A FAR CRY

The Story of a Happy Christmas

By MAGLYN DUPREC

(Copyright, 1936, by Short Story Publishing Co.)

It had not been easy for John Wellington, Sr., to select his Christmas gifts this year, although his old wife and one or two servants were all for whom he had to provide. It was Christmas eve, and he had been through bookstores, where handsomely bound volumes of story writers, philosophers and poets were displayed on every counter; through brilliantly lighted jewelry stores, where precious stones gleamed softly against backgrounds of rich velvet; through the perfumed shop of the florist, where delicate blossoms from famous greenhouses breathed forth a fragrance that gave the lie to the bitter wind and swirling snow outside. With each he had left a generous check, but always with an unsatisfied feeling that he was paying for something he did not care to have. Finally, he had been lured into a shop whose windows displayed an attractive lot of toys for small boys, and he had selected from its almost endless store of guns, wagons, wonderful animals and ear-splitting "wind instruments," a red tin horn, costing him only 25 cents.

This had given him more satisfaction than any purchase he had made for many times that amount.

The other parcels he had ordered delivered, but this he had carried himself, as though it were something too precious to be trusted to other hands. It was this that he unwrapped before the big, old-fashioned fireplace where his wife sat, as soon as he had come in from the storm-swept street. As he held it up where the red gleam of the firelight was caught on its rounded surface, a look of surprise swept over the gentle old face near him.

"Why, John, you never bought that! Surely they handed you someone else's purchase."

"No," he said, his face growing suddenly tender, "I bought it."

His wife, with a woman's quick instinct, divined the reason. She stepped nearer to him and laying her hand on his arm, looked at him with pleading eyes, saying: "But why, father?"

It was the first time she had called him father for a decade past, and there was a pitiful break in the old man's voice as he replied: "I bought it for a memory, mother."

That was the first time in ten years he had called her mother, and at the sound of the name, she, too, gave way—gave way, womanlike, leaning her head on his arm, and sobbing out a grief that had silently stolen the roses from her cheeks and the light from her eyes as the years had gone by. The old man's arm went round her lover-fashion, while his hand gently stroked her soft white hair. "There, there, mother, dear. The boy's not dead. I'll find him for you, if I have to hunt the world over. I was to blame," he said, with such infinite regret in his voice that the old wife reached up and drew his head down to her face and whispered: "Don't take it so, father. I know you thought you were doing the best for the boy when you sent him away to do or die on his own account, and somehow I feel tonight, as I have never felt before, that he may be found."

As she spoke, something in her tones made him feel that at last his wife had forgiven him entirely for the decision which, ten years before, had robbed her of her only child. Always before this he felt through all her gentle and kindly care for him, that tucked away somewhere in the silent recesses of her being there was just a little bitterness against him for the childless state he had brought upon her. But now that he, himself, had come to repent it, he knew beyond a doubt that the last drop of that bitterness had been swallowed up in a grief grown sweet from being shared.

He sat down in his great arm chair and looked up with misty eyes at his wife. "You're right, mother. I did think it best. I would rather have seen him dead than worthless, and I knew if he had worth, he would conquer himself, and rise without my aid, more of a man than with it." She put her arm around his neck and patted his cheek. "He has risen somewhere, father. I know it. He could not be your son and fail," she said, the loyalty and love of a lifetime lighting her face with a soft radiance.

He took up the tin horn from the table where he had laid it, and fondled it as if it were fraught with memories, instead of merely recalling them.

"It's ten years since he left," he said, "what a man he must be now—21 to-night. But I was thinking, when I bought this, of the time when he was such a little yellow-haired toddler, and almost drove us wild with just such a horn as this at Christmas time."

She took the horn from him, and looking dreamily at it, said: "We'll keep this, father; maybe Jack's boy will some time make these old walls ring with it at Christmas time as he made them ring, himself, so many years ago."

"God grant that he may!" said the old man. "Do you remember, mother how he used to come chasing down the street after me when I would start off to my work in the morning?"

"Yes, and how you would pick him up and carry him back to me," she said. "And do you remember the time we came near losing him, the day he ran away to hunt you in the city?"

"Who that saw you then could forget it, mother?" and he took her hand in his and drew her down to the chair beside him. They sat hand in hand in the silence, given over to voiceless memories of the past, only the ticking of the old clock keeping an accompaniment to their dreams of other Christmas Eves. They were sitting thus an hour later when a servant opened the door and said, respectfully: "There is a telephone call for Mr. Wellington."

"Can't you answer it, Mary?" the old man asked, loath to leave his comfortable chair and dreams.

"No, sir. It is especially for you. A long-distance call, I think."

"Who the deuce wants to talk to me from a distance," he said, as he rose and went to the telephone in the hall.

"Hello, who is this?" he asked, as he picked up the receiver. "Yes, this is John Wellington."

"A party in Chicago wants to talk to you," said the long-distance operator.

"All right, put him up. Who in thunder do I know in Chicago," he ejaculated to himself, pressing the receiver closer to his ear.

A peculiar wailing sound was all he heard, and a puzzled expression crept over his face. "Talk a little louder. I can't understand a thing you are saying," and he listened more intently. The wailing grew a little louder, but still it was nothing but an inarticulate wail, and for a moment the old man looked thoroughly disgusted.

"Confound it!" he shouted at last. "You sound exactly like a mewling infant. I don't know what you are saying."

Then a man's laugh was heard, followed by "A merry Christmas, father. You know exactly what he sounds like, but you don't know what he is saying," and there was another laugh, ringing joyful, as in his boyhood days, and the old man knew he had found his own.

"Jack, Jack, my boy, is that you?" he shouted, staggered by the unexpected joy of his sudden discovery.

"None other, father. I am what you just heard was another Jack, the second Jack Wellington, Jr. He has just arrived, and his command of English is somewhat limited, but he was doing his best to introduce himself, and invite you and grandma to Christmas dinner with him, and—"

"Oh, Jack, Jack, where have you been all these years?" sobbed the old man.

"Catch the Lake Shore Limited tonight, father, bring mother with you, and I'll tell you all about it when you get here. You've got time. You see, father, I've kept track of you and mother all along. I wasn't going to let anything happen to the old folks, and—" there was a catch in his voice, "I've got the right kind of a report to make, father. Never fear that."

The old man could scarcely contain himself as he listened, pressing the receiver closer and closer to his ear, as though he feared some bit of the precious news might escape him. Then he shouted: "All right, son, we're coming on the next train." He left the receiver dangling on the wall, and started on a run to the room where his wife sat, shouting as he went: "Mother, mother, it's Jack—our boy. Get ready, mother. I'm going to have a cab here in 20 minutes to catch the train for Chicago." She had risen with a wild look on her face, and had started to question him, but he shook his head, saying: "No, no, I'll explain later. Not got time now. We're going to spend Christmas with Jack and his boy."

He started for the 'phone again, and then dashed back, exclaiming: "Pack the tin horn if you don't pack another thing. Any child that can cry loud enough to be heard all the way from Chicago ought to have breath enough to blow that horn," and he dashed again to the 'phone to order a cab.

HOUSE-CLEANING BY LAW IN JAPAN

Japan takes the greatest possible care to prevent plague spreading within it, and in Kobe, at all events, every house is cleaned under the supervision of the sanitary authorities twice a year. A street is dealt with at a time, and everything is taken out of the buildings and piled in the roadway. Dust and refuse are carted away and burned, and the houses and their contents are thoroughly cleaned. In six months 56,013 homes were cleaned in Kobe alone.

HOLDS ODD RECORD

TEXAS PREACHER PROBABLE CHAMPION BIBLE READER.

Rev. Pittman, Baptist University Dean, Has Perused Pages of the New Testament 240 Times, He Says.

Ferris, Tex.—Rev. Dr. T. B. Pittman, pastor of the Baptist church here and dean of the Bible school of the Baptist university, has read the New Testament through each month for 20 years. The fact that Dr. Pittman is probably the champion Bible reader of the country was discovered by others. He had not even counted up his record.

The discovery came about in this way: Dr. Pittman frequently lectures before chautauqua and church gatherings upon religious subjects, and these addresses are seldom formal. Rather they are heart to heart talks upon what seems to be the most opportune subject. So it happened that he was urging upon an audience of theological students the importance of Bible study and advantages thereof. Incidentally he said that he had been reading the New Testament once each month for many years, and he had never failed to find upon each reading new interest and new truths. His statement rather surprised his auditors and they questioned him further. Then he counted up and reached the amazing total of 240 complete readings.

He reads an average of nine chapters daily, giving so much time each day to this form of study, which is his relaxation and amusement. It is a part of his daily life—a well-fixed habit that he enjoys just as many men take a half hour relaxation for their after dinner cigar.

Dr. Pittman is not a careless reader. He can repeat many of the chapters without reference to the text. He reads the book attentively each time, inquiringly following the lines looking for new points of interest.

Now and then, to give variety to this form of chosen exercise, he turns from the King James version to the original Greek, which he reads as easily as the English. Given the book, chapter and verse, Dr. Pittman will repeat the text of the more important section, and in his addresses he turns from one part of the Testament to another with great accuracy, never using indicators to guide him to references.

Dr. Pittman sometimes delivers lectures and addresses, but most of his work is among the fellow townsmen and the members of his community from the fields and cotton patches. He has recently been elected life pastor of the church over which he presides. This occurred at the close of his seventh year as pastor.

"This familiarity with the Scripture gives a man a vocabulary," says Dr. Pittman in defending his reading from a worldly point of view. "We have in this book the purest Anglo-Saxon and the choicest flow of words of the English language. Too, it develops the spiritual, an essential of the well-rounded character."

He is continuing his readings. Now he is upon the two hundred and forty-first investigation. One Bible has not stood all his readings, but to throw an old one away he would consider almost a sacrilege. The old brown stained Bibles have been retired and now adorn a shelf honored for their service.

PLANS NOVEL SHOW

EZRA MEEKER TO HAVE PIONEER EXHIBIT AT SEATTLE.

Exact Reproduction of Home Life in the Early Days of the Northwest Will Be Offered at the Coming Fair.

Seattle, Wash.—Ezra Meeker, pioneer of the '50s, will give an exact reproduction of home life during the early history of the northwest on the grounds of the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition next year.

Within a few days old "Dave," the ox that assisted to haul the Meeker prairie schooner from ocean to ocean over the Oregon trail, will be driven out to the exposition grounds, hitched to a plow and will assist his master in preparing the soft earth to receive a series of cabins which Meeker plans to build on the fair site.

Five cabins will be erected without the use of lumber or nails, and ash pits be built at convenient places on Meeker's acre on the exposition grounds, a vegetable garden will be planned, and by next spring there will be a flourishing pioneer colony on the campus of the state university.

A part of this exhibit will be an old blockhouse built in 1855, which still stands at Coupeville. There is to be a reproduction of the schoolhouse of 50 years ago, and John V. Meeker, 84 years old and known as "Uncle John" among the pioneers, will be in charge of the buildings. In early days John Meeker taught school and many of the text-books of that period have been preserved by the Meekers.

Ezra Meeker will try to interest the newspapers of Oregon in his pioneer exhibit and hopes to receive many relics of early days from old Oregon families. These relics will be exhibited in the cabins and at the close of the exposition returned to their owners. In the cabins will be shown how cloth was spun and woven and several old-time spinning wheels and looms will be in operation.

One cabin will be called the music hall, where several old melodeons will be used. These instruments were among the first to be brought to this coast. In early days the Oregon country comprised the vast territory of what is now the states of Oregon, Washington, Idaho and a part of Wyoming and Montana. From all these states will come relics of early pioneer life for the Meeker exhibit.

Meeker plans a number of special features during the life of the exposition and every few weeks there will be a big barbecue in which exposition visitors will be asked to take a part. There will also be clambakes, and Meeker expects to serve thousands of potatoes baked in the ash pits. Oxen will be roasted for the benefit of the visitors.

When this part of the country was under provincial government as far back as 1843 the seat of government was in a cabin. There is to be a reproduction of this same cabin, and the details of its construction will be gathered from old Oregon pioneers.

Over all the cabins will fly the American flag containing 26 stars, the number of states in the union at that period of the country's history.

Gyroscope as Compass.

Charlottenburg, Germany.—At a meeting of the League of German Naval Architects, Dr. Anschuetzkaempfe of Kiel exhibited a compass without a magnetic needle, which has just been invented. It is in the form of a gyroscope, which, when suspended in a certain way, always adjusts itself parallel to the earth's axis.

The invention is regarded as of great importance to ironclads, where the compass needle frequently is deflected by adjacent metal.

Too much talk weakens the strongest argument.

YOUTHFUL MONITOR AT WORK.

Little Sister's Error Corrected by Six-Year-Old Authority.

Six-year-old Marjorie and four-year-old Josephine were making their first transcontinental trip from New York to San Francisco—and, of course, encountered new marvels at almost every turn of the trip. But the crescendo of their ecstatic outpourings was reached when they saw their first Indian families—braves, squaws and papooses.

"Oh-h-h!" sighed Josephine, gazing wild-eyed at the moccasined, gaudily blanketed squaws, "ain't those squashes just splendid, though!"

Marjorie's equally deep admiration was momentarily quenched in her feeling of responsibility as elder-sister monitor, and she eyed Josephine severely as she admonished:

"They ain't squashes, Josephine; they're squabs."

INVALID'S SAD FLIGHT.

After Inflammatory Rheumatism, Hair Came Out, Skin Peeled, and Bed Sores Developed—Only Cuticura Proved Successful.

"About four years ago I had a very severe attack of inflammatory rheumatism. My skin peeled, and the high fever played havoc with my hair, which came out in bunches. I also had three large bed sores on my back. I did not gain very rapidly, and my appetite was very poor. I tried many 'sure cures' but they were of little help, and until I tried Cuticura Resolvent I had had no real relief. Then my complexion cleared and soon I felt better. The bed sores went very soon after a few applications of Cuticura Ointment, and when I used Cuticura Soap and Ointment for my hair it began to regain its former glossy appearance. Mrs. Lavina J. Henderson, 138 Broad St., Stamford, Conn., March 6 and 12, 1907."

LID IS ON.

"Aren't you almost ready for church?"

"I'm sorry, but something dreadful has happened. I can't go to church to-day."

"For heaven's sake, what has happened?"

"The cook is wearing one just like mine!"

Hoodooed.

A poor devil asked for alms. The inquisitive man questioned him. After a few interrogations he said to his companions: "Boys, don't give him a cent; he's a fraud." The beggar replied: "Gents, I am under a hoodoo. I'm an unlucky man. I do believe if I were to seize time by the forelock it would come right out and leave me as bare as a barber's pole." Then they all chipped in.

NATURE BUSY.

A vast amphitheater, the sweet smell of the fresh earth, dampened by the night's shower, the central spot a thriving new town, its shops humming, trains running north, east and south; the peaceful homes of many settlers dotting the landscape, and high above, rising tier upon tier, the majestic mountains forming the altitudinous circle, each peak and crag glistening in the early morning sunlight with snow crystals, sparkling like diamonds, each ray direct from nature's studio. This was the scene that presented itself to the inhabitants of this valley yesterday morning, as the first rays of the sun kissed the mountain tops, and was calculated to inspire the beholder with awe and make him more ready than ever avow that man's efforts at imitating nature's handiwork are hollow mockeries, lacking the divine essence of being.

They are even denied the privilege of voting, unless they go to San Marcial. The only interest they have in Socorro county is to pay taxes—an interest they would not lose in any country.

The rapidly increasing Asiatic immigration to the Pacific coast states is becoming a burden and a menace to the residents of those states. The wages for which the Asiatic is willing to work is so far below the American standard of living that we see the yellow man gradually, but surely, replacing the white. Most, if not all, of our labor troubles during the past quarter of a century are due to the class of immigrants that have come to this country. We put up the bars to keep out cheap goods, on the plea that our laborers need protection, and open wide our doors to the pauper labor of Europe and Asia. A business man would feel quite safe, no doubt, after having fastened his windows at night upon going home and leaving the front door unlocked.

Better Not Get Dyspepsia

If you can help it. Kodol prevents Dyspepsia, by effectually helping Nature to Relieve Indigestion. But don't trifle with Indigestion.

A great many people who have trifled with indigestion, have been sorry for it—when nervous or chronic dyspepsia resulted, and they have not been able to cure it. Use Kodol and prevent having Dyspepsia.

Everyone is subject to indigestion. Stomach derangement follows stomach abuse, just as naturally and just as surely as a sound and healthy stomach results upon the taking of Kodol.

When you experience sourness of stomach; belching of gas and nauseating fluid, bloated sensation, gnawing pain in the pit of the stomach, heart burn (so-called), diarrhoea, headaches, dullness or chronic Ured feeling—you need Kodol. And then the quicker you take Kodol—the better. Eat what you want, let Kodol digest it.

Ordinary pepsin "dyspepsia tablets," physics, etc., are not likely to be of much benefit to you, in digestive ailments. Pepsin is only a partial digester—and physics are not digesters at all.

Kodol is a perfect digester. If you could see Kodol digesting every particle of food, of all kinds, in the glass test-tubes in our laboratories, you would know this just as well as we do.

Nature and Kodol will always cure a sick stomach—but in order to be cured, the stomach must rest. That is what Kodol does—rests the stomach, while the stomach gets well. Just as simple as A, B, C.

A new grader has been received by W. C. McDonald, and will be used in grading streets, roads, etc.

It had been reported that scarlet fever was prevalent at Capitan; but we are reliably informed this week that the report is not true. The report grew out of a severe case of tonsillitis, which at first was thought to be scarlet fever.

"Uncle" Tom McGravy, a well known character at Capitan for a number of years, died at the Soldiers' Home in Washington City a few days ago. Deceased was born in Ireland about seventy years ago, came to this country while a young man, enlisted in the Union army and served throughout the civil war.

Sheriff Stevens returned Saturday night from Clifton, Arizona, and drove to Lincoln the following day. He had in custody Antonio Perez, jointly indicted with Manuel Sanchez, mention of whose capture at Las Cruces was made in these columns three weeks ago. These men are accused of the crime of rape, alleged to have been perpetrated at Carrizozo something like two years ago. Their capture is not only important in itself, as to their probable punishment, but other developments are expected from matters they are said to be willing to divulge.

W. C. McDonald returned last Tuesday from Denver.

Martin L. and Frank Goodin were up Saturday from the Three Rivers country.

Mr. and Mrs. Cruikshank went to El Paso Wednesday to meet the former's mother.

Q. Saddler, special agent of the El Paso & Southwestern, was in Carrizozo Saturday.

O. P. Humphrey is slightly indisposed this week, suffering from a severe cold or grip.

Attorney H. B. Hamilton came up from Lincoln Saturday, and left that evening for the territorial capital.

Mrs. J. F. Kimbell returned Wednesday night from a week's visit to relatives and friends at Dawson.

George Spence, Jr., returned yesterday morning from Estancia, where he had gone to purchase a flock of sheep.

Ira O. Wetmore left Sunday night for Santa Fe, where he is a more or less interested spectator of the proceedings of the 38th Legislative Assembly.

W. P. Chisum, Grand Masonic Lecturer of New Mexico, will be here tomorrow and meet with the Carrizozo lodge at night. Mr. Chisum lives at Roswell.

Johnnie Roberts returned Saturday from Click, Texas, where he went last October. Johnnie says little, but understand—it's hard to stay away from New Mexico.

J. H. Canning returned Wednesday from Santa Fe, where he spent a week hob-nobbing with the territorial solons. Mr. Wetmore, who went up later, is also expected to return today.

W. L. Gumm's residence on his homestead, one mile east, is nearing completion. The walls are built of adobe, and when roofed over and finished inside will be a most comfortable dwelling.

Ray E. Hall left Monday night for Wichita, Kansas, where he has a lucrative position with a loan and trust company. His friends, while regretting his departure, wish him success and happiness in his new home.

Albert Ziegler left Friday night of last week on a trip east, going by way of Trinidad, Colorado, to visit his family. He expects to spend several weeks in the east, purchasing a large stock of spring and summer goods for Ziegler Bros.

County Surveyor Theurer has this week surveyed a road 4 miles long, running from the NE corner of section 31 to the NW corner of section 36, township 7, range 11. The road, as surveyed, will be 66 feet in width, and will afford means of egress and ingress to the settlers northeast of town.

General Supt. Hawkes and Division Supt. Morris of the Southwestern passed through on their private car to El Paso Monday. Mr. Hawkes had been east, and was returning home.

Victor E. Haggquist, representing the El Paso Times, spent two or three days here this week. Mr. Haggquist was securing data for a write-up of Carrizozo, which is to appear soon in the Times, and also gathering subscriptions for his paper.

Clarence Spence is making preparations to erect a brick residence on the Lacey addition, adjoining on the north. The stone for the foundation is on the ground and work will begin at once. We understand it is to be a 7-room, two story building.

M. L. Moore passed through yesterday from Fort Stanton to Dawson. Mr. Moore has been in the government employ at Fort Stanton for the past five years, but now goes to Dawson to accept a position in the fuel company store. His family will remain at Capitan for a short time.

For Fat Hens or Fryers, call on O. P. Humphrey.

Henry Peppin came up from Lincoln yesterday. He had gone there to look after the affairs of his deceased mother, whose death occurred on the 11th inst. Mr. Peppin started last night for Dawson where he has been employed in the big store of the company at that place the past three years.

Sergeant E. Babcock returned Monday night from El Paso, where he had gone to receive his discharge from the army, after eleven years' service. Mr. Babcock was in charge of the recruiting at this point as long as it was open, and during that time filed upon a homestead south of town. He now intends to make this his home and devote his attention to farming.

F. M. Rhomberg was up from Alamogordo this week. Mr. Rhomberg established the Pioneer Jewelry Store at this place about two years ago, at the same time conducting a similar business at Alamogordo. Last year he sold his business here to J. R. Humphrey who now conducts it, and just recently he also disposed of his Alamogordo establishment and will depart soon for California, his home for the future.

ALASKAN DOG TEAM

SAN FRANCISCO WOMAN DRIVES NOVEL TURNOUT.

Devotion of One Little Woman to Her Pets May Be Means of Introducing an Entirely New Mode of Travel.

San Francisco.—No one who has ever known and loved a dog, and there are comparatively few of us so unfortunate, can wonder at the devotion of one sweet little woman to hers. It may be the means of introducing a new and entirely unique mode of travel in San Francisco. Mrs. Clarence Hannum, after living in Alaska long enough to become attached to her fleet-footed dog team, could not bear to leave it behind her to the doubtful mercy of new masters, who might not only overwork and underfeed them, but might even separate them and place them among new teams, where, unless they proved themselves better fighters than the combined strangers, they would probably be torn limb from limb; so she brought them down here to San Francisco with her over a year ago.

Only those who loiter or speed through the late afternoons along the moost unused and picturesque little paths at the extreme westerly portion of Golden Gate park have ever encountered this quaintest and most novel of equipages ever seen in any park anywhere. Even the monarchs of the road, the gaudiest, loudest and speediest of automobiles, hardly receive a passing glance when the dog team can be seen. To a long, low, little red wagon, almost identical with a child's coaster, so dear to the heart of the average small boy, are hitched these four beautiful dogs, tandem fashion, while sitting sidewise on the coaster, one hand on the brake and the other holding the long whip of the arctic driver, is their proud and devoted mistress.

Mrs. Hannum had no idea of using the dogs for driving purposes when she first brought them to the city, but after she had been here awhile she was dismayed to find that she could not possibly exercise them in the usual manner that city dogs are exercised, by either a walk about the streets or a ramble in the parks, as the minute they find themselves at liberty they will unite their forces against any other dog who might chance to cross their path and tear him to pieces. So she determined that the only way to exercise them properly and, at the same time keep them, as well as herself, beloved by the neighbors, was to literally and figuratively keep them in harness, so the little cart was ordered and the harness brought into usage.

Bruin, the beauty of the team, a pure-blooded Siberian husky, which Mr. Hannum brought from Siberia, has won a number of trophies for his owners, ranging all the way from elaborate cups to blue ribbons. His tail curls up over his back like a great plume, almost reaching his neck. No one who has seen him can doubt that he is well named for his forebears, whom he so strongly resembles.

Another strange trait, strongly convincing that he is only a recent member of the dog family, is the fact that he does not know how to bark. As his mistress so aptly explained to me: "He never says a word, unless to give that strange howl you heard when I loosed him, his glad howl, and an angry growl when he is displeased."

The usual length of the drive is two or three miles. Every day Mrs. Hannum takes her pets down to the beach, where they all enjoy a swim, then in the late afternoon for the drive, then home to their well-earned dinners, after which they are at leisure to enjoy themselves at will.

NAMED MINISTER TO HONDURAS.

Massachusetts Man Promoted as Result of Good Work.

Boston.—Philip M. Brown of Woburn, Mass., has been made minister for the United States at Honduras, with a yearly salary of $10,000.

Mr. Brown was born in Hampden, Me., in 1875, but when he was ten years old his parents moved to Woburn, where he was educated in the public schools. He afterward attended Williams college, from which he was graduated in the class of '98. Shortly after completing his course at Williams he went to Turkey, where he served as an instructor in Roberts college, Constantinople.

While he was in Turkey his attention was turned to the diplomatic service and in 1900 he resigned from the faculty of Roberts college to become assistant to Lloyd C. Griscom, who was charge d'affaires of the American legation there. Mr. Brown was afterward made second secretary of the legation, and in 1903 he was appointed secretary of the legation to Honduras and Guatemala. Mr. Brown's work in Central America attracted favorable comment from his superiors in the diplomatic service and in 1906 he was made secretary of the legation and also consul general to Roumania and Servia.

The new minister to Honduras speaks several languages fluently and is well qualified to fill the position to which he has been appointed.

Why Not?

Why may not a goose say thus: "All the parts of the universe I have an interest in: The earth serves me to walk upon, the sun to light me; the stars have their influence upon me; I have an advantage by the winds and such by the waters; there is nothing that yon heavenly roof looks upon so favorably as me. I am the darling of Nature. Is it not man that keeps and serves me?"—Montaigne.

Powder Proof.

Miss Genée, the dancer, at a ladies' luncheon in her honor in New York, said:

"I am glad to see that American women are not using powder in the ridiculous manner that prevails abroad. Over there the powder is, really, laid on quite too thick."

"They say a London man remarked the other day to a friend:

"But if it was pitch dark, and she said nothing, how can you be sure that you kissed your wife's cousin by mistake?"

"It was," the other answered, "a different brand of powder."

CURE

EDGAR R. LEWIS HAS PRACTICALLY CORNERED SUPPLY.

Million Dollars' Worth of the Stock Shut Up in His New Bedford, Mass., Stores—Business is Sort of Gamble.

New Bedford, Mass.—A million dollars' worth of whalebone, practically all the whalebone in the world, will in a few weeks be stored in the warehouses of William Lewis & Son, on Rodman street.

This fortune in whalebone is controlled by one man, Edgar R. Lewis, and if the whalebone manufacturers of the world want any of it they will have to come up to the captain's office and settle, for on top of the fact that for a year over 150,000 pounds of the bone has been on hand in this city with hardly a transaction, comes the announcement to the whalebone manufacturers that practically all the whaling merchants have agreed not to send their steamers to the Arctic ocean next year.

This will allow the present large stock of whalebone to be worked off, and the whaling grounds will get a rest.

These grounds in the Arctic ocean have been visited for more than 50 years, season after season. The whales have been chased hard and often. Undoubtedly some of the whales are in the ocean to-day that were there when the first whaling craft dared to pass into the Arctic from Behring straits.

The first vessels that entered the Arctic found the whales easy prey. With the advent of the steam whaler, the bowheads grew gradually more timid. Each succeeding year nowadays the bowhead has been found further and further to the eastward, nearer to the ice packs, where he is harder to get at.

The Crozetts grounds in the Indian ocean are again supplying good catches. The whales deserted there some years ago, and so the whalers gave up going there. Now the whales are coming back. Delagoa bay, on the south coast of Africa, a former famous whaling ground, will probably be found barren by the bark Allee Knowles, which is to visit there on her way to the Crozetts. The bay is the pathway now for big ocean-going steamers.

While the catch of the Arctic whalers the past season is the smallest for several years, there will be actually more whalebone in first hands than has been the case in some time. Most of the catch of last year is on hand in the storehouses in this city.

The stock of over 200,000 pounds of bone could be easily disposed of at a medium price, say $3.50 per pound, but with the decision of the agents not to send their vessels to the Arctic next season, and with only the comparatively small quantity to be caught by the whales in the southern oceans, the holders think the bone worth more money, possibly rising five dollars per pound, and the market is stagnant.

The whalebone business, both catching and holding for a rising market, is a sort of gamble. In some years when the stock has been low the merchants have held their bone so that the market would not be cleaned out, and have later been obliged to sell it at a lower price than they could have had.

But now, the whalebone king, E. R. Lewis, has control of all the bone, and he can dictate his own prices. The price question has, in fact, been responsible for making Mr. Lewis price arbiter of the trade, for, having found competition unprofitable, the whaling agents have settled down to shipping their catch to Mr. Lewis and letting him dispose of it for them.

A small army of scrapers is constantly kept on hand by Mr. Lewis, for the bone has to be scraped frequently to prevent mould.

A small trading schooner will probably be sent north to pick up the trade bone from the natives, should no whaler visit the Arctic ocean. The trade bone is got cheap by exchanging knives.

GIRL CLIMBS HIGH MOUNTAIN. Colorado Maid Ascends Long's Peak, the American Matterhorn.

Attired in overalls instead of skirts, pretty Emily Boynton of Longmont, Col., aged 13, has climbed the dizzy heights of Long's Peak—the American Matterhorn. The feat is regarded as a notable one, inasmuch as several men and women have lost their lives in the ascent. One of the latest victims was a young college man who slipped into a crevice, and his body was never recovered. In another instance a Boston woman lost her way on the trail and froze to death in a snow storm.

The altitude of Long's Peak is 14,271 feet. The real climb is the last 5,000 feet. Above the Chasm lakes the trail is narrow, and at one point, on an exceedingly narrow ledge, it is necessary to climb around what is known as "Danger Rock," which affords but a scant place to hold to in so doing.

Emily Boynton was accompanied on her ascent of the peak by her father, editor of the Longmont Ledger, and her sister. All of them are experienced climbers, and claim that there is no danger to the climber who possesses steady nerves. On another occasion Emily accompanied her father on a trip to the Chasm lakes.

To the dismay of her mother, little Miss Boynton insists upon wearing the overalls, in which she does her climbing, much of the time around her home. As she runs about, often with her hands thrust into the pockets of the overalls, her mother's protests invariably meet with the response that they are so much more comfortable than skirts.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

OF INTEREST TO HOME-SEEKERS AND DRY FARMERS.

In his annual report made public today the secretary of the interior in the course of a general discussion of various phases of the problems now presented by the disposition of the public domain to homeseekers makes some suggestions of deepest interest to homeseekers and dry farmers. Under the heading "Desert Lands and dry Farming" the secretary says:

The developing of dry farming and the extension of irrigated areas has brought under cultivation many thousands of acres of the public domain that hitherto were considered practically worthless. It is therefore necessary to carefully consider how the remaining portions of the public domain should be used. I think it clear that the remaining lands should be classified in accordance with the general plan outlined in the report of commissioner of the general land office. Under such a classification the government could readily provide means for the disposition of these lands in such manner as to afford the homemaker the opportunity to acquire the necessary kind and quantity of land. The homestead law is not applicable to much of the balance of the public domain. If the land is irrigated a much less amount than 160 acres may be required. If it be a dry-farming section, more than 160 acres may be required. It is probable in certain sections, where dry-farming is feasible, that residence upon the land itself will not be possible because of the absence of potable water. It may thus be necessary and wise to permit the cultivators of such areas to live in communities some miles distant from the farms and base final proof upon cultivation and actual residence in the neighborhood. In other words, it is unwise to attempt to apply to these areas now under consideration the laws that were applicable to a totally different kind of lands.

Another great advantage of such a classification would be the possibility of classifying grazing areas in accordance with the conditions and needs of special communities.
