Building project planned

By JOHN CHADWICK

A $4.1 million remodeling project on Johnson Gym is expected to start sometime within the next two years, said Van Dorn Hooker, University architect.

The project will add 3,000 lockers, a gymnastics area, and handball and squash courts, Hooker said.

He said the present facilities are not up to par with the facilities at universities of comparable student enrollment.

When the project is completed, Johnson Gym will provide a recreational facility for both faculty and staff.

Hooker said the $4.1 million will be financed with a University bond sale.

Once the building addition is completed, a second phase of construction will begin which Hooker calls "an intermediate floor."

The intermediate floor will move the basketball court up, creating another floor below it, Hooker said.

Other plans, Hooker said, include an addition to the stadium arena, remodeling of Carlisle Gym and an addition to the Basic Medical Science Building.

The estimated cost of adding 6,000 square feet to the Pit, Hooker said, is $328,000.

The addition will be used to house an estimated 400 journalists who are expected to converge on Albuquerque for the 1983 NCAA finals, Hooker said.

Hooker said Carlisle Gym is still structurally good but in need of renovations.

The addition to the Basic Medical Sciences building is a $9.875 million project to be built on the west side of the building.

Neighborhood's fate undecided

By BILL ROBERTSON

The Albuquerque Environmental Planning Commission will attempt Thursday to decide the fate of a controversial master plan for redevelopment and improvement of the neighborhoods south and west of the university.

Response to the plan at last week's meeting was so great that, with many people yet to speak at 12:30, the commission voted to defer action until this Thursday.

The plan, designed and submitted by the city planning department, says the area under consideration is a "blighted area," as defined by state law. Boundaries of the area, roughly, are Grand Avenue and the campus on the north, Girard Avenue on the east, Garfield and Hazeldine on the south and Interstate 25 on the west.

Representatives of the Silver Hills Association and the University heights Association expressed their organizations' support for the plan, with reservations. A steady stream of property owners also spoke at Thursday's meeting, mainly offering their objections to certain zoning changes outlined in the plan.

Many of those speaking voiced concern with Lead and Coal Streets. A common complaint regarded the excessive noise and pollution created by arterial traffic on these one-way streets. Possible solutions suggested by the plan included lowering speed limits, limiting truck traffic and installing pedestrian lights at strategic intersections.

The plan suggested a permit parking system be implemented for "heavily impacted streets" near UNM, TVI and Presbyterian Hospital.

A stated goal of the plan is to "encourage a diverse, high quality pedestrian-oriented neighborhood." The plan is also designed to preserve the existing diversity of single family homes and apartments, in the area.

Other suggestions of the plan include improvements in landscaping, street furniture and bus stops, with preservation of existing trees a top priority. Added street lights, sidewalks, fire hydrants and renewal of old water lines are also mentioned as improvements to the university neighborhood area.

The plan also suggests providing more ramps for the handicapped in the university-TVH-hospital area.

The commission will consider the development plan this Thursday, September 7, at 7:30 p.m. Meetings are held in the City Council chambers at 400 Marquette NW.

UNM recruits Peace Corps volunteers

By BEVERLY HARRON

About 30 UNM students join the Peace Corps each year. UNM is one of the top 20 producers of volunteers from campuses.

An organization, which was founded in President Kennedy's administration, is devoted to helping underdeveloped countries. Peace Corps is a volunteer organization which offers college graduates the opportunity to study and work abroad for two years.

Any graduate, no matter what his degree or what his grade point average, can join. By joining the Peace Corps, a graduate has the chance to apply his skill by training people in underdeveloped countries to help themselves. The individual goes through two to three months of training—both language training and cross-culture immersion, which is very important in preparing the individual for a different culture.

Harvey Buchalter, Liaison officer for the Corp's UNM office, said the main reason why graduate students are interested in joining the Peace Corps is that it provides an opportunity to broaden their horizons by working in a different country using their particular graduate skill.

Africa, and the Far East. The volunteer's travel is paid for, and he is given money each month for room and board. At the end of the two-year service period, each volunteer is given $3,000.

The Peace Corps, which is funded by the Government Action Agency, had a record number of trainees that requested entrance into the Corps. Only a few years ago, many people were not aware that the Corps existed. However, interest has been renewed since the Nixon/Ford years. Mr. Buchalter stressed the fact that any one is welcome and those who do join gain a lot of experience in their field and they immerse in a different culture. Mr. Buchalter's office is in Ortega, his office hours are 3:30-5:30 W, Th, F, and his phone number is 277-5907. No appointment is necessary.

Guerrilla leader blasts 'interference'

LUSAKA, Zambia (UPI) — Rhodesian guerrilla leader Joshua Nkomo Monday blasted Tanzanian President Julius Nyerere for "interfering" in Rhodesia and said he would meet again with Premier Ian Smith if it would help bring blacks to power.

Nkomo, angrily reacting to Nyerere's criticism of Nkomo for meeting Smith, said, "President Nyerere can't tell me what to do." "Who is President Nyerere?" Nkomo said. "He is not the final authority on what happens in Zimbabwe."

"Let me make that perfectly clear," Nkomo said. "He can't tell us what to do. In fact, he is no longer one of the frontline presidents since these states are now Mozambique, Zambia and Botswana, which border Zimbabwe, and Angola, as far as Namibia (South West Africa) is concerned."

The so-called frontline black African nations bordering Rhodesia had ruled out any further contacts with Smith and his "interim" biracial regime.

Nkomo, who with fellow guerrilla leader Robert Mugabe heads the patriotic front fighting the white Rhodesian regime, recently held a secret meeting with Smith. Nkomo said of the meeting that Smith had offered to bring the patriotic front into the settlement.

Both the United States and Britain have refused to recognize Smith's "interim" regime, insisting that any Rhodesian settlement which did not include the patriotic front was doomed to failure.

The front has been waging a guerrilla war against the Smith regime for the past five years and has vowed to continue the war until the front is given power in the breakaway British colony.

"The war will continue until we are certain Smith has given up and will hand over our country," Nkomo said. "But we don't want our young men to lose their lives unnecessarily. We are not fighting for the sake of fighting."

Nkomo said he might meet again with Smith if he felt it would lead to a handover of power to blacks in Rhodesia.

"It (another meeting with Smith) depends on the conditions," Nkomo said. "I would go if Smith said he wanted to give up power to the patriotic front. It is our business to see that he does so."

Chopper shortens festival

LATROBE, Pa. (UPI)—A helicopter dropping prizes crashed Monday into a crowd of about 500 persons at a Labor Day church festival, killing six festival patrons and injuring at least 17 others.

The three people aboard the copter—a woman pilot, a man and the man's daughter—survived the crash. They were not immediately identified.

Some witnesses said the copter struck a utility pole while circling a parking lot at the St. Joseph Roman Catholic Church in nearby Derry township where the church's annual three-day Labor Day festival was being held.

Other witnesses said the copter fell straight down while making a turn at a corner of the parking lot and crashed through a food concession stand.

The copter did not catch fire after the crash.

Police said the copter was hired by the church and had taken off from the Latrobe Airport shortly after 2 p.m. with 200 numbered ping pong balls to drop on the festival crowd.

Persons catching a ping pong ball received money or other prizes, depending on the number imprinted on the ball.

Nicaragua crushing rebellion

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — Nearly 700 opposition leaders and common citizens have been arrested in a crackdown to break a nationwide strike aimed at ousting President Anastasio Somoza, opposition leaders said Monday.

Somoza's press secretary, Rafael Cano, warned that all persons advocating the overthrow of the government "are liable to be arrested, are being arrested and will continue to be arrested."

Roberto Velez Barcenas said about 60 leaders of business organizations heading the 11-day-old strike as well as members of Somoza's political opposition were arrested over the weekend and he knew of about 15 more arrests Monday.

About 600 other people were also rounded up throughout Nicaragua on suspicion of helping to keep the strike going, said Velez, a member of Congress and deputy secretary of the opposition conservative party.

On Sunday, the national guard said it had captured more than 200 "agitators" in Managua and reports of more arrests were coming in from provincial cities in this Central American nation of 2.4 million.

Somoza said Monday he had done nothing to stop a similar 17-day strike early this year sparked by the assassination of opposition newspaper Pedro Joaquin Chamorro because "that was emotional."

"This is political," the president said, adding his opponents "were unable to win at the ballot box so now they are resorting to this kind of pressure to try to win power."

Manuel Jose Torrez, president of the National Development Institute, one of the key groups behind the strike, said the shutdown was 80 per cent effective and businessmen were prepared to hold out "two or three months."

The institute's vice president, Francisco Teran, was arrested on his way to the news conference where Torrez spoke to reporters, sources said.

Oreste Romero Rojas, manager of the 200-store Centro commercial shopping complex in Managua, said his figures showed 78 per cent Friday.

Shortly after 9 a.m. a national guard patrol arrived at the complex and started making lists of which businesses were closed.

The government newspaper Novedades claimed the strike was on the wane and said national guard patrols had driven off "terrorists" trying to set fire to the eastern food market three nights in a row.

The newspaper said poor women were defending their small food stands with machetes and sticks against bands of terrorists trying to overturn them, and called the women "the true heroines of democracy and human rights."

Peaceful summit

The Mideast peace summit begins today, and while the world is waiting with baited breath, no one really expects much to come out of the meeting.

Rather than expect progress, most experts optimistically hope for an aversion of regression in the Mideast situation.

Carter administration officials warn of serious consequences if the Camp David talks fail.

Israeli Prime Minister Begin has called the summit "important," but said he does not consider it a final chance for peace.

Egyptian President Sadat is under pressure to either win substantial concessions from Israel or abandon his peace initiative, begun last winter with his trip to Jerusalem.

If the summit fails, there may be an Arab conference which may lead to another oil embargo and a shift of forces in the Mideast.

All that is really hoped for is that Israeli-Egyptian talks do not break down at Camp David.

President Carter and Secretary of State Vance plan to maintain a neutral position during the summit. But American officials agree that between Begin and Sadat, Begin is the one who must give a little ground.

We don't think much will come out of the Camp David summit and neither do most observers. But the meeting is at least an indication that both Israel and Egypt want peace and the countries' leaders are taking the initiative to begin proceedings to finally bring peace to their embattled homelands.

It is known that Egypt and Israel want peace and are willing to work together to achieve it. We hope other Middle Eastern nations will follow their example.

Forget popularity

Editor:

This letter is in reply to your editorial of 8/31/78 regarding the appointment of Sarah Weddington as Carter's top aide on women's issues replacing the "abrasive" Midge Costanza.

Although I am certainly happy to have a 'persuasive ally' in the White House, I do take offense at your emphasis on the personality factors involved. If Costanza were male, "abrasive" would probably translate as "forceful," "committed" and "combative" attributes which would have won her the respect, if not the liking, of her colleagues and force attention to the issue. While I'm on the subject of words and their relative meanings I'd like to point out that your use of the word "pro-abortion" is misleading, a more correct term is "pro-choice"—that is the issue, not that the pro-choice advocate would prefer an abortion which is what "pro-abortion" implies.

You state that "Costanza was also pro-abortion—verbally so." Let's hope that Weddington is not so soft-spoken, "quiet" and un-verbose that the issue of pro-choice is lost to the extremely vocal anti-choice forces.

Let's forget the popularity contest and report on the real issues—employment equity, daycare, abortion and the ERA.

Rather than fault Midge Costanza for being too "abrasive" and "verbal" which was probably a necessary part of her job, why not find fault with her fellow colleagues for failing to support her in what was after all, a Supreme Court decision they must respect? If the White House doesn't support and honor the decisions of the highest court in the land, who will?

McDonald's rules

Editor:

Lavon McDonald is athletic director for the University. As such, he has both the authority and the responsibility for being certain that the athletic facilities are available and in good shape whenever they are required. Furthermore, he has the responsibility of protecting the University from any law suits which might arise from unauthorized use of the facilities.

If, in the process of doing his job, he makes rules that are unnecessary or unfair, then the University president or the regents have the power to change the rules. Since the means and process exist, no one can be excused for breaking the rules without first attempting to have them changed. If the president and regents uphold the rules, then they should be obeyed. Until such time as the rules are challenged and changed or upheld, they should be obeyed. This is the very foundation upon which our legal and governing systems rest.

Lionel Ortega knows the rules, but as far as I know, has made no official attempt to have them reviewed. Instead, he is relying upon his name and prestige to get himself special rights and privileges without the responsibilities that go with it, and he is wrong. If apologies are due, they are due Lavon McDonald.

Let's stop throwing rocks at people for doing the job they are paid to do. If Mr. McDonald had failed to do his job, he would owe us all an apology.

A prize for the best question in the "Who Knows More About UNM Than Tony Hillerman?" contest has been announced by the committee.

The person who contributes the best question, whether or not it stumps the professor, will receive an autographed collection of Hillerman's novels.

The committee and the professor will choose the best question.

Submission deadline for all questions is Thursday, October 19 at noon.

The committee will still select 10 questions to be presented to the professor. He will have one hour and any resources at his disposal to produce a correct answer.

Persons submitting questions which stump Hillerman will receive prizes.

Hillerman will receive a prize for each question he answers correctly. The following are correct, but were not selected by the committee as contest questions:

Q. How do you hang maps in Mitchell Hall classrooms?

A. On the venetian blinds.

Q. Why was UNM built in Albuquerque?

A. Because residents of Santa Fe voted they would rather have convicts than college students.

Q. How many Jews are on the faculty of the College of Engineering?

A. Two. S. Karni and F. Ju (Ju, get it?).

Popejoy Subscription Deadline Today

By LINDA GLEASON

Today is the last day to subscribe to the 1978-79 Cultural Entertainment Series presented by the Cultural Program Committee, UNM and Popejoy Hall.

The series consists of 13 shows to be shown at Popejoy Hall. The series begins on Tuesday, Sept. 19, with the Blackstone Magic Show, starring Harry Blackstone and a company of 25.

Subscriptions may be purchased at the Popejoy Hall ticket office which is open from 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. However, the ticket office will stop taking subscriptions at 5 p.m. today.

"This is a definite deadline," said Joel White, assistant director of Popejoy Hall. "We have to get ready for our first show."

Subscribers to the series receive discount rates. Tickets bought individually for the 13 shows would cost from $130 to $87; price varies according to where the seats are located.

Prices for subscriptions bought by the general public range from $88 to $60. Subscriptions bought by members of the UNM faculty and staff cost between $65 and $43. Students belonging to ASUNM (Associated Students of UNM—all undergraduate students with full time status) and GSA (Graduate Students Association—all graduate students) may buy subscriptions ranging from $32 to $21.

"The response has been excellent so far. This year the largest number of students ever have subscribed," said White.

ASUNM and GSA appropriate money to the program to pay for the student's discounts. "This year they gave around $20,000," said White.

"The faculty and staff discount is made up from departmental allocations and profit from the public ticket price," said White.

Individual tickets may be bought from what is left over after subscription sales. "There aren't many left," said White.

An Offer You Can't Refuse

The third lecture to be presented by the UNM Speakers Committee will be held tonight at 8 in the Kiva. Dr. Peter Lupsha, an expert on the Mafia, will speak on "The Changing Face of Organized Crime in America." Admission to the lecture is free.

Other shows in the series are: Neil Simon's Broadway comedy, California Suite; the Bella Lewitzki Dance Company; the Atlanta Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Robert Shaw; the Jose Limon Dance Company; the Broadway hit, Side by Side by Sonheim; the first American tour of the Ballet Folclorico Nacional de Mexico; the Canadian Opera's production of Mozart's, The Marriage of Figaro; the Russian Festival of Dance; The Wiz; Dizzy Gillespie in concert; the Sound of Music and a special bonus show yet to be announced.

The Conning Tower II

Vacation officials announced last night that Pope Paul George and Ringo I was "none the worse" after last week's ordeal which tens of millions of people across the world followed via hour to hour global news reports with tense anticipation.

The Pope, out for his weekly Hump-day stroll around the Vatican, was abducted by a band of heavily armed Palestinian guerrillas last Wednesday and taken to PLO headquarters in Beirut, Lebanon. For two anxious days the world awaited the demands of the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Then Friday night, in what has been called the most daring and successful counter measure since the Israeli raid on Entebbe, a group of 24 armed Bishops stormed PLO headquarters and rescued the Pope.

The Bishops, who have been identified as members of the fabled "Black Miter" commando squadron, flew into Beirut at 11:30 Friday night aboard three Israeli jet transports and immediately opened fire on the Palestinians holding the Pope, killing 13 terrorists and creating the diversion necessary for the miraculous papal escape.

An unidentified Latin American, wearing boots, a poncho and smoking the stub of a cheeroot, then singlehandedly made his way to the room where the Pope was being held captive, blew open the barred doors with a stick of dynamite, and led the Pope to safety. It is reported that the Latin American was armed only with a Colt 45 pistol.

No one now knows the identity or whereabouts of the man who saved the life of the Pope, though there has been talk of $100,000 in gold missing from the Vatican treasury.

Pope John Paul George and Ringo I has been resting and will resume holding audiences some time "early next week." So far the Pope himself has made no comment concerning his kidnapping and subsequent rescue except to state that, "I've got blisters on me fingers."

Freshman's Letter Home

I went to Economics today and learned why the country is in so much trouble financially. Uncle Sam has a relative of his named Fed on the payroll in Washington, and this guy controls the flow of money. There's only a couple of million dollars in cold cash in this country and Fed only lets so many dollar bills, quarters, dimes, nickels, and pennies out to us at one time. This controls how fast we can pass it around. Businessmen always want it to go faster and faster. The Wall Street Journal says it is going about 990 miles an hour and may get up to 1000 miles an hour any day now. I don't think money goes that fast back in Podunk, but it always goes faster in big towns. Inflation is when it goes so fast that the bills get all stretched out of shape and then the government has to print up more.

Sometimes inflation is caused by other things. Remember the penny shortage we had a few years back, and Mr. Smedley paid for them it was M-1 inflation. Now its M-2 (big money) inflation, and dollar bills aren't worth what you pay for them. Those damn foreigners have been saving them up and are making us pay more than they're worth just to get them back. We may go broke.

My Economics Professor says I shouldn't study any more Economics because I'll just try to figure out what the government is going to do next, and since the government doesn't know what its doing that's a sure way to run the family business into the ground. By the way, could you send me more money. Inflation is eating me alive.

Your son,
The freshman
Robert Travis

Curry Will Play For 'Lobo People'

By JOHN LANEY

"Coach Ellenberger is a lot like me. He's intense and I'm intense. The first game of the season I may be up in the stands giving everybody five, that's just the way I play. I'll dive through the locker room for the ball," freshman Aparicio Curry said.

Curry is one of the many new players on the LOBO basketball team this year. His father named him after Luis Aparicio, the major league baseball star. "My dad's a big baseball man," Curry explained.

The 6-6, 185-pound, 18-year-old freshman comes from John F. Kennedy High School in Cleveland where he was the first to score 1000 points in the school's history and the first to make all-conference. He was also named to several all-star teams and was among the top 100 freshman recruits in the country.

"I want to show these LOBO fans that this freshman can play some basketball. I'm not playing for Aparicio Curry, I'm playing for these LOBO people. If I make them happy, they'll make me happy," Curry said.

"The fans are probably skeptical of the new players, but I want them to know that we will do our best to keep up the LOBO name," he said.

Curry played only baseball until he was 12. That's when he discovered his talent in basketball. "People who I played against in the playgrounds use to tell me that if I put out a lot of effort, stay

NFC East Predictions

By MARK SMITH

NFC EAST: DALLAS COWBOYS—What else can be said that hasn't been already. Dallas has a good chance to go undefeated. Not only because of their talent, but the Cowboys have the easiest schedule for a top team. This year the schedules were worked out so top teams would play mostly with the same caliber, and weaker teams would play each other, but someone must have forgotten who won last year's Super Bowl. Out of their 16 opponents the Cowboys only play six games against teams that had winning records last year.

WASHINGTON REDSKINS—The Redskins may finish second, but so what. Who is there to beat? This is the worst division in football. Washington may also make the play-offs with a 9-7 record, because the entire NFC is almost as weak as this division.

PHILADELPHIA EAGLES—The Eagles haven't beat a team with a winning record in two years, but how many teams have a winning record in the NFC? There were only five last year. Even with that handicap Philadelphia will fight for second, third, fourth and fifth this year. One asset the Eagles have is that their fans strike terror in the hearts of opposing teams. The Philly fans are the meanest in all of football.

NEW YORK GIANTS—The Giants have been threatening to break out of the cellar the last couple of years, this could be it. Not that they're improved, but St. Louis is in trouble.

ST. LOUIS CARDINALS—This is a team who beat the then unbeaten Cowboys in the ninth week of the season last year, they also won six in a row and were fighting the Cowboys for the top. They lost their last four games, and because of their murderous schedule may even lose their first seven this year. From 0-7 its hard to make a move at anyone even the Giants.

dedicated and put my head on the right shoulder. I would be a good basketball player." He did not give up baseball however and was an excellent pitcher throughout high school.

A speech communications major, Curry wants to pursue a field in radio and television as a sports commentator. "I don't want to be a dumb jock," Curry said. He does not like the stereotype of dumb athletes at UNM.

"When I was young my father and I would get the salt and pepper shakers in front of the game on TV and pretend like we were sportscasters."

"Curt Gowdy! that's my man," Curry said, "him and Al McGuire. I could write a dictionary just by listening to them about things I didn't even know about basketball."

Curry was recruited for basketball by most of the schools in the ACC and by every school in the Big Ten, a conference which he feels is the best in the nation for basketball. "I bet every player in the Big Ten was recruited by the WAC," Curry said.

NEW MEXICO
DAILY LOBO

SPORTS

"The ACC and Big Ten have too many good young players," Curry said. "I fit right into the Lobos program because they don't have many freshman. I got four years to really show what I can do."

Curry said the most unusual thing about the University is when he is around people that are talking in Spanish. "You don't know whether they are talking about you or not," Curry said. Another thing that impressed him about the University was that the students were so friendly.

When Curry first flew into Albuquerque's international airport he was stunned at what he saw. "I couldn't believe that was the airport," Curry said. "I didn't know they made airport that small."

After being impressed with the Pit for the first time, Curry noticed another building in the area that said "Albuquerque Sports Stadium." A trace of baseball was still in the high school pitcher's heart when he fell in love with the Sports Stadium. Curry said, "I love that place."
