Carrizozo News.

A Journal Devoted to the Interests of Lincoln County.

VOLUME 10

CARRIZOZO, LINCOLN COUNTY, NEW MEXICO, JULY 2, 1909.

NUMBER 21

ONLY BY INFERENCE.

Last week Chas. A. Stevens, sheriff of the county, is credited with saying that he was taking no interest in the county seat fight but that he thought only truth should be told in dealing with expenses, etc. Two inferences are to be drawn from that statement: one that false estimates have been made, the records misquoted and an attempt made to mislead the people; the other is that the Carrizozo News must be the guilty party, as it is, so far as we have any knowledge, the only medium through which any public statements have been made.

We do not know that sheriff Stevens made the statement with which he has been credited, but we do know that his supposed remarks are being quoted. We understand that in arguments one may, and has a right to, differ from another, and the one indulging in the most sophistry will probably come off victorious; but argument and facts are two different things, and may be as opposite as day and night. A sophist may, and often does, by his eloquence, yet fallacious but plausible, puzzle the minds of the people and for a time false reasoning may be accepted. A fact however, remains a fact, despite all the sophistry, rhetoric and eloquence that may be employed to contradict it.

Therefore, if Mr. Stevens thinks false statements have been made and that the News has been the disseminator of such reports, we extend to him the use of our columns to answer the following questions:

1. Does he question our statement as to the county's valuation? The records are accessible.

2. Does he dispute the fact that a levy of 1½ mills was made the past year for court house and jail repair fund, and that a similar levy was made the two years previous?

3. Does he dispute the figures of the News as to the population of the county wherein the registration list was used as a basis of calculation, and the ratio of population summed up alike in all? There is no difficulty in finding the registration list.

4. Does he question the statement that the largest portion of the wealth of the county is in the western side of the county? The tax rolls will disclose the truth or falsity of the statement.

5. Is the statement that Lincoln county secured nine townships, eighteen square miles, from Socorro county doubted? A certified copy of the bill, signed by Nathan Jaffa, Secretary of the Territory, may be inspected in the clerk's office at Lincoln.

6. Is the statement true or false that in this additional territory we will secure a valuation of from $50,000 to $75,000? Nearly six miles of railroad, at $7,500 per mile, will alone add some weight to the statement.

The News, in former statements, has used the records as a basis for its authority, and has no desire to discuss the question of county seat removal other than from a standpoint of facts as near as they are ascertainable. Nor does it say that Mr. Stevens has been correctly quoted; but true or false, it has been used against the removal of the county seat to Carrizozo. The friends of Carrizozo have gone into the county seat fight to win if possible, and have little doubt as to the result; but win or lose, the fight on the part of adherents of Carrizozo will be made on its merits, and if our opponents do likewise the whole county will be spared the bitterness, the animosity and the spectacle of one section arrayed against the other, which is usual, but not necessary. Win or lose, the people of Lincoln county must, for a time at least, live under the same local government, whether the seat is at Lincoln or Carrizozo; and any man favoring the retention of the county seat at Lincoln or one favoring its removal to Carrizozo should avoid making statements calculated to engender and foster malice.

NEW DESIGNS ON PAPER MONEY.

An improvement of minor consequence in our paper representatives of money is announced, whereby the present 19 different designs will be replaced with nine representing the different denominations from $1 to $1,000. The ones and twos are all silver certificates, bearing the portraits, respectively, of Washington and Jefferson, and these will remain unchanged. The five-dollar silver certificate now bears the head of an Indian and the legal tender note of the same denomination a portrait of Jackson. Both of these are to be replaced with a portrait of Lincoln. Cleveland's head will appear on all the $10 notes, displacing Hillegas, whom everybody has forgotten as the first treasurer of the United States, from the new gold certificate. Hendricks from the silver certificates and the buffalo from the legal tender note. All twenty-dollar "bills" will have a portrait of Jackson, fifties that of Grant, the $100 that of Franklin, $500 Chase and $1,000 Alexander Hamilton.

The weather thus far this spring has been encouraging to wheat growers. The only crop which can be counted in the reckoning at present is winter wheat, and that is said to be generally in good condition. What is now attracting special attention is the prospects as regards spring wheat. The ground is reported to be in good shape, and the universal belief is that a larger area than usual will be sown. Prices of the grain are soaring aloft at present, and under such circumstances there is always a stimulus to planting. Within a few weeks the larger part of the sowing will be completed, and then the country will hope for a "bumper crop."

In the Morgan collection of rich and rare autograph manuscripts, now on exhibition, is Sir Isaac Newton's notebook, kept when he was a boy. In this little book there are full and explicit directions for making little birds intoxicated by feeding them with grain soaked in spirits, but no mention is made of shaking apples from a tree. It is presumed that the great principle of specific gravity was demonstrated by the distinguished scientist later in his career. It is no discredit to the precious memory of Sir Isaac that he was not a precocious youth, but rather inclined to be un-chievous.

A class of 40 young ladies, midwinter graduates of a Chicago high school, appeared at the commencement exercises arrayed in costumes prepared by their own hands. The material for their gowns, purchased "in lump," cost the wearers $1.38 each. Among the class were daughters of the rich and the poor, all dressed alike, both tastefully and becomingly. Here was no room for envy or pride, nor occasion for poor families to sacrifice necessary comforts to procure a graduating costume for the daughter in order that she might compare favorably with her wealthy associates.

That is, England is considering the wisdom of whipping Germany at once on the ground that she may not be able to turn the trick later on. Will The Hague conference endorse that as a casus belli?

How Young Kansan Carried Roller Skating Craze Abroad.

Chester P. Crawford Has Introduced American Fad in England, Ireland and Scotland and Will Invade France and Germany.

Kansas City.—A young man from Kansas has succeeded, in the last two years, in making the staid and stolid Briton roller-skating "mad." Next fall he will attempt the easier task of bringing the pleasure-loving and susceptible Frenchman to the same condition. Having undertaken an invasion of the continent, he proposes to enter Germany, Austria-Hungary, Belgium and Holland also.

Londoners call Chester P. Crawford the "roller-skating king." Crawford is a son of Lester M. Crawford, who has owned a theater in Topeka since the oldest inhabitant was young, and who controlled a theater in Kansas City several years ago. The son went to Liverpool, England, in September, 1907, and opened a rink as an experiment. "It's no go," other who had tried various means to arouse enthusiasm in England told him. But in the first 27 weeks after Crawford rented Tournament hall the receipts aggregated nearly $75,000. Then he secured Exhibition hall in Newcastle-on-Tyne and almost duplicated his Liverpool success. He invaded other provincial towns, to his own financial profit, and then he tackled London.

Except for the palaces, Westminster abbey, St. Paul's and the British museum, Olympia is probably the most famous building in the big English city. It is the convention hall of the British Isles, and it was there that Barnum & Bailey first introduced Britishers to the wonders of a live American circus. Chester Crawford organized a company and leased Olympia for three months, agreeing to pay a weekly rental of $1,200. He laid a maple floor over the permanent floor in the great assembly area, spent nearly $10,000 in preliminary advertising in newspapers and on billboards, and then threw open the doors to the largest skating rink in the world.

Crawford himself considered this a risk, in the beginning, even in the light of his Liverpool and Newcastle successes. But when the books for the 13 weeks were closed and he saw that in that time 785,000 persons had skated there, paying nearly $195,000 for the privilege, he was glad of the opportunity to renew the lease, gaining possession of Olympia from December to March during the next four years.

Once his success was assured, Crawford determined to branch out in earnest, and last winter he operated rinks in Bristol, Chester, Leeds, Bradford, Birmingham, Southport, Blackpool, Brighton, Hull, Croydon, Plymouth, Bournemouth and Sheffield, in England; Cardiff and Llandudno, in Wales; Dublin, Belfast and Cork, in Ireland, and Edinburgh, Glasgow, Dundee and Aberdeen, in Scotland.

In the London rink 40 instructors, some of them women, are employed. Mask balls are held from time to time, and racing contests are given at intervals. The leading society folk have placed their stamp of approval on the skating game.

The young Kansan anticipates smooth sailing on the continent. He has leased a plot of ground in the Avenue Victor Hugo, near the Arch of Triumph, and will build his Paris rink there. This is in the Passy district, one of the most aristocratic quarters in the French capital. The floor will be 275 by 125 feet, sufficient to accommodate 2,000 skaters at one time.

Crawford also has secured ground in Bordeaux, Marseilles, Lyons, Nice, Biarritz and Lille, in France; Brussels and Antwerp, in Belgium; Amsterdam and The Hague, in Holland; Berlin, Hamburg and Cologne, in Germany, and Vienna and Budapest, in Austria-Hungary, and will build in each of these cities. All the continental rinks will open in September of this year.

SAMPLING DUST OF STREET.

Apparatus Used in New York City and Berlin for Gathering Samples for Laboratories.

New York.—The board of health of New York and Berlin are using a new apparatus for gathering samples of dust in the streets. These are known as automatic dust collectors. The kind used in New York is simple in appearance, being a plate similar to those used in the laboratories for making bacteria cultures. These plates are placed at the bottom of an inverted box, which is mounted on a tripod. Each is in charge of an employee of the board of health, who places it in the streets of which the dust is wanted for analysis. When sufficient dust has settled on the plate it is taken to the research laboratory of the health department, where the analysis is made.

One collection made on a windy day in Fifth avenue, between Seventh and Eighth streets, showed 320 distinct colonies of bacteria. This was before the street was cleaned. After the street had been cleaned another exposure of the plate was made at the same spot and revealed only 120 colonies. After the analysis, it was said that many of these colonies of bacteria were not harmful, yet a few tubercular germs were found in each test. It was explained that the bacteria in the dust of the streets would be generally harmless if there were less expectoration, and that the harmful germs were only traceable to that source.

The dust-collecting apparatus used in Berlin differs a little from that used in New York. It is mounted about twice as high as the average man. From its appearance one would think it absorbed the dust by suction, but it does not, it only collects the dust which happens to be blown into it by the wind. Similar analysis is then made to that made in New York.

By means of these dust collectors street cleaning can be put on a more scientific basis, for when it is reported that a certain disease is prevalent in any district of the city, the street cleaning department may be using this dust collector be enabled to discover the source of the epidemic.

His Arm in Snake's Coil.

Allentown, Pa.—H. S. Reinhard, chief engineer of the State Homeopathic hospital, the other morning went to a brook back of the boiler house, near a lot of brush, when a blacksnake six feet long made a dash for him.

He grabbed the snake near the middle of the body, when it quickly wound itself around his arm.

With one hand he clutched the head, and then, assisted by other employees, he succeeded in unwinding the snake, which was then secured with a rope and tied up, mad all over.

Who Said Them?

The golden text was "Suffer the little children to come unto me," and it had been recited to the class by a cherub on the front bench. Later in the afternoon the teacher, in the course of the lessons, had occasion to refer to the text.

"Now, children," she said, "who said those words?" and she repeated them. A hand went up from one of the larger boys on the back bench, and receiving permission to answer, he said, pointing to the cherub: "That little feller down there."

Negative Virtues.

Beware of making your moral staple consist of the negative virtues. It is good to abstain, and teach others to abstain, from all that is sinful or hurtful. But making a business of it leads to emaciation of character unless one feeds largely also on the more nutritious diet of active sympathetic benevolence.—Oliver Wendell Holmes.

SKIN TROUBLES CURED.

Two Little Girls Had Eczema Very Badly—In One Case Child's Hair Came Out and Left Bare Patches.

Cuticura Met with Great Success.

"I have two little girls who have been troubled very badly with eczema. One of them had it on her lower limbs. I did everything that I could hear of for her, but it did not give in until warm weather, when it seemingly subsided. The next winter when it became cold the eczema started again and also in her head where it would take the hair out and leave bare patches. At the same time her arms were sore the whole length of them. I took her to a physician, but the child grew worse all the time. Her sister's arms were also affected. I began using Cuticura Remedies, and by the time the second lot was used their skin was soft and smooth. Mrs. Charles Baker, Albion, Me., Sept. 21, '08."

Counsel Sought from Christian Men.

An evidence of the part which our missionary colleges are to play in the reconstruction of Turkey is found in the appointment of two professors in Euphrates college on a committee to consider educational measures for one of the large interior provinces. One, Prof. N. Tenekjian, several years ago served a term of six months in prison, being falsely accused of disloyalty, and Prof. Nahigian studied for a time under President Angell at Ann Arbor. Both are scholarly and earnest Christian men. The same governor has also asked Dr. H. N. Barnum, the veteran missionary of the American board in eastern Turkey, to suggest what in his judgment will promote popular education and social reform.

RECIPE FOR BANANA FRITTERS

Method of Preparation Not Altogether New, But Carries Most Appetizing Suggestion.

The following recipe by Jane M. Hill looks good. It is something new, and from its source must surely be worth trying: One egg, one-half cup of flour, one-quarter cup of milk or water, one-quarter teaspoonful salt, bananas.

Sift together the flour and salt, drop the yolk of the egg into the center of the mixture and slowly stir in the milk; when the milk is about half used, beat the mixture until very smooth and stir in the rest of the milk. Cover the batter and set aside for an hour or more. When ready to use, fold in the white of the egg beaten dry. Remove the skin and coarse threads from the banana, cut them in halves crosswise, then cut the halves lengthwise and dip the pieces in the batter, covering them completely. Fry in deep fat to a golden brown. Serve sprinkled with powdered sugar and cinnamon, as a dessert dish, or, with currant jelly or a hot sauce as an entree with meats. Often the pieces of bananas are sprinkled with sugar or lemon juice and set aside half an hour before frying. When so treated the banana needs be drained very carefully before it is dipped into the batter.

IVORY BRUSH REQUIRES CARE

Flour or French Chalk Should Be Used for Cleaning This Popular Toilet Article.

The popular fancy for ivory articles, hair brushes particularly, has but one drawback, the difficulty of keeping the brush clean.

A dealer in ivory brushes says they can be kept clean by rubbing plenty of flour or French chalk into the brush, wrapping it in brown paper and letting it stand over night. In the morning the brush should be shaken hard, and the rest of the flour can be blown out with a small bellows.

A mixture of white cornmeal and gasoline can be rubbed into the bristles if they are very much soiled. Never let fear of injury to ivory prevent absolute cleanliness. An unsanitary brush is fatal to scalp health.

Treacle Tart.

Required: Six ounces of clarified drippings, one pound of flour, one teaspoonful of baking powder, half a pound of treacle, quarter of a pound of breadcrumbs, juice and grated rind of a small lemon.

Mix the baking powder with the flour, then rub into it half the dripping. Work all into a firm paste with cold water. Roll out the paste, spread on it the remains of the dripping, fold up and roll out again. Line a greased pie-dish with the pastry. Slightly warm the treacle, stir into it the breadcrumbs, and the rind and juice of the lemon. If necessary, add more crumbs to stiffen the treacle. Spread a layer of the treacle on the pastry, then more pastry, and so on till the dish is full. Cover the top with pastry. Bake in a good oven for three-quarters of an hour and serve either hot or cold.

Tournedos of Mutton.

Take a tender loin of mutton, cut it into filets about one inch thick, with the fat left on them, flatten them a little with a cutlet bat, trim into a neat round fillet, dip them in warm butter and grill them. Fry some thin rounds of bread and place one of these under each fillet when serving—with some small strips or round balls of potatoes which have been sautéed in butter.

Cream of Beef Soup.

Chop two small, cooked beets, simmer in one pint of milk until pulpy. Thicken with a tablespoon of flour and season with butter, pepper, salt and sugar. This makes enough for two people.

INO, A. HALEY, Editor.

President Taft has been called upon to decide the question of "What is whiskey?" If he goes further in the test than smelling the cork he will loose caste with the prohibitionists.

The east continues to furnish news of sensational murders, divorces and failures. Still New Mexico cannot obtain statehood because of her lawlessness. New York and New Mexico are different, and we should be thankful for that difference.

Senator Aldrich admits that a deficit of $60,000,000 exists. That would have been an awful crime in 1893-'94, but now it is due simply to "peculiar" conditions. God must bear the blame alone—the republican party has dissolved partnership with him.

The republican "insurgents" in the senate continue to insist on the adoption of an income tax notwithstanding that the President has attempted to sidetrack the measure, and suggested the corporation tax in its stead. The income tax is bound to come, and the sooner the better.

Senator Aldrich, the recognized boss of the senate, and in fact, of the entire government, frankly admitted the other day that he would support the corporation tax in order to defeat the income tax. He added, however, that the corporation tax would be repealed within two years.

Petitions will be presented to the board of county commissioners the coming week, requesting the board to call an election to submit to the qualified electors of the county the proposition to remove the county seat to Carrizozo. Under the law, the election must be called within sixty days after the presentation of the petition. Therefore, we may look for a slight stir along about the warm days of August.

AND THE SOLIDS, TOO.

"It is too bad, but we have discovered that the tariff schedules under the Aldrich bill have been raised and that hereafter the price of champagne, diamonds and artificial flowers will be raised,"—Santa Rosa Sun.

You might have gone further, brother, and added that all solids you put in your stomach, the clothes you put on your back, the lumber, iron and glass from which your office is built, the material for printing your paper and the paper, itself, will cost more. Nothing escapes taxation except the "swollen fortunes."

THE FOURTH ELSEWHERE.

The people of Carrizozo decided not to have a celebration this year, as many other localities will have gatherings, and we have had one for the past two Fourths. Many of our people will take in the big Alamogordo affair while many others intend to visit places in this county. Some of our people will go to Bonito, some to Meek, and others to Jicarilla and Corona. The town will, therefore be pretty well deserted tomorrow and next day.

ADDITIONAL LOCAL.

The rainy season seems to be on us. Hardly a day has gone by during the past week without rain at some point in the surrounding country. Two or three liberal showers have fallen here, that of Wednesday afternoon almost amounting to the dignity of a drouth-breaker.

The eagle will scream on the Fourth throughout the length and the breadth of this broad land. There has been a clamor for a "sane Fourth," which means the cutting out of the customary fireworks, that endangers both life and property. Carrizozo has cottoned to the suggestion, and will have no fireworks on the Fourth, including those of the liquid form.

W. H. Cavanaugh was down Tuesday from Tecolote. Mr. Cavanaugh and the railroad company have reached a satisfactory agreement concerning the crushing of rock on the former's land, and the company expects to have 300 men at work next month at that place, crushing rock for ballast. A large force of men is now there putting in machinery and getting ready to push the work.

The Fort Stanton base ball team accompanied by a bunch of rooters, will arrive this evening on the train from Capitan. They will be joined here by a good-sized crowd, and all together start for Alamogordo at 3 o'clock in the morning. The Stantons are scheduled to play two games one at Alamogordo tomorrow and one the next day at Cloudcroft, both games with the Alamos. Stanton is going up against a good team, but they are some pumpkins themselves on the diamond.

W. J. Doering, inspector of weights and measures for Lincoln county, has completed a tour of the county the past six months, and has submitted his report to the board of county commissioners. Mr. Doering, in a conversation with a News representative, stated that the merchants of Lincoln county were giving from one to three ounces more than was required for a pound. We do not mean to throw any bouquets at the merchants, however, for their liberality in this particular—these weights were given unconsciously.

ATTENTION, CLUB MEMBERS.

Notice is hereby given that the Carrizozo Chamber of Commerce will hold its next regular meeting Wednesday night, July 7th, in the basement of the Bank building. In addition to this being a regular meeting night, officers are to be elected for the ensuing term, and much business is to be transacted. It is important that a full meeting be present on that date.

Better Not Get Dyspepsia

If you can help it. Kodol prevents Dyspepsia, by effectually helping Nature to Relieve Indigestion. But don't trifle with Indigestion.

A great many people who have trifled with indigestion, have been sorry for it—when nervous or chronic dyspepsia resulted, and they have not been able to cure it. Use Kodol and prevent having Dyspepsia.

Everyone is subject to indigestion. Stomach derangement follows stomach abuse, just as naturally and just as surely as a sound and healthy stomach results upon the taking of Kodol.

When you experience sourness of stomach, belching of gas and nauseating fluid, bloated sensation, gnawing pain in the pit of the stomach, heart burn (so-called), diarrhoea, headaches, dullness or chronic tired feeling—you need Kodol. And then the quicker you take Kodol—the better. Eat what you want, let Kodol digest it.

Ordinary pepsin "dyspepsia tablets," physics, etc., are not likely to be of much benefit to you, in digestive ailments. Pepsin is only a partial digester—and physics are not digesters at all.

Kodol is a perfect digester. If you could see Kodol digesting every particle of food, of all kinds, in the glass test-tubes in our laboratories, you would know this just as well as we do.

Nature and Kodol will always cure a sick stomach—but in order to be cured, the stomach must rest. That is what Kodol does—rests the stomach, while the stomach gets well. Just as simple as A, B, C.

THE NATIONAL GAME.

Saturday and Sunday were largely devoted by Carrizozoans to the national sport. O-suro came up in force Saturday, and went down to defeat before the local nine. The Carrizozo team ran up a great number of scores, and it looked for many innings that the O-suro boys would carry home a nice basket of ciphers, but they succeeded in getting one man safely over the course. The Fort Stanton team with quite a large bunch of rooters arrived Saturday night and battled with the home team Sunday. Stanton put her best foot forward at the beginning of the game and held the lead throughout, the game standing at its close 11 to 4 in favor of the visitors.

It was a plain case of lack of practice on the part of the local team; for they did some ragged playing during the first of the game. They did pick up, however, toward the last, and played with their old time spirit and precision, but it was too late to overcome the lead the visitors secured early in the game. Stanton displayed superiority in batting, base running and fielding, and defeat for the home team was a foregone conclusion. However, when it is all summed up, defeat in this instance has but little sting, for Stanton is in excellent practice, and had the best team on the field Sunday that has come out of the Fort in many years.

It was reported last week that Melvin, a son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Lumbley, of Alamogordo, had been killed. His father informs us that the report is not true, but that Melvin was hurt some time ago by a horse, though all right now.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. English are the happy parents of a bouncing baby boy, born Wednesday day afternoon. Frank has begun already to instruct his son in the rudiments of architecture, but the young fellow protests vociferously.

The Fourth of July comes on Sunday this year, and the business men of Carrizozo have agreed to close tomorrow, Saturday, and devote the day to celebrating the Fourth. Carrizozo will have no celebration, but many of its people will visit other localities.

WHERE PAT DREW THE LINE.

Patient and Long Suffering, But No Man with a Face Like That Could Work with Him.

Pat had been at work for three days digging a well, and as the foreman wanted it finished within the week he had promised Pat another man to help him. It was getting on for 11 o'clock, and Towser, the foreman's bulldog, was looking over the edge of the pit, when Pat said to himself, "Smoke-o."

He had just filled his pipe, and was about to light it when he glanced up and beheld Towser's handsome features.

Slowly removing the pipe from his mouth, he said: "Be-e-gorra, Ol've wor-kr'd wid Germans and Hengar-rians, and Ol've wor-kr'd wid Ottai-ans and naygers, but if a man wid a face like that comes down here to work beside me, I gets up."

Standing Fad.

The wandering agent who was selling cigar-bands found Remus sitting on the porch mending his fishing line.

"Do you have any fads down here in Dixie?" asked the agent.

"What am them, mister?" inquired Remus, curiously.

"Why, take the collecting fad. Do you make any collections of anything down here?"

Remus laughed.

"Oh, yeas, sah," he chuckled, "de same collections we've always made. De collection of pickaninies en dogs, sah."

LIGHT BOOZE

Do You Drink It?

A minister's wife had quite a tussle with coffee and her experience is interesting. She says:

"During the two years of my training as a nurse, while on night duty, I became addicted to coffee drinking. Between midnight and four in the morning, when the patients were asleep, there was little to do except make the rounds, and it was quite natural that I should want a good, hot cup of coffee about that time. It stimulated me and I could keep awake better."

"After three or four years of coffee drinking I became a nervous wreck and thought that I simply could not live without my coffee. All this time I was subject to frequent bilious attacks, sometimes so severe as to keep me in bed for several days."

"After being married, Husband begged me to leave off coffee for he feared that it had already hurt me almost beyond repair, so I resolved to make an effort to release myself from the harmful habit."

"I began taking Postum, and for a few days felt the languid, tired feeling from the lack of the stimulant, but I liked the taste of Postum and that answered for the breakfast beverage all right."

"Finally I began to feel clearer headed and had steadier nerves. After a year's use of Postum I now feel like a new woman—have not had any bilious attacks since I left off coffee."

"There's a Reason." Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

GOOD FOR DESSERT

DAINTY DISHES MADE FROM THE PINEAPPLE.

Pancakes from the Batter and the Fruit Are Something New—Splendid Sauce to Serve with Ice Cream.

Pineapple Pancakes.—Make a good batter, using a half pound sifted flour, three large eggs and a cupful of milk. Have ready a well-buttered sheet-iron frying-pan, and pour in about three tablespoonfuls of the batter. As soon as brown on one side reverse and brown. Take up carefully, put on a hot service plate and cover with pineapple preserves. Over this put a second cake, then more pineapples, and so on until all the batter has been used. When ready to put on the table cut in segments like a pie.

Pineapple Sherbet.—This is made from the grated canned pineapple. Add a pint of water to a pint of the pineapple and cook 15 minutes. Strain through cheesecloth, add a teaspoonful of gelatin that has been soaked in a quarter of a cupful of cold water, the juice of a large lemon and a cupful of sugar. Strain and freeze. Serve in glasses after the roast or before the game course at a heavy dinner as an aid to digestion. A bit of sliced pine can be put on top of each glass.

Pineapple Sauce to Serve with Ice Cream.—Put a cupful of pineapple juice in a cupful of granulated sugar and cook ten minutes. Add the well-beaten yolks of two eggs and whip over boiling water with an eggbeater until foamy. Take from the fire and whip again with the stiffly beaten whites of the eggs.

Pineapple Pie.—Line a pie plate with a good crust and fill with a can of crushed or grated pineapple mingled with one cupful of sugar, a tablespoonful of softened butter, the well-beaten yolks of two eggs beaten stiff and folded in.

If preferred, a teaspoonful of corn-starch dissolved in a little water may be added to the pineapple with the yolks of the eggs, and the whites of the eggs reserved for meringue. After the pie is baked whip the whites of the eggs stiff with two tablespoonfuls of sugar, pile lightly on top the pie and set in a coolish oven to puff and color a golden brown.—Delineator.

Jugged Rabbit.

One good-sized rabbit, one ounce of dripping, two large onions, three cloves, a bunch of sweet herbs, some parsley, ten peppercorns, salt to taste, some good stock, one tablespoonful of ketchup.

First skin, wash, and draw the rabbit and cut into neat joints. Fry these a light brown in dripping and place in a stewpan. Then fry two large onions, and add to the rabbit with three cloves the sweet herbs, parsley, peppercorns and salt to taste. Pour over enough good thick stock to cover well, and add a tablespoonful of ketchup. Simmer very gently for two hours, and serve in a deep dish, with a garnish of fried seasoning balls and rolled rashers of bacon. Hand red currant jelly with this dish.

These muffins may be covered with fruit pudding sauce or whipped cream and served for cottage puddings.—The Housekeeper.

Answer This Question

When thousands of women say that they have been cured of their ailments by a certain remedy, does this not prove the merit of that remedy?

Thousands of women have written the story of their suffering, and have told how they were freed from it by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—for thirty years these reports have been published all over America.

Without great merit this medicine could never have gained the largest sale of any remedy for woman's ills—never could have become known and prized in nearly every country in the world.

Can any woman let prejudice stand between her and that which will restore her health? If you believe those who have tried it you know this medicine does cure.

Read this letter from a grateful woman, then make up your mind to give Mrs. Pinkham's medicine a chance to cure you.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—"I am a firm believer in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I was a great sufferer from organic female troubles for years, and almost despaired of ever being well again. I had bearing-down pains, backache, headache and pains in my abdomen, and tried Mrs. Pinkham's Compound as a last resort. The result was astonishing, and I have used it and advocated it ever since. It is a great boon to expectant mothers. I have often said that I should like to have its merits thrown on the sky with a search-light so that women would read and be convinced that there is a remedy for their sufferings. "My husband joins me in its praise. He has used it for kidney trouble and been entirely cured."—Mrs. E. A. Bishop, 1915 Atlantic Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No sick woman does justice to herself who will not try this famous medicine. Made exclusively from roots and herbs, and has thousands of cures to its credit.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health free of charge. Address Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass.

Satterlee's Deal

By ALFRED STODDART

(Copyright, 1909, by J. B. Lippincott Co.)

"It is a long time," said Middleton, "since we have sold Satterlee a horse."

"That's so," answered the M. F. H. "Now I have a hunter I don't need. I think he would just suit Percy."

"There's that brown cob that Higgins stuck me with," put in Ralph Goring. "I wonder if Satterlee wants a job?"

It was a warm afternoon in the early fall. There had been a little desultory polo, but the season was over and the game lacked snap. It was almost too soon to think of hunting yet, and so the Meadowthorpe crowd—or rather, the three or four members of it who sat on the clubhouse porch—cast about them for some other sport.

"Percy wants a new hack pony," spoke up Tom Halliday. "I hear the one he has is a cribber."

"H'm! I'm just out of ponies. My usual luck," growled Middleton. "And, speaking of angels, I hear the rustle of their wings—or the puffing of Satterlee's cribber, for here he comes."

Mr. Percival Satterlee cantered up the lane which led to the clubhouse porch sitting back gracefully in his saddle, as became the rider of a pony with a rocking-horse gait. He pulled the animal back upon his haunches and alighted with something of a flourish, requesting a waiter to ring for a groom to take his pony.

"Nice pony you have there, Percy," ventured Bradbury, the M. F. H., eying the rather good-looking brown hack.

"Yes, pretty fair pony, but he's hardly up to my weight. I've a notion to let him go."

"Is that the only fault he has?"

"If he has any others, I haven't discovered 'em yet," returned Satterlee, thinking possibly that this was his opportunity to "do" some of the chaps who had done him so often.

"I've got one that I might trade with you," mused Middleton reflectively.

"Thought you just said you were out of ponies?" questioned the M. F. H.

"Only one left, but he's a good one. Tell you what, Satterlee, my wife's in town and I'm dining here at the club. You stop and dine with me, and, meanwhile, if you will let my man ride your pony over to my place he can fetch my pony back. You can look it over after dinner, and if you like it we can trade. If not, I'll send your pony back the first thing in the morning."

"Well, I'm game," answered Satterlee, "especially as Mrs. Satterlee is dining with her mother this evening."

It is astonishing what an interest country gentlemen take in a horse deal, even such an insignificant one as an exchange of 14-hand ponies. In a short time Middleton's cosy little dinner a deus had extended itself to a dinner for the crowd. Five in all gathered around the table in the end—Middleton, Satterlee, Ra, Tom Halliday, and Bradbury, the M. F. H.

Many subjects of conversation came up for discussion—the polo season just passed, the hounds, their hunters, the prospects for the fox-hunting, for the fall race-meeting—but eventually the talk always got around to the trade in ponies. It was evident that all the men present took more or less interest in it.

Satterlee was in a rare good-humor. At last, thought he, his opportunity had come. If he could only succeed in palming his worthless cribber off on Middleton in exchange for any sort of a pony that would go on four legs, Percy felt that his ambition would be satisfied. And Fate seemed to be playing into his hands, for Middleton was apparently very much taken with the cribber.

Middleton said his man should be there with his own pony by that time, and, sure enough, there was a groom leading a pony to and fro under the electric lights in the stable-yard.

The pony was about the same size as Satterlee's, but his color was quite different. Satterlee's pony was a rich brown. This one was a dirty slate-color. Also he was thinner-looking than Satterlee's pony, and while the cribber had two white forefeet, this animal's legs were of the same slaty hue as his body.

He seemed quiet and well-mannered, which Satterlee noted with satisfaction. The stable-yard was large and well-lighted, and Middleton begged Satterlee to "throw his leg over him." The latter did mount the pony, after some persuasion and with no little difficulty, owing to the above-mentioned dining and wining. But as the slate-colored nag started off at a nice, easy canter and seemed perfectly bridle-wise, he became quite enthusiastic over him. It would never do, however, to betray his approval of the slate-colored pony, so he took what that celebrated hero of sporting fiction, John Jorrocks, M. F. H., of the Handley Cross Hounds, would have designated "the running-down tack."

In the first place, the slate-colored nag wasn't up to his weight—not within 40 pounds of the brown pony. And he was not as handy as the brown pony, either. Yes, he knew what he was talking about. He had ridden the brown for six months and he was riding the slaty one now. Surely he ought to know.

"Well," he said at length, throwing himself somewhat precipitately from the pony's back, "I'm willing to trade you, Middleton, though I don't think your pony is half as good as mine. But what are you going to give me to boot?"

"To boot!" repeated Middleton in a pained and surprised tone. "The boot's on the other leg, Percy, and you know it. Why, your pony is not to be compared with this one."

"Well, I'll trade you even," said Satterlee.

"Not much. I'll tell you what I'll do. You throw in that Boston terrier puppy you bought the other day and 50 in cash, and the deal's made," said Middleton.

Satterlee reflected. He had paid a big price for the Boston terrier, and the $50 besides seemed like throwing good money after bad. But he had taken a wonderful fancy to Slatestone, which Middleton said was his pony's name; and, moreover, he was anxious to impose upon Middleton with a cribbing pony. The money involved did not matter so much.

Reluctantly, therefore, and fearful lest Middleton might come out ahead, Satterlee finally agreed to the trade. "Short reckonings make long friendship," said Middleton, and hence Satterlee obtained immediate possession of the slate-colored pony and Middleton folded a crisp $50 bill and put it into his pocket-book. Also he received from Satterlee an order upon his coachman for the Boston terrier puppy with which he immediately dispatched his groom to Satterlee's stables.

"It's my opinion, Percy," cried the M. F. H., "that you've got a bargain in this deal. That slate-colored pony is worth three like your old one."

"Don't know about that," answered Satterlee doubtfully. He was wondering what Middleton would say when he found out that the brown was a cribber. "However, since you fellows seem to think I got the best of this deal I suppose it's up to me to open some champagne."

"Most decidedly," answered Middleton promptly. And they straightway repaired to the tap-room of the club, whence Satterlee emerged about an hour later and mounted the slate-colored pony to ride home.

It was late when he reached his own abode, and Satterlee was tired. He handed the pony over to the waiting groom at his front door and sought his downy couch, pleased with himself to think that for once he had gotten the better of such a sharp horseman as Dick Middleton.

Next morning he was up bright and early and strolling out to the stables before breakfast. Benson, his head man met him at the door and touched his hat respectfully.

"You've 'ad the brown pony clipped, I see, sir," he said, a curious smile hovering upon his face.

"Had the brown clipped! What do you mean?" echoed Satterlee in astonishment.

"Well, sir, 'e was clipped when you brought 'im 'ome last night. That's all as I knows."

"But, Benson, I traded—"

Just then they approached the pony's stall, and a familiar sound assailed Satterlee's ears. The slate-colored animal had taken a firm grip of the manger with his teeth and was sucking wind loudly—"cribbing," in short. Satterlee thought very hard for a few moments.

"How about the white feet, Benson?" he asked in a subdued tone.

"White as ever, sir, now as I've washed the lamplblack out of them."

Benson looked very hard at his master, but Satterlee did not vouchsafe any information.

"By George, I'll sue Middleton for this!" Satterlee swore softly to himself. "Traded and gave fifty and a Boston terrier to boot and got my own pony back. I'll have him up in court or my name's not Satterlee. No, I won't either. I'd have the whole place laughing at me. I'll—I'll—I don't know what I'll do."

He strode up and down the stable floor while Benson stood by respectfully awaiting his pleasure. Whatever that invaluable servant might have thought, his face was perfectly expressionless.

"Well?" asked Satterlee in a furious tone, stopping short as though Benson had addressed him.

"Beg pardon, sir, I didn't speak," answered Benson, raising a forefinger to his forehead.

"Confound it!" muttered Satterlee. "I guess I've got a right to have my own pony clipped if I choose to."

"Certainly, sir, certainly," answered Benson. And his irate employer marched stiffly out of the stable.

Very little was said about the pony trade. Somehow it never leaked out very generally. But among a select few of the hard-riding Meadowthorpe crowd it is not an infrequent occurrence to hear Satterlee asked in a quiet way whenever he boasts too much about his horses—which is also not very infrequent—whether he wouldn't like to swap ponies. It has been found to be very effectual on such occasions.

Training Submarine Crews.

Crews of British submarines are taught how to use a safety helmet and waterproof jacket designed to save them in case the submarine on which they are engaged is sunk. The men are taught in a special tank and are lowered into the water in a kind of diving bell. They learn to put on the helmet and jacket—which carry a store of air capable of being used over and over again and which can be put on in 30 seconds—and also how to leave the sunken vessel.

good health, with its blessings, must understand, quite clearly, that it involves the question of right living with all the term implies. With proper knowledge of what is best, each hour of recreation, of enjoyment, of contemplation and of effort may be made to contribute to living aright. Then the use of medicines may be dispensed with to advantage, but under ordinary conditions in many instances a simple, wholesome remedy may be invaluable if taken at the proper time and the California Fig Syrup Co. holds that it is alike important to present the subject truthfully and to supply the one perfect laxative to those desiring it.

CAPITAN NEWS.

The first good rain, to cover an extensive area, fell over this section Wednesday evening about 6 o'clock. The rain was accompanied by a high wind.

Double daily automobile service from Carrizozo to Capitan was established this week by E. Darling, manager of the E. M. F. Auto Co.

The Railroad Company have placed a rain gauge in the yards near the—place where the depot ought to be. The depot is a couple of miles up the road.

Wm. Ferguson and L. R. La-may were in from their farms on the Mesa Wednesday.

Condy Skinner and family were in town during the week, the first visit for several months.

Fred Pfingston was in town from Angus during the week.

Wm. Reily, Carrizozo's post-master, was renewing acquaintance with his many friends in Capitan this week.

The Lincoln and Capitan base ball nines have played two games recently one at Lincoln and one on the local diamond, both of which resulted in victory for the Capitan team. Another game is to be played next Sunday between the same teams.

Miss Genevieve Hightower left on Thursday's train for a visit with relatives and friends in Socorro. She was accompanied as far as El Paso by her brother Willis.

County Commissioner C. W. Wingfield, of Ruidoso, transacted business in Capitan during the week.

Hightower Bros. and Nick Bastion shipped several thousand pounds of rich ore from their mine on Eagle Creek to the El Paso reduction works last week.

The Fort Stanton base ball team passed through here Sunday night about 11 o'clock bearing aloft the scalp of the Carrizozo team, and as said by one invidious person "all swelled up" with the lust of victory.

STOCK LOSSES ON NATIONAL FORESTS.

In the future the Forest Service will endeavor to obtain complete reports as to the causes of all losses of live stock upon the National Forests. Forest guards and rangers have been instructed to keep a strict account of all live stock found dead in their districts, reporting to the Forester at the end of each month the number found and listing the causes of death as far as possible under one of four heads: accident, disease, poison and wild animals.

It is believed that such a record will be of great value to stockmen in assisting them to figure up the percentage of their losses and materially aiding them in preventing some of the losses through corrective measures. For instance if an unusually large number of stock are found dead in some particular locality, due to poison from dangerous plants, it will be possible to meet this condition by fencing up the area, or perhaps digging up the poisonous plant.

If several animals are found killed by wild animals in some lone canyon, the hunter employed for that purpose, or the ranger himself can investigate the matter and either trap, poison, or shoot the mountain lion or other predatory animal responsible for the damage. The rangers and guards are constantly riding over their districts in the Forest and have better opportunities for finding dead live stock than the stockmen themselves, and as each Forest ranger is supplied with the brands of all stock in his district, he can generally identify the stock by brands and marks and thus advise the owners.
