

University of New Mexico

UNM Digital Repository

Events & News

VIVA Connects

7-13-2018

Cuba is now home to an official Continental Divide National Scenic Trail stamp

University of New Mexico Prevention Research Center

Follow this and additional works at: <https://digitalrepository.unm.edu/prc-viva-en>

Recommended Citation

University of New Mexico Prevention Research Center. "Cuba is now home to an official Continental Divide National Scenic Trail stamp." (2018). <https://digitalrepository.unm.edu/prc-viva-en/11>

This Book is brought to you for free and open access by the VIVA Connects at UNM Digital Repository. It has been accepted for inclusion in Events & News by an authorized administrator of UNM Digital Repository. For more information, please contact disc@unm.edu.

Cuba is now home to an official Continental Divide National Scenic Trail stamp

July 13, 2018

Cuba is now home to an official Continental Divide National Scenic Trail stamp, one in a series of nationwide collectible cancellation stamps. On July 3rd, 2018 National Park Travelers Club (NPTC) members Susan and Marianna Miranda from Minnesota were the first to claim the stamp. National Park Travelers Club is a non-profit social club organization devoted to spreading appreciation of the United States National Park system.

Susan & Marianna Miranda collecting the Continental Divide National Scenic Trail Stamp.

The Continental Divide National Scenic Trail (CDNST) extends 3100 miles from the Mexican border in the southern bootheel of New Mexico to the Canadian border in Montana's Glacier National Park. The first 770 miles of the trail are in New Mexico. It passes through Cuba, one of the Continental Divide Trail Coalition's Gateway Communities. The trail approaches Cuba from directly south of Cuba Mesa, passing through Cuba and eventually heading northeast into the San Pedro Wilderness up Los Pinos Road. Over 200 hikers attempting the journey annually stop in Cuba to rest & resupply. Cuba is proud to represent the CDNST and join over 400 National Parks in this cancellation stamp collecting program. You can collect the stamp by bringing your copy of the "Passport To Your National Parks" available online at www.eparks.com and at bookstores to Step Into Cuba at the Public Health Office, 6362 US 550 or contact us at www.stepintocuba.org/contact-us to setup a time to collect the stamp. To learn more about collecting park stamps visit www.nps.gov & www.parkstamps.org. To learn about the Step Into Cuba Passport visit www.stepintocuba.org/passport.