DEDICATION

We dedicate this book to the memory of John H. McNeill who died on October 26, 1996. Jack graciously accepted our invitation to be the Institute's keynote speaker, rearranging his very busy schedule to join us in Bloomington. We feel truly fortunate to have included him on our faculty. Those of you who will only have access to his excellent written overview of public international law will miss the personal anecdotes that Jack added making his contribution so special. Jack McNeill was admired by all who had the privilege of working with him. He had many roles and responsibilities that were demanding of his time and energy, and yet legal scholarship and education remained extremely important to him. It was clear that Jack valued books and libraries as only a true scholar can. The field of public international law has lost one of its foremost practitioners and supporters.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

The Editors would like to thank all of the speakers who participated in the AALL Summer Institute on the Contemporary Practice of Public International Law. The success of the Institute was due to their insightful, knowledgeable presentations. We also want to acknowledge and express our appreciation to those who attended the Institute for it is their interest, curiosity and active participation that provided an added stimulus to the sessions.

There are others whose contributions should be acknowledged. The staff of the Law Library at Indiana University was responsible for Local Arrangements and did a wonderful job making all feel welcome and accommodating everyone's needs, often with little notice. In addition, the editors want to thank their respective institutions for their continued support from the very first days of planning the program through the last stages of the production process of this volume. In particular, our appreciation of Amy Pesapane, a Georgetown University law student, must be acknowledged, for without her cheerful editorial assistance this volume would never have been published. Michael Pollak provided able assistance in formatting the manuscripts for publication and we are most grateful.

Ellen would like to thank Sid and Randy would like to thank Sharon for their support and patience over many months.
