DEDICATION OF NEW MEXICO BUILDING

The New Mexico State Building at the San Diego Exposition will be Dedicated May Third

GOV. McDONALD WILL BE THE PRINCIPAL SPEAKER

The dedication of the New Mexico State Building at the San Diego Exposition will be held May 3d, with the most elaborate and impressive ceremonies. On this most auspicious occasion the great Sunshine State will be represented by its most versatile and talented citizenship.

The principal speaker will be Governor McDonald while Mrs. McDonald will assume the role of sponsor for the occasion and act as mistress of ceremonies.

Among some hundred other New Mexico citizens of prominence taking part in the day's events will be Editor M. L. Fox of the Albuquerque Journal, Nestor Montoya also of the Duke City, Mayor Shuler of Ranton and manager Ralph E. Twitchell of the New Mexico Board of Exposition Managers.

One of the most attractive features of the festivities of the day will be the musical numbers. New Mexico is the possessor of rare talent in this art. Among those who will charm the visiting throng with the "concord of sweet sounds" are Miss Claude Albright and Miss Sarome Rayonals of Albuquerque, Prof. Stanley Seder of the Department of Music in the New Mexico University and Miss Elizabeth Garrett who has never failed to charm the people everywhere with her voice of wonderful strength and richness. A native of this historic state, the daughter of the intrepid "Pat" Garrett of Lincoln County fame, she is the true child of New Mexico. The production by this blind queen of magic of the exquisite New Mexico State song which was adopted by the recent legislature as the official song of the state, and the ovation she has received in musical circles the state over, make her position of prominence unique in the extreme. The rendition of this wonderful song will be one of the chief attractions of the dedicatory ceremonies.

The building itself has been constantly open to the visitors since the beginning of the big show the first of the year. Its quaint and striking mission architecture mingles delightfully with the luxuriant grounds of the Exposition Park. The interior is replete with every representative resource of the new state. Its mineral and agricultural products are strikingly presented to the eastern tourist, its excellent educational facilities are represented in moving pictures depicting scenes of student activity from the principal educational centers of the state. In this last named feature the Carrizozo school appears in the dismissal of school a panoramic view of the school building and student body, and a match game of basket ball on the local athletic field. Moving pictures under the auspices of the U. S. Department of Forestry portray, as words could not possibly do, the vast lumbering resources of New Mexico, in fact the stone has been left unturned, no expense spared to show to eastern capital an intimation of the unexpected wealth of this matchless state.

In fact the New Mexico building has been reported by out-of-state visitors as the most popular of all the state buildings; and manager Twitchell reports with genuine gratification the many inquiries of visitors from all over the United States regarding this most resourceful region.

With its silver tongued orators to declaim its bounty, its most gifted musicians to chant its praise, with displays of its wonderful and wealth giving resources to greet the eye, no visitor from far or near can resist the unanimous appeal of the great new state of New Mexico.

"Come thou with us and we will do thee good."

VISITING IN TEXAS

M. B. Foreman writes from Midland, Texas, where he went recently for a visit to the family of his nephew, Judge Isaacks, that he is enjoying himself and having a very pleasant visit. Mr. Foreman says that the only thing necessary to make his visit tip top is the regular weekly visit of the Outlook. We will see that his wants are supplied.

AUCTION BRIDGE CLUB

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Kimball the Auction Bridge Club consisting of eight members, were hostess Wednesday evening to their husbands. Games of whist were the order of the evening and a most pleasant time was experienced. The outcome of the game, showed the lady holding the highest score to be Mrs. A. J. Rolland while Mr. Frank J. Sager was the most successful gentleman. A dainty three course luncheon was served.

BIG SALE

Elsewhere in this issue appears a page advertisement for the firm of Ziegler Bros., in which they announce their 7th Anniversary Sale. This sale coming as it does right at the beginning of the spring season gives the buyer not only the benefit of the reduction in the sale price but they have an opportunity to get the newest ideas in style and garment before the stock has been picked over.

RETURNS FROM TEXAS

Rev R. L. Day of the local Baptist church returned Wednesday afternoon from an extended tour to Texas points, having made the trip successfully on his new twin cylinder motorcycle.

USE LIGHTER CARS

The heavy condition of the Carrizozo-Roswell road has made the necessary use of lighter cars than the big Abbott Detroit, so the little Ford is again on the job in the transportation of U. S. mail. This week's ideal weather should exert a great improvement on road conditions generally.

COMMENCEMENT WEEK DRAWING NEAR

The Graduating Exercises of the Carrizozo High School Being Looked Forward to With Much Interest by all

A CLASS OF FIVE TO RECEIVE DIPLOMAS

The commencement exercises of the Carrizozo High school bid fair this year to be a most significant occasion in the growth and development of this educational institution. The closing exercises on the evening of May 21st will be one of universal interest in the town and community, as a class of five will receive their diplomas.

The valedictory will be delivered by Olivia Kennedy and the salutatory by Emanuel Anderson. Besides these special features there will be interesting contributions by each member of the class such as the class poem and class prophecy, all representative of the pupils' best thought and effort on this crowning occasion of their school career.

The baccalaureate address will be delivered by Gov. McDonald who has consented to be in Carrizozo at this time for the expressed purpose of showing his interest in this year's promising graduating class and the school in general. That the Governor is still a true Carrizozo citizen is beyond question and his friends and neighbors will all be there to hear his address.

The Carrizozo High School diploma has come to mean something. Superintendent McCurdy is recently in receipt of advice from president David R. Boyd of the State University that certificates of entrance to that institution will be provided to that institution will be provided to the diploma. This significant communication needs no comment.

On Tuesday night of commencement week, the seventh and eighth grades under the direction of Miss Schimpff will give a play. Faithful practice is now going on and this bids fair to be a real success.

The baccalaureate sermon will be delivered by Rev. R. L. Day in the Baptist church Sunday, May 16th, at 11 a. m.

All of the public programs of the week will be enlivened by musical numbers from all departments, including drills and action songs by pupils of the grades and glee and choruses of a springtime nature by the High School chorus which recently rendered with such credit the Operetta, "Pauline." All of the events of commencement week should be attended by each and every patron and friend of the school. Hand work of all kinds will be displayed for public approval, everything will be at its best and every friend of education ought to make manifest his interest in the present management and offer encouragement for the undertaking of still greater prospects for the perfecting of educational advantages extended to the youth of this district.

AN INTERESTING MEETING

The Woman's Home Mission Society met Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Robert T. Lucas. There was a record attendance of twenty four ladies and a most profitable meeting resulted. The subject for special discussion was "China" pertaining to foreign missions and "Bum Work in the Cities" as a phase of the work at home. A talk was delivered on the latter subject by Mrs. E. D. Lewis who has had first-hand experience in the city of Chicago. Among other interesting features was a paper by Mrs. George B. Barber entitled, "The Waiting World, Our Opportunity." An instrumental violin-piano duette "Sweet Bye and Bye Variations" by Mesdames Lewis and Donaldson and a vocal duette by Mesdames Bell and Cribb entitled, "The Whole Wide World for Jesus."

After the rendition of the programme a delightful social hour ensued, at the end of which delicious ice cream, cake and coffee were served to the goodly number of guests present.

The Society will be the guests Wednesday week of Mesdames Barber and Tennis at the residence of the last named lady.

UNTIL MAY FIRST ONLY

If you have not paid your poll tax for 1915 you had better get busy as you only have a few more days of grace, as all delinquent poll tax must be paid by May 1st. John E. Bell whose term as member of the school board expires on the above date and whose duty it is as clerk of the board to collect this tax, will be compelled to turn over the delinquent list to the justices of the peace for collection at the expiration of his term. Mr. Bell has sent out notices to all able bodied men over 21 years of age who are not exempted from this tax and it is his desire that it will not be necessary to turn in any names for non-payment of this small sum, which is $1.00. A hint to the wise is sufficient.

MRS. ROLLAND ENTERTAINS

Mrs. A. J. Rolland was hostess to a second set of her friends on Friday evening in honor of her mother Mrs. W. C. McDonald. Whist was the game of the evening with Mrs. Geo. Barber the winner of the ladies' prize and Mr. L. B. Crawford the holder of the highest gentleman's score. Toward the close of the evening's enjoyment a delightful supper was served, the privilege of the meeting the first lady of the State was thoroughly enjoyed by those in attendance on these two most pleasurable occasions.

ENTERTAINS FRIDAY NIGHT

Some forty invitations are out announcing the entertainment to be given Friday evening at the Hamilton residence by Mesdames Hamilton, Nye and Donaldson. This bids fair to be one of the most popular social events of the season, and invited guests are anticipating a most delightful evening.

AN AMENDMENT TO ADD. HOMESTEAD ACT

Homesteaders Who Have Made Final Proof on Claims Are Now Allowed to File on an Additional 160

A PRIVILEGE HERETOFORE NOT ALLOWED

Additional entries now are allowed by the government to persons who have already made final proof, according to an announcement in Harriek's Law Reports. An amendment to the enlarged homestead act was passed by congress in March. This act provides that any person who has made, or shall make homestead entry of lands of the character described in the enlarged homestead act of Feb. 19, 1909, and who has not submitted final proof thereon, or who having submitted final proof still owns and occupies the land thus entered shall have the right to enter public lands, subject to the provisions of this act, contiguous to his first entry, which shall not, together with the original entry, exceed 320 acres provided that the land originally entered and that covered by the additional entry shall first be designated as subject to this act, as provided by section 1.

That at the time of making final proof, as provided in section 3291 of the revised statutes the entryman shall, in addition to the proofs and affidavits acquired, prove by himself and two credible witnesses, that at least one-sixteenth of the area embraced in such entry was continuously cultivated for agricultural crops other than native grasses beginning with the second year of the entry; and that at least one-eighth of the area embraced in the entry was continuously cultivated each year thereafter.

GLAD TO GET BACK

Monday of this week the Outlook enjoyed a very pleasant visit from Geo. Coe one of Lincoln county's most substantial citizens who resides at Glencoe. Mr. Coe with his wife and daughter, Miss Mina, have just returned from the expositions and other points in California where they have spent the past several weeks. Mr. Coe reports a very pleasant time in the Golden state but expresses himself as being glad to get back to the Sunshine State. He says that while California is a great state and a great amount of wealth is represented there, to take it in general New Mexico is in a better condition and its people are more prosperous and contented than those of California, which is very likely a fact. Just a visit to some other part of the country is all that is necessary to convince us that New Mexico is the best place on the green foot stool.

BUSINESS GETTING BETTER

R. F. Norris reports railroad business on the rise. An unusually large number of engines were needed for Wednesday's business. All this indicates the revival of business in general which is being enjoyed the country over.

CHAPTER XX—Continued.

It was all over with so quickly I could scarcely realize what had actually occurred. Then I laughed and swore, my nerves dancing like so many demons. They were gone—gone! Those merciless red devils, those accursed murderers, those fiends in human guise. Nor was it likely they would stop in their mad flight until they dropped from sheer exhaustion, or the dawn of another day brought with it fresh courage.

And those others, who were yet there—Brady, tied still to the stake, the flames already licking the fagots at his feet, and mademoiselle praying to the Virgin—what would they think? Would they know, understand, what had really occurred, or had the terrible spectacle left them also in benumbed terror? The thought awoke me as from a stupor, and I turned about. The ground was a jumble of things, as if I looked upon a battle field, yet this was not what I really saw in that first swift glance. A man—a white man—ran leaping across the flame-lit opening, kicking aside the blazing fagots of wood already scorching Brady, hurling them to right and left in frantic haste, until he made passage through. I caught the glimmer of a knife in his hand; and then, by main strength, he dragged the weakened prisoner clear of the burning wood, and dropped him exhausted on the ground. As the fellow stood erect, staring about him, at the helpless huddle at his feet, at the white face of the girl, at the debris on every side, I recognized Simon Girty.

"Saints alive! What does all this mean?" he cried, grabbing up the gun dropped in his first swift effort at rescue. "You 'Running Water,' ay! and this is the Kentuckian who would have killed me. What's happened here? It looks like a shambles. Never before did I see a man burning himself. Who killed these—merciful God! What is that?"

His voice rose into a shriek as he stared at me, while I advanced toward him. With one terrified leap he sprang back, throwing up his rifle, but with hands shaking so, that I laughed outright. The sound coming unexpectedly from such ghastly lips must have been more horrible than a groan, for the frightened man dashed his weapon to the ground, and turned to run. His foot struck Brady's body and he went down, scrambling to his knees. I saw the old scout's head uplifted, the trembling girl bury her face in her hands, as if to shut out the sight.

"Don't run; there is nothing to be afraid of!" I cried hastily, stopping still in my tracks to better reassure them. "I am no ghost, but a friend. Hear me, mademoiselle!"

CHAPTER XXI.

Through the Black Night.

She dropped her hands from before her eyes, and, holding out the white cross gleaming in the firelight, came slowly forward. A yard from me she stopped, hesitating, not even yet thoroughly convinced of my identity.

"Is—Is it really you, Joseph Hayward?" her lips faltered. "Tell me, I beg you, for—for I was never so frightened in my life."

"There is nothing for you to fear, mademoiselle," I said quickly, regretful enough to have startled her so. "I am Joseph Hayward, the American. I was but to save you I played this part."

She buried her face in her hands, sobbing hysterically, her slender form trembling.

"Oh, I am glad—glad!" she managed to whisper. "I—I am not superstitious, not weak; but this was so real, so dreadful, that all thought left me. Oh, how could you, how could you do that?"

"It was all that was left for me to do," I explained, my heart throbbing, as I drew her hands from before her face, and looked into her eyes. "You must not blame me, mademoiselle. I could not fight alone against them all. I was crazed with despair when I first thought of this. It was as though God inspired me to the attempt."

My eyes looking beyond her saw Girty on his knees, reaching for his rifle in the dirt. Then he arose to his feet, his face showing hard and ugly in the firelight.

"What's all this mad play about!" he ejaculated roughly. "Come now, speak up, then, or I'll try what lead kin do. Are ye ghost, or man? Burn me if I'm afraid o' either!"

"Your courage has been tested," I returned in humor. "But you might as well lower the gun Girty. There is no occasion to shoot at me." I stepped out into fuller view. "Do you know me now?"

He stared, uncertain, into my clay-streaked face, his eyes narrowed into mere slits.

"Maybe I do, an' maybe I don't," he admitted at last obstinately. "Ye're like the lad who guided me into Har-mar, but yer a sight for all that. If yer had yer face washed, an' more hair showin' I could judge better. What's all this play-actin' about anyhow? Though 't wasn't much play in it for me, I reckon," pointing to Brady, "when I got here. A minute more, an' the man would have been sheeted in flame."

I stepped toward him, amused to see the man shrink back, half startled still at my weird decoration, and dropped a hand heavily on his shoulder.

"Does that feel like the grip of a phantom, you fool?" I asked sharply. "If it does I'll shut down tighter still for your benefit. My tale can wait its telling until we be well out of here. There will be time enough then to satisfy your curiosity. Those fellows may get over their fright and come back."

"What fellows?"

"A mixed band of Miami, Ojibwas and Shawnees—mostly Shawnees with a chief named Sis-e-to-wah!"

"Huh! So it was those devils? The same gang I left at the foot of the island. But there were no Shawnees with them then. Sis-e-to-wah, did you say? I know the rascal, but never before did I hear of him being bold enough for such a deed. What stirred him to it?"

"There was a white man with them."

"Ah! Now we have the truth—a red-coat?" and his eyes were on my jacket.

"He wore one—stolen no doubt—but was no soldier. Mademoiselle knew the man, a ruffian called Jules Lapin."

He gazed into my face a minute and laughed, slapping his knee in sudden merriment.

"Lord! But that's a good one, boy! By the Lord Harry! 't was a fine joke. But maybe we better move, friend, for he would not be in good humor if he did come, and I am scarcely in better grace with him than you."

"Go where?"

"To join my party. Did yer think it likely I was here alone? I'll tell yer the whole of it in a word. I found the warriors of the Wyandots marching south, an' joined them. Have you heard it was war? Ay! There's no stopping now; the tribes have taken the trail, the tomahawks are bloody."

"T is said St. Clair has left Har-mar already, and there will be fighting on the Wabash, Pish! It is easy to guess how it will end."

"Where are your Indians?"

"At the foot of the lake. I scouted up the shore as far as the ford; saw the blaze of fire over here and crept up through the woods to investigate. Then somebody fired a gun, and I ran forward. This is what I found." He waved his hand about the open space.

"Now you understand. I reckon the best thing for us to do is to get out."

I looked down at Brady doubtfully; then stepped over beside him.

"How is he, mademoiselle?" I asked.

"Can he talk at all?"

"If you bend close to his lips you can hear his words," she answered glancing up at my face. The hunter's eyes were bright; he seemed to be trying to speak, and I dropped on my knees beside her.

"What is it, Brady?"

There was a faint muttering, but I distinguished the words.

"Was—that—Simon Girty?"

"Yes."

"The—the man—who, who—cut me down?"

"Yes."

"What—what is he now?"

"Right here; you want to speak to him—oh, Girty?"

The renegade came toward us, and the eyes of the two borderers met. For a long moment they looked at each other, many a memory, no doubt, floating between them. Then Brady held out a blackened hand.

"Yer saved my life, Simon Girty," he said with an effort. "I—I never thought to—shake hands with you—but—but I'm a goin' to."

Girty's ugly face broke into a smile. "No more did I," he admitted grimly. "We ain't generally been in no shakin' hands mood when we've met heretofore. Still, I reckon, we're about even up an' kin afford ter shake if we want. Think yer kin travel a bit, Brady?"

"How far?"

"To the foot of the lake; to a Wyandot camp."

The hunter's eyes wandered from his face to mine.

"I—I reckon I can," he mumbled at last. "I—ain't hurt so much, only bruised up." His glance fell upon his feet. "Maybe if—I had some whole moccasins I'd get along better."

"We'll fix that," and Girty laughed. "I reckon that's what them dead Indians is lying there for."

He stepped across to the nearest body, fumbled a moment, and came back, dropping on his knees. Deftly and quickly he cut the burned leather from the wounded man's feet, touching the blackened flesh gingerly with his fingers, and slipped on the new moccasins.

"You're not scorched much, fella d. Hurts some, I reckon, but a cot." 'o days will put you all right agin."

As I pen these adventures of youth I seem to retain but dim recollection of what occurred following our arrival at the camp at the foot of the lake. I recall the struggle we had with Brady, which taxed Girty's strength as well as my own. The man suffered greatly, and for much of the distance we bore him in our arms in spite of his protests. Yet we reached the spot at last, and stumbled into the circle of light cast by a small fire, the Indians aroused from sleep by Girty's shout, and clustering about us in eager curiosity. At first view I deemed them hostile, but a word from the girl made them friendly enough.

It was the fourth day, on the banks of the Maumee, that we came straggling into the Indian encampment, and passed through howling hordes, who struck at us in spite of the guards. The word passed that one of the white prisoners was Stephen Brady caused them to press about us so close that we were fairly hemmed into the mass, infuriated faces on every side, the wild shrieking making an indescribable din. The situation was becoming serious, for the guards cared little what befell us, when Girty, accompanied by three Wyandot chiefs and a white man in British uniform, fought passage through the crowd, and by threats and blows, won way for us through the village. The extent of this surprised me, and gave me a new conception of the power of those northwest Indian tribes. There were hundreds, perhaps thousands, gathered there, for we only traversed one end of the encampment, the warriors of tribes whose homes were as far away as the great lakes and the big rivers. There were few wigwags erected, not more than two or three standing in the shadow of trees close beside the river. Big as the encampment was, it was no permanent village, but a mere rendezvous for the various tribes allied for war.

To one of these, covered with deerskin and rendered hideous by tribal totems, we were taken, and thrust within. At last we were alone, Brady and I, although we could still hear the yelling without. He lay extended on his litter, and I dropped to the ground, thoroughly exhausted from the rough buffeting through which I had passed.

CHAPTER XXII.

Rene Comes.

The afternoon passed slowly. We discussed the chances of escape, yet knew so little of our surroundings as to gain slight satisfaction. If we could be certain that there were no Indians on the opposite bank of the river we might venture an attempt. But we were far from sure.

Thus far all had been failure, our mission useless, our sufferings vain; Schultz had given up his life, Brady was wounded and suffering, and I, as well as he, a helpless prisoner. Yet even this could be borne with patience if only I could perceive some way to become of service, some means by which I could warn St. Clair of this tornado of savagery about to sweep down upon him.

Slowly, insensibly, the vision of mademoiselle came. What a life had been hers from childhood, and yet how the true, sweet womanhood had conquered all savage environment.

She was in my mind still, a soft, tender memory, when the skin concealing the entrance was lifted and she stood in the narrow opening looking in. I could see her slender, lightly poised form outlined against the fire, but seemingly her eyes could not penetrate the darkness within. An instant she hesitated, leaning slightly forward.

"Monsieur."

"Yes," I said eagerly, already on my feet. "I was longing for you to come."

She came forward cautiously, guided by the sound of my voice, leaving the entrance open, permitting me to glimpse the guard without, facing the opening.

"You have come to help us, mademoiselle?" I whispered, bending so close her hair brushed my lips. "You feel that our need is that desperate?"

"I must do right," she answered, yet without lifting her eyes to mine, "as God tells me. I pray to him for guidance. You are white men and Christians; you came to the Wyandots on a mission of peace. What is my duty, monsieur? I also am Christian, and only a drop of Indian blood flows in my veins. Yet all my life have I been Indian. How can I turn against my own people?"

"I cannot think that you do," I urged as she paused, breathing heavily. "The Wyandots have been falsely led, deceived. They have been driven into this war by the lies of white men. Would we be in danger now if our fate was left to a council of Wyandot chiefs?"

"No; they would listen to me, and believe. It is Hamilton and his white aides who refuse to hear the story. I went to his tepee twice, and was turned away—the last time with insults, as though I were an unknown squaw."

"How, then, did you gain permission to come here?"

"I waited until he left the camp. There are but two white men here tonight, and one of them is Girty. I like not the man, but he seems friendly to you, and so I trust him. He suggested that I come, and told me something which gave me courage. He had heard a word dropped by Hamilton which made him suspect your lives were at stake. He dare not act openly, but he sent me to tell you this, and to whisper to you his plan. It was easy for me to come here with Hamilton away. The guards are Wyandots, and I had only to ask the chief to let me dress Monsieur Brady's wounds. He had not been warned against me, and suspected nothing. The Englishman who was left in command was led by Girty to the other end of the village. When the chief sought him, he was not to be found, and so I was given permission."

She stepped silently back to the entrance, and glanced out into the firelight, returning as swiftly to clasp my sleeve.

"Listen, monsieur; I must speak fast, for I know not who may suspect us. Now mark every word, for 't is a desperate chance. Two hours from now be ready. We must work tonight, while Hamilton is away. I will somehow draw the guard away from this side—here, next to river, monsieur. When you hear an owl hoot three times creep beneath the skins and down the bank to the water's edge. You must move like foxes, for there will be sleeping warriors to pass. Go down stream."

"And then?" I asked breathlessly, as she stopped to glance behind.

"A quarter of a mile below, at the end of the village, around a sharp bend, Girty will have a canoe tied to a tree that overhangs the water. It will be in shadow, and concealed by brush. He has promised to put into it food, paddles and one gun. You must hide during daylight—are you sure you understand all?"

"Yes; that is clear, but I must ask a question—where is St. Clair?"

"I do not know exactly, but he is marching toward the little Wabash; he seeks to destroy the Miami towns."

"With what force?"

"Less than two thousand, the scouts say. He only expects to meet the Indians of the Wabash."

A head was thrust through the flap, and a gruff voice spoke in a strange language. The girl's fingers pressed mine firmly, and then she turned and went out in silence. As she passed out of the opening her hand dropped the skin, leaving the interior in darkness.

I stood motionless, listening to the many sounds without, hardly conscious yet that she had gone. The hot blood was throbbing in my veins, but it was caused by no thought of the dangers confronting me. At that moment she alone occupied my mind. Then slowly her message recurred, forcing its way in upon my consciousness with insistence. Tonight—our escape must be made within two short hours. I stepped forward to awaken Brady, but now, with my brain cleared, a sudden suspicion came. Was this honest planning? Was the desire back of it actually our escape? Or was it born of treachery? Not for an instant did I question her—the purity and truth of her purpose—but Simon Girty. Why should he scheme to help us? Never before had I heard his name spoken as any harbinger of mercy to the frontier. I recalled his ugly face, his narrow, furtive eyes, and my doubt of him increased. The plan was too easy, too well oiled, to be altogether natural.

I shook Brady awake, told him all that had occurred, so far as related to our effort, but without voicing my suspicion.

Twice we started at the distant hoot of an owl, but it was not repeated. Then, at last, the signal came, sounding near at hand, from somewhere down the stream. Brady went first, worming his way silently beneath the flap, and the instant he disappeared, I followed. There was a slight gully to our left, and we crept into it, keeping down out of the gleam of fire. Lying side by side at the edge of the water he put his lips close to my ear.

"On your back, lad, with only the nose out; stroke easy, and let the current carry you down."

Anthropological Conclusions.

In a recent lecture before the Royal Institute in London Prof. Arthur Keith, in an anthropological study, gave it as his opinion that Shakespeare was a descendant of the bronze age invaders, the true or round head people. This was a remarkable fact, the professor added, for it was this same short-headed stock, spread abroad in central Europe, throughout Germany, France and Italy, which has produced the world's finest artists. Burns, he said, on the contrary, was a good representative of the long-headed type of man. His skull was very broad and of excessive length, and appeared to be closely set to the neck. It represented an ancient type.

London Wit.

At a recent festivity, we read, selections were played by a "concealed band." Cowards!—London Globe.

USE FOR "LEFT-OVERS"

HOW THE SECONDARY PARTS MAY BE UTILIZED.

Excellent for Hash, or Other Like Dishes, if Properly Prepared and Highly Seasoned—Saving the Sour Milk or Cream.

The following advice about "left-overs" will contain nothing new to the good cook or the experienced house-keeper, but it is just what the average American home cook needs, for she rarely knows how to make good use of left-over meats, vegetables and other foods, which too often find their way into the garbage pail. This advice is taken from a pamphlet issued by Mayor Mitchell's food supply committee. The pamphlet, which is full of good recipes, will be sent free to anyone who cares to write for it to the committee at the city hall, New York.

Left-over cooked meat will be much more palatable if lightly seasoned.

Left-over beef, lamb, mutton and veal are excellent for hash, scalloped dishes, croquettes, a loaf and salads.

Left-over beef, lamb or mutton make excellent stews with the addition of any left-over vegetables. Any left-over meat, vegetables and gravy may be used to make a meat pie.

A left-over ham bone will greatly improve the flavor of pea or bean soup.

Any kind of cold meat may be chopped and used in an omelet, or, combined with rice and tomatoes, used for a scalloped dish.

Sour Milk or Cream.—No sour milk or cream should be wasted. Put it into an earthen or glass jar, little by little, until you have half a cup or a cupful. As soon as it thickens use it for cottage cheese, griddle cakes, biscuits, cornbread or gingerbread.

Sour cream may also be used for filling for cake.

Cheese.—All the little dried pieces of cheese should be grated and put in a covered glass jar. These cheese crumbs are excellent for many made-over dishes and are particularly good with starchy foods, such as potatoes, macaroni, etc.

Very tasty crackers can be made by spreading this grated cheese on crackers, seasoning them and then putting them in the oven for a few minutes.

Cherry Cream.

One tablespoonful gelatin, two eggs, half cupful cream, two cupfuls canned cherries, three-fourths cupful sugar. Dissolve the gelatin in a little of the juice from the cherries. Make a custard of the yolks of the eggs and the rest of the cherry juice. Add the gelatin to the boiling mixture, and lift at once from the fire. In turn, add the sugar, the cream, whipped, and the whites of the eggs stiffly beaten. Mix thoroughly and add cherries. Turn into mold, and serve very cold. If the cherries do not sufficiently color the cream, do this artificially. If the cherries have been canned with plenty of sugar omit part of the sugar called for in this recipe. Cherry cream is excellent served with broken lemon jelly.

A simple cherry cream may be made with tapioca. It is, however, a dish more suited to a family dinner than a company luncheon.

For Mildew Stains.

Mix a small quantity of soft soap with the same proportion of powdered starch and salt and the juice of a lemon. Apply this mixture to both sides of the stain with a small brush, and, if possible, let the article lie on the grass all day and night until the stains have quite disappeared. Then wash in the usual way.

Ham in Cider.

Boil a medium sized ham over a slow fire, in sufficient sweet cider to half cover it. Skim off the grease which rises to the top, occasionally. When tender, take out, remove rind, slice the fat in diamond shape and into each diamond stick a whole clove. Make a paste of cracker crumbs and brown sugar. Save the cider liquor and after the first meal place back in this which keeps it juicy and improves the flavor.

When Cooking Meat.

Fresh meat should always be put on the fire in boiling water, salt meat in cold water.

When beef is tough, as sometimes happens in buying the less expensive cuts, it can be made more palatable by a brushing with two spoonfuls of olive oil, blended with one of vinegar, followed by a wait of 30 minutes before cooking.

Do not wash meats, especially game or fowls, more than is absolutely essential, as the water takes away from the natural flavor.

The late statistics indicate the shift to the cities is becoming slowly accentuated. The figures furnished by the census bureau show 73 per cent living in cities and towns, and only 27 percent living on land. In 1890 the proportion was 60 per cent in the cities and 40 per cent on the land. In 1870, 50 per cent, and 50 per cent. These facts assist the head of the family in thinking out the problem of the rise in the price of food.

A FINE BIRD

"The automobile is a fine bird but it sucks blood. It has a song that lures men to destruction and women to vain pride that corrupts happiness. Look not upon the buzz wagon when it is red and giving wisdom to the evening breeze for it chaweth seeds and ducat's like a hay baler, also mazuma and sesterces, and rocks and dough it lappeth up like a house
elf. When the devil wags a camp erth and snorteth, flee to the mountains of Hepseidism and crawl in o a hole or the old boy will get you and carry you o he pa bou-e.
Man goeth forth in the morning
clugging and shaking with pride;
a halo of blue smoke circleth him as a wreath; he pattereth his belly with pride, sayeth beh-ld I am a six-cylinder brute, even a lallapatoulu am I in my pride.

"When lo the sheriff cometh at the front door of the shop and wipeth up his substance in a night and a Missouri mule hauleth off
the available assets to the auction.
The auto is a mocker and the touring car a rager and who so is deceived thereby should seek his noodle in Ive. Vessels of wrath fitted in o destruction are the devil carts that eat man's time and sap his securities and in the end turn over into a ditch and make his family into hamburger steaks. Woe is his name who dabbles with them; even pan is he called in the market place who twines the brass wheel and winker with the other eye at late."—William Allen White.

OSCURO

Hundreds of trees are being planted around Oscuro this year.

Dr. Blurry came in Friday from Chicago.

The Koelin Bros. dropped down this week in their Buick to see the townfolk and rest a bit before starting to drill another deep well.

Mrs. Corwin and boys left this week for McCoy canyon in the White Mountains where they will spend the summer.

John Sutton the local section foreman met with a painful accident last week when a pistol bullet accidentally discharged passed thru his hand and he may lose a finger.

Joe V. Edwards is spending a few days in El Paso combining business and pleasure.

Of course Oscuro like the rest of the country has been blessed with a mighty torrent of rain and never before at this season of the year was the ground in such splendid condition for crops.

Dr. Guido Ranniger made a hurried trip to the lower San Andres country Sunday to attend Mrs.
Douglas Cain who was quite ill.
Mrs. Cain is being brought to Oscuro for attention.

Mrs. Rachel Young will leave early in May to join her daughter Mrs. Henry Drace at Wilcox, Ariz., where she will spend the summer or possibly remain. Oscuro people regret very much to see Mrs. Young leave and insist she must return at an early date.

A large sized dance has been arranged for Saturday evening of this week, April 24th, with a full program of local talent at the piano and violin. The dance is given as a farewell to Mrs. Young and Miss Monroe, who leaves for the summer early in May.

The Sew and So Club met with Mrs. Richard Richardson on Saturday and have announced that their program for Saturday evening May 1st, is arranged and invitations have been extended to the men folk. The men of the town had planned a Stag for that evening but now have postponed the same to a later date. A very pleasant evening is anticipated with "good eats" from the ladies.

RUBBING IT IN.

Manager—Your acting last night was certainly the limit.
De Star—Why, sir, what do you mean?
Manager—Well, here are a dozen letters I received from deadheads this morning demanding that their names be erased from the free list.

Dull Days.

The umpire naps in winter time,
No angry voices thrill him
And not a single throat is made
With sticks and stones to kill him.

The Specialist Outflanked.

The great surgeon was busy at work.

"I get $500 for excavating an appendix," he grunted, "but I'll be flattered if I can strike the joint in this blamed turkey."

Whereupon he proved the quantitative theory of the attraction of gravitation upon the tablecloth.

Hubby's Suggestion.

His Wife (reading)—This paper says it is injurious to sleep with one's mouth open. Do you suppose it is possible to keep one's mouth closed while asleep?

Her Husband—I don't know, my dear, but you might practice it a little while you are awake.

The Old, Old Story.

"Oh, spare me!" exclaimed the heroine.

But the hard-hearted villain—who was also the heroine's husband between the acts—was obdurate.

"No," he answered with a brow filled with frowns, "I positively cannot spare you another cent."

BARE NAILS BARRED.

Mrs. Henpeque—I always handle my husband with gloves.
Mrs. Cautique—Boxing gloves, I presume.

Beauty at a Discount.

Thought beauty is available in boxes,
Its influence is lost
The better a bulldog looks
The more he seems to cost.

Wise Elmer.

"You have a bad cold, Elmer," said his mother. "I'll wrap your throat with flannel and give you some cough syrup."

"Wouldn't flannel cakes and maple syrup be better, mamma?" queried Elmer.—Cincinnati Times-Star.

Up Against It.

Polly—Molly seems to realize very fully the seriousness of getting married.

Dolly—Yea, the poor girl is just worried to death. There are sixteen girls who want to be her bridesmaids, and she can't decide which eight she can afford to make enemies of.—Puck.

Falling Market.

"Then your daughter isn't going to buy a duke?"

"Not just yet. I advised her to hold off a while and for the same money we might get a king."—Puck.

HE RESIGNED.

"Madam," said the man in the street car, "I know I ought to get up and give you my seat, but unfortunately I've recently joined the Sit Still club."

"That's all right, sir," replied the woman. "And you must excuse me for staring at you so hard; I am a member of the Stand and Stare club." She proved herself so active and conscientious a member that the man began to feel uncomfortable under her gaze. Finally he rose and said: "Take my seat, madam; I guess I'll resign from my club and join yours."

The Bore Retorts.

"I am passionately fond of music," said the bore. "In fact, music always carries me away."

The girl hastened to the piano and played several popular airs; then she swung around on the piano stool.

"You still here?" she queried. "I thought you said music carries you away."

"So I did—music!"

A Minute Man.

"I met Plover yesterday afternoon and he seemed to be in a tremendous hurry."

"Do you suppose he had a pressing business engagement?"

"No. Nothing like that would ever hurry him. I can't account for his haste, unless he had been summoned to take a cue in a game of Kelly pool somewhere."

ON THE JUMP.

Horan—Hello, Doran. An' how's things wid you?

Doran—Busy; very busy indeed.

Horan—Is it so?

Doran—Aye, shure; iv'ry time I'm at layshure I have somethin' to do.

Perhaps.

Between the cradle and the grave,
All men, perhaps, at times are brave;
But that man is—well, say a freak,
Who's never shown a yellow streak.

A Reluctant Applicant.

"Are you looking for work?"

"Yes," replied Plodding Pete.

"Well, mebbe you can find out who wants help by applying at the post office."

"Mebbe. But I've watched the men dat works for de post office. Long hours an' weather an' salary ain't supposed to make no difference to them. If dey heard of any easy jobs I should think dey'd nail 'em themselves."

Too Practical.

"Why did she throw him over at the last minute?"

"He wanted to buy a set of dining room furniture instead of an engagement ring."

Plenty of Practice.

"It is a marvel to me how a citizen can so quickly transform himself into a soldier."

"Oh, we have a chance to study tactics all the time. Every married man, for instance, has to be a master of strategy."

A Surprised Recruit.

The Sergeant—Look here, before you're served out with your uniform you'd better nip down to the wash-house and get a bath.

The Recruit—Wot? I came 'ere to be a soldier—not a bloomin' mermaid!—London Opinion.

His Theory.

"Engaged to four girls at one and the same time? How do you explain such conduct?"

"Cupid must have shot me with a machine gun, I guess," was the graceless reply.

Reason for Industry.

Woman—What are you selling tomatoes for today?

Peddler—Because I haff a wife and ten children, lady.

ALL THE PROOF NECESSARY

Surly Man Must Have Been Convinced That He Was Occupying the Other's Chair.

It was the rush hour in the cafeteria, one of these quick-lunch places where you help yourself and grab a chair and use the arm of the chair as a table. A rushed feeder grabbed a slice of pie and copped out a chair. Then he remembered he needed coffee and he dashed over to the service counter. When he returned with his coffee his chair was occupied by another hurry-up diner.

"Excuse me," said the first man, "but that is my chair."

"How do you know it is your chair?" demanded the occupant in a surly tone.

"Because I can prove it," stated the first man.

"How can you prove it?" asked the occupant.

"By your trousers," was the reply. "You are sitting on my pie."

CORONA

The Corona school closed its nine months term the 16th of April.

Mr. Myers of Estancia was in town last week on business.

After a long and serious illness Mrs. Zeb Owens is recovering.

Bob Owens and wife are at present in Roswell.

Prof. E. W. Campbell will leave Tuesday for his summer vacation.

Geo. Spence and Ed Kelley of Carrizozo were here last week.

Jess Bond, A. W. Calbaugh and J. L. Bond have returned from the springs.

We understand Prof. Campbell has been employed as principal for the Corona school next year.

It has been raining here for the past three days and looks as tho it was going to keep it up.

The Corona school was very sorry not to have Mrs. Gumm and Dr. Roberts with them last Friday night.

The Brown family and relatives left here last Thursday night with the body of Mr. Brown for Midland, Texas, where the funeral will be held.

A picnic in the mountains was given on the last day of school. The crowd was not very large on account of the rain the night before, but all that were present enjoyed themselves very much and returned before the evening rain. The lunch that was served could not be beat.

Miss Sarah Ackerman who has been teaching school left Saturday for her home with two of her sisters who came down and spent a few days with her before her school was out.

The little Varney settlement was shocked Tuesday evening by a killing taking place, as John Kimmons shot and killed N. B. Brown with a 25 automatic pistol. Kimmons came to Corona and gave himself up to G. C. Clements, deputy sheriff, and Clements wired the sheriff at Torrance and he came after him. Both men are well known here.

The Corona eighth grade took the state examination and all were well pleased with their yearly average, Pearl Clements making the highest grade. The class was small but it had the class spirit and knew how to work. Their average is as good almost as any of Lincoln County. The eighth grade altho small had its colors, pink and green and the class yells could not be beat. We feel very proud of our small class and next year they hope to attend the high school.

NOGAL

The mud has dried up so that we are getting our mail regular again.

The fruit crop is all right so far in this neighborhood. There will be a bumper crop if not killed later.

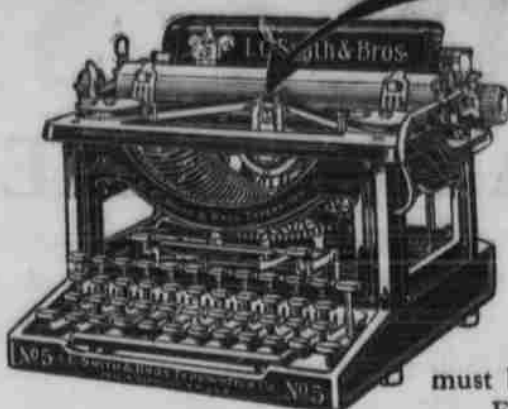

Corn planting is going on this week, in fact all kind of seeds are being planted.

The moisture extends over five feet in tillable land. Who says this is a dry country.

Tom Bragg who lives in the mountains has lost about thirty head of cattle from starvation on account of so much snow.

We are informed that a great number of wild turkeys have died from starvation. The snow was so deep they could get nothing to subsist on.

A great many yearling cattle as well as mixed bunches have been sold and delivered this week from Nogal and Ruidoso. Top prices have been paid all around.

Make the Farm Pay

First of all, the farmer must be a business man.

Farming is manufacturing food and food products and the farm and farm equipment constitute the plant.

Competition is keen and it requires business methods to make money. The parcel post has opened the way to wider markets. Rural telephones, trolleys and mail delivery have brought unlimited opportunity for doing business.

ANNIVERSARY SALE

7th ANNIVERSARY JUBILEE

We're celebrating seven years of successful retailing with the greatest carnival of wonderful bargains that Lincoln County has ever known. Right goods, right methods and right prices have ever been the policy of this store. This is the "square deal" store. One treatment, honesty and good attention to all. Seven years ago, or to be exact, April 19, 1908, we started with this policy and have stuck to it religiously. Ever since, our success has been phenomenal. From a 20x55 building we have grown to a store 50x90. Even progress so decided and growth so great as ours is not surprising, it is gratifying. It shows that our EARN-EST ENDEAVORS ARE JUSTLY APPRECIATED. We know we are laboring in the right direction and it stimulates us to greater things.

BIBLE STUDY ON GREATNESS THE REWARD OF SERVICE.

Mark 10:32-45—July 12.

"The Son of Man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister, and to give His life a ransom for many."—V. 45.

IT was at the close of Jesus' ministry. For more than three years the Master had been calling His disciples and instructing them. They had come to recognize Him as Messiah, through whom the Messianic Kingdom would be set up, to bless all mankind—dead as well as living.

The Master had particularly assured them that if faithful they should sit with Him in His Throne. However, He had not told them that His Kingdom would be a spiritual one, that before they could share it they would need the change of the First Resurrection, and that a whole age would intervene before that Kingdom would be established amongst men. But He had hinted all this.

In today's lesson Jesus again brought up the matter of the shame, ill-treatment and death which was to come upon Him. This time He included the thought of His resurrection from the dead on the third day. However, the matter was incomprehensible to the disciples; and they merely said to themselves, This is another of the Master's dark sayings, which seem so mysterious.

Not until after Pentecost did the disciples get the full grasp of what Jesus had told them. There the Holy Spirit began to make plain the Divine arrangement—that the sufferings of all the Church must first come before the glories of the Kingdom would be revealed and the world's blessing begin.

Another account tells us that the mother of James and John came with them and voiced their plea for them. They believed that the time for distributing the Kingdom honors was very near. We need not assume that these two dear disciples sought the positions closest to the Master merely for ambition's sake. Rather, let us suppose that they loved the Lord very dearly, and therefore thought that they could appreciate a nearness to Him more than could some of the others. Indeed, they evidently appreciated being near the Master in His hours of deepest suffering, and were permitted to come nearer than the majority of the Twelve. They were glorious characters, whom the Lord greatly loved.

Let us mark carefully the words of Jesus. He did not say, My dear disciples, there will be no Throne. On the contrary, He declared that while there would be a Throne, and places of preference in that Throne, these would not be distributed by Himself, but by the Father. Places in the Kingdom will be given absolutely on the score of quality.

"Are Ye Able?"—"My Cup, My Baptism?"

Jesus then made known the fact that any position whatever in the Kingdom would require the fulfillment of certain conditions. It was not enough that they had been called to discipleship, that they had left all to follow Him, that they had assented to His teachings. There must be something more, else they might not enter the Kingdom at all. These conditions the Master declared, saying, "Are ye able to drink of the cup that I shall drink of, and to be baptized with My baptism?"

SUBSCRIBERS NOTICE

Since taking charge of the Outlook we have mailed out several hundred dollars worth of statements to those who were indebted $1.50 or more, and those whose subscription had expired we mailed statements to them for the advance subscription now due. Some have remitted, but the majority have remained as silent as the seven spirits. We kindly ask every one indebted to us to send in their remittance at once. It seems a little unfair for us to pay interest to keep our business going when we have due us in amounts from $1.50 up, enough to pay all we owe. In fact we cannot understand why a subscription to a newspaper should be the last obligation considered, when most of those indebted are able to pay promptly. A payment now will be appreciated.

97 NEW LAWS

RESOLUTIONS AND MEMORIALS
PASSED BY NEW MEXICO
SOLONS.Review of Measures Passed by Second State Legislature, Showing Bills and Resolutions Filed With Secretary of State.

Santa Fe.—The Senate and House bills enacted into laws and now on file with the secretary of state, and the resolutions and memorials also on file there, total ninety-seven. There are forty-nine Senate and forty-eight House measures. Of the total number of bills now on file, forty-one were passed with the emergency clause attached, and therefore are now effective. The measures filed include those passed over the governor's veto, and those allowed to become laws by limitation, as well as those which were signed by the executive.

In addition to the measures already filed, a number of others are still under consideration by Governor McDonald at the time of making up this report.

The list of Senate and House measures on file with the secretary of state follows:

Women Object to New State Flag.

Santa Fe.—A polite but ominously firm and vigorous protest against the new state flag was registered with Governor McDonald at a conference by a joint committee from the woman's auxiliary to the San Diego Exposition Board, the Santa Fe Woman's Club and the Woman's Board of Trade.

Site for New State Building.

Santa Fe.—Col. Jose D. Senn offered the suggestion that the New Mexico building, which is to be a duplicate of the state building at the San Diego exposition, be erected on the site of the famous old adobe "bishop's building" opposite the sanitarium grounds on Cathedral place. It is thought that this building, which is owned by the Catholic church, will be torn down in the near future, as the north end of it is already in doubtful condition.

GOOD DRY FARM CROP

Broom Corn Becoming Popular in Semiarid Districts.Being One of Sorghums, is Naturally Drought Resistant, Especially in Dwarf Varieties — Planting
Often Done With Lister.

The largest proportion of the broom corn crop which enters into the interstate trade is produced in a certain small area in Illinois and in a number of counties in Oklahoma, according to the statistician of Orange Judd Farmer.

Kansas and Texas contribute to the southwestern crop, varying amounts are raised in Nebraska, and a number of other states like Tennessee, Missouri and Iowa grow some broom corn, and small acreages of it have been successfully grown in Idaho. Indications are that the Illinois acreage is growing smaller in recent years, and it is certain that the broom corn acreage is expanding in the Southwest. The Illinois district raises the standard variety from which brush for large, heavy varieties is secured, while the dwarf varieties are favored more in the Southwest.

Generally speaking, any good corn land is good broom corn land. Broom corn, however, being one of the sorghums, is naturally drought resistant, and in the dwarf varieties this characteristic is developed to a marked degree. This is why the crop is so popular in the dry districts of the southwestern states. In fact, in the unusually dry season of last year broom corn was one of the few crops that made the southwestern farmer a dollar. Although current reports stated that even the broom corn crop was severely injured, harvest results showed a fairly satisfactory output in that region. In several counties where broom corn is largely grown the farmers would have been in hard circumstances indeed, had they not raised a fairly good crop of broom corn and received particularly high prices the past season.

In this district the planting is frequently done with a lister, although on well-prepared ground the corn planter can best be used. About three quarts of seed per acre are sufficient. A sorghum plate may be used, which will drop the seeds about a foot apart in the row. Cultivation is then given as needed, the same as in raising corn or any of the sorghums.

The crop may be planted any time after May 1, depending upon heat and moisture conditions, and planting may be continued up to the middle of June. Five hundred pounds per acre are considered a good yield of brush, and this is probably above the average for the Southwest. On this basis it will take from four to five acres to produce a ton. The heads are cut or pulled from the stalk, leaving 12 to 16 inches of the stalk attached, are dried slightly, hauled in on wagons, the seed is removed, and the brush is then best piled on shelves under a roof and allowed to cure there. Dry, clear weather is essential in curing, so that the bright green color so much desired may be retained. Afterward the brush is placed in bales of from three to four hundred pounds each and is ready for shipment.

Pure Water for Cows.

In winter as well as in summer the cow should have good pure water. She should not be required to drink water that her owner would be unwilling to drink. The temperature of a cow's drinking water should not be below 55 degrees.

Continual Source of Profit.

The dairyman that keeps three or four brood sows and raises a quantity of pigs in connection with cream or butter selling and the production of fruit, has a continual source of profit.

Increased Crop Yields.

Increased crop yields are mainly the result of brain work. Sound thinking and well-directed work will bring results. It costs less to do clear thinking than it does to hire help. In other words, one man well directed is cheaper and more efficient than two men that are poorly directed.

Study Farm Methods.

If you are offered more for your farm than you think it is really worth, just consider if there is not something wrong with your method instead of bad judgment on the part of the purchaser.

Feed the Soil.

It is as foolhardy to starve the soil as it is to starve that carload of steers with which you hope to top the market. Feed the soil a balanced ration.

Cows' Milk May Be Substituted If Attendant Is Patient.

Be Careful to Keep Bottle and Nipple Scrupulously Clean—Foal Should Be Adequately Fed at All Times to Develop.

(By A. E. ALEXANDER, D. V. S.)
In case the mare dies or has no milk the foal may be reared on cows' milk, if the attendant conducts the work patiently and intelligently. Choose the milk of a cow that has recently calved, preferably one which gives milk low in butter-fat, for mares' milk while rich in sugar, is poor in fat. Sweeten the milk with molasses or sugar and dilute with warm water. Give a little of this prepared milk at short intervals from a scalded nursing bottle and large rubber nipple. Be careful to keep the bottle and nipple scrupulously clean. Add an ounce of lime water to each pint of the prepared milk and allow half a cupful once an hour at first.

Mare and Colt.

As the foal grows, gradually increase the amount of milk fed and lengthen the intervals between meals. In a few days food may be given six times a day and, later, four times daily. The foal will soon learn to drink from a pail, if allowed to suck the attendant's fingers at first.

Until the bowels move freely, give rectal injections night and morning. If the foal scours at any time give two to four tablespoonfuls of a mixture of sweet oil and pure castor oil shaken up in milk, and stop feeding milk for two or three meals, allowing sweetened warm water and lime water instead. Let the foal lick oatmeal as soon as it will eat and gradually increase the amount and add wheat bran. In five or six weeks some sweet skim milk may be given and the amount gradually increased daily until, in three months or so, it may be given freely three times a day in place of new milk. The foal at this age also will be eating freely of grass, grain and bran.

At all times supply pure cold drinking water. Let the foal run out in a lot or grass paddock for exercise. Accustom it to be handled daily. Feed small quantities of nutritious food often, keeping all food vessels clean, and the foal should thrive and develop well. Remember that a colt should at all times be adequately fed so as to develop it perfectly. Practically half of the full weight of a horse is gained during the first 12 months of its life. If stunted during this period the colt never develops properly; it therefore pays to feed generously.

SHOULD DEMAND CLEAN CARS

Up to the Shipper to Be on the Safe Side—Hog Cholera Spread by Railroad Trains.

It is up to the shipper to be on the safe side and use only clean cars for shipping hogs, according to Dr. B. A. Beach of the Wisconsin college of agriculture.

Unsanitary stock cars are responsible for spreading much hog cholera. Cases are on record where cholera has been brought into a community simply by cars carrying cholera infection passing through on the railroad.

BUILDING HOIST FOR SILOS

Device Which Has Been Found Satisfactory for Number of Years Is Easily Constructed.

A hoist which has been successfully operated for a number of years on two pit silos built close together, may be easily constructed. It consists of a frame work set upon the edge of the silo and firmly guyed in position.

A length of hay carrier track leading to each silo is supported by a piece of 4 by 6 inch timber. These timbers are laid upon the two 2 by 8 inch cross pieces which are supported by two 18-foot lengths of telephone poles. As the rope unwinds from the drum, one carrier may be run out, tripped, and the other box allowed to lower while the other box is drawn out.

Pulleys keep the ropes up out of the wind and guide them as they wind on the drum.

Heavy Layer Is Hearty Eater. The heavy layer is a hearty eater and great drinker.

HUMUS AND SOIL FERTILITY

Decayed Vegetable Matter Is Very Important Constituent in Rendering Soils Fertile.

Humus is decayed vegetable matter in the soil and is a very important constituent in rendering soils fertile. There are a number of reasons for this, prominent among which are the following: First, the organic matter contains the essential plant food elements and as it decays these elements are changed into forms available to plants. In other words, the plant food is put in condition to be used again. Second, as the organic matter decays certain acids are produced and these, acting upon the insoluble mineral constituents in the soil, dissolve and render them available to plants. Third, many of the changes in the soil are brought about by bacterial action, and decaying organic matter furnishes food for the bacteria so they can grow and multiply and thus render more mineral plant food elements soluble in the soil water. Plants cannot take up solid foods from the soil; before they can appropriate food it must first be gotten in solution like sugar goes into solution when put into water.

Then there are other ways in which humus benefits the soil. It renders the soil dark in color, and a dark soil absorbs more heat than a light colored one; that is of considerable advantage in the early spring. A soil filled with organic matter is also capable of holding more moisture than one that is deficient in this constituent. In a dry year this may mean the difference between a fair crop and a complete failure.

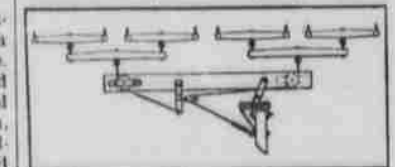

These being facts, why don't we plow under more organic matter? Why don't we grow more clover or other legumes which actually draw plant food—nitrogen—from the air and store it up in their tissues later to be converted into plant food in the soil? Every man should include one or more legumes in his rotation for soil building purposes and thus maintain the fertility of his farm.

ends of the evenner, and one flexible element is connected with a swinging lever mounted on the evenner at the side of the center opposite the point of attachment of the load, and the other flexible element passes around a pulley on the swinging lever and is connected with the load.

Improve Sanitary Conditions.

The recent epidemic of foot-and-mouth disease has brought attention very forcibly to the need and importance of spraying barns, cattle pens and even the lots with disinfectants or other agents that will improve the sanitary conditions and make it less possible for disease germs to remain. Spraying machines, big and little, were put to very effective use in the great stockyards in Chicago as soon as the disease was discovered, and made it possible to very quickly disinfect the entire place.

Causes of Infertility.

Over-feeding, especially of corn, and lack of exercise for the breeders, are perhaps the most common causes of infertility. This we have noticed especially with regard to birds that are shown a great deal, being confined to the show crops for weeks, fed highly on whole grains, with insufficient green feed and bulky matter.

Buy the Best Fanning Mill.

In buying a fanning mill, purchase one that will do thorough work, even though it costs a few dollars more in the beginning. A cheaply constructed mill is a poor investment. A good mill should run easy and do the work thoroughly. Don't plant weed seeds.

Get Machinery in Order.

Get the machinery under the sheds, oil and paint the different parts and during stormy days go over each implement with the wrench and put them in good condition.

Make the Fowls Scratch.

Have runs well littered with straw material on which to feed grains, causing the fowls to scratch for their food.

METHODIST CHURCH

REV. E. D. LEWIS, Pastor

It is very likely that Sunday will bring an end to the meeting now in progress at the Methodist church. It is desired that a good congregation be present. At the morning hour the subject will be: "Heaven, the Final Abode of the Righteous." At the conclusion of this service the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be administered. The subject for the evening discourse will be: "The Sin Finding the Sinner Out." All those desiring to join the Methodist church are urged to be present ready to be received at the close of this service. Sunday school at 9:45 a. m. Junior Church at 3:30 p. m. Epworth League at 7:15. Come and be with us.

CIVIC LEAGUE MONDAY

The members of the Civic League are hereby notified that a meeting is to be held Monday, April 26th, 1915, at 3:00 o'clock p. m. in the Crystal Theatre, and a full attendance of members is desired. The question of membership in the federation is to be determined on this date, and other matters of importance to be considered.

WILL TEACH AT HONDO

S. W. Kelsey of Hondo has been in Carrizozo since Sunday. Latest reports from Mrs. Kelsey who has been in the hospital in El Paso, indicate a greatly improved condition. Mr. Kelsey has contracted to teach in the Hondo school again the coming year, having been persuaded to abandon the farm which he has enjoyed the past year.

BAPTIST CHURCH

REV. R. L. DAY, Pastor

Preaching next Sunday at the regular hours. Regular hour for evening service is 8:00 o'clock. We would not make you come if we could, but we assure you that your presence will be appreciated.

CALL FOR BIDS

Bids will be received at the Crystal Theatre Monday, April 26, 1915, for the erection of a fence around the local cemetery. Posts will be set by the association, all material furnished and the contract will consist of stretching the wire and hanging a double gate. The fence will be of rabbit wire—two feet, and four strands of barb wire above.

Mrs. W. H. Osborn
Secretary Civic League.
