

---

TABLE of CONTENTS

---

- 6     Brazillian Landscape in the Misplaced Modernism of Glauber Rocha's Deus e o Diabo na Terra do Sol (1963)
Daniel Bataller, Ph.D. Candidate Art History,
University of Illinois at Chicago
- 20    Nation Making and the Landscape in Oscar Niemeyer's Interiors
Veronica Sesana Grajales, M.A. Art History,
School of Art Institute of Chicago, Illinois
- 36    Two Stances on Water: Political Ecology in Techno-scientific Art from Mexico
Rodrigo Guzman Serrano, M.A. Art History,
Danube University Krems, Austria
- 54    Living With Our Toxic Legacy: Parafictional
Practice and the National Toxic Land/Labor
Conservation Service
Joseph Sussi, M.A. Art History
University of Utah, Salt Lake City, Utah
- 78    ARTIST SPOTLIGHT
Viola Arduini, M.F.A. Student, Art and Ecology,
Department of Art, University of New Mexico
- 86    Review: Subhankar Banerjee, Long Environmentalism of the Near North Exhibited at the University of New Mexico Art Museum.
Erika Osborne Associate Professor,
Department of Art and Art History, Colorado State University,
Colorado
- 90    "For most of humanity's existence, we walked": An Interview with Pennie Opal Plant of Idle No More SF Bay
Amber Hickey, Ph.D. Candidate Art History,
University of California, Santa Cruz, California