Farmers On French Tract To Extend Irrigation Project; Image 4, 500 More Acres.

What is unquestionably the most glaring enterprise to be launched in this county is the proposition of voting up to $800,000.00 in bonds by the farmers on the Anthony Valley Irrigation project, 35 miles east of Cimarron, or what is known as the French tract, in which the remainder of the land on that tract will be placed under irrigation.

This important election will be held on Saturday, August 30, and from what can be learned there will be comparatively few, if any, voters voting against the bond issue, the farmers being reluctant to favor the present conditions, as the project as it is now would naturally fail to obtain necessary water for irrigation.

With the completion of the project, depending as it is on the cooperation of the land owners, an additional acreage of 1,000 acres of field will be available for irrigation purposes, making a total of nearly 8,000 acres on the entire tract, one of the largest bodies of farming land in the northern part of the state and in the county.

The bonds will be expended in constructing the necessary reservoirs, ditches, lateral, etc., and to utilize the waters towards beneficial use in supplying the farmers to grow crops. The News has been reliably informed that the lowering dates will be constructed about seven miles east of Cimarron at a point where a natural site is available.

The land owners and the tract on account to the tract owners to complete the work on the system.

Averting all sides are new orders on irrigation on the tract and in dry seasons there is a shortage of water, which the farmers have amply demonstrated by foregoing the bonds.

Science of horticulture is the saving of bonds and the completion of the project, will be of their co-operative benefit in that it enhances the price of their land.

SUGAR ADVANCES
$2 In Two Days
Account Of War?

The European has casted the hand of war boldly out to all at a rapid rate, and sugar was the first to profit from it, and the consequence, a substantial raise of $2, so that the price is $2.50 per hundred at wholesale prices.

Meats and other articles that used in the daily course of our daily are as well as before, as well as before. The advance, of course, is a great advantage to the farmers and a great advantage to the farmers and a great advantage to the farmers.

Across the Mexican Border

Between the Battle Lines of the Federal and Revolutionary Troops

The Republican primaries held at the Athletic Hall, Tuesday evening was not very well attended owing to the inclement weather. However, the business was conducted in a short time and everyone was in a happy mood and certain of Republican victory next fall.

After closing a convenient time, the delegates were elected from the county and then met to determine the delegates to the state convention at Santa Fe. The delegation from this precinct consists of: Geo. H. Webster, Jr., John N. Noye, Elmo Cordova, J. J. Madrid, Don Cabo, John Redding, S. H. Redding, Chas. Moore, A. W. Vasquez, Geo. E. Reynolds.

The Republicans hold the keys to the kingdom of Colfax.

With 88 delegates present, the Democrats hold the county convention Tuesday last and nominated two candidates for the lower house of the legislature at Santa Fe. H. A. Kiker of Raton and a man named Fernandez of Colfax are the men who were made the target for the daggers.

While not a little or no knowledge of the Colfax men, it is probable that they are friends of the race and race. On the other hand H. A. Kiker of Raton is one of the most practical men in the county and the Democrats could not have nominated a stronger man in the county to lead the party ticket. He is a good man besides, and it is certain that he can do more things for this country if given an opportunity, as he is conscientious and incessant worker.

The Rocky Mountain work train is making its way from the west to the east to get the ticket to the road. But what happened on the way was a real surprise.

New Way To Eradicate Fly Pest

As a result of experiments, the department of agriculture has discovered that a small amount of an organic insecticide sprigged daily on the plants effectively prevents the breeding of the fly and head fly. Similarly the same substance applied to garlic, rosin, other fly carriers, drum, doors and crevices in cabins, cellars, or markets, will also prevent any further breeding.

The investigation, which included experiments with many substances, was undertaken to discover the value of the breeding of flies in barns in order to determine the value of this substance as a fertilizer for manure. It is felt that, if all means of preventing the breeding of flies on a human scale could be devised, the disease spread by these fly carriers could be greatly reduced.

While the "flea" fly campaign's trains and other devices for reducing the number of fly-carrying flies are of value, they are not as important as the prevention of the breeding.

DYNAMOMETER MEASURES SAVING GOOD ROAD REPRESENTS OVER A BAD ONE

Department of Agriculture's New Device Will Inform You Just How Hard Your Horses Will Be To Work--No Longer Necessary To Make Extended Guesses of What Con- stitutes Easy Traveling.

Washington, D.C.—The means of a touring device having to the development of the department of agriculture will be of great value to horse owners in order to have good roads. This device can now be purchased by horse owners in all parts of the country and it is expected that it will be of great value to horse owners in every part of the country. The device is a dynamometer, which is a machine for determining the amount of energy required to travel on a given road.

The dynamometer is a device that can be attached to the wheels of a horse-drawn vehicle and it will measure the amount of energy required to travel on a road. It is a simple device that can be used by horse owners to determine the energy required to travel on a road and to make informed decisions about how hard their horses will be to work.

The dynamometer consists of a small motor that is attached to the wheels of a horse-drawn vehicle. The motor is connected to a dynamometer, which is a device that measures the energy required to travel on a road.

The dynamometer is a valuable tool for horse owners who want to know how hard their horses will be to work. It will help them to make informed decisions about how hard their horses will be to work and to determine the energy required to travel on a road.

For more information about the dynamometer and how to purchase it, contact the Department of Agriculture at (123) 456-7890.

GIVING UP HAREM S

Impeached by War, Turks Are Forbade to Abandon Them.

Ten years ago, when war was raging around the world, the Sultan of Turkey was the supreme ruler of an empire. Today, the Sultan is a prisoner, his throne is empty, and a new government has taken his place. The empire is divided into several smaller countries, each governed by its own ruler. The Sultan's power was absolute, and he controlled all aspects of life in his realm. Today, the Sultan's power is limited by the wishes of the people and the laws of the land. The Sultan's harem was a source of wealth and power for him and his family. Today, the Sultan's harem is a symbol of the past and a reminder of the changes that have taken place. The Sultan's harem was a place of luxury and pleasure, a place where the Sultan could escape from the cares of the world. Today, the Sultan's harem is a place of poverty and hardship, a place where the Sultan's family must work to support themselves. The Sultan's harem was a place of secrecy and mystery, a place where the Sultan could hide from the world. Today, the Sultan's harem is a place of transparency and openness, a place where the Sultan's family can be seen and known. The Sultan's harem was a place of unity and strength, a place where the Sultan could count on the support of his family. Today, the Sultan's harem is a place of division and weakness, a place where the Sultan's family cannot count on each other. The Sultan's harem was a place of beauty and grace, a place where the Sultan could admire the beauty of his women. Today, the Sultan's harem is a place of ugliness and deprivation, a place where the Sultan's family must suffer through the hardships of poverty.

Hydrophobia is UsuallySpread by the Bitten, Overgrown Cuts or Wounds, Says A Phthisic Veteran.

Philadelphia — "Phthisis," or tuberculosis, and the bite of some brave Washingtonians has always been, in the imagination, one of the most frightful warnings. And why not? The statistics show that among hydrophobics, paroxysms the one is most frequently the other. According to the late Dr. Frank B.
