The Race Issue

Just what is the object of attempting to inject the race issue, so called, into the present campaign, is difficult to determine, and yet certain journals of the state are attempting to do that very thing. When is the time coming when the question of a man's nationality is going to be lost sight of in the light of his fitness and ability? Is it true that because a man is of Spanish descent and is of that race known in this state as a Spanish-American, he must therefore be unconsidered as a fit candidate for any office and the matter of his nationality shall become an issue in the campaign? So long as certain politicians and certain newspapers of New Mexico continue to carry on this policy, just so long will the state be held back and her progress curtailed.

There is no valid cause for a distinction between the American and the Spanish-American in this state, as all are citizens of the great commonwealth, and have at heart the well being of all the people in it. The one thought and the one qualification should be, in the selection of a candidate, his fitness and his ability.

The thought of race should never be brought into the contest, and the men and the journals who attempt to introduce it should be blacklisted by the voters. It is a strange condition of affairs when a party should be condemned because it puts on the ticket a candidate who bears the name indicating the Spanish origin, and regardless of his qualifications, he must be fought for this reason. The time has come when we should place the man before the nationality, and the present campaign should have no other issue in it than the fitness of the different candidates for the positions to which they have been nominated.

In bringing into the campaign this question of nationality, those who are doing so are guilty of unpatriotic and un-American action. "A man's a man for a' that," and all that should be thought in relation to blood, is whether it is the blood of a true and tried and patriotic citizen. We did not stop to think of the nationality of the men who went into the late contest when this nation was in the throes of war, and the roll of those who responded shows the patriotism and the true heartedness of those who bear the Spanish-American name. If they were willing to risk their lives in battle for the defense of Old Glory, they are worthy of recognition in the political field, without thought as to their names, whether they indicate the Spanish or American ancestry.

B. C. Hernandez was placed on the Republican ticket for the reason that he is a true hearted American citizen, and has the respect, confidence and regard of the people of the state. He is fully equipped for the position from every standpoint, and that is the only thing to be regarded by those who believe in the principles of the Republican party, and want to uphold its tenets, and see it again in power. These are absolutely no cause for the injection, at the present time, or any other time, of the so-called race issue. It is not here. It should never be here. This is a question of men and an issue of principles, not of nationalities. Those who attempt to introduce the question of race into the present contest should be wholly disregarded, and relegated to the class of the unpatriotic and un-American.

One of the most important departments of our state government is that of the corporation commission. It deals with those questions which touch so closely the relationship of the people and the great economic bodies which so largely control our affairs. We want men on this important board who are capable, honest and experienced. Such a man is presented to the people of the state in the person of Hugh H. Williams, present member of the board, and a candidate on the Republican ticket for re-election. All of those qualities demanded have been shown by Hugh Williams again and again, and he has faithfully and consistently acted in the capacity of member of this influential board. He is deserving of the support of the people of the state in the coming election. There is no valid reason for the breaking in of a new official for this place when it is so ably and efficiently filled by the present member.

ALBUQUERQUE RODEO WILL RIVAL FRONTIER DAY AT CHEYENNE.

The first annual celebration of the Albuquerque Rodeo, in connection with the New Mexico State Fair, October 5 to 10, has grown in number of participants and in general interest beyond the wildest expectations of the State Fair managers who organized it late in the summer as an added feature of interest for the Fair. When the Rodeo was announced about six weeks ago only a fair attendance of roping experts and rough riders was expected. But the applications for entry blanks have poured in on Secretary Tom Binkert of the State Fair Commission, until he has been swamped by the demand. More than 500 entry blanks have been sent out in answer to requests and it is now assured that many of the best ropers and riders in the west will take part in the Rodeo. This feature is a return to the old feature of frontier contests and sports which formed so attractive a feature of the fair years ago. This year contests will be held every afternoon in the fair grounds, including roping, bronco busting, cowboy and cowgirl races, relay racing, cowpony racing, tug of war, etc., with substantial daily cash prizes; all ending in the Frontier day celebration Saturday when the whole afternoon will be given over to the finals in which winners in the elimination contests will participate. First prizes in the several contests are $150, and ranging down to $25.00, $15.00 and $10.00. Horses will be returned free of charge from point of shipment to Albuquerque, making a round trip for one fare for both horse and rider from all points in the southwest. Two hundred Navajo Indians and a big bunch of Navajo horses, a troop and possibly two troops of United States cavalry from Fort Wingate and a troop of motion picture cowboy actors will make up the other features of the Rodeo. The state exposition commission's motion picture man will take a daily reel of the Rodeo events for use at the San Diego exposition. Entry blanks may be had on application to the Fair Commission at Albuquerque.

DETERMINED STAND MADE BY GERMANS AFTER RETREAT

Great Battle Is Impending On River Aisne, Second Only to That of the Marne in its Magnitude.

The following late war news is taken from this morning's Morning Journal:

The German and allied armies are again facing each other on a long, slightly curved line stretching from Noyon on the west, to the Argonne forest on the east, and thence across the Meuse to the southeast in the direction of the German fortress of Metz, a distance of nearly 200 miles.

Rear guard actions have been fought during the past two days, with the Germans disputing every inch of territory until their armies should again get into alignment to oppose the allies. All reports indicate that these actions have been severe, but they are considered of minor importance in comparison with the great battle of the Marne and the new battle which is now threatened.

Regarding the present operations the official statement issued by the French government is of the most meager character. General headquarters at the front has sent to Paris no new details of the late fighting and the Paris officials draw no inference, for publication at least, from the course of events in the battle which has lasted several days. It is stated, however, that the allies have not weakened on any position.

The British official press bureau quotes Russian official sources as authority for the statement that the rout of the Austrian army in Galicia is complete. The Austrians are estimated to have lost 250,000 men in killed and wounded, and 100,000 men and 400 guns captured. In this communication the failure of the German effort to save the Austrian army is noted, and the Germans are said to have lost many pieces of siege and other artillery.

The Russian general, Rennenkampf, who is conducting operations in East Prussia has recently found himself in a difficult position and has fallen back to Russian fortresses on the Russian frontier. The Germans under General Von Hindenburg, are reported to be following up their advantage, with the hope of dealing the Russians a heavy blow before they can be reinforced.

Sir Morris DeBunsen, recently British ambassador at Vienna, in a report dealing with the rupture of diplomatic relations with Austria, declares that Austria and Russia had about reached an agreement on the Austro-Serbian dispute, when the matter became one of discussion between Germany and Russia, and on July 31. Germany sent an ultimatum to St. Petersburg and Paris, following this quickly with a declaration of war on the two countries.

"A few days' delay," says the ambassador, "might in all probability have saved Europe from one of the greatest calamities in history."

The British submarine E-9 has reached Harwich after having torpedoed the German cruiser Hela of Heligoland. The cruiser went down, but most of her officers and crew were saved.

Son Leads Father to Prison

Many stories of physical heroism on the battlefields of Torreón, San Pedro and Zacatecas have come out of Mexico, but for splendid moral as well as physical courage, few have equalled the tale of Capt. P. Gonzales, a young officer attached to Gen. Fidel Avila's staff in Chihuahua City. Constitutional officers from Chihuahua brought the story to the border this week. Here it is: Last week Gen. Avila, military governor of Chihuahua, sent a detachment of constitutionalist soldiers under the command of Capt. Gonzales to the Cusiuhirachic mining district, west of the state capital. Gonzales had orders to capture a small band of filibusters, members of the group of federal guerillas led by the Quevedo brothers, who harassed western Chihuahua settlements some months ago. Remnants of the band still lingered in the mountains of the district and were preying on the inhabitants.

The flying column of constitutionalist cavalry lost no time. Ten days ago they encountered the freebooters near Cusi and captured nine of them. The captain's dreams of promotion for the successful ending of his mission were changed suddenly to horror when he found that among the nine prisoners was his father. The death penalty, he knew, faced all the captives and he was placed in the terrible predicament of leading his own father to execution.

Loyal to his duty, however, he escorted the prisoners to Chihuahua City, where they were placed in the penitentiary to wait until they should be court-martialed. Capt. Gonzales went to Gen. Avila's headquarters, the state palace in Chihuahua, and reported his task completed.

Then he told Gen. Avila that his father was among the prisoners he had brought to the capital. He did not say that, had he cared to forget his duty, he could have

"accidentally" lost his father on the road and given him an opportunity to escape. According to the officers, who tell the story, the youthful officer then made this request of General Avila:

"I know the punishment my father will receive and he is brave enough to face it. I could not see him executed. I should feel that I were his murderer. If you order his execution, I ask you this favor:

"When you place my father against the wall before a firing squad, please let me stand directly behind him, so that the bullets which take his life will also take mine." Then he saluted and left the room.

Villa was not in Chihuahua at the time, but Gen. Avila got in touch with him immediately by telegraph and laid the story before him. The northern leader answered the young officer's request by pardoning his father and enlisting him to the northern division. Captain Gonzales will soon be wearing a major's stripes, it is said.

The View Changed

With a full column of editorial verbiage the Albuquerque Evening Herald throws off its mask of cocked-sureness anent the election of one Sr. Fergusson, and admits out and out that the said gentleman has not much of a show to be elected at the fall elections.

How different from the stand they took at first, and how brutally, painfully, frank is their position.

They laugh about the decline of the Republican majority, but they have given up the hope of securing any majority at all and see only defeat for their candidate, of whom they said not so long ago would sweep the state like a new broom.

Wise ones. They have seen the handwriting on the wall and in agonizing appeals are crying for their party voters to save the day if they can. But they hold forth no ray of hope around which the Democrats may rally, and themselves wail that Mr. Hernandez will be elected in spite of all that they can do.

How great are the mighty fallen!

From off that high porch of self-compliance they have toppled to a groveling position of weak apology, and are trying to blame the almost certain defeat that stares them in the face onto something, oh, just anything, except the fact that New Mexico is a Republican state, and this year is a Republican year, and the further fact that their candidate is not nearly as popular as they have been trying to lead us to believe.

Poor old Democrats! As long as the game is in their favor they are very boastful, but when they see the tide turning they lose all zest for the fight and send up that oft-heard plaintive wail, "All is lost! All is lost!" And Ben just smiles on serenely.

A False Accusation

The Albuquerque Morning Journal corresponding to the 13th of the present month, comes with one of the vilest stories ever invented to defame the character of an honest man, by which article it tries to expose Mr. B. C. Hernandez as an incompetent, untrustworthy man for the position to which he was nominated and for which he will make the race in the coming election. By this the Journal tried to intimidate Mr. Hernandez into resigning his nomination. Further on the Journal goes to say that if Mr. Hernandez does not resign then Mr. Ely must resign the chairmanship of the Republican State Central Committee, to which this gentleman has answered in the most unquestionable terms that he does not believe a word of what they say and therefore does not intend to resign. This gives us an intimation that the Morning Journal is trying to assume the dictatorship of the politics of this state. On the other hand it seems that it has very easily forgotten that it was not very long ago that it had to pay a very nice little round sum as indemnity for a libelous article which it published against another gentleman. It seems that the lesson did not have its proper effect, and it is very likely, according to appearances, that it will not have very far to go before the laws of the state of New Mexico will again be brought to bear upon it.

The Albuquerque Morning Journal has nothing more against Mr. Hernandez than that he is a Spanish-American, and seeing that this is not enough to curtail the popularity and prominence of the candidate it goes to work and makes up a futile story by which means it intends to work the sentiment of the people against him. It also denounces Mr. Ely in its issue of the 16th for not complying with its demand to resign in case its gastric story did not have this effect upon the candidate. The Morning Journal by this time has acquired a reputation for meddling with everybody's business except its own.

May Sue Journal for Libel

According to newspaper comments libel proceedings will be brought against the Albuquerque Morning Journal by B. C. Hernandez and indictments for criminal libel sought in every county in which the paper circulates. State Chairman Ely, State Senator E. C. Crampton and Attorney Reed Holloman, retained by Hernandez, were conferring in Albuquerque yesterday. Asked about the report that an indictment had already been framed for submission to the Santa Fe and Rio Arriba county grand juries, none of the gentlemen would commit himself. "It is not a case for newspaper conversation," said Mr. Ely. "I know, however, that the charges against Hernandez are without foundation and malicious. I am convinced they are also defamatory. The case calls for energetic, well-considered legal action."

BENIGNO C. HERNANDEZ

Republican Candidate for Congress Will Make a Good Representative.

Benigno C. Hernandez is a native of New Mexico, and having spent his life in the state, understands its history and its needs. He was born at the quaint old town of Taos, February 13, 1862, the son of Juan Jose and Manuela C. Hernandez.

The subject of this sketch gained his education at private schools of his native town, and on his graduation from school, entered one of the leading mercantile institutions of Taos, remaining there until 1889, when he moved to Ojo Caliente, Taos county, and engaged in business for himself.

He remained at this place until 1895 when he went to Lumberton in Rio Arriba county and engaged in mercantile business. He acted as probate clerk for the county, until January 1905. He served as sheriff of the county of Rio Arriba during the years 1905 and 1906.

From 1909 to 1911 he was treasurer and ex-officio collector for the county. During the time he was engaged in the public service, he was also engaged in the mercantile business as a member of the Amador Mercantile company at Tierra Amarilla, and is at the present time a member of that firm.

Recognizing his sterling qualities and his ability as a public official, the national administration appointed him to the position of receiver of public monies at the United States land office, with quarters at Santa Fe. This position he held from August 1, 1912, to March 1, 1914, when he resigned his position, as the administration had changed and not being in sympathy with it, he felt it to be his duty to resign, returning to his home and entering again actively into the mercantile business. Mr. Hernandez was a delegate to the Republican national convention at Chicago in June, 1912.

Honorable, and honored by all who know him best, Benigno C. Hernandez is sure to get the support of the thinking voters of the state. His method of conducting the office of receiver in the land office won him the respect and confidence of all with whom he was brought in contact. He will be a worthy representative of the people of New Mexico in the United States congress.

The Reopening of Schools

The reopening of schools has arrived.

The change from outdoor play to confinement in the school-room, the complete readjustment of daily life from vacation freedom to school routine naturally affects the physical condition of some children and possibly leaves them less able to resist. Colds and sore throats are not uncommon in the fall months. The thoughtless parent will disregard these symptoms and continue the child in school, whereas a day's rest might avoid a greater danger.

These little regarded colds and inflamed throats are too often the preliminary signs of other diseases. If this is the case the ailing child becomes the center of infection for the school. If it is only a cold or sore throat and there should be children in the preliminary stages of these diseases at the school, the weakened child is just in the proper condition to contract the malady.

While the desire of parents to have their children put in as many full days at school as possible is a most commendable one, it is both dangerous and unprofitable to take any chances of long illness with contagious diseases in order to avoid possibly a few days' absence during a minor ailment.

It is no doubt true that the spread of many contagious diseases in public schools could be avoided if the parents of children in the public schools could be led to see these matters in their true light and take the proper precautions.

HUGH WILLIAMS

Republican Candidate for Corporation Commissioner
Has Good Record

We all of us remember the tales of the boyhood of those who have been candidates for office, and those stories have stayed with us in the after years. We have not forgotten the nooks of long ago which told of the bitter struggle of Lincoln, the rail-splitter; of Garfield, the canal driver, and the stories of the early efforts of so many of our public men, battling onward in the world against the awful odds which control everyone who is trying to make his way.

One of the candidates before the people of New Mexico has his pathetic, manly and appealing story of a boy's life and the outcome of a brave strife against bitter odds.

Hugh Williams, candidate for corporation commissioner on the Republican ticket, saw the harsh and distressing side of life in his early years and it required the sterling determination and manly courage, which is a part of his make-up, to win out, gaining, as he did, one promotion after another, from the corporations with which he was connected. The position which he holds he won because of his recognized fidelity and peculiar fitness. Now, after the experience in the position he is only better qualified than before to work out those problems which are for the good of the people of this great state, and he is heart and soul bound up in the desire to do just this thing. It is not necessary for the voters of New Mexico to speculate on what position Hugh Williams will take on certain questions and how he will stand on others, as his inventory has been made and by it he can be judged. His whole record is the record of a man of the people, and yet possessed of a strict sense of justice. With these qualities of nature and with the experience of the past three years in the position, is it not the part of wisdom and good citizenship to re-elect Williams to this position which he has so well and satisfactorily filled?

His opponent on the Democratic ticket is Adolph Hill, of Santa Fe. It is not possible to tell much of the qualifications of Mr. Hill for the position to which he aspires, as his life has been mainly spent in the holding of minor, or clerical, positions and he has not been fitted for those which require initiative or judgment, or of weighing questions on their merits. The work which he has been accustomed to has been that laid out by others who have been in superior positions and have been the ones to give the orders. He has simply obeyed, and recorded. His whole life has been in this atmosphere and that is not the kind that fits men to weigh matters on their own merits and to be a judge of the rights of men and measures. The corporation commission is one of the important departments of the state and as members of it we want men of experience and power of discernment and ability to weigh.

It is not necessary to speak in a lengthy manner of the candidate of the progressive party, as he will cut no figure in the campaign. His name is John McTeer and he is a resident of Deming, in the real estate business. Even if he were a man of peculiar fitness for the position and possessed of more than usual ability, the party with which he is associated precludes him from any real consideration. It is not a matter of very great moment who or what he is.

Hustlers in this and surroundings wanted. ## Honor Thy Father and Mother

Do you remember, when a child
Upon your mother's knee
How clear her voice rang as she sang
Some sweet old melody?
And how you nestled in her lap
And soon to dreamland crept,
While she, dear heart, watched tenderly,
As in her arms you slept?

Have you forgotten? Have you now?
The dearest girl on earth?
The girl that gave up her sweet home
To bring about your birth?
That dressed your wounds, tho' great or small,
And met you with a smile,
That treated you more like a God
Than like a little child?

Does mem'ry fail not to recall
That true but simple song:
"Honor thy father and mother,
That thy days may be long?"
Have you obeyed that little rule Laid down by Him supreme?
If not, now is the time for you
To that one pledge redeem.

Have you forgotten dear old dad
That worked so hard all day,
And yet at eve would find the time
To join with you in play?
Who fought your battles in the rough
And fought them all alone,
Who stood by with helping hand
'Til after you was grown?

Who knelt beside your mother dear,
And prayed for you each night,
Prayed that you'd help your fellow man
And always treat him right?
You loved them then, you love them now,
But cares have caused neglect;
Sit down tonight, drop them a line,
Regain your self-respect.

—Charley Durham in Waco Times-Herald

Those But Remain

Not all the tragedy is on the tent field, not all the suffering in the tens of thousands whose gaping wounds will throw them into a coma and unconsciousness.
No, there are other hearts which bleed and break; there are widows who have had their strong support snatched away and burdens too heavy for woman's hands thrown ruthlessly upon them. Weak hands, God bless them. The war tears hearts at home as well as hearts in the trenches.

And what of them? What of the hearts that are stunned and dumb? What of the widows, the orphans, that remain? When the awful war has spent its fury, when it has launched its last bayonet charge, its last shell;
tearing human beings into shreds,
what then? There are shops, whose wheels will stand still, the shops robbed of the hands and brains that made them prosperous, the squads of engineers who cannot work because two or three or more of their best members have bit the dust on the battlefield. What a paralysis is now due for the world of work, where-ever there are machines that turn out the products of brain working on matter, wherever there are empty shops, empty fields, empty laboratories and offices which wait for the dead to return.

But what of the hungry that must be fed, the lads that must be educated, the children that must be clothed, the sick that must be cared for, the dead that must be buried? Who is going to do that? Where shall we look for them? Where in the near years shall we look for the men of Europe? On the street?

No, they are not there. On the incoming ships and trains? No, they are not there. Would we look for them, we must go to the long rows of nameless dead and stumble along the trenches where the fine fellows have been dumped beneath the hurried spade. Look for them not in the land of living men; look for them not in the homes of happy toilers; look for them not where men meet to speak and pray.
They are not there. They are dead. Their ghosts may flit about and ask why it is they are killed by murderous war. But they will give no other sign.
They are gone. The widows and orphans remain. And for them the world is bitter, cruel, crushing. Let them weep. They will work enough, sacrifice enough, suffer enough, when the hours of weeping are past.
The heroes are those who remain.

RABAGO TO STAND TRIAL

Gen. Villa to Preside at Military Court to Pass on Case of Former Federal Leader.

General Antonio Rabago, military governor of the state of Chihuahua under the regime of Gen. Huerta, is now in prison at Chihuahua awaiting trial before a military court on the charge of instigating the assassination of Governor Abram Gonzales, governor under the Madero administration.

Rabago, according to Americans who arrived from Chihuahua, was brought to the state capital from Mexico City where he was captured following the occupation of the city by the constitutionalist forces. The former governor was met at the station by an angry mob of citizens and, it is said, was with difficulty saved from violence at the hands of those anxious to avenge the death of the martyred governor. A strong military guard accompanied the prisoner from the national capital and he was lodged in the penitentiary for safekeeping.

General Villa, it is said, will preside in person at the military court which will be convened for the trial of the former governor, against whom, it is claimed, there is a strong case.

The constitutionalist authorities claim to have direct evidence that Rabago gave the order to a certain Captain Limon of the federal army to take Gonzales to Mapula and execute him. Limon has since escaped from Mexico, leaving for Europe with Gen. Huerta's party. Rabago, it is understood, will make the defense that he was acting under orders from Mexico City and therefore cannot be held personally responsible for yielding obedience to his superior officers.

The murder of Governor Gonzalez was one of the most brutal of the long list of bloody deeds attributed to Huerta's minions. The governor was made prisoner in March, 1913, placed aboard a train and, while it was running at full speed, was thrown between the cars, his body being fearfully mangled. The train was stopped and it was found that the unfortunate man was still alive. A bullet from the pistol of one of the federal officers ended his sufferings. The officers, upon returning to Chihuahua, reported that Gonzalez had met death when he jumped from the train in an attempt to escape.

The body was buried by the roadside, but a year later it was removed to Chihuahua and buried with military honors, Gen. Villa and the chiefs of the division of the north acting as pall bearers. The engineer, conductor and brakeman of the train beneath which the unfortunate governor met his death fled to the border and upon reaching El Paso all three made sworn statements giving particulars of the tragedy.

General Rabago was one of the first of the federal officers sent by President Diaz to combat the insurrection then being organized by Francisco I. Madero. In the battle of Baucha, the first important fight of the revolution, he defeated Orozco's forces and was made a brigadier by Diaz for gallantry on the field. Following the overthrow of Madero, Rabago was made a general of division by Huerta, who later appointed him military governor of Chihuahua. For some time prior to the downfall of the Huerta government Rabago was military governor of the state of Michoacan.
