Territorial Election Results.

The following table shows the election of delegates, by counties, so far as obtainable. The returns are incomplete in many counties, and difficult to tell the total results accurately.

There were a total of 58 republicans, 23 democrats and 19 fusionists. There are enough republicans in the straight republican column to secure the initiative and referendum with the aid of the democrats and fusionists, although the margin will be small. At least a dozen independents and Roosevelt men were on the straight republican tickets in the various counties.

Small Vote in this County.

Very little interest was taken in the election in this county, for the reason that only one ticket was in the field. No attempt has been made to get the result as a total in the county, but from the number of votes cast here and at Lincoln and other places that have reported, we feel confident that less than 40 per cent of the vote of the county was cast. As there was only one ticket, it, therefore, follows that Jacob J. Aragon, A. H. Hudspeth and John H. Canning were elected.

Judge Bellomy left yesterday for Alamogordo, where he intends to spend the winter.

Election Results in the States.

A number of states held primaries Tuesday and one, Vermont, held a regular election. The interest centered in the primaries where the two wings of the republican party were engaged in a death struggle for supremacy.

In the Wisconsin primaries, Senator LaFollette swept the state, defeating his republican opponent for the senatorial nomination by a vote of three to one. LaFollette is the leader of insurgency in the United States senate. The insurgents were also successful in winning the nominations for state offices.

The regular election held in Vermont resulted in the election of the republican ticket by 17,000, a loss of 12,000 over two years ago. With two exceptions, this is the smallest republican majority in forty years.

The state of New Hampshire entered the insurgent column as a result of the primaries on the 6th. The insurgents swiped all the state nominations, and, in fact, everything else, with the exception of one congressman.

Michigan joined the insurgent ranks, too. Senator Burrows was defeated for renomination for the United States senate by Congressman Townsend. Senator Burrows has represented the state of Michigan in the lower and upper branches for the past thirty years. The senator followed too closely the lead of Aldrich, which, in Michigan, as well as many other states, has come to be considered bad policy.

A Pleasing Article.

The Business Farmer, published in El Paso and edited by C. C. Hanley, contains an illustrated article on Lincoln county this week. Mr. Hanley was here a week in August, during which time he visited many parts of the county, and secured the data for the write-up. The article deals in a general way with altitude, climatic conditions, etc., and makes particular reference to a number of our towns and business men.

Death of Mrs. Hust.

Word reached this office yesterday morning that Mrs. Hust had died that morning at her home in Tortolite Canyon, near Nogal. The deceased lived in the Nogal district for more than a quarter of a century, and was in her 84th year. She leaves two sons and a daughter (Clark and Rich. Hust and Mrs. Jerry Dalton), besides a large number of relatives. Interment was in the family plot in the Angus cemetery. The News tenders its sympathy to all members of the family.

CARRIZOZO • NEW MEXICO
GOOD DONE BY WANDERLUST.

Constant intermingling of People of the Various States Has Made America Great.

Less than half the members of the United States senate and house of representatives are native-born in the states which they represent. Nothing could more clearly show the alert activities of the American people, and that constant intermingling of the inhabitants of the several states, which adds so much to the cohesive unity of the nation. The boy who goes to a distant state often accomplishes more than the one who goes straight on in the footprints of his father in the home village. Even Daniel Webster was not born in the old Bay state, whose influence and dignity he so well sustained, and whose people mourned him so sincerely when his great life closed.

This wandering from state to state has resulted in the organizing in New York city of many state societies, which aim to gather together the natives of their respective states annually to revive the pleasant memories of the old home days, with their thousand clinging ties.

What would happen if the American people should cease to wander about the country? is a question often asked. It is said that an eastern man never amounts to anything until he goes west, and that a western man has to come east in order to attain his full stature mentally. The northern man is advised to go south to learn gentle courtesy and chivalric bearing, the southerner to go north to add more iron to his blood. There can be no doubt that this constant evolution has encouraged the birth of new ideas, just as the whirling of the kitescope developed a toy into our present wonderful moving pictures, which give us glimpses of life in motion all over the world.—Joe Mitchell Chaplin, in the National Magazine.

Forced to Shut Down Mines.

Recently the authorities of Carlsbad were much concerned over a decrease in the flow of the famous Sprudel and other mineral springs. The state took up the matter, and it was found that the working of the mines in the vicinity was probably affecting the supply of the thermal springs. As the prosperity of Carlsbad, almost, indeed, its very existence, is dependent upon its world famous waters the government ordered certain mines to be shut down.

Street Railway Training School.

New York City, according to the Tribune, is to have a practical street railway training school that will be the only one of its kind in the country. Oran Root Jr., general manager of the Metropolitan Street Railway Company, is the author of the plan. The expenses of the school will be defrayed by the company, and it will be open to college and scientific school graduates. The pupils will be paid living wages while taking the two-year course.

Eminent in Two Lines.

Hans Hubert Dietzsch, a popular member of the Berlin Lustspielhaus company, does not devote all his time to the stage. He is a sculptor of no mean order, according to a recently published account. His bas-relief of Matkovsky, which is now on exhibition, has created much favorable comment, and a bronze replica which has been placed in the Lessing house is mentioned as a "conspicuous ornament."

Prizes Offered Aviators.

The prizes now being contested by aviators number 38 and are valued at $300,000.

ROAD and FARM IMPROVEMENT

FACTORS FOR ROAD BUILDER

Climate is Important Matter to Consider—All Road Forms Should Have Good Crown.

(By W. L. SPOON.)

The climate is a factor of importance for the road builder to consider. In the eastern sections, where the soil is plastic, the rains are most abundant while in the western sand hills the climate is semi-arid and quite strong south winds prevail. These conditions introduce an important matter for consideration. Sand roads are best when wet, and clay roads when dry, but climatic conditions operate adversely and must be taken into consideration seriously. The rains make the eastern roads muddy, while dry weather makes of the western roads deep shifting sand. The suggestion offered by this natural condition is to add sand to the eastern clays and clay to the western sands in order to bring about, between the soil and the climate, the balance necessary for the betterment of the roads. Additional encouragement is afforded by the natural distribution of the material, which in most cases is abundantly provided for all needs.

In the eastern portion, where rains are abundant, the question of drainage is very important, and, moreover, a greater percentage of sand (65 to 85 per cent.) must be used, while in the west, in the semi-arid sandhill section, the reverse proportion is not only permissible but often necessary. In the east the road must meet, as its supreme test, continued wet weather, while in the west continued drought furnishes a maximum strain on the binding power of the clay. In the east the road is likely to fail by reason of mud holes and washes; in the west it must resist pulverizing and blowing away as dust. Between these two extremes lie all the possible methods of sand-clay road construction. Upon the judgment of the supervisor, therefore, depends the character of the work to be done. He should know how to select the best available clay for the conditions to be met, and likewise how to select the sand and incorporate it with the clay so as to obtain the best possible results.

All forms of hard roads should have a good crown, varying from side to center. The slope of the crown should be greatest at the sides and flattened as it approaches the center. Only a sand road requires no crown at all. Where nothing but deep sand prevails, the surface should be concave for the purpose of conserving, as far as possible, the moisture. Sand alone is improved by water.

LIFTING THE WAGON BODIES

Method Shown in Illustration Has Proved to Be Excellent and Simple in Construction.

We all know how troublesome and inconvenient it is to change the wagon bodies, especially when there is only one to do it. The method illustrated is simple but very satisfactory. The piece used as a lever is 12 feet long. It may be a 2 by 6 inch piece of strong timber, or even a nice, straight pole will answer.

The posts are eight and twelve feet above the ground, and should be set deep enough to prevent pulling up or careening and should be of sufficient size to prevent bending or breaking. The lever is bolted to the long post ten feet from the ground with four feet projecting over the wagon. To the end of the lever are fastened the rope swings, four of them, with loops on the lower end to hook over the bottom cross frame of the wagon body.

The short post is seven feet from the long one and has a row of pins set in the side of it to hold the end of the lever after the body has been lifted.

The different pins correspond to the different heights of the wagons. The plan is suggestive of many changes.

ENGLISH SPARROW IS MENACE

So Regarded by Minnesota State Entomologist Because It Destroys Much Farm Produce.

The English sparrow is looked upon by the Minnesota state entomologist at the experiment station as a menace to farmers, not only destroying grain, but also driving away useful birds. The division of entomology suggests that a very humane way of destroying them is to feed them wheat for a few morning in the winter, in a straight line, in yard or field, and when the birds have become accustomed to the system to rake the line with a gun loaded with fine shot. Wheat, it has been said, may be soaked in whisky and eaten by the sparrows inducing such intoxication that they may be picked up and killed. Destroying sparrows' nests several times in succession, as they were built, has discouraged nesting in the locality. Destruction by means of active poisons is not recommended by the division because the dead birds are eaten by cats, poultry, etc. The entomologist has discouraged their roosting during the winter under the eaves of his own home and defiling the building, by the use of a small collecting pistol of fine shot, shooting them off their perches at dusk.

A Dry-Weather Crop.

There are few seasons so dry that well-cultivated milo maize will not yield a fair crop of grain. It will produce 15 bushels per acre of grain under conditions so dry that corn will be a total failure. In favorable seasons it produces more grain than corn, with a greater feed value.

By a patient loving endurance of annoyance are we preparing ourselves gradually for the discipline of trials.—E. M. Goulburn.

WASHINGTON GOSSIP

Chinese Take to Smoking Cigarettes

WASHINGTON. — America has taught the people of the Chinese empire to smoke cigarettes. In a report to this government on foreign trade by Consul General Charles Denby of Vienna, in which he described the class of foreign markets which may be created by American enterprise, and then supplied the consul general says:

"One of the most conspicuous examples of such a market is the demand for cigarettes in China. Ten years ago the cigarette was an article used in China by a small number of people, chiefly foreigners. The field attracted the attention of a group of American manufacturers who examined into it and decided to introduce the cigarette to the Chinese people by American methods. The result is that now the cigarette is popular throughout the empire."

The international opium conference to be held at The Hague next fall will have a very general representation of the powers, according to the latest information reaching the state department.

In reporting to this government on opportunities in Malaysia for rubber-growing enterprises, Consul General James T. Dubois at Singapore, cited as follows an instance to show how the investing public is sometimes taken in in the exploitation of the rubber industry there:

An estate was sold to promoters for $150,000. The syndicate got an old planter who knew the estate to put a flotation value on it. He named $250,000. The promoters were not satisfied. Another expert examined and reported. His price was $350,000.

British and American gold was pouring into the country and the get-rich-quick spirit was born. Another expert was called in. He was told of the former valuations and that they were unsatisfactory. He valued the estate at $500,000.

Just at this time, rubber took a big jump in the London and New York markets and another expert was asked to report and he placed the flotation price at $750,000 and the syndicate in order to have it in round numbers made it an even $800,000 and floated it at this price.

Heads of Navy Are Annoyed By Women

JOHN HAY had a saying that the ideal diplomatic service—if any government ever succeeds in having one—will be composed exclusively of unmarried men. Mr. Hay had no experience in naval matters, or he might have included the navy in his maxim.

There probably is no branch of the government service, the Washington Post says, where petticoat influence is so strong as in the navy. Ask any ex-secretary of the navy about it and he will tell you how the navy women in a thousand different ways, sometimes unconsciously and occasionally deliberately, annoy the navy department. He will tell you how they scheme to obtain desirable posts of duty for their husbands or sons and how they annoy the department with requests for a change of orders when their husbands are transferred from an easy job in Washington to sea duty on the Asiatic station or some other far-away tropical post. The recent row at the Boston navy yard, which culminated in the court-martial of two officers, illustrates the prominent part women play in navy circles.

Almost everybody knows of the mutual ill feeling existing between the navy women and the department. Every once in a while something happens to widen this breach. Only a few days ago Ensign Charles M. Austin, son of Representative Richard W. Austin of Tennessee, was deprived of an especially desirable berth by the navy department merely because he got married. He had been detached from the dispatch boat Dolphin at the Washington navy yard and ordered to Japan for duty as a student attaché at the American embassy at Tokyo for the purpose of studying the Japanese language. On the way to his new post of duty he stopped at his former home in Tennessee and was married to a girl he had known for many years.

This was too much for the unromantic departmental authorities, who suddenly decided that a married ensign would not make as good a student of the Japanese language as a bachelor. Accordingly his orders were revoked and instead of spending his honeymoon in Tokyo he will have less interesting service at the naval training station on the Pacific coast. He will, however, have his wife.

Sad Red Men Must Ride on the Wagon

POOR Lo has suffered many privations at the hands of the national government in the process of civilizing him, but the hardest blow yet must be no more "fire water" sold on the ceded lands of Minnesota. Lo will take his seat on the water wagon at once.

The order includes several counties and if carried out to the letter would even prevent the sale of liquor in St.

Paul and Minneapolis, which stand on ceded lands.

Under state laws the counties embraced in the order—Becker, Cass, Clay, Hubbard, Mahanomen, Norman, Beltrami, Itasca, Polk, Clear Water, Red Lake, Crow Wing, Wadena and Ottertail—have enjoyed the license system of the state and Lo, who dearly loves his fire water, has been able to procure it without restriction. By the new order he will have to go dry.

The provisions of the treaties by which the lands were ceded prohibit the introduction of intoxicating liquors in the whole northern part of the state, except by consent of congress or the president, but up to the present time the provisions have not been enforced.

AN INSURANCE EXCEPTION.

"Now," said the chronic quoter, "a man is known by the company he keeps."

"Say, I'm an insurance policy holder! Please don't class me with the company I keep."

Merely a Prevaricator.

A doctor relates the following story: "I had a patient who was very ill and who ought to have gone to a warmer climate, so I resolved to try what hypnosis would do for him. I had a large sun painted on the ceiling of his room and by suggestion induced him to think it was the sun which would cure him. The ruse succeeded and he was getting better rapidly when one day on my arrival I found he was dead."

"Did it fail, after all, then?" asked one of the doctor's hearers.

"No," replied the doctor, "he died of sunstroke."

Summer Fallow for Winter Wheat.

BY R. S. TRUMBELL,
Agricultural Agent E. P. & S. W.

In their effort to successfully establish agriculture in non-irrigable sections of New Mexico and other parts of the southwest, the settlers are testing various methods of cultivation and cropping. A method that has contributed largely toward putting farming on a paying basis in other localities of limited rainfall, but which has been tried very little here, is the practice of summer fallowing (clean cultivation), for the purpose of storing moisture in the subsoil previous to the planting of the crop.

The reader may recall having seen an article from me in this paper, about the middle of last June, referring to a test piece of winter wheat maturing near Corona, New Mexico, which was sown on summer fallowed land.

At this writing I wish to merely give the results without going into the details involved which appeared in the previous article.

I was on the field when the crop was harvested, June 29th, and learning that it was not apt to be taken care of in such a way that the yield could be ascertained, I gathered the crop from an area 10 by 10 feet carefully selected from a part of the field which I thought would represent quite closely the average of the field. This sample was threshed on July 14th, after it had quite thoroughly dried, and from it the following data were obtained:

Weight of grain 3 lbs. 12½ ozs;
Weight of straw 8 lbs. 10 ozs;
Yield of grain per acre 27.45 bu;
Yield of straw per acre 3757 lbs.

A record of the precipitation at Corona has been kept since July 1, 1909, about the time of the summer fallowing of this field began. The precipitation from that date to the time of the harvesting of this wheat (one year) was 13.79 inches. Of this amount 7.94 inches fell between July 1 and the date of seeding, September 13. The storing of this moisture in the soil before seeding was the factor to which the success of the crop was due; for without it the crop would have had but 5.85 inches of precipitation for its growth and failure would have been inevitable, as verified by the other fields where seed was sown in soil not previously moistened to a considerable depth by summer fallowing. The soil in this field was dried out to a depth of nearly eight feet by this wheat crop as shown by borings made with a soil auger, the moisture having penetrated to a greater depth than that, in most of the field, at seeding time.

Several hundred acres of wheat were sown last fall on the mesa over which the Dawson Railway passes. The result was that most of it matured some grain, the best fields yielding 10 to 15 bushels of good quality. None of this wheat was sown on summer fallowed land. At seeding time, however, about the middle of September, while investigating the moisture conditions of the best prepared fields, I found, in a field about one mile south of Roy, an area about one-eighth acre in extent, which from accidental causes, had become moistened to a depth of 6 feet to 9 feet. The conditions existing on this spot were such as could be expected to obtain in a summer fallowed field at the same date; so I think it is fair to use the results from this area for making a comparison between wheat raised on summer fallow and that raised by ordinary methods of the farmers in this locality.

On July 4th the wheat was ready to cut. On this favored area the grain stood 24 to 30 inches high, 6 inches to 12 inches higher than the remainder of the field. I gathered and threshed the wheat from a 10 by 10 foot area in the center of this favored spot. The yield was 3 pounds, 12 ounces, or at the rate of 27.22 bushels per acre. The field was harvested the next day and it has since been threshed, yielding between 9 and 10 bushels per acre.

The statement is often made that the evaporation is so great here as to render futile any attempt at moisture conservation by summer fallowing. This is true on adobe or very "tight" land and not if the soil is somewhat "open" (sandy). Most of the soil that is being farmed here, however, holds moisture very well, if well tilled, and I have seen it sufficiently demonstrated in different localities (from Carrizozo north) that I am anxious to see summer fallowing given a thorough test by the farmers, especially as a preparation for winter wheat.

NEW MEXICO AS A FRUIT GROWING COUNTRY.

BY WALLER Z. KELLER,
Carrizozo, N. M.

The Bonito, Ruidoso and Hondo valleys, as well as the Peñasco valley, of New Mexico produces the largest and finest fruit—can not be excelled anywhere. When such fruit growers like Dr. J. W. Jaws, of Lincoln, James Gonzales and F. H. Kirkland, of Hondo, the Coe Bros., of Glencoe, and others in the valley plant from ten to twenty-five acres, it can be seen at a glance that the fruit industry is only in its infancy. When such men as Martin Chavez, of Picacho, contemplates to put acres in fruit, where heretofore were sheep ranches, means something for the future fruit growing industry of New Mexico; when such men as B. Leve and others, of the Peñasco valley, plant acres and have already acres, it shows that this part of New Mexico is O. K. for fruit.

It has been the pleasure of the writer to see and sample the finest and best flavored fruit in the above-named valleys that he has seen and tasted in his twenty years experience. The trees are loaded down with the red apples and pears. Thousands of boxes of fruit will go to the eastern market. Those who contemplate getting land in these valleys should do so at once while land can yet be had at reasonable figures.

Announcement of the CARRIZOZO PUBLIC SCHOOLS For the Year 1910-11.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS:
W. E. Winfield, chairman.
Jno. H. Boyd, clerk.
J. N. White.

TEACHERS:
Chas. L. Schreck, Principal.
Mrs. Wallace Gumm, Primary.
Miss Jane Brockway.
Mrs. Nora Massie.
Miss Pearl Taylor.

..... [to be selected]

School begins Sept. 12, 1910.
Length of term not less than nine months.

COMMON SCHOOL DEPT.

The work of the first eight grades, or the common school department, will be based upon the "Manual of the Common School Course of Study for the Public Schools of New Mexico," published by the Territorial Board of Education. This course of study sets a high standard of excellence and compares favorably with the published courses of study of the older states and communities. Every effort will be made to keep the classification up to the standard of the "New Mexico Course of Study."

Mrs. Wallace Gumm will be in charge of the primary work. Mrs. Nora Massie, Miss Jane Brockway and Miss Pearl Taylor are other teachers who have been employed for grade work.

HIGH SCHOOL DEPT.

The High School Department provides for a course of study extending over a period of four years. Not more than the first two years of the course will be attempted this year, but it is the intention of the board to increase the teaching force in this department whenever the situation demands it, and pupils entering the first year of high school work this year may feel assured that the opportunity will be given to complete the four years course.

The work of this department is especially planned to meet the needs of those students whose school days will not extend beyond the High School, but at the same time preparation for college or normal school has not been neglected. Every effort will be made to make the work such that students who complete the four years course will find no difficulty in securing full recognition for their work on entering the collegiate department of the University or other territorial schools.

The requirement for admission to the High School will ordinarily be the essential completion of the New Mexico Common School Course of Study as shown by the Diploma issued by the Territorial Board of Education, or by an examination in the subjects of the course, and pupils will not be advanced from year to year of the course except upon essential completion of the work of the year preceding that which the pupil desires to enter.

A tuition fee of $3.00 per year will be required of all students above the eighth grade.

Carrizozo is well located at the foot of the White Mountains, and is supplied with water from the famed Bonito, a water that tests 98 per cent. pure. Parents desiring to send their children to school here will be able to obtain board and room at rates as cheap as ordinarily obtain in railroad towns in New Mexico.

Most normal schools and colleges require 15 high school credits as the condition for admitting students to their collegiate departments. A credit is given for the satisfactory completion of a high school subject studied for a school year of not less than 36 weeks, with five recitation periods of not less than 45 minutes each per week. A half credit is given for a study similarly extending over a period of 18 weeks. The high school outlined below provides for credits and half credits sufficient in number to give the equivalent of four full credits each year or 16 credits for the entire course.

In no case will promotions be made upon the mere lapse of time involved, but pupils must show that a full year's work in standard high school studies has been completed.

ADDITIONAL LOCAL.

Mr. and Mrs. Elbert T. Collier and children are down from White Oaks. Their little one-year old infant has been ill for some time, and they expect to remain here indefinitely in order to be in close touch with the physician.

Dr. F. S. Randles left Wednesday for Socorro on a business trip. He expects to be absent a week or more, and in the meantime anyone needing teeth extracted will have to await his return or seek relief elsewhere.

J. F. Kimbell, general foreman of the railroad shops, intends to go to Kansas next week on a thirty days' leave of absence. He expects to visit other states further east, and on his return will take in the big state exposition at Denver.

Dr. G. Raniger came up from Oscura Wednesday and remained over yesterday. The doctor says if the delegates elected Tuesday do not give us the proper kind of a constitution, when they assemble in convention at Santa Fe, we must vote it down, and we heartily endorse the statement.

Mr. and Mrs. George Spence, son and daughter, George and Miss Grace, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Spence and Brent Paden left last week for the Jemez hot springs, in Sandoval county, about 200 miles north of here. They expect to be absent an entire month.

County Treasurer Watson and Mrs. Watson, Probate Clerk Riggle and daughter Gladys, and County Commissioner R. Duran came up from Lincoln Saturday, and returned in the evening, following the adjournment of the board of county commissioners.

Fleet Vernon came over from Capitan Monday, returning on yesterday morning's train. Mr. Vernon lives in Roswell, but has been up in the mountains several weeks, and before going home dropped over to greet his friends in Carrizozo.

J. H. Canning and son Frank left last evening on No. 4 for Chicago. Mr. Canning goes to purchase a winter stock of goods for the Carrizozo Trading Company, and Frank will enter the Notre Dame Institute at South Bend, Indiana.

County Commissioner White went to Alamogordo Sunday and returned Wednesday. Mr. White went to Alamo to look after the interests of Lincoln county in a suit pending in the district court, the railroad company being the opposing litigant. The hearing was postponed for two weeks.

The Carrizozo base ball team will leave Saturday morning for Capitan, where they are billed to play the "Mountaineers" that afternoon. On the following morning they will go to Fort Stanton for a brush with the famous "Coughers," who have compelled them to stretch themselves on more than one occasion. It is believed that both games will be well contested and worth going to see.

Stoddard Johnson, conductor between Carrizozo and Duran, intends to leave tomorrow for the City of Mexico, to hear Nordica, Fritz-Scheff, Tetrazzini and other famous grand opera singers. From the Mexican capital he will proceed southeast to Amecameca, and in company with some Canadian friends, attempt to climb Popocateptl, one of the highest mountains on the western hemisphere. Mr. Johnson is not going after the mountain-climbing record of Dr. Cook, nor does he intend to make a dash for the south pole. He is on a 30 days' lay-off, and will get all the pleasure he can, the other fellows may claim the glory.

Narrow Escape from Drowning Near Lincoln.

The heavy rains of last week, while of immense benefit to the range and farming lands, are reported to have caused considerable damage in some parts of the county. An arroyo on the eastern slope of the Capitan mountains, known as the Blackwater Canyon, overflowed its banks, drowning 500 head of sheep. A man named Green, while trying to get his herd to higher ground, was caught in the angry waters and carried along for several hundred yards, but was finally washed on to a bank in an exhausted condition with barely strength enough left to crawl to higher ground.

A number of the schools in the county began Monday of this week, others will begin next Monday, while still others will not begin until later in the year.

Carrizozo precinct cast only 78 votes in the election Tuesday; but no pencils were used—they went into the box just like they came from the press. There was only one ticket, and it was impossible to create any interest.

The Ruidoso summer school, which has been in session since April, closed recently. The teacher, Miss Neavitt, got married. Buck McKinney being the groom.

The summer school at Alto closes today, and the day will be given over to exercises and picnicing. Miss Mae Gilmore has been teaching the school, and the term has been six months.

Robt. A. Hurt, county assessor, was over Saturday, and filed the tax rolls for 1910 with the commissioners. The rolls were approved and one copy sent to the territorial auditor.

Dispite the hard times, of which everybody complains, the delinquent tax list of this county is smaller this year than any time for many years, perhaps, in the history of the county.

Samuel Kelsey, wife and baby went out to the Nogal mesa Sunday, where they will visit with friends pending the beginning of the Hondo school, where Mr. Kelsey is employed for the winter term.

The one-year old infant of Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Collier of White Oaks, died here Thursday afternoon. Our sincere sympathy is tendered to the parents. Interment took place in the White Oaks cemetery the following day.

Albert Ziegler, of the dry goods and haberdashery firm of Ziegler Bros., has returned from the eastern markets, where he made large purchases for the fall and winter trade. During his absence he visited the large eastern cities, in all of which he made purchases for his firm. The goods have already begun to arrive, and as he was careful in selecting them he feels they will satisfy the most fastidious.

There Should.
Fritz the gardener was a stolid German who was rarely moved to extraordinary language. Even the most provocative occasions only caused him to remark mildly on his ill-luck. Not long ago he came back from the city in the late evening after a hard day in the market place. He was sleepy, and the train being crowded, the baggageman gave him a chair in his roomy car.

Finally the train reached Bloomfield. Fritz still slept as it pulled in and his friend had to shake him and tell him where he was.

"I tanks you," said Fritz, as he rose slowly to his feet. The open door of the car was directly in front of him. He walked straight out of it.

The baggageman sprang to look after him. Fritz slowly picked himself up from the sand by the side of the track, looked up at the door, and said with no wrath in his voice:

"There should here be some steps."

Know How To Keep Cool?

LUNCHES FOR MIDDAY MEAL

Some Suggestions Which the Housewife May Find Helpful These Hot Summer Days.

Here are some suggestions to the housewife who has to put up lunches for the midday meal:

Cold baked beans with brown bread and baked apples.

Mayonnaise of cold fish with graham bread and lettuce.

Pecan and celery sandwiches seasoned with onion juice.

Potato salad with sandwiches made of hard boiled eggs.

Corned beef with rye bread, horseradish, and shredded cabbage.

Cold chops of pork, lamb or mutton wrapped in wax paper.

Apple sauce or stewed prunes with gingerbread or molasses cookies.

Broiled salmon with chopped celery and mayonnaise with white bread.

Sausage sandwiches with pickled onions, and whole wheat or rye bread.

Cottage cheese sandwiches with pickled beets and entire wheat bread.

For a wholesome and nutritious sweet stuff dates with peanuts or walnuts.

Lettuce leaves between slices of white bread thickly spread with peanut butter.

Salads of every kind make desirable additions to lunch baskets and may be carried safely if packed in covered jelly or marmalade jars.

TO MAKE DELICIOUS ICE

Orange Granite is a New One—More Cooling Than Creams in Summer.

Six oranges, a pint of orange juice, a pound of sugar and a quart of water—these are the materials needed to make a delicious ice. Ices are more cooling than creams in the summer, because the water and sugar and fruit juices digest far more easily and quickly than cream and milk. To make the granite, boil the water and sugar together for five minutes. Peel the oranges, separate the sections, remove seeds, white skin, and every bit of connecting tissue. Throw the pieces of fruit into the hot syrup, stand aside for an hour to cool, and then drain the syrup into the ice cream freezer, add the orange juice and freeze. When frozen stiff mix in the pieces of orange, and serve in glasses.

Mexican Kisses.

Put into a saucepan two cupfuls grated maple sugar or maple syrup and one-half cupful milk. Cook gently until a little dropped in cold water will ball if rubbed between the fingers. It will take ten minutes or a little less to reach this stage. Stir constantly while boiling, as it scorches easily. Add a heaping teaspoonful of butter, and as soon as melted remove from the fire and beat steadily until the mixture looks creamy and slightly granulated. Stir in at once a pound of English walnuts, broken (not chopped) into small pieces. Beat hard and turn into buttered tins to harden.

You can use brown sugar if you have no genuine maple, but add a teaspoonful of the maple flavor that can be purchased at any of the large groceries.

Dropped Biscuits.

At night make up the dough in the usual way for light bread and let it rise over night. In the morning, before kneading it, break off a piece of the dough which you think would be sufficiently large to supply the necessary wants and roll it out the same as you would for the regular yeast powder biscuit, about a quarter of an inch thick. Take a skillet and fill it two-thirds full of good lard, let it get boiling hot, then cut your biscuits out and drop them in. They will puff up and turn brown, leaving a hollow inside. Serve while hot and break open, putting the butter on the inside. Do not cut open.

SCRATCHED SO SHE COULD NOT SLEEP

"I write to tell you how thankful I am for the wonderful Cuticura Remedies. My little niece had eczema for five years and when her mother died I took care of the child. It was all over her face and body, also on her head. She scratched so that she could not sleep nights. I used Cuticura Soap to wash her with and then applied Cuticura Ointment. I did not use quite half the Cuticura Soap and Ointment, together with Cuticura Resolvent, when you could see a change and they cured her nicely. Now she is eleven years old and has never been bothered with eczema since. My friends think it is just great the way the baby was cured by Cuticura. I send you a picture taken when she was about 18 months old.

"She was taken with the eczema when two years old. She was covered with big sores and her mother had all the best doctors and tried all kinds of salves and medicines without effect until we used Cuticura Remedies. Mrs. H. Kiernan, 663 Quincy St., Brooklyn, N. Y., Sept. 27, 1909."

The Dentist's Joke.

At a recent dinner of the Author's club in London to Mr. Owen Seaman, the editor of Punch, Mr. Walter Emanuel, another member of the staff of Punch, referred to the fact that the man with the largest sense of humor he had ever struck was an Englishman—a dentist. He went to him, after suffering long with the toothache. He refused to have gas, and the dentist pulled out a tooth, leaving him writhing in pain, and took the tooth to the window, where he laughed quite heartily. He groaned, "What's the joke?" "Wrong tooth," said the dentist.

The Sisters of Charity Knew

NEW YORK.—The heroine of this strange love story is now Mrs. Edward Charles Parker. Many people in New York's literary and artistic circles have known her well as Mrs. George Homans. That marriage seems to have been unfortunate from the start, and the one tie between husband and wife was a little daughter, Sara, who promised to develop into a girl of rare charm and talent. At eleven she was earning money with her pen and she has written poetry that is deemed worth while by critics.

But in time even this tie failed to bind. The inevitable "other woman" appeared on the scene, and the wife and mother passed through that deep valley of humiliation which is so often revealed in divorce courts.

Mr. Homans, who was a theatrical manager, making a good income, continued to support his wife and daughter, but made his home with the other woman. Relatives and friends tried to induce Mrs. Homans to sue for divorce, but she firmly refused. While not a Roman Catholic, her personal religious creed did not tolerate divorce, and she declared that the day would come when the man who had married her would once more need her—and she must be ready to respond to the call.

Her very serenity in her hour of stress did much to ripen a beauty which up to that time had been merely girlish prettiness. Hair of rather nondescript tone turned to an exquisite gray, accentuating the deep glow of hazel eyes. With her slim girlish figure—though she was close to thirty—and fresh, delicate complexion, she made a charming picture.

At least that was what Dr. Edward Charles Parker, professor of literature in the manual training school of Philadelphia, thought when he saw her standing, bewildered and anxious, in the crowded waiting-room of a local station. He passed her, turned and looked back. She was still in the same position, but now she was turning her handbag and her coat pocket inside out. The look of anxiety grew, and finally as what she sought was not unearthed, a blank look settled on her face. It was quite clear, the fair New Yorker had lost her purse. And the Philadelphia physician, being resourceful and alert, felt impelled to go gallantly to the rescue.

"Can I be of service to you?"

Beginning of the Romance.

A perfectly conventional question, uttered in a perfectly well-bred voice. The New York woman flushed, paled—and considered.

"It is just a trifle. My purse has been taken, and my friends live some distance out. I haven't got the price of a phone call—"

"Permit me, please!"

Of course, he wanted to call a cab, but Mrs. Homans insisted that a plain Philadelphia street car would be quite as well—and would he tell her where to return the change he had so kindly lent her?

Now, of course, Professor Parker never would have missed the nickel or two, but not for worlds would he miss the opportunity of meeting this fair woman again. He gave her a card. She opened her bag and drew out one of her cards on which Professor Parker wrote the address of the friend she was visiting. If she did not mind, he would call for that little loan in person. Then he put her on the right car, lifted his hat—and Cupid, perched on the portico of that sordid, dingy old railway station, turned somersaults of glee!

The professor called the next day, and the next, and still again. Then Mrs. Homans had to return to New York. What is ninety miles to a man in love? Nothing!

But when Professor Parker came to New York he found that something far more baffling and grave than space stood between him and the woman he had loved at first sight. Mrs. Homans' views concerning the permanency of marriage vows had not altered simply because love had come into her life. She was not sure that happiness would follow the breaking of that promise made at the altar years before. And between the power of her old beliefs and the call of the newly found love, she was sadly torn. To use her own words:

'Tween Love and Duty.

"I was between two fires. I had married George for better, for worse. Somehow I felt that when it came to the worse for him he would summon me. On the other hand, I had the natural womanly craving for the real love which is the consummation of life for a woman.

"Doctor Parker was in Philadelphia, as I knew grieving over the situation, which somehow I felt powerless to alter. Even my daughter, who was now in her teens, urged me not to stand in the way of our happiness. But I was restless, undecided, distraught; when one day two lovely little gray-gowned nuns came to the door at my apartment in One Hundred and Ninth street asking for charity. No one will ever know what a sudden feeling of peace swept over me as I looked into their calm, beautiful faces. I felt that here were women who had attained peace through doing what they thought was right. I asked them to come in, and we talked. The younger sister of the two looked, as I thought, with just a little regret at my comfortable home, my worldly clothes, and said gently: 'You must be very happy.'

"No," I replied, 'I am very unhappy.'

"Then, suddenly, the elder sister turned to me and, clasping my hand, said: 'But you are going to be very happy soon, because you are struggling to do what you think is right.'

"I had told them nothing of my private affairs, but the words sounded like a prophecy and I regained my courage.

"It was only a few days later that fate, moving in its inscrutable way, unlocked the door that was to let me into my kingdom of happiness. When my husband, dying of consumption, sent a summons to me I could hardly interpret it as leading me a step nearer to that happiness. But it did, and in a strange way.

"I answered his summons. I found him in a pitiable condition, his health shattered, his life hanging on a thread, his earning capacity gone and, during his months of illness, his savings used up. In common charity there was nothing for me to do but to look after his welfare in the few weeks he had to live.

A Wife's Devotion.

"I took him to my home, nursed him, saw that he had the best medical service and did everything in my power for him. There were even then friends who told me that I was foolish—that I should not take on myself the responsibility of looking after the man who had treated me as he had done. But I had felt that it was all a part of a Big Scheme, bigger than we could arrange, and against the workings of which none of us should rebel.

"But, as my husband lay dying in my apartments, it became evident that, while I was doing everything in my power for him, I was not supplying him with the one thing that he needed more than all else to ease his last hours. He must have the presence of 'the other woman.' I determined that he should.

"My friends were aghast when I told them that I was going to send for her. It was outrageous, they declared, for me to allow myself to be so humbled as to permit her to come. They would not permit me to let her come to my home. Very well, then, I thought, there are other ways of accomplishing the sacrifice that I felt bound to make. I would take my dying husband elsewhere, and there send for the woman whose presence he craved.

"I did so. I removed him to Atlantic City, and then I sent for her, and she came. I brought her myself into his dying bedchamber and I saw them clasping hands. It did not make me unhappy—that is, any unhappier than I already was. In fact, it rather cheered me to think that I had done something which, while it hurt my pride a little, perhaps, was making others less miserable.

"Mr. Homans died in Atlantic City. She was with him at the time and she was very, very unhappy. I think that her presence in his last hours made it easier for him, but at the same time I know that when he passed away it was with a last look toward me, and not to her—there was love and there was gratitude to repay me for everything in that look!

"And then, but not until then, did I feel that I had earned the right to think of that other love which was awaiting me and which I craved so. I had no false sentiments about the length of time I should wait before allowing myself to become happy in the possession of this love. I had been mourning, you must remember, and I had been practically a widow for many, many years. There was no reason why I should prolong it more.

"My meeting with Doctor Parker was, of course, unconventional. My wooing by him was equally unconventional. Everything has been unconventional, perhaps. Why, then, I have been asked, did I so wait on convention as to refuse to obtain a divorce and marry my present husband when I might have done so months and months ago? I reply, because it did not seem right. I am governed in everything by that sense of right, and it never fails to make me happy in the long run.

"I believe that there is great happiness in store for me and my husband. I believe so firmly in his future. He will never be very rich, perhaps, because he is above all things a student, but I shall have reason to be proud of his work. He has done some admirable literary work and is now writing a serious volume which will challenge attention. And, after all, faith and love will bring the happiness which money has never been known to purchase."

Mrs. Parker is still under forty, possessing more than ordinary beauty and rare gifts, including a delightful voice which has brought her many offers for opera. She is not interested in a career for herself, though she is planning one for her daughter, who, inheriting her mother's vocal gifts, will make her debut this coming fall.

And there is the story of a woman who had the courage to wait. And you see the same thing might happen to any woman or any man. Only—how many would have the courage to wait until fate opened the door to happiness?

After Suffering With Kidney Disorders for Many Years.

Mrs. John S. Way, 209 S. 8th St., Independence, Kans., says: "For a number of years I was a victim of disordered kidneys. My back ached sage of the kidney constantly, the perspiration was irregular and my feet and ankles were badly swollen. Spots often appeared before my eyes and I became very nervous. After using numerous remedies without relief I was completely cured by Doan's Kidney Pills. This seems remarkable when you consider my advanced age."

A Real Argument.

They were talking about argument not in the abstract but as applying to domestic happiness. "What do you think is the most unanswerable argument you ever heard?" one bachelor asked a married man.

"That's very easy," he replied. "When your wife says, 'If they can afford it we can,' there is no flaw in that—and never will be."—Youth's Companion.
