The Development Of Catron Co.

The following letter has just been received from our Glenwood correspondent. With such a spirit, if manifested by all of us residing in Catron Co., we would soon be to the forefront in New M+xico:

"I am in receipt of blanks, etc. and will begin work at once, AND AS I AM VERY MUCH INTERESTED IN THE DEVEL-OPEMENT OF CATRON COUNTY I WILL TAKE PLEASURE Attorney, IN THE WORK".

Catron County has possibilities which the average citizen of this section has never thought of.

ection has never thought of.

It seems but a question of pulling together with one accord, looktwo days last week. They attending only to the interest of the county as a whole that it may be developed in the best possible manner. If this is done all will

If jealousy or hatred of one another exists, no matter what the seeming cause, either have an understanding with the other fellow or fight it out and get it out of the system. Such things are the jimson weeds of human character, comparable only to the pardo santo which produces a beautiful white blossom, but whose odor and thorns make it repulsive. Hatred hurts the hater worse than it does the hated and it serves to keep the individual or the community indulging in such silly and childish action, "staked", with no chance for advancement or development. Let's forget it and

Labor Day Celebration

We are two weeks nearer Labor Day celebration than when we tast wrote about it and those who hope to participate should be getting ready. Everybody will be here, Like the story of the tourist possing through Yuma, Ariz. and the town character called Slim-

The story is of tourist who was passing thru Yuma in mid. summer bound for the coast. The train stopped a few minutes at Yuma and for diversion and in desperate effort to get cool, many who had enough vitality left, promenaded the platform. As the story goes, one rather fat, soft, office chair tourist, who had been a most delightful box supper and accustomed to artificially cooled buildings, get off the train, and, dance, the proceeds of which will seeing the Indians, hoboe prospectors and town residents seemingly all there, asked the first man he met, who proved to be outfit for playing basket ball. "Desert Slim", (the only name ever known for him) the following of Tularosa brought the highest > Nothing, said Slim. What do the Mexicans do? Nothing. What do the Americans do? Nothing. What is the population here?" Slim, who ordinarily was as silent as "Bompy" Kiehne, turned his head slowly from left to right, spat out a mouthful of tobacco juice, and said: "They're all here, you can count 'am".

"What do these Indians here do for a living?

The editor and all his force are working for YOU. They want to build the kind of paper that YOU want. Why not help them?

What kind of news do YOU like?

What feature in the paper interests YOU most?

What feature don't YOU like?

These are simple questions, but they are big questions with the editor.

He is spending his time, and money every day and playing ball. Bear in mind that every week to make this newspaper the kind of Magdalens expects to play here every week to make this newspaper the kind of paper that YOU want in your home.

Why not co-operate? If something in the paper pleases YOU, tell the edi.

Wild Cat in Hen Coop Is Killed After Battle

New London, Conn.-Capt. John Fish of Fishtown was aroused last night by the cackling of hens and with his dogs and a rifle the captain hastened to the coop and found in it a wildcat. He shot the animal but did not seriously injure it.

The dogs were sent after the intruder. The cat put up a lively fight, but was finally forced out of the coop and escaped to a nearby tree. Captain Fish took a shotgun and riddled the animal with buckshot until it fell to the ground. The cat weighed 60 pounds, the captain says.

fire at the college, Mulligan was arrested at the instance of the college authorities on the technical charge of a breach of the peace in $1,000 bail and retired to Bergenfield for a rest.

Then there was a very queer fire in the Mulligan home. The family had retired. George, as if warned by a special sense, got up, went downstairs and discovered the blaze shut up in the kitchen closet. He aroused his father, James F. Mulligan, the tax offector, his mother and his brother thurles.

After the fire had been put out with the garden hose and the fire department, Fire Chief William Pape undertook to ascertain the cause of the fire. His pains were unavailing. There was a mystery there that simply stumped him. No fire went through the closet, no electric wires and there were no matches for mice to gnaw,

Chief of Police Coombs was equally nonplussed. The two officials took counsel together and reached the decision that the incident was hardly worth making a bother about. So there It is likely to end, George enjoys the reputation in Bergenfield of being a pretty bright young man, studious and quiet. His father is confident he had nothing to do with the fire.

GREAT MEN FOND OF JESTING

Moments of Lightheartedness Said to Have Been Part of Even Napoleon's Grim Character.

Sir James Barrie thrust his pick into a profitable seam when he recently reminded the St. Andrews students of Scotland that greatness and a certain lightheartedness nearly always go hand in hand. He gave one or two examples from ancient and modern history, and the list could be extended. It might be true to say generally that the greater the man and the greater his responsibilities the more frolic. Of course, there are exceptions snow is always followed by clearing to every rule. Napoleon seems to have been a little grim and irritable even with his old soldiers. Ernest Truex's Garden.

Ernest Truex belongs to the complacent commuter class. All last winter his cozy library was filled with garden and floral catalogues until the color glare hurt your eyes. Outside the front yard and the garden awaited with impatience the glad spring when Ernest, the sower, would come forth to sow. Then someone who knew and loved Ernest Truex and who believed in encouraging his planting propensities sent him a box bulging with envelopes filled with seeds. Oh! such lot of nice ambitious seeds! Hollybocks, pansies, sweet alyssum, trailing arbutus, bleeding hearts, nasturtlums, sweet peas and many others, the names of which were even Greek to Great Neck.

The great day came and into the warm bosom of mother earth went the seed. Then came sun, dew and rain and all earth's processes and little bits of green began to rise ambitiously from the tilled earth, but somehow or other to sower Ernest they did not look right. They were too green. And one day came the discovery. Instead of all the flowers with the beautiful names on the envelopes were beets, turnips, carrots, lettuce, radishes and all that sort of thing.-Exchange.

Anthony, booted and muffled for the work, went out with his snow shovel As he shoveled the fleecy whiteness and the blood went tingling through him. Driven by the anguished memories and bitter remorse that he had not humbled himself to the ground to keep his beautiful love, the man worked furiously, half blinded by the mist before his eyes; for an hour he shoveled, forgetting that he had not crossed the stretch between his house and Rose Mary's.

Three women watched him breath-

Miss Amanda saw him when he retraced his steps on the cleared walk and fell to shoveling again. "He is crazy-he thinks he has passed Rose Mary's house—and he believes he's Rose Mary watched him with shining eyes, and a face kissed by the north wind into rosy blushes. "Ah. Tony-Tony, you must care a little!" she whispered as he went on toward his aunt's house.

At last he stopped. He thought he was getting cold, for never had he been so tired after shoveling off the two walks. He waved a greeting to Aunt Emmeline, and plodded on toward home. As he passed Rose Mary's gate a loved voice-how long since he had heard it-called him-"Anthony-Tony, stop, please." He whirled about. The watching aunts saw his eager, bewildered face beneath his lifted cap. "Thank you, Tony, for clearing my walk," she said. Yes, Rose Mary had spoken to him again after the bitter years! "For clearing your walk?" he re-

LAID CURSE ON THE BIRDS

Tells How Churchman Ascribed Evil Influences to the Singers, and Banished Them.

In the days of the crusades when that Bernard who wrote the hymn "Jesu the Very Thought of Thee' was the greatest man in Europe the monks of Himmerade in the Upper Moselle valley on the Rhine were accused of leading wicked lives. Bernard went to rebuke the sins which were making the country notorious, but found he could accomplish nothing. It was a great country for singing birds, for it was just at the mating season of the year, and after consideration the good man decided that the songs of the birds were leading the monks into wrong. So out he went into the fields and woods, and cursed the poor birds, ordering them to be banished. Then, so the story goes, the monks became good and led holy lives as they had promised. But the abbess of a large convent on the island of Studen heard of the curse, and pitving the poor birds induced them to come and live near her establishment. Then the robins, nightingales and larks settled and sang. But to the nuns their sing-ing was of heavenly not earthly love, and led them on to nobler, sweeter lives, for to the pure all things are pure. This continued for a time until the evil once again brought temptation and the Studen convent became noted for its evil as it had been before and was pulled down because of the bad example. But it is very likely that the birds had but little to do with it in either case. At any rate that is the tale they tell you there to this day, says the Montreal Family Herald.

Tiger Had Taste for Chinamen. The tigers of the Malay peninsula have developed a wonderful liking for bridge steel at 4% cents against 7 to the Chinese laborers employed on public works. Perhaps this is partly due to the Chinamen's belief that the tigers are only big cats and are not to be feared. A British official writing in the Asia Magazine, says: "At a certain place where a gang was assembled for work, a maneater used to take a Chinaman each evening after dark from almost the same spot. This continued for some time. Learning of it, the superintendent of police, Captain Svers, our great shikari, dressed as a Chinaman, and nightly patrolled the road. Malays laughed, saying: 'Of course the tiger knows all about it. They believed that the tiger possessed supernatural intelligence. And it certainly seemed that he did, for after many nights without sleep, the sports man, who had never had the slightest indication of a tiger's presence, gave up and went home. The evening of his departure that tiger carried off another Chinaman from the same spot."

Hottentot Never Warlike.

Despite the ferocious connotation of his name the primitive Hottentot seldom engaged in war. He was accounted gentle and tractable. His most explosive quality was the language, now enough so far as the noises that sound like a fuse had just burned out, and also in respect to its vowelized syllables, but the rapid combination of the two few white men could imitate. There was little reason for the Hottentot to fight, since all he required gorah, a crude sort of mouth organ. made of a hollow stick and the entrails of a sheep. A drum and a reed, which had the quality of a flute, completed the list.-National Geographic Society Bulletin.

IMPROVED ROADS

GOOD ROAD SAVES MILLIONS

Men With Tools Enabled to Reach Threatened Break in Levee and Stop Rising Waters.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.) A federal-aid road has just been completed in Arkansas which has already saved millions of dollars to the community in which it is built. Recently juring high water in the Mississippl word came to Helena, Ark., that the levee at Old Town, 17 miles away, was about to break. The situation was critical. A few hours' delay and thousands of acres of rich farming and would be flooded, and possibly many lives lost. Helena was the only source of aid, and many men with tools and material were needed. Every available motor vehicle was pressed into service and over 600 men, properly equipped for the work, were in a short time speeding over the new road to save the levee. They arrived in the nick of time and by almost superhuman efforts dammed back the ris ing waters. Residents say that had it been necessary to make the trip over the old road the levee could not have been reached in time and that the workers would have needed boats rather than motor vehicles

Seven Million Square Yards Being Distributed to Various State Highway Departments.

Seven million square yards of canyas duck received by the bureau of public roads, United States Department of Agriculture, as surplus war material, is now being distributed to state highway departments for use in road construction. A great quantity of the material will be used to protect concrete roads from the sun while they are being cured and to protect from rain cement piled rendy for use on the roads. It will also be used as tents for road construction gangs, roofs rapidly disappearing, which was easy for temporary storage houses and garages, and to cover road machinery.

Craze Exists for Dresses, Suits. | THE BLUE AND WHITE DOTTED Blouses and Sweaters.

Sport Clothes Play Important Part; Two-Piece Suits Are Given Decided Preference.

Women ever have been accused of fickleness, especially in the fancies that they take for certain types of dress. Very likely, observes a cor-respondent in the New York Tribune, we took the trouble to investigate what lies behind fashlons, we would find women less fickle in this respect than mere man supposes-for it is nan who always accuses us of this.

This leads up to the costume of knitted materials, for which a veritable craze has developed. They won't last long was the prediction of many people when knitted dresses, suits, blouses and sweaters appeared in such profusion in the latter part of the winter, but the fashion has endured and will continue to endure for a long, long time because of the ability of a group of people to lift this type of costume entirely out of the humdrum category of the merely practical and not at all beautiful outdoor costume. They have done it by combining beautiful colors, by brocading knitted wool materials in patterns of silk in both contrasting and harmonizing shades and also through the introduction of wonderful embrolderles on knitted fabrics. Conse quently, we find ourselves in the midst umber of Educated Gentlewomen Who Are Earning Their Living Is Increasing Every Year-New Occupations Are Open.

Like Knitted Wear French Marriage Customs Change

Being Won in Fashion of English Sisters.

London.-French parents know no better than English parents what to do with their daughters, writes a Paris correspondent of the Times. When marriage falls, or is unduly delayed, action becomes imperative. Formerly, marriage was the invariable remedy; today there are not enough men to go round, and girls must look for some alternative to wifehood and motherhood when they leave school, An alm in life is essential. Their and turn reluctantly from matchmaking to the choice of a career. The girls Frenchwomen, are less reluctant, because they do not despair of finding a husband and are glad to think they may meet him and choose him for themselves.

Sometimes their dreams are realized, and there are many happily married women in France who have been wooed and won in the English way. They met their husbands through their work. The numbers of educated gentlewomen who are earning their living, or preparing to do so, increase every year. The liberal professions include many qualified women. There are a few notable cases where women are associated with big business concerns, hitherto only run by men. In agriculture women sometimes direct their estates, but there is no general femand white brooches and black and inine movement towards outdoor manual labor. Women gardeners can be vie in favor with black and white little counted on one hand; farmers are almost as rare.

Upholds Modern Mothers.

Mme. Leon Daudet in her recent ook, "Comment Elever nos Filles," puts herself on the side of modern mothers in such things as sport and liberty of thought "within measure," but is opposed to the idea of women taking a part in politics, law, medicine or business. She does not be-Heve they will find happiness in a public career: "La veritable vie des femmes est a la maison." She would have her daughters accomplished in fine arts and fine manners, charitable, domesticated, "sachant composer un menu et au besoin l'executer." They should excel in well chosen sports, and in their late teens Balzac's novels might be set before them.

In all they do they should be watched over and guarded. For daughters so educated marriage is the only desirable end. They are ill fitted to go out into the world.

M. Pierre Soulaine in his novel, "La Rue de la Paix," draws a vivid picture of a girl brought up in this way who is forced eventually to earn her living. It does not offer an encourneing contlook and one feels the girl who must earn her livelihood needs something more than the education which even a delightful and virtuous home can give. She emerges from her Electra, Tex.-"Daddy-Daddy, help me!" were the agonizing cries which came from the ten-inch opening of an oil well here. Rescuers worked franrically, but the narrowness of the hole, which was 180 feet deep, handlcapped their efforts. Ir was a race with death which lasted five hours, but death won. Rising water in the hole drowned the child before grappling hooks were fastened into the clothing and the body was drawn from the well. The child was Lee Gandy, four. He stepped into the opening of the well.

Many Girls Happily Wedded After shell too much of a woman to stand

That there are French women who understand that their daughters must be better armed for life is evident, but they belong more generally to the petite bourgeoisie than to the grande bourgeoisie, or the aristocracy. Not until quite lately have women of the upper classes contemplated taking up paid work outside their homes, and the prospect confounds them. Many mothers would like to see their daughters married unsuitably rather than not married and forced to earn their living.

"We had gone about 15 miles when we were stopped by a river. It was not wide nor deep, but it was very swift and great pieces of ice floated on It.

"We were still standing on the bank of the river when we saw a band of Indians coming toward us. I stood close to where they emerged from behind a small knoll, so there was nothing for me to do but await developments. The others ran.

Live on Grasses.

"Afterward we learned that these Indians were known as the Terre del Fuego Indians. Their name was derived from the land in which they lived, dubbed Terre del Fuego by sailors because of the peculiar blue light that shone over the Islands at times. The Indians were no clothes except a loin belt, despite the extremely cold weather. The belt they obtained from the skin of a Gunaco, a species of deer that thrives in that territory. "We lived for several days on what few grasses we could find and upon a small shellfish, something like a clam. We found these growing on rocks. "About a week later we reached St.

During that time one of our comrades died from exposure and the rest were on the verge of death by starvation when we were picked up by the coast guard boat Amatio. We found out that a revolution had taken place in Argentine and that it had been necessary to take off all the coast guard boats.

"We were taken to Ooswar, the most southernly port in the world, and stayed there for about a month before we finally caught a boat to San Francisco again.'

REQUESTS AID IN COAL CRISIS

HARDING ASKS GOVERNORS OF 28 COAL STATES TO SAFE. GUARD WORKERS.

WILL PROTECT MINES

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE EXPLAINS FAILURE OF COAL STRIKE CONFERENCE

Washington.-In the name of the ommon welfare, and the paramount need of the American people for the production and transportation of a fuel supply. President Harding, through telegrams, called upon the governors of twenty-eight coal states to furnish protection and safeguards to men and employers willing to resume work in the industry notwithstanding the mine workers' strike. To the efforts of the states in this direction, he said, "the federal government pledges to you every assistance at its command."

Behind the telegrams there loomed he definite indication of a government decision to obtain the resumption of transportation and mining, both hampered by labor walkouts which high government officials consider interconnected and associated.

Replying to a question, Attorney General Daugherty sald: "Naturally here's a relationship between the ralloud and coal situations, whether inspired or conspired, I am not saying."

John L. Lewis, president of the Inited Mine Workers of America, defared the President's message to the overnors "merely a gesture which will not produce coal in any substantial quantity," and asserted that the mine vorkers' strike would be continued.

Before the telegrams had been dis atched, Samuel Gompers, president of he American Federation of Labor, oredicted in a statement that Presient Harding's invitation to the operitors to resume operations would re sult in no appreciable increase in pro luction. He added that "when 500,000 en are aggrieved is a poor time ineed for the roll of drams, the rattling f sabres and the pounding of the niled fist."

President Harding in his telegrams explained in detail the negotiations and conferences with union officers and mine operators and the offer of existing wage scales to the striking siners, all of which had ended, he aid, in failure to reach a voluntary dlustment and left no recourse but to nvite the mine operators to return to heir mines and resume operations. for this last endeavor, he asked the ssistance of the states

The telegrams went to the gover ors of the following states;

Governor Kilby, Alabama; McRae rknnsns; Shoup, Colorado; Hardwick, eorgia; Small, Illinois; McCray, Inllana; Kendall, Iowa: Allen, Kansas Morrow, Kentucky; Ritchie, Mary land; Groesbeck, Michigan; Hyde, Mis souri; Dixon, Montana; Mechem, New Mexico; Morrison, North Carolina; Nestos, North Dakota; Davis, Ohio; Robertson, Oklahoma; Olcott, Oregon; Sproul, Pennsylvania: McMaster, Taylor Neff, Texas; Mabey, Utnh; Trinkle, Virginia; Hart, Washington; Morgan, West Virginia, and Carey, Wyoming.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Plans for a nation-wide live stock re orting service showing the monthly changes in the live stock situation on farms are now being made by the United States Department of Agriculture, under the $70,000 congressional appropriation recently made for this work. The service will also include the forecasting and reporting of the important live stock movements.

perts it was felt that the monthly re ports of changes on the farm should include reports of births, deaths, losses, marketings, purchases, and animals bred, with periodical classifications of the numbers of animals on farms. This service will be an expansion of experimental work carried on by the division of crop and live stock estimates during the last three or four years, Monthly reports will be obtained from 70,000 to 100,-000 farms, and state indexes of changes at least for the corn belt and eastern and southern states will developed. The range states on cattle and sheep will be covered by a series of semi-annual reports be cause of the difficulty of getting monthly reports from those states. Information to Be Given.

The forecasting and reporting of the important live stock movements will be based upon the movement of feeder cattle and lambs from the range states to the corn belt feed lots, the movement from the feed lots to market, the movement into the eastern feed lots such as Lancaster, Pa., and the movement out, the forecasting and estimating of the yearly lamb and estimates of the feeder hog movement in the Middle West. PREVENT OUTBREAKS OF INJURIOUS PEST Control Webworms in Corn by Cultural Methods.

After Crop is Once Planted and Field Is Found to Be Infested There Is No Practicable Way of Getting Rid of Them.

(Prepared by the United States Departm.mi Outbreaks of webworms in corn in the Middle Eastern states can be prevented only by cultural methods, according to the bureau of entomology of the United States Department of Agriculture. Unlike most of our de structive pests, the various species of webworms are all natives of America and have not been introduced from foreign lands.

Summer or very early fall plowing should be practiced. Plowing in late October or November has little effect because the worms are already in their winter webs under the surface of the ground. Land that has been in sod or pasture, or lain fallow and grown up to weeds and grass should be plowed in July or August, if it is intended to plant it to corn the following spring.

Grasslands of all kinds-meadows, pastures, or lawns-furnish the normal food of sod webworms, but they also gnaw young corn plants below the surface and deform them so as to prevent the production of grain. After the corn is once planted and the field is found to be infested there is no practicable method of getting rid of the worms; the only thing that can be done is to produce conditions that will permit the corn to grow in spite of them.

Disking in the spring, the application of fertilizer, and the sowing of sound seed are the chief preventive meas ures that will have any effect. Nelther poisoning nor trapping has me with any success.

GREEN MANURING AIDS SOIL

Really One of Oldest Methods-Crops for This Purpose Were Used by Ancients.

Green manuring-plowing under green crops-as a means of soil improvement, although it has been emphasized in recent years, can hardly be called a new discovery, says the United States Department of Agriculture. It is really one of the oldest methods. Crops for this purpose were used by the ancients, the Romans using lupines, which were sown in September and turned under in May for the benefit of the following crop.

In Germany the use of lupines began in the middle of the Nineteenth century and has proved an important factor in reclaiming the sandy lands of parts of Prussia. In England he figures up his profits on a bunch of legumes and other plants are com- pigs or cattle. monly used; in India and Japan the farmers gather green plants of many kinds, sometimes even cutting twigs from the trees and carrying them to the rice fields.

the United States the use of special green-manure crops is much more general in the South than in the North. Under irrigation they play an mportant part in orchard culture in the West, but not under dry-farming conditions,

CLEAN BATH BEST FOR HOGS

Animals Will Show Appreciation by Making Profitable Gains If Given Chance,

Given a chance hogs will keep themselves clean. While we have come to associate these animals and muddy wallows, the fact of the matter is hat the hogs are usually compelled to live in places where they cannot avoid he mud. If the premises are so arranged that the swine can keep the bodles washed off and at the same time stay out of the mud they will respond in gains as an expression of their appreciation for the opportunity to have regular clean baths

SUITABLE FEEDS FOR SWINE

Crops of Barley, Kafir or Milo Should Raise Hogs.

Many persons living in a section where good corn crops cannot be raised in an average season hesitate to raise hogs even if they can produce large crops of barley, feterita, kafir or milo. For all practical purposes these feeds are just as good as corn for growing or fattening hogs, and anyone who can produce these crops can grow hogs.

Limited Hits Freight Train.

Kansas City, Mo.-Six persons were killed and forty injured, most of them seriously, when the Missouri Pacific Scenic Limited flyer, westbound, from St. Louis to California, collided headon with a local freight train here. Most of the passengers were from the East, a railroad official said here. The train makes few stops in Missouri and Kansas. Misunderstood orders are believed the cause of the wreck.

Big Lumber Company Buys Timber. Washington, D. C .- The forest service of the United States Department of Agriculture announces the sale of 235,000,000 board feet along the upper Sauk river, Snoqualmie National Forest. Washington. Areas adjacent to this tract, which are reserved for future sale, contain approximately 1,200 million feet of timber. Under the proposed plan of forest management, the average yearly cut will be limited to 40,000,000 board feet. Forty years will be required to cut out the existing merchantable timber, by which time the present immature timber will be ready for the ax. By the practice of scientific forestry, logging operations can thus be sustained in perpetuity.

U. S. Will Protect Mails.

FIND BEST OILS ARE ECONOMICAL

Manufacturers for Years Have Called Attention to Importance of Lubrication.

OWNERS DEPEND ON DEALERS

Inferior Article Decomposes Easily and Forms Large Quantities of Sediment and Carbon Residue -Wear Is Result.

Automobile manufacturers for years have been impressing on motorists the vast importance of correct lubrication for the maintenance of the internal combustion engine. Their stand has been taken from an economical standpoint and in order to insure the long life of the motor.

A recent investigation in the oil market showed that a large percentage of automobile owners do not specify a particular brand when purchasing a lubricating oil, but depend entirely on the judgment and preference of the dealer. This fact makes possible the harmful practice of substitution of an inferior grade at the price of a quality oil.

Educational Campaign.

Feeling that there are definite steps which can be taken to eliminate this fact, the producers have inaugurated an educational advertising campaign by means of which the importance of correct lubrication is taken up step by step in a language which any layman can thoroughly understand.

Lubrication has become recognized as such an important factor that engineers have spent years of intensive research to produce a lubricant which will maintain its body under the extreme heat generated in the motor, which varies from 150 to 1,000 degrees Fahrenheit, and to function properly ander every possible condition,

Inferior Oil Wasteful. It has been found that an inferior lubricating oil very easily decomposes and forms large quantities of sediment and carbon residue which has no lubricating value and is therefore waste material. This sediment and

That the carburetor strainer should be cleaned and drained regularly in order that no dirt can pass into this delicate mechanism, which is, in reality, the "lungs" of the automobile. Trouble with the carburetor is generally due to the presence of some tiny bit of dirt which has passed the strainer and which, like a morsel of food swallowed "the wrong way," interferes with the breathing. Even the smallest particle of foreign matter in the needle valve or the intake valve of the vaporizer will cause the engine to splutter and splt and It is seldom that this trouble can be eradicated until the dirt or dust has been removed.

Even the straining of gasoline through wire gauze or a piece of chamois does not do away with the danger from fouling the carburtor, for a considerable amount of sediment always accumulates in the gasoline tank, and this will be carried forward to the carburetor. For this reason, the strainer itself should be drained off regularly and then thoroughly cleansed, in order to insure the proper function of the "lungs of the car."

Children Cry For

Special Care of Baby.

That Baby should have a bed of its own all are agreed. Yet it is more reasonable for an infant to sleep with grown-ups than to use a man's medicine in an attempt to regulate the delicate organism of that same infant. Either practice is to be shunned. Neither would be tolerated by specialists in children's diseases.

Your Physician will tell you that Baby's medicine must be prepared with even greater care than Baby's food.

A Baby's stomach when in good health is too often disarranged by improper food. Could you for a moment, then, think of giving to your ailing child anything but a medicine especially prepared for Infants and Children ? Don't be deceived.

Make a mental note of this:-It is important, Mothers, that you should remember that to function well, the digestive organs of your Baby must receive special care. No Baby is so abnormal that the desired results may be had from the use of medicines primarily prepared for grown-ups.
