THE LON LUNAS CRIME.

Further Particulars About the Murder of Old Woman.

Further particulars of the brutal murder committed at Los Lunas Wednesday night (an account of which was published yesterday) were elicited at the examination yesterday.

The victim was a harmless old woman, scarcely five feet in height, and was about 60 years old. She had been engaged as washerwoman for Coroner J. P. Connolly, of Valencia county, for some time past, and had just finished a hard day's work at the home of the latter and had, at sunset, found her way home to her sister, an aged imbecile, when she met the men who now stand accused of her murder.

From the evidence, it appears that Antonio Martinez and Antonio Jose Garcia had been drinking heavily all of Wednesday and about sundown had gone to the house of Dolores Benavides, where the old woman is supposed to have stopped on the way to her sister's home, which is a small, two roomed adobe house situated within two hundred yards of the plaza. She had been there but a short time when Martinez and Garcia arrived under the influence of liquor. The aged sister of the victim drove them from the house but they returned and tried to persuade the poor woman to go with them. She finally gave way to their entreaties and left the house to be seen no more alive.

Her body was found yesterday morning stiff and cold in death, and stretched full length as if prepared for burial. Her face was covered with a black shawl, her left cheek and side of her face badly swollen, and blood oozing from the corners of her mouth.

The greatest indignation was felt and the coroner and jury immediately hastened to the spot. On all sides were evidences of a great struggle, showing that the victim, although aged and infirm, had fought for her poor life. The shawl was moved down and as if devoured by animals and the dead body placed in an acquiescent, which had been dried up for lack of water.

An investigation was at once commenced and Martinez and Garcia immediately followed under arrest. Both are young fellows and are neither over 25 years of age.

The coroner's jury having completed their examination, returned a verdict to the effect that deceased came to her death by means of a blow, which had broken her neck and which was presumably the work of Martinez and Garcia.

Justice of the Peace Sosa had presided over the deliberations, and for some reason hesitated to sign the verdict.

The preliminary examination was held at 2 p. m. yesterday at Los Lunas, and the verdict having been rendered, signed by the justice, coroner and six jurors, having been read in open court, Col. J. F. Chavez held that inasmuch as the justice had officiated at the coroner's examination and had affixed his official signature to the document, accusing the two defendants, that any further proceedings would be but a review of the labors of the justice and therefore recommended that the prisoners be placed in jail subject to habeas corpus proceedings before the district court.

A long discussion was held and Justice Sosa finally decided to remand the prisoners to jail, until he could consult with Prosecuting Attorney Whiteman, of Albuquerque.

A search of the prisoners revealed the discovery of two bunches of keys upon the person of Antonio Martinez, which were identified as the property of the murdered woman. One bunch contained the key of a small trunk, owned by the woman, in which she was supposed to have kept what little effects she might have possessed. A thorough search of her premises, however, showed the trunk to have been removed.

Circumstantial evidence is very strong against the two men, and their arrest was at first a great surprise, for yesterday morning the entire affair was shrouded in mystery. In fact the motive for the deed is yet obscure.

Chief of Police Connolly worked untiringly in the case during the whole of yesterday, and it was due to his efforts that the mystery is being gradually unraveled.

Dorsey's manitrim.
Stephen W. Dorsey, the brainiest man in the west and the equal of the best in the United States, dropped into Springer Tuesday on a business trip connected with the new sanitarium that is soon to be inaugurated at the Dorsey ranch where so many hundreds of people have been hospitably entertained during the past fifteen years. Senator Dorsey is looking in prime condition, says he never felt better in his life, and was wondered while talking to him a brief moment, what new Napoleonic scheme his active brain was working out. He has just worked out a matter that will enrich Colorado three or four millions and add several thousands to her population, and there are other worlds to conquer by this man of large ideas. —Springer Stockman.

Arizona's New Governor.

L. C. Hughes was born in Philadelphia, May 15, 1842; was left an orphan at the age of two years; was kept on a farm for several years and thereafter learned the machinists trade in Pittsburgh. At the breaking out of the war enlisted in company A, 101st regiment Pennsylvania volunteers; served two years in hard active service, was discharged on account of disability, and after partial recovery joined Knapp's Pittsburgh Battery. At the close of the war returned to his trade, attended night school in Pittsburgh, where he prepared himself for college, which he attended in Meadville, Pa., after which he read law with the firm of Denckson & Brawley of that city. On account of failing health as the result of service in the war and hard study; was advised by his physician to seek a mild climate, which resulted in his locating in Tucson, Arizona, his present home, in 1871, where he resumed the practice of the law with well merited success. In 1877 Mr. Hughes established the Weekly Star, and in 1880 the Daily, giving up a lucrative law practice for that of journalism. The Star is pronounced on every public question, and the force and individuality of its editor leave no room for doubt where he stands on all questions of public concern.

Mr. Hughes is ably assisted by his most talented and noble wife, Mrs. E. J. Hughes, who is known as the mother of the public schools of Arizona, as she presided the first public school for girls in the territory in 1872. She is now the territorial president of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, and contributing to the press on the subjects in which this band of Christian workers are engaged.

Good for Teachers.

The normal department of the University of New Mexico, Albuquerque, will open on Wednesday, June 7, and close Friday, July 21. The circular just issued by the board of regents, in regard to this department, reads as follows:

The board of regents of the University opened the institution last summer, June 16, with a normal term for the teachers of the territory. The enrollment was seventy-five, and the work in every way successful, fitting a long felt want in New Mexico. Of those who were in attendance many are now filling important positions in the public schools of the territory. Since the University has opened the fall term of the University, many inquiries have come from teachers, who wish to attend a summer school this coming vacation, to fit themselves for better work in the school room. To meet the wants of these and others, the board of regents of the University has arranged with the faculty to hold, in addition to the regular work of the normal department, a summer school for teachers, and, especially for those who teach during the school year of the University, and can only take such a course in their vacation. There will be very thorough reviews in all the branches required for the county certificates, and in addition to this, classes in high school work will be formed.

Special attention will be given to methods of teaching, and teachers will have an opportunity to study the Ballard system, Delineation, music, drawing, penmanship and Spanish.

Those who attend and do satisfactory work will receive a certificate showing the work accomplished.

A course of lectures will be given during the term by prominent educators.

Career of the Branst.

About a week ago Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Adkins arrived in the city from Breckenridge, Texas, in very destitute circumstances, renting a small house down on south Third street. The wife was suffering from cancer of the breast, and this morning she died. The body was turned over to Undertaker Horne, and at 3:30 o'clock the remains were buried in Fairview cemetery. The funeral expenses were borne by the Ladies Benevolent society and subscriptions from our citizens.

On the last of March, the body of a man was found on the plains, about twelve miles west of Tyrone station, on the Santa Fe, and as he was not known the body was buried where it was found. The matter was reported to Coroner Sosa who found the lonely grave, and taking up the remains, brought them to Trinidad. The body is badly decayed and cannot be identified, but letters found indicate that it is John Hudson, a former Santa Fe employe, who disappeared about the time of the arrest of employes for robbing freight cars. The theory is that Hudson became alarmed, and starting across the plains to get out of the way, perished of hunger and exposure. —Trinidad Chronicle.

The United States Investor has the following: The floating debt of the Santa Fe is said to be only $3,000,000 at the present time. President Reinhardt has a number of reforms in contemplation, whereby it is expected that the expenses of the road will be cut down. It is hoped to save at least $200,000 a year by doing away with a separate management for the Colorado Midland, and in one way and another this policy of trimming down expenses is expected to result in a saving to the company of $1,500,000 a year.

University of Arizona.
A Digest of Higher Educational Facilities.
The territorial university, located at Tucson, offers finer facilities for higher education, as is shown by this brief digest taken from a San Francisco paper, the facts being obtained from the faculty of the university, as reported to the government of the territory.

Aside from the public schools the more important educational institution in the territory is the University of Arizona, which was established by an act of the legislature in the spring of 1885, an appropriation of $250,000 having been made for that purpose. Tucson was selected as the place to locate it, and in 1887 a contract was let for the construction of a building to cost $75,000. The building was completed in the spring of 1888, and the first session of the university was held in the fall of 1888. The university is now in its third year, and has a total enrollment of 1,000 students.

The resources of the university are drawn from a number of sources. Congress in 1887 passed an act appropriating $250,000 for the university, and the territory has since then contributed $100,000 annually. The university has also received $100,000 from the sale of land, and $100,000 from the sale of stock.

Rev. W. D. Atchison, of Eugene, Ill., a visitor to the New Mexican metropolis for several weeks, was a passenger en route east this morning.

J. R. Gillman and Albert Singer, the commercial travelers for Mandell Bros. & Co., were passengers to southern Colorado this morning.

Ed A. Browne, of Pleasant Hill, Mo., is the master at the dining house at the depot. The young gentleman is pleasant and accommodating.

John H. McChesney, proprietor and editor of the Industrial Advertiser, Socorro, was in the city for a few days last night, registered at the European.

Mit Katzenberg will leave this evening for the north, stopping a few days at El Paso, and from there he will visit Chihuahua, Mexico. He expects to be absent about ten days.

J. B. Manty, the Trinidad sheep buyer, is here again, and will buy several thousand sheep before returning north. He has his eyes on several first class flocks and will nab them at the very first opportunity.

W. C. Sanders, superintendent of the Malagros group of mines in the Sandia mountains, is in the city on the sick list. He reports work progressing, and thinks that the Denver purchasers struck a bonanza when they purchased the mines.

Messrs. Everett, Burke, Anderson, Whiting and Weiler visited Fruitvale, on the Rio Puerco, last Sunday, and on the return trip to the city the party got lost for several hours. They did not get back to the city until past midnight Sunday night.

Since Col. Albright has so far failed to secure recognition from President Cleveland there seems to be a disposition on the part of the sporting fraternity of the city to reduce him in rank to that of major. The colonel will have something to say about this matter as soon as he returns from Washington.

Last Sunday night W. B. McLaughlin, watchman at the depot, found Henry Merrill and James Mack in a mercantile car, and as they had no business there he escorted the two men to the city jail. Agent Healy has preferred charges against them for breaking into a sealed car, and their trial occurred this afternoon at 1 o'clock before Justice Lockhart, and they were bound over to await the action of the grand jury.

A little excitement was occasioned at the San Felipe hotel at the noon hour yesterday. Simon Danm and a few friends were standing under the skylight in the rotunda of the hotel discussing politics, when a large piece of glass fell from the skylight, striking Simon on the head and making an ugly cut. Simon flew around the rotunda like some person was after him, and did not become pacified until assured that it was an accident. The wind was blowing at the time, and a tin cup from one of the chimneys was blown on to the glass, breaking it and a piece fell down into the rotunda. Mr. Danm will be all right in a few days.

The Pecos Road.
It is reported that Mr. Hagerman and the other projectors of the Pecos Valley railway are thinking of extending it to Albuquerque. An extension of this kind doubtless would pay, but the one in which Denver people are interested is the one by which it is proposed to connect the Pecos Valley road with the Santa Fe at near Las Vegas. This would give Denver a close connection with the Pecos valley, but it might prove in the end a bad acquisition. We have heard nothing lately about the proposed road from Trinidad to El Paso, of which there was so much talk last winter.

That was a proposition which promised a great deal of good to Denver, for it meant competition with the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe for a part of New Mexico traffic. If the extension of the Pecos Valley road northward were to kill the project of an independent line to El Paso, Denver would lose more than it would gain by the extension. It would be an excellent thing if we could get both, but of the two, the El Paso road would be the better for Denver. Denver Republican.

CANNOT LIVE.

The Handing of Operator Matthews Will Result Fatally.

A consultation of physicians Drs. Hope, Wright, Kaster, Pearce and Hard, who held last night in regard to the condition of Jas. Matthews, the operator, who was suffocated the other evening, and they came to the conclusion that the chances against his surviving the injuries were indeed few. Dr. Hope, who is attending the injured man, said of the opinion that he can not linger over twenty-four hours longer.

Yesterday afternoon a warrant was issued for the arrest of the lady at whose lodging house Matthews stopped. She is a woman who is against the parties in the case, and is accused of the same.

The chain of circumstantial evidence now woven around Judd and Hanson, the alleged sandbaggers, grows stronger with every investigation and Judge Hanson, who has been employed by the mother of Matthews, intends to see that the charge is fastened upon the right parties. It is stated that Judd only a few weeks ago got into a similar affair at Corral, and before he was suspected of it he had been arrested as being implicated in the present sandbagging case.

It is stated that Judd had secured some money that was afraid to let the facts be known. It is stated on the best of information that Matthews had considered the money about his person when he was in the city from Navajo station.

Matthews was one of the imported operators to take place of a discharged operator, and the crime now seems of an attempt on his life by several interested parties.

Later at this hour, 1:30 p. m., Dr. Hope states that Matthews can no longer survive two hours, as the death rattle has now settled in his throat. It is understood that further investigation goes to show that a painter named Roy Kettle has something to do with the sandbagging. He left the city for the north the night that the crime was committed. He is about 5 feet 11 inches tall, height, heavy set, several teeth out in front, very sandy complexion, large red or autumn moustache. His destination is supposed to be Denver, and if such a person is apprehended let the officers here be notified.

Department Officers.
Last night the delegates of the Albuquerque volunteer fire department met at the Ferguson, Hook and Ladder company headquarters, and re-elected for the ensuing year by acclamation W. T. McCreight, chief, R. E. Shannon, secretary, and Charles Vandorff, treasurer.

The names of G. G. Montgomery and L. D. Mandell were placed in nomination for assistant chief, and Mr. Mandell was chosen for the position by the vote of 21 to 18. In justice to Mr. Montgomery the Citizens desire to state that the gentleman withdrew his name from the race on Monday evening, but his friends nominated him last night in spite of his protest and paid a compliment to him by giving him eighteen votes out of a total of thirty-nine delegates. The new officers thanked the delegates for their election, and after the meeting adjourned did the "honors" in a very graceful, pleasant manner.

Immense.
That's what they all say. It is customary in those latter days to express our perfect satisfaction with a thing by saying "it's immense." It is expressed that nothing can be more immense than the Philadelphia, Pa., event "My wife has been taking my new cure for the heart, and says it's immense." She has not been troubled with pain or smothering spells since using it. J. L. Roberts, Stratford, Pa., says he is 75 years old, and has suffered from heart disease for over 40 years. Was treated without avail by prominent New York physicians; grew constantly worse; took Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure and was completely cured. Sold by T. H. Burgess & Son, on a guarantee.

An inquest was held into the death of Peter Hall, better known as "Prof. Hall," an itinerant colored barber. A number of witnesses were examined, all of whom testified that in their opinion Hall was insane, one of the strongest and strongest evidences of the professor's insanity seems to have been his habit of hair on Attorney Hanson's tongue, and an ambitious desire to shave it off, for which purpose he called at the attorney's office. The gentleman, however, could not appreciate the professor's kindness, and in graphic words told the jury about the close shave with the crazy man's razor.

Yesterday the court tried the case of Frank W. Smith vs. Chas. W. Lewis. The plaintiff was at one time general manager of the Atlantic & Pacific railroad company at this point, and when he returned to the east became interested in what was known as the Telegraph Printing company, and sold some stock to Mariano Armijo, who was then in the east, and he in turn attempted to interest Mr. Lewis in the scheme, the result of which was that Smith used Lewis for the payment of Armijo's note to Smith for that amount. The jury have not yet agreed upon a verdict.

His Myster Died.
The morning of 1:15 o'clock, James Matthews, the operator, who was suffocated last night, died from the effects of his injuries, a brother, Chas. Matthews, H. J. Muesel and M. J. Storm being at his bedside and witnessing the last rays of his life disappear. The body was turned over to Undertaker Strong, and this morning autopsies were held. The doctors found that death resulted from fracture of right temporal bone and the frontal portion of base of skull with rupture of membranes and extravasation of blood into and between cerebral structure, or to be, a fracture five or six inches long, extending from top of head down, ward in front of right ear and across two-thirds of the base of the skull.

The alarm was sounded, but before the fire department could arrive on the scene the flames were extinguished by Mr. O'Connor and Oliver Sullivan by the use of water hose placed as a protection on each floor of the building. The closet was used for storing trash, old paper, etc., and it is supposed some one threw a lighted cigar into the closet, which caused the fire. The damage to the building amounts to something in the neighborhood of $200. The most damage was probably done by the water. Some small damage was done to the Rio Grande drug store by the water.
