubled; and still, on our new soil, we farm only a third as effectively as do many foreign peoples on soil centuries longer in use. The forest, cut unwisely, is gone. The mineral, once mined, is not renewable. But on his broad acres the tiller of the soil can take and take again; and though he has to fertilize, the more he does it the more he earns. So, come war, come pestilence, come anything but continent-wide drought, here is a broad base for our future welfare, upon which we can build expanding and securely. The man with the hoe is, indeed, the best hope of the future.

Just Deserts.

"A man jumped into the river today, but another man who was passing at the time pulled him out."

"Did he bear any marks of identification?"

"Nothing but a wrist watch."

"What did the gallant rescuer do when he saw the wrist watch?"

"He threw him in again."

TO SERVE WITH LUNCH

SUGGESTIONS FOR DISHES EASY TO COMPOUND.

All Frequently Be Found Valuable in Emergencies That All Housewives Experience—Piquant Suggestions From France.

Hors d'oeuvres are an essential part of the French dejeuner, but here they are not often served at the family luncheon. They are often convenient, however, to use out and give a little appetizer to a luncheon that might otherwise be scanty, and a few good ideas for hors d'oeuvres and savories are valuable for the housewife. Here are a few sample recipes that can be made and worked into a luncheon at the last moment:

Deviled Sardines.—Take sardines, wash them in their own oil, add a little lemon juice, season highly with salt, pepper and English sauce, serve very hot on small rounds of toast.

Savory Toast.—Chop very finely, or run through a meat chopper, any pieces of cold chicken, beef, ham or tongue. Pound to a paste with the yolks of two hard boiled eggs, a piece of butter, pepper, salt, a little Chutney and Worcestershire. Spread rather thickly on thin strips of toast and set in the oven to heat.

Cheese Canapes.—Cut bread into pieces one-half an inch thick, then stamp them into circles with a biscuit cutter. Saute the bread in a little butter until it is of an amber color on both sides. Cover the slices with a thick layer of grated cheese, sprinkle with salt, pepper and a dash of cayenne. Fifteen minutes before the time to serve place them in the oven for a few minutes to soften the cheese.

Anchovy Canapes.—Spread strips of fried bread with a thin layer of anchovy paste. Sprinkle over the top alternate rows of the white and yolks of hard boiled eggs chopped very fine. Sardine canapes are made by pounding the sardines to a paste, spreading it on strips of fried bread and sprinkling the top with some sort of chopped pickle.

Stuffed Eggs.—Cut hard boiled eggs in halves. Take out the yolks carefully and mix them with an equal quantity of softened bread crumbs, season highly with a little butter, salt and pepper. Moisten with any sauce; add a little raw egg. Fill the whites from which the yolks were taken, round off the tops smoothly, slice a small pie off the bottom, so that the eggs will stand upright, and serve. Any flavoring or seasoning that is liked may be added to the mixture for stuffing eggs—mayonnaise, mustard, mushroom, tomato, or they may be mixed with French dressing.

Potato and Onion Salad. Pare and cut potatoes into thin slices, parboil until done but not washed. Drain and pour on a shallow dish. Now take centers of boiled onion rings, mash with a fork, add a sifting of salt and pepper, then mix with enough boiled dressing to make a smooth, rather thick emulsion. Sift salt and pepper over the potatoes, then cover with the dressing and let it stand for an hour to ripen. This is a nice luncheon dish and can be served with a cage of hard boiled eggs, cured bacon or boiled ham.

Whole Wheat Bread.

One tablespoonful lard, one tablespoonful sugar, one teaspoonful of salt, one cupful each of boiling water and hot (not boiling) milk, a yeast cake dissolved in one-half cupful of warm water, one cupful of white flour, three cupfuls of whole wheat flour, or enough to make a soft dough. Mix, knead for ten minutes, cover and let it rise in an even temperature to twice its first bulk. Make into small loaves, place in greased pans, let rise an hour or until puffy, and bake.

Brown Potato Soup.

Peel and dice about five medium-sized potatoes and cut up a little celery; cook in salted water until tender. Put into a hot iron skillet a teaspoonful each of butter and nice lard, and when melted rub into it two tablespoonfuls of flour; keep rubbing and stirring this about in the hot pan until well browned and quite granular. Now be sure the soup is bubbling rapidly when the browned flour is to be sifted in slowly while stirring rapidly; allow to boil for a few minutes and serve.

To Save Sugar.

When making cranberry jelly use a pinch of soda before straining the cranberries. It will take only about half as much sugar and does not hurt the flavor or keep it from jellifying. Stewed apricots, rhubarb, etc., may be handled the same way.

For Fruit Stains on Woolen.

Wet the spots with tepid water, then rub dry starch and hang out in the sun. Washing in kerosene before washing with soap and water is another way of taking out fruit stains.

MEAT CLOGS KIDNEYS THEN YOUR BACK HURTS

Take a Glass of Salts to Flush Kidneys If Bladder Bothers You—Drink Lots of Water.

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which excites the kidneys, they become overworked from the strain, get sluggish and fail to filter the waste and poisons from the blood, then we get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, dizziness, sleeplessness and urinary disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of stinging, stop eating meat and get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate the kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.—Adv.

FALLING HAIR MEANS DANDRUFF IS ACTIVE

Save Your Hair! Get a 25 Cent Bottle of Danderine Right Now—Also Stops Itching Scalp.

Thin, brittle, colorless and scraggy hair is mute evidence of a neglected scalp; of dandruff—that awful scurf.

There is nothing so destructive to the hair as dandruff. It robs the hair of its luster, its strength and its very life; eventually producing a feverishness and itching of the scalp, which if not remedied causes the hair roots to shrink, loosen and die—then the hair falls out fast. A little Danderine tonight—now—any time—will surely save your hair.

Get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any store, and after the first application your hair will take on that life, luster and luxuriance which is so beautiful. It will become wavy and fluffy and have the appearance of abundance; an incomparable gloss and softness, but what will please you most will be after just a few weeks' use, when you will actually see a lot of fine, downy hair—new hair—growing all over the scalp. With the election of officers for the ensuing year, the Civic League opens another chapter in the history of the organization. The members have reached the unanimous conclusion that their work during the coming year shall be devoted to the local cemetery, to beautifying and caring for this sacred plot of ground.

We are certain that every one in Carrizozo is interested in making our cemetery as beautiful as it can be made. Some of us already have friends and loved ones sleeping there, and others may have before the present year has passed.

The purpose of the League is to plant trees, grass and flowers, and in many ways improve the premises. The detail of the work will be carefully considered after it has been made to appear that the interest of the community is such as to warrant the undertaking.

So let every lady who is not already a member be with us at our next meeting, Monday, March 29th, at three o'clock. We want you to join us in our good work. The present membership of the League is too small to accomplish that which we desire. It is therefore our plan to extend to every lady of Carrizozo an urgent invitation to join our League without delay. When we have this needed membership, we can then devise ways and means for the immediate carrying into effect of our plans for the present year. Situated as we are in a small community it is necessary that we all unite for the advancement of our town.

As a civic organization we have done much good for Carrizozo, but we are sincerely in earnest when we say we believe the labor of love to which we intend to devote ourselves during the present year will be by far the best we have undertaken.

We need your help and encouragement. Be with us next Monday, March 29th, at three o'clock.

The music pupils of Mrs. D. S. Donaldson gave a recital at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Kimbell Monday evening. In addition to the pupils that comprise the class a number of grown-ups were also present.
