Attacked Student
In Stable Condition

Margarette Sasson, 20-year-old UNM student, was found Monday morning, her throat cut by an unknown assailant.

A spokesman for the Albuquerque Police Department's Violent Crimes Division said Friday the details of the stabbing are very sketchy. He said there was no motive.

Sonja Anglin, 24, is in the area that Miss Sasson was attacked.

Anglin has only three deputies in his department to handle traffic and security on the highway outside the missile site.

He said there had been no contacts with any armed forces.

Ofiicials Demand Information
About Missile's Nuclear Warhead

At the beginning of the week, the Air Force was asked to provide information about a wrecked Titan missile silo. Now, they say the weapon is on the move.

Tatom said Air Force officials had assured him he would have at least four hours notice if the military needed a State Police escort - routine procedure - he said. "They promised that, too, if we were going to move something. I angrily suggested that if the thing comes out of the ground, we know where it is."

The attorneys were concerned that the weapon was gone, they had no idea Air Force helicopters had been landing near the site.

Tatom said he was the man most likely to know about missile moves.

Tatom also said Air Force officials told him they would do anything to prevent the weapon from leaving.

On this point, Air Force officials said they had no idea the weapon had been moved.

"I had a feeling the only function we were doing was directing traffic," he said.

But during a three-hour meeting nearby Greenlee, Ark., with the door locked to reporters, Tatom said he was told the Air Force was going to move the missile.

Tatom also said Air Force officials were talking about a "cordon" and "lot more relaxed." He said he was the man most likely to know about military movements.

Task Force Wants to Inform Students About Alcohol Abuse

Kelly Gibson

Alcohol awareness programs are not new and not all college campuses are immune. They are a part of the University of New Mexico's Student Affairs Program.

Wrote two weeks ago, the Alcohol Awareness Task Force, which meets weekly, to determine what efforts need to be undertaken on campus. This is the first year of a three-year program to be offered at UNM.

Marylou Varnell, chairperson of the group, said the first step is educating the group in alcohol awareness. She added there is a lack of knowledge on the subject of alcohol awareness.

The University of New Mexico does not want any more dead bodies. The university's Department of Pathology has been working on an inventory of cadavers and will not accept any more.

The inventory is being made up of a cross-section of cadavers from various parts of the body. It includes students, residents, and patients, as well as donated bodies.

A woman at the University of New Mexico said she was preparing to go back to school. The 34-year-old UNM sophomore was found dead in her dorm room.

The university's Department of Pathology is working on an inventory of cadavers. "We want to make sure people are aware of the inventory," said the woman.

Student Stabbed

Many people were shocked to hear of the stabbing.

"It was a miracle she lived," said an official at UNM Hospital. "She was seriously injured and was bleeding profusely."

The official said the anatomy department was involved in the investigation. "We had more storage, we need to use our space," the official said.

Armed Forces Should Care

Whatever happened to the nuclear weapons threat to the world? The threat of a nuclear attack is still with us, but it would seem the threat has become almost a game to the military. The Air Force alone has a force that could destroy the world in minutes. We have become so accustomed to the threat of war that we no longer think about it. We take it for granted.

But the real threat to our security is not the military, but the people who are in charge of the nuclear weapons. They are not responsible for the safety of the people in Arkansas.

But the Air Force should at least try to maintain a safe and secure environment for its personnel. If they cannot do this, they should leave the area. If they cannot take care of the people who are in charge of the nuclear weapons, they should be moved.

The people who are in charge of the nuclear weapons should be told. It is part of the task of the Air Force to take care of the people in this country, not to cause the living beings to suffer.

Senator Says No to Fixed Funding

In his editorial on the front page, the editor of the New Mexico Daily Lobo, Ken Clark, said that the Senate is not interested in fixed funding for the University of New Mexico. He said that the Senate is not interested in fixed funding because it would be too expensive.

But I think that the Senate is interested in fixed funding because it would be too expensive. The Senate knows that the University of New Mexico is not able to pay for itself. The Senate knows that the University of New Mexico needs fixed funding.

Orchestra Plays Well, Selection Lacks Energy

The Cleveland Orchestra's Thursday night performance was a firework of energy. The orchestra played perfectly. But the only way to make the performance memorable is to have a conductor who can lead the orchestra. Lorin Maazel conducted the orchestra in a brilliant introduction to the Mahler symphony. The conductor's energy was evident in the Mahler symphony.
