The Argentine Senate approved late on Oct. 31 a decision to ratify fishing agreements with the Soviet Union and Bulgaria. In mid-November, the two legislative bills will be presented for debate and approval in the Chamber of Deputies. Local observers expect the two measures to pass through the Chamber as well. Radical Party Sen. Adolfo Gass took the opportunity of the Senate approval to condemn the recent British decision to unilaterally expand territorial waters around the Malvinas (Falklands) islands for its exclusive use. US support for Britain's decision also came in for criticism by Gass and others. (Basic data from NOTICIAS ARGENTINAS, 10/31/86)
