UNM News Minute #733 – March 3, 2011

AN INTERNATIONAL TEAM of researchers, including UNM's Peter Fawcett, has drawn a strong relationship between warmer temperatures and megadroughts during the mid-Pleistocene interglacials and the possible cause. <http://news.unm.edu/?p=11486>

UNM ASSISTANT PROFESSOR Matías Fontenla, who teaches economic development, wanted his students to have a hands-on learning experience, so last year he led a group to Nicaragua, the poorest Latin American country. The students were moved by the poverty and decided to do something constructive. <http://news.unm.edu/?p=11350>

EFFECTIVE MARCH 1, 2011, President David J. TIME IS RUNNING DOWN on this year's 60-day legislative session, and there's still no budget. This week the House did approve a plan, but there are still a lot of areas that will need to be worked out with the Senate. This week on New Mexico in Focus will debate and discuss the ongoing budget talks, including a new compromise plan for the film industry incentives. KNME's one hour public affairs show New Mexico in Focus airs Fridays at 7 p.m. and Sundays at 6:30 a.m. on KNME, Channel 5.1. The show can also be seen on KNME's Digital Channel 9.1 on Saturdays at 5 p.m. <http://news.unm.edu/?p=11600>
