CARRIZOZO, LINCOLN COUNTY, NEW MEXICO, NOVEMBER 11, 1910.

NUMBER 40

SLIDE, SLID, SLIDDEN.

Slide—to toboggan; the start began before the polls opened Tuesday morning.

Slid—Near the bottom of the toboggan, past the reverse lever clutch; three o'clock in the afternoon—Date November 8.

Slidden—The act of reaching the bottom, being struck dumb, as it were; nothing, absolutely nothing to say, as is the gentleman at Oyster Bay, who has retired behind the doors at his home, and, in silence, is listening to the oyster bay.

The foregoing contains the principal parts of the verb, and those who are not too badly disappointed may read what is to come, and follow its ramifications through all its cases, persons, numbers, modes and tenses. The election Tuesday was a complete LANDSLIDE, the republican party suffering the worst defeat in its history, with one exception.

The next house of representatives will be democratic by a majority of 59. A number of state legislatures in hitherto republican states have chosen a majority of democrats, thus insuring additional democratic United States senators. All the big states of the east, with the exception of Pennsylvania, went democratic. A notable exception to the general democratic victory was that of Tennessee, where the republican nominee, endorsed by the independent democrats, was elected governor.

The following is a synopsis of the results by states:

Alabama.—Everything democratic.

Arkansas.—Everything democratic.

California.—Johnson, republican, elected governor; congressional delegation republican; legislature republican.

Colorado.—Shafroth, democrat, elected governor; democratic congressional delegation.

Connecticut.—Baldwin, democrat, elected governor; republicans win congressmen with one exception.

Delaware.—Republicans elect congressman-at-large, and have a majority of the state legislature.

Florida.—Everything democratic.

Georgia.—Everything democratic.

Idaho.—Hawley, democrat, was elected governor; republicans elected congressman-at-large.

Illinois.—Democrats elect a majority of congressional delegation. More lame political ducks in Illinois than almost any other political division.

Indiana.—If the democrats have not elected every congressman they have only missed it one. The legislature is democratic and will elect Kern to succeed Beveridge.

Iowa.—Vote very close on gubernatorial candidates, with Carroll, republican, leading. Two years ago the republicans had a majority of 107,000. The democrats get three congressmen.

Kansas.—The first returns indicated that Kansas had joined the merry throng, but it is now conceded that Stubbs, republican has been elected governor by a small plurality. The congressional delegation is solidly republican.

Kentucky.—Democrats gain one member of the congressional delegation.

Louisiana.—Everything democratic.

Maryland.—Republicans have possibly saved one congressman from the wreck, if not they have drawn a blank.

Massachusetts.—Foss, democrat, elected governor by 25,000. Congressional delegation split, legislature in doubt, with the indications that a democrat will succeed Henry Cabot Lodge in the United States senate.

Michigan.—Everything republican.

Minnesota.—Everything republican with the exception of one congressman.

Mississippi.—Everything democratic.

Missouri.—Democrats gain one congressman and 30 members of the legislature. A democratic United States senator will succeed Warner, republican.

Montana.—Possibly republican congressman; democratic legislature, which will elect a United States senator to succeed Carter, republican.

Nebraska.—Aldrich, republican elected governor; congressional delegation divided; legislature democratic. Hitchcock, democrat, to succeed Burkett, republican, in United States senate.

Nevada.—Political complexion of legislature in doubt; result in all contests close.

New Hampshire.—Everything republican.

New Jersey.—Wilson, democrat, elected governor by 20,000; 8 of the 10 congressmen are democrats, and the legislature, which is to elect a United States senator, is democratic.

New York.—Dix, democrat, is elected governor by 65,000. Of the 37 congressmen the republicans got 13. The legislature is democratic, and will send a democrat to the United States senate to succeed Depew, republican. Teddy has nothing, absolutely nothing to say—for once.

North Carolina.—Everything is democratic.

North Dakota.—Burke, democrat, elected governor; legislature republican, and two congressmen also republican.

Ohio.—Harmon, democrat, governor by 30,000. The republicans also lost three congressmen and possibly the legislature, which is to elect a United States senator to succeed Dick, republican.

Oklahoma.—Democrats won by 30,000. Republicans hold two congressional seats.

Oregon.—Count slow; result on governor in doubt, but chances favor West, democrat. Congressional delegation republican.

Pennsylvania.—Tener, republican, elected governor by 100,000. Democrats made gains in congressional delegation.

Rhode Island.—The republicans carry state by small plurality, and each party gets a congressman.

South Carolina.—Everything is democratic.

South Dakota.—Everything is republican.

Tennessee.—Hooper, republican elected governor by 15,000; legislature democratic; congressional delegation unchanged.

SMALL THINGS THAT COUNT

Attention to Trifles Will Go Far Toward Doing Away with Danger in the Household.

Never fill an oil lamp while it is alight. It is quite easy for the vapor to catch fire and set the spirit or oil ablaze, and an explosion will most likely follow. Always turn the lamp out before refilling it.

After filling a lamp be careful to wipe the outside dry, for any trickle of oil on the sides might easily catch fire.

Don't allow the oil to stand in the lamp very long. If it is not burned it should be thrown away. It gathers impurities and increases the risk of an explosion. For the same reason always keep the kerosene can well corked.

Be careful when you light a fire in the kitchen that there is plenty of water in the boiler. Otherwise, when the cold water rushes into the hot boiler it is likely to crack it.

Don't put clothes round the fire to dry and then go to bed and leave them. A spark might easily fly out of the fire and set them alight. Never leave a wood fire unguarded.

Don't try to make a fire draw by holding a newspaper in front of it. If it doesn't set fire in the mantelpiece or to your own clothes, it may fly up the chimney and result in a fire.

If you use a gas stove, never leave it with anything that might boil over. It is quite possible for soup or milk boiling over to put out the gas flame and the escaping gas will fill the room, and should some one come in with a light, an explosion must follow.

THE PROPER WAY TO SWEEP

Principal Work, It Must Be Remembered, Consists in Getting the Room Ready.

To sweep a room is little—but to get it ready for sweeping takes some time.

Each upholstered piece of furniture should be carefully brushed and plain polished surfaces wiped with a slightly damp cloth, then rubbed with a dry one and moved out of the room.

A paint brush is excellent to remove the dust that will lodge in carved parts, or if in crevices a very tiny brush or a wooden skewer can be used. If there are moldings at the top of the wall, use a long-handled brush if it is perfectly clean. If it isn't, tie a duster over it. Brush the ceilings and walls in the same way.

Do not open the windows till the actual sweeping is finished, or the current of air will scatter the dirt over the room again.

Sprinkle salt or tea leaves on the floor and work from the corners to the center of the room. The stroke should be long, the broom always on the floor pushing the dirt before it, not setting it in motion by swinging it around.

Snowballs.

Cream one-half pound of butter and add one-half pound of sugar. Flavor with one teaspoonful of vanilla. Sift together one-half pound of flour and a teaspoonful of baking powder. Add part of the flour to the butter and sugar, then add one-half pound of blanched and chopped almonds, one-half pound of sliced citron, and one-half pound of coconut. Beat the whites of eight eggs to a stiff froth and stir into the mixture. Then add the rest of the flour. Bake in patty pans and ice with a frosting flavored with lemon juice.

Eggs a la Golden Rod.

One tablespoonful of butter, one tablespoonful of flour, half teaspoonful salt, half teaspoonful pepper, one cup milk, three hard-boiled eggs, three slices toast, parsley. Put butter in a chafing dish and when bubbling add the flour, salt, pepper and gradually the milk. Add the whites of the eggs chopped fine. When hot pour over the toast. Rub the yolks through a strainer over all and garnish with parsley.

The Weeds Return.

"Confound these election bets, anyway!" grumbled Harker. "Lose heavily?" inquired his friend. "No, I won ten boxes of cigars and they were so rank I sold the whole lot to the corner tobacconist for a dollar." "Well, you made a dollar, anyway." "Yes, but that is not the worst of it. My wife saw the boxes in the window marked 'A Bargain, $2,' and bought the whole lot to give me as a birthday present."

BABY'S SKIN TORTURE

"When our baby was seven weeks old he broke out with what we thought was heat, but which gradually grew worse. We called in a doctor. He said it was eczema and from that time we doctored six months with three of the best doctors in Atchison but he only got worse. His face, head and hands were a solid sore. There was no end to the suffering for him. We had to tie his little hands to keep him from scratching. He never knew what it was to sleep well from the time he took the disease until he was cured. He kept us awake all hours of the night and his health wasn't what you would call good. We tried everything but the right thing."

"Finally I got a set of the Cuticura Remedies and I am pleased to say we did not use all of them until he was cured. We have waited a year and a half to see if it would return but it never has and to-day his skin is clear and fair as it possibly could be. I hope Cuticura may save some one else's little ones suffering and also their pocket-books. John Lenson, 1403 Atchison St., Atchison, Kan., Oct. 19, 1909."

Woman's Power Over Man

Woman's most glorious endowment is the power to awaken and hold the pure and honest love of a worthy man. When she loses it and still loves on, no one in the wide world can know the heart agony she endures. The woman who suffers from weakness and derangement of her special womanly organism soon loses the power to sway the heart of a man. Her general health suffers and she loses her good looks, her attractiveness, her amiability and her power and prestige as a woman. Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., with the assistance of his staff of able physicians, has prescribed for and cured many thousands of women. He has devised a successful remedy for woman's ailments. It is known as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It is a positive specific for the weaknesses and disorders peculiar to women. It purifies, regulates, strengthens and heals. Medicine dealers sell it. No honest dealer will advise you to accept a substitute in order to make a little larger profit.

CAVALIERI-CHANLER.

A WOLF OF TRAGEDY ON A WOLF OF ROMANCE.

FOR the light that lay in Cleopatra's eyes Antony tossed away his share of the threefold world, and if the Greek historians are to be believed, Helen of Troy kept men fighting by land and sea for ten long years. That these women were beautiful the world must believe. It has no better authority for the fact than that upon which it bases the tradition that Julius Caesar had red hair and that immortal Homer was blind.

But today, when beauty's secrets can be learned out of a book with almost the same precision as biscuit making, when newspapers publish the pictures of professional beauties in every corner of the globe and every country and every race has innumerable candidates for the prize, Lina Cavalleri, the cafe singer of a dozen years ago, the prima donna of today, can be called "the most beautiful woman in the world" with no voice raised against her title. The career of this extraordinary woman whose beauty has dazzled two continents and whose conquests have grown until she classifies them by nationalities, would have a place in mythology with Venus and Minerva had she lived in the heroic age. Poets would have sung her conquests and kings would have bled and died (but mostly vicariously) for her smile.

But La Cavalleri does not live in an heroic age. She lives in an extremely practical and business-like one, and instead of having kings for her vassals, has more wisely chosen millionaires. With these bound to her chariot wheels by the kind of shackles men will wear when pierced by love's poison-sweet dart she has held a continuous triumphant progress through Europe for ten years, and the world has become so used to the spectacle that not much notice is taken except when one of her slaves falls on the road and the chariot rolls over him, and he is left behind with the dust of it in his eyes and his broken ropes of flowers and tinsel dangling round his neck.

Such a one is the beautiful Lina's latest fancy, her husband of a few months, Robert Winthrop Chanler, member of an aristocratic and wealthy New York family, relative of the Astors and one time sheriff of Dutchess county.

A Flower Girl's Fate.

Natalina Cavalleri was born in Rome, the daughter of a janitor. Her teens overtook her bare kneed, selling flowers on the Piazza Colonna. Even then a wild uncultured Italian beauty looked out of her big black eyes through a tangle of raven hair—a picturesque daughter of her race and calling. Even then Lina had a voice, and it charmed many a traveler who stopped to buy a flower out of her basket without exactly having any present necessity for flowers. Lina had a little convent breeding and was not a bit afraid of the world, and she found it but a step from selling flowers on the Piazza to singing nights to the gay crowds that thronged the cafes. There were plenty of admirers there to tell her she had a voice, plenty more to tell her she was beautiful. It is a question, perhaps, to which the budding beauty gave the most ear, at any rate her triumphs both as a singer and a beauty have known no check from that hour.

From Rome Cavalleri drifted to Milan and Vienna, singing in the cafes, in music halls and in vaudeville theaters, and one morning Paris woke up to find her the reigning sensation at the Folies Bergere, where her singing and dancing opened a new world before her—a world which must have been a revelation to the flower girl of the Piazza Colonna, but of which she was not slow to take full advantage. Rue de la Paix gowns, jewels, carriages and a fine house became Cavalleri as naturally as her glossy black hair. The dressmakers quickly found their creations looked better on her supple figure than in their shop windows, and there is no better advertisement for a Paris dressmaker than to have his gowns admired from the boxes where enraptured audiences applaud a reigning favorite.

Her First Step to Power.

It was in Paris that Cavalleri made her first great conquest and one that had a far-reaching effect on her subsequent career. Prince Alexander Barlatinski, a younger son of a noble Russian house, fell a victim to her beauty and lent his rubles and his influence to push her fortunes with the operatic managers. But for the prince perhaps Lina never would have risen higher than the Folies Bergere, for, after all, she was a better dancer than singer at that time, and a more successful beauty than either a singer or dancer. But upon the advice of the prince she quit the bright lights of the theaters and cafes and settled down to a few years of hard study, and when she again made her appearance before the public—in Lisbon this time—it was on the operatic stage and as a dangerous rival of all the then accepted song birds of Europe.

Voice culture was not all Cavalleri had learned in her retirement. The Russian prince had been teaching her lessons in love as well. Whether Lina really had learned them or whether she acted from an impulse of gratitude is not certain, but anyway she married the prince and they lived happily—almost a year.

Cavalleri, Professional Beauty.

From Lisbon the newly-acclaimed diva began a triumphant tour that led her to Rome, to Vienna, to St. Petersburg and to London. Everywhere she went new triumphs awaited her, new suitors pursued her and fresh streams of wealth poured in upon her. And Lina is thrifty. She melted Russian and English gold to good French houses and lands, depending upon her admirers to furnish the diamonds that are a necessary part of any stage beauty's equipment. And these were not lacking. Her jewels are valued at half a million dollars, and she has a change of diamond necklaces for every gown in her wardrobe.

Robert Winthrop Chanler had made one matrimonial venture when he met and fell in love with the beautiful Italian. In 1893 he married Miss Julia Chamberlain of New York. Her sister, Miss Alice Chamberlain, became the wife of Lewis Stuyvesant Chanler, Robert's brother. Robert's married life was not happy and a divorce took place three years ago. Even less fortunate has been the experience, matrimonial and otherwise, of John Armstrong Chanler, another brother.

John Armstrong Chanler, or Chalouer, as he chooses now to call himself, was a wealthy young New York lawyer with a Virginia estate in Albemarle county, when he met, in the late '80s, Amelle Rives. Their homes, "Merry Mills" and "Castle Hill," were contiguous and the meeting had come about through riding over the country roads. She was the daughter of a noted Virginia family. Her father was a rather celebrated engineer in the Civil war and his father had been thrice minister to France. From her earliest teens Miss Rives had been writing verse, short stories and a novelle or two had come from her desk. But the world had given her little more than passing attention until one morning there appeared a little red book bearing across its front cover the somewhat singular title, "The Quick or the Dead."

Society gasped. It was the original best seller. No one ever really knew how many copies of that startling book were sold, and the chief magnet of it all was the fact that it had been written by a girl of twenty-two years, reared in the somewhat straight atmosphere of an old Virginia house, and having, presumably, no first hand information on the fetid world of which her book told.

And the hero of the thing was Chanler. She even describes Jack Deering.

"There was the same curling, brown hair above the square, strong-modeled forehead, the determined jut of the nose, the pleasing unevenness in the crowded white teeth, the fine jaw, which had that curve from ear to tip, like the prow of a cutter."

Then the Marriage.

Then, only a few weeks after the publication of this sensational novel, came the announcement of the marriage of Chanler and Miss Rives. They went abroad and established a fund for sending chosen American art students to the European schools. Both were interested in painting. Miss Rives even having at one time painted the portrait of a nude woman with herself as model.

In 1895 Amelle Rives Chanler and John Armstrong Chanler came to a crossroads of life and set out on devious ways.

An Exile at Home.

And two years later began the romantic-tragic motif of John Armstrong Chanler's life. He was a devotee of the occult, studied closely the psychic, which has since come into trances, in which his face was said to assume a resemblance to the death mask of Napoleon, and believed himself able to write automatically while in such states of aberrance. Chanler had hunted brigands in Mexico, traveled about the world in quest of excitement, and what may be more to the point, had a fortune of one and a half millions. His family wasn't partial to his vagaries and had his sanity attacked. By means which Chanler has always since denounced as fraudulent the other brothers, one of the most active being Robert Chanler, had him sent to Bloomington asylum, where he spent four years. His sensational escape from this madhouse and the subsequent search for him in every part of the world are matters very generally remembered. Half a dozen times bodies were found and recognized as that of Chanler, the escaped monomaniac.

Answering all these things Chanler appeared in a Virginia court one day and had himself declared sane. The courts of South Carolina subsequently tried his case and approved the judgment of Virginia. Thus Chanler lives today on his Albemarle county estate, declared sane by two states and at liberty to go anywhere in the country save to New York, where his status still is that of an escaped lunatic and where his family waits to have him cast back into a madman's cell.

Not only have the courts of these states held him possessed of normality, but his neighbors consider him more than sane and he is a really popular man in his strange exile.

Good Advice, but—

A traveler entered a railway carriage at a wayside station. The sole occupants of the compartment consisted of an old lady and her son, about twelve years old. Nothing of note occurred until the train steamed into the station at which tickets were collected. The woman, not having a ticket for the boy, requested him to "corrie doon."

The traveler intervened and suggested putting him under the seat.

"Man," said the excited woman, "it's as shair as death; but there's twa under the salt a'ready!"

Flirting With Fashion.

That innate tendency on the part of the fair consumer to flirt with fashion, playing fast and loose with various commodities, is responsible for the uncertainties that have prevailed during the month. There was such a lack of confidence as to the ultimate acceptance of the various lines prepared by distributors and consumers that buying was somewhat minimized. Prosperity or adversity has nothing to do with the millinery business. Fashion alone makes or breaks.—Millinery Trade Review.

JNO. A. HALEY, EDITOR

THE BLACK BELT.

In announcing the results of the election, the Albuquerque Morning-Journal heads the article with "Landslide in Black States." We are at a loss to understand the significance, unless it means Connecticut, New York, New Jersey and Ohio. We have been told that the only reason these states have ever gone republican was that the negro vote held the balance of power, and if that is what the heading means the article is plain enough.

GOT HIS TURKEY--BUT...

A nimrod on the east side of the big hill recently essayed to get a wild turkey, before the other sports got busy, and hiked for the Capitan mountains, one of the favorite haunts in this county for the big, bronze gobbler, and where for ten months in the year they strut over the hills in comparative freedom. The sport in question had no trouble in "bagging" a fine one, but on his return was accosted by a deputy game warden, who brought him before the justice of the peace at Capitan, and not having the necessary license to hunt, kill or otherwise capture, wild game, in or out of season, was fined $50.00. The offense was committed before the hunting season opened.

Local Land Hearings.

On Tuesday and Wednesday of this week, A. H. Harvey, United States commissioner, was engaged in presiding over the hearings in land contest cases in which the government was the plaintiff and Sotero Archuleta and Florencio Vega, the defendants.

Archuleta is from Capitan, and had made commutation proof on his claim more than a year ago. The special agents of the land office, acting upon information furnished by some of Archuleta's neighbor's, investigated the case and instituted suit against the entry with a view of having it cancelled.

The hearing was held Tuesday. A number of witnesses were examined on behalf of the government, but from the evidence adduced it is doubtful if the government can secure a judgment in its favor.

The case against the Vega homestead was even weaker than that against Archuleta, as Florencio is residing upon his claim, and has valuable improvements on it, and has not even attempted to prove up on his claim.

Some of the witnesses for the government in this case were not even aware that Vega had a homestead claim. In fact it appeared from the testimony that the special agents were either badly mixed up on the names of witnesses or that some of them were making desperate efforts to hold their jobs.

A couple of ex-patients from the Fort Stanton sanatorium stopped off here Monday and Tuesday. Both had clean bills of health. They intended to walk to Galveston, Texas, to still further improve their breathing capacity, and they looked good enough for the long hike. One of them was but nine months at the sanatorium, and the other twenty-two months.

ALTO HAPPENINGS.

Mrs. Charles Shaffer is on the sick list this week.

Mr. Reeder made a business trip to Carrizozo Wednesday.

We are glad to note that Mrs. Watt Gilmore is up again, after several days illness.

Joe Philips has begun to be considered quite a hunter since he came to the mountains.

Mr. Elmer Lane took Mr. Will Horace Slack to Capitan Monday where they boarded the train for their home at Corona.

Every one should take advantage of and send their children to the private school of Mrs. Bertie Jones, which is progressing nicely.

There will be a meeting at the school house Saturday night Nov. 12th, for the purpose of organizing a Debating and Literary Club. There will be a short literary program, and some speeches from citizens.

The entertainment given by the Glee Club on Hallowe'en was a great success. The receipts amounted to $15, which will be used for the benefit of the school house.

"Well begun may be half done,
But beginning is not ending!
Great successes are not won
By only wishing and intending."

So let us not stop at the good work we have begun, and not stop until we have a new school house and it well furnished. We can do it if we will not get discouraged.

Lincoln Locals.

Attorney George B. Barber has gone to Alamogordo where he represents Mr. and Mrs. Wood in their habeas corpus trial.

Robert A. Hart sold 300 of this fine Angora nannies to S. T. Peter of St. Clair, Mo., to which point they will be shipped from Roswell at an early date.

On Monday Mr. and Mrs. Martin Chavez returned from a visit to El Paso, Texas where they spent several days beholding the many attractions of the El Paso Fair.

Sheriff Stevens, in company with Mr. and Mrs. Wood, who have been held in Lincoln for a month or more because of failure to give bond went to Alamogordo to attend court in habeas corpus proceedings.

Patricio Ramos and another man while working in a well on the ranch of Martin Chaves were seriously hurt by a cave-in. At last report both men were getting well although one of them was said to have two or three ribs broken.

On Thursday of this week two more cars of fancy apples will be shipped out of Capitan to El Paso by Mr. G. H. Copeland. These apples were grown on two or three different orchards below Lincoln. Last week the same buyer shipped several hundred boxes of a select class to Roswell, N. M.

Ancho Personals.

Mrs. Sam Fambrough has been quite sick the past few days.

Miss Belle Thompson of Luna will soon make Carrizozo her new home.

Rev. Paul Bently of Carrizozo filled his regular appointment here Sunday.

Sam Fambrough and family visited the El Paso fair last week, and report having had a good time.

Mr. Glenn, who formerly resided in this section, was a visitor at the Warden ranch a few days this week.

Mrs. McMillan of Luna, who has been under the care of Dr. Walker for the past two weeks, is reported much improved.

Miss Tickner and father from Illinois were visitors in our town a few days past. Miss Tickner is expecting to teach school in this county.

W. L. Scales who has been agent here for the E. P. and S. W. the past year has accepted the station at Tularosa. We dislike to lose Mr. Scales and family.

The school report for October, showed up well. Out of 40 enrolled the report showed an average in attendance of 35.2. It is feared the average will drop off this month as the absent ones are considerably more.

Messrs. Branum, Woods, Cooper and Thompson went with a train load of cattle to Kansas City this week. This is the first of the shipments that will be made from this place on account of the range this winter.

Dr. E. B. Walker was down to the French ranch recently. Mr. Horace French was sick. Mr. J. B. French and wife are under medical treatment in Carrizozo. It is evident that the French family are having their full share of sickness.

School Superintendent Haley paid the Ancho school a visit on Tuesday. While here he met with the directors and talked over the school interest of the district. We trust be enjoyed his visit as well as it was enjoyed by the school. We all say come again.

It is understood that a real saloon, not a "speak easy" which we are quite used to by this time, is trying to force it self on our community. To hinder it a petition, addressed to Sheriff Stevens, setting forth reasons why licence should not be granted has been circulated and signed by a large majority of the people.

FOR SALE.—One No. 3 Rumsey vertical centrifugal pump; cheap.—Address WELCH & TITSWORTH, Capitan, N. M. 34-tf

Time for blankets and quilts. Have you seen our complete stock of this merchandise? If not inspect them today.—Ziegler Bros.

We will sell goods only on 30 days time after Sept. 1st. We will make close buyers some interesting prices on first class merchandise.—The Carrizozo Trading Company.

Jicarilla Happenings.

George Tomkins is building a barn and stable.

Frank Marsh is doing the jicks this week.

The English family are expecting to move to Ancho soon.

Mr. Bruce returned from Ancho where he was assisting the ship-pers.

Messrs. Cooper, Branum and Fambrough, have been shipping cattle from Ancho the past week.

S. B. Fambrough returned a few days ago from El Paso, where he went to see the attractions of the fair.

The Reasnor boys secured twelve dollars worth of hides last week by trapping. Three or four coyotes included in the catch.

A. L. Jennings, discovered a pocket of ore on the "Pennsylvania," of fabulous worth. If it continues, there is enough to satisfy the avarise of most any one. It is gold.

On the night of the third we were favored with a fine rain. There was piercing lightning and deafening thunder, something very uncommon here in winter.

We learn that Mr. O. G. Handy is sick again. He has not improved much since the beginning of winter, or since the unfortunate attack he suffered with in the summer.

It is said that the range in the vicinity of Ancho is badly depleted from over stocking, thus making it nessessary to ship or drive to better range. Stock are not looking well, and will not go through in good shape. A good many cattle have been moved to Jicarilla to winter.

If you want a really good wagon, the Winona will fill the bill. Strictly 30 days time.—The Carrizozo Trading Co.

Reports received here from the different counties in the south indicate a growing hostility to the constitution so far as framed by the majority. When it is understood that majority of those staying at home on election day and refusing to vote for delegates were opposed to any kind of statehood, the danger to the bosses is apparent.

Mrs. Joe N. White and children, accompanied also by her mother, Mrs. N. B. Taylor, and brother Robt. H. Taylor, went to Alamogordo last Friday night. Mr. White had gone on ahead to secure quarters in a sanatorium for Mrs. White, who has been ill for some time.

A shoot has been arranged by the local club for Thanksgiving. The Duran Gun Club is to be here on Thanksgiving, and the trap will be sprouting on the local grounds to last the marksmanship of the two clubs.

Dressed the carcasses weighed from 140 to 172 pounds. Morgan brought down the 167, and his papa the 172 pounder. Squires came next with the 158 pounder, Kelly dropping the 140 pounder at long range. No more deer being in sight, Harry failed to get "his un"—no fault of Harry's.

Felix Braune, our fish-raising friend on the Bonito, who has a hatchery capable of stocking every stream in the county with speckled trout, after spending an enjoyable time at the El Paso fair and exposition, returned Sunday. He said he took in everything from horse racing to the Midway, and was not "taken in" once. He left for his home on the Bonito Monday.

W. L. Gumm shipped seven cars of apples from the Ruidoso orchards to points in Texas this

Stevens of Lincoln, were among those interested in the county seat removal case, who went to Alamogordo Monday, to be present in court. T. B. CARRIZOZO NEWS

CARRIZOZO - NEW MEXICO

YOUTH'S FIRST LOVE LETTER

Indites Epistle to Fair One Whom He Had Elected as Partner at Party.

He was growing up and had acquired a change in his voice, dancing school lessons and practice in writing business applications all in the same three months. With these accomplishments came the revelation that girls were something besides tomboys, and that they were to be revered and feared somewhat, and looked after, instead of having their hair pulled and their lives made miserable by all kinds of teasing.

At dancing school he met the special girl, and he had passed through the stages of worship from afar, to the place where he was blissful for days if she agreed with him about the weather, and now came the event of the spring—a dancing party. The boy confided to his mother one night who it was he wanted to take, but he didn't know just what to say when he asked her.

"Why not write her a note?" suggested the mother, and she was rewarded several days after by finding on his desk the following, copied with many flourishes, and after many attempts, as the litter on the floor testified:

"Miss Eleanor Haight Thompson, No. 191 South Fortieth street, city:

"Dear Madam—I hear you have no one to take you to the party next Thursday evening. I'd like to present my application. Yours truly,

"R. E. THORNE."

Life Saving on Conditions.

A treatise on "How to Be Kind but Cautious" might be written by a woman who played the part of good Samaritan in a New York subway station. Another woman had fainted. What she needed to bring her to in a hurry was smelling salts, but nobody had smelling salts.

"I think she has a vinaigrette of her own in that bag," said the Samaritan, "but in the absence of a policeman I am afraid to open it to find out."

Something that looked like a small bottle could be discerned through the meshes of the chain bag, and the crowd, valiantly shifting responsibility, said: "Go ahead and open it."

"On one condition I will," said the Samaritan. "I want three bystanders to watch me and sign a written statement that I have taken nothing from the bag but the vinaigrette. I know this town too well to take any chances of being accused of theft."

The oath was drawn up in a jiffy, three signatures were appended, the Samaritan opened the bag, found the vinaigrette, and proceeded with restorative measures.

"Phones" Into Ear Trumpets.

Local musical circles are laughing over Prof. Louis A. Weber's answer to a woman who was listening to one of his concerts recently. The story is vouched for by Peter Hamer, one of Professor Weber's assistants.

It seems that the professor was giving a concert at one of the summer residences along the Main line and that in the audience was a woman who was deaf and used an ear trumpet. Following the rendition of one of the hardest compositions of his repertory, the woman asked Professor Weber if it was a certain production by an entirely different author.

The professor happened to have thinking of telephoning to his wife that he would be home late. He turned, saw the ear trumpet and absent mindedly shouted into the mouth of the instrument:

"Hello, hello! Who the deuce is this?"

It is hardly any wonder that the professor was overcome and that his assistant laughs.—Philadelphia Times.

INDUSTRY AND MECHANICS

HANDY TRUCK FOR ASH CANS

Device Enables Householder to Move Receptacle About Without Fear of Soiling Hands.

Many house holders employ a man by the week to carry out the ashes solely because the job soils his own hands or clothing. A New York man has come to the rescue by inventing a truck on which the ash barrel or can can be wheeled out to the curb with ease and freedom. The truck resembles an ordinary baggage truck, except that the side bars converge at the top into a single handle, and in a slot near the top of these bars is a sliding hook which engages the tops of barrels or cans. There are two claws on the hook, thus giving it more latitude. Heretofore the operation of rolling out the ash barrel meant to envelop oneself in a cloud of dust, and it was a job that could not safely be trusted to a woman servant—hence the chore man. With this truck, however, even a child can do the work. The apparatus is wheeled up to the barrel and the projecting metal bar thrust under the bottom, which is tilted to permit this. The sliding hook is then moved to a point where one of the claws will grip the top of the barrel and the latter is drawn clear of the floor and rolled away.

INDUSTRIAL AND MECHANICAL NOTES.

The automobile industry is responsible for a scarcity of leather.

As flax pulled from the ground yields a longer fiber than that reaped in the usual way a Canadian clergyman has invented a pulling attachment for standard binders.

A large railroad in Brazil will send four mechanics to the United States each six months to serve in the factory of the concern from which the road buys its locomotives.

Despite the great demand for it at home, the United States annually exports more than 16,000,000 gallons of turpentine, more than all the rest of the world combined produces.

Experts who have examined the recently discovered deposit of lithographic stone in Greece declare that at least 35,000,000 cubic feet of the choicest quality flags are in sight.

Special prizes of much value will be awarded exhibitors from the United States at southern Russia's industrial and agricultural exposition at Ekaterinograd from July to October.

Artificial or imitation rubber is made by methods which resemble the process of vulcanizing natural India rubber; for example, by treating linseed oil with sulphur or sulphur chloride.

REPAIRING OLD FENCE POSTS

Concrete May be Used to Restore Timber That Has Rotted Away Under the Ground.

It is often found that a few posts in a fence, that is yet good, have rotted at the bottom, while the top is yet sound; these may be easily repaired

Concrete Mold.

In the manner shown in illustration, says Homestead.

A hole is excavated around the post to the depth of the decay and all rotten wood removed, a form of tin or wood is placed around the post and concrete filled in and beveled off at the top so that it comes well up beyond the decayed part of the post or above the surface of the ground. Posts repaired in this manner are in every way as good as an entire new post and will give as many years' service.

GAS FIXTURE EASILY MOVED

Constructed in Such Manner That Burners May Be Slid to Any Point Where Light Is Wanted.

A convenient form of gas fixture has been invented by an Indiana man. It is so constructed that the burners may be slid to any point along the wall of a room where the light is most needed and will do away with the shadows, so annoying to a man who is shaving or a woman who is arranging her hair. The construction is similar to that of a slide trombone. The pipe containing the light slides over the supply pipe a sufficient distance to permit of a wide range of positions.

Paper Teeth.

Paper is entering into important arts of Europe. The most novel use of it is in the manufacture of false teeth by the Germans, who say of the product that it is keeping its color well and is decidedly stronger than the porcelain imitation. When the wine makers of Greece found the lumber too costly with which to make wine casks the manufacturers substituted paper pulp and have found it satisfactory.

DOCTOR ADVISED OPERATION

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Galena, Kans.—"A year ago last March I fell, and a few days after there was soreness in my right side. In a short time a bunch came and it bothered me so much at night I could not sleep. It kept growing larger and by fall it was as large as a hen's egg. I could not go to bed without a hot water bottle applied to that side. I had one of the best doctors in Kansas and he told my husband that I would have to be operated on as it was something like a tumor caused by a rupture. I wrote to you for advice and you told me not to get discouraged but to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I did take it and soon the lump in my side broke and passed away."—Mrs. R. R. HUEY, 713 Mineral Ave., Galena, Kans.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has proved to be the most successful remedy for curing the worst forms of female ills, including displacements, inflammation, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, and nervous prostration. It costs but a trifle to try it, and the result has been worth millions to many suffering women.

If you want special advice write for it to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass. It is free and always helpful.

WASHINGTON GOSSIP

Uncle Sam Is Loser in Cash Account

WASHINGTON.—One of the mighty few instances on record of the United States having been "done" in its cash accounts came to light at the treasury department the other day in a decision handed down by the controller of the treasury. In this particular instance the government is short more than $4,000 and has no way of helping itself. It became a victim through the carelessness of its own officers, and the victimization, too, was not criminal in its nature.

Prior to 1879 the late Samuel J. Little of Georgetown owned four certificates of 6 per cent. stock of the old corporation of Georgetown. Upon his death he left a life interest in the stock to his sister, Mrs. Eliza A. Ricketts, and the residue to his minor children, J. C. Little and Julia A. Little. In the settlement of the case before the probate court the actual possession of the four certificates of stock was passed to Mrs. Ricketts, so that she might collect from the treasurer, from time to time, the interest due her.

Shortly after this United States Treasurer Gillilan issued a circular calling upon all holders of Georgetown corporation stock, which was one of the old forms of obligation by the District of Columbia, to present the certificates for redemption. Mr. Ricketts took the four certificates to the treasurer's office, indorsed "I hereby assign the within certificates to the treasurer of the United States for redemption, on account of Eliza A. Ricketts."

The treasurer refused redemption upon this indorsement. Mrs. Ricketts then asked the first auditor of the treasury, as he was known in those days, to approve the indorsement, but he refused. She appealed to the office of the then first controller of the treasury and obtained the desired approval.

Accordingly the treasurer paid Mrs. Ricketts $4,012 principal and $9.23 interest.

In 1894 Julia A. Burnell, formerly Julia A. Little, the daughter of Samuel J. Little, made claim for the $4,021.23, alleging that it had been erroneously paid to Mrs. Ricketts, who had a life interest only. The claim was disallowed by the treasury. Mrs. Burnell and her husband then entered suit for the amount before the court of claims. A year ago they obtained judgment for the amount, and in the deficiency act of June 25, 1910, appropriation was made to pay this claim, along with others.

Mrs. Burnell has been fighting for sixteen years to secure the money she thought was hers and is just now coming into her own, while the government is out over $4,000.

Hall of Fame Statuary Not Artistic

THERE is a determined effort being made in Washington to have old Representative hall in the capitol cleaned out. This is the room now known as the Hall of Horrors to those who have seen the statuary in it, but which is aristocratically titled the Hall of Fame.

This hall is almost circular. It has a tiled floor, many pillars and a low gallery all across one end. It is also known as the "whispering hall," for the reason that standing on certain blocks of the tiling your voice comes to you from the floor on other blocks, over your shoulder into your ear on other blocks, from the winged-victory clock that faces you, and there are many other blocks which give forth strange echoes when you stand upon them. No one has ever been able to tell why these echoes are or why other tiles give forth nothing at all. They just do it; that is all there is of it.

There are a lot of statues that are freaks from way back. There is only one piece of really good sculpture in the whole bunch of some 35 or 40, and that is Father Marquette, which was presented by Wisconsin. It is an exquisite piece of work. The rest of the statues are practical caricatures. There is one of Fulton, who is seated in a chair with a piece of machinery in his hand. He tops all over the chair, his legs are sprawled in all sorts of ways, and it is about as woe-begone a piece of marble as can well be imagined. There is a marble of Webster, whom everybody knows was not a large man, but the statue makes him a regular giant. There is a statue of John J. Ingalls, the only one as yet sent by Kansas, and excepting that it is like a line, has neither breadth nor thickness, which was a good description of Ingalls. It is the limit for ugliness. There is a statue of Frances Willard in a basque and ill-hanging dress, which bears not the slightest resemblance to that dainty, sweet-faced woman. There is a statue of Phil Kearny in bronze, which is very pretty to look at, but has very little artistic merit, and there is one of Shoup, of Idaho, which looks as though it might have been sandpapered out of a piece of marble. And then there is Washington, a dapper little darling with sloping brow, as fashioned by Houdon.

The Washington newspapers some time ago began a crusade to have the law placing statues in Statuary hall by the states repealed. It is to be repealed on the ground that the hall is already jammed to overflowing, and if any more statuary is presented it will be necessary to make a second and inner row.

Point in His Favor.

"Griggs has been a failure at nearly everything."

"So he has; but you will have to give him credit for one thing."

"And what is that?"

"He has never said he could make a fortune raising poultry."

Carrying It to an Extreme.

"That practical politician is out for the stuff, isn't he?" "I should say he was. Why, if he has a lawn made he wants a rakeoff for the dead leaves." —Baltimore American.

AWFUL.

Blanche—Poor Grace! She out-married herself.

Maude—Indeed!

Blanche—Yes. She married a duke, you know, and didn't have enough money to pay his bills.

A Question.

Vera (eight years old)—What does transatlantic mean, mother?

Mother—Across the Atlantic, of course; but you mustn't bother me.

Vera—Does "trans" always mean across?

Mother—I suppose it does. Now, if you don't stop bothering me with your questions I shall send you right to bed.

Vera (after a few minutes' silence)

—Then does transparent mean a cross parent?—Ideas.

A FOOD DRINK.

Which Brings Daily Enjoyment.

A lady doctor writes:

"Though busy hourly with my own affairs, I will not deny myself the pleasure of taking a few minutes to tell of my enjoyment daily obtained from my morning cup of Postum. It is a food beverage, not a poison like coffee."

"I began to use Postum eight years ago, not because I wanted to, but because coffee, which I dearly loved, made my nights long weary periods to be dreaded and unfitting me for business during the day."

"On the advice of a friend, I first tried Postum, making it carefully as directed on the package. As I had always used 'cream and no sugar,' I mixed my Postum so. It looked good, was clear and fragrant, and it was a pleasure to see the cream color it as my Kentucky friend always wanted her coffee to look—like a new saddle."

"Then I tasted it critically, for I had tried many 'substitutes' for coffee. I was pleased, yes, satisfied, with my Postum in taste and effect, and am yet, being a constant user of it all these years."

"I continually assure my friends and acquaintances that they will like it in place of coffee, and receive benefit from its use. I have gained weight, can sleep sound and am not nervous."

"There's a Reason."

Scented a Bargain.

A worker in the Salvation Army tells the following story:

"A down-and-out beggar came along an uptown street the other day where I was getting ready to hold a meeting. The man looked pretty much up against it, and I watched him to see what he would do."

"He approached a bystander, shame facedly, and muttered something. The man asked him to repeat it, and I heard the beggar say:

"Please sir, will you give me 10 cents for a bed?"

"Certainly, certainly," the man replied, taking a dime from his pocket. "Where is the bed?" —Boston Traveler.

Why He Was Patient.

Gushing Young Wife—This talk about men always being impatient when a woman is getting ready to go out is all nonsense.

Her Old School Friend—why, does your husband never complain?

Young Wife—No, indeed; only last evening I asked him to go out with me, and I couldn't find the gloves I wanted to wear. Then I had a long hunt for half a dozen other things. Yet, when I was finally quite ready to go, and went downstairs, I found the dear boy seated reading the paper and calmly smoking as if I had not kept him waiting at all.

Friend—You don't say so? But may I ask where you were going?

Young Wife—Shopping.

A Freak of Nature.

Col. Dennison had become the happy father of twins, and his unbounded pride in his two-fold blessedness found expression on every occasion.

He stood with a friend on the bank steps one day as a young woman passed wheeling a baby carriage containing a pretty girl baby.

"Doesn't a woman look queer," said the colonel, loftily, "with only one child?"

A year ago there emanated from the Passenger Department of the Denver & Rio Grande Railroad a folder giving the time of trains, with notes descriptive of the points of interest, the scenery and the industrial and commercial importance of the cities located on its line together with information regarding altitudes and populations. This folder, at once so simple and understandable, was such a marked improvement over the puzzling leaflets usually handed the traveler that it was received with instant favor and attracted much attention. Its drawback was an awkward fold, and it was minus a map. All this has now been remedied, a new descriptive folder, with a splendid Coast to Coast map and a collapsible fold that simply falls together, having made its appearance a day or two ago. The Rio Grande now enjoys the distinction of issuing the simplest and most readily understood time table of any railroad in the United States.

Texas—Everything democratic.

Utah—Republicans elect congressman; legislature, which will choose a United States senator to succeed Sutherland, republican, in doubt.

Virginia—The republicans lost their lone congressman, thus solidifying the delegation from the "Old Dominion."

Washington—Everything republican; the woman suffrage amendment adopted.

West Virginia—The democrats captured one congressman; the republicans retain the others, and the state remains in the republican column.

Wisconsin—The democrats give one congressman. The state is republican by a good majority, and the state will select La Follette to the United States senate. The social-democratic party elected Berger to congress from Milwaukee, and he will be the first social-democrat to sit in congress.

Wyoming—Carey, democrat, is elected governor. The republicans win the congressman and possibly the legislature, although the latter is in doubt.

The First Woman Judge in New Mexico.

Dona Ana county and the third judicial district court of New Mexico can boast of having the first woman judge in the history of the territory, when Miss Olga Melinda Victoria Miller, the official reporter for Judge Wright, occupied the bench Saturday as judge pro tem during the absence of Judge Wright in El Paso. M. O. Llewellyn was appointed as court bailiff. Mr. Llewellyn is six feet four inches in height, 220 pounds and is an old time football player, and the orders of the court were promptly obeyed. Miss Miller demonstrated a good knowledge of law. Mayor R. L. Young is very profuse in his praise, and desires with the other member of the bar, to go on record as heartily endorsing her administration as pro tem.—El Paso Herald.

The Whist Club.

Miss Virginia Fenton entertained the whist club at the home of Mrs. W. F. Whittingham Wednesday afternoon. The usual happy luncheon followed the games, in which Miss Lorena Sager made the highest score and Miss May Boykin the lowest. Prizes were awarded to both. A game of darts was indulged in by the club, in which Mrs. Geo. L. Ulrick excelled all others winning first prize. The consolation prize went to Mrs. Frank Mudge.

The county seat hearing was postponed from last Monday until next Wednesday, the 16th. Attorney T. B. Catron could not be there, and a short time was granted for him to put in an appearance. The court announced that the case would be heard next Wednesday, with or without attorneys.
