Quote of the week:

"Action is the foundational key to success." –Pablo Picasso

We Won't Go Back Immigrant Youth Movements

In 2001 the Dream Act Bill was introduced in the U.S. senate. This piece of legislation would have given undocumented youth a path to citizenship. Immigrant youth rallied behind a DREAMer identity only to see the bill falling short several times of realization. This course explores the rise and development of immigrant youth movements from the last immigration reform in 1986 to the present. We will explore identity formations, social movements, and immigration policy that created a unique immigrant youth imaginary.
