INDIAN NOTES ON THE STATUS OF THE PRESIDENT'S REORGANIZATION PROJECT

This issue is devoted entirely to significant PRP study project events as follows (Please refer to Volume I - 2 of January 20, 1978 for a description of PRP study projects):

Border Management

Border and customs management issues were addressed in a two-day session in Albuquerque, New Mexico, by policy-level officials of agencies of the federal government and representatives of Indian governments whose territory and peoples are divided by the U.S.-Mexico and U.S.-Canada boundaries. The first day's meeting was restricted to Indian participation only, including spokespersons from the Iroquois Confederacy (whose Mohawk and Oneida Nations' borders are shared with New York State, Ottawa and Ontario), the Chippewa Tribe of the Grand Portage Reservation (located at the northern tip of Lake Superior), and the Yaqui and Papago Tribes (whose peoples reside on both sides of the U.S.-Mexico border in Arizona and Sonora).

The Indian representatives identified such common areas of concern as issuance and recognition of visas and passports; accessibility to marketplaces for household necessities and to traditional sites for subsistence hunting, fishing, trapping and gathering; interference by procedure and practice in the observance of Indian religious ceremonies, as well as the transportation of people and sacred articles across the various borders; and overall governmental insensitivity to Indian national citizenry and its resultant separation of families and negative cultural and economic impact upon tribes and tribal life. These and other issues were detailed during the second day in a presentation to federal representatives of the President's Reorganization Project, U.S. Department of State, Southwest Border Regional Commission, U.S. Customs Service, U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service, U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration and the Bureau of Indian Affairs.

The meeting--the first of its kind ever coordinated on a national scale--grew out of a project of the American Indian Law Center and the Native American Rights Fund to monitor and respond to the investigations and proposals of the President's Reorganization Project, which is organizing the functions and service delivery systems of agencies of the federal government. Components of the PRP, border management and law enforcement, served as a catalyst for the meeting. Director of this component, Lloyd Bastian, shared his opinion and study papers and agreed to incorporate the Indian concerns into detailed decision papers and to coordinate future inter-agency meetings to follow-up on specific issues raised.

Kickapoo, Blackfeet, Cocopah, and other Indian people from the Northwest Coast, California and Alaska were invited to the meeting but could not attend due to lack of travel money. The Indian participants were conscious of the absence of the many Native peoples who are directly affected by the issues discussed. It was agreed among those present that the AILC would serve as a contact point for these Indian people and a clearinghouse for the gathering and distribution of information on Indian border issues and would keep all those interested advised of future meetings and developments.

Education

The Reorganization plan nears the hearing stage. The President is supporting a broad based new Department of Education that will include educational and other human services. Indian interests require a close monitoring of the agencies and functions to be moved into the new Department. We will develop an issue paper and get it out to all tribes in the near future.

Food and Nutrition

The Study Group is identifying issues. The group has been presented with Indian issues. Data supporting the issues is now being put together by the American Indian Law Center staff and when completed copies will be mailed to the PRP and to the tribes.

Local Economic Development

Study group is mailing out public questionnaires to solicit data and comments. Approximately 25-35 Indian tribes and organizations will be included in that mailing and recipients are encouraged to reply. Feel free to call the American Indian Law Center to discuss input. After this solicitation the study group will prepare an option paper to present to the President and this action will be monitored. Please send AILC copies of any comments made to the study group so we can stay abreast of developments.

Natural Resource

An option paper has been mailed to a variety of groups (including 35 tribes and Indian organizations) seeking: comments on problems experienced with the present federal system controlling resource development and protecting the environment; critical issues to be accounted for in any realignment of federal operations; reactions to six or seven proposed federal structures for facilitating resource development and protection of the environment. These comments are due the end of February and will be used to develop some alternative recommendations. Feel free to call the American Indian Law Center to discuss tribal input; please mail AILC a copy of any comments you may make.

Human Services

This study group will be soliciting comments this month on issues to be accounted for in any change in the federal delivery of human services programs and reactions to four or five potential alignments of government operations for health care, manpower development, and social services. At least 35 tribes and Indian organizations will be solicited for input. Call AILC to discuss input; mail copies of your comments, if you will, to help us stay abreast of things.

Editor's Note: This is the third issue of Indian Notes, if you need the first and second issue, let us know. Call or write for information on PRP projects, studies; for a discussion on comments on PRP mailouts; or for whatever -

Special Request

Office of Management and Budget Circular A-95 exempts tribes from the mandatory project notification and review system for State and local government but encourages tribes to give State and regional clearinghouses courtesy type notification (the idea was to facilitate coordination). As a check on this the circular also specified "Federal agencies will notify the appropriate State and areawide clearinghouses of any applications from Federally recognized Indian tribes upon their receipt." Supposedly this was to be a courtesy. In fact, this proviso has resulted in tribal applications being delayed and has assumed the proportions of a subtle approval. We can get this turned around if we can cite ten (10) examples. Please check if you have experienced this situation and tell us about it. We need specifics - federal program, date of application, dollar amount, receiving federal unit (including address), whether you notified a State clearinghouse, whether - if you know - the federal agency notified a State clearinghouse, when the receiving federal unit processed the application, whether the State clearinghouse got involved in this process. Send information to the American Indian Law Center at the above address. Thanks.

NATIONAL CLEARINGHOUSE FOR LEGAL SERVICES

Bill Janklow of Rosebud Legal Services recently informed the Clearinghouse of a significant development relating to the practice of BIA in enforcing the state financial responsibility laws on Indian reservations. The Rosebud project brought a suit against federal and state officials after correspondence on the subject was too ineffective in changing BIA's policies. The settlement of the suit was by letter, which makes it clear to all BIA policemen who work in the Aberdeen area that no longer are they allowed to give out the South Dakota Financial Responsibility forms to Indians within the confines of an Indian reservation.

Additional information available upon request from Abby Abinanti.
