INEQUALITIES OF THE TARIFF.

It has often been asserted that tariff was a breeder of trusts, a producer of millionaires and a burden upon the common people. It is true that, until recently, with a few exceptions, these statements have been made by democrats. Now, however, it is quite the rule to read, day after day, some speech of a republican senator protesting against the high rates proposed in the new tariff bill; and yet the protestants announce their fealty to the republican party and the wisdom of a protective policy. The point where many republican senators balk is when prohibition takes the place of protection. One of the ablest and most noteworthy attacks on the pending bill was delivered by Senator Doliver, of Iowa, a consistent republican and an advocate of the Hamiltonian system of taxation. He told some things out of school that places his party in an unenviable position, and made statements that high tariff advocates made no effort to contradict. His speech shows conclusively that the tariff has been a producer of wealth; and still it is just as conclusive that the beneficiaries of its wealth-producing qualities are few, and that an entire people are taxed to create these vast accumulations of which the senator speaks.

Below we present a few paragraphs, which we most heartily commend to our republican readers. These statements are to be trusted implicitly by republicans; for they come from one of their own faith, and one, too, who has been there and helped "skin 'em." But to the quotations. The first paragraph reads:

"Is it possible that a man, because he voted for the Allison tin-plate rate of 1889 and heard poor McKinley dedicate the first tin-plate mill in America, can be convicted in this chamber of treachery to the protective tariff system if he desires that schedule re-examined, after seeing the feeble enterprise of 1890 grown within a single decade to the full measure of this market place, organized into great corporations, over-capitalized into a speculative trust, and at length unloaded on the United States Steel Company, with a rake-off to the promoters sufficient to buy the Rock Island System? If a transaction like that has made no impression upon the mind of congress, I expose no secret in saying that it has made a very profound impression on the thought and purposes of the American people."

We are willing to admit that the foregoing is traveling at a pretty rapid gate for an orthodox republican, but what about this paragraph?

"I repeat, therefore, what I said the other day, that the duty of this congress is to reduce the margin of protection provided in the Dingley rates whenever it can be done without substantial injury to the productive enterprises of this market place. It is our special duty to take up those schedules which represent the largest investments of protected capital and at least take out of them the rates that are now everywhere known to be extravagant and unnecessary, which rise so far above the level of our real industrial needs as to bring the policy of protection into ridicule."

Here is another item that is termed a "joker" in the bill, and the senator deals with it in the following language:

"It will interest most people to know that the gum boots with which the farmers of America are wading around in the snows of winter are lined usually with wool, and that when a box of them appears at a port of the United States they are not troubled by the 30 per cent duty on manufactures of rubber. Why? Because they are otherwise provided for. How? This law which we refuse to even look at with a view of correcting errors and absurdities transfers this merchandise bodily to paragraphs intended to protect woollen clothing, and we see the fine vaudeville sketch of a pair of rubber boots being solemnly weighed up in the custom houses of the United States and assessed at 44 cents a pound and 60 per cent ad valorem as wearing apparel composed in whole or in part of wool."

The two paragraphs that follow are full of entreaty, and contain a plea for a loosening of the shackles of individual effort, with the frank admission that he does not expect his colleagues to follow his advice, and concludes his remarks by asserting that the people will demand and secure relief from these extortions if congress fails in its duty. But to use the senator's words:

"It is not right that any great department of industry should be brought into one hand, whether individual or corporate, and therefore I should like to have the senate study the question of putting within the reach of the young men of the United States these great resources, and say to them, 'Go into these enterprises, and whenever you find yourself constrained in the purchase of your material we will give you relief,' so that in no generation shall it be said that a single corporation owns and controls the basic materials that underlie the industries of the American people."

"I do not expect, however, to get such a philosophy of life as that into this bill, in fact—I might as well confess it—I do not expect to be able to do more than to state the case; but I warn these men who are among those responsible for the policy of the republican party that if they desire an agitation in the United States to begin the day the bill passes and to be carried on until these wrongs and injuries are rectified, there is no shorter course to that end than that which has been pursued in connection with the measure now before us."

SIX AND SEVEN.

The Alamogordo base ball team came up Saturday night accompanied by a large number of enthusiasts. They were entertained that night with a dance at Wetmore hall, which was attended by a large number of people. The ball game was called at 3 o'clock p.m., Sunday, in the midst of a slight breeze from nature, supplemented by the largest flow of natural gas that has been heard, seen or felt on the local diamond; and while one gently stirred the dust, the other caused the blood to course more rapidly through the system. In the beginning of the game Alamogordo made a spurt, and left our boys at the post, but later the Carrizozo players awoke to the fact that they were not playing the Alamogordo of the initial game of the season, and sent a number around the diamond, sufficient to place them in the lead. At this point the official scorer, for Carrizozo got tired, announced that the game was over, showed a record of nine innings, with a score of 6 to 5 in favor of the home team. The scorer performing a like service for the visitors, however, could not agree with the proposition, insisting that only seven innings had been played. After a prolonged wrangle, in which hot air flowed incessantly, it was finally decided that the man from the Cottonwood City was correct, and the ball re-opened. In the meantime a large number of Carrizozo people had gone home, thinking that the game was over and that Carrizozo had won. Their chagrin may be better imagined than described when they were later informed that the two last innings produced two runs for Alamogordo while Carrizozo got none, the game closing with Alamogordo leading 7 to 6. It required two umpires to finish the game properly, and they had abundant assistance from a crowd of rooters. The game, stripped of some disagreeable features, some of which have been mentioned, was a very good one as the results show, and the two teams were quite equally matched. We have no information as to when these teams will again cross bats, but presume another will be played, as of the two that have been played resulted in one for each.

A. H. Hilton, of San Antonio, New Mexico, was in Carrizozo a couple of days this week. Mr. Hilton for years has been engaged in the mercantile business at San Antonio, and was the force behind the re-opening of the coal mines at Carthage, from which he derived a snug fortune. He is known in this section to all old-timers, not only as a shrewd business man, but as a jolly, affable gentleman.

Justice and Charity.

Jewish charity will not be true to itself until it recognizes, and, having recognized, cries aloud so that its voice be heeded, the half is not greater than the whole. Mankind must be in the saddle and ride things. Property is less than man. Justice is more than charity. The charity of to-day ought to become the justice of every day, declares Rabbi S. S. Wise, in an address before the National Conference of Jewish Charities. The only preventive charity is justice, and justice is not charity. Charity can never rightly become more than the complement and crown of justice. Millions for charity and not one cent for justice must be superseded by: Everything for justice. This conference must bring much abused, but little tried, justice into better repute. Upon our age this conference must press the prophetic note: Justice, justice shall thou pursue. It must reassert the command of Micah: Do justice and love mercy. Before mercy, justice! Justice ever and mercy superadded! Is not much of charity necessitated by social injustice, the apparently cureless injustices of the present order? What injustice hath done justice alone can undo; what injustice hath undone, justice and not charity shall restore.

Freak Pillars of Society.

But it is a social philosopher, methinks, who should be most grateful to Curio Hall. Its existence spells safety for the existing social order, declares R. L. Hart in the Atlantic. Think you it is the progress of enlightenment that sanctions and perpetuates our scheme of human relationships? Far otherwise. Rather is it the survival of benightedness. So long as endures the gallery of "exclusive living oddities," with pitiful blockheads to gaze at them, so long will there abound those scullions, scavengers, stalkers, flunkies and wretched wage-minions upon whose docility we depend for our maintenance. Given intelligence to perceive the joke implied in their adoration of abnormalities, they might detect the huge, historic, practical joke played upon them by destiny. At long, long intervals—for us happily long—they get fleeting glimpses of its point. When that occurs, there results the process known as revolution, which Charles Dudley Warner defined as "turning society over, and putting the best underground as a fertilizer."

"For God's sake, go and see my wife and babies, and do what you can for them," wrote a stranger in a high official of the Salvation Army, the other day. "I can't help them, for I'm just out of jail, but I'm going into a lumber camp to see if I can do something. But don't you think of me. I don't deserve any pity or sympathy. Only please do what you can for them." The appeal was promptly heeded; but a gift of food and clothing did not close the case, and the official's report showed how far-sighted and sympathetic is the philanthropy of the present time. "I'm trying to get at the man who wrote that letter," he said. "There's good stuff in him. He's worth saving."

The regents of the Smithsonian Institution have voted to give a medal to the Wright brothers in recognition of their flying-machine inventions. That sort of formal commendation for men of achievement is proper, but woefully meager.

NAME OF JEFF DAVIS

WILL BE RESTORED TO TABLET ON CABIN JOHN BRIDGE.

Story of How Cognomen of President of the Confederacy Was Obliterated from Structure During Civil War.

Washington.—The following order was issued recently:

The secretary of war, by direction of the president, has instructed the chief of engineers of the United States army to take the necessary steps to restore the name of Jefferson Davis as secretary of war to Cabin John Bridge.

Cabin John Bridge is a great stone arch, until recently the largest in the world, spanning a picturesque gorge in the upper Potomac valley, seven miles west of Washington. This arch supports the aqueduct through which the water supply of Washington flows and also serves as a highway bridge on that much-traveled way—the Conduit road. The mutilation of the arch has been commented on by millions of people and although the subject is an old one the real story of the erasure of Davis' name has only lately been told. The erasure has been variously charged to Gen. Montgomery C. Meigs, chief engineer of the construction of the Washington aqueduct, and to Edwin M. Stanton, secretary of war under President Lincoln. Neither of these was responsible. The order for the erasure of the name was given by Caleb R. Smith, secretary of the interior, in June, 1862.

William R. Hutton, who was an engineer in the aqueduct construction, and who became chief engineer of the work, has given the following account:

"In June, 1862, at the request of the secretary of the interior, Caleb R. Smith, to whose department the aqueduct had just been transferred, I accompanied the secretary and a number of members of congress to inspect the aqueduct. We went up by boat on the Chesapeake and Ohio canal.

"Opposite Cabin John several of the party disembarked and walked to the uncompleted bridge for a nearer view. Secretary Smith remained on the boat. Returning in hot haste, Galusha Grow, a member of congress from Pennsylvania rushed up to Mr. Smith and said:

"Do you know that rebel Meigs has put Jeff Davis' name on the bridge?"

"Turning to me, the secretary said: 'The first order I give you is to cut Jeff Davis' name off the bridge.'

"A few days later I was appointed chief engineer of the aqueduct. Not taking the secretary's remark seriously I did nothing about the removal of the name. A week later, Robert McIntyre, the contractor, arrived in Washington to resume work on the bridge, the work having been temporarily suspended pending the arrival of materials. He called at the interior department to pay his respects to Secretary Smith. The secretary told him to cut Davis' name off the bridge, and the first thing McIntyre did on returning to the bridge was to set a mason at the work of cutting off the name, which was in raised letters."

Cabin John bridge is 450 feet long. The span is 220 feet wide and the thickness of the arch and the width of the roadway on top is 20 feet. Across the arch and below the roadway runs the conduit, which is nine feet in diameter. The arch is composed of 1,200 cubic yards of Potomac bluestone, 852 yards of concrete and 516 yards of brick.

The height of the roadway above the stream is 100 feet and the cost of the arch was $254,000.

INVENTOR OF DYNAMITE GUN.

Capt. Zolinski Acquired Fame with Death-Dealing Instrument.

New York.—Naval officers and artillery experts have more than a passing interest in the announcement that Capt. Edmund Louis Gray Zolinski, the inventor of the pneumatic dynamite gun, has passed away at his home in this city. For a number of years the Zolinski method of firing safely shells loaded with dynamite, gun cotton or other high explosives has been under experiment by the United States and other nations, with the result that experts seem to be of the opinion that for coast defense, at least, the gun may have permanent and great value.

The Zolinski dynamite gun is operated by compressed air. Dynamite, it is well known, is easily exploded by a sudden shock, and because of this fact it cannot be fired from an ordinary gun or cannon. Compressed air, however, is highly elastic as well as powerful, and these qualities make it possible to fire safely and effectively from a gun whose motive force is compressed air a shell containing a large amount of powerful explosive.

As developed by Capt. Zolinski the gun is about fifty feet long and is 15 inches interior diameter. Three such guns form the equipment of the dynamite cruiser Vesuvius, which was tried in actual warfare against the Spaniards before Santiago harbor. In 1890 the first official tests of the invention were made by a committee of naval officers on the Delaware river near Chester, Pa. Shells nearly nine feet long, weighing with the inclosed dynamite more than 500 pounds, were fired. The naval officers had so little faith in the invention that they withdrew in a tug to a distance of a mile before they gave the signal for firing. This test showed that the shells could be fired safely and sent more than a mile with the certainty of exploding on striking or at the end of the time for which a time fuse was set.

Subsequent tests by the United States and foreign governments showed an effective range up to two miles. Owing to the fact that the gun must be inclined upward so as to throw the shell in a high curve and drop it upon the target the invention is considered by naval experts hardly practicable for extensive use aboard ships. As a means of coast defense, however, it is said to have great possibilities, and some experimenters have predicted that eventually it will displace the torpedo. By graduating the amount of compressed air used the range of the gun is controlled to a degree of accuracy that has been found surprising in some of the tests made by British experts.

Cure for a Complaint.

There is a young woman who suffers great discomfort, sometimes sharp pain, from an occasional attack of hiccoughs.

She tried all the prescribed remedies, from deep breathing to plums fresh and preserved, without success. Nothing availed, the pain often lasting an hour or more until she tried aromatic spirits of ammonia, a teaspoonful diluted in a little water. The relief was instantaneous.

All subsequent attacks have been cured by the same means. The trouble in acute form is somewhat out of the ordinary, but the annoyance it entails makes it worth while to pass this hint along.

CHILD ATE CUTICURA OINTMENT.

Spread Whole Box of It on Crackers—Not the Least Injury Resulted.

Cuticura Thus Proven Pure and Sweet.

A New York friend of Cuticura writes:

"My three year old son and heir, after being put to bed on a trip across the Atlantic, investigated the state-room and located a box of graham crackers and a box of Cuticura Ointment. When a search was made for the box, it was found empty and the kid admitted that he had eaten the contents of the entire box spread on the crackers. It cured him of a bad cold and I don't know what else."

No more conclusive evidence could be offered that every ingredient of Cuticura Ointment is absolutely pure, sweet and harmless. If it may be safely eaten by a young child, none but the most beneficial results can be expected to attend its application to even the tenderest skin or youngest infant. Potter Drug & Chem. Deafness Cannot Be Cured by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When the tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free. F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O. Sold by Druggists, etc. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

More Than One.

During the discourse the clergyman looked right out at our innocent friend and said with thrilling eloquence:

TO PREPARE GOOD CUSTARDS.

Directions for the Making of Various Kinds of Flavoring.

Gelatin custards are boiled custards, chilled and stiffened with gelatin. When delicately flavored and served with rich cream they are delicious and whole ome. For a coffee jelly, prepare a boiled custard with two cups of milk, two egg yolks and two tablespoonfuls of sugar. While it is hot add two tablespoonfuls of gelatin that has been dissolving in a little cold water. Stir into the custard, also two or three teaspoonfuls of coffee extract, or enough to suit the taste. Set the custards away to cool until ready to serve. Just as they are becoming hard, the whipped whites of the eggs may be stirred through them, and well beaten in. They are an improvement, but not essential. To prepare coffee extract pour about a tablespoonful of boiling water over one or two teaspoonfuls of powdered coffee and squeeze it through muslin, repeating, if necessary, two or three times. It should be very strong to make a good dessert.

Flavorings of wine, vanilla, orange, lemon, almond, etc., may be used instead of coffee. Preserved ginger cut in tiny strips and boiled with the custard is sometimes used as a flavoring. Only enough should be used to give a delicate flavor.

The gelatin custards are like blanc mange, the only difference being the egg yolks, which turn them from white to yellow.

Cook dried fruits on top of the furnace.

Boil beans in the furnace, browning them the last half hour in the oven.

When using the oven put all in it it will hold, meats, potatoes, apples, puddings, etc.

Never mix a French dressing until ready for use. The vinegar and oil will separate.

Save the water in which potatoes have been boiled and use it to wash tarnished brass. It will come out as bright as new.

A delicious salad may be made of grape fruit pulp, white grapes and stalks of romaine, dressed with oil and vinegar and sweetened slightly.

To take old stains from marble, mix one gill of soap and oxgall and a half a gill of turpentine, and as much fuller's earth as will make a paste, and rub it on the stains. Leave it on for a few days and then wipe off.

In selecting velours or tapestry of any description, look at the backing. If you find a loose cotton weave, you may be sure that it will soon wear out. The backing of good tapestry is smooth and well finished, whereas the cheap variety is poorly backed.

Snowflake Tarts.

For these tarts make a delicate paste of equal quantities of sifted flour and fresh butter, one tablespoonful of white sugar, and well-beaten whites of two eggs. Roll as thin as possible, cut into three-inch squares, bake slowly without browning. Have ready a clear, smooth conserve of lemons. Place four of the flakes together with a thin layer of conserve between. To make the conserve, slice six lemons very thin, taking out only the seeds, cover with cold water and let stand 24 hours. Then boil until tender. Weigh the boiled fruit and add an equal quantity of white sugar. Boil the whole together until it is a smooth, clear marmalade.

Cream Prune Pie.

Stew prunes until tender and rub through a colander. To each cup of pulp add one cup of sweet cream, the beaten yolks of two eggs, one cup of sugar. Bake, then cover with a meringue made of the whites of the eggs.

Partners in His Crime.

The hard looking customer had been arrested for stealing an umbrella.

"What do you have to say for yourself?" asked the police justice. "Are you guilty or not guilty?"

"I'm one of the guilty ones, y'r honor, I reckon," answered the prisoner. "The umbrella had the name of J. Thompson on the handle, G. H. Brickley stamped on the inside of the cover, and I stole it from a man named Quinby."

Judging by Size.

The Georgians of Augusta are chuckling over a new story about Mr. Taft, who drove out one afternoon to see a Georgia planter. The planter's cook, a very old woman, takes no interest in public affairs, and she did not recognize the portly guest.

"What did you think of that gentleman, Martha?" the planter asked, after Mr. Taft had driven off.

"Well, sir," old Martha replied, "I can't say as I saw nothin' pertickler about him. He looked to me like the kind of man as would be pretty reg'lar to his meals."—Louisville Times.

VALUE OF THE HUMBLE HEN.

Figures Make One Think Biddy Has Not Been Properly Appreciated.

The hen's admirers grow. Constant is their increase. The first official act of Nebraska's new labor commissioner was a formal appreciation of this pillar of society. According to Mr. Maupin, this fowl brought $18,000,000 worth of eggs to market in Nebraska last year. The commissioner is unprepared to estimate the value of her offspring in the way of fried chicken. She laid 1,200,000,000 eggs in 1908. Placed end to end these eggs would reach around the earth and overlap 12,000 miles. They would make an egg walk three feet wide reaching from Omaha to Ogden. With ham they would furnish breakfast for 600,000,000 people and make an omelet containing 652,000 cubic feet. The hen was worth more to Nebraska than the hoarded wheat crop of $26,000,000; almost twice as much as the oat crop of $16,000,000; 20 times as much as the barley crop; 20 times as much as the rye crop, and one-third as much as the much-talked-of crop of corn. The commissioner believes Nebraska needs another seal. Is he not right in thinking that upon that seal no figure so well demands recognition as the ever-patient, busy and unpretentious hen.

SISTER'S TRICK

But It All Came Out Right.

How a sister played a trick that brought rosy health to a coffee fiend is an interesting tale:

"I was a coffee fiend—a trembling, nervous, physical wreck, yet clinging to the poison that stole away my strength. I mocked at Postum and would have none of it."

"One day my sister substituted a cup of Postum piping hot for my morning cup of coffee but did not tell me what it was. I noticed the richness of it and remarked that the coffee tasted fine but my sister did not tell me I was drinking Postum for fear I might not take any more."

"She kept the secret and kept giving me Postum instead of coffee until I grew stronger, more tireless, got a better color in my sallow cheeks and a clearness to my eyes, then she told me of the health-giving, nerve-strengthening life-saver she had given me in place of my morning coffee. From that time I became a disciple of Postum and no words can do justice in telling the good this cereal drink did me. I will not try to tell it, for only after having used it can one be convinced of its merits."

Ten days' trial shows Postum's power to rebuild what coffee has destroyed. "There's a Reason."

The women members of the republican party in Colorado, and other suffragette states, are seriously considering the proposition of affiliating with their democratic sisters. The Payne tariff bill proposes to make them pay double prices for fancy hosiery, and other little unmentionables, is said to be at the bottom of the secession.

The experts who appear before congressional committees, and tell the committees that this, that or the other industry cannot thrive without protection, wear silk tiles and sport gold-headed canes. The farmer, mechanic, and ordinary business man has neither time nor money to attend, hence it is not difficult to understand in whose interests tariff bills are drawn.

The "Mighty Hunter" in Africa last week roped a giraffe in the seventh throw with a lariat, reports an exchange. This week he is reported to have killed a rhinoceros with his Express rifle, at a distance of seven paces, at the seventh shot, the rhino being the seventh animal he had bagged at the Juju ranch. This would seem to indicate that his seven years of occupancy of the White House had made seven his lucky number. The rhinoceros, it is said, fled at the approach of the goggle-eyed nimrod, who pursued it to its lair. The most remarkable thing about the "Hunter's" adventure is that he did not beat the brute to death with the "Big Stick."

IT MIGHT HAVE BEEN WORSE.

"All is not lost that is in danger," is an old saying. The fruit in this county was reported killed several times during the past two months. The latest accounts from the fruit belt in this county are to the effect that while fruit was more or less injured all over, there will be sufficient left to satisfy the wants of all. The freezes on the last night of April and first night of May were generally thought to have completely removed the last hope, but reports up to date show that only a few orchards were killed, although all were injured. Henry Emerson of Nogal canon was in town Saturday, and stated that so far as he knew at present he would have almost a full crop of apples, but his other varieties are done for. A. C. Austin of the Bonito Fruit Farm, informs us that he expects about a half crop of pears, a full crop of cherries and English plums, and maybe half a crop of apples, but no peaches or apricots. Most of the orchards will yield better than half a crop, but a few will scarcely yield enough for the home table.

PROVERBIAL FIG LEAF DISPENSED WITH.

Many people of this section know of Bayou Sara, Louisiana, because it is the home of the Reilys and the birthplace of Governor Curry; but the little hamlet gained national prominence the other day as a modern Garden of Eden. The Mississippi, one of Uncle Sam's new leviathans of the deep, was ploughing its way up the Father of Waters, endeavoring to reach the state that gave the battleship its name. The officers and men had been wine and dined at New Orleans and Baton Rouge, and had received orders to drop anchor at Bayou Sara.

The people of Bayou Sara were unprepared but undismayed, and immediately formed a committee to receive the representatives of the government. In order to prepare the visitors and to let them know that they need not expect an elaborate reception, the chairman of the committee sent Captain Fremont the following wire: "This is a hell of a place to receive anybody, but we will do our best."

This pleased the captain very much; for he thought he could see a good time ahead for himself and jackies, even though the swish of silks and the flash of diamonds were conspicuous by their absence. The committee wanted more information, however, and the next day the captain received this query:

"Will it be necessary for civilians on the battleship to wear high silk hats and frock coats during the day reception at Bayou Sara?"

The captain, no doubt being under the influence of the soft breezes, the smell of the fragrant magnolia and the jasmine in his nostrils and in his ears the sweet songs of birds bethought him of that beautiful story in Genesis, and immediately responded:

"Not necessary to wear anything at all. Come ahead."

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Baxter Lodge No. 9, Knights of Pythias, of White Oaks, adopted resolutions of respect to the memory of Jones Taliaferro, an active and loyal member of that lodge, which appear below:

Resolved—That in the death of Brother Jones Taliaferro Baxter Lodge No. 9, Knights of Pythias, is called to deplore and mourn the loss of a well-beloved brother who from its first institution has been a faithful worker of our lodge, ever devoted to its high aims and noble purposes, and whose place can not be filled.

Resolved—That, while we are called upon to sit in the shadow of a great bereavement, which, naturally casts its deepest gloom on those who, like ourselves, were daily admitted to the privileges of his personal friendship and ready co-operation in every enterprise which had for its object the promotion of human welfare we at the same time feel that we should record our solemn thanksgiving for his bright example as citizen, friend, husband and father, as well as for his abundant labors and tender sympathy.

Resolved—That, cherishing for his memory a profound respect and a tender affection, we proffer to his bereaved family our sincerest sympathy and condolence.

In connection, we present also a paragraph from the Watseka (Illinois) Republican, which paper is published where Mr. Taliaferro was born, and shows in what esteem he was held by those with whom he was associated in early life:

"Jones Taliaferro is remembered in this community, where he spent his boyhood. His father died when he was quite a lad and he tried in every way to make life easier for his widowed mother. He was industrious and painstaking and no friend of his ever had to blush for any unjust deed that he had committed."

CARD OF THANKS.

With all the earnestness of our hearts we thank our many friends who so kindly and thoughtfully helped us through the illness of our darling baby. Oh, that words could express our heartfelt gratitude! There is but One we know that can reward; to Him we are looking and praying that he may bless and duly reward all of those who so kindly and generously helped us.

Better Not Get Dyspepsia

If you can help it, Kodol prevents Dyspepsia, by effectually helping Nature to Relieve Indigestion. But don't trifle with indigestion.

A great many people who have tried with indigestion, have been sorry for it—when nervous or chronic dyspepsia resulted, and they have not been able to cure it. Use Kodol and prevent having Dyspepsia.

Everyone is subject to indigestion. Stomach derangement follows stomach abuse, just as naturally and just as surely as a sound and healthy stomach results upon the taking of Kodol.

When you experience sourness of stomach, belching of gas and nauseating fluid, bloated sensation, gnawing pain in the pit of the stomach, heart burn (so-called), diarrhoea, headaches, dullness or chronic tired feeling—you need Kodol. And then the quicker you take Kodol—the better. Eat what you want, let Kodol digest it.

Ordinary peptic "dyspepsia tablets," physics, etc., are not likely to be of much benefit to you, in digestive ailments. Peptic is only a partial digester—and physica are not digesters at all.

Kodol is a perfect digester. If you could see Kodol digesting every particle of food, of all kinds, in the glass test-tubes in our laboratories, you would know this just as well as we do.

Nature and Kodol will always cure a sick stomach—but in order to be cured, the stomach must rest. That is what Kodol does—rests the stomach, while the stomach gets well. Just as simple as A, B, C.

The Carrizozo base ball team will go to Fort Stanton Sunday to play a game with the Fort team. Carrizozo has an excellent team, but lack of practice—matched games being about the only time they get on the diamond—makes them weak when they go up against a team in regular training, as is the Stanton team.

AT HYMEN'S ALTAR.

Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Kahler, Miss Mollie Kahler was made the wife of Robert E. Hoffman, Rev. J. A. Tricky performing the ceremony. The young couple left on No. 3 for El Paso that afternoon amid a shower of rice from their friends. The bride and groom are among the most popular young people in Carrizozo, and start out upon the journey of life with the best wishes of a host of friends.

SOME GOOD SALADS

SUBSTITUTES FOR THE MORE HEAVY DISHES.

Little Bundle of Recipes Housekeepers Will Find It Convenient to Have in Memory for All Occasions.

Supper Salad.—Mix one and one-half cups of cold cooked chicken cut in cubes, one cucumber pared and cut in cubes, one cupful of chopped English walnut meats, one-half cupful of French peas and cupful of celery cut in small pieces thoroughly chilled in ice water. Moisten with mayonnaise dressing and garnish with strips of canned red pepper arranged ribbon fashion and celery tips.

Cabbage Salad.—One small head of cabbage, one stalk of celery, four apples. Cut all up fine and over them pour a cream mayonnaise dressing. Serve on a lettuce leaf and on top of each lay a choice piece of celery and two radishes.

Lenten Salad.—One can kidney beans, one cup celery, chopped; six pickles, six olives, and one onion. Chop all but the beans, mix well, and pour salad dressing over all. Serve on lettuce leaves.

Banana Salad.—One banana cut lengthwise in half, set on lettuce leaf, and cover top of banana with rolled peanuts, and two teaspoonfuls of common salad dressing, one banana served to each guest. This makes delicious as well as a pretty salad.

German Holiday Salad.—Take six milchener herring soaked over night, skin them and remove all bones; six tart medium apples, six onions, three dill pickles, all chopped fine, one-half cup vinegar, one-half teaspoon of pepper, or more if you like. Be sure and use the milk in the herring.

Olive Salad.—Take one dozen onions and a pint of olives, two green peppers and one red one; chop fine. Into this stir one tablespoon mustard seed, one small bottle horseradish and one five-cent glass of mixed mustard, one teaspoon salt, and one tablespoon brown sugar, one cup vinegar; mix all together and let stand one week. It is fine with cold meats.

A Few Helps.

Put a pint of cream of tartar in frosting or fudge to prevent "going to sugar." It will make it nice and creamy.

To poach eggs and prevent their sticking to the vessel, grease the vessel before pouring in water.

To scald or boil milk, first rinse out the dish with cold water and immediately put in the milk, and it will not adhere to dish and burn, but will wash easily afterward.

When eggs are poaching or frying, cover the pan with a lid just the last moment of their cooking. This will give the pretty pink glazed overlook so desirable.

To make ferns luxuriant, moisten the earth around ferns at least once a week with cold tea instead of water. They will immediately give out new shoots and become a dark rich green.

Apricot Ice Cream.

For a quart of cream allow a quarter cupful of sugar, a pint of can apricots pressed through a sieve, the juice of one orange and one lemon. Make a sirup of the sugar, allowing one-half cupful of water, cook, add the fruit juice cool, pour in the cream and pack in the freezer. When half frozen stir in the apricot, puree and freeze hard.

Useful Trifles.

A pinch of cream of tartar added to sugar before boiling makes boiled frosting for cakes delicious and creamy. A pinch of salt and a little baking powder makes pie crust light and flaky and more digestible. One teaspoonful baking powder in one-half cup granulated sugar added to the white of one egg stiffly beaten makes a fluffy meringue for lemon pie.

THE CRACKING OF PAINT.

Property Owners Can Save Money by Learning the Cause.

Do you know what is wrong when paint peels, or cracks, or otherwise necessitates premature re-painting?

Well, sometimes it hasn't been properly applied—the surface being damp or there being too much turpentine or too much drier.

But, nine times out of ten, the trouble is caused by adulterated white lead.

To avoid all such trouble, every houseowner should know in a general way, when a surface is in proper condition to receive paint, what kind of primer and finishing coats different surfaces require, and how to avoid adulteration in materials.

A complete painting guide, including a book of color schemes, specifications for all kinds of painting work, and an instrument for detecting adulterations in painting materials, with directions for using it, can be had free by writing National Lead Company, 1902 Trinity Bldg., New York, and asking for Houseowner's Painting Outfit No. 49.

This company, the largest makers of pure white lead, invite tests, by means of the blowpipe (included in outfit), or in any other way, of the purity of the white lead sold under their famous "Dutch Boy Painter" trademark. That trademark on a keg of white lead is in itself an absolute guarantee of purity and quality.

Punishment and Crime.

"She seems to be having a pretty good time now that she and her husband are separated," whispered the three girls in the corner as she entered the room.

"I don't blame her," said one. "He beat her, didn't he?"

They looked her over again.

"Well, I don't blame him for beating her," the third declared, "if she dressed like that. That red is awful."

"She came into my house one evening very much excited, and I said to her: 'Blanche, for heaven's sake, what is the matter? You seem to be all gone to pieces.'"

"'Matter enough,' she answered, as her voice shook with anger. 'I have been accosted by a man in the streets.'"

"What did you do?" I asked.

"I hauled off and hit him in the face," she answered, "and I said to him: 'You dirty dog, would you speak to a defenseless woman?'"

"And where was he when you said this?" I again inquired.

"Rolling in the gutter where he fell when I hit him," she said, in a surprised tone at my question.—"Toledo."

A Candidate for Baptism

By Silas Xavier Floyd

(Copyright, by J. B. Lippincott Co.)

At the close of the regular prayer-meeting service the pastor of New Mount Zion Colored Baptist church, according to custom, stepped to the front of the platform and inquired:

"Is dere anybody present to-night who would lak' to jine dis church? Ef so, please stan' up."

Whereupon a little girl, apparently 14 or 15 years old, stood. The parson said:

"Tek yo' seat. Dere's one; de church will set togeddah attar dismission an' hyeah f'um dis little lamb."

The benediction having been pronounced, all the sinners were asked to leave the room. Only church-members are allowed to remain for these "after-meetings." When the room was cleared of all "the goats" a pompous-looking individual, perhaps a deacon of the church, arose and said:

"Buddah Pastur, de house is in ordah an' ready fur business."

The pastor then asked the little girl who was seeking admission to come forward. She gave her narge to a one-eyed man seated at a table in front who after a laborious effort passed it up on a piece of paper to the preacher. The preacher, readjusting his brass-rimmed spectacles, looked at the piece of paper a long while, and then raised his head and said:

"Bruddahs an' sistahs, dis is little Queen Victoria Davis, who comes to tell us how de Lawd has done fur her soul." Then, turning to the girl, he said: "My daughtah, we wants you to tell us what fuss started you to prayin', an' how you foun' de Lawd, an' so on an' so fo'th. Speak loud, so all kin heah."

The little girl commenced as follows:

"Well, bruddahs an' sistahs, what fuss started me to prayin' was dat I knowed dat I had a soul to save, an' ef I didn't git religion hell would sho' be my home."

"True! True!" exclaimed a number of men and women in chorus.

"An' den," continued Queen Victoria, "I wanted to start servin' de Lawd while I was young; I wanted to give him my bes' days."

"Amen," said one old brother.

"Well," asked the pastor, "how did you feel while you was seekin' de Lawd?"

The girl hesitated a moment, evidently in doubt as to the exact purport of the question. Finally she said:

"I felt lak I wanted to be saved."

This answer not exactly suiting the parson, he put the question in a different way. Said he:

"Did you feel light er did you feel heavy while you was prayin'?"

"I felt both," said the little girl, in unaffected innocence. Funereal groans of pity swept through the congregation. The preacher tried again. This time he asked:

"Did you feel light de mos' er did you feel heavy de mos'?"

When Queen Victoria responded: "I felt heavy de mos'," a wave of approval greeted the remark.

"W'en did dat heavy load leave you?" asked the parson.

"Las' Friday night," said Queen Victoria—"las' Friday night. I kep' on a-prayin' an' a-prayin', an' I didn't feel no bettah untel I made up my min' dat I was gwinter fin' de Lawd er die a-tryin'. An' las' Friday night de Sperrit met me an' spoke peace to my soul. I hyeahed a little voice, but I saw no man, an' de little voice said to me: 'Go in peace an' sin no mo'."

yo' sins is furgivin an' yo' soul sot free."

At this everybody shouted assent. "Glory! Hallelujah!" exclaimed an elderly sister.

"Now, my daughtah," said the preacher, "how did you feel attar dat?"

"I felt light ez a feathah," said the child. There was another shout of approval. Queen Victoria having hit upon the regulation answer.

"Ef you was to die now, whar would you go?" inquired the examiner.

"To heaven," was the reply.

"Ef you had 'a' died in yo' sins, whar would you 'a' went?"

"I would 'a' went to hell," said the girl.

"Would Gawd 'a' been jes' in sendin' you to hell?"

"No, sah!" exclaimed the applicant. Many of the hearers laughed. The preacher raised his hand and said:

"Don't laff; don't laff; de chile is young yit, an' she's got to learn."

Then by a series of leading questions, mainly concerning parental government, the old pastor brought the child around to the point where she saw, or where she was willing to say she saw, that it was just for God to send people to hell.

"Do you want to jine dis church?" continued the questioner.

"Yas, sah," said the applicant.

"Dis is a Baptis' church, you know," explained the pastor; "we baptize hyeah by puttin' people deep down undah de watah. Ain't you skeered o' col' watah in de wintah time?"

"Watah can't git too col' fur me," said the little girl; "I got de grace o' Gawd in my heart."

The people fairly whooped at this (as in their superstition they supposed) supreme manifestation of faith.

The pastor then turned to the congregation and said:

"Is dere any othah questions?"

An old brother near the stove arose and said:

"Bruddah Pastur, I ain't hyeahed de chile say whar she was at w'en de change tuk place."

Queen Victoria responded:

"I was at de Bridge Street church las' Friday night."

The old brother nodded, as if completely satisfied with the answer. Then he asked:

"How long is you willin' to trus' dis hope?"

"Till I die," said the applicant. Down sat the questioner.

"Any mo' questions?" asked the pastor.

A sister stood.

"Honey," she said, "is you got any partrus livin'?"

"Yas'm," was the reply; "my ma an' pa is both livin', an' dey's both out in de ol' fel' o' sin."

"Lawd 'a' musay!" exclaimed several of the hearers. The sister who asked the question sat, bathed in tears.

A brother in the rear arose and said:

"I has a question dat I wants to ax: I wants to know, daughtah, ef you was convertid at de Bridge Street church, huccom you wants to jine dis church?"

"De Sperrit sent me to dis church," exultantly exclaimed the girl.

"Glory to Gawd!" said the pastor. "Bless de Lamb!" exclaimed some one else. "Honah! Honah! Honah!" bellowed many others, and there was a general shout.

The examination ended, two sisters came forward and took Queen Victoria into the anteroom. When the applicant had been carried out a brother arose, the same pompous individual who had originally announced the house "in ordah an' ready fur business." Clearing his throat, he said:

"Bruddah Pastur, I sho' b'lieves dis is de works o' grace." There was a loud chorus of "Amen's." "An' I motions," continued the speaker, "ef I kin git a secon', dat she be 'ceptid ez er cannerdate fur baptism an' on baptism 'come a full membah o' dis church."

"Secon' de motion!" "Secon' de motion!" exclaimed several at once.

The motion was put and carried. Queen Victoria was brought in once more. The pastor informed her of the unanimous vote of the church, and instructed her to be ready for baptism the following Sunday night. Then the meeting adjourned, the members singing as they dispersed:

Ol' sheep, you know de road,
Ol' sheep, you know de road,
Ol' sheep, you know de road,
Young lambs mus' learn de way.

KING IN THE BACKWOODS.

How a New York Reporter Was Regarded by Village Arbiters.

One of the local reporters was sent up state not long ago to get a murder story, says the Cincinnati Times-Star's New York correspondent. While plouetting around after facts in one of the little backwoods villages he became acquainted with the arbiter elegantiarum of the town—an old maid, full of curiosity and scandal. He played her along, for she oozed the very information he had been sent to get. The day that he was ready to start back to New York she called him into her little front parlor. "I'm so embarrassed, Mr. Boster," she simpered.

Mr. Boster breezily bade her cheer up.

"I have such a favor to ask of you," said she, twisting in her shoes.

Mr. Boster began to fear a touch. But he was game. "Anything I can do; my dearest lady," he said.

"Well," said she, looking into his eyes coquettishly. "This town has never before been honored by the presence of a real New York newspaper man. The nearest was a nice-looking young man who said he was a reporter and who beat mother out of a week's board. I feel that your visit here marks a real epoch in Shadeville's history. In my album I have the autographs of Admiral Sampson, Admiral Schley and Gov. Hughes and Senator Platt. Would you be so kind as to let me have your signature—with an appropriate sentiment?"

The newspaper man signed, right under Tom Platt's name. As a kind of two-edged sentiment, a sentiment that would cut both ways and leave all hands in discreet doubt as to the writer's meaning, he wrote:

"Sweet are the uses of adversity."

THE KICKER.

"Well, 'twas just as I expected—The political machine Had its bosses all elected, And they swept the city clean. Things in town are getting rotten." Here he stopped to clear his throat, And I asked him very gently If he took the time to vote.

"No," he stammered, "I was busy. But what difference would it make? When the bosses run a city All elections are a fake. What we need is men in office Whose honesty is known, Who would run the city's business As they try to run their own."

"We need citizens of standing In our offices to-day, But there is no chance to get them With the bosses in full sway. We need decent men and loyal, Men above all forms of greed, Men, with nobleness of purpose, That, my friend, is what we need."

"Yes," I answered, "I feel certain That affairs are out of joint, And we do need men of honor, But you've overlooked a point. There's a need that looms up greater, And I beg of you to note It's the need of decent citizens Who'll take the time to vote." —Edgar A. Guest, in Detroit Free Press.

"Women must learn to date their letters if they are going to compete with men," said Judge Edge, at Clerkenwell county court, London.

WORTH MOUNTAINS OF GOLD

During Change of Life, says Mrs. Chas. Barclay

Graniteville, Vt. — "I was passing through the Change of Life and suffered from nervousness and other annoying symptoms, and I can truly say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has proved worth mountains of gold to me, as it restored my health and strength. I never forget to tell my friends what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me during this trying period. Complete restoration to health means so much to me that for the sake of other suffering women I am willing to make my trouble public so you may publish this letter." —Mrs. CHAS. BARCLAY, R.F.D., Graniteville, Vt.

No other medicine for woman's ills has received such wide-spread and unqualified endorsement. No other medicine we know of has such a record of cures of female ills as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

For more than 30 years it has been curing female complaints such as inflammation, ulceration, local weaknesses, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, indigestion and nervous prostration, and it is unequalled for carrying women safely through the period of change of life. It costs but little to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and, as Mrs. Barclay says, it is "worth mountains of gold" to suffering women.
