UNM News Minute #343 – November 20, 2006

1. THE 2007 SPRING CLASS schedule is now available online at: https://www8.unm.edu/pls/banp/bwckschd.p_disp_dyn_sched. It can also be found on the UNM homepage under the link, '2007 Spring Schedule.' A "Quick View" version is also available on the registrar's site at: <http://www.unm.edu/~unmreg>. This registrar's version provides interested parties the opportunity to print out offerings by academic department. However, it does not replace the complete schedule on the homepage that identifies pre- or co-requisites and or departmental/college restrictions.

2. VICE PROVOST of Graduate Studies Amy Wohlert has been recognized as a Fellow of the American Speech-Language-Hearing Association (ASHA). Wohlert was recognized for her contributions to research in the neuromuscular control of speech production and for her service as an administrator and as chair of the Council on Academic Accreditation in Speech-Language Pathology and Audiology.

4. THE HEALTH SCIENCES CENTER'S Medical Simulation Program has been named a Level I Accredited Education Institute by the American College of Surgeons. The program, run through the B.A.T.C.A.V.E. (Basic Advanced Trauma Computer Assisted Virtual Experience), is one of only seven inaugural institutions in North America awarded this certification. The ACS review described UNM's B.A.T.C.A.V.E. as an outstanding educational institution providing quality education and services.
