CARRIZOZO, LINCOLN COUNTY, NEW MEXICO, DECEMBER 2, 1910.

NUMBER 43

Injunction Continued: $10,000 Bond Required.

A decision has been handed down by Judge Wright in the county seat case, the report reaching us Tuesday night. The hearing was before Judge Wright on the 16th of November, was taken under advisement for a week by the court, and later the Judge had to go to Deming on some court matters; so the decision was not announced until the date given above.

The opinion was handed down upon the demurrer by the defendants, and not on the quo warranto proceedings. The demurrer was overruled and the injunction continued in effect, the complainants required to file a bond for damages of $10,000, said bond to be filed on or before the 10th of this month, and to be approved by the court. If the bond is not filed and approved by 10th the injunction will be dissolved without further hearing. If the bond is filed and approved the injunction will remain in force until dissolved by future action of the court.

It would seem, then that we are in deeper water than ever before and that the more the question is stirred the muddier it gets. It is true, the real merits of the case were not at issue, as the decision merely related to the demurrer, but as the demurrer was overruled it must be taken for granted that the court was of the opinion that the plaintiffs were entitled to their day in court and were, therefore, to be given an opportunity to substantiate their complaint.

In some respects, however, the situation is slightly improved, by reason of the fact that a bond for damages has been demanded by the court, whereas the past year we have been in continuous litigation without any protection whatever. The defendants and their friends feel the bond is too small to cover the possible damages, while, on the other hand, the plaintiffs and their friends glad it is no higher. There is also a difference of opinion as to the filing of a bond; some holding that no bond will be made, some that it will, while still others assert that a bond has already been made and ready for the court's approval. There will be no guessing after the 10th—we'll know.

Call for a Democratic County Convention.

A County Convention of the Democrats of Lincoln county, N. M., is here to meet at Humphrey's hall, Carrizozo, N. M., at the hour of 1.30 p. m., on Saturday, Dec. 10, 1910, for the following purpose:—To elect seven delegates to represent Lincoln county in the Democratic Territorial Convention to be held in the city of Santa Fe, on Saturday, Dec. 17, 1910, for the purpose of determining the position of the democratic party of New Mexico on the question of the adoption, or the rejection, of the constitution:

The various precincts of the county are entitled to the following representation:

Precinct	Delegates
No. 1, Lincoln	9
No. 2, San Patricio	6
No. 3, Los Pallas	3

Total number of delegates 76

The committeemen of the various precincts are requested to call the primaries for the election of delegates to the convention not later than Thursday, the 8th day of December, 1910.

As the constitution is of the most vital importance to the people of New Mexico, all democrats and citizens of Lincoln county who wish to affiliate with the democratic party on this issue, are urged to participate in the primaries of their respective precincts.

W. J. DOERING, chairman.
W. S. BOURNE, secretary.

The Judicial Districts for the State of New Mexico.

Following are the judicial districts for the state of New Mexico, as incorporated in the constitution:

- First District—Santa Fe, Rio Arriba and San Juan.
- Second Dist.—Bernalillo, Sandoval and McKinley.
- Third Dist.—Lincoln, Otero, Torrance and Dona Ana.
- Fourth Dist.—Mora, San Miguel and Guadalupe.
- Fifth Dist.—Roosevelt, Curry, Eddy and Chaves.
- Sixth Dist.—Grant and Luna.
- Seventh Dist.—Valencia, Socorro and Sierra.
- Eighth Dist.—Union, Colfax, Taos and Quay.

Primary at Oscuro.

We are authorized by Dr. G. Raniger to announce that the democratic primary of precinct 15 Oscuro, will be held in Oscuro next Wednesday, Dec. 7. The purpose of the primary is to elect two delegates to attend the democratic county convention, which will convene in Carrizozo, Saturday, December 10.

From Darkest Africa.

The News is in receipt of a letter this week from an old friend in Africa, Geo. A. Chamberlain. The letter was only about thirty-seven days on the road, which indicates it must have traveled a circuitous route. Mr. Chamberlain is the American consul at Lorenzo Marques, Portuguese East Africa, and will be remembered as having left here four years ago to take a similar position at Pernambuco, Brazil. He is enjoying the best of health, sends greetings to old friends and promises a visit here next spring.

Jicarilla Happenings.

John Brotherton is sick—not seriously, however.

T. W. Stonerod went to the Oaks Saturday morning.

Ted Reasoner is at work for the Wild Cat Leasing company.

Col. Geo. W. Prichard visited this camp last week.

Mr. Bloodgood received a shipment of thoroughbred fowl of various kinds last week.

Saturday last there was a storm of rain and sleet, accompanied by a wind of terrific force, lasting about two hours.

An arrest was made here Saturday for wife beating. The case, however, was settled out of court, with the old song of reconciliation.

The Rabenton case last week appeared to be a conspiracy of one party to kill another. The injured party later retaliated by bringing a cross suit for the same offense.

In Suspense.

The delay in receiving the decision in the county seat case had the nerves of the people of this town on edge for the past two weeks. Nothing tends to put one's nerves on feather edge like suspense. An adverse decision, in fact, would have been almost welcome. Monday everyone expected a decision, but it didn't come. Tuesday afternoon, however, a message was received to the effect that the demurrer was overruled and the injunction continued, provided a bond of $10,000 was deposited in court.

REST AND PEACE

Fall Upon Distracted Households When Cuticura Enters.

Sleep for skin tortured babies and rest for tired, fretted mothers is found in a hot bath with Cuticura Soap and a gentle anointing with Cuticura Ointment. This treatment, in the majority of cases, affords immediate relief in the most distressing forms of itching, burning, scaly, and crusted humors, eczema, rashes, inflammations, irritations, and chafings, of infancy and childhood, permits rest and sleep to both parent and child, and points to a speedy cure, when other remedies fail. Worn-out and worried parents will find this pure, sweet and economical treatment realizes their highest expectations, and may be applied to the youngest infants as well as children of all ages. The Cuticura Remedies are sold by druggists everywhere. Send to Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., sole proprietors, Boston, Mass., for their free 32-page Cuticura Book on the care and treatment of skin and scalp of infants, children and adults.

TO SERVE BANANAS

MANY WAYS OF COOKING THE LUSCIOUS FRUIT.

Baked Bananas With Raisin Sauce a Dish That is Hard to Resist—Other Ways of Baking the Fruit.

Baked Bananas with Raisin Sauce.—Four bananas, one-half cupful of seeded raisins, one-half cupful of sugar, one teaspoonful of cornstarch, one tablespoonful of butter, one-third of a lemon, one and a half cupfuls of boiling water. Pull down a section of the skin of each banana, loosen pulp, and remove coarse threads that adhere to the skin. Return pulp to skin in original position. Lay in agate pan and bake in medium hot oven till skin is black and pulp soft. To serve, remove each banana from skin and arrange on serving dish. Pour over them raisin sauce made as follows: Cook the one-half cupful of seeded raisins in one and one-half cupfuls of boiling water. Add water while cooking if needed. When soft add one-half cupful of sugar and one teaspoonful of cornstarch diluted in two tablespoonfuls of cold water, and let simmer ten minutes. Add one-half tablespoonful of butter and juice of a third of a lemon.

Baked Bananas I.—Remove skin from six bananas and place in shallow pan with two tablespoonfuls of melted butter. Dredge with granulated sugar and add juice of a lemon. Bake about one-half hour and serve hot with meat.

Baked Bananas II.—Take four bananas from the peels, leaving the latter as whole as possible. Halve the bananas and place in baking dish. Pour over them the following sauce: Two tablespoonfuls of melted butter, two tablespoonfuls of lemon juice, and a third of a cupful of sugar. Bake 15 minutes, then place the bananas in skins and pour the sauce over them. Serve on lettuce leaf.

Baked Bananas III.—Peel the bananas and scrape off all the fiber. Place them in a baking pan, sprinkle over a very little sugar, cover the bottom of the pan with water, and bake in a quick oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit) 30 minutes, basting once or twice. Dish, add to the pan the juice of an orange or a lemon, or, if you wish it, four tablespoonfuls of port or sherry. Stir it around and baste it over the bananas. Serve at once.

Banana Pie.—One cupful of flour, one-third cupful of butterine, four bananas, one-half cupful of sugar, one-half teaspoonful of salt. Mix salt and flour, work in butterine with fork, moisten dough with cold water, toss on board dredged sparingly with flour, pat, and roll out. Line pie pan with paste, place in hot oven, and brown slightly. Remove skins from bananas and cut in halves lengthwise. Place in crust, sprinkle with sugar, return to oven and bake until bananas become tender.

Wash-Day Helps.

When making hot starch add a level teaspoonful of dry washing powder to a quart of starch, and the irons will not stick.

When a blue serge costume begins to look rather shiny and worn it can be renovated in the following way: Make a strong blue water and sponge the material with it. Allow the moisture to dry a little, then spread on an ironing board. Cover with a piece of muslin and press with a hot iron.

Green Tomato Sauce.

Cut up two gallons of green tomatoes (for winter), take three gills black mustard seed, three tablespoonfuls of dry mustard, 2½ of black pepper, 1½ allspice, four of salt, two of celery seed, one quart each of chopped onions and sugar and 2½ quarts of good vinegar, a little red pepper to taste. Beat the spices and boil all together until well done.

An Exacting Personage. "I suppose you find life easier since the summer boarders have gone?" "Nope," replied Farmer Cornstossel; "we're workin' an' worryin' just as much as ever tryin' to keep the hired man contented."

Important to Mothers. Examine carefully every bottle of CASTORIA, a safe and sure remedy for infants and children, and see that it Bears the Signature of Wm. H. Fletcher. In Use For Over 30 Years. The Kind You Have Always Bought.

Deadlock. "Who is that man who has been sitting behind the bar day after day?" Inquired the stranger in Crimson Gulch.

"That's Stage Coach Charley. He's in a peculiar predicament. He went to town last week and got his teeth fixed. Then he came here, and, bein' broke, ran up a bill on the strength of his seven dollars' worth of gold fillin'. Charley won't submit to havin' the nuggets pried out an' the proprietor won't let him git away with the collateral, and there you are!"

WISE WORDS. A Physician on Food.

A physician, of Portland, Oregon, has views about food. He says:

"I have always believed that the duty of the physician does not cease with treating the sick, but that we owe it to humanity to teach them how to protect their health, especially by hygienic and dietetic laws.

"With such a feeling as to my duty I take great pleasure in saying to the public that in my own experience and also from personal observation I have found no food equal to Grape-Nuts, and that I find there is almost no limit to the great benefits this food will bring when used in all cases of sickness and convalescence.

"It is my experience that no physical condition forbids the use of Grape-Nuts. To persons in health there is nothing so nourishing and acceptable to the stomach, especially at breakfast, to start the machinery of the human system on the day's work.

"In cases of indigestion I know that a complete breakfast can be made of Grape-Nuts and cream and I think it is not advisable to overload the stomach at the morning meal. I also know the great value of Grape-Nuts when the stomach is too weak to digest other food.

"This is written after an experience of more than 20 years, treating all manner of chronic and acute diseases, and the letter is written voluntarily on my part without any request for it."

Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

Maine Fishermen Aid Widows.

In one place in the United States, at least, widows and maiden ladies are in favor. Nor is there talk of a tax on bachelors. One hundred of the largest and most tender herring is the annuity offered to all the widows residing within the confines of the town of Pemboke, Maine. It is a time-honored custom and its origin is beyond recall of the oldest inhabitant's memory. But the custom is faithfully obeyed and at the end of the year's run about fifty women claim their share.

Perfect Consideration.

Her husband was out walking with her for the first time since she had got her new hat satisfactorily trimmed. "Isn't it a perfect dream of a hat?" she remarked.

"I said," she repeated, after some moments of silence, "isn't this a dream of a hat?"

Still silence from the man. Then she ventured reproachfully:

"Why don't you say something?"

"My dear," he answered, "you seemed to enjoy your dream so that I was afraid of waking you."—Scraps.

"We have an official warning not to burn much gas this month."

"I never heard of such a thing."

Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. Cruise of World for Naval Cadets

WASHINGTON.—The fighting ships are going on another cruise, partly for the sake of the cruise and partly to advertise the navy and attract young men to it. Sixteen of the battleships will turn their bows away from the home land and steam off into the Atlantic, bound on a tour of the European ports.

When this cruise was first announced, several months ago, the navy department issued advertising matter to draw recruits. One of its most effective documents was a circular letter, prepared at Washington, but sent out from the various recruiting stations. It was written in a heart-to-heart style. The cruise meant, according to the letter-writer, "that thousands of young Americans will have a chance to see the world and get paid for it. Do people who save for months or years to go abroad ever regret it? I want to ask you this important question: Are you willing to travel if you are well paid for it, or would you rather stay at home and read about it?"

Naturally, when it is put up to him in that fetching fashion, the young man concludes that he would a good deal rather travel and get paid for it, and he hies to the nearest recruiting station and enlists. Long cruises cost a lot of money, but they bring in young men and the navy must have young men even if they do come high.

Another heart-to-heart letter is addressed to the young man who is tired of his job. "Perhaps you are unhappy in your present job," writes the recruiting officer. "Perhaps it doesn't pay you enough. Perhaps there is no future to it. Perhaps your present work will never satisfy your burning ambition to win great success. Well, now if you want to change your job, I'd like to have a talk with you and tell you all about a bluejacket's life in the navy."

If the young man isn't tired of his job that letter is calculated to make him tired of it, and the navy gets another man. Other appeals are made, but the cruise talks are what bring the best results.

Put Under Bonds to Keep the Peace

MEXICO is a striking illustration of the way modern business puts nations under bonds to keep the peace. A naturally turbulent Latin-American republic, mainly Indian in blood, pays coupons on its government bonds to citizens of 21 nations. That is the number of countries represented last year. In 1907, coupons on Mexican government bonds were redeemed for citizens of 16 nations.

Every country so interested, through its citizens, in the stability and honesty of the Mexican republic, is an influence on the side of peace and order in Mexico. In a very real sense the Mexican nation has given bonds to keep the peace by selling government securities to foreigners living under many flags.

Less directly, but still in ways that count heavily the sales of private property to foreign investors are also equivalent to giving bonds to keep the peace. In the last quarter of a century American capital to the amount of not less than $1,000,000,000, according to excellent authorities, has been invested in Mexican mines, plantations, railroads and other Mexican property. European money has poured into Mexico in a similar stream.

Of course, no Mexican government ever guaranteed the security or the profitability of such investments. No government of any great power would undertake to collect from the Mexican people, as a nation, money to make good the losses sustained by Americans making unwise investments in Mexico.

Such international business bonds of peace are constantly becoming more important in many parts of the world. Every year the financial and commercial ties which knit the nations together increase in strength. Always the tendency of the times is toward the creation of closer international relations and a surer sense of common interest in the preservation of peace.

Bank Failures Due to Lax Examiners

CLOSE upon the heels of the radical shake-up in the ranks of the United States bank examiners, by which 20 men were shifted to new fields, Controller of Currency Murray announces that he will make a personal investigation of conditions in all examination districts. In deciding upon this course of action the controller says:

"In almost every case of a national bank failure since I have been controller the insolvency could have been averted had the national bank examiner determined the true condition and reported his findings in time for me to force a correction in the administration of the bank's affairs."

After citing that examiners of failed banks had offered excuses that they had been unable to learn in advance of a bank's true condition, that officers and directors of banks would not correct conditions brought to their attention, or any one of another dozen reasons, Mr. Murray in his statement says:

"Many of the examiners state in their reports of examinations, forwarded to the controller's office, that it is a hardship not only on the examiner but upon many of the members of the directory of country banks, to ask the various boards to meet with the examiner during the progress or at the close of the examination."

"This investigation by the controller and his chief of the division of reports is also an investigation into the methods employed by every national bank examiner, and upon seeing them make an examination of several banks and afterward holding a meeting of the directors, he will be able to determine who of his examining force, if any, are inefficient."

A Logical Landlord.

Many a tenant will sympathize with the man in this story, from the Philadelphia Record. He was renting a small house which the landlord had refused to repair. One day the owner came to see him.

"Jones," he said, "I shall have to raise your rent."

"What for?" asked Jones, anxiously.

"Have taxes gone up?"

"No," the landlord answered, "but I see you've painted the house and put in a new range and bathtub. That, of course, makes it worth more rent."

One of the serious objections to the constitution is the provision for its amendment, or, to speak correctly, the provision whereby it can't be amended. If adopted it will be most difficult to amend for a generation.

The English parliament has been dissolved, and the British isles will have an election. The dissolution was brought about by the house of lords insisting upon the right to veto legislation passed by the house of commons.

One of the senatorial combinations formed at Santa Fe during the constitutional convention is in a fair way of being smashed, as one of the parties to the agreement is already negotiating with another man. Politics is selfish.

While going into details in many minor things, the constitution failed to provide for an honest election law. The legislature may, in future, correct the error, but past records of the legislature fails to incline one to optimism.

Many men may vote for the adoption of the constitution on the belief that it is the best we can get. But if they would just stop and consider they would know that the best is none too good for the people of New Mexico.

Plans are on foot for the organization of a tax equalizing league for the territory, and if the present plans are carried out it means much misery for some of the politicians of the new state. Inquiry is being made into the methods now used for the protection of men and interests standing in with the right political machine.

It is rumored in Santa Fe that a number of the insurgent senators will interest themselves in the constitution of New Mexico, because of the rumors that it was written by corporation lawyers, for and in the interest of the corporations, and that some of the jokers in that instrument will have hard sledding.

Experts figure that the burden already in sight for the taxpayers of the new state figure an advance in the tax collections of at least 23 per cent, and that contemplated additions to the list by the legislature will probably make the average increase of collection to be forced for all the counties at least 40 per cent. It will be almost impossible to make this increase equitable all over the territory, and trouble is expected.

Now that the convention has adjourned and the constitution may be judged by its merits, it is generally admitted that the referendum is non-effective. This, and the fact that there is no initiative, no direct primary, and little of progressive ideas embodied in the instrument, is causing the organization of good government clubs and direct legislation leagues throughout the territory. These organizations will, of course do their utmost to defeat the constitution.

A call has been issued for a territorial democratic convention at Santa Fe on the 17th of this month. The purpose, as is outlined in the call, is to ascertain what position the party desires to take on the adoption or rejection of the constitution. The Lincoln county democratic convention has been called at Carrizozo, December 10, at which time seven delegates are to be elected to represent this county in the territorial convention. The call is so worded that others than democrats may participate in the convention on this most vital question which concerns all the people.

WOMAN'S INTERESTS

UNDERWEARDESIGNS

ATTRACTIVE GARMENTS NOW OFFERED AT MODERATE PRICES.

Combinations That Once Were the Privilege of the Rich Alone May Now Be Had by the Economical Buyer.

Combinations in underwear were once the privilege of the rich alone, but now such pretty things can be purchased in quite moderately priced grades that, especially in this "tubular" season, most of us are willing and anxious to avail ourselves of them.

The corset cover and drawers combination is by far the most popular. The drawers have deep yokes, to which are attached large circular flounces, thus providing enough skirt fluff and lace to admit of the omission of the short underskirt. Often the drawers are slashed at the sides and finished with narrow wash ribbon.

Corset covers of this sort are made rather full, gathered in at the waist line, or in the tight-fitting style favored by stout women. This combination is often made in allover English eyelet embroidery, which allows the corset cover to be made in one piece and the embroidery pattern to extend the entire length of the drawer flounce.

The corset cover and drawers combination is made also with a deep yoke and a flounce, the latter on the skirt this time. This model is popular with women of slight build. Under the same head comes the princess slip, which is by no means confined in use to the lingerie princess gown. On the other hand, its employment of darts and gores in the skirt makes it suitable for wear with any tight-fitting skirt.

For the princess slip the favorite materials are lawn, batiste and china silk. The waist and skirt are often elaborately trimmed with lace, embroidery and ribbon.

Three-piece models are infrequent, because of the tightness of the styles, but are sometimes adopted by slender women. Chemises are still in favor, especially in soft-finished materials, in a plainly embroidered French-cut model. Some, of course, are made elaborate by means of lace ending and insertion.

For all these combination garments soft, sheer goods are chiefly in favor this season.

Vegetables for Children.

The potato is easily digested. But it must be in good condition, and well boiled or baked, never fried. New or waxy potatoes are injurious for children.

Carrot is nutritive, but must be exceedingly well boiled, and only young carrots used.

Almost all green vegetables are excellent, lettuce, spinach and the like.

Leather Collar Sets.

Leather collar and cuff sets on tailor-made suits are of course not very new, but they are being revived in the sudden return of leather, and are seen frequently in black patent leather on tweed or covert suits of brown, blue and gray. Sometimes, too, they are in white; one such was worn with a white serge coat, cut in empire style and disclosing a very smart red-and-white striped waistcoat beneath.

LOOK NICE ABOUT THE HOME

Pinafores Can Be Worn if a Special Gown for Housework Is Not Feasible.

There are ever so many charming designs in pinafores, such as is shown in the illustration, which can be worn over any dress and afford perfect protection, if a special gown for the housework is not feasible. It is wise to have the pinafore belted, as otherwise, in stooping or climbing stairs, it can get in the way of one's feet and cause disaster. There is no need for the industrious housewife to have ugly or ill-groomed hands. If she can wear loose gloves when working some trouble will be saved, but in any case she has only to bathe the hands daily in warm water in which are a few drops of lemon juice and benzoin, then dip them up and down in cold water. It is a mistake to have the first water hot, and, of course, the greatest care should be taken in the choosing of soaps. After the hands are thoroughly washed and dried, a good cream, which shall both whiten and soften the hands, should be rubbed in, and then the hands dusted over with a good powder.

Curls Again.

A delicate alteration is to be observed in styles of hair dressing.

Flat buns and knots have entirely disappeared.

Curls are everywhere, at all times and seasons.

The quaint little curls hanging down at each side of the face in front of the ear have already made their appearance.

Although the curls worn on the head should be arranged as the most becoming, in general they should stand out well at the back, and if possible fall softly over the nape of the neck.

FOR SUNDAY SUPPER

HINTS ON PREPARING THIS INFORMAL MEAL.

One Hot Dish and the Rest Cold So It May Be Served at Any Time and Guests Help Themselves.

Informal suppers on Sunday evenings are the entertainments provided by one country hostess for her friends, and so successful have these affairs become that never is she without several visitors, and, as the meal is of a kind that can be served at any hour, guests have no feeling of being too late.

The hostess has but one servant, and allows her to go out every Sunday. It is easier to do without any service than to have that which is bad, the employer sensibly maintains, and declares that it would be demoralizing to work at other times, did she allow too much latitude to the maid in the dining room on Sundays. So, after the formal midday dinner is over and the dishes washed, the maid lays the supper table and then departs.

Supper is either cold or there is but one hot dish, this being made in the chafing dish, and chosen with a view to not spoiling by standing in the hot water jacket. Curried eggs, creamed chicken or salmon, or something similar, is usually prepared, and incidentally, should any be left over, it is excellent for luncheon next day.

Besides this hot food there is always a vegetable salad and mayonnaise, selecting either cucumber or tomato. There is bread and butter and food tea or coffee. The dessert is either berries, other fruit, or a kind that will keep for many hours without looking left over.

All these are on the table at once. There is no tablecloth, but a centerpiece, a dish of flowers, and candles. Plates are not placed at regular intervals, but left in a pile, one at either end of the table. Knives are also together, and so are forks, two-sets being at either side of the table to save unnecessary reaching. The jug of iced tea and glasses for it are on a side table, and the dessert may be kept there also.

The usual time for going into the dining room is 7 o'clock, but as the supper cannot be harmed by standing, and there is no maid to be delayed, the hostess goes when she feels like it, and from then on to 8:30 friends drop in. Each person helps himself as at any buffet supper, and there is never an evening when all is not gayety and fun. Such entertaining is no tax on the hostess, and she sees her friends far more often than she would under other circumstances. Since automobilism has become more general, her home is more or less of a meeting place and Sunday night suppers have become an institution in the household.

Green Tomato Pie Mixture.

Four quarts green tomatoes chopped fine, drain, cover with cold water, simmer 30 minutes and drain again. Add two pounds brown sugar, one pound raisins, half pound citron chopped fine, one tablespoon salt, half cup vinegar, half cup butter. Cook this mixture until it thickens. When cold add one tablespoon cloves, cinnamon and nutmeg. Put in jars cold and seal. This is a good substitute for mince meat and it will keep all winter.

Oyster Cocktail.

Eight small raw oysters, one tablespoon tomato catsup, half tablespoon vinegar or lemon juice, two drops table sauce, one teaspoon celery, finely chopped, half teaspoon table sauce. Mix ingredients, chill thoroughly and serve in cocktail glasses, or cases made from green peppers placed on bed of crushed ice.

THE LEMUR A CHARMING PET

Ehs in His "Naturalist on the Prowl" Describes Little Animal—Servants Afraid of Him.

Pets are of all sorts. One of the most amusing and attractive is described by Ehs in his "Naturalist on the Prowl." This little animal was a lemur, and besides many gentle and caressing ways, it seemed as if it possessed a certain sense of humor. Says Ehs:

"I used to take its soft hand and examine its pretty nails. Each hand had one long, sharp claw. Such a curious arrangement puzzled me, until one day a flea showed me the use of that claw. It bit the lemur under the ribs. I expect the little beast had reason to be thankful that nature had spared one toe when it promoted it to the order of four-handed animals.

There never was a more charming pet. He took life so gayly, and the antics were so original. When my man let him out of his cage in the morning, he would scamper straight to my bedroom, look round with large eyes brimming over with mild curiosity, and, lightly as a rubber ball, spring to my dressing table, where he would examine everything. Then he would bound across the bed and land on my shoulders, handle my ears gently, wondering what was in the hole, and thrusting in his long tongue to find out.

That was beyond human endurance, and I would roll the little fellow into a ball, wind his long, fully tail about him, and fling him into the bed. He would be unwound in a moment, and would skip away to explore some more.

His hind legs being longer than his fore, he walked slowly, with his head down; but when in a hurry he would stand up and bound along like a kangaroo, tail in the air, arms extended, fingers spread, looking like nothing one ever saw.

The servants regarded him as uncanny, and fled at his approach. He would give chase, and there never was finer sport than to see the fat butler in full flight up the long stairway, with the gleeful little demon after him, three steps at a bound.—Youth's Companion.

SICK, SOUR, UPSET STOMACH

Indigestion, Gas, Heartburn or Dyspepsia Relieved Five Minutes After Taking a Little Diapepsin.

Here is a harmless preparation which surely will digest anything you eat and overcome a sour, gassy or out-of-order stomach within five minutes.

If your meals don't fit comfortably, or what you eat lies like a lump of lead in your stomach, or if you have heartburn, that is a sign of indigestion.

Get from your Pharmacist a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin and take a dose just as soon as you can. There will be no sour risings, no belching of undigested food mixed with acid, no stomach gas or heartburn, fullness or heavy feeling in the stomach, Nausea, Debilitating Headaches, Dizziness or Intestinal griping. This will all go, and, besides, there will be no sour food left over in the stomach to poison your breath with nauseous odors.

Pape's Diapepsin is a certain cure for out-of-order stomachs, because it takes hold of your food and digests it just the same as if your stomach wasn't there.

Relief in five minutes from all stomach misery is waiting for you at any drug store here in town.

These large 50-cent cases of Pape's Diapepsin contain more than sufficient to thoroughly cure almost any case of Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Gastritis or any other stomach disorder.

Not Seeking Trouble.

"I should think it would be the bugbear of your life trying to get up new brand-new jokes," said the sympathetic caller.

"That," said the humorist, cheerfully, "is the least of our troubles."

Shoogy-Shoo

By EDITH GRAY

Copyrighted, 1910, by Associated Literary Press

John O'Neill, erstwhile newspaper man and dramatist to be, was one of the younger celebrities of those Thursday evening gatherings for which Mrs. Strathfield de Witt was so widely and justly famed. Mrs. Strathfield de Witt was lauded from one end of town to the other, extolled for unstinted hospitality, admired for gracious tact, and sought out for radiant beauty. Yet far more than the magnificent social affairs in which she always figured so conspicuously, the balls and opera-night triumphs, which invariably received a lion's share of next morning's social column, did she revel in her artistic triumphs and her reputation for unusual ability in gathering about her local talent and even visiting prodigies from far waters.

Tonight she stood as usual at the far end of the great reception hall, velvet-gowned and regal in the famous Strathfield jewels, giving forth to her guests, from Von Kreuzer, the world-famed 'cellist, to young artistic Dick Stair, out at elbows and ill at ease, the same beneficent smile, the customary word of encouragement, the unflinching bit of praise.

John O'Neill, one of her most vaunted favorites, having just paid his compliments, was passing on into the crowded music room, free to carry out his own devices, to follow whither inclination might chance to lead. Cordial greetings encompassed him as he wandered, unsettled and restless, from group to group, but, in spite of the allurements of flashing eyes and the encouraging nods from men of established repute, O'Neill, with an abstracted manner and indifference to mien, passed through the magnificently furnished rooms out into the conservatory beyond.

It was solitude, after all, that he wanted. He could settle down here for a space, and puzzle out a few of the many things which had of late so bothered him. For many days he had put away the facing of this problem, the impartial judging twist heart and mind. But O'Neill was a man of fine sensibilities, of high and honorable ideals, and he knew that he could not again accept the flattering kindness of his hostess, the overwhelming cordiality of her friends, without coming to a true knowledge of his inmost self, and, in some subtle way, giving her to realize the final outcome of the problem which, at last, amid the twining roses and orchids, he must bravely face and settle for all time.

John O'Neill, fresh from the old country, with great dreams within his eyes, was a different person from the well-groomed, self-assured gentleman who, save for the frown puckering his straight drawn brows, seemed, amid the surfeit of elegance of this uptown mansion so thoroughly at ease, so completely master of his own. For though O'Neill was a gentleman at heart, a lover of the right and good, he was, in the common acceptance of the term, a self-made man.

He had fought his way, from the beginning, through the humiliating trials of advertising agent and common reporter, step by step along the staff positions of a large newspaper, till now he had reached the position of managing editor of an important magazine. And still his best powers must go to the earning of bread, and the dreams of drama and novel yet unfulfilled. And with the rigor of those dreams another, too, held away—an old longing, a softer vision which the honing of sweet and foolish ladies, the surroundings of luxury and ease, instead of snuffing out and relegating to the past of dusky memories, served only to enflame and raise on him.

For there are some things which a man may never forget, and among them surely is the reminiscence of youth. And that was why John O'Neill had drawn apart to seek among the exotic blooms of the perfume laden court the healing of his doubt.

But, with the facing of his problem, he must, of course, be logical. Yes; he would be quite frank with himself. There should be no delicacy nor false modesty in his open dealing with this question. He was an artist and a gentleman—also, as such, he was a pauper. He knew that the realization of his best efforts could take place but for certain things. These things Mrs. Strathfield de Witt was now in a position to offer him. She had not in so many words told him so, but he knew from covert hint and glance and from the more open revelation of friends, that Natalie, the youngest daughter, along with the financial and social gifts which she would undeniably bring, was his for the asking.

His for the asking! And Natalie was a fine-looking girl, well formed, with a head crowned with coil upon coil of heavy auburn hair. A dozen artists had painted Natalie, in ball gown, in street gown, with her spaniel, in masquerade costume. Without question, Natalie de Witt was a beautiful girl, but—and the man condemned himself even though he knew his analysis was justified—she was a great, beautiful, over-petted, over-fed piece of animal femininity. She had no spark of her mother's cleverness, no glimmer of her wit. Her life had been thought out for her from the beginning, and she was too sapless a thing to dream now of rebellion, too lazy to do other than drift onward with the current. If he asked her, she would consent, and she was at least too inanimate a creature to interfere in later life with any of his dreams. Why ask for more? If she brought no inspiration, at least she would bring no disturbing element. There would be leisure and some peace. Why ask for more?

O'Neill stood now upon his feet, determined and quite done with argument. It was all so simple, so easy and quite inevitable. If he brought the wit, the cleverness to the household, she in turn would bring the money, the tangible means of existence. If he brought the great thoughts, the inspiration of genius, she, on her side, would furnish the leisure wherein to make good his dreams. If he attracted the circle of artists and poets, she would furnish, as her mother before her, hospitality and unstinted wealth, the allurements of comfort and ease.

And yet, John O'Neill stood, motionless as a stone image, bound fast amid the towering ferns and fragrant orange trees. Why did he not seek at once the famous beauty? There could be no doubt as to her attitude, loving daughter of a doting mother. Why, then, fearing no rebuff, did he not go at once and offer her his hand and heart?

A little thing, quite insignificant and beside the point, yet still bearing on his early youth, held him. A tiny letter, now resting next his heart, redolent of old days and past, sweet memories.

"John, it is you that our mother is speaking of now. She is so old, John, and I, too. It is the sight of your face we both be wanting."

"John, is it not strange that Rosie will not marry the rich MacVey, for all he courts her still and will not go—that was a part of it."

There was music now in the room beyond—a violin and piano, following one another, laughing, leaping and romping, glittering on through inexpressible mazes of technical splendor. The man listened, and gradually his eyes hardened again, his brain the master of his heart. Yes; he was born to all this sort of thing! It was foolish, unutterably mad to dwell on the long dead past. He would bury it all now, his life would swing on in perfect harmony, effortless, brilliant and well controlled. He would write his Aunt Katrina this very night, and how proud they would be to hear of this great match. He stepped forward to seek the girl beyond.

Then he paused again. A fresh, young voice was raised, clear, piercing in its untrammelled sweetness. It was a song now, dealing not at all with trills, simple and unhampered in its sway—a song, a real song, and without awe!

"When meadow larks would sing be in old Glentair
Was one sweet lass with eyes of blue
And tangled golden hair,
For Irish eyes are fairy flax, no other eyes so blue.
Come nestle in my arms and swing upon the shoogy-shoo."

On through the verses, vibrant, quivering and alive, and O'Neill bowed his head, away in the new found realization of his old best self. Of what use the splendor, of what use the technic, of what use the beautiful binding, if the book were empty within? Rosie, Rosie. His soul bowed with the knowledge that for him there was but one woman who through all the years had found him worthy of the waiting:

"Ah well, the world goes up and down, and some sweet day
Its shoogy-shoo will swing us two where sighs will pass away.
So nestle close your bonny head and close your eyes of blue,
And swing with me and memory upon the shoogy-shoo."

"O'Neill's crazy," said the gossip of the studio circle. "All he wanted to work out his big drama was leisure and a little time. O'Neill's crazy and he was an idiot to run back to the old country in that erratic madcap manner."

"O'Neill's crazy," said a little blue-eyed woman back in old Ireland. "O'Neill's crazy." But the manner of his madness, being a not uncommon one, she laughed as she found her bonny heart locked fast within the shelter of his arms.

Where His Interest Lay.

It was at a ball game between Chicago and Pittsburg. The score was tied, two men were out, a runner was on third and Hans Wagner was at bat! The crowd was too excited to be noisy, says Lippincott's Magazine. A sporting editor had taken his neighbor to the game. The neighbor was not a fan, but he had succumbed to the delights of "traveling on a pass" and was having a real, garrulous, good time. At the moment when there wasn't a heart beating on the bleachers, and the grand standers were nauseated with suspense, the sporting editor's neighbor emitted this: "Look, Jake! Look at that coke train! Did you ever see one engine pulling so many cars? I'm gonna count 'em!"

Strenuous Hint.

The autumn leaves were beginning to let go as she and he sat in the trusty hammock, side by side.

"I wonder why a young man rocks the boat when he takes a girl for a row?" she asked.

"Oh, I suppose he does it just to hear the girl scream," he replied.

"But," she said, "a girl would scream just as loud if he attempted to kiss her, and it's ever so much safer."

Troublesome Times.

Yes!—I see as a space-saver for small houses a Kansas man has invented folding stairs.

Crimsonbeak—But, say, suppose when a fellow has come home late at night, and quietly taken his shoes off, he finds his wife has taken the stairs upstairs?—Yonkers Statesman.

Lover's Wedding Cake.

Four pounds of flour of love, half a pound of buttered youth, half a pound of good looks, half a pound of sweet temper, half a pound of self-forgetfulness, half a pound of powdered wits, half an ounce of dry humor, two tablespoonfuls of sweet argument, half a pint of rippling laughter, half a wine-glassful of common sense.

Then put the flour of love, good looks and sweet temper into a well-furnished house. Beat the butter of youth to a cream. Mix together blindness of faults, self-forgetfulness, powdered wits, dry humor into sweet argument, then add them to the above. Pour in gently rippling laughter and common sense. Work it together until all is well mixed, then bake gently forever.

Alleviating Circumstances.

"Did you say," asked a gentleman who was looking for rooms, "did you say that a music teacher occupied the next apartment? That cannot be very pleasant." Harper's Bazar gives the landlady's reply.

"Oh," she said eagerly, "that's nothing, sir. The music teacher has 11 children, and they make so much noise that you can't hear the piano at all."

The Teachers' Association.

The Lincoln County Teachers' Association met at the Carrizozo school building at 10 o'clock last Saturday morning. Mrs. W. L. Gumm was re-elected president and Miss Lella Laws secretary. Sixteen teachers were present during the day's sessions and a number of patrons were also present at the various sessions.

At the morning session a class exercise by Miss Laws and pupils of the second grade was presented. It consisted of the dramatization of "Simple Simon," and was quite effectively presented. The remainder of the morning was given to general discussion, in addition to the adoption of a resolution having for its object the organization of a district association, to be composed of three or four adjoining counties.

In the afternoon the association met in the Baptist church. C. L. Kennedy spoke of the "Co-operation between Home and School," John H. Canning on the "Constitution and its relation to the Public Schools," John A. Haley on the "County's Schools" and Charles L. Schreck on the "Adoption of Text Books." Musical selections, under the management of Miss Pearl Taylor, were rendered by a chorus of school children, which were very pleasing and appropriate.

The association adjourned Saturday night, after listening to an address by Rev. B. W. Allen, pastor of the Methodist church. The church was well filled in the evening and the audience expressed its appreciation of the address and the music prepared for the occasion.

The Whist Club.

Miss Mayo Boykin, Mrs. Frank Elliott and Mrs. E. B. Walker were the guests entertained with the members of the Whist Club Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. A. J. Rolland. The usual hours were spent about the card table, after which a dainty luncheon was served. Miss Mayo Boykin made the highest score, winning first prize, the consolation prize going to Mrs. F. J. Sager. Wednesday saw the last of whist for the little coterie until after the holidays, the days in the interim will be devoted to needlework, which becomes so important a feature of ante-Christmas days.

Democratic Primary Call.

A primary meeting of the democrats of precinct No. 14 is hereby called for Monday, December 5, 1910, at 7.30 p.m., at Humphrey's hall for the purpose of electing fifteen (15) delegates to represent said precinct in the Democratic County Convention, which has been called to meet at Carrizozo, N.M., on Saturday, December 10, 1910.

All democrats, and citizens who desire to affiliate with the party, are invited to attend this primary and take part in its deliberations on what is of the greatest importance to the people of New Mexico—the Constitution.

W. J. DORRING, chairman
Precinct 14.

Lincoln Locals.

Several parties from Lincoln attended the Thanksgiving Ball at Capitan on last Thursday night.

The Justice of the Peace in this precinct is having quite a rush in his line during the past ten days.

The apple season has about closed in this section of the country and the local buyer has taken his departure. After all the setbacks to the apple growers in this county, there were several cars of the very finest apples shipped from Lincoln County.

County Supt. of Schools, John A. Haley, in company with Mr. Thomas Johnson of Carrizozo, was in town during the early part of last week, the County Supt. visiting the various schools of the County, while Mr. Johnson was working in the interest of an insurance company.

Young Mr. Seaborn Gray, the son of Mr. and Mrs. S. T. Gray of Capitan, N. M. with his bride, formerly Miss Harrison, who taught in Lincoln during the past year, is visiting friends in Lincoln while on their bridal tour. The many friends of the young couple wish them great happiness in their new relations.

The greatest danger from influenza is of its resulting in pneumonia. This can be obviated by using Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, as it not only cures influenza, but counteracts any tendency of the disease towards pneumonia. Sold by all dealers.

Psychic Virtues Possessed by Captains of Finance

NEW YORK.—Do the captains of high finance possess psychic virtues? Yes, and decidedly so, maintains Mrs. Lillian Hobart French, the handsome young woman from Butte and nemesis of Fritz Augustus Heinze, the copper millionaire, whom she has sued for $25,000, the amount she claims she lent him in the panic of 1907. Mrs. French, by the way, is a theosophist of no mean ability.

"There are psychic virtues and psychic defects in every man," said Mrs. French. "But these psychic characteristics are most developed in the great geniuses of finance, art and literature. My knowledge of such virtues and defects have been confined chiefly to the captains of high finance. The man I've studied most is Fritz Augustus Heinze. But I have studied financial men of an even higher type of ability."

"Take J. Pierpont Morgan, for example, whom I have met socially. There is a man whose psychic virtues positively dominate and control his psychic defects. It is the triumph of mind over mere sensualism."

"Now, on the other hand, take Fritz Augustus Heinze. Here is a man with both traits actually developed, but with lack of sufficient will power to allow his virtues to dominate."

"Fritz has run away from me and got married. Well, I feel sorry for the other woman, for sooner or later he will come back to me with his hat in his hand crying like a naughty boy to be reinstated in my affections. That won't happen just yet, but when the gray days come, when fortune falls to smile."

"My feelings toward my Fritz have undergone a great change," Mrs. French continued. "My love for him has utterly vanished, never to return. Yet I shall always regard him as my occult lord and master. His life and mine have been bound by inseparable ties for many years and a great and lasting friendship is in my heart."

"I really feel sorry for Fritz Heinze. He doesn't understand his own nature. When the realization comes, when hard luck arrives, he will know that he has attempted to humiliate the woman who knows his vacillating nature."

Says She Protected Heinze.

"I have always been Heinze's good friend. I have known him for years and stood by him in all his troubles. When the exposure came at my home at No. 32 East Thirty-third street and the fat Great White Mahatma, otherwise known as Ann O'Della Dias Debar, was unmasked as the notorious confidence woman, did I not protect Heinze when he had the temerity to state that he had merely known me for a short time as an acquaintance? I suppose that is what explained why his photograph was on my piano and why he was at my home every day that he was in this city."

"So far as this marriage of Heinze's is concerned, I simply feel terribly sorry for the woman, for he will certainly come back to me. I know that from my sources of theosophic information. I wish him joy, but I am not through with him yet. I still and always shall regard myself as his wife. He may marry fifty times prior to the next reincarnation, but if I wait a million years I shall in the last analysis wed him and become in the fullest sense of the term Mrs. Fritz Augustus Heinze."

Mrs. French was then persuaded to show the proof sheets of her new book entitled "Are These Things True?" One of its chapters is on marriage, and, according to Mrs. French, explains her long-continued "occult love" for Heinze.

In the preface to the book, as written by Mrs. French, appears the following: "Some things we know we know. Some things we think we know. Some things we believe we do not know. Some things we try to know. Fools deride; thinkers investigate. If Darwin proved nothing, he at least raised the question, which to science is next in importance to proof. Perhaps nothing is proved in this book, but the question is before you: are these things true?"

There follows a poem entitled "The Mystery," in the closing lines of which Mrs. French modestly explains that the glorious mysteries of the occult heaven are at last made known.

Her Views on Marriage.

Of greatest lay interest to the followers of the strange romance surrounding the life of Fritz Augustus Heinze and his alleged fall before a red-haired siren is Mrs. French's chapter on marriage.

"Marriage is an institution by the people, for the people and is as necessary to evolution as humanity at its present stage," writes Mrs. French. "as are all other laws and rules laid down by men to govern nations."

"But the time will come when there will be neither marriage nor giving in marriage. However, no force can hasten this ultimate condition, for long roads to intellectual and spiritual development stretch out before us and we must individually and alone find our way along these roads ere the mind can grasp the scheme of mother nature and apply it."

"When we can grow as the flowers and love as the sun, who gives his warmth and light to every animate and inanimate thing alike, then only are we able to discard the present necessary system of matrimony. When we have reached this point in evolution all human passion and emotion will have been subdued and ruled, instead as today the majority are ruled by them, which present condition is also necessary at this time for the development of the true self."

"True, there are some who run out ahead of their field, not knowing whither or why they go, only that the impulse moves them, and there be those who this day come forth with statements concerning the uselessness of marriage, giving no logical reason, nor offering a substitute system more acceptable."

"Uselessness" of Marriage.

"It requires a peculiar and highly developed mentality to grasp the real reason of the uselessness of marriage, and humanity as a whole has a long way to go before it develops the necessary attributes to the attainment of such knowledge as will fit it to discard the present marital relations."

"The fact that day by day marriage is becoming a failure is proved by the divorce courts, and shows we are approaching a thing higher and better—a condition where jealousy, envy, selfishness and pride of possession sits at the feet of love and does her bidding, nor ever rises up in rebellion against her—a condition where pure unadulterated love rules supreme and is empress of the whole wide world."

"And that love is not the selfish love of one individual for another, but the love of the sun for the earth, the love of the mother for her children, the love of mate for mate, who will sacrifice his or her all for the other and glory in the sacrifice. When the human heart is capable of radiating such love we will have no need for marriage laws or any other laws, and we are surely moving toward this condition, however far away the goal."

Radical Opinion.

"There are undoubtedly thousands of couples today living happily and performing their duties to society, to whom the marriage ceremony is a mere form which could neither bind nor compel them to share the same abode did they not have real love for each other. On the other hand there are thousands of couples bound together and sharing the same abode with no semblance of love between them simply because the laws of church and state have distorted the command, 'What God hath joined together let no man break asunder,' which church and state have literally assumed Godship. Remember the command says, 'What God hath joined,' not what man hath joined, and wherefore doth the church or state assume to know whether God has to join two souls. Only the contracting parties know how much God hath joined them by the unselfish love they bear each other, wherefore again doth the marriage ceremony join them together if they cease to feel love for each other."

AN INTOLERABLE ITCHING

"Just about two years ago, some form of humor appeared on my scalp. The beginning was a slight itching but it grew steadily worse until, when I combed my hair, the scalp became raw and the ends of the comb-teeth would be wet with blood. Most of the time there was an intolerable itching, in a painful, burning way, very much as a bad, raw burn, if deep, will itch and smart when first beginning to heal. Combing my hair was positive torture. My hair was long and tangled terribly because of the blood and scabs. This continued growing worse and over half my hair fell out. I was in despair, really afraid of becoming totally bald."

"Sometimes the pain was so great that, when partially awake, I would scratch the worst places so that my finger-tips would be bloody. I could not sleep well and, after being asleep a short time, that awful stinging pain—would commence and then I would wake up nearly wild with the torture. A neighbor said it must be salt rheum. Having used Cuticura Soap merely as a toilet soap before, I now decided to order a set of the Cuticura Remedies—Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Pills. I used them according to directions for perhaps six weeks, then left off, as the disease seemed to be eradicated, but toward spring, eighteen months ago, there was a slight return of the scalp humor. I commenced the Cuticura treatment at once, so had very little trouble. On my scalp I used about one half a cake of Cuticura Soap and half a box of Cuticura Ointment in all. The first time I took six or seven bottles of Cuticura Pills and the last time three bottles—neither an expensive or tedious treatment. Since then I have had no scalp trouble of any kind. Standing up, with my hair unbound, it comes to my knees and had it not been for Cuticura I should doubtless be wholly bald."

"This is a voluntary, unsolicited testimonial and I take pleasure in writing it, hoping my experience may help someone else. Miss Lillian Brown, R. F. D. 1, Liberty, Me., Oct. 29, 1909."

A Realist on Hope.

William Dean Howells, discussing realism at one of his Sunday afternoons in New York, let fall a neat epigram on hope.

"Hope," said the famous novelist, "is not, really, an angel in a diaphanous robe of white, but only the wisp of hay held before a donkey's nose to make him go."

Improved Methods in China Promise to Make American Manufacturers
Hump for Trade.

"With better methods and greater skill in Japan, and with the Chinese cotton mills free from the obstacles which have heretofore crippled them, the American manufacturer will have to be alert," said Samuel H. Houseman, a New Orleans cotton broker.

"When the Chinese cotton mills started it was predicted," continued Mr. Houseman, "that they would eventually supply the needs of the oriental market. The Chinese cotton producers, in resorting to various plans of squeezing, virtually killed the goose before it began laying golden eggs. They attempted to obtain high prices by cornering methods, they utilized unfair ways in attempting to increase the weight of the bale, and such methods, coupled with the fact that the Chinese cotton product did not equal that of the United States, hurt the industry in China, at least temporarily.

"Now, however, these defects and obstacles are being removed. Japanese manufacturers are becoming interested in the Chinese mills, better methods prevail, and with markets favorable and friendly to the native product, the outsider will have to offer, in due time, additional inducements."

Reincarnated in Lizard.

An old Cingalese woman, who lived in an ordinary native hut by herself, died and was buried. On the following day a large iguana (a species of lizard which attains great size) entered the compound of a gentleman living close by and attacked his poultry. Hearing the noise and commotion, he came out and, on ascertaining the cause, got his gun and shot the iguana. No sooner had he done this than there arose a great uproar from the relatives of the old woman, who declared that he had killed her, because her spirit had passed into the lizard, in proof of which they pointed triumphantly to the fact that it had never before been seen in the vicinity and only appeared after her death. Rupees finally appeased the outraged feelings of the old woman's descendants.—Java Times.

In Examination Time.

A Manayunk (Pa.) school teacher read at a recent sociable some funny examination answers of this season's culling. Some of the answers were:

"The two most famous volcanoes are Sodom and Gomorrah."

"A demagogue is a barrel containing beer and ale."

"The blood is putrefied in the lungs by inspired air."

"In Austria the principal occupation is ostrich farming."

"Medieval is a wicked man who has been tempted."

"The food passes through your windpipe to the pores and thus passes off the body by evaporation through a lot of little holes in the skin which we call capillaries."

Profitable Shade Trees.

A stranger coming to Tallahassee is surprised at the great number of pecan trees found in the yards, gardens and on the streets. They are everywhere, and thousands upon thousands spring up every season, where the nuts are washed by the rains or dropped by the birds which feast upon them. If these trees had been budded with merchantable varieties when young they would now be producing thousands of bushels of the finest nuts annually, but of even these inferior varieties Tallahassee sells hundreds of dollars' worth each year.—Tallahassee True Democrat.

KING OF THE COCOS

Bachelor of 30 Inherits Throne and Vast Estate.

Is Absolute Monarch Over Malays
Inhabiting the Cocos Keeling
Group of Islands—Capital
Has Population of 700.

London.—His Majesty, Sidney I, the new King of the Cocos Keeling Islands, is in London engaged over the administration of the affairs of the late king, his father, whose estate has just been proved at the value of over $1,000,000, exclusive of his properties in the islands.

The new king received a representative of the London Leader in the ante-room of a city office in Whitehall, and consented to be interviewed with a readiness that is remarkable, to say the least of it, on the part of a reigning monarch.

King Sidney is a tall, spare young man of about 30, as brown as a beechnut, with high cheek bones, close-cropped black hair, a carefully trained mustache, and a soft, caressing voice. He was completely disguised in well-fitting clothes of gray and patent leather boots. An enormous emerald glowed upon the little finger of his left hand—a jewel such as none but a king dare wear, and from his watch chain dangled a medal of gold, struck in commemoration of the discovery of the Cocos Keeling Islands in the early days of the seventeenth century.

"Pray be seated," said his Majesty, producing an aromatic cigarette. "The court I receive here is quite unofficial, I assure you. At the royal palace of New Selma it might be different—He waved his hand airily. "I am plain Mr. Sidney Clunies Ross here; and when I get to Cocos I shall have quite enough of kingship to last me a lifetime. It's true that when I am at home I shall be a king with more power than most monarchs, with a royal palace that cost a fortune to build, with my own laws to administer in my own way, and no ministry to worry me.

"In my kingdom," continued his Majesty, "there are neither police nor soldiery. I am chief magistrate and commander-in-chief as well as king, just as my father was before me. I settle all disputes, civil, ecclesiastical and moral! I may tell you that as 'heir apparent' I ran the regency in my late father's absence, and so served a useful apprenticeship to the business I am now succeeding to. I think I've got the hang of the islands, so to speak, and I don't anticipate any trouble when I come into my kingdom. The principles of government have been simplified since my great-grandfather reigned as first king of the Cocos Keeling group.

His Majesty went on to describe the principal city of the island group and its domestic life. New Selma is its name, and its population is barely 700—all, with two or three exceptions, Malays, of whom his Majesty, the Queen Mother, is one. New Selma boasts a modern school in which Arabic and a little English are taught, and the young idea is trained in the tenets of Mohametanism, which is the religion of all proper Malaysians. All marrying and giving in marriage has to be done through the New Selma registry office—after his Majesty has approved of the union. To understand the divorce laws of the kingdom it is perhaps necessary to be a New Selman; they are a little complicated. Like his father before him, the new king was sent to Scotland (the home of his ancestors) to be educated.

It will be only in accordance with the fitness of things if King Sidney marries in the islands, as his forbears did. His grandfather married the beautiful Sina Dupong, a Malay of royal Solon blood, whilst the late king espoused Inin, "the dusky queen."

SHAFT TO UNIQUE PATRIOT

Statue of Preacher-General of Revolutionary Fame Erected by Philadelphia German Organizations.

Philadelphia.—One of the most unique and energetic patriots of revolutionary times was honored in Philadelphia when the German organizations of the city unveiled the statue of Gen. Peter Muhlenberg. Gen. Muhlenberg was a pastor as well as a soldier and it was from his pulpit in Woodstock, Va., that he dramatically announced to his congregation his intention of joining the colonial forces.

John Peter Gabriel Muhlenberg was born, 1746, in Trappe, Pa. He was the son of Rev. Henry Muhlenberg, one of the first Lutheran clergymen in America, and at the age of sixteen went to Germany, where he received his education. On his return to America, 1766, he studied theology and in 1772, after having been pastor in churches at New Germantown and Bedminster, N. J., he assumed charge of the Lutheran congregation at Woodstock, Va. Rev. Peter Muhlenberg enjoyed the friendship of Gen. Washington and when the Revolutionary war was declared Washington, attracted by the clergyman's ardent patriotism, induced him to accept a colonel's commission.

After he had received his appointment Muhlenberg took leave of his congregation in a sermon in which, after eloquently depicting the wrongs this country had suffered from Great Britain, he exclaimed: "There is a time for all things—a time to preach and a time to pray; but there is also a time to fight, and that time has now come." Then, pronouncing the benediction, he threw off his gown, displaying a full military uniform. Proceeding to the door of the church, he ordered the drums to beat for recruits, and nearly 300 of his congregation responded to the appeal. He was a brave man and a man of action.

HAD THEM BOTH "STUMPED"

Customer and Dealer Still Awaiting Reply to Question, "What is a Seed?"

A certain gentleman who has not been in Pittsburg long, but who is rapidly acquiring the stogie habit, entered a cigar store to purchase a supply of the elongated whiffs. In the course of his selection he noted that many different boxes were designated "seed" stogies. It couldn't be merely a title, he mused, for there were "seed" stogies made by a dozen different firms. It couldn't refer to a particular form of rolling a stogie, for some "seeds" were long, others short; some were thick and some thin. Nor to the color, for some were dark, others light. He decided at last to betray his ignorance by asking the dealer.

"May I ask," he said, "what are seed stogies?"

"Why right there in those boxes," said the dealer, "those are seeds. In that green box is our own manufactured seed stogie. Very good."

"But," said the man, blushing at his confession of ignorance, "what is the meaning of the word 'seed'? Why do they call it a 'seed' stogie?"

"Well, sir," said the dealer, "I'll tell you—"

Then he paused and the customer waited. After fully a minute the dealer burst forth:

"By jinks, you've got me! I've been selling seed stogies for years and you're the first man that ever asked the question. I'll have to ask the foreman of our factory some time."

Do you know why is a "seed?"—Pittsburg Gazette-Times.

A man was taking copper cents out of a guess-your-correct-weight-and-get-your-money-back machine the other day, when a woman came along and addressed him.

"It's a joy to see you teaching cynics a lesson in faith," she said.

"How is that?" asked the weighing-machine man.

"Why, you put up your machine right next to another where it only costs a cent to get weighed. How easy it would be to get on that machine first, then climb on yours and bet on a sure thing! What faith you must have in human nature!"

"I ain't got no faith in human nature, lady," said the man, "but I've got all kinds of faith in this here machine."

Bright Chicago.

Dr. W. E. Evans, Chicago's original and efficient health commissioner, was discussing his health circulars—striking papers that are studded with such phrases as "Filth, flies and fever are the three disgraces."

"I try, by means of these circulars," said Doctor Evans, "to get the public's attention. In the majority of cases I succeed, too. Chicago is a bright town, and there is not a single Chicagoan of whom you could appropriately say:

"You may lead an ass to knowledge, but you can't make him think."

Flower of the Falls.

Growing in the spray of the great Victoria falls in South Africa, a new gladiolus has been discovered and named the Maid of the Mist.

Four bulbs of this plant, sent to England, have been induced to sprout and bloom by virtue of constant spraying in a hothouse. There the interesting discovery was made that the petals of the flower were so arranged as to form a penthouse to protect stamens and pistils from the unceasing downpour to which they would otherwise be subjected in the native haunts of the plant.

INDUSTRY AND MECHANICS

LIQUID FUEL REPLACES COAL

Permits Combustion to Be Regulated Right Along as Needed—Easily Stored on Ship.

Liquid fuel is praised by Sir Boverton Redwood as more economical than coal. When the demand for heat is variable there is added economy in the speed with which liquid fuel fire can be raised to full power or extinguished. In the case of coal it is needful to have a thick bed of incandescent fuel and it takes considerable time to bring this into a state of active combustion. To retain the efficiency of the coal fired furnace clinkers have to be periodically removed. And this operation cannot be performed without allowing cold air free access to the furnace, which is detrimental to the boiler, besides being wasteful of fuel. Added to this for some time afterward the fire is not fully effective, so that difficulty is experienced if a sudden demand were made on the boiler.

Liquid fuel does not suffer from these disadvantages and permits combustion to be regulated right along as needed. There also is great saving of labor in stoking as well as in the removal of ash and clinkers. Liquid fuel could be quickly taken on board a ship, could be stored where coal cannot be put, and occupies less space than coal.

SANDPAPER PLANE IS HANDY

Base Unscrews to Permit of Paper Being Changed—Polishes Rough Surfaces Rapidly.

Another invention of interest to carpenters, joiners and men of kindred trades is the sandpaper plane designed by a Louisiana man. This implement, as shown in the illustration, closely resembles an orthodox plane, but instead of having a blade underneath it has a smooth base covered with a layer of sandpaper, which polishes off rough surfaces with great rapidity and absolute uniformity. It also has the advantage of doing the work without polishing the skin off the knuckles of the person using it. The two knobs seen in the cut unscrew and the baseboard, which fits in grooves in the body of the plane and slides backward and forward when the old piece is worn down. That recovered, the base is put back, the knobs screwed up tight again to hold it firmly and the carpenter scrapes away with ease and rapidity.

DARNING DONE BY MACHINERY

Needle Attachment Fitting Any Sewing Machine Is Latest Improved Household Invention.

Among the latest improved household helps is a darning needle attachment which fits any sewing machine. It does the work in a remarkably neat and thorough fashion in a wonderfully short space of time. A hole in a garment which would require a half hour's time by handwork may be done in two minutes, therefore we do not exaggerate when we say it is an absolute necessity in every household.

In attaching the darning the presser foot of the machine is removed and the article to be darned is stretched between two hoops, similar to embroidery hoops. It is especially valuable for darning lace curtains and table linen, as well as stockings, undergarments, etc. Darning can also be accomplished by those with poor eyesight, as there is nothing complicated about the little apparatus and one threading of the needle enables one to darn continuously.

HANDY FOR FIGHTING FIRES

String of Buckets "Nested" in Tank and Filled With Water as Each Is Taken Out.

A compact and efficient fire-fighting apparatus that is a big improvement over the old-fashioned system, that required a string of buckets hanging along the wall, has been designed by a New York man. This apparatus consists of a tank, inside of which is a device for centering the buckets as they are lowered into it, so that each bucket fits into the one below it, and they are thus "nested," a series of them occupying little more space than one would take up. The tank is filled with water or with some specially prepared fire-fighting fluid, and holds enough to insure each bucket being filled as it is drawn out. There is no time lost in seizing a bucket and running to another place to fill it, and every one knows that speed is an essential feature in fighting flames. The apparatus not only does away with an unsightly row of buckets, but expedites the work of combating the blaze to an important degree.

Easy for Her.

An extremely corpulent old lady was entertaining her grandchild at luncheon when she found occasion to reprimand the little girl for dropping some food on the tablecloth.

"You don't see grandma dropping anything on the table," she said.

"Of course not," replied the child; "God gave you something in front to stop it."

Now He Knows.

"On what grounds does your father object to me?" he asked.

"On any grounds within a mile of our house," she answered.

ANOTHER WOMAN CURED

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Black Duck, Minn.—"About a year ago I wrote you that I was sick and could not do any of my housework. My sickness was called Retroflexion. When I would sit down I felt as if I could not get up. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and did just as you told me and now I am perfectly cured, and have a big baby boy."—Mrs. ANNA ANDERSON, Box 19, Black Duck, Minn.

Consider This Advice.

No woman should submit to a surgical operation, which may mean death, until she has given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made exclusively from roots and herbs, a fair trial.

This famous medicine for women has for thirty years proved to be the most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism. Women residing in almost every city and town in the United States bear willing testimony to the wonderful virtue of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It cures female ills, and creates radiant, buoyant female health. If you are ill, for your own sake as well as those you love, give it a trial.

Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., invites all sick women to write her for advice. Her advice is free, and always helpful.

FARM AND GARDEN

CHINESE "TRICKS OF TRADE"

Some Unique Gardening Methods Which Have Brought Large Financial Returns—Worth Copying.

(By M. F. RITTENHOUSE.)

A Chinese market-gardener of our town who has grown rich at his business has some very unique methods, but which are worth copying, for his gardens, both artistically and financially, are a great success.

He saves his squash and pumpkin seeds for the next year's planting by the simple process of keeping the squash or pumpkin that especially strikes his fancy in a cool, dry place until the next planting season. Then he plants them with pieces of the pulp adhering, and they appear above ground with mushroom-like promptness.

His muskmelon seed, he ties up in a bag of coarse burlap, and covers this loosely with rich soil, allowing the seeds to sprout before planting them.

He also preserves his cucumber seeds in the cucumber, which he coats carefully with paraffine as soon as pulled from the vine.

When he irrigates his potatoes (and he raises two crops on the same land each year) he waters long and deeply; and his potatoes never grow near enough to the surface to get sunburned, as do those of the inexperienced gardeners who lightly sprinkle the surface of their potato patch as scantily and as often as they sprinkle their lettuce beds.

There is no question as to the superiority in size and quality of the deep-grown potato over those grown close to the surface.

His beet-seed are soaked in water for at least forty-eight hours before planting. He sets them to soak in warm water and during the daytime keeps the vessel containing them as much in the sunshine as possible.

I have never yet seen him throw away a young plant of any description. He merely transplants them, and I do not believe it an exaggeration to say that nine-tenths of the plants survive and flourish, for he is surely a past master in the art—for it is an art—of transplanting.

For example, when his lettuce plants grow to about the height of two inches, he thins out the bed and slipping off about an inch of the root tip of each plant he pulls up, he replants in long rows, and the transplanted lettuce makes a more rapid and larger growth than the plants which he has left undisturbed.

The replanted, or rather transplanted lettuce with its clipped roots, grows to such enormous heads that at a short distance they remind one of thrifty cabbage rows.

He never uproots the head lettuce he markets. Instead he leaves the stalks in the ground and assiduously waters and cultivates them whereupon they produce another head in about half the time required for the first head to reach a marketable size.

His beet plants are transplanted with clipped roots in precisely the same manner as the lettuce.

His onions, which are invariably started from the seed (he refuses to use sets), are transplanted after having their roots clipped and grow to be larger in circumference than the ordinary saucer.

He also beheads his cabbage, leaving the stalk to grow. He cuts slight nicks or gashes in the growing stalk, which watered and tended produces a second growth that are in appearance fair imitations of brussels sprouts and quite as good to eat.

His faith in the forcing powers of warm water is sublime. I have known him to heat water for his radishes in the chill days of spring, testing its temperature as carefully as if preparing a baby's bath.

He is equally expert in rooting rose cuttings. This he does during the entire year, but he considers August the most auspicious month, though I doubt if he could give a reason for thinking so.

He plants his cuttings by thrusting his spade once deep in the soil. He then slips the cutting in the opening, draws out the spade, presses the earth down firmly and the cutting is planted.

EXCELLENT FRAME FOR HAY

Implement is About Absolute Necessity on Farm—How One Can Be Put Together.

(By J. WESLEY GRIFFIN.)

A frame for carrying hay from the fields to the barn is an indispensable implement on any well furnished farm. One can be constructed by following the plan given below:

The side pieces are made of 1x8-inch elm or other strong plank 18 feet long. The end pieces are 2x6 inches 6 feet long. The front brace (No. 4) is made of hard wood 3 feet long, and takes the place of the bolster on the wagon. The main rails of the frame (No. 5) are made of 2x6-inch pine 26 feet long. No. 6 is the rear bolster of the wagon. The cross-pieces (No. 2) are fastened to the main rails with stirrups of one-half inch iron with a strip bolted on the under side. At No. 7 there is a knee 1 foot tall, mortised into the frame, raising the bed away from the front wheel. The boom ladder (No. 8) is made of 2x4-inch stuff 6 feet long, and attached to the frame by a roller.

Intensive Culture.

By intensive cultivation we have known crops grown even upon high-priced land to pay for the land in a single season, says Baltimore American. A system that can effect such a result is worth studying.

Care of Tools.

The cultivating season is over and all tools should be cleaned up and housed. One winter's exposure to the weather will do tools more harm than several years' use.

No Hurry.

"What are you in such a rush about?"

"Promised to meet my wife at three o'clock down at the corner."

"Well, there's no hurry. It isn't four o'clock yet."

Queen's High.

CATARRH OF THE KIDNEYS FULLY RECOVERED

on the side of the house where winter blasts strike hardest always has a lower temperature than the rest of the house. There are times when it is necessary to raise the temperature quickly or to keep the temperature up for a long period. That can't be done by the regular method of heating without great trouble and overheating the rest of the house. The only reliable method of heating such a room alone by other means is to use a

OUR SANTA FE LETTER.

Special Correspondence.

Santa Fe, N. M. Nov. 30.—The reports circulated over the territory to the effect that but nine democrats voted against the adoption of the constitution on its final passage is intended to be misleading, and is. Eighteen democrats voted against its adoption, and three were absent. Eight voted for the constitution. The following democrats voted against the adoption of the constitution as it is written.

Childers, Fergusson, Fitch, Gilchrist, Harlee, Hall, Heflin, Hinkle, House Hudspeth, Lawson, Moffett, Patterson, Sexon, Skeen, Taylor, Tittman and Walton.—18.

Democrats voting for the instrument were: Brice, Compton, Davidson, Dougherty, Harrison, Mabry, Eldodt, and Richardson.

Absent: Crist and Upton, opposed to the constitution; and Patten, position not announced.

The democrats who voted against the constitution did so, for the most part, upon the ground it did not contain any of the things the democrats and the people had asked for.

For several days after the adjournment of the convention there was quiet at the capital, and then things started. The first occurrence was that of business men calling attention to some of the extravagance for the proposed state. It was pointed out that the salary of the governor was fixed at five thousand dollars a year. The state of Texas, with considerably more than ten times the population, and over two billion one hundred millions of assessed property more than New Mexico, pays only four thousand dollars to its governor. The state of Nebraska, far more populous and wealthy than New Mexico, pays but two thousand five hundred a year.

There are nineteen states of the Union paying their governors less than it is proposed to pay the governor of the state of New Mexico, and all of them show assessed values far above this territory.

It is pointed out that under the constitution there will be twelve judges to do the work now being done by seven, eleven of the twelve to be paid by the people of the new state. These men, with the attending increased costs of an increased number of courts, will do the work done now by seven men, with a record of a year past showing one of the seven sick nearly all the time and at least two of them in politics mouths at a time. The salaries for those judges are put at from one thousand to two thousand five hundred dollars a year more than is paid for like services in states of greater wealth and population.

The attention of some of the business men was attracted to the refusal of the republicans to consent to an amendment offered by democrats under which the public monies had to be put out in reliable banking institutions at interest. As it now is the constitution simply provides that it MAY be done. An investigation has disclosed the fact that the public monies are loaned to politicians and individuals.

In one of the counties in the southern part of the territory, a treasurer takes credit for $29,304.98 which is reported to be in the hands of a powerful politician and former business man of the county, also a relative of the treasurer, getting this credit on his account.

In another county a mercantile company, in a place where there are several good banks, seems to be possessed of $2,500.00 of the money, and in the same county a politician has $1,000.00 and the treasurer gets credit for it all.

In view of the determined refusal of the majority to accept the amendment to their caucus measure providing for the investment of the public money it is now charged that there is in contemplation an organized raid on the funds of the counties of the new state, the powerful politicians being the men to profit by these loans of public money to private individuals.

It is also charged that this scheme, together with several others, offer the true explanation for the remarkable provisions of the constitution under which it appears that the men writing it take unto themselves all of the wisdom of generations to come and so fix it that the instrument is not likely to be amended for at least twenty-five years.

It is also charged that the attorney for a big corporation wrote the tax provisions and that it will be found impossible to make the interests pay upon the same
