A RECEPTION TO JUDGE COOLEY.

The bar of Lincoln County received notice from District Clerk Chas. P. Downs that Judge Alford W. Cooley, the newly appointed judge for this district, would arrive in Carrizozo Wednesday evening, meet the bar of the county and hear any motions that might be presented. In addition to the notification by the clerk, the members of the local bar sent out invitations to other members in various portions of the county, requesting their presence on the above date, and also decided to give the judge a reception that evening at the Gurney Hotel.

A committee met the Limited at 6 o'clock and escorted Judge Cooley to the hotel. About twenty plates were placed and as many citizens met the Judge around the festive board, and partook of the viands that the genial host at this popular hotel knows how to serve so well. The fragments cleared away, Attorney Geo. W. Hall, toastmaster, arose, spoke briefly of the pleasure the judge's presence had afforded our people in this opportunity for forming his acquaintance, and introduced Jno. A. Haley, who responded to a toast of welcome on behalf of the citizens of Carrizozo. Judge Jno. Y. Hewitt, of White Oaks, was presented and welcomed the guest of the evening in the name of the bar of Lincoln county. Judge Cooley then replied, and spoke entertainingly for a few minutes, thanking the bar and the citizens of Carrizozo for this opportunity to meet them, and assuring them of his willingness to aid the people in every way in his power to further the best interests of the county and calling upon all citizens to aid him in the work. The remarks of the judge were well received and the sincerity of his expressions added to the pleasure of a most pleasant evening.

The visiting attorneys were: John Y. Hewitt and William Watson, of White Oaks, and Humphrey B. Hamilton, of Capitan. Judge Cooley spent the day yesterday, discussing matters with the members of the bar and meeting and conversing with the people generally.

THE REMOVAL OF THE COUNTY SEAT TO CARRIZOZO.

Prepared by the Carrizozo Chamber of Commerce.

In each week's issue of this paper the CARRIZOZO CHAMBER OF COMMERCE will give statements and figures, showing why it is to the best interests and welfare of the people of Lincoln county to work and vote for Carrizozo as the county seat on the 17th day of August, 1909.

Help to make Carrizozo what Las Vegas is to San Miguel county, Albuquerque to Bernalillo county, Roswell to Chaves county, Las Cruces to Dona Ana county, Raton to Colfax county, Tucumcari to Quay county, Silver City to Grant county, Alamogordo to Otero county and the new towns in the younger counties—towns that are a credit to the enterprise of their citizenship and which have demonstrated what towns on railroads can do in preparing the territory of New Mexico for statehood—a preparation that will compel recognition.

Vote and work to make Carrizozo the county seat, which will reflect the wisdom of your judgment in the years to come, as well as for the present, and you will gain much in the upbuilding of a local market which will readily handle your products and the building of a town in which every citizen of the county may take a pride.

This is a campaign in which partisanship should have no place, and Carrizozo has no fight to make against any section or community of this county; but the removal of the county seat to Carrizozo is one of expediency and economy and we believe will be of great benefit to the vast majority of Lincoln county's citizens. To this end the CHAMBER OF COMMERCE invites correspondence and will do all in its power to furnish fair and accurate information.

Levi P. Morton Dean of Living
Ex-Vice-Presidents.

Has Just Celebrated Eighty-Fifth Birthday, and is Still Hale and Hearty —Accumulated Fortune in Banking Business.

New York.—Still fresh and vigorous in mind and sound in body, Levi P. Morton, the oldest living vice-president of the United States, recently celebrated his eighty-fifth birthday anniversary. Besides Mr. Morton there are now living only three other men who have held the position of vice-president of the United States—Adia

Levi P. Morton.

E. Stevenson, Theodore Roosevelt and Charles W. Fairbanks. Not only is Mr. Morton by far the oldest among his surviving colleagues, but, with one exception, he has already attained a greater age than any other former vice-president. The only exception was John Adams, the first vice-president of the United States, who died in 1826 at the age of 90 years.

While Mr. Stevenson has reached the age of 74, the other two surviving colleagues of Mr. Morton are still comparatively young men, Mr. Roosevelt being 51, Mr. Fairbanks 57 years old. Of his predecessors who have joined the silent army only John Adams lived to be older than Mr. Morton is now. Thomas Jefferson died at the age of 82, Hannibal Hamlin at the age of 81 and Aaron Burr at the age of 80.

Levi P. Morton is a New Englander, and the descendant of a family of clergymen. His family was founded in America by Rev. George Morton, one of the conspicuous members of the Pilgrim colony of England. He was the financial agent of the Pilgrims and raised and conserved the funds which fitted out the expedition on the Mayflower, although he was not a passenger on the initial voyage. He arrived in America in 1623. Levi P. Morton may have inherited his taste for finance from that treasurer of the Pilgrim band.

When at the age of 16 years he saw no hope of realizing his ambition to go to Dartmouth college, Levi P. Morton entered a country store at Enfield, Mass., where he worked until he has enough money to start a modest establishment of his own, at Hanover, N. H., in 1849, at the age of 26 he came to Boston and became a partner in a small dry goods house. Five years later he went to New York, where he joined a dry goods firm. He failed a few years before the civil war, but immediately started a banking business, appreciating that the rebellion would mean a great demand for financiers to handle the government loans. Mr. Morton founded the banking house of Morton, Bliss & Co. in New York, and Morton, Rose & Co. in London, and dealt largely in government bonds. Just before the close of the war, when he had accumulated a fortune, Mr. Morton gave a dinner to the creditors of his former dry goods firm. Every one found under his plate a check for the amount still owing him with interest.

Mr. Morton's first essay in politics was in 1878, when he was elected to congress from a New York district. He might have been president if his loyalty to the wishes of Senator Roscoe Conkling had not made him refuse the nomination for vice-president on the ticket headed by James A. Garfield in 1880. President Garfield made him minister to France in 1881, and Mr. Morton made a fine record. He was elected vice-president in 1883 on the ticket with President Harrison, but was not nominated with the president in 1892. In 1894 he was made governor of New York. Since his retirement from the governorship in 1896 Mr. Morton devoted himself to the direction of his large financial interests and to extensive travels abroad. While in this country he spends most of his time in New York or Washington.

AUDUBON STATUE COMPLETED

Memorial to the Ornithologist to Be Erected in Audubon Park, New Orleans.

New Orleans.—With the publication for the first time of the accompanying picture of the statue of John James Audubon, recently completed by Mr. Edward V. Valentine, all doubts are laid at rest as to the ultimate fate of the project that for ten or twelve years past has been the goal of the Audubon Monument association of this city. In the face of innumerable vicissitudes and discouragements, the association has struggled slowly but faithfully onward until at last the realization of the long deferred hope is close at hand.

The completed statue is held by the sculptor at his studio at Richmond, Va., awaiting only the final payment before it shall be turned over to the association. Of the stipulated price, three-fifths has already been paid to Mr. Valentine. Of the remaining two-fifths now due, one-fifth is on hand; the one-fifth lacking. It is now hoped, with the reawakening of public interest, will not be a difficult matter to collect.

Statue of Audubon to Be Placed in

Surviving relatives and friends of the Audubon family have unanimously expressed the opinion that the finished and artistic work of Mr. Valentine is a marvelous "counterfeit presentment" of the features, figure and personal characteristics of the great ornithologist as familiar to them through memory, tradition or extant portraits.

An Unconscious Tribute.

When his business had yielded such profits that he began to take life more easily and think of retiring, Mr. Holden endeavored to throw some good things in the way of a younger firm. "How about letting Hobbs & Rawson have your next consignment of canned novelties?" he suggested to one of the manufacturers. "They are hard-working gentlemanly young fellows."

"That's just the trouble," said the manufacturer, with a decided shake of his head. "I'm no gentleman myself, and I don't propose to mix up nor have any business dealin's with gentlemen."

"I'll consign my goods to you, same as I've always done, and you can do as you like with 'em."—Youth's Companion.

PITY FOR THE TOILER.

"I hear, Limpy, dat de price of livin' has increased."

"Yep. Gee, it must be tough to have to work for wot a feller eats."

To Check Spread of Trachoma.

It has been reported that the disease known as trachoma, or granular eyelids, has been spreading rapidly among the Indians. To check this trouble congress appropriated $12,000, placing it in the hands of the commissioner of Indian affairs, for the immediate investigation and treatment of the disease and to check its spread.

Smoother Then.

The second-year debutante, as she massaged her left cheek with a rotary movement, said:

"Of course I love him, though he's rather rough, I confess."

"Before I threw him over," said the third-year debutante, looking up from the face-steam machine, "he shaved every day."

2620 Oxford Place

BY KATHARINE H. BROWN

(Copyright, 1909, by J. B. Lippincott Co.)

The brilliant August sky had glowed all afternoon like a vast furnace, radiating flames of sickening heat; but at four o'clock great masses of black cloud began to sweep up over Capitol hill into ominous rank and file, accompanied by an occasional roll of thunder. Lieut. Julian Elliott, U. S. A., came slowly out of the Raleigh, and regarded the threatening horizon with a critical eye.

Elliott looked indecisively at the ancient carriage just drawing up to the curb, then at the open car swinging up Pennsylvania avenue. A louder roar of thunder and a glance at his immaculate dress decided him. "I want to look decent on my wedding anniversary," he reflected, amusedly. Then he said to the driver: "You can take me to No. 2620 Oxford place, Northwest, 'way up beyond Dupont Circle. And be swift. I want to get there before it rains," and he stepped into the cab.

The driver beamed amiably over this bit of chaff. Elliott settled back into the seat and watched the hurried lines of people rush past the cab-window with dull, unseeing eyes. "Water sweeps down like it did outside Manila," he muttered. "Jove, how yellow my hands are! Anyone could see I've had the fever. I suppose I'd better take the night train to New York and sail for Havre on the first boat, so long as I have got to go anyway. It isn't pleasant, this meeting people everywhere who are so eager to inquire about 'your wife.' Wife, indeed! 'Glad you're getting home alive,' that blackguard Stevens told me, 'so your womenfolks can coddle you a little.' Yes, I think I see them, my mother especially. No tears nor embraces for the returned soldier-boy in my dear family."

He pulled two crumpled letters from his pocket, and glanced through them with eyes that anticipated every word and sentence. The first was from his stepmother:

New York, December 12, 1898.
My Dear Julian:

Your note telling us that you are going off to Manila to help fight those stupid savages is just received. I'm sorry that you will be in such a disagreeable place this coming year; still, your being away for some time may help to simplify matters when you return. Nancy tells me that you and she have practically agreed upon a quiet separation.

I shall keep the dear child with me as long as she cares to stay; and so far she seems perfectly contented, as long as she can devote herself to Tom's little ones. I suppose it is your insane jealousy of your dead brother's children which has caused this disagreeable thing. It certainly can't be Nancy's fault. I'm sorry you ever married her. I know it was very romantic and all that, but the whole affair was the result of so sudden an attachment that I really don't believe you knew your own mind. It does seem a pity, though, that you could only stay friends for a bare six months. Well, let it go. I never pose as a peacemaker, and, besides, I don't think you two are longing to be reconciled. Come and see me when you return from Manila. Don't get shot, don't have yellow fever, and don't forget that I am

Ever your sincere friend,

HORATIA LORD ELLIOTT.

The second letter was shorter, and, if possible, more indifferent in tone:

New York, December 12, 1898.

My Dear Mr. Elliott:

Mother tells me that she is writing to you, and I'll just add a line to say that I am well and happy, and that I propose to remain here until your return from the Philippines. Then I shall go back to England, and make my home there indefinitely. Our marriage has been a mistake—they say all hasty marriages are—but the few months have been so pleasant in many ways that I do not regret it.

Hoping that you will return from this interesting expedition in the best of health and spirits, I remain,

Very sincerely,

NANCY FORBES-CAROLUS ELLIOTT.

P. S.—I retain your name at present to avoid annoying inquiries. Upon my return to England I shall probably resume my own.

Elliott tore the first letter into minute strips and flung them out of the window. The second went back into his pocket. As he tucked it in mechanically, something caught his attention outside.

"Hi, there, driver!" he shouted, "call to that lady that she can have this cab, and I'll vacate. She'll be drenched."

The rain, which had stopped treacherously for a few moments, was now dashing down with renewed force. A slender girl came hurrying across a side street, reaching the avenue just as the downpour recommenced. She looked about irresolutely for a moment; then, at sight of the driver's beckoning finger, she hurried to the cab, gave the man a hasty direction, and began tugging at the rusty door before Elliott had time to unfasten it. She did not glance up until the knob gave way—then Elliott felt his breath leave him suddenly as he looked down into his wife's eyes.

For a moment neither spoke. Supreme amazement held them in dulled silence. Nancy was the first to recover herself.

"Pardon," she said, bowing slightly, as though addressing a stranger. "I did not dream that there was anyone in the cab. I—"

"Nancy, get in, I beg of you," cried Elliott, springing out. "You'll catch your death of cold; you're wet already. I'll take a car."

"Oh, no, thank you," she returned, drawing back a trifle. There was not a trace of color in her face, yet her self-control was perfect. "I really couldn't—"

Elliott caught her by the arm and lifted her into the cab, stepping in after her. "There!" he said, angrily. "I shall not annoy you by speaking, you may be sure, but I shall not permit you to make yourself ill, either." And he sat down sternly on the opposite seat and kept his eyes away from her.

Yet he was conscious of having received something of a shock. "Jove, how thin she is," he thought. "Queer I didn't know her as she crossed the street. She didn't know me, either, at the first glance. Wonder what brought her over here just now, anyway?"

"Have you been ill, Mr. Elliott?"

He turned with a jerk. Nancy sat, erect and pale, in the corner of the back, composed as a statue. Elliott felt his face flushing, and he answered with an absurd stammer:

"No—yes—nothing but malaria. But you're not well, N—Mrs. Elliott?"

The storm died away as rapidly as it had risen. Presently the driver's grizzled head appeared at the window.

"Take you to your address, boss? The rain's stoppin'."

"Yes—well, the lady's first," returned Elliott. As the carriage started, Nancy raised her head inquiringly.

"Please have him take you to your destination first," she said, hurriedly. "I am in no haste—it is only an unnecessary errand."

"Certainly," said Elliott, bowing.

Nancy took his word as obeying her wishes. She murmured "Thank you," and sank back in her seat again, turning her eyes away from him.

"You are very tired," he ventured, after a long pause. The carriage was lumbering slowly northward, past Dupont circle.

No response.

Elliott looked out of the window patiently for awhile. At last he bent forward and spoke again. There was a curious vibration in his deep tones.

"I am going to beg your kindness," he began, slowly, "to let me speak, to ask you just one favor, and that is, your forgiveness for the many unpleasant hours I have given you, through what mother justly called my insane jealousy of my brother's children. You were as devoted as a mother could be to them, and I should have been proud of it, rather than so childishly hurt, and so passionately set on holding all your affection for myself. I was an old fool—worse than a fool—and I most humbly beg your pardon for it, and for dragging you into a marriage which has brought you disappointment and annoyance."

"I never said that," said Nancy, faintly. Her face shone white against the dingy cushions, her lips were set in a stern little line.

"In which you were very considerate. It's a year to-day, you know—I'd give ten years of my life to blot out these last 12 months for you. But now I can do nothing—nothing but beg you to regard me as your friend, ready to serve you whenever you may call upon me. Will you not promise me to let me know if at any time—"

Nancy sprang forward to the window and pulled at it frantically. The cab was drawing up before No. 2620 Oxford place.

"Why did he bring us here?" she gasped, panting and trembling. "I said he was to take us to your address first."

"But this is mine," cried Elliott, amazed. "I said he was to take us wherever you wanted to go—Nancy, you don't mean that you were going there—to-day?"

But Nancy's hands were over her face, and she had shrunk back into the corner of the seat again.

Elliott thrust his hands into his pockets and dragged out a bill and a bunch of keys. He pushed the money into the cabman's hand as that worthy appeared at the door. "Here's your fare," he cried, in a voice that he hardly recognized. "And we're much obliged for the—shelter."

He lifted Nancy from the cab, and half-carried her up the steps of No. 2620 Oxford place. "Won't you come in with me?" he said, under his breath, as he unlocked the door, "and see if the house is in good condition for—renting to a bridal couple?" He drew her inside the big, bare hall, and as the heavy door swung to he caught her in his arms for a long minute. When he put her down her eyes were wet, too. "And there's a room upstairs—the den, Nancy—would you like to see it?—satisfactory?"

She was trying bravely through her tears to carry out the play.

"Oh, Julian, there's nothing in this house," she whispered, "nothing but bare walls—and marriage on friendship."

"Yes, there is," he retorted, rudely. "Don't you dare contradict me, madam! You and Love. Can I want more?"

Nancy dropped her head against his big shoulder. "If you're going to intimidate me, Julian," she whispered, "why, of course, I have—nothing to say."

"We have here a series of dolls representing all states in life," said the fair vendor of toys at the charity bazar. "Now this one represents the home idea as a happy wife."

"That doll ain't a good one to represent a happy wife," said the vinegar-faced woman, pausing near.

"Why not?" asked the surprised attendant.

"Because she can't shut her eyes."

MAY NOT CONFIRM MEECHEM.

Some time ago President Taft appointed Hon. M. C. Meechem of Tucumcari, a district judge of this territory. When his name reached the senate for confirmation, objections were raised, on the score of Mr Meechem's health. Later it was announced that these objections had been withdrawn and that his confirmation would follow. Still later a dispatch states that the indications are that the senate will refuse to confirm the appointment, and that the president will be asked to name a new man for the judgeship.

Three reservations in the northwest will be thrown open to settlement soon, and all who desire to obtain this land must register by the 5th of August. The three reservations contain almost three-quarters of a million acres, and are classified as follows: The Flathead reservation, in Montana, 40,000 acres first-class agricultural land, 75,000 acres second class agricultural land and 335,000 acres of grazing land; the Coeur d'Alene reservation, in Idaho, 200,000 acres, classified as agricultural, grazing and timber lands; the Spokane reservation, Washington, 50,000 acres of agricultural land. A big rush is expected on opening day.

The Hilton Concert.

A large and appreciative audience greeted the Hilton Trio last Friday evening, and it was more than generous in its applause when applause was merited. Misses Hilton, Chapman and Head, three young lady graduates of the Boston Conservatory of Music, constituted the trio, each of whom is mistress in her particular role. The entertainment was certainly an excellent one, and those best qualified to judge its merits were unstinted in their praise. It was undoubtedly the best treat the music lovers of this town and vicinity have had for a long time. The concert comprised about a dozen numbers by the most famous composers, and the artistes were repeatedly encored, practically doubling the number.

The violin solos by Miss Hilton seemed to reach the feelings of the audience most, and her efforts were invariably encored.

Miss Head is possessed of a rich contralto voice of great volume and compass, enabling her to take the highest and lowest notes with equal ease. Her rendering of the solos, "Good bye to Summer" and "At Parting" were received with generous and deserved applause, as was also a Spanish piece.

Miss Chapman's preformance on the piano proclaimed her a musician of exceptional ability. All, however, are artistes in their lines, and should they ever visit Carrizozo again they may feel sure of a full house and an enthusiastic welcome.

J. W. Craig is over from Capitan and is thinking of locating here.

Clement Hightower came over yesterday from Capitan, and expects to return today.

Mrs. Frank Gray and children left Monday morning for a four-months' visit to relatives in Mason county, Texas.

Miss Charlotte McCauley, who has been visiting at Parsons and Fort Stanton the past two weeks, leaves for Chicago tonight.

Conda Skinner, wife and little daughter, of the Mesa, visited their parents, Mr. and Mrs. John H. Skinner, last Sunday.

Miss Maggie Gallacher accompanied by her brother Harry, came over Tuesday to attend the dance which took place that night.

Mr. and Mrs. S. T. Gray and Mrs. W. E. Palmer came over from Capitan Friday evening to attend the concert given by the Hilton Trio.

John H. Boyd's residence is nearing completion and will soon be ready for occupancy. It is a five room adobe, with closets and bath room.

A. C. Austin was over from Angus this week with a lot of cherries and currents. He remembered this office with a basket of each variety.

P. C. Baird has been appointed by the school board to enumerate the children of the district. When you see him give him the names and ages of your children. The ages between 5 and 21 of all unmarried persons of the district are to be enumerated.

Miss Jennie Brockway has a position at the Carrizozo Trading Co., succeeding Miss Abbye Meek who has gone to Tularosa to be with her parents.

Newt Kemp, road supervisor for this district, was over this week, taking a look at our roads and streets. He will put a force to work at once.

Harry S. Comrey was down Monday from Ancho, the first time in a number of moons. Mr. Comrey has been ill for some time, but is gradually regaining his normal health.

Miss Nellie French, who has been visiting here the past week, returned to Ancho Wednesday night. Miss French will leave next week for Knoxville, Tennessee, the home of her parents.

Mrs. P. C. Baird, with two daughters, left Monday morning for Texas. Miss Edna will enter school at Fort Worth, while Mrs. Baird and the baby will visit various portions of the Lone Star State before returning.

B. R. Robinson, an old-time farmer and ranchman of Bonito, was in town yesterday with a wagon load of produce, which he disposed of at a good figure without any difficulty. Mr. Robinson says his section has had an abundance of rain, crops are fine and cattle fat.

A big picnic party, consisting of twenty-eight members, went out to Water canyon Sunday. From all reports, the crowd must have consisted largely of Baptist converts; for the afternoon was devoted exclusively to the rites of immersion.

D. M. Cox and Geo. G. Thorp brought Henry Patterson down from Ancho Wednesday. Mr. Patterson had cut his hand with a butcher knife and the wound had bled profusely. The injured member was dressed, and, though the cut is an ugly one, no serious results are anticipated.

Harry H. Summerfield came up from Lincoln Saturday and remained until Monday. Mr. Summerfield is a Mississippian and came to this country in impaired health. He entered Dr. Laws' sanatorium, at Lincoln, last winter, is now much improved and his complete restoration to health seems to be only a matter of time.

C. C. Bennett was up from Lincoln Saturday and Sunday. Mr. Bennett, besides attending to the duties of treasurer and collector of the county during the absence of Treasurer Watson, is also looking after the doctor's interest in the automobile line. While here Mr. Bennett was driven to the crater in the malpais, with a view of selecting a route to this interesting freak of nature. If the route proves feasible the company intends to establish a line and convey passengers to and from that point.

The Carrizozo Automobile Co., of which Chas. A. Stevens and Dr. T. W. Watson, of Lincoln are respectively president and secretary, have established an auto line from this point to Lincoln. The car leaves here daily, except Sunday, at 7 a. m., arriving at Lincoln at 11.05 a. m. Leaves Lincoln at 1 o'clock p. m., arriving at Carrizozo 5.05 p. m. The intermediate stations on the line are Nogal, Capitan and Fort Stanton, at which points stops of fifteen minutes are made. Express packages promptly delivered to all points along the route, and special attention given to messages to be delivered. Two cars are regularly in service and as soon as business justifies another will be added.

The little town of Ancho has enjoyed a substantial growth the past year and the surrounding country is rapidly filling up with settlers. Ancho forms a portion of the Jicarilla precinct, but since its rapid development has become the most populous portion of the precinct. The people there desire a voting precinct created and petitioned the board for a new precinct, as they are so far removed from the voting place in Jicarilla. Unfortunately, however, the petition was not presented until the July meeting of the board, and business was so congested at that time that the board was compelled to lay the matter over, with much other business that could not be given proper attention.

People Talked About

VISITOR FROM JAPAN

Vice Admiral Baron Sotokichi Uriu, chief of staff of the Japanese navy, who is now visiting in this country, is a distinguished veteran of the wars between Japan and China and Russia. He was trained in the United States Naval academy at Annapolis, as one of the 15 students permitted to study there as an act of international courtesy. His student years were from 1877 to 1881, and he is remembered by practically all who were at the academy during that time.

At the age of 52, Uriu is one of the 13 vice admirals of his country. His friends see an admiral's place for him before he reaches retirement. His service has been continuous in the navy since 1881. After his graduation from Annapolis, in that year, he went to Europe, where he spent two years, and then returned to Japan to become a lieutenant in the Japanese Naval college at Tokyo. After service afloat on several ships he was detached to the general staff department in 1888, and made second in command at the great Yokosuka dock yard. In 1891 he was given command of the Akagi and a year later became naval attaché at Paris.

For four years he served at the French city, and on his return was given command of a cruiser. In September, 1897, he sailed as captain of the Fuso, for service on the coast of the Russian possessions in Asia. His promotion to rear admiral occurred in 1900, and in the naval maneuvers of 1903 he was made chief of staff of the first division. Later in the same year he was given command of a division of the second squadron. In the Chinese war he commanded naval forces at the battle of the Yalu.

With this training Uriu went into the war with Russia as a rear admiral, having charge of the fourth squadron of the Japanese fleet. His action at Chemulpo was the beginning of the war. In front of Port Arthur the guns he commanded did destructive work, and in the battle of the Sea of Japan he commanded the light cruisers, under Admiral Togo. With the admiral on the west, Uriu on the north and Kamimura on the south, the Japanese fleet closed in upon the Russians, pounding them to pieces and driving them toward the coast of Japan.

NEW ALASKA GOVERNOR

Walter E. Clark, correspondent in Washington of the Seattle Post-Intelligencer and a member of the New York Sun bureau at Washington, has been appointed governor of Alaska by President Taft.

The position was offered to Mr. Clark three years ago by President Roosevelt, but at that time Mr. Clark wished to remain in the newspaper field. He was not an applicant for the place this time, but the president wanted his services because, particularly, Mr. Clark is familiar with Alaska. He went to the territory first in 1900, to wrest a fortune from the gold fields. He failed in that, but acquired such an interest in the country that he revisited it in 1903 and in 1906.

Mr. Clark was born in Ashford, Conn., in 1869, graduating from the Connecticut Normal school in 1887 and from Wesleyan university in 1895. Succeeding graduation, he entered newspaper work as a reporter on the Hartford Post, coming to Washington in 1895 as telegraph editor on the Washington Times.

Gov. Hoggatt was appointed three years ago, and has, like all governors of the territory, had much trouble. He has been opposed by factions and warmly supported by others. He got tired of it all and resigned to enter private business.

REFUSES VICE-PRESIDENCY

Don Enrique C. Creel, the Mexican diplomatist and governor who has refused to be considered as a candidate for the vice-presidency of the Mexican republic because he is in favor of the reelection of the present incumbent, is known as one of the most progressive men of affairs of his country. He is a bank president, a railroad vice-president, and director in an insurance company. In earlier days he has been a merchant, a school teacher, a newspaper man, a tanner, a farmer and a miner. Those were the days when he was educating himself, before he became as wealthy as he is to-day.

Half of Senor Creel's success may be fairly claimed by his friends this side the Mexican boundary, for his father was a Kentuckian who went to Mexico with Gen. Taylor, stayed, married a dusky belle and became a Mexican by adoption. The son has become an important figure in Mexican affairs, having served as governor of Chihuahua, a member of the national congress and speaker of the house, before he came as ambassador at Washington in 1906. His wife is the beautiful daughter of a leading general in President Diaz' army, and will some day come into a handsome fortune from her father. It is considered that some day when Gen. Diaz shall have insisted upon retiring from the presidency, Senor Creel has an idea of succeeding to that position.

"Our son, two years old, was afflicted with a rash. After he suffered with the trouble several weeks I took him to the doctor but it got worse. The rash ran together and made large blisters. The little fellow didn't want to do anything but scratch and we had to wrap his hands up to keep him from tearing the flesh open till the blood would run. The itching was intense. The skin on his back became hard and rough like the bark of a tree. He suffered intensely for about three months. But I found a remedy in Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment. The result was almost magical. That was more than two years ago and there has not been the slightest symptom of it since he was cured. J. W. Lauck, Yukon, Okla., Aug. 28 and Sept. 17, 1908."

FOR THE LUNCHEON TABLE.

Hazelnut Wafers a Delicacy That Hostess May Be Sure Will Be Greatly Appreciated.

These are quite a change from ordinary cakes, and are invariably appreciated. Required: Half a pound of flour, four ounces of brown sugar, two ounces of butter, two ounces of shelled and finely-chopped hazelnuts, four tablespoonfuls of milk, a few drops of lemon juice and vanilla.

Cream the butter and sugar with a wooden spoon until soft and white. Add the flour very lightly, then stir in the milk very slowly and smoothly.

Shake in the nuts, and add lemon juice and vanilla to taste. Rub a flat baking tin over very lightly with salad oil or butter. Spread some of the mixture very thinly on it, and mark it out into squares with a knife.

Bake in a moderately hot oven for about six minutes, or until set. Rub the handle of a wooden spoon over with a very little oil, cut out the wafers, lift them up, and press them round the spoon-handle, so as to curl them.

Draw each one gently off as it is molded. This process needs to be quickly done, or the mixture hardens. The best plan is to do it near the fire or by the oven door.

These wafers will keep for a long time if placed in an air-tight can. The nuts can be bought ready shelled and dried from any grocery.

Baked Steak.

Required: Three pounds of rump steak, one ounce and a half of butter, one pint of stock, three large Spanish onions, four cloves, two tablespoonfuls of Worcester sauce, cayenne and salt to taste, half an ounce of flour.

First fry the steak in butter till nicely browned, then put it in a baking pan, with the fat in which it was fried. Have ready the parboiled insides of two or three large Spanish onions, put it in a baking pan, with the fat in which it was fried. Have ready the parboiled insides of two or three large Spanish onions, put these with the steak, cloves, one pint of stock, the Worcester sauce (or ketchup), cayenne and salt to taste. Cover the pan and bake slowly for two hours. Slice the outer parts of the onions and fry them a golden brown, dish the stew, and thicken the gravy, colored to a nice brown, and strain over. Garnish with fried onions and serve.

Fixing Old Chairs.

If you have old rush bottom or cane-seated chairs and do not want to go to the expense of having them recaned, try making a seat for them at home.

Cut away carefully the caning and nail strips of girthing tightly across the opening. Cover with a piece of fine fibre matting or burlap, just the shape of the seat, but a half-inch larger. Turn in the edges all around and nail to the chair with brass-headed tacks for studding.

If the woodwork has grown shabby, buy a preparation that quickly removes and softens the varnish and scrape with pieces of glass. The chair can then be done up with any desired stain.

Savory Pancakes.

Required: Six tablespoonfuls of flour, three eggs, a tablespoonful of minced scalded onion, a tablespoonful chopped parsley, half a tablespoonful of pepper, lard for frying.

Put the flour into a basin with a small teaspoonful of salt. Make this into a batter of proper consistency with three eggs beaten up in a little milk till smooth. Then stir in a tablespoonful of minced onion, parsley and a liberal seasoning of pepper. Let the batter stand for two hours, and fry a small coffee-cupful at a time in a little boiling lard. Roll up each pancake as soon as finished, dust with salt and coralline pepper, and serve hot.

Beds for Tuberculosis Patients.

Eight beds a day for tuberculosis patients have been provided in the United States, according to the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, during the year ending May 1. There are in the country over 15,000 beds for consumptive sick, distributed in 298 sanitariums, or an average of 50.8 beds per sanitarium.

Well, What If He Didn't?

For many years Dr. Francis L. Patton, ex-president of Princeton university, wore side whippers. Whenever he suggested shaving them there was a division of opinion in the family. One morning he came into his wife's room, razor in hand, with his right cheek shaved smooth.

"How do you like it, my dear?" he asked. "If you think it looks well, I will shave the other side, too."—Everybody's Magazine.

Obedience.

Prompt and unquestioning obedience is the corner stone of the foundation of success in life. No man can give orders properly who has not learned to take them, and "save he serve, no man may rule." It will be found that the men who have won their way to positions of power and responsibility have invariably been the men who did not reason or argue or even "respectfully represent," but who promptly did as they were commanded without questioning. It is the large man, not the little man, who recognizes a superior authority.

MAKING SUNSHINE

It is Often Found in Pure Food.

The improper selection of food drives many a healthy person into the depths of despairing illness. Indeed, much sickness comes from wrong food and just so surely as that is the case right food will make the sun shine once more.

An old veteran of Newburyport, Mass., says: "In October, I was taken sick and went to bed, losing 47 pounds in about 60 days. I had doctor after doctor, food hurt me and I had to live almost entirely on magnesia and soda. All solid food distressed me so that water would run out of my mouth in little streams."

"I had terrible night sweats, and my doctor finally said I had consumption and must die. My good wife gave up all hope. We were at Old Orchard, Me., at that time and my wife saw Grape-Nuts in a grocery there. She bought some and persuaded me to try it."

"I had no faith in it, but took it to please her. To my surprise it did not distress me as all other food had done and before I had taken the fifth package I was well on the mend. The pains left my head, my mind became clearer and I gained weight rapidly."

"I went back to my work again and now after six weeks' use of the food I am better and stronger than ever before in my life. Grape-Nuts surely saved my life and made me a strong hearty man, 15 pounds heavier than before I was taken ill."

"Both my good wife and I are willing to make affidavit to the truth of this."

FIRE ENGINE DOES GOOD WORK.

Some time ago Carrizozo, by popular subscription, purchased a fire and chemical engine to be used in fighting fire. No fires have occurred since the purchase of the engine, and we trust we will not soon have occasion to use it. However, it is here, and in case of fire will be serviceable in keeping down conflagrations.

As an illustration of what the engine is capable of doing we have only to look at Clovis, whose city council purchased an engine similar to ours, and before the fire brigade had time to get into running order, it was called upon to fight fire. A dispatch describing its usefulness reads:

"Clovis, N. M. July 17.—Every one here is loud in their praise of the wonderful fighting capacity of the new Howe fire fighting engine and equipment which was responsible for the saving of thousands of dollars of property in the fire threatened districts when the big yards of the Kemp Lumber company were destroyed entailing a loss of over $30,000. This engine was bought by the city council several weeks ago, being the same kind that is now being used by Portales, and it had no more than arrived on the scene when it was called into commission to save the city from the worst fire that ever threatened the properties here."

RUIDOSO POWER PLANT.

More than a year ago, Oliver M. Lee, C. E. Mitchell and J. L. Lawson, of Alamogordo, made application to Territorial Engineer Sullivan, asking for a permit to take 130 second feet of water from the Ruidoso and its tributaries. The purpose set out in the application was to use the water to create power, to be transmitted to Fort Stanton, Carrizozo and other points, which would be used for pumping, electric light and various other purposes. The applicants propose to develop 5,000 horse power from these streams.

The people in the valley below filed a protest, and the matter has been pending for the past year. This month the Territorial Engineer granted a permit, approving the application in a modified form. A proviso was placed in the permit to the effect that power shall be sold to settlers in the Ruidoso valley at as low a figure as to other customers, and the water must be returned to the stream undiminished in volume.

The estimated cost of the power plant is $200,000. The main canal will be about ten miles in length, and lateral canals will convey the waters of the smaller streams to the main canal. North, Middle and South fork and the main Ruidoso will furnish the principal flow for the project. The Carizo, a small stream that enters the Ruidoso just above the old Dowlin mill, is to supply 6 second feet. The application to take 6 second feet from Cedar Creek, which empties into the Ruidoso opposite the old mill, was denied.

A fine rain fell here last night, and, from all appearances, it extended over a large area.
