CONSTITUTION OPINION

Leading Democratic Lawyers of New Mexico Give Their Views to Current Readers

H.B. FERGUSON AND C.R. BRICE

Read and Reflect on Which of the two is Right.

C. R. Brice, one of the constitutional delegates for Eddy county, who returned last week from Santa Fe, was interviewed by a Current reporter concerning the constitution, and in substance had the following to say:

"The constitution, as adopted, is not by any means all the democracy of New Mexico could wish. The principal objection to the constitution from the democratic standpoint is the failure to incorporate direct legislation. I was especially disappointed on account of the failure to submit the prohibition question to the vote of the people, or at least local option; but nearly all of the delegates from the west side of the territory, including democrats and republicans were opposed to this and of a consequence we were very much in the minority. The constitution compares very favorably with that of most of the states which have not adopted progressive ideas. Some of the provisions that offset the failure to incorporate direct legislation etc., are those providing for the election of all officers including judges of courts and the corporation commission; the placing of all county officers on salaries and abolishing the fee system; the creation of a corporation commission; providing penal statutes against bribery and corrupt solicitation by legislators; a reasonably fair apportionment; the preventing of county and state officials to succeed themselves and county officials from holding any other office for four years after the expiration of their terms; the limitation on the power of the state to tax people, and the limitation of the power of the state, counties and municipalities to bond themselves.

The corporation commission is not all that I could wish. The minority report by the democratic committee on corporations, in my judgment, was a much better provision. While the commission has limited powers, it will be effective as a rate making body. It is provided that the commission shall represent New Mexico before the Interstate Commerce Commission, which to my mind is the most important duty it has, nearly all of the traffic in which the people of New Mexico are interested being interstate.

Once in each eight years beginning with the second legislature a majority of the members of each house of the legislature may submit three proposed amendments of the constitution to the people for ratification; at all other times it will require two-thirds of each house to submit such proposed amendments to the people. This makes the constitution slightly easier to amend than that of states having no provision for amendments by the initiative.

After the constitution had been adopted section by section I voted to submit the same to the people for ratification or rejection, believing that it was my duty to place the matter in the hands of the people; stating, however, at the time my objections to the constitution and the purpose of my vote and distinctly refusing to approve it.

In my judgment the adoption of the constitution is not a political matter, but each individual should determine for himself whether or not it is such a constitution as would justify its adoption and vote accordingly.

Individually I would prefer to adopt the constitution and have state government rather than be longer controlled by carpet baggers and other appointees from Washington.

Albuquerque, N. M., Nov. 24, 1910.
Editor Morning Journal:

In the issue of the Morning journal of this date you use, among other expressions relative to the undersigned, the following words:

"He has announced that he will fight the constitution, and thus fight statehood, because the document enslaves the people in political peonage."

The words to which I particularly object are these: "And thus fight statehood;" which words place me, and all others, who object to the constitution as just promulgated by the convention, in the attitude of opposing statehood.

To show that this accusation is incorrectly, some of it inadvertently, made, I quote briefly from the enabling act of congress authorizing our admission to the Union with Arizona, to-wit:

"If a majority of the legal votes cast at said election shall reject the constitution the said canvassing board shall forthwith certify said result together with the statement of votes cast upon the ratification or rejection of said constitution, and also a statement of the votes cast for or against such provisions thereof as were separately submitted to the voters at said election, whereupon the governor of said territory shall, by proclamation, order the constitutional convention to reassemble at a date not later than twenty days after the receipt by said governor of the documents showing the rejection of the constitution by the people, and thereafter a new constitution shall be framed and the same proceedings shall be taken in regard thereto in like manner as if said constitution were being originally prepared for submission, and submitted to the people."

It is therefore plain that in opposing this constitution, the first offered to the people, I am not opposing statehood, even under the present enabling act. That enabling act provides for a referendum of the first draft of a constitution to the people, to be by the people passed upon; and if the people reject it, such rejection will amount to instructions by the people to their servants, the delegates composing the constitutional convention, to write an other constitution.

I stood by, at every session of the constitutional convention, and saw the instrument made, and know its contents, and know its most significant omissions. I believe, from intimate acquaintance, not only with its every provision, but with the manner and conduct with which the majority turned down every progressive principle, that the constitution as so far framed, is unworthy of the new state, and that if the people will reject it, under this beneficent referendum provided by congress, the delegates will, on reassembling, make a better constitution, and that long before the next presidential election we shall become a state, under the enabling act, and a constitution which will insure to the great, moral, progressive public opinion of our state some voice in governing the state of New Mexico.

That is the kind of statehood which we can get, if we show the bosses and self-seekers that the people have nerve as well as intelligence.

Elks' Memorial.

The following program will be rendered at the high school auditorium at 3 P. M. Sunday in honor of departed Elks. These services are held on the first Sunday in December each year and though Carlsbad has no lodge of Elks the stray elks in this vicinity generally make as good a showing as those of many towns where large lodges are in force. From present indications the Auditorium will be filled to overflowing for the governor will be present and the program is worthy a much larger town:

Board of Registration Appointed

A short session of the board of county commissioners was held in the office of County Clerk O'Quinn last Tuesday evening. In the absence of the chairman, E. P. Bajae, C. W. Beeman was elected chairman. It was moved and carried that C. W. Beeman be empowered to name a student to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Ernest Parris.

The following board of registration for the constitutional election was named for the various voting precincts:

Precinct No. 1, N. Cunningham, J. A. Froman and C. H. Klauder.

Prec. No. 2, O. C. Epperson, Frank Easterbrook and R. D. Bruce.

Prec. No. 3, Ed. Scoggins, H. M. Gage and C. M. Botts.

Real.
The frost is on the pumpkin, and the campers homeward flock. There's a sad look appertaining to the witted hollyhock. The farmers are preparing for the coming county fair. And the straw hat's relegated to a place beneath the stairs. The ballhead shows a ticket for the first or second row. And the bus politicians sound their keynotes high and low.

To Swear, or Not to Swear.
A woman was called before one of the New York police courts as a witness in a petty case.
"Swear the witness," said the judge.
"I don't want to," she protested.
"But you must."
"Must I swear?"
"Certainly, do not delay this trial."
"Well," she said, "if I must I suppose I must—Darn!"—Saturday Evening Post.

Carlsbad Current established November 15, 1902. New Mexico Sun established May 12, 1905. The two papers consolidated October 11, 1907.

Official Paper of Eddy County.

The Park Commission.

Halagueno Park has been an eye sore and disgrace to Carlsbad for lo, these many years but at last a very necessary board has been created to look after it and is known as the Park Commission. This board consists of Mrs. C. M. Richards, J. R. Linn and I. S. Osborne and a better or more competent body of citizens could not be selected to improve the town by first commencing on the park. The commission met a couple of weeks ago and decided to commence operations. They at once put teams to work to lower the entire surface of the park about seven inches so as to permit of irrigation, after which the ground is to be fertilized and trees set out. The funds for the payment of the work it is expected to raise by public contribution, and all who contribute, be it ever so difficult to spare, may rest assured that not a cent will be wasted, for Mr. I. S. Osborne has the superintending of the work now in progress and if there is a man in Eddy county who can make a dollar go farther than "Uncle Irv" in such work he must show his hand at the business for it has yet to be seen. The amount necessary to beautify the park is small and if all will contribute according to their means, especially those with property near the park, it will be no trouble to get money. Some $800.00 will be required, but this will soon be raised if all assist. The Park commission desires suggestions as to how to do the work and will welcome any criticism before, but not after, the work is done.

For some unaccountable reason there is a movement on foot to rename Carlsbad by adding a string of seven letters to the already long name so that in the future deeds may read: "Formerly Eddy, formerly Carlsbad, at present Carlsbad Springs." It will be next in order to call the town Carlsbadville Springville City for if it improves a town to double the number of letters in its name it will certainly make it a big city to double it again. Then it would be such a convenience and distinction for the postoffice department to have all the words to write and the railway would certainly profit by having the town with the longest name on earth on its spur road. The cow punchers would, however, still say "Carl is bad enough."

Despite all reports to the contrary a revolution exists in Mexico. The revolutionists have been repulsed but have backed up into the mountains and will no doubt continue their warfare for some time to come. It is therefore dangerous to visit Mexico at present.

The Reeves County Record is a new paper at Pecos City, Texas. With the Times publishing a daily and weekly it would seem that Pecos was well provided at present with papers.

With the return of the fall season and as the farmers of the northern and eastern states get their crops "laid by" and have a few days or weeks of leisure time on their hands they usually avail themselves of the opportunity of coming to the Pecos Valley and acquainting themselves with the country, climate and conditions generally. During the past week a large number of farmers were here from southern Kansas, Missouri and some few from Illinois who were shown through the valley by the enterprising real estate men of Carlsbad. Several of those who came invested in small tracts of land ranging from forty to one hundred and sixty acres and have since returned to their homes to dispose of their holdings with the view of returning to the Pecos Valley in time to begin preparations for crop planting next spring. As many as eight different families are expected to come to Carlsbad between now and the first of the year and with an energetic and industrious bunch of agents working throughout the north and east it is more than probable that each excursion will see a large number of prospectors reach Carlsbad before that time. Three different parties were here last week all of whom expressed themselves as being especially well pleased with this section of the valley and declared their intention of returning here before the winter season is over and investing in farm lands under the project.

The fact that the Carlsbad project consists of about fifteen thousand acres of the most fertile land in the United States, is watered by the Pecos river whose never failing source of supply finds its head in the mountains of northern New Mexico and is fed by springs throughout its entire length, passing, as it does, through the artesian section of the upper valley. By recent decisions of the supreme court its entire flow has been appropriated for the exclusive use of the Carlsbad project which makes it an attraction outranking all competitive systems. This fact supplemented also by the fact that the reclamation service has already expended over seven hundred thousand dollars in the project and is now arranging and planning for the expenditure of several hundred thousand dollars more in its betterment and improvement, assures to the farmers, both present and prospective, water in abundance for any and every variety of crop known to this section of the country.

The experimental period has been passed and the farmers under the Carlsbad project are entering upon an era of prosperity never before known in the west. The successes achieved during the past few years are but assurances of even greater ones in store in the future. Cotton, alfalfa and fruits are the chief money makers at the present time, all of which seem to be especially adapted to the soil, water and climatic conditions. The market returns from these products alone, this season, have added materially to the bank accounts of the individual farmers and have also attracted the attention of the commercial interests to the Carlsbad project as an agricultural section the products of which rank superior to any section where the same crops are grown under rain fall. The long dry seasons of perpetual sunshine, the proper application of water in quantities mathematically and scientifically correct and as it is needed make the growth and maturity of the crops an absolute certainty and is a condition which appeals most strongly to farmers who have for years labored faithfully and industriously in other sections of the country only to see their efforts washed away by excessive rains or withered and blighted by a prolonged dry season.

The large farms are giving way to the smaller tracts which are rapidly proving their value as better investments with each season and which, also, reverts indirectly to the advantage of the owner of the latter by bringing in more farmers, the community is settled more thickly and by organizing and concentrating their efforts and forces their products can be handled and shipped in larger quantities and in a more satisfactory manner, commanding better prices. Already permanent organizations have been perfected among the alfalfa and cantaloupe growers and others will follow as rapidly as the producers develop and the needs of the occasion demand.

The price of farm lands is now at its lowest figure and each successive season will doubtless see a gradual advance as the quality and quantity of the crops increase.

A most energetic campaign of advertising is being conducted by the real estate agencies which are operating throughout the eastern central states and also through one of the strongest factors, the railroad company, which maintains an industrial agency for the sole purpose of bringing the merits of the Carlsbad project, among others, to the attention of the thousands of homeseekers scattered throughout the country.

By those who are in a position to know it is confidently expected the coming season will see the largest immigration of homeseekers to the southwest ever witnessed and by this time next season a growth heretofore unequalled will be enjoyed by this section of the Pecos Valley.

Irregular bowel movements lead to chronic constipation and a constipated habit fills the system with impurities. HERBINE is a great bowel regulator. It purifies the system, vitalizes the blood and puts the digestive organs in fine vigorous condition. Price 50c. Sold by Eddy Drug company.

News was received here last Saturday of the death of Miss Myrtis Sinclair, at her home in McComb, Mississippi, after a long illness of tuberculosis. She had been a resident of this city for over two years coming with the hope of receiving benefit from this climate and only leaving when it became evident that no more could be done. Miss Sinclair was a young lady of fine education, and possessed a winning personality and the capacity of making friends of all with whom she came in contact and many friends in this city are sad because of her passing. She was a sister of Mrs. Rev. H. J. Cumpston to whom the sympathies of her many friends are extended.

The Medal contest given at the Auditorium last Friday night under the auspices of the W. C. T. U., was a very interesting affair, especially to the contestants, of whom there were five, and their many friends. The young misses acquitted themselves admirably. Miss Mable Collins was the fortunate winner of the prize, a silver medal. This is the second in a series of six contests to be given by the W. C. T. U., after which the six winners will compete for a gold medal. The third contest in the series will be given some time during the holidays and will be under the management of Mrs. J. I. Penny, which of itself is a guarantee of its success. The judges Friday night were Reverends Cumpston and Davis and Judge Grantham.

Misses Jim Penny, Aileen Grantam and Maude Lucas were a merry trio who spent Thanksgiving in Roswell, going up Wednesday afternoon and returning Sunday night. While in Roswell they were guests of Misses Dunn and Tucker.

Ye Olde Folks Concert.
All ye olde folks, new folks, young folks,
Hear ye olde songs and ye olde jokes,
Hear ye tunes and all ye rounds,
Hear ye fiddle, sweet it sounds,
See ye folks of olden times,
Hear them sing ye rounds and rhymes;
See ye dresse of long ago
At ye Old Folks' merrie show.

The first Japanese to locate in Carlsbad came this week, and they are three young men who will open a restaurant. During the past season they in company with four others, raised and put up 16,000 cans of tomatoes at Lakewood, besides a crop of canteloupes.

Guy Benson is on the sick list and is reported quite ill.

J. S. Osborne has been under the weather for a few days.

Prof. Fred L. Charles, professor of agricultural education at the University of Illinois, who has been visiting friends at Otis, has kindly consented to deliver a lecture before the Farmer's club at Otis on "Country Schools for Country Life," Sunday evening, December 4th. Professor Charles is a well known authority on agricultural education and has this branch in charge at the university. The lecture will begin at 7 o'clock P. M. All are welcome.

W. B. Wilson, President.

The Carlsbad W. C. T. U. held its regular monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. J. I. Penny last Monday afternoon with a good attendance. Much routine business was transacted and the play which the union contemplates putting on early in February, were read. One new member was received. The next meeting will be held December 26th at the home of Mrs. C. H. Dishman.

Notice to Company B.

The Governor will arrive in Carlsbad on the evening of December 3rd. In case the train is on time he will arrive there, I believe, at 8:00 P. M. I wish you would please turn out your company and escort the Governor to the armory where he and I will inspect the company immediately after the arrival of the train at Carlsbad on Saturday night.

You will also please detail a neat soldierly private and have him report to the Governor as his orderly during his stay in Carlsbad.

The Governor will leave Carlsbad at 5:15 A. M. Monday morning, December 5th.

Respectfully,

(signed) A. S. Brookes,
Adjutant General.

The company officers realize that Saturday night is the worst time in the week to request attendance of all the members of the company, but it is very important that the company make the very best of this opportunity before these officials, and the business men who have in their employ members of the company are urgently requested to arrange to let these men off Saturday evening so they may report at the Armory not later than 7 P. M.

HEAD OF THE DAIRY HERD

An Inferior Bull Sure to Prove a Costly Investment.

The average farmer who is raising his own dairy calves little appreciates the net cost of a cheap or inferior bull when in search of an animal to head his herd. This is well illustrated in a herd of dairy cattle of which we have very accurate data as to the flow of milk and the amount of butter fat produced during the past four generations, writes Professor M. W. Harper of Cornell University.

In this particular herd the condition, such as the breeding of the cows, the feeding and the management were as even throughout the four generations as could be obtained in practice, so that any marked increase or decrease in the production of the offspring can be credited to the sire used.

The first sire under observation got three producing females that averaged 290 pounds of fat a year. The second bull even exceeded the first, as he got nine producing females that averaged

ORDER OF A GOOD JERSEY COW.

392 pounds of fat a year. The third bull used was rather inferior and illustrates the point at issue. He got eight producing females that averaged only 285 pounds of fat a year. This is a falling off of 107 pounds per cow a year. For the eight females this means a loss of 856 pounds of butter fat a year, which at 40 cents a pound means an annual loss of $342.40 so long as these cows are retained.

If they are retained five years after they begin to produce, which is, per haps, the average length of time for animals of this kind to breed, then the loss amounts to over $1,700. This represents the actual loss to the farmer on account of the use of this particular sire. The female get of the fourth sire are at the present time just beginning to produce and there is not enough data at hand to judge accurately their average production.

From this illustration it would seem that the farmer or dairyman in search of an animal to head his herd should be very careful in his choice. He should not trust to chance, but should select an animal whose ancestors have been uniformly noted for their high production.

Feeding the Calf.

The calves should be well fed, but a lot of calves are fed to death. Four quarts of skim milk a day is enough for a four weeks old calf. As soon as any sign of bowel trouble shows in the droppings reduce the quantity of milk. Give the calf all the hay and bran it will eat and let it run on grass, but do not overfeed on skim milk. The calf that is reared naturally gets only a small quantity of milk at a time, and the wild cow does not give much at any time.

Look to the Horse's Feet.

Horses with tender feet need lots of attention. It should be remembered that a horse can do no more than his feet will stand.

HARD FIGHT AHEAD.

Vigorous Measures Needed to Save Country's Bean Crops From Disease.

We are beginning to see signs of an threatened appearing in this country, and the disease will have to be fought hammer and tongs to keep it within control, says Field and Farm of Denver. The cut shows the appearance of the fungus. When the disease reaches this stage Bordeaux mixture has been effective in downing it in the west. We have the advantage of a dry climate not only in growing beans, but in fighting the diseases which attack the crop. Nearly every one is familiar with the spotted appearance of snap beans and especially of the wax podded varieties.

Practically all parts of the bean plant except the roots are subject to attack. The most common indication of the presence of the disease is the occurrence of brown or black sunken areas on the stems, leaves and pods. They may also appear on the seed leaves and stems of the plant soon after appearing above ground and cause considerable losses through a reduction in the stand.

On the older plants the attack is most serious on the larger veins of the leaves, and the leaf may be wholly destroyed or its efficiency greatly reduced. From the stems and leaves the fungus spreads to the pods.
