INFORMS OFFICIALS AT CAPITOL

Express Regret Over Retirement of Governor

SENT TO REFORM SCHOOL

Chief Executive Will Com- mute Sentences of Young Convicts.

Governor Curry this forenoon called into his office the officials at the capitol and explained to them the reasons for his intention to retire from the governorship next spring, as they had been set forth by the New Mexican last evening. He said that his intention is irrevocable, although many of his friends have urged him to reconsider. The officials were deeply touched by the remarks of the chief executive, and Secretary of the Territory Nathan Jaffa, as spokesman, expressed the sense of loss felt in the Governor's contemplated retirement, a loss to the commonwealth and its people. He assured the Governor that he possessed the confidence and loyal devotion of his official family and expressed regret that his decision is irrevocable.

From all over the territory and beyond, Governor Curry today received messages pledging him support if he decided to remain in the executive office, but the Governor will not reconsider as the duty to himself and his children compels him to pay attention to his private affairs. However, he will not retire before March 1, if then. The exact date will be announced from Washington at the proper time.

Will Be Sent to Reform School.

Governor Curry will commute the sentences of three or four boys of tender age in the penitentiary to the Reform School and they will be taken there, probably by Sheriff Cleo Stewart, who brought with him to Santa Fe last night in the batch of prisoners for the penitentiary, Cliff Hall, a boy 14 years old who had been sentenced to the Reform School at Springer by Judge W. ## LOW WATER DELAYS FLEET

Dedicates Young Men's Christian Association Building.

Memphis, Oct. 27.—The Presidential fleet headed by the Oleaner swept up to the wharf here at 11 o'clock today and the President was given a true Southern greeting by thousands assembled to meet him. The fleet was delayed during the night by low water and was several hours late. After a brief address of welcome by Mayor Malone at the dock, the President was taken through the streets to the Y. M. C. A. building which was dedicated by the President. He then drove to the auditorium where after a welcome on behalf of the state from Governor Patterson, the President again reiterated his position on waterways. His voice is still husky and weak but he consumed the full time allotted for the address. At 3 o'clock the fleet again steamed down the river, saluted by a battery stationed where De Soto is said to have first seen the river. His next stop will be Helena, Arkansas, where he is due tonight.

Taft Asks for Co-operation of States.

Memphis, Tenn., Oct. 27.—At the dinner given aboard the St. Paul by the governors last night, President Taft made an address in which he sought to encourage still further the policy of the states co-operating with the federal government. The President dwelt on the fact that the federal government is unable by reason of the Constitution to act on many questions common to all states and must have the co-operation of the states in a uniform policy which will unite both powers. He urged the meeting of all governors in Washington each winter and announced that the latch string of the White House would be out for all governors on such a gathering.

FATAL STABBING IN QUARREL OVER KEG OF BEER

Greeley, Colo., Oct. 27.—Following a dispute over which should pay for the keg in which a consignment of beer had arrived, George Kerber, a Russian boy, lies dying from a knife wound in a hospital at Longmont, and his alleged assailant, Fed Peil, is in the county jail. Kerber, it is believed, will not recover.

Peil and Kerber are employed on a ranch four miles west of Johnstown. The beer was consigned to Russians living on the ranch and there was to be $1 paid the brewing company for the keg, the amount to be refunded when the keg was returned. Both Kerber and Peil insisted that the other should pay, and the fight followed.

THE OPSONIC TREATMENT FOR LIVE STOCK.

Wonderful Results Achieved With it at the Colorado College of Agri- culture at Fort Collins.

Fort Collins, Colo., Oct. 27.—What is known as the opsonic treatment, discovered by Wright in England a few years ago, and successfully applied to human beings in combating various germ diseases, is now being used with equal success in the treatment of the lower animals. That horses, cattle, sheep, cats and dogs, suffering from afflictions accompanied by suppuration are reached in the same way has been successfully demonstrated by the veterinary department of Colorado Agricultural College.

As a result of experiments conducted by Dr. B. F. Kaupp, pathologist, and Prof. W. G. Sackett, bacteriologist, the department has begun the manufacture of what is known as anti-suppurative vaccine. The cultures are secured from infected stock and propagated on beef broth, 50,000,000 per cubic centimeter. Inoculation of animals suffering from fistula, poll evil or similar diseases, produces fluids that weakens the diseased germs and strengthens the white blood cells so that they can aid in the work of germ destruction.

The discovery was made thirty days ago but kept secret until its effectiveness had been proved. After the first successful test here vaccine was sent to competent veterinarians at Denver, Trinidad, Boulder, Loveland, Longmont and Windsor and reports so far received all show success.

One of the inoculated horses in the veterinary dispensary at the college is growing fat under the treatment. So effective was the treatment in this animal that Dr. C. L. Barnes, the surgeon in charge, removed four pounds of dead tissue from the wound, which had been crowded out by new tissue rebuilt under the magic influence of the vaccine. It is said that the discovery will revolutionize veterinary practice for certain germ diseases.

THREE OF HER CHILDREN KILLED IN ONE DAY.

Two Bitten By Rattlesnake, Die of Poison and Third Drowned By Fall Into Well.

Cheyenne, Wyo., Oct. 27.—Distressed to the point of almost losing her reason by the death of her three small children in one day, Mrs. Lent Henderson of Sundance, is under the continued care of physicians.

Yesterday while Mrs. Henderson was in the yard with the baby, she heard the two old children scream, and rushing into the house found that both had been bitten by a huge rattlesnake. While caring for them she heard a faint cry from the baby. Answering this she found that the little tot had fallen into a well, and was drowned before it could be rescued. Hastening into the house, Mrs. Henderson found the two older children in dying throes from the effects of the reptile's poison.

WORKING FOR AMERICAN UTOPIA

National Conserva- tion Commission Opens Offices

WANT CONCERTED ACTION

President Taft Favors Move- ment Headed by Charles W. Eliot.

New York, Oct. 27.—With the opening of offices by the National Conservation Association a systematic movement to appeal to the people for concerted action in preserving the natural resources of the country was launched today. The association is under the leadership of Charles W. Eliot, former president of Harvard, and will advocate administrative measures by states and the federal government in accordance with the conservation principles adopted by the governors of states in conference with Roosevelt in 1908. Taft is a strong backer of the association which in addition to the conservation of forests, waters, mineral land and power rights declares it favors legislation promoting the elimination of sickness, prevention of accidental and premature death and increase of comfort in American life.

MRS. JOHN JACOB ASTOR SUES FOR DIVORCE.

New York, Oct. 27.—New York was shocked when it was learned that Mrs. John Jacob Astor, the beautiful and queenly leader of the Four Hundred, is suing her distinguished husband for a separation. The proceedings have been conducted quietly and with dispatch. The case is now in the hands of the referee, C. H. Young of 78 Williams street. Exactly what is the basis of the action has not been learned.

Mrs. Astor returned from Europe on October 15. She traveled incognito. Her husband is now on his yacht, Nourmahal in Cuban waters, having sailed on October 12, three days before his wife's arrival home.

Mrs. Astor did not go to her recently remodeled city mansion at Fifth avenue, nor to her beautiful country seat at Rhinebeck. She went to the home of her devoted friends, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Guinness of Washington square, West. She left there Sunday morning to visit friends in the country.

Astor's attorney in the proceedings is Lewis Cass Lydard.

Referee Young, when seen was asked if a member of his firm had been appointed referee to hear evidence in a case of unusual note.

"I, personally, have been appointed to act in such capacity," he replied. "It is understood," he was told, "that Mrs. John Jacob Astor is the plaintiff in that case against her husband."

"I have nothing to say regarding that," said Young.

"Is it true that you are the referee in a proceeding brought by Mrs. Astor?"

"I have nothing to say," he repeated. There is no other family in New York whose disagreement could cause such genuine regret in the social as well as the business world. Both Mrs. Astor and her husband, besides their birthrights as members of two of the famous families in America, have won personal distinction in many fields.

Hearing Already Begun.

New York, Oct. 27.—It is understood that hearings already have been before Charles H. Young, referee in the divorce action brought by Mrs. John Jacob Astor against her husband, John Jacob Astor. Attorneys on both sides refuse to give any information concerning the suit.

REALISTIC DRAMA AT STOCKTON, CALIFORNIA.

Stockton, Cal., Oct. 27.—Today's celebration of the gold rush of '49 was designed to illustrate the dangers of early life in the mining camps.

An emigrant train was attacked by Indians at the corner of American street and Weber avenue and many whites were scalped before a rescue party arrived from Roaring Camp. Aroused by this outrage, the miners organized a vigilance committee and when, soon after the regular stage from Shirt Tail gulch was held up, the vigilantes pursued the robbers, captured them as the were taking refuge in the new Y. M. C. A. building and immediately strung them up.

New York, Oct. 27.—Word has been received from Jack Johnson that he leaves for New York today and has wired friends to arrange a meeting with Jeffries immediately. Jeffries drew the first free breath through his nose since the first fight with Fitzsimmons yesterday when the growth was removed from one nostril. He will have the other nostril cleared tomorrow. The Johnson-Ketchel fight pictures have impressed the eastern experts favorably toward the ability of the negro and many predict that the black will give Jeffries a hard battle. A report that N. S. Needham of Coal- inga, Calif., had offered $100,000 for the fight has not been confirmed and is not generally believed.

WHO PAYS THE TAXES?

Interesting Query Answered by C. V. Safford

RAILROADS IN THE LEAD

City Real Estate Also Heavy Contributor to the Receipts.

Territorial Traveling Auditor Charles V. Safford answers the above question in a brief analysis of the assessment rolls for 1909. The railroads pay the highest percentage of taxes of any interest in the Territory. They pay almost a quarter of all the taxes levied and they pay it and are not delinquent. To be exact, they will pay 24.218 per cent of the total amount collected this year, an increase of 2.435 per cent over last year, by far the largest increase in the taxation of any interest.

Next to railroads, city property, that is city real estate and buildings thereon, contribute to the income of the Territory, counties and schools the largest amount of taxes, namely 17.621 per cent, or a little over one-eighth of the total, that being a decrease of 1.324 per cent over last year.

Third are the grazing lands, and improvements thereon, 13.383 per cent or a little more than one-eighth of the total amount, an increase of 2.035 per cent, over last year. The railroads, therefore pay more than one-half of all the taxes collected or more than city, real estate and grazing lands, a billion dollars altogether.

Agricultural lands with improvements pay 12.22 per cent or a little less than one-eighth an increase of .318 per cent over last year. Cattle, pay 7.042 per cent or a little less than one-fourteenth of the total, a decrease of 1.415 over last year. Merchandise bears 4.683 per cent of the total, or about one twenty-fifth, which is rather small for all the stores of the Territory with the millions of dollars worth of merchandise in their cellars or on their shelves. The decrease over last year is .635 per cent. Sheep and goats also contribute about one twenty-fifth of the taxes, or to be exact 4.427 per cent, a decrease of 1.957 per cent. Horses, burros and mules bear 3.022 per cent of the tax burden, an increase of .009 per cent over last year. Household goods bear 2.278 per cent, a decrease of .074 per cent, bank stock 2.034 per cent, a decrease of .192 per cent; mineral lands 1.447 per cent, an increase of .099 per cent; farming implements 1.254 per cent, a decrease of .131 per cent; and coal lands 1.090 per cent, an increase of .055 per cent.

All other classes pay less than one per cent of the taxes, as follows: Electric light plants, water plants, ditches for irrigation, reservoirs and street railways a total of only .736 of one per cent, a decrease of .105 per cent; capital in manufacturing money, bond, warrants and coupons only .706 of one per cent, an increase of .041 per cent; timber lands .545 of one per cent, an increase of .109 per cent; telegraph and telephone lines .367 of one per cent, a loss of .062 per cent; mines, products and improvements .352 of one per cent, a decrease of .168 of one per cent; saw and flouring mills .2 of one per cent, a decrease of .002 of one per cent.

The student of tax matters can draw his own conclusions from the above in figuring on whom the tax burden falls the heaviest and who is escaping his just share.

THE DAILY ROUND UP.

THE STINGS OF LITTLE THINGS.
We call him strong who stands unmoved.
Calm as some tempest-beaten rock—
When some great trouble hurls its shock.
We say of him his strength is proved.
But when the spent storm folds its wings.
How bears he then life's little things?

I can forgive—'tis worth my while—
The treacherous blow, the cruel thrust;
Can bless my foe as Christians must.
When patience smiles her royal smile;
Yet fierce resentment quickly slings
Its shots of ire at little things.

And I can tread beneath my feet
The hills of passion's heaving sea
When wind-tossed waves roll stormily;

Yet scarce resist the siren sweet,
That at my heart's door softly sings:
"Forget, forget life's little things."

But what is this? Drops make the sea;

And petty cares and small events,
Small causes and small consequents
Make up the sum for you and me.

Then, O for strength to meet the stings

That arm the points of little things!

AGONY OF ECZEMA BEYOND WORDS

Whole Body a Mass of Raw, Torturing Humor—Hair All Fell Out and Ears Seemed Ready to Drop Off—Clothing Would Stick to Bleeding Flesh—Hoped Death Would End Fearful Suffering.

CASE SEEMED HOPELESS BUT CUTICURA CURED HER

"Words cannot describe the terrible eczema I suffered with. It broke out on my head and kept spreading until it covered my whole body. I was almost a solid mass of sores from head to foot. I looked more like a piece of raw beef than a human being. The pain and agony I endured seemed more than I could bear. Blood and pus oozed from the great sores on my scalp, from under my finger nails, and nearly all over my body. My ears were so crusted and swollen I was afraid they would break off. Every hair on my head fell out. I could not sit down, for my clothes would stick to the raw and bleeding flesh, making me cry out from the pain. My family doctor did all he could, but I got worse and worse. My condition was awful. I did not think I could live, and wanted death to come and end my fearful sufferings.

"In this condition my mother-in-law begged me to try the Cuticura Remedies. I said I would, but had no hope of recovery. But oh, what blessed relief I experienced after applying Cuticura Ointment. It cooled the bleeding and itching flesh and brought me the first real sleep I had had in weeks. It was as grateful as ice to a burning tongue. I would bathe with warm water and Cuticura Soap, then apply the Ointment freely. I also took Cuticura Resolvent for the blood. In a short time the sores stopped running, the flesh began to heal, and I knew I was to get well again. Then the hair on my head began to grow, and in a short time I was completely cured. I cannot praise Cuticura enough. I wish I could tell everybody who has eczema to use Cuticura. My condition was so terrible that what cured me cannot fail to cure anybody of this awful disease. If any one doubts the truth of this letter, tell them to write to me. Mrs. Wm. Hunt, 135 Thomas St., Newark, N. J., Sept. 28, 1908."

For four or five years I was subject to attacks of backache which were so severe at times that I was unable to work. I tried various remedies said to be cures for troubles such as I had, but nothing benefited me until I procured Doan's Kidney Pills at Stripling, Burrows & Co.'s drug store. They quickly proved their worth and effected a cure which has been lasting. My experience with Doan's Kidney Pills has been so gratifying that I gladly recommend them."

Enforced Simplicity of Dress By Shop Girls—Work of American Painters and Sculptors.

Chicago, Oct. 27.—A sudden flare of controversy between fraternal insurance societies on opposite sides in the matter of adequate rates has revealed some sidelights and figures which show a wide disparity between the charges some societies make for insurance. The tilt was between two societies of women, the Royal Neighbors of America and the Ladies of the Macabees of the World, but the arguments were confined to figures. The Royal Neighbors explained an increase of membership of over 18,000 by the rate (per $1,000 at the age of 35) of $6.05. The L. O. T. M. O. W. replied that the amount of money on hand to protect the insurance promised was the main point in fraternal insurance—that they had over four million dollars with which to do that, whereas the Royal Neighbors had less than $300,000, and that instead of $36.20 on hand to pay each $1,000 insurance contract, the Royal Neighbors had but $1.80. The statement signed by officers of the Ladies of the Macabees of the World adds: "If claims are to be paid provision for their payment must be made when the order is young by the collection of adequate rates. If this is not done, the difference between the adequate collections and the actual collections as well as the interest on accumulated funds will have to be made up by the members at some time in the future by means of larger payments—either higher rates or more frequent assessments or both—or the society will go into the hands of the receiver." The principal difficulty of fraternal insurance orders has been encountered when the increasing age of the members has increased the mortality and claims for death losses. If the order has not provided emergency funds large enough to meet all the claims which death may put upon them they go into receivers' hands and that is what the National Fraternal Congress is seeking to prevent, it appears, in advocating adequate charges for insurance.

Enforced simplicity of dress and ratless coiffures ordered by one Chicago department store for its clerks as an experimental safeguard against the temptations that accompany feminine rivalries, has introduced a new personage—the censor—confidant of the girl employees. Rats, rings, conspicuous attire and some jealousies have been banished and a democracy of simple dress has already appeared. But this has not been done without emotional commotions. One girl clerk, almost in tears, lamented: "She didn't even tell them to wear fewer rats next day, but she made them leave all of them out right then and there except one. And she asked the girls where they got their rings, and if they said a young man gave them she asked the girl if she was engaged. If the girl said 'no', she made her take the ring off. She allowed them to wear only one ring, and one rat and one fancy pin." Indictment of fiction of the love-at-first-sight and marry-in-haste variety as a contributing cause of white slave tragedies developed when club women of the Chicago district Federation formally joined the forces fighting "white slavery." Mrs. Catherine Waugh McCulloch, one of the national champions of equal suffrage declared: "I have seen six stories in the leading magazines of the month, each of which was built on the fact that a young man and a young woman met, fell in love and were married, within a fortnight. When we read a story of that kind we ought to write the editors and tell them they are helping to foster the white slave trade." Every club woman in Chicago is to be made a committee of one to co-operate with the forces now fighting the evil. They are to carry their gospel not only to the girls, but to mothers and employers. Active work by women's clubs and federations of clubs will be sought.

The work of artists and sculptors of all America is on display at the 22d annual exhibition of American artists at the Art Institute of Chicago, with which the recently completed galleries of the east wing are dedicated. These galleries cost $105,000 and their present occupancy was made possible by the donation last October of $25,000 by James A. Patten, the wheat king. Towards the fund that the trustees were raising by subscription, and they complete the quadrangle of the original plan. The proportion and lighting of these galleries is much admired; the cove under the glass roof interrupts scarcely any light but is amply sufficient to prevent rays of light from passing downward through projections of the pigments. Together with the glass introduced into the roof, the walls done in faint green seem to contribute by reflection a complete diffusion of light so that the most delicate tones of the pictures receive perfect justice. The exhibit of paintings is illustrative of the later development of American handling and color methods. The portrait of the noted sculptor, Lorado Taft, painted by Ralph Clarkson is held to be one of the finest portraits shown. Other notable exhibits are "Laughing," Antonia Sterba, a Chicagoan; "In the Studio," by Louis Rittman; "The Blue Mantel," Katherine Maxey and "The Girl in White," by Clara J. Kretzinger, the Chicago girl who maintains a studio in Paris. William Sargeant Kendall of New York has a nude study, "Mischief," worked out along the line of his picture "Narcissa" that won a prize last year. George H. Bogert's "Surf" which was at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition in 1904, is exceptionally fine in execution and color, while glazer exhibits that hold even the casual passerby are "In a Garden" by John C. Johnson; "In Rittenhouse Square" by Elizabeth Sparhawk Jones; "October Day," by Alden Wein, one of his first American landscapes into which blue shadows were introduced and which was exhibited at the World's Fair in 1893; "October Pastures" by Charles Morris Young; "Old Mills on the Somme," by Edward Redfield, and "The White Tide" and the "Blue Gale" by Paul Docherty.

The newest thing recruited for the use of big business is the moving picture theatre, all because the innovation of the Canadian Pacific railway at the Alaska-Yukon exposition in reproducing the great outdoors of western Canada in that way proved a triumph that won a gold medal. Never before did a moving picture machine reel off such a scope of outdoor-land as in this adaptation of an amusement device to practical purpose. Leagues of rippling wheat fields crossed the screen, fluttering as though the hot, August air was redolent with the fragrance of ripening grain at midday. The harvesting scenes of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba were depicted with such realism that the story is told of one old grizzled farmer from Illinois who involuntarily mopped his face as he watched the men shock the bundles of grain, dusty, hurried, sun-scorched, he as evidently keenly conscious of heat and dust and hurry as the pictured men on the biograph screen. The wonderful scenery along the route also was depicted, mountains and prairie speeding past as though seen through a car window with wheels clicking out the miles, an occasional high-born sheep seen for a moment, or a bear on a mountain side. The rest of the road's exhibit was arranged to lead the visitors from Quebec on the Atlantic end, through the wilds and orchards of Ontario, past the great lakes and the provinces of golden grain to the Pacific and by Canadian Pacific steamships to Hongkong and Australia.

The need of a postal depository system to supplement present banking facilities has been declared by a bank as an experimental safeguard against the temptations that accompany feminine rivalries, has introduced a new personage—the censor—confidant of the girl employees. Rats, rings, conspicuous attire and some jealousies have been banished and a democracy of simple dress has already appeared. But this has not been done without emotional commotions. One girl clerk, almost in tears, lamented: "She didn't even tell them to wear fewer rats next day, but she made them leave all of them out right then and there except one. And she asked the girls where they got their rings, and if they said a young man gave them she asked the girl if she was engaged. If the girl said 'no', she made her take the ring off. She allowed them to wear only one ring, and one rat and one fancy pin." Indictment of fiction of the love-at-first-sight and marry-in-haste variety as a contributing cause of white slave tragedies developed when club women of the Chicago district Federation formally joined the forces fighting "white slavery." Mrs. Catherine Waugh McCulloch, one of the national champions of equal suffrage declared: "I have seen six stories in the leading magazines of the month, each of which was built on the fact that a young man and a young woman met, fell in love and were married, within a fortnight. Active work by women's clubs and federations of clubs will be sought.

The disputed fame of Chicago as a divorce center is revived by raging legal contests, that over the legality of the divorce secured in 1901 by Mrs. Grace B. Guggenheim from William Guggenheim, and that of Charlotte Mae Smith Bradley, daughter of J. W. Smith, a multimillionaire and one of the original discoverers of Goldfield, Nev., against William E. Bradley. A decree also has just been handed down in the case of Arline Peck Bien, daughter of Ferdinand Peck, United States commissioner to the Paris exposition, from Robert T. Bien, known on the stage as Robert Warwick. The Guggenheim decree that is under fire was one of 60,894 divorces granted in the year 1901, and according to the United States census reports this was a year that showed a gain in divorces granted of 5,223, the greatest increase of any twelve months for a period of 40 years ending in 1906. The lowest increases were in 1894 which showed an augmentation of only 100, and in 1870 during which the increase was only 23. Commercial crises are held a divorce deterrent, partially because fewer marriages occur during those periods, and again because more wives hesitate to undertake their own support at those times, and lawyers fees come high.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF SANTA FE COUNTY.

The New Mexican is the oldest newspaper in New Mexico. It is sent to every postoffice in the Territory, and has a large and growing circulation among the intelligent and progressive people of the Southwest.

THE BURIED TALENT.

The utilization of water power by private capital in the west is a question that is being freely discussed not only in New Mexico, but in all of the Rocky Mountain states. Says the Pueblo Chieftain, for instance:

"It is not surprising that newspapers enlisted in corporation service should undertake to confuse public opinion regarding water power development. The 'white coal' of the country, and especially of the mountain states is the big industrial prize of coming years, and the agitation that has for its purpose to safeguard the people's interests is opposed to the selfish plans of those that are seeking to sequester this invaluable public resource.

"It is evident that water power is valuable without use. The streams might continue to run unharnessed for countless years in the future as they have run in the past, and they would do no one any good. The development of the water power of the country is essential to the public welfare, and promoters and capitalists should be encouraged and not hindered in this work.

"But this manifest benefit from water power development should not be made an excuse for ignoring and neglecting the public interests involved in this matter.

"There is every reason to believe that, without regard to present conditions, these water powers are going to be immensely valuable, and the comparatively small amount of capital needed for present development should not be regarded as compensation to the people for a perpetual, exclusive use of water power.

"The usufruct of water power is inexhaustible. So long as the stream continues to run, the benefits of its use will continue to its possessor.

"Among thinking people the sentiment is practically universal that shrewd men should not be given perpetual rights to water power use, and that wherever such water powers are now under public control, or appurtenant to lands held in public ownership some provision should be made for safe-guarding public rights.

"The natural conclusion is that there should be three limitations placed upon every transfer of water power from public ownership to private possession and use:

"First—The transaction should be in the nature of a franchise and not an actual transfer of title.

"Second—In all such cases there should be some form of rental paid, not enough to penalize development, but enough to emphasize the point that the people have an interest and a reserved right of ultimate proprietorship in water power developed from public streams.

"Third—A limitation of some form upon the term of possession, so that at the end of a reasonable period the people will have an option of reclaiming possession of the water power, and re-adjusting its possession and use as may be judged best at that time for the public benefit.

"These provisions will not interfere with water power development; but they will operate to prevent water power monopoly, and they will also prevent the upbuilding of a special form of wealth that will depend not upon service rendered to the nation, but merely upon forehanded selfishness in seizing possession of one of the nation's most valuable resources."

To this the New Mexican would add that power rights should be granted only for immediate use, not to hold for speculation or for increment of value brought by time. Those who apply for a franchise should give proof of ability to construct the contemplated works within a reasonable time and should utilize the power developed within time limits, after which, the next man should have a chance at the surplus power. The water power of New Mexico should not remain a buried talent that some one who was fortunate enough to grab it at a time when it was held in small esteem is permitted to keep buried so as to know where to lay his hands on it the day that he can sell it to some speculator. It is a talent that should be used now by the man fortunate enough to have been given prior right.

The reference of President Taft to the Pork Barrel in connection with river and harbor improvements should emphasize by contrast that there is no pork in the irrigation projects of the west. Every dollar spent for reclamation brings results, something that can not be said of every dollar spent for waterways and harbors.

New Mexico has practically governed itself from time immemorial and any doubt as to its ability in that direction at this time is a confession of ignorance of the past. A thousand years ago, the Pueblo Indians had here self-sustaining republics, long before the Declaration of Independence or the Fall of the Bastille, or even the days of William Tell and the Tyrant Gessler. The Pueblos maintained miniature republics. Later, the Spaniards, cut off by wilderness and barriers, from their home country, established practical self-government with only a semblance of authority derived from Madrid. It was thus under the Mexican government and it is thus under the American government, for the territory practically makes its own laws, elects all of its officers, excepting a few executive and judicial officials, it collects its own revenues and disburses them under its own laws, it maintains its own schools and institutions, it has its own local self-government. All that statehood would bring it would be the right to vote for President, to send two Senators and one or two Congressmen to Washington, and to elect its own state officials and district judges. Of more than three thousand statutes passed by the territorial legislatures only two have been repealed by Congress and in fact, rather than name, New Mexico has had self-government. Of course, it wants statehood nevertheless, but more for sentimental than practical reasons, for statehood would make little change in the rights of the individual or of the community or the commonwealth.

The case of District Attorney Alfredo Ruiz of Gallup, who insists that his resignation be accepted, is rather an unusual one. Long after he had removed to this territory from Arizona, and after he had been appointed district attorney for McKinley county, a charge was made in Arizona that he had accepted an illegal fee and the grand jury reported an indictment against him. With a delicate sense of fitness, the district attorney thereupon tendered his resignation to Governor Curry at the same time asking for an investigation of the charge by the attorney general. In the meanwhile, Judge Ruiz was completely exonerated in Arizona, the indictment against him was dismissed upon motion of the prosecuting attorney and the Arizona bar passed resolutions of confidence and respect which the New Mexican printed yesterday. Attorney General Clancy, also, after looking carefully into the matter, exonerated the district attorney and wrote Governor Curry a strong letter to that effect. It is another instance of the muck-raker and the false affidavit man getting in his work and seeking to ruin an honorable man. It is hoped that District Attorney Ruiz will reconsider his determination to resign and will remain at his post for at least the length of his term.

Stockton, Calif., celebrates with great eclat this week the sixtieth anniversary of the gold rush to California. President Taft said that we should perpetuate history as we understand it, but there are instances where the American people have had the wrong impression too long already. One of these is about the first settlement of Caucasians in the United States and the other is about the first discovery of gold. Not one of ten people in the United States knows that white men had established settlements in New Mexico before Plymouth Rock and Jamestown, and not one in twenty knows that gold was mined by white men in New Mexico long before it was discovered in California. It is not only ignorance but the teaching of school histories and school masters that is to blame.

The Clayton Lance has changed its name to the Clayton News. The New Mexican is sorry, for "Lance" was a distinctive and yet, appropriate name and there was only one newspaper of that name in the territory. With the change in name goes a change in management, L. E. Johnson succeeding Mr. Taylor. The News says that its policy will be "Democratic, first, last and always." In other words, there will be no doubt as to where to place the News in the political column.

The postoffice authorities require in towns having free delivery of the mails, that streets must be labeled and houses numbered. Santa Fe should take that to heart for some day, some postoffice inspector will report that Santa Fe is woefully negligent in this matter.

A dispatch from Washington, D. C. yesterday, said that the Indian secret service is waging relentless war in every state where there are wards of the government, against the sale of intoxicating liquors to them. In other words, Uncle Sam, as in the case of curing Indian children of trachoma, is doing more for the Red Skins than he does for the pale faces. If the sale of liquor to the Indians is harmful, it is inevitable logic that it is also detrimental to the white man. However, that may be, New Mexico is working hand in hand with the federal authorities in stamping out the sale of liquor to the Indians. When a recent supreme court decision made it apparent that the Pueblo Indians were not protected by the federal legislation against the sale of liquor to Indians, the territorial legislature promptly passed an adequate law to stamp out the evil. How many states would have responded so readily to Uncle Sam's wishes in that respect, and in other respects, such as irrigation and stream measurement legislation, asked for by the reclamation service? And still there is doubt in some quarters where such doubt is wrong, that New Mexico would not formulate the right kind of constitution or would not behave itself decorously as a state.

Applications, accompanied by proof of construction, are being received by Territorial Engineer Vernon L. Sullivan, for final certification. Under the law, applications for water rights are being approved with the proviso that one-fifth of the construction work of the proposed irrigation works be completed within a certain time limit and all of the work a certain time after that. Yesterday, certificate of completed construction was issued for one Colfax county project almost an entire year before the time limit had expired. This is significant of the fact that the greater number of applications for water rights are not speculative, but are made with the bona fide intention of immediate construction and application to beneficial use of the water filed upon.

Although 1266 teachers attended the normal institute this summer and although 741 certificates were granted, "there is now a great need of efficient teachers to supply the vacancies in the rural schools of several counties," says Superintendent of Education J. E. Clark. This is a good sign in itself, for it means growth in population, growth in school enrollment, increase of school houses. Some day there will be many rural central schools maintained by several districts together, which will provide as complete a grade school as may be found in the cities and even high schools for the rural population. New Mexico is alright because its educational facilities are beginning to be alright and are keeping pace with modern progress.

M. Leblon, the French aviator, who risked his life yesterday rather than permit his aeroplane to dash into a crowd deserves a place on the page of modern heroism. When he saw his aeroplane veering toward the spectators he tilted it upward so that he was thrown out but it cleared the crowd and no one was injured, even he himself escaping without injury. However, it is that self sacrificing spirit that is part of the make-up of the men who devote their life to science and its advancement and that is conquering the elements on behalf of mankind.

The district attorneys of Arizona will meet next month at Phoenix to discuss better law enforcement, thus following the example set by New Mexico some time ago, when Governor Curry called a convention of district attorneys and such a convention was held in August. It is a good idea to call together county officials, such as county commissioners, county assessors, sheriffs and district attorneys as Governor Curry has done from time to time. It results in good for the commonwealth.

Wu Ting Fang in passing through Texas on his way to Mexico yesterday promised the San Antonions that he would settle Chinese colonies in central Texas to raise tea. Hon. Wu Ting Fang, evidently did not think of the Chinese exclusion nor of the immigration contract labor laws at the time. Perhaps, he merely wanted to tell the San Antonions something that would please them and incidentally illustrate the folly of both of those pieces of federal legislation.

Governor Curry might say of his enemies as did the late Mark Hanna when he was told a certain politician was abusing him: "Let me see, what have I done for that man?" or he might think of the classic phrase of Hon. B. S. Rodey: "The more I see of men, the better I like dogs."

The fact that the United States Steel Corporation has increased its quarterly dividend is a strong sign that the present prosperity is permanent. United States Steel has had a checkered career, but it has proved to be the most reliable barometer of trade conditions.

Prince Ito was the Bismark of Japan, he ruled with an iron hand and accomplished results but in doing so had to crush thousands who were in the way. A man of blood and iron must always anticipate assassination and it is no wonder that Ito fell a victim to the assassin's bullet.

Incident of Taft Visit — One feature of President Taft's visit to Las Cruces was very likely overlooked by most of the crowd of about 3,000 assembled to welcome the President. Little Vera Field, the 12 year old daughter of Dr.
and Mrs. W. C. Field, was on that occasion afforded the happy distinction of being the only person in the Mesilla valley to break all the rules and regulations made by the officials surrounding President Taft's on his trip down
the valley, in the matter of hand shaking. Vera not only shook hands, but had a nice little social chat with the President. It all came about because Vera was asked by the committee to hand the President a modest little bou-quet of flowers from the people of the valley. When the train stopped at Las Cruces, Governor Curry lifted Vera to the car platform and when she handed the bouquet to the President, he not only shook hands, but chatted with her a full half minute.

SERIOUS PROBLEM OF
YOUTHFUL CRIMINALS.

District Attorney George S. Klock is Wondering What to Do With Two Incorrigible Boy Burglars.

Albuquerque, N. M., Oct. 27.—Simon Mondragon and Freddie Morris, who were arrested Monday night charged with attempting to rob the Max Schuster residence, corner Fifth street and Copper avenue, may be sent to a house for the correction of juvenile criminals
if satisfactory arrangements for such a course can be completed by District Attorney G. S. Klock, who yesterday took up the matter of solving the perplexing question as to the disposition of the lads which has been bothering the police department for nearly two years past.

A conference was held yesterday afternoon between Mr. Klock, Roy Mondragon, father of Simon, and Mrs.
Morris, mother of Freddie Morris. The parents of both boys declared that they were entirely unable to control
the children and that they were absolutely incorrigible. The Mondragons and Morris family are not financially able to send their children to a reform institution. It is possible, however, that some arrangements may be made whereby the parents will contribute a part of the expense and that they will be sent to some institution in the hope that they will be taught to lead better lives.

When lined up before Chief of Police McMillin in police court yesterday morning, charged with entering the Schuster place, Mondragon, Morris and Ambrose Salazar all blamed it on each other. Simon was sure that Morris and Salazar were the ones who opened the window and got into the house. However, Simon always blames it on, "the other fellow," when confronted with a charge of wrongdoing
and his action in denying any connection with the Schuster affair was not surprising to the police.

It developed yesterday that Mon-dragon and Morris were caught in the Schuster house, redhanded, in the act of opening trunks and closets and going through every thing that could be gotten into. Several persons saw the light in the Schuster house and investigated with the result that the boys were surrounded and captured while robbing the place.

It is possible that the Salazar boy may be given another opportunity to display his good behavior. With the exception of stealing a few bean sacks
and beer bottles on various occasions,

S.S.S. CURES
BLOOD POISON

Removing the outward symptoms is not all that is necessary to cure Contagious Blood Poison. The virulent germs which produce these external manifestations must be completely driven from the blood before a real cure can be effected. The least taint left in the circulation will sooner or later cause a fresh outbreak of the trouble, with all its hideous symptoms of ulcerated mouth and throat, copper-colored spots, falling hair, sores and ulcers, etc. Only a blood purifier can cure Contagious Blood Poison.
Medicines which merely check the symptoms for a time, because of their strong mineral nature, and leave the poison smoldering in the system, have brought disappointment to thousands. The disease always returns after such treatment. S. S. S. cures Contagious Blood Poison and cures it permanently. It goes into the blood, and removes every particle of the poison, making the circulation pure, rich and healthy, nor does S. S. S. leave the slightest trace of the disease for future outbreaks. S. S. S. does not contain any mineral ingredient, but is made entirely of roots, herbs and barks, which are most valuable in their blood-purifying properties, and at the same time specifically adapted to building up the entire system. If you have Contagious Blood Poison S. S. S. will cure you because it will thoroughly purify your blood. Home Treatment Book and any medical advice free to all.

Salazar is said to have behaved himself pretty well. It is realized, however, that the other lads are incorrigi-ble and that the longer they are permitted to roam around town without restraint, they will continue their petty depredations and will also teach other boys of their own age evil ways.

LAS VEGAS BOY
ELECTROCUTED YESTERDAY.

While at Work for Albuquerque Electric Light Company He Touched
a Live Wire.

Albuquerque, N. M., Oct. 27.—To have an electric current of approximately 4,000 volts pass through his body, to be pitched headlong from the top of a thirty-five foot pole, and to sustain a fractured skull and a broken spinal column, was the sad fate meted out to Antonio J. Gonzales, an employee of the Albuquerque Electric Light, Gas and Power Company shortly after 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon.
Either the electric current, the fractured skull or the broken neck would have resulted in Gonzales' death and according to Dr. J. W. Elder, who made an examination of the man
shortly after the accident, Gonzales died instantly after the electric current struck him.

Gonzales, together with several other employees of the light company was working on the top of thirty-five foot pole, located on Tijeras road, in the alley between Second and Third streets. Gonzales was making ties and dragging wire along when in some manner he accidentally touched a 2,300 volt wire with his left hand. The shock which resulted, threw his head against another 2,300 volt wire, forming a complete circuit. Before his fellow employees could go to his assistance, Gonzales had dropped like a log, alighting on the ground below head first. From the condition of the body, the electric shock passed from the hand to the shoulder and thence
through the body to the right side,
where an immense gear, near the rear thigh, tells where the current left the body. The left side of the face and head is badly burned through contact with the second wire. Gonzales' body was removed to Strong Brothers undertaking establishment and relatives
were notified of the affair by telephone.

Gonzales had been employed by the company for several months and was known as a faithful and industrious workman. His parents reside in Las Vegas, where he was born and raised.
The young man is a member is good standing of the Order of Red Men.

Suit for $16,500 on Promissory Note
Alleged to Have Been Signed
Under Mistake of Facts.

Albuquerque, N. M., Oct. 27.—The entire day in the district court yesterday from 9 o'clock in the morning until 5 at night, was taken up with the trial of the case of R. E. Putney vs.
Franz Schmidt and C. H. Storey, in which the plaintiff seeks to secure judgment against the defendants for $16,500, alleged to be due on a promissory note. Schmidt and Storey, together with two other San Marcial men, Messrs. Lewis and Newman, signed the notes at the instance of Jasper N. Broyles, formerly the most prominent business men in San Marcial.
The note was made payable to R. E.
Putney, Broyles at that time owing Putney, it is alleged, some $6,000 for groceries. It is claimed on the part of the defendants that they signed the note under a misapprehension of the facts in connection with Broyles' real financial condition. Broyles representing to them that he was financially sound to the extent of some $52,000
and only needed some $10,000 to tide him over the hard times. The note was signed in the spring of 1908. It is expected that many complicated questions of law and equity will develop during the trial of the case, which will likely require several days for completion.

AN IDLE DOLLAR IS WORSE THAN A LAZY LOAFER

B. F. Yoakum Delivers An Interesting and Instructive Address at the State Fair of Texas-Contrasts the Farm- ers With Business--Best Busi- ness Men Come From Rural Districts.

Dallas, Texas, October 27.—In a country old as China and one new as America, the farmer ranks first as a producer and a holder of wealth, as the land which produces all we eat and all we wear is of first importance.

What we should have is increased productiveness of the farms and further development of our agricultural resources. To accomplish this we must invite money to develop our country. Any other policy will retard progress. A rich land which tells men with money to stay away might just as well tell home seekers to go to other places. We have work for men and need money to pay them. An idle dollar is worse for a community than a lazy loafer.

The farmers have not given the question of business methods in the conduct of their farming operations the careful consideration that so important a subject demands. The question is a big one not only to the producers, but to the entire country. The welfare of every merchant, every banker, every manufacturer, and every laborer is dependent upon the success of those engaged in farming, and the business of all is increased or decreased in proportion to the yield of agricultural products.

The manufacturer figures his factory output upon the agricultural prospects. The wholesale merchant contracts for his merchandise and machinery according to the crop outlook. The retail merchant buys his goods from the wholesale dealer in quantities that correspond with the local condition of the crops. The railroad company regulates its equipment repairs and purchase of new engines and cars by the reports of the condition of crops through the country it serves. The banker of the agricultural district watches the crops from planting to harvesting, and his crop report to the bankers of the east is the factor which governs the interest rate on time loans, based upon the amount of money that will be needed to move the fall crops. Therefore, every individual, regardless of occupation, has an interest in this national wealth-producing business, and every one is interested in doing all he can to accomplish two things: to increase the yield per acre, and to devise business methods which will bring to the producer the best prices.

The agitator does not advance the spirit of co-operation that is becoming so fixed in the minds of the public. The interest of the man who produces cannot be promoted through that class of politician whose stock in trade is to condemn all corporations and institutions, regardless of whether they are law-abiding or law-breaking. The public speaker or candidate, whose argument lies in the condemnation of corporations and wealth, and whose method is to instill a feeling of antagonism, is not a true friend of the farmer or of the country. This is not said in defense of corporate interests or wealth when misused, but in defense of the spirit that should prevail with all men and all classes in trying to develop a feeling of closer relations and substantial co-operation. If the demagogues are given to understand that their talks will be of more interest and will result in more good by discussing plans and methods of upbuilding, of the improvement of public highways, of making acres more productive or other substantial developments of the country, and by encouraging closer co-operation among the producers, the merchants, the bankers and the transporters, their efforts will be in the right direction and will result in much good.

Whether accomplished through existing organizations or by other methods, an organized system upon business principles that will promote the interest of the farmer is inevitable. If those who are now giving the subject attention do not find a way, others will. Such a movement is not impossible nor impracticable, and the progressive element of the farming interest of this country will take hold of it in a way to accomplish good and substantial results. No man or set of men can prevent it, for the principle is a correct one and will prevail.

The best business men come from the rural districts. They are as capable, can express their views as freely, as plainly and as concretely as men engaged in other lines of business. If the representative men of the farmers' organization would come more in contact with men in other lines of business, getting the views and suggestions of others, and giving others the benefit of their own views, the intercommunication would have the effect of bringing about closer co-operative relations and a better understanding.

F. A. Vanderlip, president of the National City Bank of New York, talking to a representative body of agriculturalists from the southwestern states, recently made a statement which impressed me. He said that there are three classes that create the wealth of the country; the class which produces and manufactures, the class which furnishes transportation for the raw material and for the distribution of the manufactured goods, and the banking class, which furnishes money and credit to enable the other two to successfully carry on their business. Mr. Vanderlip also said that he saw no reason why bankers would not extend the same credit to farmers' organizations issuing warehouse certificates, as they do to others, if handled under the same business methods as prevail with the other commercially organized warehouse associations.

To procure bankers' assistance correct and acceptable business methods must be devised. Some start must be made which will give the farmer the same advantage which the owner has who borrows money on reserve piles of coal, stocks of ore or lumber. Any plan undertaken will not be perfect in its origin, but will be improved upon as it matures. This would be the case if you waited 12 months or two years longer to initiate the work in a practical way. There is no necessity for postponing a start. That motion makes money is as applicable to this as to other business.

To illustrate, if there are ten thousand bales of cotton stored in a properly constructed warehouse, built in a way to overcome as near as possible fire risk, and located on a railroad track, when the cotton is hauled from the farm and deposited in that warehouse there is no further expense in drayage to its owner, and only a light storage charge such as the farmers' organization may fix to take care of expenses. Under a well organized system the warehouse receipt given for each bale of cotton will be good to its owner as far as its borrowing value extends. The railroad can give to you this market aid, but cannot go further. You, through your organization and co-operation with the banking interests must do the rest.

The same business principle will apply to the great grain producing belt of the west and northwest and to every staple product of the soil. Every bale of cotton, every bushel of grain, every car load of vegetables, every pound of dairy products, every additional car load of live stock that can be created adds that much more wealth to the country, that much more business to the merchant and banker, that much more revenue to the transporter. Therefore, not only the selfish interest is to be considered, but the general upbuilding of the country, adding comfort and prosperity through properly organized co-operation.

The manufacturers are organized, transportation is organized, the bankers have a systematic method of handling their business; the producers of the raw agricultural material (the annual production of which amounts to eight billion dollars, cotton alone approximating 600 million dollars) are not working under a systematic organization through which they can co-operate to their best advantage.

An organization of the farming interests cannot be made as effective in any other way as through co-operation with its next-door neighbor, the railroad. The two interests by working together create for both the railroad and the farmer a beneficial business condition that brings the farmer's organization in closer touch with the financial and business interests of the country. The co-operation of the three classes, without political interference, is essential to a full measure of success. If the farmer's organization will co-operate, we will place a man in each state to help work out plans of co-operation with the agricultural interests. It will be his duty to attend meetings in every county or district in the state to discuss ways and means of advancing the interest of both, working in harmony in every way with that one object in view.

If through co-operation of the railroads with the farmers of Texas one cent a pound additional on cotton can be had, it will bring the farmers, on a three million bale crop, an additional 15 million dollars annually. These matters, like all business, must be fairly considered from the standpoint of both interests. Not in a spirit of complaint but more to illustrate the importance of an understanding where each wants to help the other; in 1905 the freight rate on export cotton to Houston and Galveston was reduced 25 cents per bale. When this reduction was made the foreign steamship rates were advanced sufficiently to absorb it. The railroads lost it, the foreign owners of steamship got it, as practically 90 per cent of the Texas cotton crop is shipped to foreign countries. It is better for the farmers and the railroads to work together as I have outlined, the railroads aiding them in every way that is fair in building up their business and marketing their products, rather than to urge reductions before they have thoroughly considered the matter from every standpoint and weighed the advantages against the disadvantages. All men who are honest in their views will agree that the producer and the transporter can work as partners to the benefit of each interest in a manner that will mean more money to both than if we follow false theories. It requires work to build up but it is easy to tear down, easy to retard growth, easy to prevent good work, and easy to criticize.

The work of pushing forward the development of a state should not be confined to its private citizens alone. There is a broadening, constructive and co-operative spirit creeping into our social system. Governor Hadley of Missouri, is setting a pace which men will follow. He has adopted modern business methods which will prove of much benefit to his state. With other officers of Missouri, he has completed a tour of the state for the encouragement of immigration and in the interest of its development. Administrative officers of a state can command attention, and if they devote some of their time to upbuilding and co-operation with other agencies, they can accomplish more than hundreds of us can in the encouragement and growth of their respective states.

This important question of closer relations between corporations and the public is not confined to states, but is a question in which all Americans are interested. President Taft recently said the more he sees of the Americans the more he considers them a distinct type. This is the conclusion every thinking man must reach when he comes in contact with the American people, and observes their energy, intelligence and individuality. Americans who travel through European countries return better satisfied with their own country. On the other side of the Atlantic Americans come in contact with people who are controlled by political machinery and military rule. We in America are drifting in the same direction and to the same conditions that govern in foreign countries with our constantly increasing governmental expenses and extension of political and military influence.

The railroads cannot run the government, but the government can afford to adopt railroad business methods, and put its administrative forces and departments under the same business rules that govern the railroads' operations.

Under existing laws and regulations each item of expense of interstate railroads is subjected to closest inspection by the federal authorities through the interstate commerce commission. If the same business methods were applied to the government, cutting off useless and constantly increasing expenses, this government could be run as cheaply as it was at the commencement of the Spanish war, since which time the annual operating expenses of the government have increased 300 million dollars. The public treasury is being drained until the government is now issuing bonds to pay expenses and devising new methods of taxation.

I believe in fair and equitable taxation, be it inheritance, income or otherwise, but I believe in keeping our tax money at home for good roads and state purposes, rather than sending it to Washington to add to the extravagant fund of the federal government, the necessity for which is increasing with alarming rapidity.

The necessity of the improvement of our public highways is beginning to receive serious consideration and action. The vast saving in time and expense to the producer, of transporting products from the farm to the railroad over good roads, has so often been brought out, it seems unnecessary for me to go into detail further than to say the difference in cost of transporting a ton one mile in this country as compared with European countries, makes a difference against the American producer of 250 million dollars annually, as shown by the government's report. This vast waste comes from the difference in cost of hauling over bad roads instead of good roads.

The highways from the farm to the railroad station perform for the public the same function as the railroad from shipping points to the markets. The public highways, both state and interstate, should be planned systematically both as to construction and maintenance. They should be laid out with lateral lines from the main highways to the farming districts to serve the greatest number of people.

In the Ozark regions of Arkansas, adapted to both agriculture and horticulture, for three miles on either side of the railroad the land in cultivation is very profitable. Lying farther away from the railroad track, with equally as good land, the products raised are often lost to the producer during wet weather, on account of poor roads to the railroad station.

In this three-mile zone there are 38 thousand acres under intensified cultivation, producing one million dollars profit to the farmers. With good public roads extending out for ten miles from the railroad it would bring into cultivation an additional 125 thousand acres, producing three and one-half million dollars profit per annum, at the same time trebling the value of the land.

Texas has many similar localities. Its opportunities for development are unbounded when permitted to go forward as they should.

Secretary of Agriculture Wilson calls attention to the constantly increasing number of young men seeking employment in towns and in factories, rather than remaining upon the farms.

Human nature is the same all over the world. When a boy sees the business methods of a railroad, mercantile or manufacturing business, as compared with the rural districts, his ambition naturally prompts him to seek a change. Farming conducted under business methods and improved public highways will go farther than anything else to keep the young people from deserting the country to seek employment in towns.

The improvement of public roads will enable people living in town, with the advantage of better school facilities, to carry on their farms. With an automobile the farmer who lives ten miles from town can make the trip within thirty minutes, or in one hour by a good team. Good roads will bring closer together the rural and town people. They will create closer social and business relations between the country and the towns.

Bringing the communities closer together, and thus establishing closer social and business relations, will be a step forward, and will tend to bring about the aid which the farmers need from the merchant, the banker and the public generally, and in every way create conditions more profitable to all.

The south and the southwest have suffered in an industrial way on account of federal political conditions. I do not want to call up the past beyond pointing out that the political importance of the northwest has enabled the strong men of that section to exert an influence at Washington that has accomplished great benefits for that part of the country. These strong men, developed by political competition, urged to their utmost by public necessity, have striven to secure all they could in developing the west and far northwest.

In the south and southwest we have men as strong and capable, but where a nomination for office means a certificate of election, national political competition does not exist, and consequently, fighting qualities for a constructive policy cannot be developed.

Without national political competition to occupy the attention of public men in our solid Democratic states (and I am of that political faith), where they are under the disadvantage of a minority in Congress, their attention and energy have been too often directed against railroads and corporations. Under different political conditions, and with both national political influence and closer financial relations with the investing ing pursuits, an increase in 20 years of only 33 per cent. Figuring on a proportionate increase from 1900 to date, we now have about six and one-half million farmers, an increase of 50 per cent in the last thirty years. There are now 465 thousand government employees, an increase in 30 years of over 200 per cent or, in other words, the number of government employees is increasing more than four times as rapidly as the number of farmers. If the same ratio of increase continues, it will be but a few generations until we have as many government employees as farmers.

The strength of our nation lies in our agricultural wealth and natural resources. The country west of the great lakes and the Mississippi is the bread basket of the world. History shows that military forces and battleships have not won the wars of the world. It has been the commissary department.

Weak Women

To weak and ailing women, there is at least one way to help. But with that way, two treatments must be combined. One is local, one is constitutional, but both are important, both essential. Dr. Shoop's Night Cure is the Local. Dr. Shoop's Restorative, the Constitutional.

The former—Dr. Shoop's Night Cure—is a topical mucous membrane suppository remedy, while Dr. Shoop's Restorative is wholly an internal treatment. The Restorative reaches throughout the entire system, seeking the repair of all nerve, all tissue, and all blood ailments.

The "Night Cure", as its name implies, does its work while you sleep. It soothes sore and inflamed mucous surfaces, heals local weaknesses and discharges, while the Restorative, causes nervous excitement, gives renewed vigor and ambition, builds up wasted tissues, bringing about renewed strength, vigor, and energy. Take Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—as a general tonic to the system. For positive local help, use as well

FINEST BLANK BOOK HE EVER SAW.

New Mexican Printing Company Filled Order That Will Be Shipped to Eastern Points.

The New Mexican Printing Company today delivered at the office of the Santa Fe Water and Light Company, what Manager Frank Owen declared, were "the finest and most substantial blank books he had ever seen," in his long experience at office work. The books were manufactured from start to finish by the New Mexican Printing Company and included the heavy account books kept by a number of water companies under the same financial management as the Santa Fe Water and Light Company.
Formerly, these books were manufactured in a large eastern establishment but the New Mexican Printing Company not only turned out a better but a cheaper job. The books will be used in offices in a number of large towns and will be a splendid advertisement for the New Mexican Printing Company which makes better blank books than can be secured anywhere else.

It may interest Santa Fe to know,
that the New Mexican Printing Company has thus far turned out more work this year, than it has in any previous year for the entire twelve months, and that something like $50, 000 derived from other than local sources have been distributed by the company for wages and supplies bought in the city. It has come to the point where the company must enlarge its plants or refuse large orders it may secure for the asking.

However, the binding and job printing facilities of the company are the best and most complete to be found in the southwest, and the workmen employed the most skilled in the Rocky mountain region and unexcelled by printers, pressmen and binders anywhere.

The books just turned out by the New Mexican bindery go to the following places: Chillicothe, Missouri;
Huntington, Long Island; Fort Madison, Iowa; Beaver Dam, Wisconsin; Dunkirk, New York; Shelbyville, Indiana; Crawfordsville, Indiana; Sedalia, Missouri; Lawrence, Kansas;
Shelbyville, Illinois, and Marysville,
Missouri, in several places the sets
being duplicated both for water works
and for gas or electric light companies.

EAGLE HAS SPREAD OF SEVEN FEET.

Spokane, Wash., Oct. 27.—Seven feet spread of wings has a golden eagle killed near Corbin pary in Spokane by A. W. Gates, living at 5558 East Heroy avenue. The bird, which is the largest of the kind ever seen in this part of the country, was preying upon pullets near the park. An alarm was given by a boy feeding the fowls and Gates,
armed with a light target rifle, responded. He spied the eagle on the upper limb of a tall pine tree and scored with the first shot. However, the bird winged more than a mile before it became exhausted and dropped in a field, where it was picked up by Charles Pressnall, a merchant, who had joined in the chase. The eagle is full feathered and is a magnificent specimen. Gates will have it mounted and present it to the supreme lodge of the Benevolent Order of Eagles.
