Local Readings.

Mr. Easley is still affected with the swelling in the head the effects of the blow from the base-ball.

The pump at the Central has been fixed and the concentrator is running in full blast.

Very little coal is being shipped at present. The reason of dullness amongst the coal miners is likely to continue until September.

The green grass—the green trees, the fragrant flowers alas, where are they. Springtime should bring all these in this Italian climate.

The three saloons that took out a license are all running in full blast, they are all doing a fair business, and get a good trade.

G. W. North, was severely burned on the arm and hand with lime one day this week, he is able to be up and around.

It is said that we have an Irish Lord in Cerrillos, a lineal descendant of Erin Go Bragh! Ireland only crowned King.

The RUSTLER this week is a daisy, we have endeavored to get all the latest news and to get out a good paper.

Justice Kendall, is busily engaged with court cases as well as acting Postmaster during Mr. Jenks illness.

The Cerrillos brick yard is shipping on an average of a car load of brick a day, and sometimes two a day, thus the demand for Cerrillos brick is growing slow but sure.

Col. Brigham Young, has almost completed the addition to Mrs.
Nesbitt's residence. His chief of staff, is Capt. Jackson renders valuable assistance.

Cerrillos can boast of a citizen who can see better at night in the dark of the moon, than he can by sunlight. He is from Missouri,— Moonshiner county.

The furniture of the R. R. eating house at Wallace is being boxed for shipment to Newton Kansas.
"Barnum" expects to be transferred to Lamy.

Mrs. Simon Davis has recovered from her recent illness. She has received a letter from Mr. Davis who is now at Roswell, he speaks in glowing terms of the town its prosperity and beautiful location.

The rain of two or three days during the week made many leaking holes in various roofs. Our flat roofs do not withstand the rain as well as the occupants of the houses would like.

Mrs. Gresham is reported sick with the veritoid. Mr. Gresham is giving her every attention possible.
It is hoped she will soon be well.

Tom Beuren is out again looking a little feeble in consequence of his recent illness. His friends were glad to see him pull through so quickly.

The editor of the RUSTLER is quarantined at his house with veritoid, and there is no one to rustle this week but his Imperial Majesty, the Devil. The combination will have to work, though somehow.
Circumstances are beyond our control.

Juan Nieto of Dolores, is in receipt of a letter from Mr. Stark a gentleman who visited that camp a few weeks ago, saying that a company had been formed to sink two or three wells in the arroyo viejo, for the purpose of getting water to wash the vast ground beds that lie at the head of the arroyo. Mr.
Stark is understood to be the owner or patentee of a new deep well pump with which the wells are to be equipped we wish them success.

The petition for incorporation from Cerrillos has been acted on by the County Commissioners. Now all that is necessary to have a well regulated clean town is to elect capable men, regardless of politics, for Trustees. And as an incorporated town they will be reminded that the pit-falls and death traps along Railroad Avenue are likely to bring about damage suits by injured parties. The first thing done should be to remedy this existing evil.

Dakota Insurance.

The Sioux Fall Fire and Marine Life Insurance Company was organized this week. One trouble with the Life Insurance Companies in the past has been the great number of unnecessary and troublesome questions the applicant was obliged to answer. This has been largely done away with in this company's application blank, a part of which we submit;

The Foundry Fire.

Mr. R. P. Hall, proprietor of the Albuquerque Foundry and Machine company, which was destroyed by fire Monday morning, was seen yesterday by a Democrat reporter and questioned concerning the fire, its origin, damage done and plans for the future. By a typographical error the paper said the insurance was $24,000, when the same is but $5,000, and the loss, while not as much as at first estimated, is still in excess of the insurance. As in the origin Mr. Hall has no doubt but that it was the work of an incidental, but it is a loss to whom to ascribe the diabolical deed, as he knows of no one who bears him enough ill to seek revenge in such a fiendish way.

The building itself will be rebuilt at once, and the contract for construction will be let some time to-day. The building will be built with brick, resting on a stone foundation, the structure to be covered with a corrugated iron roof, supported on iron trusses.

The dimension of the various departments will be moulding room 60x100; machine shop, 50x50, and engine room 20x24 feet. Fans, belting, etc., which will be needed
the first thing, have been telegraphed for, and will arrive in the course of a week, by which time they will be in readiness to take a heat.

While somewhat grieved over, his loss, Mr. Hall is not discouraged, but with characteristic energy will soon have his extensive plant in full working operation.—

With plenty of money for the school teachers it is expected we will have a first class public school in Cerrillos; beginning the first of September. If we don't have one let everybody abuse the school Directors.

The printers devil this week after occupying all the positions from the devil to the throne, must have struck a streak of bad luck this week, after getting the forms dry yesterday evening, he attempted to get the local page on the press and as a result pried the form, however with a little extra rustling we are able to get the paper out into this evening.

King Solomon, was asked by the Queen of Sheva, to give her a cup of water that did not fall from the clouds or come out of the ground.

The King furnished it by having a horse ridden until he became white with foam, then scraping it off he caught it in a cup and presented it to the Queen. She was more than ever astonished at King Solomon's wisdom.

Moral: To please a woman, do something which she thinks impossible.

Everybody expected that the Retail Liquor License for Cerrillos would be four hundred dollars as the population of the entire precinct is taken into account in estimating the amount to be paid, but by some difference of opinion as to the number of inhabitants in the precinct, the County Commissioners stating it to be less than one thousand, the license is made two hundred dollars per annum. When we become incorporated we might increase the amount to four hundred dollars, thus disappointing no one.

ROBBED THE BANK.

The Ninth National Bank of New York Robbed of $400,000 By Its Late President, Now Deceased.

New York, April 29.—Runners were afloat in Wall street yesterday afternoon of a defalcation in the Ninth national bank, which does business at 409 Broadway. It was said that the surplus of $200,000 had entirely disappeared and that the discovery was made through the death of some one who had held a position of trust.

A visit to the bank found the directors in session. Soon after Bank Examiner Hepburn arrived and was closeted with them. The directors were still in session at a late hour yesterday afternoon and nothing official could be learned, but it was said that the loss was through the operations of J. T. Hill, the late president of the bank, who died about a month ago. It was alleged that the amount was about $400,000, but that the bank would not lose it all, being secured in part by real estate. It was reported that the solvency of the bank was in no way impaired. The bank's capital is $750,000.

Late last night National Bank Examiner Hepburn reported: "An examination of the Ninth national bank reveals a defalcation of $400,000 chargeable to its former president. While the loss is serious it does not impair the bank's solvency or its ability to take care of its customers. Its assets besides the loss mentioned are of good character, its discounts of exceptionally good character. The bank has owned for a period of fifteen years eighty-five acres of land in the Twenty-third and Twenty-fourth wards of this city. As national banks are not allowed to own real estate for other than banking purposes, and when taken for debt not longer than five years, this real estate was charged off and has not appeared in the assets of the bank for many years, during which period it has largely appreciated in value. That is now restored at a valuation of $300,000, and competent appraisers value it much higher. As evidence that the bank valuation is fully warranted and within the limits, the directors have executed an agreement to take the property at said valuation. This bank has been unfortunate but it is perfectly sound and is entitled to and should receive the support of its depositors and the public."

THE TREASURY STATEMENT.

Secretary Foster Considering a Plan of Changing Its Features.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—Secretary Foster is considering a proposition to change the asset and liability statement issued by the United States treasurer on the last day of each month. A rough draft of the new statement is now before Secretary Foster, and he has consulted prominent financiers as to the advisability of the change. Incidentally he is considering changing the form in which the public debt is stated but this change, if made, will not go into effect until the beginning of the next fiscal year. Prior to Mr. Jordan's term in 1885 as United States treasurer the debt statement counted the $100,000,000 in gold, known as the gold reserve, as a part of the available cash balance in the treasury. Mr. Jordan took this out, together with minor coin and other lesser items, cutting down the surplus, and it appeared in the debt statement of the month previous, in this manner, from $145,000,000 to $22,000,000. If the change is made it will probably be to the form used by Secretaries Sherman, McCulloch and Folger.

SENSITIVE CELESTIALS.

Minister Blair Will Not Be Received By the Chinese Government.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—The state department announces that the Chinese government has notified this government of its unwillingness to receive ex-Senator Henry W. Blair as minister to China. This was all the information obtainable last night. Secretary Blaine would not talk upon the subject, and the Chinese minister sent down word to callers that he had retired and his interpreter was not in the house. Mr. Blair's son expressed surprise when informed of the action of the Chinese government. It was, he said, the first that any of the family had heard of it. His father, he felt sure, was not aware of the situation.

It is well understood here that the objection to Mr. Blair was based upon his utterances concerning the Chinese question and that the republication of extracts from his speeches produced a deep impression upon the minds of prominent Chinese officials, which finally resulted in the notification received by the state department last evening. The objection caused no excitement here as this government recognizes the right of a foreign power to express its unwillingness to receive a minister who is not entirely acceptable.

Blaine Not a Candidate.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., April 29.—The News Press, of which Mr. Hinchley, formerly of the New York Graphic, is editor, publishes the following:

"Stephen B. Elkins is authority for a statement made to a representative of the News Press to the effect that James G. Blaine would shortly announce his decision not, under any circumstances, to allow his name to be used at the next republican national convention as a candidate for president. It is said that Mr. Blaine's letter of announcement will be so positive as to admit of but one construction. That is that he will never again be a candidate for the presidency."

NATIONAL CASH BOX.

The Director of the Mint Believes That There is Plenty of Money in the Treasury—How He Figures It.

WASHINGTON, April 28.—Director of the Mint Leach, asked for an explanation of the statement made by him Saturday that there was an available cash balance of $255,000,000 in the treasury, said: "I hold that the treasury owns some $258,000,000 of hard cash available for any legitimate expenses. The money in the treasury, which amounted to $751,000,000 on the first of this month, consisted of two classes, that which the government holds as trustee and that which it owns. It cannot consist of any other kind of money. The gold and silver certificates amounting (including currency certificates) to $498,000,000 represent trust money—that is, the coin has been deposited by individuals and the government has issued a certificate to pay back the same upon demand. Possibly the fund of $5,000,000 placed with the treasury by national banks for keeping their currency in good condition is trust money; but as congress has just ordered the money placed here by the national banks for their circulation to be covered into the general balance of the treasury it is difficult to conceive why this money is any more sacred. The remainder of the money in the treasury, some $253,000,000, is money which belongs to the government as absolutely as the treasury building belongs to it. Prior to 1885 the available balance in the treasury was always shown as the amount of money which actually belonged to the government. The $100,000,000 in gold, purchased by the sale of bonds for resumption purposes, was always included as a portion of the available balance in the treasury prior to that date by all of the secretaries of the treasury.

"The fact that the secretary is anxious to convert all the assets of the government into the most available form of money is no indication that there is any shortage in the treasury funds. So far as the coinage of the trade dollar bullion is concerned the coinage of that bullion into silver dollars was ordered by act of the last congress, and it is the intention to coin it into dollars after the first of July, whether the treasury is low or full of money. So, too, in regard to the coinage of the subsidiary silver coins, congress made an appropriation of $150,000 to pay the loss on such recoinage and just as soon as we get some new design for our coins it is my intention to set the mints at work on such coinage as far as the appropriation will extend. But none of these matters have anything to do with relieving any shortage in the treasury. If the secretary should decide to extend the 4 1/2 per cent. bonds at the rate of 2 per cent. it would simply be a business proposition as to whether it would be more profitable for the government to use its money in buying bonds bearing 4 per cent. interest at the current rate—a problem which the secretary in his wisdom will doubtless decide at the proper time.

"As a matter of fact, some $25,500,000 of the 4 per cent. bonds are in the treasury as security for national bank notes, and the treasury would only have to provide 10 per cent. of the cash required to redeem them, as the banks themselves would have to provide the rest of the money, unless they should decide to purchase 4s to replace the 4 1/2s, which at the present price is not very probable. It must be remembered that when the banks pay the money to redeem their notes, the money paid in, under the recent act of congress, becomes immediately an available asset of the government, while the national bank notes themselves would come in very slowly for redemption."

THE GRANT MONUMENT.

Turning of the Sod in Riverview Park on the General's Birthday.

NEW YORK, April 27.—To-day is the sixty-ninth anniversary of the birth of Gen. U. S. Grant and it is being appropriately celebrated by the breaking of ground for the Grant monument in Riverside park.

Large crowds began to gather in the park at an early hour and by noon over 30,000 were in sight. Preceding the ceremonies there was a long parade of Grand Army posts, the department commander and staff, the members of the Grant executive committee and the orator of the day being escorted to the grounds by Alexander Hamilton post, G. A. R.

The monument will be erected under the auspices of the Grant Monument association, which has been regularly chartered by the secretary of state. It is intended first to build the portion of the monument designated in the plans for the reception of the sarcophagus, and this will be completed as if it were an independent structure, and without regard to the other portion, before anything else is undertaken. The fund already in hand, about $150,000, is more than ample to meet the cost of this part of the monument.

Several weeks ago Gen. Charles H. T. Collins, chairman of the executive committee of the association, issued subscription books classified as follows: Ten subscribers at $10,000 each, fifty at $1,000 each, 100 at $500 and 2,000 at $50 each. The total of subscriptions to be secured under this plan is $300,000. To this total is to be added the $150,000 now on hand, and $50,000 additional, to be collected by the Grand Army posts in this state, which have undertaken to solicit subscriptions for the monument. This makes a total of a round half million dollars.

UNDOUBTEDLY INSANE.

Sad Exhibition of Anna Dickinson's Insanity at a Public Lecture—A Banning Talk That Leaves No Room For Doubt.

NEW YORK, April 27.—A performance of "Clopatria" held the boards of the Broadway theater until late Saturday night. After it was finished the stage was set for a parlor scene, and Miss Anna Dickinson appeared to deliver a lecture upon "Personal Liberty." It was her first public appearance since her confinement in an insane asylum. There was not a large audience, but those present welcomed her with applause. She was attired in white with black trimming. The corsage was cut low and red roses were fastened to it.

Miss Dickinson opened her address with a violent attack upon the republican party and with bitter words against various persons prominent in public life. The personal characterizations were in many instances such that ladies who occupied orchestra chairs arose and with their escorts left the theater. She paid little or no attention to these defections.

Miss Dickinson frequently punctuated her utterances by appealing to her hearers with this question: "Well, folks, do you think I am insane?" She spoke of the postmaster-general as "Merciful Heaven Wannamaker." This queer remark was received with hisses. She dwelt at great length upon what she termed the private character of Mr. Wannamaker and J. S. Clarkson. Her imprisonment at the Danville insane asylum was her chief theme. She declared it was due to a conspiracy of J. S. Clarkson, Col. W. W. Dudley and Senator Quay. They wanted her, she said, to stump the country for them in the campaign of 1888 and she was given a blank check to fill in for whatever compensation she wished. The provision, however, she declared, was that she should not speak at all about the black man. "I was poor," she continued, "but as heaven is my witness I did not want their money because they wanted my voice to be silent on the slave question."

Then Miss Dickinson, accompanied by her lessened audience, with countenances indicating pity and regret, rambled on about a visit to Mr. Harrison in Indianapolis. She avowed that she was promised $3,750 for every speech she made in 1888 and $5,000 each if her candidates should be successful. She then turned her attention toward General Butler, and these are some of her words: "The papers have said that there has been a controversy between us. Mr. Butler has written me letters, and they were addressed to 'Lizzie.' He is the only man who has ever addressed me by my middle name. He knew what he was doing, but he will answer for it all in a court of law. I have had unnumbered sorrows, and I do not place a mask or veil over any of them."

Speaking over her theatrical experience, the lecturer declared in vehement terms that the press of the country had maligned her. She never lost money by the venture. Her income from long ago, she said, had been $40,000 annually. She had lost $100,000 in bond speculations.

Passing from her stage experience Miss Dickinson stated what she declared were the reasons for her confinement in the asylum. She made the statement that she had been opposed to the republican party and she charged that party with placing her in the asylum. She declared, in the next breath, that the defeat of Mr. Cleveland in 1888 was due to the fact that she had been in the ranks against him. Then she rambled again toward British politics, and spoke of dining with Parnell and thinking him a "little tin god on wheels." The democratic party of the country, she said, was trying to dethrone him. Then she lauded the democratic party, and resorted again to such personalities that her utterances were hissed, and more of her audience left.

When it was all over many of those friends who had remained with growing sadness until the end slowly filed out of the playhouse with words of commiseration and with faces upon which was evidenced the fact that a sorrowful conclusion had been reached.

THE REFUNDING PROBLEM.

Secretary Foster Not Yet Arrived at a Plan For Refunding the Four and Half Bonds.

WASHINGTON, April 26.—Secretary Foster has not yet arrived at any conclusion as to the plan to be adopted for the refunding of the 4 1/2-per-cent. bonds, amounting to $50,000,000, which fall due on September 1. In the course of conversation yesterday on the condition of the government finances, Secretary Foster expressed himself as having no fear of the inability of the government to meet all its obligations as they might arise. There would be no trouble, he said, about the next quarterly payment of pensions in June, aggregating between $25,000,000 and $28,000,000. The available money at the disposal of the treasury he placed at about $70,000,000. Included in this aggregate the secretary mentioned the subsidiary coin now in the treasury, the large amount of deposits held by national banks, the surplus of approximately $11,000,000, and also about $6,000,000 in bullion and $4,000,000 in silver dollars in the treasury upon which no certificates had been issued. Nothing has yet been decided upon with respect to the method to be adopted to get into circulation the subsidiary silver coin now in the treasury vaults.

SOMEWHAT SENSATIONAL.

A Noted Physician's Application For a Divorce Recalls a Terrible Domestic Tragedy.

NEW YORK, April 28.—News comes from Rhode Island that Dr. Edward Seguin, of this city, had begun divorce proceedings against his wife, Helen C. Seguin, in Providence. For a year and more Dr. Seguin has made his home in Providence, and it now transpires that his object was to obtain a residence there, so as to be able to sue under the Rhode Island laws. Dr. Seguin charges his wife in the petition, which he has presented to the Rhode Island supreme court, with desertion and cruelty. On Thursday last he gave his testimony before the court, and no one opposed his petition for absolute divorce. The decision of the court upon the petition will be given in a few days. Dr. Seguin is a well-known specialist on nervous diseases, and has had many years lucrative practice in New York.

The present Mrs. Seguin is the doctor's second wife, and the suit he has brought against her recalls one of the most remarkable of New York's tragedies, when the first Mrs. Seguin killed her three children and then herself. It was on the afternoon of October 31, 1882, when Dr. Royal W. Amidea, who was a brother of Dr. Seguin's wife, Margaret, called at his brother-in-law's home, 41 West Twentieth street, expecting to take dinner with the family. He was told by the butler that the spare room up stairs was locked, and suspecting that something was wrong he went up. He forced open the door and found his sister and her three little children dead on the floor, with bullet holes through all their temples. Edward D., the oldest, a boy of 6, was lying face down, and John Van Duyn, the next youngest, a boy of 5, was lying near his brother. The body of Mrs. Seguin's youngest child, Jeanette, 1 year old, had been dragged into a closet. The children were all blindfolded, and from the way the bodies were found it seemed probable that Mrs. Seguin had shut them in the closet with the handkerchiefs tied around their heads, on the pretense of playing blind man's bluff, only to call them out separately to kill them. The oldest boy was killed with a French target pistol of 22-caliber, and the other two with a 28-caliber Remington revolver. A deringer which lay at hand had not been used. The affair caused a tremendous sensation at the time. The coroner's jury, which was composed of physicians, rendered a verdict of insanity, and that was the commonly accepted reason for Mrs. Seguin's acts. Not long after the death of his wife and children, Dr. Seguin married his present wife.

THE BARNABY POISONING.

The Mysterious Poisoning of the Wealthy Rhode Island Widow at Denver Leads to Some Strange Revelations.

DENVER, Col., April 25.—Saturday the entire country was horrified by the mysterious death of Mrs. J. H. Barnaby, of Providence, R. I., which was caused by arsenical poisoning. This prompted investigation as to the cause of death of several other persons who had died suddenly, and yesterday it was stated that no less than seven had died within the last two months from the deadly drug.

Saturday night Annie Armstrong, a domestic in the family of a prominent minister, died in the most horrible agony, and an examination showed enough arsenic in her body to kill six people. She was apparently contented and the idea of suicide is not entertained. How she came to take the poison is a mystery.

Young Harry Ching, employed in one of the printing houses here, died suddenly last week under the most peculiar circumstances and an analysis made of the viscera to-day by Dr. Burr revealed sufficient arsenic to kill a family. No more explanation can be made in this case than that of the Armstrong girl.

A month ago Mr. Harting, his wife and six children were taken violently ill immediately after partaking of their dinner. The physicians pronounced the cases trichinosis, and despite their greatest efforts the mother and four children died within a week. The remainder of the family lived, but are still very low. Since the Barnaby sensation became public physicians exhumed the body of one of the Harting children and made an analysis, finding a sufficient quantity of arsenic to cause death. There can be no doubt the others died from the same cause. Mrs. Harting was but 32 years old, had had eleven children, and enjoyed the happiest of lives.

There are no new developments in the Barnaby poisoning case, except that Prof. Sewall, who has made an analysis of the liquor in the fatal bottle, says that it does not contain a particle of alcohol, but is probably nothing more than Fowler's solution of arsenic. The viscera and portions of the other organs of the dead woman have been returned here for examination.

Celebration of the Birthday of Gen. Grant.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., April 28.—The American club yesterday celebrated its fifth anniversary and at the same time observed the 67th birthday of Gen. Grant. The club is the most powerful republican organization in the state, and the opening of its new rooms in the afternoon brought out a huge crowd.

Last night a banquet was held in the Monongahela house attended by prominent senators, congressmen and speakers. D. H. Hastings welcomed the guests and W. H. D. English spoke of the guests absent. Then Senator Shelby M. Cullom, of Illinois, talked of Grant and his record and achievements.

"OLD HUTCH" GONE.

Sudden Disappearance of the Noted Grain Operator—Speculation as to the Cause.

CHICAGO, April 30.—B. P. Hutchinson, the multi-millionaire grain dealer, known nearly the world over as "Old Hutch," is mysteriously missing. It is supposed that he is demented and his business a financial wreck.

Mr. Hutchinson, whose tall, erect figure has for years been one of the most picturesque sights on the Chicago board of trade, left the city about midnight, taking with him a small satchel and a ticket to Pensacola, Fla. None of his friends or relatives appear to know that he was going. The veteran operator, however, never was much of a man for confidants. How he occupied his last hours in Chicago has not been discovered, except that he paid lengthy visits to two of his favorite drinking resorts, and at each place told the bartender inside not to expect to see him again.

It has been a matter of common rumor on the board that business misfortunes had unbalanced "Old Hutch's" mind. His always eccentric conduct seemed increasingly erratic. For weeks at a time his shoes, day and night, has been his little office adjoining the exchange. When, some time ago, it is said, his sons, in view of their father's reported heavy losses following reckless trades, began to consider the appointment of a conservator to take charge of his affairs, the old man was furiously angry. More than ever he isolated himself, and on the board appeared to speculate for revenge rather than gain. The dislike which he was said to entertain for certain members of the board seemed to settle into systematic hatred.

No one but "Old Hutch" himself knew, or for that matter yet knows, the exact condition of his finances. It was practically certain, according to all indications, that he had lost of late heavily and steadily.

Yesterday morning when the news of his queer departure became noised about almost the first question was "how much did he leave?" It was answered by the announcement of his relatives that the missing man's outstanding trades of 3,000,000 bushels could be settled up without loss to anyone. Whether any portion of the speculator's fortune remained they did not say.

For the time the announcement caused the wildest excitement on the floor, and the market sharply declined. It is stated that "Old Hutch" was insolvent and that his liabilities would be $5,000,000 in excess of his assets. On the other hand, W. I. Hutchinson while saying: "I think father's mind is unbalanced and that he has wandered away," added: "I do not believe he is insolvent. When we can find how his affairs stand I am confident everything will be paid in full, dollar for dollar."

SUSPENDED THE SITTING.

An Italian Deputy Causes an Uproar in the Chamber at Rome.

ROME, April 30.—Signor Imbriani, in the chamber of deputies, speaking on the African question, charged the Italian government with permitting the slave trade to be carried on openly. He also asserted that thirty-five young girls, who had been taken from their former owners under the pretext of rescuing them from slavery, had been distributed among a number of Italian officers serving with the Italian army in Africa.

Marquis di Rudini, replying for the government, protested against such accusations being made without absolute proof of their truth having first been obtained.

Amidst cries of "It's a lie!" "Withdraw!" the minister of war declared that he would not remain in the house unless the charge was withdrawn.

A prolonged uproar, during which several violent scenes were witnessed, followed the announcement of this determination. The president of the chamber was utterly unable to control the excited deputies and consequently was compelled to suspend the sitting.

FIRE AT CHATTANOOGA.

Serious Destruction of Property in the Tennessee Town.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., April 29.—There was a terrible conflagration here this morning. The loss is fully $250,000; insurance, over $150,000. The fire began at 3 a. m. in Campbell & Co.'s furniture factory on King street and soon got beyond control of the fire department and rapidly took in everything in the near neighborhood. It was 7 a. m. before the flames were under control, and the field of destruction covered twenty acres. The loss is about as follows:

Campbell & Co., furniture factory, loss $75,000, insurance about $50,000; G. G. Lilly, two-story brick, just completed, not occupied, loss $10,000; Peak's warehouse, loss $15,000, insurance $18,000; the East Tennessee, Virginia & Georgia Railroad Co., freight depot, complete loss on building about $25,000, contents estimated at $25,000.

There were also about seventy-five freight cars destroyed, about fifty of them being filled with miscellaneous freight. The loss on the destruction of these cars will not fall short of $75,000, making a total loss to the railroad company of about $125,000. The amount of insurance is not known.

There were several small buildings destroyed which may aggregate $10,000 loss. The new Mountain City flouring mill, just completed at a loss of nearly $200,000, was saved.

Fashionable Hangings.

In respect to curtain hangings the French fashion of introducing festoons is in high favor. Their flowing lines, as they depend from parlor rod, afford a pleasing contrast to the structural angles of a room. Whatever the arrangement of the folds, these should never have a negligé air. The limitation of their size requires that their shapes should be correct. The amount of material necessary in any case is best determined by dropping loops of a tape from the pole or rod corresponding to the number of folds to be introduced, making a free allowance, as to width, of eight inches for each plait, and then adding the same to the depth of the loops, finally taking the width of the space to be draped. The pattern is then cut out on paper or on the lining, if lining is used. A valance will be found to give to a curtain a more stately aspect than a pole, or pole and cornice, besides which, it allows of a rod being substituted for a cornice and placed out of sight. In making up figured curtains, the figures of each pair should be in line. If the woodwork of a room is light, the tone of color of the curtains should be also light; if dark, they should be of deep hue.—Ladies' Home Journal.

Her Own Mistake.

A woman who was passing a grocery store on Cadillac square picked up a sprouting bulb and inquired:

"How much?"
"Two cents, ma'am."
"Why, how cheap! Do you plant it in a pot?"
"Yes, ma'am."
"Will it bloom by Easter?"
"It will then, or never."
"Well, I'll take one."
In a week she came back in a rage, bringing a bulky-looking object wrapped in a paper.

"You said to plant it in a pot," she began as soon as she tackled the grocer.

"Yes, ma'am, the dinner pot."
"Said it would bloom at Easter."
"If it ever did. I qualified it, ma'am."
"You sold it to me for a—"

John M. Palmer.

John M. Palmer, nominated for governor of Illinois on the Democratic ticket, was born at Eagle Creek, Ky., Sept. 25, 1817. First a cooper, then a peddler, he finally determined to become a lawyer. This decision he reached from a chance acquaintance which he formed with Stephen A. Douglas. He occupied himself in teaching school and study, and in the spring of 1840 he went to Alton, and thence to St. Louis. From there he went back to Illinois and studied law in an office at Carlinville. He drifted into politics and became a candidate for county clerk, but was beaten. In the winter of 1850 he was elected to Springfield and was elected for the bar by John Y. Scammon, of Chicago, and Douglas, of New York. He was admitted, and that night strolling into a political meeting he made a speech which was warmly received. He was elected to the Illinois legislature in 1852, and in 1854 he was elected to the United States congress. He served under Gen. Hunter in Missouri. In December 1871 he was made vice-governor and commander-in-chief of the grand army at Island No. 10. He fought at the battle of Fort Fisher, where he achieved great distinction. At the battle of Vicksburg he was his regiment's assistant surgeon. In 1864 he was made military governor of Kentucky. In 1868 he was elected Republican governor of Illinois. He supported Lincoln freely in 1860 and 1864.

JOHN M. PALMER.

Bookkeeping for Deserted Wives—Marital Troubles in New York City.

To be a sergeant in a police court involves a peculiar and somewhat burdensome duty, that of acting as banker for the receipt and disbursement of the weekly stipends paid by husbands to deserted wives. A sergeant is fortunate if he has not above thirty such bookkeeping accounts on his list, and in a busy court the number may run up to 150 or 175. The obligation of the husband to support his wife assumes a not romantic aspect in a police court. The obligation is not to the woman as her desert for services rendered or for affection's sake, but to the city, that it may not have a pauper on its hands. This attitude of self defense of the community as against the husband colors the proceedings which a woman must go through before she can compel her husband to provide for her. The first step involved is a visit to the commissioners of charities and correction and an application for a regulation from them on the police justice in her district requiring him to issue an abandonment warrant for the arrest of the delinquent husband.

The law being framed directly to prevent the increase of paupers and not to punish the men, the wife is called upon to swear on the face of the warrant that she will be a charge on the public unless her husband supports her. That is all she has to do with the matter as a principal. In the police court it is the city against the husband, with the wife merely as witness. She is called upon to testify a second time that she is in the possession of a pauper and that the city will have to support her if her husband does not. Under such circumstances, the amount awarded the woman is seldom large, the object being simply to keep her out of the poor house. The weekly sum which the husband is put under bonds to pay her varies according to his wages, but more closely according to the ages of her children, whether they can work and help support her or whether she can get work and support herself. Four dollars a week or $8 is as high as it often gets and sometimes it is not above $3.50 or $3. Women who brace themselves for weeks to submit to the mortifying ordeal of swearing out such warrants against their husbands are sometimes surprised to learn the exact basis of the law.

If a man has beaten a woman and made her life an almost insupportable burden to her, but asserts that he has not abandoned her, that he will go home with her and live with her, then that woman is not in danger of becoming a pauper, and the police justice, though he may feel the utmost compassion for her, can only tell her to go home with him, and have him up for assault if he beats her. The woman often will not venture to appeal to the court again, for an assault complaint, she having learned that any other is useless, will mean her husband's imprisonment and stoppage of the family income. The man very naturally comes to the conclusion that whatever he does his wife will have to put up with it, and acts for the future very much as he pleases. A man who has a decent income has his wife even more in his power. She imagines she can secure his punishment for deserting her for a protractor time than her own. She tries. She opens her eyes when she finds the abandonment warrants open the door to so many dollars a week only. If he can support two women that is his business, not the court's. He gives bonds to secure her bread, with not too much batter, and goes back to his new flame. It is copies of this sort largely for whom the police sergeant is banker. They don't care to meet personally, and the court official collects, pays and takes the receipts. It is getting to be quite a business in its way.

Summer Resorting.

The other day a business man who has one of the finest houses in the finest ward in the city, and who has horses and carriages in plenty, and who usually looks as clean as though just out of a band box and as happy as a schoolman at a vacation picnic, got on a street car near the depot, a picture of a total wreck. He had on a long linen duster, the collar tucked down under the neck band of his shirt, which had no collar on, his cuffs were sticking out of his coat pocket, his eyes looked heavy, and where the dirt had come off with the perspiration he looked pale, and he was cross as a bear.

A friend who was on the car, on the way up town, after a day's work, with a clean shirt on, a white vest and a general look of coolness, accosted the traveler as follows:

"Been summer resorting, I hear?"

The dirty-looking man crossed his legs with a painful effort, as though his drawers stuck to his legs and almost peeled the bark off, and answered:

"Yes, I have been out two weeks. I have struck ten different hotels, and if you ever hear of my leaving town again during the hot weather, you can take my head for a soft thing," and he wiped a under out of his eye with what was once a clean handkerchief.

"Had a good, cool time, I suppose, and enjoyed yourself," said the man who had not been out of town.

"Cool time, hell," said the man, who has a paw in two churches, as he kicked his limp satchel of dirty clothes under the car seat. "I had rather been sentenced to the house of correction for a month."

"Why, what's the trouble?"

"Well, there is no trouble, for people who like that kind of fun, but this lets me out. I do not blame people who live in Southern States for coming North, because they enjoy things as a luxury diet, but for a Chicago or Milwaukee man to go into the country to swelter and be kept awake nights in a bald luncey. Why, since I have been out I have slept in a room a size smaller than the closet, my wife keeps her linen in, with one window that brought in air from a laundry, and I slept on a cot that shut up like a jack-knife and always caught me in the hinge where it hurt.

"At another hotel I had a broken handled pitcher of water that had been used to rinse clothes in, and I can show you the indigo on my neck. I had a piece of soap that smelled like a tannery, and if the towel was not a recent damp diaper then I have never raised six children.

THE DOMINIE'S NEW PIPE.

A Story with a Moral.

Within his chair the dominie
Sat at his open cottage door;
His neighbor's busy on his knee,
Another on the grassy floor.
And as he puff'd his brand new pipe
He looked like peace's prototype.

Of carved stone that wondrous bowl—
Cupids, from latest Dutch designs;
Upon its top was shaped a scroll
On which appeared these loving lines:
"Old Amsterdam sends o'er the sea
This tribute of respect to thee."

It was a quiet eve in June,
With crimson clouds and golden sky;
And to her southern throne the moon
Timidly mounted, pale and shy.
Alas, that peace should reign above,
And earth decline the rule of love!

The governor, with angry brow,
Paced up and down the garden walk;
Some pilfering brave had blushed his cow,
And war was his revengeful talk.
"I'll put a price," he fiercely said,
"On every savage rascal's head!"

"Oh, shame!" replied the godly man,
"Must human blood be shed for this?
Believe me, 'twere the wiser plan
So stern a project to dismiss.
Forgive them, sir, and they will learn
To give your kindness kind return."

Bold words! And now he puff'd so fast
That soon the trees were veiled in smoke;
The great man's eyes were downward cast,
'Twas full a minute ere he spoke.
At last he said: "You're right; the thief
Has got a tough old piece of beef!"

The governor walked down the lane,
Musing o'er everything but "cow";
The parson filled his pipe again,
And told his neighbor's chatty crew
How he had saved a brother rascal
By words of charity and grace.

Next morning some stalwart burghers brought
The robber of the bridled beast;
The gov'nor led them to the fort,
And when their angry threats had ceased
He said: "For Christian acts I'm ripe;
Has anybody got a pipe?"

Up stepped the parson: "Sir, this deed
Will surely your renown increase;
Perhaps you'll gain a friend in need
By this same pipe of love and peace.
This bowl, I swear, shall be my command—
The best pipe in New Netherland."

The gov'nor took a whiff or two,
Then passed it to that tawny buck,
Who did the part he had to do
With many a wondering, grateful look
And then—a form no brave omits—
He smashed that precious pipe to bits.

"You dog!" the dominie exclaimed,
"Your heathen blood for this shall pay!
He war against his tribe proclaimed;
New Amsterdam, arm! Arm, I say!"
The gov'nor thundered: "Silent be!
Who touches him lays hands on me!"

Then to the holy man he said:
"Henceforth your counsel you may keep,
The seeds of precept oft are spread
By those who ne'er example reep.
Your sense of wrong is mighty true—
The pipe was yours, the cow was mine!"

A WOMAN CRUSOE.

Strange Adventures of an English Sailor's Widow.

She Escapes from a Doomed Ship and Lives for Nearly Four Years Alone on an Uninhabited Island in the Java Sea.

On the 26th of October, A. D., 1871, the trading schooner Little King sailed out of the port of Singapore, bound for the Kinderon islands to the north, and only one of her crew was ever again met with, says the Toronto (Ont.) Truth. For five years before the schooner had belonged to and been commanded by Capt. Ezra Williams, a Canadian from Halifax. He traded between Singapore and Sumatra, Java, Borneo and the smaller islands of the Java sea, and in May, 1871, died at Singapore of fever. He had been married for three years to an English woman, whose maiden name was Danforth, who had been a domestic in an English family in Singapore. She had accompanied him on all his voyages, and had secured much experience and information. As she could not readily dispose of the schooner she determined to continue in the business, acting as her own supercargo.

Mrs. Williams secured an Englishman named Parker as captain, another named Hope as mate, and with three Malays before the mast and a Chinese cook, and with about fourteen hundred pounds in specie in the cabin, she sailed away on her first voyage, and it was four years later before she was again heard of. The purpose of this narrative is to chronicle her adventures in the interim, as I had them from her own lips.

While it was a bit queer to start on a voyage with a woman virtually in command of the craft, Mrs. Williams had nothing to fear from the crew. The officers were good navigators and the men willing, and all were anxious for a profitable voyage. She had no complaints to make until the islands had been reached. The group lies between the Malay peninsula and the island of Borneo, about one hundred miles off the coast of the former, and from two hundred and fifty to three hundred miles from Borneo. There are nineteen islands in the group, covering a length of one hundred and twenty miles by about forty broad.

There are only seven or eight which are inhabited, and the time of which I write the people were a lawless set, and a share of them out-and-out pirates. The products were dried fish, sea shells, coconuts, dye stuffs, various herbs and roots for medicinal purposes, and several sorts of spices. The schooner had been there once before and made a profitable trip of it. She had clothing, powder, shoes, axes, and a great variety of notions, and where none of these were wanted she paid cash.

On this trip the schooner worked to northward and made her stop at the island of Quwang, being the third one from the northernmost island of the group. She met with a cordial reception, and at once began bartering for and receiving cargo. She was anchored in a sheltered bay, within five hundred feet of the beach, and had been there five days before anything occurred to arouse Mrs. Williams' suspicions that all was not right. She then observed that the entire crew were drinking deeply of a native liquor which the natives were supplying in a liberal manner, and that some of the fellows were becoming impudently familiar. When the captain was spoken to he laughed at her idea of trouble and promised better things, but the drinking continued.

On the afternoon of the seventh day several women came off in the canoes. One of them who could speak English pretty freely was presented with some ornaments by Mrs. Williams, and in turn she hinted to her that it was the intention of the natives to capture and loot the schooner that night. They had discovered that there was a large sum of money on board, and they had found the crew an easy one to handle. The native woman hadn't time nor opportunity to say much, but no sooner had the crowd of natives left the schooner at dusk, as was their custom, than Mrs. Williams set out to sound the alarm.

Imagine her feelings when she discovered that every single man on board, from captain to cook, was so much under the influence of liquor as to be unable to comprehend her words. She doused them with sea water and pounded them with belaying pins, but all to no purpose. The entire lot were stupidly drunk, just as the natives had planned for.

It was a perilous situation for the woman to be placed in. If the natives captured the schooner they would murder every one of the crew as a natural sequence, and the first step toward capturing her had already been taken. The step she took showed sound judgment. The schooner's yawl was down, having been in almost hourly use. The native village was about forty rods back from the beach, and as the schooner swung to the ebb tide she presented her broadside to the village. When the yawl was pulled around to the port side she was out of sight. Mrs. Williams' first act was to step the mast; her next to supply the craft with provisions and water. There was an unusual number of lights burning in the village, showing that something was on foot, but she had no fear of an attack until a later hour. The natives would wait until certain that all the people were helpless.

Mrs. Williams had determined to slip away from the doomed craft in the yawl, although she had no experience in the management of a small boat. After water and provisions she brought up all her money which was in boxes she could handle. Not a penny of it was left behind. There was a rifle, revolver and double-barreled shotgun belonging to her husband. These she took, together with powder, shot and fixed ammunition. Then she gathered up all her bedding and clothing, took three or four spare blankets, two suits of clothes belonging to the officers, and when these were in the boat she took pots, pans, dishes and cutlery, bundled up a lot of carpenter's tools, secured two axes, a lot of small rope, several pieces of canvas, and in brief loaded the yawl with whatever was portable and handy, including the clock, compass, quadrant, sextant and a lamp and four gallons of oil. She worked for upward of two hours getting these things into a boat, and the last articles taken aboard were meat, flour, beans, tea and provisions from the lazarette.

It was about ten o'clock when Mrs. Williams took her seat in the yawl and cast off from the schooner, and the tide at once drifted her out of the bay and to the north. The only thing of consequence she had forgotten was a chart of the Java sea which she could have put her hand on at a minute's notice, and it was the want of this which made a Crusoe of her for several years. As the yawl went out to sea after its own fashion, Mrs. Williams lost the points of the compass at once. Indeed, had she kept them in mind it would have been no benefit just then, as she had not studied the chart and could not have told which way to steer to reach another group or the land.

She heard nothing whatever from the natives, but several years later it was ascertained that they did not board the schooner until midnight. The men, all of whom were still drunk and asleep, were stripped and tossed overboard to drown, and then the absence of the woman and her money was discovered. Five or six native crafts, were at once sent in pursuit, while the people who remained looted the schooner of everything of value to them, and then towed her out to deep water and scuttled her to hide the evidence of their crime.

After drifting three or four miles out to sea the yawl got a light breeze, and after a few trials the woman learned how to manage the sail and lay a course. She had no idea which way she was heading, but ran off before the breeze, and kept going all night and until afternoon next day. She must have passed the Upmang in the early morning, but so far to the westward she could not see it. midforenoon alterations of the group, many brought in line. miles long by three feet part, well w. The woman landed the mouth of a c. ch forms a snug little harbor. She was convinced that this was one of the islands of the Kinderon group, but she did not know that it was the most northerly one. By consulting the compass she got the cardinal points, but not having studied the chart she could not say in what direction any other land lay. She had seen the sails of two traders that morning, but as they were native craft she had every wish to avoid them. The boats which were sent in pursuit of her must have taken another course, as she saw nothing of them.

When Mrs. Williams landed on the island she had no idea of stopping there for more than a day or two, or until she could decide on some plan. She had scarcely gone ashore when a gale came up which lasted about thirty hours, during which the yawl was so damaged that she must undergo repairs. She unloaded her goods on the shore, covered them from the weather, and then set out to explore the island, pretty well satisfied that it was uninhabited, and hoping, if it was, that her money might secure assistance. Before night she was satisfied that she was all alone, and she made a shelter out of blankets, and slept the night away as peacefully as if in her cabin on the schooner. Next day she changed her apparel for a man's suit and began the erection of a hut. In a grove about two hundred feet from the beach she erected a shelter ten by twenty feet, which withstood the storms of almost four years. While the sides consisted of canvas and poles, the roof was thatched with a long grass, which she found on the island in abundance.

It took the woman about a week to construct her hut and move her stores into it, and this had scarcely been done when her boat, owing to carelessness on her part, was carried off by the sea, and she now realized that she was a prisoner until such time as the crew of some trading vessel might land and discover her. After her house was completed she made a more thorough exploration of her island home. There were parrots and other birds, snakes of a harmless variety, Borneo rats and a drove of about three hundred Java pigs, which are about the size of the American peccary, but are wild instead of fierce.

The woman had clothing to last her five or six years, but the provisions she had brought from the schooner would not supply her needs more than a few months. While hoping and expecting to be taken off almost any day, she wisely prepared for a long stay. She had fish hooks and lines in her outfit, and with fish from the sea, meat from the woods and bananas and wild fruits from the groves, she had a variety and in plenty. Six months after she landed a native craft put in about a mile from her hut, but creeping through the woods she saw that all were Malays, and so savage in appearance that she did not dare make herself known. Seven months after a second craft sent ashore to fill two water casks, but she was also afraid of these. She lived very quietly from that time until nearly two years after her landing, having remarkably good health all that time, but naturally lonely and cast down at times.

One afternoon, as she was in the forest about half a mile from home, having her shotgun with her, a Borneo sailor suddenly confronted her. He was entirely alone, and whether he had been marooned or cast away she never learned. As she was dressed in a man's suit he naturally took her for a man, but his first move was a hostile one. He advanced upon the woman with a club in his hand and uttering shouts of menace, and to save her own life she was compelled to shoot him.

Now and then, all through her stay, trading vessels were sighted in the offing, with now and then a craft known to be manned by Englishmen, but the signals made to the latter by means of smoke were never heeded. Her main hope was that the loss of the schooner would in some way reach her friends at Singapore and that a searching party might be sent out to her rescue.

One day, when she had been on the island four years, lacking about fifty days, the British survey ship Sabio, then engaged in resurveying the group, dropped anchor off the mouth of the creek, and sent a party ashore to explore the interior. I had the honor not only to head the party, but to be the first to see and speak to Mrs. Williams. We found her in excellent health, although tanned and roughened by exposure to the weather. When she had donned her own proper apparel and had time to tidy up no one could find fault with her appearance.

After a few days we sailed for Singapore, where Mrs. Williams was safely landed.

APPROACHING REVOLUTION.

Critical Condition of Affairs in Portugal Over the English Demands.

LONDON, April 26.—One of the results of the action of the Portuguese officials in firing upon the steamer Agnes, which was conveying the expedition of Sir John Willoughby, and the seizure of the two cargo boats attached to the expedition, has become public by the action taken by the Portuguese cabinet.

It appears that in addition to the dispatch of three British warships to the entrance of the Pungwe river, as announced by Lord Salisbury in the house of lords, the British prime minister forwarded an ultimatum to the Portuguese government declaring that unless immediate facilities were afforded to British subjects to open the Pungwe river in accordance with the provisions of the modus vivendi now existing between Great Britain and Portugal, the British government would resort to force in order to insure respect on the part of Portugal to her treaty engagements and the result would be disastrous to Portuguese enterprise in that part of the world.

The Portuguese cabinet, under pressure of Lord Salisbury's ultimatum, gave consent to the free passage of the Pungwe river.

The foreign office has received alarming advices from Lisbon. Sir George Glynn Petre, the English minister, represents the political situation as critical. The Portuguese cabinet ought to submit the New English convention to the cortex May 5, the modus vivendi expiring May 14, but the Portuguese premier pleads for an extension of the modus vivendi and delay in the publishing of the convention in order to give time for the abatement of the excitement against England, which is imperiling the position of the government. The substance of Sir George Glynn Petre's communications indicate that a revolution is impending and will be precipitated if Lord Salisbury insists upon forcing matters.

THE PRESIDENT INDIGNANT.

The Lynching of a Murderer By Soldiers Calls For a Rigid Investigation.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 27.—The president had a conference with Brig-Gen. Ruger late yesterday afternoon in regard to the lynching of the murderer Hunt at Walla Walla, Wash., by a party of soldiers Friday night and subsequently the president sent the following telegram to the secretary of war at Washington:

The affair at Walla Walla is very discreditable to army discipline. If there is reason to believe, as appears, that the mob was composed of soldiers you will summon a court of inquiry and see that the responsibility for the disgrace is fixed and that the guilty are brought to a prompt trial.

BENJAMIN HARRISON.

COL. COMPTON INDIGNANT.

WALLA WALLA, Wash., April 27.—Judge Upton has called on Col. Compton, commanding Fort Walla Walla, for aid in ferreting out the soldiers who lynched murderer Hunt Friday night. The colonel said he would lend all aid in his power and that only misconception of the gravity of the situation on his part prevented his taking more active steps to prevent the trouble. He stigmatized the action of the mob as a disgrace to himself, his officers, the troops, and the entire army.

The grand jury has been summoned to inquire into the tragedy. The prosecuting attorney has telegraphed to the secretary of war the details of the tragedy, with the statement that the authorities were unable to protect themselves against lawless soldiers and asked that immediate action be taken.

SERIOUS RUNAWAY.

The Sister of President Harrison and Her Nieces Badly Hurt at North Bend, O.

CINCINNATI, April 27.—Last evening a telegram was sent to President Harrison on the Pacific coast and to Mr. Scott Harrison, of Kansas City, that their sister, Mrs. Bettle Eaton, of North Bend, had been mortally injured by being thrown from a carriage in a runaway.

The accident happened yesterday afternoon at Cleves, about twenty-three miles west of this city. Mrs. Eaton and her niece, Miss Moore, went to Cleves to church in a carriage, driving the family horse which, though spirited, had always been considered safe. On their return, while in Cleves, the horse shied at something and the breaching of the harness broke. Miss Moore caught the reins and the horse veered and upset the buggy over a steep bank, throwing both ladies out of the carriage.

Mrs. Eaton was thrown to the hard ground violently, her head striking. Miss Moore had her shoulder dislocated and suffered other injuries.

The Dead Field Marshal.

BERLIN, April 27.—The body of the late Count von Moltke was viewed by the public yesterday from noon until 5 o'clock in the afternoon. The bier, which is placed in the ballroom of the staff building, was draped with silk embroidered with silver, and a coverlet designed by the deceased for the purpose covered the body as far as the breast.

Gen. Von Moltke was in the best of spirits early Friday evening and reminded his niece that their supply of wine must be renewed. He narrated the story of a man who had sent him a calculation showing that the general's birthday had never fallen on Sunday, and smilingly added: "If I were superstitious I might believe that I had seen my last birthday."

Summer Residing.

"At our hotel I was the first man at the table, and two families came in and were waited on before the Senegambian would look at me, and after an hour and thirty minutes I got a chance to order some roast beef and baked potatoes, but the perspiring, thick-headed pirate brought me some boiled mutton and potatoes that looked as though they had been put in a wash-tub and mashed by treading on them barefooted. I paid twenty-five cents for a lemon ade made of water and vinegar, with a piece of something on top that might be lemon peel, and it might be pumpkin rind.

"The only night's rest I got was one night when I slept in a car seat. At the hotel the regular guests were kept awake till 12 o'clock by number six headed boys and girls dancing until midnight to the music of a professional piano boxer, and then for two hours the young folks sat on the stairs and yelled and laughed, and after that the girls went to bed and talked two hours more, while the boys went and got drunk and sang 'Allegretto and Kalamasso.'

"Why at one place I was woken up at 5 o'clock in the morning by what I thought was a chariot race in the hall outside, but it was only a lot of young bloods rolling ten pins down by the rooms, using empty wine bottles for pins and China candelabra for balls. I would have gone out and shot enough drunken gamblers for a mess, only I was afraid a candelabra would come on my jaw. Talk about rest, I would rather go to a boiler factory.

"Day, I don't know as you would believe it, but at one place I sent some shirts and things to be washed, and they sent to my room a lot of female undereclothes, and when I kicked about it the landlady he said I would have to wear them, as they had no time to rectify mistakes. He said the season was short and they had to get in their work, and he charged me Fifth Avenue Hotel prices with a face that was childlike and blood, when he knew I had been wiping on diapers for two days in pieces of towels.

"But I must get off here and see if I can find water enough to bathe all over. I will see you down town after I bury these clothes."

And the sticky, cross man got off swearing at summer hotels and pirates. We don't see where he could have been traveling.—Peck's Sunshine.
