BALLINGER HERE ON FRIDAY

Comes to Inspect Irrigation Works in New Mexico

SANTA FE POSTAL CENTER

Supplies and Stamped Paper for New Mexico to Be Kept Here.

Governor Curry today received word from Los Angeles, California, that Secretary of the Interior Ballinger will arrive in Santa Fe on Friday evening. The telegram does not state how long he will remain in the Territory but it is believed he will spend at least three days inspecting the Engle and the Rio Hondo reclamation works.

U. S. District Court.
An adjourned session of U. S. district court was held today at the capitol with Judge John R. McFie on the bench. Argument for a new trial in the Williams postoffice burglary case was to be heard and also sentence imposed upon Adolfo Espinosa, postmaster of Rancho de Taos for embezzlement.

Judge McFie sentenced James Williams to three years in the penitentiary, having overruled the motion for a new trial. Williams was found guilty of robbing the postoffice at La Plata. The sentencing of Espinosa was continued until the next term of court, so as to give Espinosa time to make complete restitution of the amount embezzled, about $4,500, which he has offered to do.

Judge McFie then adjourned U. S. court until the next regular term. He also drew the jurors for territorial district court in San Juan county. The territorial district court for Santa Fe county is still in session.

To Be Postal Supply Center.
Postmaster S. B. Grimshaw is in receipt of a letter from Third Assistant Postmaster A. L. Lawshe asking him whether the Santa Fe postoffice would undertake to act as a distributing center for this section of postal supplies, including postal cards, stamps and stamped envelopes. Postmaster Grimshaw assured the third assistant that Santa Fe on account of its three railroads and other facilities certainly is the logical point for the keeping of supplies.

LAIID IN HIS LAST RESTING PLACE.

Funeral of Colonel Max. Frost Attended By Friends From All Parts of Territory.

Whatever was mortal of Colonel Max. Frost was laid to its last resting place in Fairview cemetery yesterday afternoon. The Grand Lodge of Ancient, Free and Accepted Masons of New Mexico had charge of the funeral which took place from the Frost residence on Palace avenue. Before the appointed hour many friends of the deceased came to look for the last time upon the features of their friend. The remains reclined in a handsome casket and looked very life-like. Magnificent floral tributes filled the room, beautiful tokens of love and respect from different organizations and individuals.

The Lodge of Sorrow in Masonic hall was called to order by Grand Master Cutler of Raton and the Masons including the Grand Lodge officers and many men prominent in New Mexico affairs marched from the lodge rooms to the house where the beautiful ritual was read. At the grave the ceremony was impressive and touching, especially when the Masons paid the funeral honors and Brother Nathan Jaffa repeated the immortal words from Bryant's Thanatopsis:

"So live that when thy summons come, etc."

Rev. E. McQueen Gray, president of the University of New Mexico, was chaplain. The pall bearers were: Dr. James H. Wroth of Albuquerque; Dr. W. S. Harroun of Santa Fe; Colonel J. W. Willson of Roswell; J. J. Kelly of Silver City; C. N. Blackwell of Raton; C. H. Sporer of Las Vegas; G. W. Ward of Las Vegas; J. W. Poe of Roswell. On behalf of the local Masonic lodge, Dr. J. A. Massie was in charge of the ceremonies. It was an impressive moment as each Masonic brother in turn, cast a twig of evergreen upon the coffin to the solemn words of "Dust to dust; ashes to ashes."

TAFT'S SEVEN BUSY HOURS

Dedicates Chapel Despondent Over Failure of Mineral Point Bank

REVIEWS TROOPS THERE

Now Bound for His Brother's Ranch at Corpus Christi for Rest.

San Antonio, Texas, Oct. 18.—President Taft spent a busy seven hours here before leaving for his brother's ranch at Corpus Christi. Early in the morning the President was taken to Fort Sam Houston where he laid the corner stone of the chapel presented to the fort by the citizens of San Antonio, and reviewed the troops. Later he drove through the streets and held a reception in the Alamo plaza. His visit ended with an informal luncheon.

Taft's Brother at San Antonio.
San Antonio, Texas, Oct. 18.—Charles P. Taft, brother of President Taft and owner of the Taft ranch, arrived in this city Saturday. He is accompanied by his family. After a stay here of a few hours they will depart for Gregory one of the railroad stations on the property. It is Mr. Taft's intention to hurry to the ranch a little ahead of the time for the purpose of putting the finishing touches on the preparations that have been made for the reception of his brother, the President.

While in this city he and his family were the guests of the Taft reception committee.

Rapid Mobilization of Troops.
San Antonio, Texas, Oct. 18.—Ten special trains, each with a headway of fifteen minutes, conveyed practically all of Fort Sam Houston's garrison to El Paso where is was present on the occasion of the meeting of the chief executives of the American and Mexican republics. Nearly 2,000 men and over 900 animals had to be transported over the rails. The supreme test of mobilization, however, came when the troops were sent back to their post. To reach Fort Sam Houston as per schedule their trains had to travel faster than that of the President. They did not entrain at El Paso until President Taft had left the city and had to pass him en route in order to get to Fort Sam Houston in time to be reviewed by him this morning. It is this latter part of the movement that tested the real efficiency of American mobilization methods.

CASHIER HANSCOM KILLS HIMSELF

Despondent Over Failure of Mineral Point Bank

MOTHER-IN-LAW FALLS DEAD

Double Tragedy in Wake of Financial Wrong Doing.

Mineral Point, Wis., Oct. 18.—F. E. Hanscom, cashier of the wrecked First National bank, shot and killed himself last night. His body was removed to the home of his mother-in-law, Mrs. John Gray. At the sight of the body, Mrs. Gray dropped dead. Hanscom had been working night and day since the failure of the bank and was despondent.

Hanscom was a brother-in-law of Phil Allen, Jr., vice president of the bank who was arrested last Friday charged with looting $200,000 from the bank by means of forged notes.

Hanscom was Allen's chief assistant in running the bank and has worked night and day, aiding Bank Examiner Goodhart in straightening out the books. It has been rumored that other arrests were to have followed Allen's.

Hanscom's body was found late last night lying on his mother's grave in the local cemetery.

AT PISTOL POINT MEN SECURE POCKET BOOK.

Special to the New Mexican.

Las Vegas, Oct. 18.—Last night about ten o'clock two unknown men forced entrance into the bedroom of Mrs. Kate Sells just as the latter was about to retire. At the point of a revolver the men compelled the woman to give up her purse containing $86 and then made their escape through the same window through which they had entered. In her excitement and fear Mrs. Sells fainted, dropping an oil lamp which she had in her hands, setting fire to the house. The floor of the room blazed up and was nearly consumed when Mrs. Sells regained her senses. She succeeded after a hard fight, in extinguishing the flames. No clue of the robbers has yet been discovered.

DEFEAT FOR POSTAL BANK MEASURE.

Conclusions of Canvass of Congress Announced By Chicago Magazine.

Chicago, Oct. 18.—Enactment of a postal savings bank bill at the next session of Congress will fail unless its friends combine their efforts, unite in an organized campaign and present as compact a front as the opposing banking interests, declares "Every-day Life," editorially as a conclusion reached by a canvass of votes in Congress. The urgent advocacy by President Roosevelt and by President Taft will go for naught unless the friends of the measure rally in force under one banner. Continuing the address to the public it declares:

"For a time it looked as if it might be possible to win the fight with your silent, moral support. But the American Bankers' Association is bending every energy to defeat the people's demands for a postal savings system, and unless you get busy and come into the game in a personal way it seems likely that this powerful organization will be able to strangle the bill in Congress.

"Here is the situation: There is small reason to doubt that a majority of members of Congress, in both Houses, are in favor of the bill, as a matter of personal belief and sentiment, but the hostile influence of the bankers is so strong that if a vote were taken today the vote would show against the bill, not for it.

"One able representative put the situation in this light: 'There are a great many bankers in this country; they are respectable; they are dignified; they are plausible; they are powerful, and they are organized.' When they speak with one voice they make a very convincing sound, that penetrates even to the duldest ears in Washington. On the other hand, the people who want a postal savings system are right—but they are unorganized! If they would make their voices heard in Congress, if they would get together and make a noise at the same time they would get the support of a good majority in Congress and get the legislation they want. In other words, there is enough friendly sentiment in Congress to pass the postal savings measure provided the people will give them the tangible evidences of their strong moral backing."

"If half a million letters from individual citizens asking for votes for this bill were to be sent to members of Congress before the close of the next session the measure would become a law, hands down!"

"In other words, the members of Congress are in the position in this matter of demure maidens who have been 'asked' by one suitor, but are waiting for a formal proposal by the one they really favor; they cannot consent before they are asked, without loss of influence and self-respect."

"This puts the matter up to you. There is just one way to get a half-million letters into the hands of the Congressmen. We must extend the membership of the Postal Savings Bank League into every city and town and community of this country. Will you do yourself the distinction of becoming the first member of the league in your community."

"In his recent speeches President Taft has made it plain that he is for a postal savings system—for it good and hard! And we believe that Congress is with him—only we must give the members such a body of letters, such a tidal wave of public opinion in black-and-white that the most timid will not hesitate to vote for the measure."

One applicant for membership in the Postal Savings Bank League, the manager of a big coal company in Montana, wrote: "I believe that that class of people now having the savings bank idea (private savings bank) will not be induced to change their deposits from a private to a government postal bank, paying a lesser rate of interest."

"I know of numbers of people that will not deposit in banks of any kind. Some of these very people pay to deposit their savings with the government at this time, doing this in the way of buying money orders, which they carry with them until such time as they have actual need of money. I have no doubt that this class of people would become postal savings bank depositors, and when duly educated to receiving interest money, would in due time, many of them become depositors in private savings banks."

"Thrift makes a nation. Thrift is induced by economy. Economy is induced by saving. Get them all saving."

MIRACULOUS RESCUE FROM WATERY GRAVE.

Crisfield, Md., Oct. 18.—When the schooner George M. Collier turned turtle in Chesapeake Bay on Saturday, James O'Donnell, one of the crew, was caught below the decks and his companions who clung to the overland craft for hours thought him dead. Yesterday, when the schooner was towed to the ship yard and turned over, O'Donnell was found alive, but barely conscious from hunger and exposure. He had been kept alive by air compressed beneath the hull when the ship turned over.

Prominent Men Sign Protest.

Premier, Not King, to Blame.

Paris, Oct. 18.—A special from Madrid says that Alfonso has had a violent quarrel with the premier because the latter did not give the king a chance to exercise the right of pardon in the Ferrer case. It is said in Madrid that the fall of Premier Maura is momentarily expected.

Vatican on Guard.

Rome, Oct. 18.—Armed guards are patrolling the vatican, and Cardinal Merry del Val has abandoned his afternoon drives, because of warnings of expected attacks on the Pope. The execution of Ferrer in Spain has been seized upon by the anti-clericals as a pretext for a renewal of the campaign against the vatican and the religious orders.

Vatican attaches have been advised by the police to exercise caution and not expose themselves to the anti-clericals.

The vatican is guarded by a large force, and bayonets surround the Spanish embassy and the religious institutions.

Not much is said in political circles but the impression seems to be that other governments of Europe soon may be involved in a struggle with the revolutionary element. The outcry of the radicals of Spain is echoed throughout Italy.

THE DAILY ROUND UP.

SANTA FE.

(Santa Fe Employees' Magazine.)
Song, by Arthur Graves Canfield, on the hills above Santa Fe at midnight.

Sleep, little town; the night grows old,
Orion stoops to kiss the hills,
And silence all the valleys fills,
And flocks are still in field and fold.

Sleep, little town; the creeping mist
Muffles the river at thy feet,
Hushed are the noises of the street,
And all the mighty winds are whist.

Sleep, little town; thy rugged notch Enfolds thee close from foes and fears;
And lo! above thee through the years
The mountains keep their sleepless watch.

He therefore never took out naturalization papers although he had lived near Gallup upward of 25 years.

THREE WOLVES AND BILLY MARTIN'S CHICKENS.

Mark Twain's White Elephant Was of the Same Class as These Hunny Pets.

The following tale of the three wolves and Red Ridinghood, is taken from the Socorro Chieftain:

"Hon. W. E. Martin was some time ago made the recipient of three young wolves as presents from admiring friends. Mr. Martin was not quite in the predicament of the man who caught the tiger and wanted somebody to help him to let go, for he knew just what to do with his wild pets. He had cages made for them and had them safely bestowed as he supposed. But the wolves have been growing fast of late and their appetite for chicken has been growing even faster. Two or three times recently the wolves have escaped from their cages and made forays in the chicken yard. On such occasions it has required all Mr. Martin's skill as a diplomat to restore the plantation to peace and order. But Thursday night affairs reached a climax. One of the wolves managed in some mysterious way to escape from his cage. When Mrs. Martin went out doors in the morning his royal wolfness was sitting by the woodpile looking very content but growing defiance. Chicken feathers scattered about in profusion were evidence enough that there had been something doing. To say that Mrs. Martin was mad wouldn't be nice. That lady was indignant and she was angry. Now Mr. Martin was up at Albuquerque with his Socorro invincibles beating all creation play-

To check early colds or Grippe with "Preventics" means sure defeat for Pneumonia. To stop a cold with Preventics is safer than to let it run and be obliged to cure it afterwards. ing baseball, so Mrs. Martin called to Professor Walker, who lives next door, to come over and kill that wolf. Professor Walker came over, picked up the ax by the way, and severed the wolf's head nearly from his body at a blow. Then followed an investigation during which eighteen chickens that the wolf had killed and buried were exhumed. Some of these were rare birds that had cost Mr. Martin ten dollars apiece, so that Mr. Martin's return home is now anticipated with interest."

GLEANINGS BY A PERIPATETIC PEN

H. R. H.

Don't knock. The Ambassador Crane episode is sufficient evidence of what Knox can do.

Mat Henson, the negro, who is supposed to have reached the pole with Peary is to trail along the lecture circuit after Cook. But that's nothing. Just now it appears that there is something a heap side worse on the trail of the Brooklyn explorer.

In court it will probably no longer be the custom to say: "Let the witness take the stand." Instead we will probably hear: "Bring on the Eskimos."

The attack on New Mexico's courts appeared in Collier's weekly. The article was indeed weakly.

Taft has promised to do all he can for New Mexico in the way of securing statehood. All of which means that there is going to be something doing at the next session of Congress.

Well, now, who did discover the north pole?

It is going to take more than gum drops to refute Peary's charges.

Before Taft completes his present trip the south may be storm swept in an entirely new way.

It is reported that a certain Santa Fe man complained to the Santa Fe agent that no special rate was provided to Albuquerque on President's day. When the agent said there was a rate the man is reported to have taken the agent over to the depot and showed him the sign reading "Don't expectorate." The agent has not yet recovered.

The New Mexican can do printing equal to that done in any of the large cities. Our solicitor, every piece of work we turn out. Try our stock once and you will certainly come again. We have all the facilities for turning out every class of work, including one of the best binderies in the west.

VERIFY IT

The Proof is in Santa Fe Almost at Your Door.

The public statement of a Santa Fe citizen is in itself strong proof for Santa Fe people, but confirmation strengthens the evidence.

Here is a Santa Fe citizen who testified years ago that Doan's Kidney Pills relieved sick kidneys and now states the cure was permanent. Can any sufferer from kidney ills ask better proof? You can investigate. The case is right at home.

Lino Romero, Palace avenue, Santa Fe, N. M., says: "I know that Doan's Kidney Pills fulfill the claims made for them. If I were not confident of this fact, I could never have been induced to give this remedy my endorsement. There was a dull ache in the small of my back that bothered me for a long time and had by spells been the cause of my laying off from work for two or three days. Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at Stripling, Burrows & Co.'s drug store, brought me entire relief and the few slight attacks of back-ache I have had since then have quickly yielded to this remedy. I will always hold a high opinion of Doan's Kidney Pills."

Mr. Romero gave the above testimony in January, 1907, and when interviewed on June 29, 1909, he said: "I can speak as highly of Doan's Kidney Pills now as when I publicly endorsed them two and a half years ago. This remedy always gives me the desired benefit when I use it."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

OBLIGED TO APPEAL

TO EUROPE.

Strong Point Will Be Made By Currency Revisionists by Act of Congress.

Washington, Oct. 18.—One eloquent fact—that with coffers overflowing with gold, America was obliged to appeal to Europe for relief in the panic of 1907—is a strong point of the argument that will be made to Congress by the advocates of a revision of the monetary system of the country. According to the treasury statistics produced by George H. Reynolds, president of the American Bankers' Association, in the course of his statement to that body, when the first blast of evil times came in 1907, the United States treasury held over one hundred million dollars more gold than the great national banks of England, Germany and France combined, while circulating outside the treasury, among the national and state banks and the people was at least twice the gold treasure held by all of those great European banks. Yet this vast hoard in the United States was entirely unavailable. The credit of the national government stood unimpaired, but the business interests of the country were crippled for lack of the currency which is their life blood, and only a resort to the issue of clearing-house certificates prevented the panic from assuming greater proportions than it did.

Congress must meet this situation in the near future, for the legislation that was enacted a little over a year ago was but temporary in its nature and must be either supplanted or reenacted into permanent law. This realization of the need for action by the national legislature has served to direct attention to various projects that have been advanced as proper solutions of the problem, and first and foremost among them stands the proposed National Central Bank. The scheme stands in this relation to others for a double reason: it is the common belief that it will form the basis of the curative legislation to be recommended by the monetary commission and President Taft, in his recent Boston speech, has signified his own favorable disposition towards the project. Consequently, it is timely and appropriate to disclose to the public just what is believed to be in the minds of the President and Senator Aldrich and the latter's seventeen colleagues on the monetary commission when they refer to the Central Bank; for undoubtedly, there is a great lack of information, even among banks, upon this subject.

Mr. Reynolds is probably a competent authority, and in his Chicago speech he sought to outline this important project. Here he pointed out, was to be a bank of the people and for the people. The people were to be the stockholders, for anyone would be privileged to buy the bank stock just as he might a government bond. A small interest on such an investment would be guaranteed by the government; any earnings more than sufficient to pay the guaranteed interest would be shared by the government and by the stockholders. Political control of the great bank would be made at least extremely difficult, by the life appointment of the officers. Integrity of operation would be assured by a board of supervisors, appointed by the President, the secretary of the treasury and the comptroller of the currency (subject to the approval of the Senate), for alternate terms of at least eight years to bridge over political mutations. Thus would be met the objections founded upon the history of the old United States Bank, that the Central Bank might be prostituted to political uses and be made a powerful engine for the perpetuation in power of one party. It is not intended that the Central Bank should support the credit of the nation; that must stand or fall by itself. If the national government needs funds; if it spends more money than it collects by taxation, it must continue in the old way to borrow money from the world at large by the sale of bonds.

For the single purpose of this projected bank would be the safeguard the business interests of the people in their private relations. If there were need for more money for business purposes, the bank would supply it by notes and if there were a plethora, in dull times, those notes would be withdrawn rapidly. Governmental assistance to the institution would be limited to the deposit with the Central Bank of all government funds now in the national banks. Perhaps that feature of the project would be obnoxious to the existing banks, but it is hoped that they would find their compensation in being relieved from their present burden of carrying the whole weight of responsibility for increases in the circulating medium to meet sudden demands of business. At any rate, there would be no interference with the most profitable feature of the banking business for the central institution would not receive deposits from individuals.

The suggestion as to how the business man is to benefit by a central bank is sought to be answered by the statement that the project included a provision for the acceptance of good commercial paper as a basis for the issue of money. Such paper would represent actual transactions between solvent concerns—all short-time credits—and sure to be redeemed whenever the transaction—the sale and delivery—was concluded. Of course, there would be a reasonable coining reserve to maintain equilibrium.

Such, in brief, is a bare outline of the plan, which with manifold details, probably will be laid before Congress, as an accompaniment of the report of the National Monetary Commission. That it will meet with fairest and prolonged opposition, cannot be doubted and this, too, in spite of the best efforts of the administration, to have the matter regarded as non-political. The mere suggestion of a Central Bank already has sufficed to agitate deeply the great banking interests and the line of division began to be apparent at the last bankers' convention at Chicago. Many of the bank officers regarded the project with deep suspicion. They were told that no encroachment upon their business was contemplated beyond the withdrawal from their vaults of the government's funds; but they regarded the measure as the opening wedge for the destruction of the most lucrative portion of their business and viewed with anything but favor the plan whereby the government bank was to enter into competition for the enormous discount operations which gave them very great influence in the industries of the country. Possibly their objections can, in a measure, be weakened by a recourse to some other means of securing a basis for the circulating notes of the Central Bank than commercial paper, such as an enlarged reserve of gold and silver, or even gilt-edged mortgages on real property. But these very suggestions probably would call forth a new army of enemies, to combat the proposition; for not only small banks, but thousands of wealthy individuals, find a large part of their income in returns from mortgages, while the locking up in government vaults of hundreds of millions in coin or bullion would arouse bitter opposition from the advocates of the perfectly elastic currency. It may be that the existing political parties will be divided on this great question and that there will be a new alignment in Congress when it is broached. Indeed, there is some reason to believe that the administration would prefer to wage the battle on this basis, but the one assured fact that in the consideration of this subject Congress in the near future, will plunge into one of the most prolonged and hard-fought contests it has known since the days of the "sixteen-to-one" struggle.

PROFITABLE CROPS ON CALIFORNIA DRY FARMS.

Replying to an inquiry regarding areas and valleys in California where farming is carried on with 12 to 18 inches rainfall; that is, those sections where it is too dry to insure a crop annually, but which can be farmed at a profit by moisture conserving methods without irrigation, the editor of the San Francisco, Cal., Rural Press says:

"Commenting briefly on your questions, it may be said that all through the great San Joaquin and Sacramento valleys of California, grain crops can and are being successfully produced with from 12 to 18 inches of rainfall. This comprises an area approximately 250 miles long by an average of 60 miles wide. In fact they do get measurably profitable yields of grain on much less rainfall and some time ago the farmers in a medium dry situation, after discussion in open meeting, decided that they were sure of a profitable return of barley wherever they secure ten inches of rain favorably distributed throughout the growing season. Some parts of southern California would also come under this classification and some of the coast valleys south of San Francisco where the rainfall is only moderate. There are places, however, on the foothills on shallow soils and more sloping land, where equally good results could not be obtained with this amount of rainfall."

PLUNGED OVER PRECIPICE IN AN AUTOMOBILE.

Eighteen Thousand Mile Tour Through United States and Europe.

Spokane, Wash., Oct. 18.—Herbert A. Hover has just returned to Spokane from an 18,000 mile tour through the United States and Europe, which he and his wife, now visiting relatives at Leavenworth, Kan., accomplished in 18 months with a 30-horse power, four-cylinder car. They had numerous exciting experiences while abroad and were snow bound for eight days in the Alps, where they were also all but plunged over a sheer precipice of 1,000 feet by a heavy car bearing down upon them while turning a curve.

After completing 10,000 miles in the United States, starting in southern California on the Mexican border and touching Canadian territory, they sailed from New York on the ill-fated steamship Republic and were exposed to the elements on deck and open boats for 24 hours before being taken ashore. Mrs. Hover sustained a nervous shock and contracted a cold from which she has not yet recovered.

IN MEMORIAM.

In the dark days of the Civil War, the most cruel and most cutting of the critics of Abraham Lincoln was Punch. Its cartoons represented the great President as a poltroon, as a wild beast, as a bloodthirsty tyrant, an insatiable moloch without heart or pity. They were savage in their attacks upon the man already bowed down with the sorrows of a nation. Then came the assassin's bullet and the immediate amendments made by Punch became historic, for the leading cartoon by Sir Teniel, placed the stamp of greatness upon the martyred President, with such feeling and insight, as most people had only a generation later when the character of Lincoln loomed greater and greater against the background of the dismal days of carnage and sorrow.

This incident came to the mind of the writer when he read in yesterday's Albuquerque Morning Journal under the above heading a touching tribute to Colonel Max Frost from the editor of the Journal, W. S. Burke. The editorial will appear even more significant when it is remembered that Editor Burke, an aged invalid, wields the most trenchant editorial pen in New Mexico today, that he is very much in earnest in everything that he says and that every editorial he writes has the finish of a literary classic and is not merely dashed off at the impulse of the moment but its thoughts and facts are marshaled in logical sequence so as to carry conviction to the mind. Editor Burke is the dean of and Nestor among New Mexico editors today, numberless were the times that he crossed pens with Colonel Frost, and neither spared the other in poignancy and keenness of editorial argument. Says Editor Burke:

"The mortal remains of the late Max Frost, will be deposited in their last resting place, at Santa Fe, with highest Masonic honors, at two o'clock this afternoon."

"Though Colonel Frost had long ago stamped his personality indelibly upon the public affairs of this Territory, and was everywhere recognized as one of the ablest contributors to the American chapter of the history of New Mexico, he was still a comparatively young man, having not yet reached his fifty-eighth birthday. He was just at the age when, given fair physical health in connection with his brilliant mental endowment and his strenuous nervous equipment, he could have done his best work, but the fates were against him, and by reason of one terrible affliction after another he suffered all the pangs of death in life for a number of years before his final surrender to the all-conqueror, and made a struggle for existence which, for moral and physical heroism has few equals in history. But the sun of his life went down at the high noon of his usefulness."

"By reason of his long connection with the press in New Mexico, Col. Frost's pungent pencil, backed by his dauntless courage, brought him into frequent and many times very bitter conflict with his contemporaries in many parts of the Territory, but he never attempted to dodge any measure of the responsibility for his acts, and in every combat was always ready to take as well as to give. No man had better means of knowing these facts than the writer of this, who has met him in the open times without number, but all the offenses that we may have charged up to him during the contests of years are cheerfully forgiven and forgotten, and we send only the kindest of good wishes as he goes to solve the mystery of the ages. All of his good deeds and generous impulses shall be cherished while memory holds its seat, and all causes of difference that may have arisen in the years that are past shall be buried with his bones, that they may not act as a cloud, nor even as a shadow upon his final clearance for the eternal better. Peace to his ashes, and since life's fitful fever is past may he sleep well."

Others and manifold have been the tributes paid the memory of Colonel Frost the past few days. No words but the kindest have been uttered by the territorial press irrespective of party. Of the many private telegrams and letters that have reached the New Mexican office, the following is perhaps the most expressive of the general sentiment:

"And so it is that finally Colonel Frost has answered the last roll call and gone over the range into another world."

"As we measure men by their deeds, Colonel Frost was a great man. New Mexico is fortunate in having had such a man to take a leading part in laying the foundation for a great state."

"His life was exemplary of the cardinal virtues of a soldier, fraternity, charity, and loyalty. I have known him for more than twenty years and admired him for his ability and strength, and valued him as a friend. May he rest in peace."

And that of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, printed in last Saturday's New Mexican:

"We feel that we have lost a true friend. Often he came by our office during the last legislature, even when ill, and suffering and tried to encourage us to keep right on, and with prophetic vision assuring us we would win in the end."

"Had he lived and health been granted to him again, he would have been a mighty champion of our cause. As it is, who knows but the unseen hosts wield a power greater than the seen, and we believe among our friends on the other side, Colonel Max Frost will not be the least."

BARBAROUS MEXICO.

The publication of "Barbarous Mexico," in the American Magazine, is serving some good despite its evil intent. The press of the United States, almost unanimously has come out in the defense of the neighboring republic and the average newspaper reader is learning more about Mexico than he would have otherwise. The El Paso Herald takes the same view of the article that the New Mexican did last week. It said editorially on Saturday evening:

"In the American Magazine for November there appears an article headed 'Barbarous Mexico,' which is the first of a series to be published concerning 'that unhappy country.' The editorial introduction of this article and the advertising matter that has been widely printed concerning the series, show their authors as well as the author of the article itself to be lacking in the first principles of literary and historical veracity, which is 'Beware of half truths.'"

"It is hardly necessary for us to criticize in detail this ill-timed publication, which is fatally untruthful in this respect, at least: that it fails utterly in comprehending the real Mexico, the real Mexican people, their government or institutions, or the economical and political facts and principles underlying the present development and recent progress of the republic."

"Any importance that such a series of descriptive articles might possess is at once destroyed—for us who dwell upon the border, or who know Mexico intimately through personal contact—by reason of the circumstances under which the writer of the article went upon his Mexican tour. There is abundant evidence that he has traveled and written to prove his point, to try to confirm preconceived ideas and beliefs. It is plain he had neither the ability nor the desire to understand the Mexican character, Mexican history, or the actual facts and underlying principles of Mexican progress through the last quarter century."

"No good can possibly be subserved by printing such articles as the one to which we refer. Even if some actual facts be chronicled, the author's interpretation of Mexico and things Mexican is imperfect, biased, superficial, ignorant, uninspired, and unworthy. The injustice and untruth of the comments by the magazine, its editorial and special writer, are self evident to persons familiar with Mexican conditions, and for this reason even so much of truth as may be brought out from time to time in the magazine series will be discounted and its disclosure will lose what good effect it might otherwise have, because of the warped intellectual equipment of those who are responsible for gathering, collating, interpreting, and publishing the data."

"At this time, while the people of the two nations are so close in sentiment and feeling, it is with keen pleasure that we now repudiate in the name of intelligent Americans the slanderous, ignorant, and malicious statements contained in the American Magazine's first Mexican article."

GETTING RIGHT.

Outside of the Roswell Register-Tribune, it has been mostly the Democratic papers of eastern New Mexico who have and are working for prohibition, but last week the Republican Carlsbad Argus, one of the oldest if not the oldest and certainly one of the most ably edited and best printed of the journals of the lower Pecos valley comes out staunchly for the temperance cause. Certainly, there is this much for the New Mexican press, it generally gets right on great and moral issues ahead of most other influences. Says the Argus:

"On the first page of this issue appears the report of the late grand jury. In some respects the report is a remarkable document, not only for that which it says truthfully, but also for some things it says erroneously. For instance, it says that a large percentage of the crimes committed in this and other counties is directly attributable to the sale and use of intoxicating liquor. In opinion of the Argus this statement is correct. It also recommends that the people of Carlsbad be given an opportunity to vote upon the question of prohibition. Whether it is the province of a grand jury to meddle in the affairs of an incorporated city or not, the suggestion is none the less a good one, for this paper believes that if this were done prohibition would carry by a vote of two to one. The report contains other good suggestions which this paper hopes will bear good fruit.

"The Argus would hail with delight an opportunity to vote out the liquor evil, and believes, as stated, that Carlsbad would vote out the saloons by a vote of two to one, and in doing so take its rightful place among the enlightened communities of the great Pecos valley."

Santa Fe has confidence in its Woman's Board of Trade. It would willingly entrust any public or semi-public cause in its hands. It knows that the work will then be well done and that without delay. It is not necessary for the New Mexican to point out what the Board has done and accomplished in the past, enough of that is known and visible to everybody. The New Mexican is therefore pleased to learn that the Board may take up the cause of a cleaner Santa Fe, and is discussing the best method of doing the work. After the physical housecleaning, perhaps, the Board will lend itself to a moral housecleaning, which appears to be necessary also, if reports are correct. But for the present, the manure heaps, the filthy back yards, the unsanitary outhouses might as well get ready to move. The janitors of the public school houses had better begin to wake up and remove all traces of negligence in their care of toilet rooms, etc., which report has it are not kept any too clean. The house cleaning may go even farther than that, if the Woman's Board of Trade undertakes the work and the New Mexican hopes it will. It is needed and the men will never do it.

One fact is brought out by the reminiscences of Sir Thomas Lipton that are running in the Strand Magazine, that Lipton owes his wealth, his fame and his baronetcy to advertising. It must be apparent to every Santa Fe business man, that there is much more likelihood of drawing trade in advertising the wares of a dry goods store for instance, than there is in advertising tea, yet Lipton has spent millions of dollars in advertising tea and the returns have abundantly justified the outlay. Lipton himself says: "I dare say I owe a great deal of my success to advertising." There was a time when the outsider could come to Santa Fe, open a store and make piles of money without advertising, but that is no longer the case, and it is only the business that advertises that draws trade. People have become so accustomed to patronize the store that advertises that they will even go to Denver, Kansas City, Chicago and New York in order to get goods they saw advertised, when the same goods may lie on the shelves of the local store that does not advertise."

Folsom, Union county, which has been a graveyard of newspaper hopes, again has an English paper, the Folsom Leader, the first copy of which appeared last week. H. G. Hamond is the editor and publisher. The salutatory is non-committal as to politics but since it quotes from Lincoln, the Leader is undoubtedly safe within the Republican fold, and since it devotes nearly the entire first page to a union Sunday school meeting and a two column religious article, it appears to be safe in other directions."

The burro which contributed mightily to reclaiming the arid west and in opening its store houses of mineral treasure, is appearing in a new function, as an aid in the education of the younger generation, and it is a pleasing and important role it thus plays. Says the Stanley Index: "The Stanley school might appropriately be called a burro institution from the way the children are taking to the burro habit of coming and going each day. The little animals make good playfellows for the children as well."

The Socorro Chieftain says rather emphatically:

"Certain Democratic papers of the Territory got themselves into a dence of a tangle a few days ago in trying to make it appear that recent Republican administrations have handled territorial finances no better than former Democratic administrations did. Those papers are now learning something that they did not know about territorial finances, and it must already begin to be plain to them, as it always has been to others, that their position on the question is, not only untenable, but ridiculous."

It is a significant fact that of 28,265 people killed on the railroads in the United States the past five years, 25,693 were trespassers. Because the railroads are not fenced, they are being used as highways not only by pedestrians, but even by bicyclists and occasionally wagons and even as a playground by children. It is a terrible indictment of the carelessness of the American public.

FIRST NAVAL BATTLE AND VICTORY.

Jeremiah O'Brien, Hero of Machias, and His Daring Exploit That Angered British Government.

Mr. Editor:
Ninety-one years ago last Tuesday Jeremiah O'Brien departed this life, let us hope for a better one. And who was Jerry O'Brien? His name fixes his nationality beyond doubt; and here is a brief sketch of the daring exploit that has placed him among the immortals of America. In his "History of American Privateers," E. S. MacLay, says:

The first sea fight after the battle of Bunker Hill was that between the captured schooner Unity and the British armed cutter Margareta. Preliminary to giving the sketch permit me to say that the Margareta with her convoy arrived at the mouth of the Machias river in Maine, for the purpose of procuring "pickets and planks to be used by the British in the defense of Boston, but on learning the use to which the lumber was to be put, the plucky inhabitants of Machias refused to sell a stick, although they were short of provisions, and the British captain of the Margareta refused to let them have any until they furnished the beams. Then the trouble began. Moore assumed a very dictatorial tone and demanded that a liberty pole, which had been erected must be taken down instantly. This was just as stupidly refused. MacLay proceeds:

"Anticipating that there would be trouble over the liberty pole the people of Machias secretly sent word to Pleasant River village, and to a few other settlements near by, asking for reinforcements. Before this aid could come the people had held a secret meeting on Sunday, June 11, in the woods at the back of Machias, at which the project of capturing the British boat and her convoy was discussed. Meantime, Moore Ichabod Jones, with several of their men, ignorant of the fact that secret meeting was being held, had attended religious services in the meeting house. Some of the villagers in anticipation of trouble, carried their pistols to church, but took care to keep them out of sight. John O'Brien, a brother of Jerry's, concealed his under a board. He observed Moore when he entered the edifice and took a seat right behind him. In the course of the services Moore happened to look out an open window, and he saw up the river a number of men crossing the stream, holding guns in their hands. These were the reinforcements coming from Pleasant River village. Moore at once surmised their object, and realized the peril of his situation. Making his way over the seats Moore reached a window, jumped out, and managed to make his way to his vessel, then anchored at White's Point. After sending word to the people that he would burn the town if they persisted in their hostile demonstrations. Notwithstanding his threat the plucky Yankees seized the sloop Unity, one of the vessels accompanying the Margareta, and forty men of Machias went aboard of her, while another party took the other sloop and took her up to the wharf. On examining their equipments of war, only twenty guns could be produced, many of which were mere fowling pieces, carrying scatter-shot and of powder, ball and shot there were no more than three rounds to each fire-

OLD SORES

If an old sore existed simply because the flesh was diseased at that particular spot, it would be an easy matter to apply some remedy directly to the place that would kill the germs; or the diseased flesh might be removed by a surgical operation and a cure effected. But the very fact that old sores resist every form of local or external treatment, and even return after being cut away, shows that back of them is a morbid cause which must be removed before a cure can result. Just as long as the pollution continues in the blood, the ulcer remains an open cesspool for the deposit of impurities which the circulation throws off. S.S.S. cures Old Sores by purifying the blood. It removes every trace of impurity and taint from the circulation, and thus completely does away with the cause. When S.S.S. has cleansed the blood, the sore begins to heal, and it is not a surface cure, but the healing process begins at the bottom; soon the discharge ceases, the inflammation leaves, and the place fills in with firm, healthy flesh. Under the purifying and tonic effects of S.S.S. the system is built up, and those whose health has been impaired by the drain and worry of an old sore will be doubly benefited by its use. Book on Sores and Ulcers and any medical advice free to all who write.

arm. The remaining weapons consisted of thirteen pitchforks, a few scythes, and ten or twelve axes. The Margareta was armed with four 3-pounders and fourteen swivels. Only two of the Machias men had ever seen Maurice O'Brien and Benjamin Foster, both of whom had served in the expedition against Louisburg. Maurice was incapacitated by extreme old age. Jeremiah O'Brien, then 31 years old, a son of Maurice, was chosen commander of the Unity, and Edmund Stevens was made his lieutenant. While this had been going on a number of the inhabitants had gathered on the highland overlooking the Margareta's refuge near the Narrows, and threatened to attack if she did not surrender. Receiving for answer, "Fire and be damned," they opened fire, which Moore returned, but finding himself at a disadvantage, again got under way, and running into a bay anchored near the confluence of two streams. Here Moore lashed the Margareta alongside a small sloop commanded by a Mr. Tobey, whom Moore compelled to come aboard and act as pilot. On Monday morning, June 12th, of the patriots were ready to make sail in pursuit, when the Unity, followed by the second lumber craft having 20 men on board, got under way. Observing the approach of the Americans, Moore again weighed anchor and maneuvered so as to avoid a collision. In this effort his vessel lost her gaff, whereupon he ran into Holmes Bay, and, taking a spar and all the provisions, together with Robert Avery of Norwich, Conn., out of a craft he met coming in from the Bay of Fundy, repaired his injury. The Americans again drew near, and to avoid them Moore stood out to sea. During the chase, the Yankees built breastworks (bulwarks) of pine boards and anything they could find in the vessels that would screen them from the enemy's fire."

It seems that the heroic Britishers had no stomach for the provender the pitchfork men were giving them; they again showed a clean pair of heels. "So Moore cut away his boats and as this did not enable them to hold their distance, he began firing, one of his shots killing an American. This fire was returned by one of the volunteers named Knight, who discharged his 'wall-piece' a musket too heavy to be fired off-hand, needing the support of a wall, but in this instance probably the bulwark-killing the English helmsman and clearing the poop of men. The two crafts quickly came together when the sharp fire of small arms was opened during which Moore was shot by two musket balls."

The unfortunate Mr. Avery was also killed, and a gallant British midshipman was so terrified that he hid himself in the hold. "The Americans now boarded and soon obtained possession of the Margareta. The first man to board was John O'Brien, brother of Jeremiah, and the second was Joseph Getchell. For this brilliant affair the colonel council, then in session at Cambridge, tendered Jeremiah O'Brien a vote of thanks, and gave him charge of his prizes. There were six brothers of the O'Briens in the gallant exploit. Jeremiah, Gideon, John, Joseph, Dennis and William. Their father, Maurice, came from Dublin, Ireland, in 1740. The news of this fight greatly enraged the British navy officials, and about a month later they sent two armed sloops, the Diligence and the Tapuquish, from Halifax to punish the audacious Yankees. These sloops carried eight guns and fifty men for the first, and sixteen swivels for the other. Hearing of their approach Jerry O'Brien sailed from Machias with the Unity and the coasting vessel Portland Packet, commanded by Benjamin Foster, to anticipate them. They met July 12th, 1775, in the Bay of Fundy, and to the astonishment of the British took both and brought them in triumph to Watertown. For this truly brilliant affair Jerry was made captain in the Massachusetts state marine, and with his two British prizes, which he named Machias Liberty and Diligence, he went out to cruise after British transports. O'Brien commanding the Machias Liberty and a Mr. Lambert the Diligence. Under their new commanders these vessels were highly successful. On August 9, 1775, they recaptured a schooner that had fallen into the hands of the enemy, and also a cutter and two barges, with 35 men under the command of a Lieutenant of the British sloop of war Falcon, that were operating in Gloucester Bay."

I would like to follow the career of this heroic Irish Yankee, but your space will not permit, and I close by saying that "one of our new torpedo boats be named in honor of Jeremiah O'Brien."

SANTA FE'S CARNIVAL.

Tuesday night, Oct. 19 will witness the opening of the grandest carnival ever held in this or any city of the country.

Nat Reiss has prepared and will spring a lot of surprises on the good people of Santa Fe. The free acts which will be given twice daily are the grandest in the show world.

The Third Degree or House Upside Down is the newest in carnival shows. We will not here tell you what it is, but let you see for yourself.

Sufficient to say that you will be pleased with all the shows.

Some are designed to please those who are inclined to be grave, others for those who are gay and again some are instructive, but among them all there are none that will offend, but will please and mystify, even the gronchiest will appreciate the effort of Nat Reiss the Carnival King, of the West, whose sole aim and ambition is to make the people enjoy themselves.

The Nat Reiss Carnival Co. is unique and peculiar in itself, and has features that no other amusement enterprise would or could afford to carry.

Another thing this company carries no dining or sleeping cars and its army of performers and employees stop in hotels and boarding houses and patronize restaurants.

Thank what this means to any community, two hundred and fifty people into a town who must find sleeping quarters and places to eat.

There will be something doing every minute carnival week, and Reiss and his company are going to do all in their power to make the public enjoy themselves.

CAPTAINS OF INDUSTRY WILL ADDRESS FOURTH CONGRESS.

Billings, Mont., Oct. 18.—Among the prominent speakers on the program of the Fourth Dry Farming Congress, which will meet at Billings, Mont., Oct. 26-28, are three of the leading railroad men of the country. James J. Hill, chairman of the board of directors of the Great Northern Railway, whose utterances regarding the agricultural development of the west and the necessity for hastening the increase in the production of wheat in the United States have attracted national attention and resulted in wide discussion of the problems of agriculture, has assured Governor Norris, president of the Dry Farming Congress, that he will be present at the Billings meeting if it at all possible. Mr. Hill has not announced the subject of his address before the Congress, but it is expected that he will discuss the broader phases of national development as affected by the upbuilding of the agricultural states of the northwest.

Thomas Cooper, assistant to the president of the Northern Pacific Railway, will address the Congress, his subject being announced as "The Great Northwest."

the first railroads along whose lines dry farming experiments were established with scientific effectiveness, will deliver an address, the subject of which will be announced later.

The seals and record books for notaries public for sale by the New Mexican Printing Company at very reasonable rates. Seals for incorporated companies are also handled. Call at or address the New Mexican Printing Company, Santa Fe, New Mexico.

The New Mexican Printing Company has on hand a large supply of pads and tablets suitable for school work, the desk, and also for lawyers and merchants; good everywhere. We will sell them at 5 cents in book form.

His Cutest Trick

By Edgar White

(Copyright, 1909, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

"Pretty Jim" was the nightingale at the "Fatima" moving-picture show. He was a tall, slender youth, with a cigarette pallor and curly hair that gave him a stand-in with the girls, who gushed over his warbling and imagined they were kneeling at the shrine of art.

But a sly dart of Cupid soon put Jim out of the running with the "Flossie" crowd. The shot came from close range, and didn't give him a show to dodge. Little Birdie Atherton was the sweetest thing that ever wore her golden curls, and she pounded the piano to help out Jimmie's soul melodies. When these two kids found they were in love with each other they trapezed around town like a pair of children, hand in hand, always in sweet-scented clover fields. "Pretty Jim" only sung for one pair of pearl-like ears, and two soft blue eyes loaned him inspiration. His songs of love were real, from the bottom of a heart, undergoing its first impalement. Birdie declared her "Jim" was the only person on earth who really understood music right, and said if he was to get run over by a street car or kidnaped or anything like that she would take cold poison the very next minute after the news came.

By and by the keen-eyed management observed that the "Cleopatra," a rival show, was eating into their trade by the employment of a negro who could stand on his woolly head and drink soda pop simultaneously. Following this distressing innovation there blew into town a Dutchman named Karl Wusurwester—"Winerwurst," they called him—who gave an impromptu clog dance and impersonation at Sandy McPherson's "Crack-in-the-Wall."

The boss of the "Fatima" chartered the Dutchman, and he went on the job next night. The new performer danced in a funny-looking pair of wooden shoes, with heavy leather soles extending several inches beyond the bows. When he would come down on the grand finale those wonderful shoes would hit the stage like the concussion of a naval gun. Then he had a comical Dutch talk that made everybody laugh.

Inside a week the "Fatima" was gathering all the loose nickels in town, and the negro over at the "Cleopatra" jumped into the river. There was no use bucking against a Dutchman with as homely a mug as "Winerwurst" carried about with him. The boss of the "Fatima" patted himself on the back, and had a sign painted on the front window illustrating "Winerwurst's" grin. The artist said he could have made the job more life-like if the window had been wider.

The only person about the place who wasn't happy was "Pretty Jim." His songs no longer brought cheers. The frizzy-headed girls went over to his rival with the green cheese face, and, worse than all, Birdie—the dear, innocent, blue-eyed Birdie—went with "em. And "Winerwurst," noticing her smiles, elongated his cavernous mouth until she might have walked in had she been curious to explore.

"Jimmie" became sullen. He pouted so that Birdie refused to accept his company home one night, and the Dutchman, who was always round when he wasn't wanted, took her under his wing, and Jim saw them go down the avenue chatting and laughing as if he wasn't on earth.

There was only one thing to do, and it must be done quickly and effectively. That was to humiliate that fool Dutchman so badly that he'd never show his ugly face around Birdie again. After due deliberation, Jim went down to the switch shanty and took into his confidence Mike Flanagan, boss of the steel gang. Mike had the same respect for a Dutchman that he had for a man who would choose a domino game instead of a nice, healthy scrap with the dagoes over on the ball lot. He produced a couple of dynamite signal caps, took off the tins and showed Jim how he could slip 'em in between the boiler decks of Dutchy's wooden men-o-war. In addition he promised to bring around a lot of his "babies" the night the Dutchman was blown up, so as to properly hiss him.

The plan looked good to Jimmie. In the afternoon he slipped in behind the stage, found Karl's big shoes and placed his caps near the toes, sticking them tight with quick-drying paste. Then he pulled his hat down over his eyes and went out on the street. As he passed the ice cream saloon he saw "Winerwurst" and Birdie regaling themselves, and apparently having a good time. He stepped in, bought a package of cigarettes and, as though he hadn't seen 'em before, said:

"Hello, Karl; wonder you ain't eating limburger and sausage."

"Yah! Yah!" laughed Karl, good humoredly. "I laks dot better, but Birdie here—she laks ice cream. We must please der ladies, you know."

And Birdie smiled as though he had said something smart.

"You'll please 'em to-night, my fine fellow," muttered "Pretty Jim" to himself.

The "Fatima" was jammed tight as wax when Karl, in his Dutch costume, came out and bowed. Jimmie had sung his love song to unresponsive ears, and now he sat gloomily in the shadow beside the large upright piano. When the Dutchman appeared Birdie's eyes brightened and she handed the keys with sudden energy. Up in the balcony sat Mike Flanagan and about 20 of his grim-visaged steel handlers, ready to hoot and groan when the Dutchman went up in the air. The way Mike had figured it, the crowd would cheer him so bad that he would quit the job, leaving "Pretty Jim" alone in the field.

The Dutchman seemed in fine trim. He had just enough beer aboard to make him funny. The crowd laughed at everything he said, and cheered each new wrinkle he shot across the wide expanse of moon-map that served him as a face. When he had said all he could think of he began on his clog dance. He pounded the boards so hard without anything happening that Jim began to think there must be some defect in the torpedoes. Dutchy turned hand-springs, yah-yahed until you could see clear down to his feet, and put his blue jeans legs in motion for the grand round-up. He seemed to be going under a tremendous head of steam and the big crowd cheered and yelled. Then Dutchy drew in his wind, closed the big slit in his face and came down on those two bifurcated flatboats like a stone house. There was a crash like the splintering of heavy timbers, fire seemed to shoot out in all directions and the performer was shot clear up to the ceiling. The thing had the effect of a grand transformation scene. When Dutchy got back to earth he was in a sitting posture, entirely shoeless, and a broad grin on his comical mug. He was the most surprised man in the house, but he was quickly alive to the roaring ovation that was being handed him, and he rose slowly and bowed. Then the spectators thundered again; some rose in their seats, waving their hats and howling like crazy people. Dutchy bobbed his big head, and grinned like a jack-o'-lantern, and then limped off the stage.

Jim, who was standing near Birdie, asked her what she thought of her Dutchman by this time. She wheeled as if just aware of Jim's proximity, and turned a beaming face upon him. "Ain't he a dear," she said, "to think up such cute tricks?"

New Kind of Fish Story.

"Just as charity covers a multitude of sins," said Dr. Dudley S. Reynolds, "so the term 'cold' includes about 600 different forms of irritation of the mucous membrane. I really think that 'catching cold,' as ordinarily considered, is a superstition which can be fitly compared to the belief that tacking a horseshoe over the door will keep witches out."

And then Dr. Reynolds told about a fishing trip he took to Harrod's Creek several years ago in the winter time. Snow was on the ground and frost in the air. The fish were biting good, and so when the doctor fell into the creek and fished himself out in a thoroughly moist condition, he proceeded calmly with his angling as though water weren't wet and wintry air not cold. He finally missed his train to town and had to walk back home, arriving with clothes frozen to him, but with a string of bass that did credit to himself as a disciple of Sir Isaac.

"I never felt any ill effects from that ducking," said he, "yet according to the usual beliefs I should have 'caught my death of cold,' and been a victim of pneumonia in the next twenty-four hours."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Asinine.

"James A. Patton," said the London correspondent of a Chicago paper, "has stopped talking. He is as silent now as a clam."

"I tempted him the other day with delicious bait, but it was all useless. Mr. Patton just shook his head and smiled."

"Not a word about wheat," said he. "I'm determined not to talk and put my foot in it—like the country editor who wound up an editorial on the corn crop with the words:

"We have on exhibition in our sanctum a pair of magnificent ears."

It is an admitted fact that real estate, financial men and merchants all say that quickest and best results are obtained by advertising in the New Mexican.

ADVISED CONSERVATIVE ACTION PART OF ORGANIZATION.

Speech of James Kirby, President of Building Trades Department of Federation of Labor.

Tampa, Fla., Oct. 18.—Conservatism of action on the part of the labor organization under his supervision was the keynote of the annual address of James Kirby, president of the Building Trades department, of the American Federation of Labor, at the second annual convention of the department. At the same time he reviewed what had been accomplished by quiet negotiations with employers and partly by forcible action against them, in the behalf of building trades during the eleven months since the last convention at Denver.

"While we cannot for one moment surrender our right to take sympathetic action where a sister organization is in peril," said he, "yet oftentimes building trades councils are prone to hasty action on the theory that quick action must be taken or the job on which the work is being done may be completed. Admitting that on small buildings this may be true, I am of the opinion that it would be better to complete the job on which the contention arose providing a repetition can be prevented, than to endanger the dissolution of the council."

He said quite frequently it had been found that local building trades councils have inaugurated movements without consulting either their own international organization, or the building trades department. These hasty actions, he told the convention, were seldom successful and quite frequently were very disastrous.

In order to reduce to the minimum the injurious effects of friction in local labor organizations, he recommended to the convention that the laws of the building trades department be amended to provide that all jurisdictional disputes in local building trades councils be referred at once to the president of the department, and pending his decision no one should be disturbed in the performance of the work in question. He would have the law provide that all parties must comply with the decision rendered unless it was subsequently reversed by the executive council or the convention.

"My reasons for this," he explained, "is to remove as far as possible all disputes from the local councils and settle them along the lines of the constitution and the trade jurisdiction granted to the various internationals."

Another recommendation that President Kirby made was the adoption by the convention of a list of the crafts eligible for affiliation locally with the department. He said that he believed all building trades were in the department with the exception of the bricklayers, who were not affiliated with the American Federation of Labor. The best interest of the department and the associated international, he contended, would be conserved best by confining the local membership strictly to affiliated building trades. He asserted he had nothing to say for or against allowing bricklayers in the local building trades councils, but they are the only non-affiliated craft that he would allow seated locally.

"It has been asserted," said President Kirby, "that there are instances when non-affiliated crafts have been seated on account of their known friendship for some individual, or for some proposition. International officers have expressed their belief that the interest of the affiliated organizations could be protected best by limiting the membership of the local councils to the crafts affiliated nationally. I do not wish to be understood as desiring to assist any organization in need, but my experience has taught me that this department must be controlled by building trades absolutely and the nearer we confine ourselves to the basic organizations the more successful we are bound to be."

The president reviewed the condition of the department in the big cities. In Denver, he said the fight between the Amalgamated Society of Carpenters and Joiners and the Brotherhood of Carpenters has resulted "in the almost complete disorganization of one of the best organized cities in the United States and a condition created that has held up to ridicule throughout the country."

Matters have not progressed smoothly in Philadelphia since the organization of the building trades council, it was reported, on account of questions as to jurisdiction. The building trades of Greater New York were described as laboring under the disadvantage of what is termed the "arbitration agreement." President Kirby said that it was almost impossible for the building trades department to enforce its laws while its organizations were connected with "this misnamed plan of arbitration."

In reviewing his attempt to reorganize or reunite the hod carriers and building laborers into a new union, Mr. Kirby said he had been unsuccessful, owing to the fact that he could not procure any cooperation whatever on the part of the officers of the International Hod Carriers and Building laborers.

"I endeavored to get them to state upon what grounds they would cooperate with the department towards procuring the affiliation of the suspended organizations," continued Mr. Kirby, "for I was unable to procure either their promise to comply with the instructions of the Denver convention or to have them outline any other policy that would be satisfactory to them."

Turning to another phase of the labor situation, the president said that there has been a considerable improvement in the building industry and nearly all organizations show an increased membership as the result. While the building trades felt the recent panic more than any other class of workmen, what was lost then is being fast regained, he said, with the prospect of 1910 being a banner year for the building trades.

128TH ANNIVERSARY OF SURRENDER OF CORNWALLIS.

Yorktown Has Donned Gala Attire in Fitting Observance of the Great Event.

Yorktown, Va., Oct. 18.—Harking back to the stirring scenes of the revolutionary war the people of Yorktown are now ready for a rousing celebration of the 128th anniversary of the surrender of the British forces under Lord Cornwallis to General George Washington October 19, 1781. Various places of interest in connection with this historic event which took place here have been marked and the gathering throng is kept busy viewing the scenes made notable during that great national drama.

Many patriotic societies, prominent among which are the Yorktown Historical Society of the United States and the Society of the Descendants of the Signers of the Declaration of Independence, have joined forces to make this patriotic rally worthy of the victory for the American arms. A strong sentiment has been developed among members of patriotic societies in favor of setting apart these historic places forever as one of the nation's sacred resorts, as has been done with Yorktown and other localities, associated with American Independence. This little town of two hundred people has suffered such slight change after this lapse of time that it is possible to see the field over which the British troops marched to stack their arms and to surrender. The British intrenchments are here and Lafayette's march with his light infantry to storm the works of the enemy can be traced in detail as can the course traversed by Alexander Hamilton in making his famous bayonet attack. The house in which the terms of capitulation were signed is also here with no important change and is also here with no important change and is the center of attraction on the part of the pilgrims.

In front of the famous home of Thomas Nelson, Jr., a signer of the Declaration of Independence and Governor of Virginia, during the Revolutionary period, a stage has been erected from which many of the famous historic spots can be seen. It is here that the extensive program for the celebration of these events will be carried out next Tuesday October 19. On that occasion Henry Morris, president of the Descendants of the Signers will call the assembly to order and will deliver an address. Colonel Oswald Tilghman, of Maryland, first vice president of the Yorktown Historical Society and president of the American Society of the Cincinnati, will read the correspondence between Lord Cornwallis and General Washington relating to the capitulation of Yorktown and the surrender of the British forces. Representative J. Hampton Moore, of Philadelphia, president of the Atlantic Deepwater Ways Association, will deliver an oration. Among the picturesque features of the occasion will be the singing of "Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean" by the school children of York county. These children will also strew flowers upon the grave of Thomas Nelson, Jr.

MONUMENT TO KIT CARSON AT TRINIDAD.

Mayor Taylor Abandons Plan of Having Remains of Noted Scout Taken From Taos.

Trinidad, Colo., Oct. 18.—Mayor Daniel L. Taylor, a friend of Kit Carson, who donated to the city of Trinidad a beautiful park, which is named in honor of the noted scout, announced that he proposed to erect at his own expense, a fine marble statue of Carson in the park.

The original plan was to bring the remains of Carson from Taos, N. M., to this city and erect a tomb of marble and surmount it with a statue of the noted frontiersman. This plan met with strong objection from old friends of Carson in New Mexico, especially the members of the Masonic lodge at Santa Fe, of which Carson was a member and which order had already erected a monument over his grave in Taos.

LOAFED AROUND TILL BEER GOT STALE.

Therefore Loving Wife Threw Rocks at Husband and is Arrested By Police.

Trinidad, Colo., Oct. 18.—When Mrs. Carlos Montoya again requests her husband to bring her a can of beer, it is a safe bet that Carlos will hasten to comply. Because he tarried in a third parlor after being sent on this errand Carlos is nursing a badly damaged head, and his wife is held by the police on the charge of assault. The police answered a hurry up call to the west side in response to a telephone message that a man had been stabbed to death. Arriving on the scene they found no knife had been used, but Mrs. Montoya had been quite effective with a number of rocks which decorated the front yard.

"I sent him for a can of beer," said Mrs. Montoya, "and he loafed around until it got stale."
