CARRIZOZO, LINCOLN COUNTY, NEW MEXICO, SEPTEMBER 24, 1909.

NUMBER 33

PUBLIC SCHOOLS OPEN.

The Carrizozo public schools opened Monday, with four teachers at their desks. The enrollment went beyond 200, and this has been considerably increased during the week.

E. B. Chapman is principal, and will have charge of the upper grades and the high school department. Miss Elsie Mountz handles the intermediate grades, Mrs. Elizabeth Gumm the primary, while Miss Anne Hensler conducts the school south of the railroad.

The enrollment is so large that the board finds it necessary to employ a fifth teacher, and hopes by next week to lighten the burden of the teachers in the present state of congestion. The two lower rooms in the main building are now so densely packed that floor space is at a premium and desks for all is out of the question.

Classes in the high school work have been organized by Prof. Chapman, and the enrollment in this department is expected to increase rapidly. This will be the only high school in the county, and it is believed that this department will prove of great interest throughout the county.

Prof. Chapman is a graduate of Mississippi College, Clinton, Mississippi, has taught for ten years in that state, and brings the best of references. He is a gentleman of attainments, is possessed of energy and an ambition to succeed; therefore, we see no reason why a high school should not be built up here that will be a pride to all.

Miss Mountz and Mrs. Gumm are not new in the schools of Carrizozo, and their re-employment is sufficient evidence of past satisfaction. Miss Hensler is teaching her first school here, but her references and general knowledge, combined with her experience in teaching, induce the belief that her department will be satisfactorily conducted.

Do not forget that, in order to have a successful school, teacher and pupil must work in harmony, and both require the undivided support of the patron. Let us all pull together for a successful term, a long term, and let us lay the foundation of Carrizozo's future in the upbuilding of a magnificent school.

COURT WILL BE HELD AT CARRIZOZO.

Pursuant to call, the citizens of the town met last Saturday night to hear the report of the committee, which had been appointed at a previous meeting to secure a building in which to hold the next term of the district court in this county. The committee made a report of its investigations, announcing that it had three places under consideration, viz: the Skinner building, the Bank building and the Public School building, and recommended that all three propositions be placed before the judge. The report of the committee was duly adopted, and the committee was instructed to proceed to Alamogordo and present the different locations for the consideration of the judge.

The question of the care of the prisoners arising, the suggestion was made that the Skating Rink might be secured for this purpose. After some discussion, a motion was adopted authorizing the committee to include the Rink in the proposition.

The committee left Monday morning for Alamogordo, but before going had received assurances from Judge Cooley that court would be held in Carrizozo. Arriving at Alamogordo, the committee met the judge, and went over the propositions it had to offer. Judge Cooley indicated a preference for the Skinner building or the Bank building, and notices were accordingly posted on these buildings.

The jail question was disposed of by the judge declaring that he would take this matter up with Sheriff Stevens; thus relieving the committee and the citizens of this responsibility.

The venues will be drawn at Alamogordo October 2, and the term of court will begin here the first day of November. Judge Cooley anticipates a three weeks' term of court, and feels that, even with that length of term, owing to the long interval between courts, it will require active work to dispose of the heavy docket.

THE ROAD SURVEY IN PROGRESS.

Assistant Territorial Engineer Lewis, who is in charge of the the corps surveying the Roswell-Carrizozo auto and wagon road, has completed the survey from Roswell to Lincoln, and expects to reach Carrizozo within two weeks, soon after which the actual work of grading will begin. The greatest obstacle to the survey, so far encountered, was what is known as the "Big Hill," below Picacho, and the survey cut that down to a nine percent grade.

From Lincoln this way the work of the surveyors will be light until they reach the Nogal Hill, about twelve miles east of Carrizozo, and there the skill of the engineer will again be put to the test. That hill has been a terror to teamsters since Adam was a boy. However, by circling and bridging it is believed they will get around or over the hill with a tolerable grade, and lessen the distance considerably. The survey from Nogal to this point presents no difficulties to the engineer, and the survey, no doubt, will follow the present road.

The construction of this road means a great deal to Lincoln county, in that it will make more accessible points that are far apart and difficult to reach, and at the same time arouse a public spirit throughout the county that will result in a general building of good roads. The building of this road will require quite an outlay of money, but the territory will aid, either by convict labor, by an appropriation or by both. It is estimated that eight months will come and go before the work is completed.

MASONIC MEETING.

The regular communication of Carrizozo Lodge A. F. & A. M. will be held at the Masonic hall, tomorrow night, Sept. 25th, at 7:30 o'clock. Work in the first and second degrees. As this will be our last communication under the existing dispensation, all members are requested to be present, as business of much importance will be brought up. Visiting Masons cordially invited.

THE ARRIVAL OF THE STORK.

Sunday morning at an early hour, the proverbial stork visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Rolland, and quietly deposited a nine-pound baby girl. It is said to be a cute little bit of humanity, and has been christened Helen Frances, in honor of relatives. The little girlie has begun to enjoy life, and papa and mama are well and happy. Congratulations to all, and may the little one grow to womanhood in the new county seat of Carrizozo, and may she and it grow until they become the fairest and best in the whole land of the mañana.

LINCOLN LOCALS.

J. G. Riggle will move his family from Capitan to Lincoln next week.

Postoffice Inspector Crawford was checking up the local office this week.

Probate Judge Lucero was in town this week attending to some probate business.

H. O. Hunt carried two prisoners from Carrizozo Saturday, and returned Monday morning.

Attorney Sherry of Alamogordo was transacting legal business at the clerk's office Monday.

A force of carpenters is at work shingling several business houses this week, among them the Aragon house and the Exchange buildings.

Sheriff C. A. Stevens and wife, and County Treasurer Watson and wife took a spin in an auto to the surveying camp near Hondo last Sunday.

The Most Rev. Pitival, archbishop of Santa Fe reached town Saturday afternoon. On Sunday he administered the sacrament of Confirmation to a large number of children at the church. About 500 people attended the service.

Miss Mary Walter has received her commission as postmistress of Lincoln, and will assume the duties of her office on the first of October. The new postoffice, located east of the hotel, is being renovated, and new fixtures have been ordered, which are expected to arrive in a few days.

Deputy Territorial Engineer Lewis, with four assistants, has pitched tent on the courthouse lawn. They are engaged in the survey of the Roswell-Carrizozo road and expect to be Carrizozo in about two weeks. Sheriff C. A. Stevens arranged a social in their honor Monday night at which quite a good crowd was present and a few hours spent in dancing.

IRRIGATION IN LATIN AMERICA

HUGE PROJECTS IN FAR SOUTH

IRRIGATION DAM NEAR IRAPUATO, MEXICO

CHICAMITA CANAL, PERU

The remarkable achievements of our sister American republics in irrigation and reclamation demonstrate forcibly the importance and progress of these nations. Their far-reaching work, both past and present, in this line of material development of their vast areas and limitless resources astonishes the average man and is little appreciated throughout the United States.

What they have done, are doing and intend to do rival the most ambitious schemes of this country and make us admire their enterprise and energy. If the irrigation expert of the United States were to visit and inspect the principal reclamation works between Mexico on the north and Argentina on the far south, he would return not only with new and valuable impressions which would be helpful in extending the work here, but with an enthusiasm for the possibilities of our Latin American neighbors that would do much to foster closer relations of commerce and comity, said John Barrett, director of the International Bureau of the American Republics, in an address before the National Irrigation congress at Albuquerque, N. M.

Irrigation in Latin America is no new problem. In fact, there are to be found today evidences of great irrigating canals and systems built by the Aztecs of Mexico and the Incas of Peru long before the Spanish conquest and even the discovery of America. A few facts illustrative of what they had accomplished in the line of irrigation before Europe invaded the New World may be of interest. The student of the problem of irrigation will find abundant material in Mexico, Peru and the Argentine Republic to prove the beneficial work done by these early peoples.

Let us look for a moment at Peru. The Incas, the Peruvian aborigines, were thorough agriculturists, and, although much of the country along the seacoast suffered from want of water, as little or no rain fell there, many places were capable of being reclaimed, and indeed needed only to be properly irrigated to be susceptible of extraordinary production. To these spots water was conveyed by means of canals and subterranean aqueducts, executed on a noble scale. They consisted of large slabs of freestone nicely fitted together without cement and discharged a volume of water sufficient, by means of latent ducts or sluices, to moisten the lands in the lower level through which they passed.

Some of these aqueducts were of great length. One, that traversed the district of Condesuyo, measured between four and five hundred miles. They were brought from some elevated lake or natural reservoir in the heart of the mountains and were fed at intervals by other basins which lay in their route along the slope of the Sierras. In this descent a passage was sometimes to be opened through rocks (without the aid of iron tools). Impracticable mountains were to be turned, rivers and marshes to be crossed; in short, the same obstacles were to be encountered as in the construction of their mighty roads. Near Caxamarca a tunnel is still visible which they excavated in the mountains to give an outlet to the waters of a lake.

Most of these beneficent works of the Incas were suffered to go to decay by their Spanish conquerors. In some spots the waters are still left to flow in their silent subterranean channels, whose windings and whose sources have been alike unexplored. Others, though partially dilapidated and closed up with rubbish, still betray their course. Such remains are found in the Valley of Nasca, where the ancient water courses of the Incas, measuring four or five feet in depth by three in width, and formed of large blocks of uncemented masonry, are conducted from an unknown source.

Coming to the northern continent, we find again marvelous evidences of reclamation work. The Aztecs had a most complete and well-arranged system of irrigation. They used water from the mountain streams and had a knowledge of dike building; they surrounded their fields with hedges of stone, and directed canals through them. They showed also good judgment in the management of their ground. When it was exhausted it was permitted to fallow, and its extreme dryness was relieved by canals with which the land was irrigated. Around the City of Mexico the district was checkerboarded with patches of Indian corn and plantations of cacao which required constant irrigation.

But what is Latin America doing to-day to solve this great problem which is attracting the attention of the entire world? Surely it is making great strides in this as in all other directions. Some of the republics are so fortunately situated that the problem of irrigation is not yet a necessary one, because their areas are well blessed with abundant streams and sufficient rainfall. For the present their needs are fully met by the natural water supply of the cultivated fields. The questions of great, costly irrigating schemes have not come immediately before them. The rapid progress these countries are making, however, and the steady increase in population, will undoubtedly necessitate the same consideration of this problem which we are to-day giving it in the United States. The great majority of our sister nations are reaching practical solutions of the demands of the agriculturists.

Other countries, like Uruguay and Paraguay, are so well watered that there has been no great call for artificial irrigation. In the mountain countries, however, the rainfall may be great, but the valleys sometimes need water during the dry season, and consequently the problem of irrigation becomes a practical one.

In Ecuador, the minister of the interior and public works is very active in encouraging all plans for the extension of modern agricultural methods wherever applicable. The water supply of the cities, at present a vital problem, is receiving particular attention, but hand in hand with this goes the use of water for irrigation purposes, and careful study is given to the latter as well as to the former. Near Quito new drain and irrigation pipes have been laid at considerable expense, and in the province of "El Oro" noticeable progress has been made on the rivers Calaburo, Buenavista and Pital.

A GERMAN ON NEW YORK

In a letter from New York about Fifth avenue a correspondent tells in the Berliner Tageblatt many things which would surprise residents of that thoroughfare. In the introductory sentence the writer says that the New Yorker has so little time that he usually speaks of the street as "the Fifth," never as Fifth avenue. The young women, according to the writer, parade up and down Fifth avenue unchaperoned, while some, also unattended, drive. The fathers, grandfathers, brothers and uncles are too busy hunting dollars. The women, he says, are pretty, but without figure. After paying a high tribute to the fine appearance of young girls in Fifth avenue the correspondent declares that the impression made by them on a stranger is not favorable, because of their actions, and one is usually surprised to learn that they are the daughters of respectable parents. He adds: "Woe to him who marries one of the flowers of 'the Fifth!' He will have a valuable ornament for his home, more expensive than automobile or yacht, but it will not be a real woman."—New York Tribune.

Proof of the Pudding.

"Say, ma, who did the baking to-day?" asked Farmer Wheatly. "Jane, my dear," answered Mrs. Wheatly. "Humph!" snorted Wheatly. "Do you know I've heard a good deal about that college bred, but I must say I don't think much of it."

CHILD HAD SIXTY BOILS.

And Suffered Annually with a Red Scald-Like Humor on Her Head.

Troubles Cured by Cuticura.

"When my little Vivian was about six months old her head broke out in boils. She had about sixty in all and I used Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment which cured her entirely. Some time later a humor broke out behind her ears and spread up on to her head until it was nearly half covered. The humor looked like a scald, very red with a sticky, clear fluid coming from it. This occurred every spring. I always used Cuticura Soap and Ointment which never failed to heal it up. The last time it broke out it became so bad that I was discouraged. But I continued the use of Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Resolvent until she was well and has never been troubled in the last two years. Mrs. M. A. # Lide Ann Potter's Wedding

By Grace McElroy Iurs

(Copyright, by J. B. Lippincott Co.)

The roadway seemed a mere bed of mud into which the wheels sank to ominous depths as Lide Ann drove down the hill road, but for once she gave no heed to old Dolly's struggles. Only when she came to Trimmer's gate did she sit up with something of her wonted vigor, and grasping the lines spasmodically in her hand, she drove to the door with an energy born of grim determination.

There was grinning too in the silence in which she followed her hospitable hostess into the presence of the assembled family circle. She looked around at the welcoming faces a moment before speaking, then, still standing rigidly in the middle of the floor, she spoke her lesson without answering the chorus of greetings.

"I come to give you a bid," she said. "A party!" cried Ella, delightedly, but Lide Ann answered without looking at her:

"Tain't a party. It's a weddin'." "My soul!" ejaculated Mrs. Trimmer in amazement. "I never thought to see a weddin' at your house."

"It's my own weddin'," said Lide Ann, stolidly, the words bringing a new gasp from her listeners. She waited a moment, her brown hands clenching themselves desperately, then she sat down and her voice deepened a little from its hard, tense tone.

"You all know the store Sarah Belle sets by weddin's," she said; "she cares more for 'em than for any livin' thing, and has ever since she could walk. She's always marrying her dolls and she's got a whole boxful o' weddin' notices that she got me to cut out of different papers for her. Awhile back her Uncle Joseph sent her some magazines, and in one of them was a picture of a girl standin' beside a grave, with a minister holdin' out his hand over her head. Well, I read that story to Sarah Belle, and it was all about a girl that was engaged to marry a soldier out in India somewhere, only he died while she was on her way over to him. When she found out he was dead she insisted on standin' beside his grave and goin' over the marriage service so't she could call herself his widow. That story took such a holt o' Sarah Belle that she ain't thought of another thing since, and dwellin' on it put it in her head that I had to get married so't we could have a weddin' in our house. She's that set on it I don't dare back out, for Dr. Wall told me this winter that Sarah Belle's heart is gettin' weaker all the time and that any sudden shock, like a fright or a disappointment, might kill her right off." A tremor crept into the hard voice, but she choked it back and went on without stopping:

"So't I've concluded to do just 's she wants me to. 'Tain't much, anyhow," with sudden defiance, "for me as has health and strength, to play a little game for Sarah Belle, that hasn't any thing or anybody in the world but me."

"But how—what man are you goin' to marry?" cried Jenny, and Lide Ann swallowed hard before replying:

"Tain't a real man at all. I wouldn't want a man around clutterin' up Sarah Belle's dolls and flowers, and maybe interferin' with her ideas. She don't care anything about that part of it. It was the picture that took her eye an'—I'm to be married beside a grave, same's the girl in the story."

"Oh my—how awful!" breathed Ella, but Lide Ann turned on her fiercely:

"Tain't awful at all, Ella Trimmer," she said. "F I got to be married at all, I'd a heap rather take a man that's dead and done for than one that's livin' and uncertain. I've chose my own cousin," she went on after a pause, "Mattha Miller Potter, that was killed in the war. I feel that I've some right to him because he was pa's full cousin and my mother nursed him till he died after he got wounded. He never went after any girl that I heard of, so I won't feel as if I was takin' somebody else's place. I'd hate to marry a man that wanted some other girl. Besides, it's the same name."

No one spoke, and Lide Ann, her energy suddenly failing now that her tale was told, rose heavily to go.

"Are you goin' to have a big dinner?" then asked Ella with sudden interest.

"I'm goin' to have everything a weddin' calls for while I'm about it," answered Lide Ann, grimly, and with a farewell as abrupt as her entrance had been she was gone.

"I think it's nigh a sin for Lide Ann to humor Sarah Belle the way she does," began Ella, indignantly; "I thought it was bad enough when she used up the whole season's apples to buy that pink silk dress, but that wasn't half as bad as this crazy notion—"

Victor Trimmer, who had been gazing after the departing buggy with a strange look in his soft eyes, stopped her:

"I wouldn't call it crazy if I was you, sister," he said. "I think Lide Ann Potter has the best heart that ever beat."

The goodness of Lide Ann's heart was generally admitted in the neighborhood, but even Victor felt uneasily that there were few who would view her present undertaking as leniently as he, despite the fact that her ways with her sister had long ago gained acceptance.

Sarah Belle had never been like other folks. Delicately fair, in sharp contrast to her sturdy kin, she had seemed set aside from them in her very babyhood, long before the piteous reality of the division was suspected. For Sarah Belle had never developed beyond that period of childhood which regards the world as a wonder-wood of fairy lore and all life's circumstances merely as assorted play-things.

Lide Ann felt the seriousness of her action, and her fear of the neighborhood verdict was strengthened by the unconcealed horror with which the Trimmers had received her announcement. She groaned aloud as she drove away from their house, wringing her hands with a hopelessness very far removed from her usual sturdy self-mastery. Then, suddenly, a new decision shaped itself in her mind and struggled forth from the numb determination of the morning.

It's cowardliness, the very worst kind, for it only puts off," she whispered to herself, "but I'm goin' to do it anyhow, and let things at the last take care of themselves."

Accordingly, at the next house and throughout the afternoon's round of visits the formula of her invitation changed. Only to a wedding, that wedding her own, was her "bid" given, but the element of the extraordinary in the withholding of the bridegroom's name, as well as the absence of appropriate joy from her own demeanor, aroused neighborhood expectation to the highest pitch.

The days went on apace while Lide Ann toiled to perfect the details of the wedding. On Tuesday evening, after a last look at the overflowing pantry shelves, she went out to the big apple-trees which shaded the back porch. As she looked at its peaceful silence, slow tears beginning to course down her cheeks, she became aware of a form in the garden making its way towards her. She started up, but before she could speak Victor Trimmer was beside her.

"I come up to see about the weddin' to-morrow," he began, awkwardly; then, seeing her wince, he came closer, and his voice took on a more earnest tone. "Say, Lide Ann, you don't need to get married that way. I know the reason you're doin' it and all, and I think you're the best woman that ever breathed to do so much for Sarah Belle, but wouldn't you rather have a livin' husband?" He paused. Then, as he met her eyes, full of wonder, he went on hastily: "Take me, Lide Ann. I'm not very smart, but I can run the farm for you and I'll be just as good to you as I know how."

Her face had undergone a hundred changes while he spoke; it was suffused with crimson now, but her eyes shone softly.

"You've a good heart, Victor," she said, laying her hand on his; "but that couldn't be, you know; I'm older 'n you, and then, there's Sarah Belle!"

"I know," he said, eagerly, "but I'll be gettin' older every day, and if I raise a beard I'll look every mite as old as you. There ain't but a year's difference, anyhow; and I'll just help you take care of Sarah Belle."

"Don't decide now for good and all," he urged, taking refuge in delay. "Think it over to-night; I'll come up early in the morning, and if you can make up your mind to have me, we'll fix it up then. Nobody but us knows how you'd planned to do, and if I'll do, Lide Ann, nobody ever needs to know but what we planned and arranged it long ago."

He strode off into the darkness and she sank weakly back in the swing. Something new and wonderful was throbbing at her temples and swelling in her throat. All her starved, suppressed womanhood—that womanhood which had been crushed as a matter of course in her devotion to her sister—was now awake and crying for its rightful heritage of love. Undreamed-of kisses trembled at her lips; unknown voices clamored in her heart; unborn possibilities stirred her soul, until, half in terror, half in fierce joy, she fled into the house.

Sarah Belle was up with the dawn. "We'll take some flowers down to the grave," she said, and Lide Ann followed her through the garden. The brisk wind blew her flimsy draperies as she watched the roses scatter over the sodden mound, and the chill of the raw day seemed to penetrate to her very heart as she noted, in the distance, the first carry-all of her neighbors coming up the hill. She was trying to stifle the groans which forced their way out, at thought of the nearing ordeal, when Victor Trimmer made his quick way from the house and stopped beside her.

His pleading eyes brought back the throbbing to her throat, and she clenched her brown hands tensely, but Sarah Belle, laughing delightedly, dropped her flowers and ran to them. "Isn't she a lovely bride?" she queried, and, moved by sudden inspiration, Victor put his arm around her. "I think she's the loveliest ever seen," he said, earnestly, "and I want her to be my bride instead of a dead man's. She won't do it for fear you'd fret, Sarah Belle; but you tell her to yes—maybe she will for you—and then I'll be your brother."

Sarah Belle drew back, her blue eyes dancing brightly from one to the other, then she clasped her hands.

"That would be the very nicest thing ever heard of," she cried. "I always wanted a big brother! And we'll have a really weddin' instead of just a make-believe, picture one! Say yes, Lide Ann, you'll do it for your Sarah Belle!"

Lide Ann looked at her, then at Victor. Into her patient eyes leaped the light of a glowing hope. Without a word she held out her hands and was folded in his protecting embrace just as the first party of her wedding guests came up the pathway.

Cook seems to be making good and Peary continues making fuss. A writer has suggested that the fault is not a natural one, but that it is due to the explorer's environment—Peary made his dash for the pole in the Roosevelt.

President Taft praises the Payne tariff bill. He admits that it has some defects, but says it would be an ideal law if the manufacturers had not been permitted to write the woollen schedules and if the duty on a great many other articles had been lowered instead of raised. Someone has said that hell would make a good winter resort if it had plenty of water and good society.

Minnesota mourns the loss of her popular governor, John A. Johnson, who died this week as the result of an operation. His death is a distinct loss to his state and to the nation. Had he lived, his nomination for president in 1912, at the hands of the democratic party, was almost inevitable, and his strong character and personal popularity would have made him a strong candidate. But it was not to be so. The grave has closed over his hopes and aspirations, and an entire country weeps at the bier of an honored son and a trusted official.

Five years ago Pennsylvania completed her state capital at a cost of $4,000,000. That sum was appropriated by the legislature. The question of furnishing the building was not considered by the legislature, and that was farmed out among the faithful. When the furnishings had been completed it was discovered that they had cost the state the tidy sum of $9,000,000. An investigation was made, and it was shown that $6,000,000 was absolutely thrown away, squandered, gone into the capacious pockets of the grafters. Yet, notwithstanding this stupendous fraud and a knowledge as to who were the perpetrators, not a single grafter has donned prison garb. This condition was made possible by the existence of the Quay machine, of which New Mexico has such a distinguished type to represent her in the United States congress. The charge that this territory is an appanage of Pennsylvania seems well founded from the manner in which we cling to "Bull." Or, perhaps, some of that easy $6,000,000 was poured into New Mexico to make possible the election of one of Quay's lieutenants.

Notice to Stockholders.

T. B. COOKERLY,

ADDITIONAL LOCAL.

J. M. Rice was a visitor from Parsons yesterday.

A swell line of ladies' hats and suits are on display at Ziegler Brothers.

The frost is on the punkin' and the corn is in the shock—or it ought to be.

The walls of Dr. Paden's drug store and hospital are mounting skyward. The material used is a brick tiling. S. A. Neid, assisted by a mason from El Paso, is erecting the walls, while Harry Little is in charge of the framework, with sufficient mechanical help to keep pace with the masonry work.

Notice Ziegler Bros. ad. in this issue. They invite you to attend their Opening. Are you going?

John P. Murray, president of the Murray-Slease Mining company, was in the city yesterday. Mr. Murray says the new Lincoln county boundary line almost touches his company's property, and practically all his traffic comes this way. The company has plenty of water and fuel and is developing a large body of copper and silver ore.

NOTICE.

It appearing that a certified copy of the order of this board, made on the 7th day of July 1909 calling an election to be held on the 17th day of August 1909, on the proposition to remove the county seat to Carrizozo in said county has been published for four consecutive weeks immediately prior to such election in the CARRIZOZO NEWS, a newspaper of general circulation published in said county, and by hand bills posted up at three of the most public places in each precinct at least four weeks prior to said election, held on the 17th day of August 1909.

And it further appearing that the returns of said election held in said Lincoln county, pursuant to said order aforesaid, on the 17th day of August 1909.

The Board, acting as a board of canvassers, duly proceeded to carefully examine the poll books and certificates of each precinct in said county, and continued in session for the purpose of such examination, canvass and ascertainment continuously.

That said board having duly canvassed and ascertained the results of said election as shown by the face of said returns from the voting precincts of the county upon the question whether the county seat should be removed from Lincoln to Carrizozo in said county, do find as the result of said canvass and ascertainment that 900 votes were cast for Carrizozo, and 613 for Lincoln, and that the total number of votes cast upon the proposition was 1,513.—a majority of 287 of the vote—cast being for the removal of the county seat to Carrizozo. It is therefore considered, ordered and declared by the Board of County Commissioners that Carrizozo is the county seat of the county of Lincoln, territory of New Mexico.

Women Suffer Agonies from Diseased Kidneys

And Most Women Do This Not Knowing the Real Cause of their Condition

These poor, suffering women have been led to believe that their misery of mind and body is entirely due to "ills of their sex." Usually the kidneys and bladder are responsible—or largely so. And in such cases, the kidneys and bladder are the organs, that need and must have attention.

Those torturing, enervating sick headaches, dragging pains in back, groin and limbs, bloating and swelling of the extremities, extreme nervousness or hysteria, listlessness and constant tired, worn-out feeling—are almost certain symptoms of disordered and diseased kidneys, bladder and liver.

DeWitt's Kidney and Bladder Pills have, in thousands of cases, been demonstrated as remarkably beneficial in all such conditions of female organism—affording the most prompt relief and permanent benefit.

As an illustration of what these Pills will do, Mrs. P. M. Bray of Columbus, Ga., writes that she was very ill with kidney trouble, and that she is now well—and that these Pills are what cured her.

They are very pleasant to take, and can in no case, produce any deleterious effects upon the system—as syrupy, alcoholic, liquid preparations are apt to do.

E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago, Ill., want every man and woman who have the least suspicion that they are afflicted with kidney and bladder diseases to at once write them, and a trial box of these Pills will be sent free by return mail post-paid. Do it to-day.

WELCH & TITSWORTH.

CAPITAN.

The first court in Carrizozo will be a hummer.

Judge Hewitt is down today from White Oaks.

The blind goddess of Justice will rule here soon.

The song of the saw and hammer makes pleasant music.

Jacob Ziegler made a business trip to Oscuro the first of this week.

Frank Crumb has sold his ranch above White Oaks, also his cattle, to Lin Branum.

By the time another term of court is held in this county Carrizozo should have a new temple of justice.

John J. McCourt and family, of El Paso, have spent the past week in Carrizozo, on a visit with relatives.

Ed. Kelly and George Johnson left last week for the Mogollon mountains, in search of recreation and bear.

The Gurney residence, on the Lacey addition north of town, was finished this week and is now ready for occupancy.

W. S. Kirby, night watchman for the railroad company, has been transferred to Douglas, Arizona. A man by the name of Cook has taken Mr. Kirby's place as watchman.

George Eaker and Joseph Cochran were down from Nogal yesterday, with a load of apples from the old Slane orchard.

W. M. Ferguson of the Mesa spent several days in Carrizozo last week on business. He stated that the Mesa farmers are looking forward to a big harvest.

Roy Gumm, an old-time Lincoln county boy, was up from Salinas Tuesday. Roy is now in the employ of the railroad company, in the capacity of time keeper.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Crumb of White Oaks left yesterday for Douglas, Arizona where they will in future reside. The News regrets to see these old friends leave, but wishes them the best of everything in their new home.

W. H. Gleason was up from Alamogordo this week. Mr. Gleason is interested in the Carrizozo Bar and owns some valuable real estate in the town.

Walker Hyde went to Tularosa Monday to accompany his family home. Mrs. Hyde and children have been visiting relatives at Tularosa the past two weeks.

Mrs. W. C. McDonald returned this week from Denver, where she accompanied her daughter, Miss Frances, who went to reenter Wolfe Hall seminary in that city.

The drawing of the grand and petit jurors for the fall term of court in Lincoln county will take place at Alamogordo on the second day of October.

H. E. Keller was down from the Mesa Monday with a load of vegetables. He had some very fine celery, the first of the local product to reach this market.

Attorney W. F. A. Gierke came over from Lincoln Thursday and will return Monday. With regard to the removal of the county seat, he reports "everything quiet on the Potomac."

Miss Cherille Wells, of White Oaks, has been engaged by the directors of District No. 5 to teach their school this fall. This district is on the Ruidoso above Glencoe.

A new postoffice has been established at Murray, in Socorro county. This postoffice is located at the mining camp in the Little Burros, about twenty-five miles west of Oscuro, this county.

Cliff Hulbert was up from the east end of the county this week with a load of wet goods—pure apple cider. He informed us that a severe hail storm visited Picacho last Sunday week, doing great damage to fruit, alfalfa and other crops.

Miss Edith Wells has accepted a position in the San Patricio school, on lower Ruidoso. Miss Edith has been a student at the Territorial Normal University for several terms past, preparing for the profession of teaching.

Geo. Johnson, formerly a clerk at the Trading Company's store, returned from Albuquerque last week. It is rumored that he intends forming a partnership with W. E. Winfield and adding a meat shop to the grocery store.

William Kahler, Sr., is chief of the Outlook's editorial staff, having gotten astride the tripod this week. If the old veteran is as handy with the pen as he was with the sword in the 60's, he should have no difficulty in maintaining the usual standard of the Outlook.

Lee Singleton, one of the Bar W outfit, was thrown from his horse last Sunday morning, the fall breaking his right leg about three inches above the ankle. He was alone at the time of the accident, but managed to crawl a couple of miles to the Grumbles ranch. The following morning he was conveyed to the Bar W ranch, where the broken leg was set and dressed. It will probably be several months before he is able to take his place in the round-up.

Some day one of these French duels will hurt somebody.

It is impossible to keep a good river down when its name is Kaw.

It is not a deadly insult just at present to invite a man to jump into the lake.

Business will now take a fresh start and keep up without a break.

Summer is beginning to get into its regular stride.

It is pleasant to know that the British royal family is fond of Ambassador Reid's tea and marmalade.

Virginia still has its duels, and, unfortunately, they are not of the French kind. One of the fighters, if not both, generally gets killed.

We have now indoor lawn parties and indoor baseball. Yet doctors told us not long ago that indoors was about to be abolished.

Thirteen New York teachers secured marriage licenses on the first day of vacation. Perhaps they felt that they must have somebody to boss.

There is a wild rumor afloat to the effect that Abdul Hamid may emigrate to the United States. Wouldn't he be a winner on the Chautauqua circuit?

To deplore the decline of college Greek is to talk Greek to most of the students who have not yet "become convinced" of the value of hard study.

It used to be that a man was judged by the company he kept. Now he is judged rather by the company in which he happens to be a stockholder.

Wealth and luxury too often weaken the moral fiber. Sometimes they are the test of manhood—a test, by the way, to which many would like to be subjected.

It is small wonder that the King of Serbia had a fit. With the state of affairs there it wouldn't be surprising to have the whole kingdom throwing them.

Chicago experts have discovered a disease called "mythomania," in other quarters it is called plain lying, but that does not sound half as interesting or scientific.

Every time Abdul Hamid felt his throne totter he would send out a few millions to be placed on deposit in some foreign bank. It is interesting to note that he selected banks in countries where the people rule.

Humanitarians now in London show how to slaughter animals painlessly. Will they also kindly demonstrate a good method of making tough beef-steak susceptible of mastication by the jaws of the plain people?

A boy in Detroit filled his mouth with kerosene and then let it fall in drops on a lighted match to see what would happen. This boy was really an altruist. The majority of small boys enjoy such experiments at some other one's expense. Incidentally, what did happen satisfied his curiosity for all time.

LONDON JEWEL MAD

Fashionable Women Ablaze with Precious Stones.

More Gems Worn Than Ever Before—Striking Egyptian Ornaments of a Boston Woman Who Married a British M. P.

London.—Never before was elaborate and beautiful jewelry so much worn by English women as it is this season in London. The rich English woman has always been ablaze with diamonds on certain occasions such as court functions and gala nights at the opera, etc., but hitherto she has not worn a diamond tiara at a small dinner and has been guiltless of any gems in the daytime. More than that she has smiled in scornful fashion at the love her American sisters have for wearing chains, rings and pins of precious stones before the sun has set.

This season, however, she has changed her ideas. Jewelry in the daytime is in good form and diamond tiaras are worn at the smallest evening affairs. Even dresses are delicately traced with jewels. Moonstones, topazes and amethysts are mingled with crystals and sewn upon net to outline a corsage or border a tunic. When a coronal of diamonds, a collar of the same stones with large blocks of emeralds and rubies inset and a rope of pearls are added to this toilet the effect is dazzling.

Tiaras are now so heavy and broad as to suggest that beauty of design is no longer a requisite; only size and brilliancy of stones seem to matter.

Women who do not wear tiaras because they are unbecoming to small, delicate faces make up the deficiency with high back combs studded with diamonds and side combs and hair ornaments to match. It is not uncommon to see a woman tiaraless yet with her coiffure ablaze with precious stones.

One beauty of the season has dressed her hair with a ribbon of diamonds woven in and out among the Greuze curls she affects. The sleeves of her ball gown were a treliswork of diamonds and a high dog collar of the same stones encircled her throat.

A fashionable bride attracted attention even in that bejewelled assemblage, for she displayed a long chain of diamonds terminating in a diamond-gemmed purse, which she absolutely kicked with her feet as she promenaded the grounds.

At garden parties whenever brief glimpses of the sun have permitted the use of parasols it has been seen that jewelled handles are fashionable. Fans, too, are wrought with precious stones, and on the ankles of silken hose tiny gems glitter as the centers of embroidered flowers.

Ear pendants are tremendously popular. The fact that they do away with the old fashioned ear piercing and yet permit the adorning of ears with gems has made them the rag

The most unusual jewelry this season has been the old or imitation old Egyptian, Persian, Spanish and Italian ornaments. The clinging empire and directoire gowns trimmed with oriental embroideries in dull tints have brought this style of ornament into vogue.

Diadems of colored mother of pearl with pearl points, dull gold empire wreaths and oval plaque pendants of bright gold with blue or green scarabs in the center and pearls at the edges, have been much worn, while silver combs and brooches from old Spanish and Italian models with settings of moonstones, garnets, pearls and amethysts have also been fashionable.

The finest specimens of Egyptian jewelry seen lately are owned by a Boston woman who married an English M. P. As he was interested himself in the Egyptian question some officials of that country as a compliment to him presented his wife with some exquisite examples of native jewelry. She put them carefully away as being far too garish. This season she took them out and has worn them with long, clinging gowns of dull shades, which set off the ornate quality of the work.

MAN THROWN INTO A FIERY FURNACE

WATCHMAN IMPRISONED IN FIRE
BOX OF STEAM SHOVEL BY THREE FIENDS.

DRAGS SELF TO WHISTLE CORD

Workmen Hear Shriek Appeal for Help and Drag Unfortunate from Smoldering Coals as He Loses Consciousness.

Laporte, Ind.—Aroused from unconsciousness by the heat of the smoldering fire on which his practically lifeless body had been thrown, Gus Wiseman, watchman at the steam shovel camp of an electric line near Laporte
the other night found himself imprisoned in the fire box of the steam shovel.

Writhing in pain, which augmented
the spark of strength left in his body, he dragged himself to the door of the box, opened it, grasped the cord to the whistle of the engine and as he

Was Shoved Through the Entrance to the Furnace.

lapsed back into unconsciousness sounded blast after blast, which finally brought him assistance.

According to Wiseman's story, he was on watch about midnight, when he was accosted by two whites and a negro. The white men were well dressed, but apparently under the influence of liquor.

After greeting him, one of the white men said:

"We want some whisky. Come on with that bottle."

"I haven't any," replied the watchman.

"You're a liar!" shouted the stranger.

"Wiseman jumped to his feet. As he did so he felt a sickening blow from behind. He remembers little of what happened then. Although practically unconscious, he has a dim recollection of hearing one of the men say:

"Well, he's dead, and you're in for it just as much as we are. The thing to do is to get rid of his body."

He then went into a state of coma.
To hide all traces of the crime, the men determined to burn the body.
The door of the fire box was opened and the inanimate form of the watchman was shoved through the entrance to the furnace.

The fire had been banked and the coals were merely smoldering. How long he remained there he does not know.

When he began to regain his senses his clothing was on fire. His head was bursting with pain, but summoning all his energies he reached the door.

Just outside the fire box hung the cord to the steam shovel whistle. He remembered the camp of track workmen a quarter of a mile away. He knew a blast from the whistle would tell them that all was not well at the steam shovel and would bring them post haste.

He thrust his arm through the box and his hand clasped the cord. Just as his brain again became dark he sounded his blast of appeal.

The workmen heard his call and hurried to the steam shovel. A hurried inspection failed to reveal his whereabouts. Finally the arm still grasping the rope was seen.

The man was dragged from the furnace, but for an hour they could secure no coherent account of his experiences.

RATTLER THRUST HIS FANGS IN GIRL'S ARM

BRAVELY HEADS OFF POISON
WITH TWISTED KERCHIEF,
THUS SAVING HER LIFE.

La Porte, Pa.—Pretty 17-year-old Sadie Heively is rapidly recovering from the effects of a rattlesnake's bite received while she and a friend, Miss Harriet Molineux, were hunting wild flowers in the woods near Hillsgrove.
The fact that she is alive is due to her bravery in choking the wound into harmlessness.

The two girls were deep in the woods, a mile from home, when they were startled by the unmistakable whirr of a rattlesnake almost under their feet. Springing back, they searched about until they found a couple of fallen limbs that could be used as clubs and then made search for the snake. He was found coiled under a huge fern and the girls at once attacked and killed him.

Having no idea of further danger,
Miss Heively threw down her club and, seeing some rhododendron blossoms near by, tried to bend down some branches so that she could get them. She had hardly raised her hand when there was another angry whirr and a second big rattlesnake, fully four feet long, slid from a fork of the rhododendron and coiled about her arms. Shrieking, the girl tried to throw off the snake, when it struck and sunk its fangs into her forearm. It then relaxed its coils and darted away.

When Miss Molineux rushed to her friend's assistance, she found the girl bravely knotting a handkerchief about the arm above the wound. When the handkerchief was securely tied the girls twisted a stick under it with all their strength, Miss Heively insisting that this should be done in spite of the torture it gave her. When the tourniquet was completed they hurried to Hillsgrove, a mile away, where medical aid was secured, the physician telling Miss Heively that her bravery had saved her life.

Unite to Fight the White Plague.
Confirming the recent statement of Dr. William Osler that the anti-tuberculosis campaign is no longer a battle for the doctors only, the Na-

Prevention of Tuberculosis issues a statement in which it is shown that 45 per cent. of those enlisted in the white plague war are laymen.

Strictly After Nature.
A public building was in course of erection in one of the western towns of Scotland, in front of which a bust of The Bruce was being carved. A well-known ballie halted opposite the sculptor one day and called out:
"I say, sculptor, d'ye no think ye hae that beard inclining a wee thing to the left?"
"Man, ballie," said the sculptor,
"d'ye no see the win's blawin' up the street the noo?"—Tid-Bits.

ON FOOD
The Right Foundation of Health.

Proper food is the foundation of health. People can eat improper food for a time until there is a sudden collapse of the digestive organs, then all kinds of trouble follows.

The proper way out of the difficulty is to shift to the pure, scientific food, Grape-Nuts, for it rebuilds from the foundation up. A New Hampshire woman says:

"Last summer I was suddenly taken with indigestion and severe stomach trouble and could not eat food without great pain, my stomach was so sore I could hardly move about. This kept up until I was so miserable life was not worth living.

"Then a friend finally, after much argument, induced me to quit my former diet and try Grape-Nuts.

"Although I had but little faith I commenced to use it, and great was my surprise to find that I could eat it without the usual pain and distress in my stomach.

"So I kept on using Grape-Nuts and soon a marked improvement was shown, for my stomach was performing its regular work in a normal way without pain or distress.

"Very soon the yellow coating disappeared from my tongue, the dull, heavy feeling in my head disappeared, and my mind felt light and clear; the languid, tired feeling left, and altogether I felt as if I had been rebuilt.
Strength and weight came back rapidly and I went back to my work with renewed ambition.

"To-day I am a new woman in mind as well as body, and I owe it all to this natural food, Grape-Nuts."

"There's a Reason."

Look in pkgs. for the famous little book, "The Road to Wellville."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

A new clerk in the statistical department asked the meaning of "deficit." "A deficit," answered Mac, "is what you've got when you haven't got as much as if you just hadn't nothing."

THE TERRITORIAL FAIR.

Albuquerque, N. M.
September 21, 1909.

Never in the history of New Mexico has there been such widespread interest in the annual fair as is being shown this year. Even last year when the National Irrigation Congress gathered here there was no such unanimous spirit of interest and co-operation as is now apparent in the flood of correspondence coming into the Secretary's office each day. It comes from all sections of the territory. It tells of prosperous conditions and good crops, and promises large exhibits and big crowds for the fair.

The coming of President Taft during the fair week has had its effect in arousing interest. It is not unlikely that the President will take the occasion to tell the people of New Mexico what he thinks of statehood, and this possibility alone is enough to make this occasion of keenest interest.

But aside from this there has never been a more promising list of sports than is offered or a better outlook for extensive exhibits. The fair this year will have two full companies of United States Cavalry, brought as a special escort for President Taft, five full days of splendid racing with large purses and the fastest line of horses ever attracted to New Mexico. Pushball, most exciting of latter day sports, will be introduced for the first time in New Mexico. There will be the usual baseball tournament, composed strictly of home teams, each team backed by its corps of faithful fans; and last but not least, the great old Nat Reiss Carnival company, the biggest amusement institution of its kind in the world.

This list does not include such special attractions as the airship which will make three flights over the city daily, the last being at night, when a huge search-light traces the ship as it sails through the air. In a word, the fair this year is going the old time successes several better. It is going to furnish amusement and entertainment for thousands, and the present indications are that the whole territory will be here.

They lead, others follow, in the new things for fall wear.—Ziegler Bros.
