CURRY COUNTY ASSESSMENT ROLL

Last to Be Received
It is the Most Complete

13 MORE INDICTMENTS

Territorial Grand Jury Discharged This Forenoon for Term.

Governor Curry returned this forenoon from his trip to Albuquerque, where he went to have his eyes treated and where he met Governor John Burke of North Dakota. He expects to return to the Duke City on the flyer tomorrow forenoon to greet Major General Bell of the U. S. army who is on his way east from an inspection of all the posts of the United States, being at Fort Wingate in McKinley county today. Fort Wingate is one of the posts to be abandoned and it is believed that while at Albuquerque, General Bell will have the advantages of the Duke City for location as a military post brought to his attention.

District Court.

Thirteen more indictments were reported by the territorial grand jury this forenoon which was then discharged.

In most of the indictments the arrests have not been made as yet and therefore they are withheld from publication. Amador Alarid and Cleofes Alarid who were indicted for larceny, pleaded guilty and will be sentenced on Monday. The indictment of Arthur M. Dettelbach for assault and battery was dismissed because it was discovered that the wrong person had been indicted. John Block and Abel Sandoval pleaded not guilty to the indictment for assault and battery and their cases were set for trial. Sandoval is from Glorieta.

Both the criminal and civil dockets were read by Judge John R. McFie and cases disposed of or set for trial. The case of the Territory vs. Hilario L. Ortiz for murder was dismissed.

Curry County Assessment Roll Received.

Traveling Auditor Charles V. Sanford has at last received the assessment roll of Curry county. It shows a gross assessment for the county of $1,949,306, exemptions amounting to $230,593, leaving a taxable assessment of $1,709,713. There are in the county 99,463 acres of agricultural lands with improvements valued at $546,020; 6354 town lots with improvements valued at $652,782; 2 water plants valued at $4,610; 1461-2 miles of telegraph and telephone lines $10,145; 6.7 miles of railroad $27,315; 3,575 horses $130,215; 1,358 mules, $52,502; 5,033 cattle $64,649; 9,601 sheep $16,798; 3,025 swine $7,502; 422 burros $357; 2,320 wagons $29,932; 1,024 sewing machines $6,677; saddles and harness $7,396; merchandise $137,891; capital in manufacturing $2,114; farming implements $22,577; saloon fixtures $14,467; money $26,771; bonds and warrants $11,645; watches and clocks $2,879; books $1,752; gold and silver plate $268; musical instruments $11,336; household furniture $46,363; stock and bonds $75,641; corn $3,799; hay $391; tools $1,260; other property $33,227. From appearances, the assessment of Curry county is the most complete of any county in that it lists practically all of the property in the county and at a higher percentage of valuation than the same property is listed elsewhere.

Manual of Study.

The clerical force in the office of Territorial Superintendent J. E. Clark is busy today packing and distributing the Manual of the Common School Course of Study. Each county school superintendent is sent enough copies to enable him to give one to every active teacher.

Incorporation.

Incorporation papers were filed today in the office of the Territorial Secretary Nathan Jaffa by the Libertad Copper Company of Santa Fe, capitalized at $1,000,000, divided into a million shares. The incorporators and directors are: W. O. Duntley, 1,600 shares, and L. Beardsley, 300 shares, of Chicago, Ill., and R. H. Hanna, 100 shares, Santa Fe.

Bids for New Building.

In today's New Mexican is found an advertisement for bids for the new building at the New Mexico Military Institute to replace Lea hall recently destroyed by fire.

HURRICANE PASSED

OVER PINAR DEL RIO.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 18.—A tropical hurricane passed over Pinar del Rio, province of Cuba last night and is now approaching the coast of the Gulf of Mexico. Warnings have been sent to all shipping ports.

MILITARY INSTITUTE BEGINS TWELFTH SESSION.

Fully Eighty-Five Per Cent of Former Pupils Have Returned to Their Studies.

Special Correspondence of the New Mexican.

Roswell, N. M., Sept. 18.—The New Mexico Military Institute has begun the twelfth session with 160 cadets. Every room at the post is occupied and applications are still being received. For more than a week the superintendent has been refusing to accept applications. The number of old cadets who have returned is exceptionally large. At least 85 per cent of the cadets who were in the Institute last commencement and were eligible to return are now on duty for session 1909-1910.

Lieutenant Colonel Barlow, U. S. A. retired, together with Major Lohman, commandant of cadets, has organized the battalion into three companies and a band. The companies are composed of 50 men each. All are large stalwart fellows and the battalion bids fair to be the best ever trained at the Institute.

The cadets take great pride in the fact that their excellent work last year won for the school the honor of being placed in the distinguished list by the United States war department. This year's battalion will no doubt attract more attention than last year's.

Regular class room work is going ahead as though no handicap had been placed on the opening on account of the burning of Lee hall. Every member of the faculty has taken hold of his work with determination to make a success and not to permit the crowded room arrangements to interfere in the minutest way with the academic work.

Bids are to be called for in a few days for the erection of a new academic building. The building is to be a handsome structure, conforming in architecture to the Hagerman barracks. It will probably be ready for use by the first of January. In the mean time a heating plant is to be installed under the office building to furnish steam for the gymnasium and temporary class rooms.

The prospects for splendid athletic teams this year are gratifying. The athletic coach reports that he has the best prospects for both baseball and football that he has ever had at this time of the year. The candidates for position are numerous and the outlook especially encouraging. Baseball practice will continue for a week or ten days more, then football will start up. It is hoped that several games will be arranged for. With an even break against students only, the cadets should win the championship of the southwest this fall.

ALFREDO HINOJOS FOR ASSISTANT POSTMASTER.

He Will Assume Duties When Samuel B. Grimshaw Succeeds Frank W. Shearon.

It was announced today that upon Samuel B. Grimshaw assuming the duties of postmaster of Santa Fe he will appoint Alfredo Hinojos to the position of assistant postmaster to succeed Asher W. Miller, the present incumbent. Mr. Hinojos is a well known, native resident of this city, having been born here on April 20, 1861. He was educated at Saint Michael's College and received the degree of M. A. For many years he has been deputy and done clerical work in the offices of the county treasurer, collector and assessor and for a time was employed as bookkeeper by the New Mexican Printing Company.

HURRYING JOHNSON- KETCHEL FIGHT.

Urgent Telegram From Cofroth That Bout Must Be Puled Off at San Francisco Soon.

New York, Sept. 18.—The following is an urgent telegram from Cofroth: "Ketchel will leave for San Francisco today."

Cofroth informed Ketchel that he would call off the Johnson-Ketchel fight unless Ketchel is in San Francisco by next Wednesday, as he is determined to make sure that Ketchel is in condition when he meets Johnson.

A gymnasium will be fitted up in the baggage car on the trip west, where Ketchel will take regular exercise.

DEMAND FOR LABOR IS INCREASING.

Santa Fe Becoming a Good Stopping Place for Laborers Seeking Employment.

Apace with the wonderful stride of progress that Santa Fe is now enjoying is the increased demand for the services of ordinary and skilled laborers. The demand has been greatly increased during the past week by the commencement of work on the big Arroyo Hondo project which is being pushed by the Santa Fe Irrigation and Improvement Company. While a large force of men is now at work there is still need for many more.

URGENT APPEAL FOR RELIEF

Flood Situation in Northern Mexico
Desperate

NECESSITY FOR ASSISTANCE

Food Supplies, Clothing and Cooking Utensils Especially Desired.

Washington, Sept. 18.—Flood sufferers from two northern states in Mexico are still appealing for help. U. S. Consul Hanna at Monterey, in a telegram to the state department describes the destitute condition of the people and the great necessity for immediate assistance. He states that shelled corn, rice, beans, plain clothing, shoes, bedding and cooking utensils are urgently needed as are also 5,000 blankets. Charitable societies are urged to relieve the suffering. Duties have been removed on relief goods which express companies, if asked, will send without charge.

CLAIMS DAUGHTER WAS MURDERED.

Authorities Are to Investigate Along Lines Tending to Disprove Suicide.

The death of Miss Maggie Hoover, a former Santa Fe girl who was found dead last week at Pueblo, from the effects of strychnine poisoning, is still a matter of mystery. D. M. Hoover, the father of the girl, refuses to accept the theory that the girl committed suicide nor will he give credence to the deduction that the girl herself accidentally caused her death by an overdose of medicine that she had been taking for the purpose of alleviating a severe tooth ache. While the mother and brother of the dead girl are willing to believe that the cause of death was accidental, and exonerate Otto Hudson, the girl's lover, the father insists on the idea of murder and has aroused the authorities to the extent that a thorough investigation is to be made in the matter. The father while in Pueblo accused Hudson to his face, of the murder, but this the latter denied.

CROCODILE SNAPS OFF KEEPER'S HAND.

Had Been Sleeping Two Months in Zoo and Resented Being Prodded to Feed.

New York, Sept. 18.—An attempt to feed a five foot crocodile at the Bronx Zoo who had been asleep without a meal for two months, was successful in an unexpected way. Chief Keeper Snyder attempted to pry open the beast's mouth with a crow bar intending to throw fish down his throat. The crocodile resenting the work, awoke, made a light lunch from Snyder's hand and returned to slumber.

STREET RAILWAY EMPLOYEES WALK OUT.

New York, Sept. 18.—Lord Balfour, who arrived today on his way to Canada today stated that the general belief in England is that the claim of Peary as the discoverer of the north pole is more substantial than that of Cook and that most of the English scientists have been skeptical of Cook from the start.

PRESIDENT AT TWIN CITIES

Visits Minneapolis, Saint Paul and
Fort Snelling

PRINCIPAL ADDRESS TONIGHT

Large Throngs Greet Him
When He Arrived at the Station This Forenoon

Rochester, Minn., Sept. 18.—In spite of his suffering, Governor Johnson did not forget the courtesies due the chief executive and this morning dictated the following telegram to Taft: "Heartily and sincerely welcome to the state of Minnesota. Greatly regret illness prevents my presence at your reception."

Taft Replies.

Rochester, Minn., Sept. 18.—President Taft at once sent a reply to Governor Johnson's telegram expressing his distress over the governor's illness and hoping for speedy recovery.

At Minneapolis.

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 18.—President Taft arrived here at 8 o'clock this morning and was escorted to the Minneapolis Club for breakfast. He was given a noisy greeting by an immense crowd as he stepped from the station. B. F. Nelson welcomed the President for Minneapolis and B. F. Keillogg for St. Paul. All the buildings were decorated and the streets were lined with enthusiastic throngs.

After breakfast the party drove to Minnehaha Falls, the State Soldiers' Home and Ft. Snelling, where the President reviewed the troops and was tendered a reception by the officers.

At St. Paul.

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 18.—The President was driven direct from Ft. Snelling to St. Paul, where luncheon was served in a special auditorium. After a brief reception, the President was escorted to the State University, returning to Minneapolis where he will make the principal address of the day at the auditorium at 8 o'clock tonight.

Woolen Schedule Too High.

Winona, Minn., Sept. 18.—In his speech at Winona, Minnesota, last night, President Taft said:

"As to the woolen schedule I declare without hesitation that the Payne rates are too high. It was found early in the fight, however, that the wool and woolen manufacturing interests in the Republican party were so strong that any attempt to change the Dingley rates would result in the defeat of the bill.

"I am sorry that this is so," said the President, "and I wish it could have been otherwise. It is the one important defect in the bill."

President's Address.

The President said at Winona last evening, in part:

"As long as August, 1906, I ventured to announce that I was a tariff revisionist and thought that the time had come for a readjustment of the schedules. I pointed out that it had been ten years prior to that time that the Dingley bill had been passed; that great changes had taken place in the conditions surrounding the productions of the farm, factory and mine, and that, under the theory of protection, in that time the rates imposed in the Dingley bill, in many instances, might have been greater than the differences between the cost of production abroad and the cost of production at home with a sufficient allowance for a reasonable rate of profit to the American producer. I said the party was divided on this issue, but, in my judgment, the opinion of the party was crystallizing and probably would result in the near future in an effort to make such revision. I pointed out the difficulty there always was in a revision of the tariff, due to the threatened disturbance of industries to be affected and the suspension of business, in a way which made it unwise to have too many revisions.

Vindicates Ante-Election Attitude.

"In the summer of 1907, my position on the tariff was challenged and then I entered into a somewhat fuller discussion. It was contended by the 'stand patters' that rates beyond the necessary measure of protection were not objectionable because behind the tariff bill competition always reduced the prices and thus saved the consumer. But I pointed out in that speech what seems to me as true today as then, that the danger of the excessive rates was in the temptation they created to form monopolies in the protected articles, and those to take advantage of excessive rates by increasing to the extent of $41,000,000. Schedule J—flax, hemp and jute—the articles upon which there has been a decrease, enter into the consumption of the country to the extent of $22,000,000 while those upon which there has been an increase enter into the consumption to the extent of $84,000,000. In schedule as to wool, there has been no change. In sundries the duty has been decreased on articles that enter into consumption of the country to the extent of $1,179,000,000 and an increase on articles that enter into the consumption of the country, $101,000,000.

Wool Schedule a Mistake.

"With respect to the wool schedule I agree that it is too high, and ought to have been reduced, and that it probably represents considerable more than the difference between the cost of production abroad and the cost of production here. The difficulty about the woolen schedule is that there were two contending factions early in the history of Republican tariff. Wool growers and woolen manufacturers and that finally many years ago they settled on a basis by which wool in the grease should have 11 cents a pound and by which allowance should be made in the shrinkage in the differential on wool manufacturers. The percentage of duty was very heavy—quite beyond the difference in the cost of production, which was not then regarded as a necessary or proper limitation on protective duties.

"When it came to the question of reducing the duty on wool, Mr. Payne and Mr. Aldrich found that in the Republican party the interests of the wool growers of the far west and the interests of the woolen manufacturers in other states were sufficiently strong to defeat any attempt to change the woolen tariff and that, had it been attempted, it would have beaten the bill reported from either committee. I am sorry this is so and I could wish that it had been otherwise. It is the one important defect in the present Payne tariff bill and the performance of the promise of the platform to reduce rates to a difference in the cost of production with reasonable profit to the manufacturer. That it will increase the price of woolen cloth, I very much doubt.

"There has been an increase, y the natural law of supply and demand in the price of wool all over the world as an agricultural product, but this was not due to the tariff because the tariff was not changed. The increase would, therefore, have taken place whether the tariff were changed or not. The cost of woolen cloths behind the tariff wall, through the effect of competition, has been greatly less than the duty, if added to the price, would have made it.

"There is a complaint now by the woolen clothiers and carded woolen people of this woolen schedule. They have honored me by asking in circulars sent out by them that certain questions be put to me regarding it, and asking why I did not veto the bill in view of the fact that the woolen schedule was not made in accordance with the platform promise. I ought to say in response to this point that all of them, in previous tariffs, were strictly in favor of maintaining the woolen schedule as it was.

Free Hides Section Explained.

"The tariff on hides was taken off because it was thought that it was necessary to the man who raised cattle and that the profits of the cattle business were sufficient without imposing a duty and that the duty imposed was likely to throw the control of the sale of hides into the hands of the meat packers in Chicago.

"In order to balance the reduction on hides, however, there was a great reduction in shoes, from 25 to 10 per cent; on sole leather 20 to 25 per cent on harness, 40 to 15 per cent. There also was a reduction in the duty on coal of 33 1-3 per cent. All counter vailing duties were removed from oil, naphtha, gasoline and its refined products.

"Lumber reduced from $2 to $1.25 it is said that there might have been more. But there were many business interests in the south, in Maine, along the border, and especially in the far northwest which insisted that it would give great advantage to Canadian lumber if the reduction were made more than 75 cents. Mr. Pinchot thought that it would tend to make better lumber in this country if a duty were retained. The lumber interests thought $2 was none too much, but the reduction was made and the compromise effected. Possibly, I was in favor of free lumber, because I do not think that if the tariff was taken off there would be such suffering among the lumber interests. In the controversy the House and Senate took a middle course and who can say they were not justified?

Increases on Luxuries.

"Moreover, it will be found that in schedule M, the increase covered only luxuries, perfumery and like articles; schedule N, wines and liquors—that are certainly luxuries and made subject in order to increase revenues, amounting to $462,000,000 and in schedule L—silks, which are luxuries certainly, $106,000,000, making a total of the consumption of those articles upon which there was an increase and which are luxuries of $179,000,000, leaving a balance of increase on articles which are not luxuries of value in consumption of only $272,000,000, as against $5,000,000,000 representing

THE DAILY ROUND UP.

THE PLEASURE OF HOPE.

(By Campbell.)

'Tis summer eve, when heaven's ethereal bow
Spans with bright arch the glittering hills below
Why to you mountain turns the musing eye,
Whose sunbright summit mingles with the sky?
Why do these cliffs of shadowy tint appear
More sweet than all the landscape smiling near?
'Tis distance lends enchantment to the view,
And robes the mountain in its azure hue.
Thus, with delight, we linger to survey;
The promised joy of life's unmeasured
scene
More pleasing seems than all the past hath been;
And every form that Fancy can repair
From dark oblivion, glows divinely there.

TORE HIS SKIN OFF IN SHREDS

Itching was Intense—Humor Spread from Hands to Body—Work Inter-

—Disease Resisted Treatment

BUT CUTICURA CURED HIM IN THREE WEEKS

"My trouble commenced about two years ago and consisted, at first, of an eruption of small pustules on my hands. These spread later to other parts of my body,
and the itching at times was intense, so much so that I literally tore the skin off
in shreds in seeking relief. The awful itching interfered with my work considerably, and also kept me awake nights. I tried several doctors and used a number of different ointments and lotions but received practically no benefit. Finally I settled down to the use of Cuticura Soap, Cuticura Ointment and Cuticura Resolvent Pills, with the result that in a few days all itching had ceased and in about three weeks' time all traces of my eruption had disappeared. I have had no trouble of this kind since. H. A. Krutskoff, 5714
Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill., November
18 and 28, 1907."

Ointment and Resolvent.

The agonizing itching and burning of the skin, as in eczema; the frightful scaling, as in psoriasis; the loss of hair and crusting of scalp, as in scalded head;

ringworm; the awful suffering of infants,

DANGER IN DELAY.

Kidney Diseases Are Too Dangerous for Santa Fe People to Neglect.

The great danger of kidney troubles is that they get a firm hold before the sufferer recognizes them. Health is gradually undermined. Backache, headache, nervousness, lameness, soreness, diabetes and Bright's disease, follow in merciless succession. Don't neglect your kidneys. Cure the kidneys with the certain and safe remedy, Doan's Kidney Pills, which has cured people right here in Santa Fe.

Albino Ortega, College Street, Santa Fe, N. M., says: "I am very grateful for the benefit I have received from Doan's Kidney Pills. For several years I had trouble from my back and kidneys. It was hard for me to do work on account of pains across my loins and quick movement aggravated my trouble. My rest was disturbed by a too frequent desire to the kidney secretions and the passages were scanty and painful. Public statements given by local people who had used Doan's Kidney Pills with benefit, induced me to try them. I found relief right away and by the time I had used one box my back was free from pain. My kidneys are now in a normal condition and I feel decidedly better in every respect. I have great faith in the curative powers of Doan's Kidney Pills."

TAFT WILL STOP AT LAS CRUCES

Will Make Ten Minute Address From Car Platform

FRIEND OF THE FILIPINOS

Governor so Regarded by the Officers of the Regular Army.

Special Correspondence of the New Mexican.

Las Cruces, N. M., Sept. 18, 1909. Editor Daily New Mexican:

Judge R. L. Young, acting president of the board of town trustees during the absence of Hon. Martin Lohman in the east, has appointed the following committee to take charge of the reception to President Taft, who will reach this place at 8 a. m., October 16th. Through Governor Curry's efforts the President will stop here for ten minutes and address our people: W. H. H. Llewellyn, Dr. R. E. McBride, Mark B. Thompson, Oscar Lohman, Harry Sims.

Judge Young will act as chairman of the committee, and from the action already taken it is clear that the reception to the President will be a success in every detail. Major George, U. S. A. military instructor at the college here, and Sheriff Felipe Lucero, assisted by a large number of deputies, with the aid of Town Marshal Ramon Nevarez, will have charge of the law and order part of the reception. Major George will have one hundred and fifty uniformed cadets (armed), and Captain Philip Dessauer of the national guard will have forty of his men in line to aid in the reception. It is now estimated that there will not be less than ten thousand people here at the reception. Hundreds of the people will go to El Paso, special trains on the Santa Fe taking the crowd there.

The First battalion of the Nineteenth U. S. infantry, under command of Col. D. A. Hunter, are here in camp, being from Fort Bliss and on a practice march. Last night a smoker was tendered the officers of the command and the following officers: Major C. J. Manley, medical department; Lieuts. J. J. Miller, C. H. Mason, R. B. Parker, S. C. Desobry, F. D. Terrell and A. G. Gutensohn. Lieut. Tillittson was officer of the day and could not be present.

Dr. McBride presided as toastmaster. The toast and responses were remarkably good, especially the responses of the noted colonel and the young officers. Isidor Armijo, Simms, French, Major Llewellyn and others made the welcome of the guests on behalf of our people a pleasant part of the entertainment.

In connection with the trip of the soldiers to this place, it has been decided that upon their return, in about ten days, from the trip which they will make further north, that the Women's Improvement Association will tender the officers a ball at the armory. A number of the ladies from Fort Bliss will be here at that time. A ball will also be arranged for the soldiers of the command.

Wednesday when the command marched down Main street they attracted general attention on account of their clean-cut appearance. Officers and men are bronzed and sunburned; they are as lean and active as trained athletes. The entire command and belongings, including wagon and pack transportation, ambulance and accommodations are on a war footing, and if they are a sample of the rest of the United States army the people may well be proud of them. Several of the officers are friends of Governor Curry and are warmly attached to him. One of the officers made the statement that Governor Curry was one of the very few Americans who had the confidence and respect of the Philippines.

INCIDENTS OF TAOS REVOLUTION.

Assassination of Governor Bent as Told By Mrs. Petra Beaubien Abreu of Rayado.

(Miami Valley Farmer.) Perhaps no woman has been more closely allied with the beginnings of American life in the Territory, than has Mrs. Petra Beaubien Abreu. She is our nearest ranch neighbor and in her and her family we found from the first most estimable congenial and lasting friends. Her father was Charles Beaubien, a French Canadian who was among those who came down into the Territory from Canada to found their fortunes and make their homes in this about to be acquired territory of New Mexico. They came by foot and on the flat boat down the Father of Waters and by stage and then by foot again. So Charles Beaubien with Guadalupe Miranda were the original grantees of the Maxwell Land Grant, of which the 18,000 acres of the Miami ranch was but a small parcel. In 1846 Beaubien purchased Miranda's interests from him and years later sold the whole Grant to Lucien Benjamin Maxwell, who married his daughter.

These historic characters lived at Taos and the Beaubien home was one of refinement and culture. Charles Beaubien was chief justice in the territorial courts at the time the incident occurred which I am about to relate, as I heard it from Mrs. Abreu's own lips.

She was a child of three years when the Indians in their village three miles from Taos, rose up in rebellion against the Americans, who had come in and, as they deemed it, encroached upon their hunting grounds. This was in 1847, when the Indians took it into their heads to kill off all the Americans.

They came into Taos in their war paint and paraphernalia and began to strike right and left and prosecute their terrible work of destruction. The first victim was the sheriff, Mrs. Abreu's brother, Narciso Beaubien, a boy of twenty, who had attended college for seven years and had been out of school but four months, was another victim. He with his companion, Cornelia Begill, were about to cross the street to see what the bloody band were doing with the sheriff, when a neighbor lady told them not to go, that they were killing the sheriff and would kill them too. They refrained from going and instead entered the Beaubien yard and passed back to the barn. When they came out again, they too were met, and both were cruelly murdered and scalped. Mrs. Beaubien, who was once so justly proud of her young, college-bred son, with prospects of all that life could mean to him with his ability, was now burdened with the deep gloom of grief that never lifted itself from her life. Her husband was away from home attending court at Santa Fe. The Indians were after his scalp too. It seems they sought out mainly the chief men of the town.

Among those killed was Governor Bent, who was the first American governor of New Mexico. His scalp was taken while he was yet alive and as the blood streamed down over his face he put his hands over the painful, bare scalp.

The Indians proudly carried their trophies, these scalps, around on sticks in a wild war dance about the town and back to their village. But their mad course came to an end, troops from Santa Fe arrived. The Indians took refuge in their church with their stolen plunder and succeeded in baffling the general in his attempt to capture them for three days. Then he set fire to the church and they had to surrender. Now his work of revenge began.

He first hanged seven Indians outright. He then piled the stack of plunder, which they had wrested from the governor and other unfortunate ones, into two wagons. Mrs. Abreu described these wagons as being the largest, heaviest wagons ever made, having immense frames and high sides and wheels. To these loads General Price hitched Indians and made them pull them back to Taos a distance of three miles.

These Pueblo Indians, now the most civilized and industrious tribe, never again made the Americans any trouble. There is evidence, however, that they burned with revenge, as the Beaubien family found out, that they went to another village, lying between Taos and Santa Fe, and tried to persuade those Indians to assault and scalp Mr. Beaubien on his way home from court at Santa Fe. But these Indians said: "No, you do your own killing."—Mrs. H. N. Mikesell.

IMPORTANT TO SHIPPERS AND BANKERS.

The last legislative assembly passed a uniform warehouse receipt law which has found favor in many other commonwealths. At its next session it will be asked to add to the uniform negotiable instruments law passed two years ago, and the uniform warehouse receipt law, a law providing for uniform bills of lading by railroads, at least for traffic within the Territory, while Congress will be expected to pass a similar law for interstate traffic.

One of the most important matters that came before the convention of the American Bankers' Association at Chicago is that of an improved form of bill of lading to be issued by transportation companies. This is a matter that has been in controversy for a long time and is complex and difficult to deal with, on account of the diversity of interests concerned and the divided jurisdiction of states and nation with reference to liability in transportation. The bill of lading issued by a railroad company is primarily for the protection of the shipper, whose property is taken from transportation and delivery at destination. It is his title to the property and is intended to guarantee its possession to him or his consignee, after safe and expeditious transportation, in unimpaired condition. It is to be delivered only to the holder of this title or on his authenticated order.

It is obvious that this is an important matter to shippers of merchandise and those to whom it is consigned as purchasers or agents, and that the liability of the carrier for the safe and uninjured condition and the prompt and certain delivery of the goods needs to be clearly defined and readily enforceable. This makes the laws defining the liability, whether for loss or injury or failure to deliver at the right place and to the proper party, a matter of the utmost consequence. Transportation may be wholly within the jurisdiction of a state or partly within that of one and partly of another. Laws defining carrier's liability and prescribing forms of bill of lading, where the latter is done at all, differ in different states, and it is clearly desirable that they should be uniform. One of the tasks upon which the commission on uniform state laws has been engaged for two or three years is that of framing a bill of lading that shall be accepted in all the states.

The matter is complicated with the regulation of interstate commerce by the federal government, and an effort has been made to secure Congressional action prescribing a form of bill of lading to be used in interstate traffic. But thus far the railroads have made their own forms to be issued to shippers and formally accepted by them, conforming of necessity to distinct legal requirements as to liability, but circumventing and limiting this by force of contract agreement so far as practicable in their own interest. A new uniform bill, that is, uniform for the various railroads, but not conforming to any uniform legal prescriptions has been adopted and put in use within a year, but it was not accepted by shippers without considerable objection on account of various limitations upon liability that were considered unfair. It, however, had the sanction of the interstate commerce commission, which held that it had no authority to prescribe or require any particular form, and was assented to by various commercial bodies.

But there is a third party that has a very great interest in this matter of bills of lading and the liability upon them, which has not heretofore been sufficiently consulted and is far from satisfied with the present form and the legal standing of the subject. The bill of lading has become a credit instrument of vast importance in conducting the business of the country. Banks take it as security for advances of money made upon drafts on the consignee of the property shipped. The real security is the property itself, and the bank holds the title, or should hold it, securely until the property is delivered and the draft is paid. The liability of the railroad for injury or loss, or serious delay, or for failure to deliver on time and in good condition, or to deliver at all to the right party or at the right place, is a matter that concerns the banking business very much, and it has found altogether too much risk in making advances on this kind of security. And yet its continuance is a necessity to the great network of commercial transactions which is constantly moving over the face of the country.

It is of quite as much moment to the banking interest as to the mercantile and transportation interests that bills of lading should be uniform, that they should comply with legal requirements, liabilities and obligations that are in substantial harmony, and that they should fairly and equitably insure the rights of all concerned. If all the parties concerned will be equally disposed to take their just share of the risk and accord to the others their full share of security, a way must be found for agreement upon legislation and upon the form of contract under which goods are transported and delivered and upon which advances of money are made by banks before they are executed. If the parties can thus agree, there will be little difficulty in getting legislation to accord with their requirements and safeguard their interests. If they cannot agree, it will be necessary to have the legislation and enforce a workable plan of involuntary co-operation.

THE WORKMAN IS KING.

Secretary of Agriculture Wilson is quite right when he says that the laborer of this day lives better than did Queen Elizabeth in Shakespeare's time. He has at his beck more luxuries, demands a greater variety of amusements, lives in more sanitary houses, has at his command better medical skill and wouldn't trade with any king or queen of three centuries ago if with the trade had to go the style of living in those days which by no means were the most benighted or the least progressive of history. In the cities at least, the workman eats meat three times a day, in most instances works only eight hours a day and devotes another eight to getting most out of life. He is beginning to look for homes with modern conveniences and his children may have a college education if they want it. In the smaller towns it is not unusual for him to own a horse and carriage and some of the better paid workmen are beginning to think of automobiles. He belongs to lodges that look after him in times of illness; carries insurance to protect his family in case of death and is thinking seriously of demanding old age pensions. This is the bright side of modern civilization, this upward trend in the mode of life of everybody, and it is as it should be. The laborer or working man deserves all that is coming to him and more. He is the real producer and should have the major share of the profit in his production. With the aid of machinery, the workmen of today produce manifold as much as did the workmen of Queen Elizabeth's time and who has the first right to the luxuries he produces except it be the producer himself. The workman is king and may he never abdicate his throne.

POSTAL SAVINGS BANKS.

President Taft advocates postal savings banks, the bankers of the United States in convention assembled condemn them. The fact that the opposition was expected discounts its force. Postal banks are a success in other countries; there is a demand for them in the United States; they give an opportunity to the government to do something for the people which will be of general benefit. As to the plea that it will concentrate more power in the office holders, it is the same objection that was urged against the government establishing postoffices. No citizen now-a-days would seriously advocate letting express companies or some other private concerns carry and distribute the mails, but that was done in all seriousness at first and much for the same reasons that postal savings banks are now being opposed. The issuing of money orders, is really a part of a postal savings bank system and yet, no one believes that the right of issuing money orders by the postoffice is concentrating undue power in the hands of the government or that it is being made an engine of political corruption or is doing what private enterprise alone ought to do.

The old guard at the national capital is thinning out. U. S. Treasurer C. H. Treat, a familiar figure to residents and visitors in Washington, has stepped out of office because of differences with superiors. The changes brought about by the Taft administration are much more radical than those that followed the inauguration of President Roosevelt. And yet, Taft is called a conservative and Roosevelt a radical.

The colored men of Taft, Oklahoma, are imitating the tactics of some of their white brethren and are driving the Caucasians out of their town. It isn't right, the white man doesn't like it, but who can blame the negro?

PUBLIC SCHOOL MANUAL.

The first Manual of the Common School Course of Study for the Public Schools of New Mexico is from press, having been compiled by Superintendent of Public Instruction J. E. Clark. It is only one, but thus far the most important, of a series of late publications which are an evidence that New Mexico's public schools are under modern management. The Manual will prove of great value to the teachers of the rural and village schools and it is for them that it is designed. It numbers more than 200 pages and is well indexed. Part One is devoted to general instructions to teachers as to daily program, examinations and promotions, special day programs, school buildings and assignments of text books. Part Two is devoted to the course of study including arithmetic, reading, language, geography, history, civics, physiology, hygiene, penmanship, physical training, spelling, drawing and manual arts, nature study, manners and morals, while Part Three has a splendid selection of memory gems; prescribes program for Flag Days, outlines the study of elementary agriculture and a history of New Mexico, gives the prices of text books; prints brief rules on how to keep well and avoid consumption and concludes with a list of books useful for a reading course. There is certainly a vast amount of information and of useful suggestions crowded into this volume which should be in the possession of every teacher. To Superintendent Clark, certainly much credit is due for compiling the book.

The following from the El Paso Herald, applies also to the hotel situation in Santa Fe:

"El Paso must avoid sanctioning any hotel plan that will simply result in introducing competition among the existing houses. We want a hotel to cost not less than $550,000 furnished, which will be a type to attract a class of patronage that now passes us by entirely. 'Such a house would not cut into the business of existing houses. 'It is high time for El Paso to organize this hotel project upon definite plans with the determination to carry it out on a big scale.

"There never was a better time than right now to finance a big hotel scheme for El Paso. Money is comparatively plenty and cheap in the east. The hotel business has been exceptionally good for a year past, and men in this line of business could now be induced to interest themselves in a proposition as certain as this."

In Senator Aldrich's state, the little bailiwick of Rhode Island, a fourteen year old high school pupil was stuffed into the air box of the school furnace and besides breaking a leg was fatally burned. It was merely done in the spirit of fun or hazing by his fellow pupils and might as well have happened in the west or in the south, but there the eastern newspapers would have called it an instance of typical wildness or depravity and in New Mexico, an instance of unfitness for schoolhood. It is true that hazing in school or college is still in a very undeveloped state in this Territory, attesting to its backwardness to adopt the ways of civilization, but in case schoolhood is granted, New Mexico will promise to learn the gentle art of hazing from West Point or Annapolis, where it is reported to have reached its highest development.

There was sufficient lull in the north pole controversy yesterday to permit the Associated Press to announce that former President Roosevelt shot a bull elephant and his son Kermit bagged five lions and three buffalo. After all, it is hard to say what is trivial or what is important in recording the history of today. The historian of a century hence may deduce greater lessons or give a better account of the civilization of today by referring to Roosevelt's African hunting expedition than he will from the diaries of Cook or Peary.

In Milwaukee yesterday, the President was introduced as a newspaper reporter who had attained the presidency. It may be many years before another reporter gets a chance to warm the executive chair, but reporters do attain astonishingly often high places in a political way and many is the man of political prominence whose first step on the ladder of success was a place on the reportorial or editorial staff of his home newspaper.

The success obtained in raising potatoes in the Estancia valley emphasizes the necessity of selecting the right crops. It is very probable that every portion of eastern New Mexico, where irrigation is out of the question, is adapted to some particular crop that will make an especially satisfactory yield and which therefore should be the staple crop of that section.

Logan, Quay county, in order to be quite up to date, has set next Monday as "Vaccination Day," when local physicians will vaccinate all school children. The schools have been closed down until the law is complied with in that respect. It is certainly the right spirit.

President Taft has exonerated Secretary of the Interior Ballinger from the charges made against the cabinet officer. The charges were absurd to begin with. In the second place the President could not have done anything else consistently. After appointing a man to his cabinet he must stand by him through thick and thin if facts and circumstances are all in his favor.

During the past fiscal year not a single passenger was killed on the Santa Fe system by accident, despite the fact that 12,000,000 passengers were carried and many of them several thousand miles. This is a remarkable record and attests to the careful handling of passenger traffic and the splendid management of the big system.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Rev. M. A. D. Ribera of Las Vegas, is a guest at the Claire.

George H. Van Stone is home from a business trip to Albuquerque.

A. W. Arnold, a railroad man from Elroy, Wis., is a guest at the Palace. W. L. Black and wife, and Claude Black of Stanley are registered at the Claire.

W. J. D. Loschmitt and Miss Vera D. Loschmitt of Buckman, are guests at the Claire.

W. H. Wilkerson of Denver, is in town seeing the sights. He is a guest at the Claire.

B. S. Phillips, lumberman from the Ramon Vigil grant, near Buckman, is stopping at the Normandie.

J. J. Murray of Orogrande, and Martin Teshblach of El Paso, mining men, are quartered at the Claire.

Mrs. Mark Ferguson of Pasadena, California, is among the sightseers in town. She is stopping at the Claire.

F. E. Osborne of Trinidad, is among the sightseers enjoying the attractions of Santa Fe. He is quartered at the Claire.

Mrs. Charles Behringer who has been visiting Mrs. C. E. Michaels in this city, has returned to her home at Las Vegas.

O. C. Watson, an insurance man from Pueblo, Colo., formerly of this city, is in on a business visit. He is quartered at the Claire.

Charles A. Beard, a member of the forest service at Washington, D. C., is in town accompanied by his wife. They are guests at the Palace.

Mrs. L. F. Nohl, wife of the Española merchant, spent the night in Santa Fe on her way home from the Estancia valley. She was accompanied by Miss Olo Gilbert of Moriarty. Both were guests at the Claire.

In yesterday's personals it was stated erroneously that Miss Antonia Tapia has secured a position as teacher in the school at Rowe. The new teacher is Miss Antonia Silva, daughter of Flavio Silva, assistant teacher at St. Michael's college.

Governor and Mrs. John Burke of North Dakota, were guests yesterday of Miss Geraldine J. Mulligan at Albuquerque. Governor Curry and Governor C. Burke had a pleasant meeting at the Alvarado. Mr. and Mrs. Burke had been visiting on the Pacific coast and last night passed Lamy on their way to Kansas City.

The En Avant Club will meet next Monday afternoon at three o'clock at the W. C. T. U. rooms, 105 Washington avenue, where they have arranged to hold their regular meetings for the ensuing year. Mrs. K. P. Patterson will open the study of "The Princess" by Tennyson, while current events and quotations from Tennyson by the members, followed by a presentation of the Bay View Reading Course will complete the afternoon's program.

During the last month there has been quite a round of "at homes" and birthday parties in Lilliputian circles of Santa Fe—all the little kindergartners of five and six years having been given birthday parties marking by the event the dividing line between their babyhood and childhood. The one given by little Harlowe Mayes in honor of her sixth birthday last week was the last one of the season. Those present besides the little hostess were Misses Thelma Blandy, Mildred Reingardt, Susie Norment, Almeda Norment, Kathleen Rolls, Katherine Van Stone, Frances Wilson, Katherine Andrews, Frances Andrews, Norma Fiske, Dorothy Linney, Mildred Creighton, Ina Pearl Barka, Dorris Barka, Frances Mayes, Masters Alan McCord, Fairfax Stevens, Tommy Van Stone, Irvin Hayden, Parker Wilson.

On last Wednesday evening Major and Mrs. R. J. Palen entertained the bankers of Santa Fe and the visiting bankers and their families with a reception. Full seventy-five guests were in attendance and enjoyed a very pleasant evening. The parlor which was used as a reception room was decorated in yellow, dahlias, nasturtiums and other flowers being used. The library presented a very pretty appearance the color effect being pink, a profusion of sweet peas, asters and phlox being used. In this room Mrs. Levi A. Hughes presided over the punch bowl while Mrs. S. S. Siga had in charge the coffee. Miss Hope Wiley and Miss Amelia McFie assisted. The dining room was tastefully arranged in white there being an abundance of lilies, roses and white phlox. Here Mrs. R. P. Ervien served the ice cream and Mrs. A. B. Renahan the salad. The following young ladies assisted: Miss Anita Bergere, Miss Juett Fall and Miss Richie Seligman.

On last Thursday evening a banquet was given at the Woman's Board of Trade library in honor of the visiting bankers in attendance at the New Mexico Bankers' Association. The ladies of the Board of Trade served the banquet and looked after the comfort of those present. The room in which the affair took place was beautifully decorated in white while the tables were decorated in pink, sweet peas and roses together with pink candelabra being used. After the toasts, which followed the banquet, the hall was cleared and dancing was indulged in. With Major Palen presiding as toastmaster, the following gentlemen responded to toasts: Judge John R. McFie, "The President of the United States;" Hon. T. B. Catron, "The Territory of New Mexico;" C. N. Blackwell of Raton, "The City of Santa Fe;" Mayor Jose D. Sena, "The

NIGHTMARE

No woman can be happy without children; it is her nature to love them as much so as it is the beautiful and pure. The ordeal through which the expectant mother must pass is so full of dread that the thought fills her with apprehension. There is no necessity for the reproduction of life to be either very painful or dangerous. The use of MOTHER'S FRIEND prepares the system for the coming event, and it is passed without any danger. This remedy is applied externally, and has carried thousands of women through the crisis with but little suffering.

W. C. T. U. NOTES.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN AND TEMPERANCE.

Some, though not all of the biographers of Abraham Lincoln have represented him as a moderate user of strong drink especially in his young manhood.

Enemies of temperance have tried to claim him as their friend and champion. The Personal Liberty League and some of the liquor papers have misrepresented his attitude and perverted his utterances on this subject.

It would not have been strange if he had partaken of strong drink even to excess at the beginning of his career. He was reared at a time and place unfavorable for temperance sentiment. The use of liquor was almost as common then as the use of tea and coffee now is. Nearly every country grocery store had sold it. It was much in evidence at every log rolling and house raising. It was thought that a harvest could not be reaped without aid from the demijohn. Scarce any sort of gathering political or social was complete without it. It was sometimes used in connection with religious gatherings.

It would therefore have been in keeping with the customs of the times for this popular young man to have indulged freely with his associates in the use of strong drink.

But we believe, and some of his biographers and most intimate associates have affirmed, that he never used it. Seemingly he was far ahead of the age in which he lived, on this question as well as many others. And no one who is at all acquainted with his career after he gained national prominence would deny that by precept and example he was a staunch champion of temperance.

It is claimed that while still a young man he entered into partnership with another in the grocery business and that the partnership was shortly dissolved at financial loss to Lincoln because he insisted that the firm should not deal in intoxicating drinks while his partner was equally determined that they should. We cannot now be positive as to this but we do know that as early as the year 1842 he delivered a temperance address in the Second Presbyterian church at Springfield, Ill., before the Springfield Washingtonian Temperance Society. This society was composed of total abstainers and it is quite likely that he was a member of it. In this address, which must have been nearly three-quarters of an hour in length, he spoke almost as radically as our modern temperance orators. He characterized temperance as a demon. He spoke of the naked and starving children of the drunkard and the woes of the drunkard's wife. He spoke kindly of the rum seller but in the same breath denounced his business. We also find this statement in the address, "Whether or not the world would be vastly benefited by a total and final banishment from it of all intoxicating drinks seems to me not now an open question. Three-fourths of mankind confess the affirmative with their tongues, and I believe all the rest acknowledge it in their hearts."

After referring in this address to the political revolution of 1776 he said, "Turn now to the temperance revolution. In it we shall find a stronger bondage broken, a viler slavery unumitted, a greater tyrant deposed—in it, more of want supplies, more disease healed, more sorrow assuaged. By it no orphans starving, no widows weeping; by it, none wounded in feeling, none injured in interest. Even the dram-maker and the dram-seller will have glided into other occupations so gradually as never to have felt the change, and will stand with all others in the universal song of gladness. And what a noble ally this to the cause of political freedom! With such an aid, its march cannot fail to be on and on, till every son of earth shall drink in rich fruition the sorrow-quenching draughts of perfect liberty! Happy day, when, all appetites controlled, all passions subdued, all matter subjugated, mind, all conquering mind, shall live and move, the monarch of the world! Glorious consummation! Hail, fall of fury! Reign of reason, all hail! And when the victory shall be complete—when there shall be neither a slave nor a drunkard on the earth—how proud the title of that land which may truly claim to be the birthplace and the cradle of both those revolutions that shall have ended in that victory!"

If he who spoke these stirring words were still living among us in the full vigor of all his powers how eloquently would he speak in behalf of this great reform and how mightily would he help in its consummation.

This is not however his earliest recorded utterance upon this great subject. Three years before this he volunteered to defend a company of fifteen women who had been arrested for "smashing" a wine parlor. In the course of his speech he said: "May it please the court, I will say a few words in behalf of these women who are arraigned before your honor and the jury. I would suggest, first, that there be a change in this indictment, so as to have it read The State against Mr. Whisky, instead of the State against the Women. It would be far more appropriate. Touching this question there are three laws: First, the law of self protection; second, the law of the statute; third, the law of God. The law of self-protection is the law of necessity, as shown when our fathers threw the tea into Boston harbor, and in asserting their right to life liberty and the pursuit of happiness. This is the defense of these women. The man who has persisted in selling whisky has had no regard for their well-being or the welfare of their husbands and sons. He has had no fear of God or regard for man; neither has he had any regard for the laws of the statute. No jury can fix any damage or punishment for any violation of the moral law. The course pursued by this liquor dealer has been for the demoralization of society. His grogery has been a nuisance. These women finding all moral suasion of no avail with this fellow, oblivious to all tender appeal, alike regardless of their prayers and tears, in order to protect their households and promote the welfare of the community, united to suppress the nuisance. The good of society demanded its suppression. They accomplished what otherwise could not have been done."

Such an utterance as this coming from an unscrupulous lawyer who would champion any cause no matter how good or bad would not mean very much. But when we remember how sincere and conscientious Lincoln was we must admit that the above was on expression of his real sentiment.

A few years ago a man who had one time accomplished his father, when he himself was quite young, to a banquet given in Lincoln's honor said: "Wine was served and all save Lincoln drained their glasses. His glass remained untouched and I noticed that he seemed to look at me with disapproval as I raised my glass to my lips and drank." This man further stated that when they came to say "good bye" Lincoln spoke to him last and putting a hand on either shoulder he said as he looked down upon him from his great height: "My young friend, do not put an enemy in your mouth to steal away your brains."

When a committee visited him at Springfield to officially inform him of his nomination for the Presidency, he remarked toward the close of the interview that he supposed that good manners required that he should furnish them with something to drink. A moment later in response to his direction a servant placed several tumblers and a large pitcher upon the center table. He then arose and said: "Gentlemen we must pledge our mutual healths in the most healthy beverage which God has given to man. It is the only beverage I have ever used or allowed in my family, and I cannot conscientiously depart from it on this occasion; it is pure Adam's ale from the spring."

Two of Lincoln's private secretaries, John Hay and William O. Stoddard said that he never used liquor and Robert Lincoln has declared that his father never used liquor or tobacco in any form. The latter also says that his father frequently preached the following sermon as he called it to his boys: "Don't smoke, don't chew, don't swear, don't gamble, don't lie, don't drink, don't cheat. Love your fellow men and love God. Love truth, love virtue and be happy."

On the very day of his assassination the immortal Lincoln said to Major Merwin: "We have cleared up a colossal job. Slavery is abolished. After reconstruction the next great question will be the overthrow and suppression of the legalized liquor traffic, and you know my head and my heart, my hand and my purse will go into this contest for victory."

Surely then it is slandering the character of this great man to quote him as a friend of the liquor traffic.

A Martyr to the Cause

By Emanuel Lissner

(Copyright, by J. B. Lippincott Co.)

I was sitting on the veranda of the hotel of Grant Center, when a boy came running up the street and shouted, breathlessly: "They're coming! They're coming! They're coming!"

At this cry the whole neighborhood awoke to life. Men hurried up from all directions, and the storekeepers came to their doors. Then more boys came down the street, all with the same cry: "They're coming! They're coming!"

"Circus in town?" I asked the landlord.

"No, no," he said. "But you wait and you'll see some fun. I've got to be going myself." With that he left me and disappeared into the hotel.

A wild shout arose in the street. I looked up and saw a strange group approaching. It consisted of an old man, tall and erect for all his long, white beard, and five or six severe-looking, elderly women. Walking slowly and solemnly, as if to the gallows, they came up to the hotel and turned and mounted the steps. Then the crowd, which had been gathering, made a rush and swung in behind them, almost treading on their heels. I kept my seat, and the whole procession, principals and all, brushed past me and entered the barroom of the hotel. Wondering what it could all mean, I arose and followed.

When I found myself inside I saw the landlord standing sedately behind the bar in an immaculate white linen coat. The old man and the women walked straight up to him. Without a movement of his face the landlord set out a black bottle and a glass. The old man took the bottle and poured out an unmistakable amber liquid.

"Fill it up!" called a man at my side, and "Fill it up!" "Make him fill it up!" echoed a dozen other voices.

By way of answer, the old man turned around and held up the glass, full to the brim. Then impressively he drank it off. Immediately one of the women handed him a glass of water, another patted him on the back, and the others sighed and groaned in helpless distress. And then they all marched slowly through the crowd to the door without paying the slightest attention to the hoots and cat-calls that went up on all sides.

After the crowd had melted away and the landlord had rejoined me on the veranda, I asked for an explanation of what I had just seen. He chuckled to himself for a long time before he could find voice to begin.

"Oh, that was nothing," he said at last. "That happens every day. That old fellow was Deacon Weatherbone, and those women belong to the temperance society. The Deke's a great temperance man, too—didn't seem so a while ago, but it's true, and that's how he came to take that drink. Kinder mixed up, I know, but I'll tell you all about it."

"You see, last election the Deke was hanging 'round outside the voting-place tackling everybody to vote the Prohibition ticket, and arguing something powerful. Well, along came old Bill Todd, and the Deke went up to him. Now, Bill had a few election drinks in him and he started arguing back at the Deke. A big crowd got around them, and that put Bill right on his dignity, and he threw it into the Deke for all he was worth."

"So after a bit, 'Deke,' he says, 'your man ain't got no show of being elected. Suppose I did vote for him, it'd be just wasting my vote.'"

"That made the Deke hot. 'Is that so?' he says. 'Well, who are you going to vote for, anyway?'"

"Me?" says Bill, throwing out his chest. "I'm going to vote for the party what'll elect the next president. I'm going to vote Socialist-Labor."

"Hub," says the Deke, "and you talking about wasting your vote."

"Then it was Bill's turn to get hot. 'Say,' he says, 'I'll tell you what I'll do. I'll bet you that we get more votes right here in Grant Center than you do. Bet you ten dollars.'"

"Sorry I never bet," says the Deke, "cause it's easy money."

"You're 'frail,' says Bill; 'but see ing it's you, I'll make you another proposition. If you get more votes in this town than we do, I'll swear off for a year, and if you don't, I want you to take a good, stiff drink of whisky at the hotel every day for the same time. Is it a go?"

"Well, the Deke thought it over and it seemed a sure way to get Bill to sign the pledge. He didn't suppose that more than two or three men in town would vote like Bill was going to; and, of course, he couldn't back down before the crowd. So he took the bet up. Then everybody passed the word 'round, and a lot of fellers went up and voted Socialist-Labor just to have a joke on the Deke. And when they came to count up, Bill's man was 'way ahead."

"The Deke has been paying up the bet like a man ever since. A lot of women always come along with him. They think he's a noble hero, and that whisky is something like boiling kerosene."

"But does the deacon think so?" I asked.

"Well," said the landlord, "I can't say. But it's surely affecting his memory. Why, sometimes he comes here in the morning and has his drink, and then forgets all about it and comes again after dinner."

CATS SELL AT HIGH PRICES.

Those of a Light Blue Shade in Color Are Now the Most Sought After.

Many triumphs in original color were seen at the great champion show of cats at the Crystal Palace, London, England.

With the modern cat beauty is to a large extent skin-deep—that is to say, coat and color reckon high, and high value is set on certain combinations of color which have only recently been achieved in their full measure.

The most artistic of all modern cats is the blue Russian, of which Lady Deedes has the pick and won most of the prizes. Her best exhibits are of a level light blue tint, absolutely unfecked by any other shade, and they possess that second desideratum—a copper-colored eye, which, to the regret of all cat breeders, is apt to fade into the common green with age.

In the case of the white smooth-haired cat the eye should be blue, and such an animal as the unbeaten Fulmer Snowstorm is a revelation in the breeder's power to get the pure colors he seeks.

Again, the silver tabbies, whose virtue depends on the blackness of the lines and the clearness of the marking between them, are preferred either with golden or green eyes.

So, in the self-color, "oranges," a very popular shade in rough-haired cats, the eye matches the coat very closely. But to the public, who do not deal in special color, the smooth-haired Russian blues with the copper eyes are the most remarkable example of modern color schemes and the highly artistic cat.

Some of these are worth $250, though the best are descended from a recent and blighted progenitor picked up for a song in a shop in Fulham, England.

Shell with Double Purpose.

A shell which will hit two marks will be tested this summer. The solid steel head of the shell contains a charge of high explosive, which is detonated on impact. Back of this is the shrapnel chamber, containing 120 bullets and a charge of high explosive. The shrapnel portion can be timed to explode above a body of troops, leaving the solid head of the shell to pass on and strike elsewhere.

Crowning the Queen in Brittany.

The little town of Pont Aven, known as "the Paradise of Painters," in the department of Finistere in the north of France, has been celebrating its famous flower festival, in which all that is most picturesque in Breton life is shown. The Bretons have many facilities for such a festival. They are conservative in the matter of their old customs and costumes.

The leading feature of the festival is the crowning of the queen of the Broom. She is chosen by popular vote, seated on a throne, and conducted to the church, for the Bretons are extremely religious. The queen has her court of maids of honor and all of them are dressed in the charming old world costume of the country.

Rattling Alarm Clock.

Among the various things which often make life hard to bear, not the least is the neighbor's alarm clock. This instrument of torture to the innocent has a right to be classed with the beginner's cornet and the German band, for while it is eminently effective in doing its duty it too often succeeds in waking everybody within earshot. Out of consideration for the sufferers and partly, no doubt, to fatten his own bank account, a German invented a rattling alarm clock.

This clock, instead of having a gong, has a contrivance on top like the mouthpiece of a telephone and at the back of this mouthpiece is a little hammer, vibrating on a spring. At the time set this hammer is put to work beating a tattoo on the diaphragm of the mouthpiece. This produces a continual and penetrating rattle which wakes the sleeper quite as effectively as the old style alarm and without disturbing persons in other parts of the house.

Lucky.

"Well," said the young man whose auto had turned turtle while he was eloping, "it might be worse; I'm not dead."

"Yes," replied one of his rescuers, "it might be a great deal worse, you are not married."—Houston Post.

CIVIL WAR OFFICERS LEFT.

Only Seventeen Now Remain Upon Active List of the Army—Number Fast Dwindling.

Chicago Record Herald.

The new Army Register for 1909 shows that only seventeen officers upon the active list of the army were engaged in the Civil War. They are as follows:

Major General John F. Weston, November 13, 1909.

Brigadier General George B. Davis, February 4, 1911.

Brigadier General Earl D. Thomas, January 4, 1911.

Brigadier General Charles Morton, March 18, 1910.

Brigadier General Charles L. Hodges, March 13, 1911.

Brigadier General Daniel H. Brush, May 9, 1912.

Brigadier General William L. Marshall, June 11, 1910.

Colonel Edgar S. Dudley, June 14, 1909.

Colonel Edward E. Wood (professor), September 17, 1910.

Colonel Owen J. Sweet, September 4, 1909.

Colonel John L. Clem, August 15, 1915.

Colonel James W. Allison, September 4, 1912.

Lieutenant Colonel William W. Robinson, April 21, 1910.

Major C. W. Walkley (chaplain), May 28, 1909.

Major Eugene O. Fechet, March 14, 1910.

Captain Daniel W. Arnold, September 11, 1912.

At the end of the current year the number of veterans in the regular army will be reduced to twelve; at the end of 1910 it will be reduced to eight; at the end of 1911 it will be reduced to four; and after 1912 the only veteran of the Civil War on the active list of the army will be "Little Johnny Clem, the drummer boy of Shiloh," who was carried on the back of the color sergeant at the head of the troops in a terrific charge, which has been described in every history of the Civil War. It would be difficult for those who have the pleasure of meeting Colonel Clem today to realize that he was ever carried on anybody's shoulders, but having been born in August, 1851, he was then only 12 years old, and has gained a good deal in weight since.

Colonel Clem was one of the youngest and perhaps the youngest soldier in the Union army. He was mustered in as a musician in the Twenty-second Michigan infantry, May 1, 1863, and served through the war. In the organization of the army he was made a second lieutenant in the Twenty-fourth infantry when he was only 20 years old, was transferred to the quartermaster's department in 1882, and reached his present rank of colonel and assistant quartermaster-general August 15, 1903.

A Traveling Man's Experience.

"I must tell you my experience on an east-bound O. R. & N. R. train from Peapack to Le Grande, Ore," writes Sam A. Garber, a well known traveling man. "I was in the smoking compartment with some other traveling men when one of them went out into the coach and came back and said, 'There is a woman sick unto death in the car.' I at once got up and went out, found her very ill with cramp colic, her hands and arms were drawn up so you could not straighten them, and with a death like look on her face. Two or three ladies were working with her and giving her whisky. I went to my suit case and got my bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy (I never travel without it), ran to the water tank, put a double dose of the medicine in the glass, poured some water into it and stirred it with a pencil; then I had quite a time to get the ladies to let me give it to her, but I succeeded. I could at once see the effect and I worked with her, hugging her hands, and in twenty minutes I gave her another dose. By this time we were almost into Le Grande, where I was to leave the train. I gave the bottle to the husband to be used in case another dose should be needed, but by the time the train ran into Le Grande she was all right, and I received the thanks of every passenger in the car." For sale by all druggists.

PRESIDENT AT TWIN CITIES.

the amount of articles entering into the consumption of the country, mostly necessities on which there has been a reduction of duties and to which the 550 decreases applied.

"Now this statement shows as conclusively as possible the fact that there was a substantial downward revision on articles entering into the general consumption of the country which can be termed necessities, for the proportion is $5,000,000,000, representing the consumption of articles to which decreases applied, to less than $300,000,000 of articles of necessity to which the increased applied.

"Now, the promise of the Republican platform was not to revise everything downward, and in the speeches which have been taken as interpreting that platform, which I made in the campaign. I did not promise that everything should go downward. What I promised was that there should be many decreases and that in some few things increases would be found necessary; but that on the whole I conceived that the change of conditions would make the revision necessarily downward—and that I contend under the showing which I have made, has been the result of the Payne bill.

No Attempt to Satisfy Free Trader.

"I did not agree, nor did the Republican party, that we would reduce rates to such a point as to reduce prices by the introduction of foreign competition. That is what the free traders want. That is what the revenue tariff reformers desire, but that is not what the Republican platform promised, and it is not what the Republican party wished to bring about. To repeat again what I opened this speech with—the proposition of the Republican party, was reduce rates so as to maintain a difference between the cost of production abroad and here, insuring a reasonable profit to the manufacturer on all articles produced in this country, and the proposition to reduce rates and to prevent their being excessive was to lessen the opportunity for monopoly and the suppression of competition so that excessive rates could be taken advantage of to force prices up.

"Now, it is stated that there was not a reduction in a number of the schedules where there ought to be. It is said that there was no reduction in the cotton schedule. There was not until the House and the Senate took evidence and found from cotton manufacturers and other sources that the rates upon the lower class of cotton were such as to enable them to make a decent profit, but only a decent profit and they were contented with it; but that the rates on the higher grade of cotton cloth, by reason of court decisions had been reduced so that they were considerably below those of the cheaper grades of cotton cloth, and that by under-valuation and otherwise the whole cotton schedule had been made unjust and the various items were disproportionate in respect to the varying cloths. Hence, in the Senate a new system was introduced, attempting to make the duties more specific rather than an valorem in order to prevent by judicial decision or otherwise a disproportionate and unequal operation of the schedule.

"Under this schedule it was contended that there had been a general rise of all duties on cotton. This was vigorously denied by the treasury department experts. At last the Senate in conference consented to a reduction amounting to about 10 per cent on all lower goods of cotton and this reduced the lower grades of cotton substantially to the same rates as before and increased the higher grades to what they ought to be under the Dingley law and what they were intended to be.

"Now I am going into the question of evidence as to whether the cotton duties were too high. It was a question of evidence which Congress passed upon after they heard the statements of cotton manufacturers, and such other evidence as was available. I agree that the method of taking evidence and the determination was made in a general way. There ought to be other methods of obtaining the evidence and reaching a conclusion that the evidence is satisfactory.

"Criticism has also been made of the crockery schedule and the failure to reduce that. The question whether it ought to have been reduced or not was a question of evidence with both committees of Congress took up and both concluded that the present rates on crockery were such as were needed to maintain the business in this country. I had been informed that the crockery schedule was not high enough and mentioned that in one of my campaign speeches as a schedule probably where there ought to be some increase.

BIG PURSES HUNG UP AT ALBUQUERQUE FAIR.

Ten Thousand Dollars in Prizes to Be Given Away on Race Track and Baseball Diamond.

Ten thousand dollars is to be given away in prizes at the Twenty-ninth New Mexico fair in Albuquerque next month. This is the biggest bunch of purses ever given away at a territorial fair and assuredly the best baseball, horse racing, livestock and crop exhibits ever gathered together in New Mexico. All to this the visit of President Taft, the Strobil airship, the southwestern marathon, the games of pushball by the troops of the United States cavalry, the mammoth automobile pageant, the industrial and trades parade, John L. Sullivan, the father of prize fighting, and there will be something to put it mildly.

Sheep men should not forget that a trophy silver cup has been offered at the territorial fair next month for the best exhibit of range raised Rambouillet rams. There will be half a dozen other fine prizes in the sheep exhibit and all sorts of trophies in the cattle show. The sheep and cattle exhibits at the Twenty-ninth fair are going to break all previous records in the southwest.

With seventy-five hundred dollars offered in prizes and the fastest horses in the west assured, the horse racing events at the Twenty-ninth New Mexico fair is going to be splendid. The Albuquerque track is in better condition than ever before, the long list of harness events is already crowded with entries and there are more coming in all the time.

THE MILITARY OCCUPATION OF NEW MEXICO

By COL. R. E. TWITCHELL

Santa Fe, N. M., Aug. 29, 1909.

The book of Colonel Twitchell on the Military Occupation of New Mexico, from 1846 to 1851, is a brilliant account of an almost unknown period. The word-pictures of the narrative are admirably illustrated by the pictures of the historic personages, places and documents connected with those stirring times. Commencing with the causes of the Mexican war, it traces the wonderful marches of Kearny and Doniphan from Missouri to Chihuahua, graphically describes the occupation of New Mexico and illustrates the whole with a series of portraits and views, which it has required years to collect. Brillancy of style, combined with conscientious care as to matter, produce a result of the utmost interest and value.
