NEW MEXICO ONE OF WORLD'S GREATEST LAND OWNERS

Many Inquirers in Search of Definite Information May Profit By Report Now Ready.

Many readers of the Outlook are desirous of obtaining information concerning the status, use, and income production of the vast area of land owned by the state of New Mexico, will now have an opportunity of obtaining all information desired by applying to Robert P. Ervien, state land commissioner, at Santa Fe, who will provide each applicant with a copy of his latest report. It is now ready for distribution and will furnish information as to the land's merits, situation and how obtainable.

The following questions are sent in advance of the report and are valuable as a forerunner to those whom the printed report will be of great interest:

Santa Fe, N. M.—Do you know that the state of New Mexico is one of the greatest land owners in the world?

Do you know that the state has more than five thousand tenants on its land grants, using a total of more than nine million acres, which produced last year a revenue to the state of more than one million dollars?

Do you know that the state land income last year paid into state maintenance, or expense funds a total of $625,000, used during the year by various public institutions, and that this total is 52 per cent of the total amount produced by the tax for state purposes during the same period?

Do you know that New Mexico has sold 1,607,000 acres, and that it still owns ten and a half million acres, distributed throughout every county and every district in the state, and that this area owned is more than one-eighth of the total area of the state?

These and other facts of equal interest to citizens, and particularly to taxpayers are contained in the annual report of state land commissioner Robert P. Ervien, now ready for distribution in printed form.

Encouraging Oil News

Telegraphic advices from May or Lutz at Electra, announce the incoming of another oil well and that the casing is now completed. In a short time the determination of the yield will be arrived at. This gives New Mexico Electra three good wells, the last to come in being the best of the group as indications are now.

The company's office here is flooded with inquiries and applications for stock, in what is of a certainty the best proposition in the Electra field.

RED CROSS CHAPTERS OF NEW MEXICO MAKE A GOOD REPORT OF WORK

REMARKABLE SHOWING SET FORTH IN TABULATED STATEMENT RECENTLY ISSUED BY THE ROCKY MOUNTAIN DIVISION OF THE NATION'S SAFEGUARD ORGANIZATION.

Newly Organized Local Junior Red Cross Starts Out with $90.00 to Its Credit—Professor Conway Fathers Movement—Other Red Cross News.

The Rocky Mountain Division of the American Red Cross has issued a tabulated statement, setting forth the work done by the division since Dec. 1, 1917.

The statement includes surgical dressings, hospital garments and knitted articles for the soldiers. It will be found very interesting. Lincoln County, we must understand, is a small county in population, compared with others over the state, whose figures are larger. Considering this, our county has made a showing second to none, and deserves the merited letter of thanks recently received from headquarters. Below will be found New Mexico's portion of the Rocky Mountain Division's report.

LOCAL JUNIOR RED CROSS
Following Prof. Conway's announcement last Sunday night at the Methodist Church, that $90.00 had been donated toward a Junior Red Cross organization, a committee was appointed Monday to carry out the idea of a permanent organization. Tuesday afternoon the Junior Red Cross came into existence. Its officers are: Prof. Conway, chairman; Mrs. Nora Massie, treasurer and Miss Mamie Humphrey, secretary. There is also a chapter school committee composed of Mrs. Gumm, Mrs. Blaney and Miss Stevens. These two working forces form a committee of the whole and are ready for work.

Mrs. Ed Harris wishes all Red Cross workers to know that the yarn is now on hand and can be had by applying to her. Several Spanish ladies have expressed a willingness to help and a more lively interest in general is solicited. The ladies have done well, but have only made a good start, as it will take much more hard work to help win this war.

Morgan-Byrd

At the Baptist Church parsonage Thursday, with Rev. Gardner officiating, Richard Cecil Morgan and Mrs. Zillah May Byrd, both of Carrizozo, were united in marriage. Mrs. Morgan is a sister of Miss Lena Gallacher, and has many friends here who wish her future one of happiness supreme. Mr. Morgan is a nephew of the Straleys of Ancho. The couple will make this city their home for the present.

Wife Writes Her Illiterate Husband Fine "Reckomend"

Bozeman, Mont.—The most novel case that has come before the Gallatin county exemption board is the case of a married man of draft age who couldn't read and who asked his wife to write a note to the board stating that his wife was dependent upon him. Here is the note that the wife wrote and the husband presented to the board:

"Dear United States Army: My husband ast me to rite him a recomed that he supports his family. He cannot read so dont doubt him. Jus take him. He aint no good to me. He aint done nothin but drink lemme essence and play a fiddle since I married him eight years ago and I gotta feed seven kids of hisn. Maybe you can get him to carry a gun. Hes good on squirrels and eatin. Take him and welcome. I need the grub and his bed for the kids. Dont tell him this but take him."

State Highway Commission

The State Highway Commission composed of Messers Springer, Long, Kempernick, French, met with the Lincoln County Commissioners and Carrizozo business men Thursday night. They discussed at length the good roads proposition.

As nothing definite was accomplished, except a few harmonious recommendations made, the meeting adjourned. The Highway Commission will meet with the county commission Friday, and the outcome of this important meeting will appear in these columns next week.

FROM THE FIELDS OF OLD VIRGINIA, ROY GRUMBLES WRITES

Young Sailor Writes Letter of Interest About His Trip Through Panama Canal and Visit to Great City.

Camp Merrit, Virginia
March 20, 1918.

Mrs. M. R. Grumbles
Carrizozo, New Mexico
My Darling Little Mother:

I hope you got the letters I slipped off the boat at San Francisco, so that I might let you know where I was, and the route we took. Talk about some trip—We left San Francisco March 1st and arrived here yesterday, the 19th. We had a real smooth sea on the Pacific coast, but as soon as we were through the Panama Canal and into the Caribbean Sea, it began to get rough and we began to "heave."

We were on the water nine days without seeing land, and we were out the nine days before I took sea sick. I thought that was doing pretty well for my first voyage. Gosh, I didn't know that the land part of the world was so small. I was sea sick the first two days out of Panama and that was all. The ocean got more rough as we went, but I got used to it the first two days.

The day after we arrived here, my captain gave me a pass to New York City, and J. B. and I took in the sights of a great city. We visited the polo grounds, the National League base ball park and many other places of interest. We put in about an hour looking at the large aquarium, where it would seem that all specimens of fish in the world mingle together, and it surely is an interesting sight. We also saw the Statue of Liberty and the highest building in the world—the Woolworth Building.

They say that we made Colon, Panama our first stop, and remained over night at Norfolk, Virginia from ten a. m. till ten p. m. on the second stop. And believe me, we were all glad to set our feet back on soil again. We came around on the U. S. S. Northern Pacific, and some think that we will go to France on the same one.

Remember, that I can only write my love to you, when I get

The Deep Sea Peril

By VICTOR ROUSSEAU

(Copyright by W. G. Chapman)

CHAPTER X.—Continued.

He pointed behind the mound, and, following his gaze, Donald and Davies saw something like a sun-dial, made of a large bone whetted to razor fineness, and somewhat resembling a grindstone.

It rested behind the mound, on a flat rack about the size of a large table, and it tapered in thickness from that of a sharp razor, at the curving edge, to that of a jackknife blade at the base. It was perhaps two feet in diameter.

"What's the matter, Clouts?" asked Donald, seeing the expression upon the sailor's face.

"Don't you know what that is, sir?" volunteered Clouts huskily. "It's a sacrificial stone, sir. I saw one of them in the museum at Acapulco, in British Honduras, once, sir. They said the Mayas used them, and that they learned about them from the priests that had them in Atlantis, the continent that sunk beneath the waves, sir."

"Do you see how it works, Donald?" asked Davies. "These beasts can't lift things. Of course they can't lift under the pressure of miles of sea, and so they have no lifting muscles. And so they push instead. They push their victims down upon the stone."

That was as far as he had explained when Donald touched the edge of the blade with his thumbnail. The flexible bone twanged, sending forth a sound of immense volume. Traveling four times as fast through the water vapor as through the air, it seemed to reverberate under the cloudy roof for an immeasurable time, sending forth resonant echoes. It was totally unlike the sound that they had heard before, and yet equally clear and beautiful.

The response was astonishing. Instantaneously, as it seemed, the interior of the temple was filled with the devil men. Donald had just time to catch Ida to him when they were pushed backward behind the mound, and clinged with phosphorescent fire. The atmosphere seemed to have become filled with tense and resilient rubber.

The hall was crammed with the globular shapes of the monsters, that glided over the well-trodden ooze. And from the midst of them MacBeard stepped out. He touched the thing he wore about his neck, and a musical tinkle, which followed, produced an instant cessation of all movement. The ring of fire had slightly widened; the prisoners were able to move within a limited space.

"We know each other, I think," said MacBeard, with suave irony.

"What do you propose?" inquired Donald.

"I don't quite know," answered the professor thoughtfully. "You see, I never took you into consideration at all. You are, so to say, the fly on the wheel. As a part of the human race, you should meet the fate in store for the race."

"You make me sick," said Donald.

MacBeard looked rather angry.

"You can have your life for the present," he returned, "but not as a permanent gift. I shall not single you out to bestow on you the boon of continuing that constant adjustment to external forces which Herbert Spencer has named 'life.' In other words, you can go to the devil until I am ready to take you in hand again, on one condition."

"Name it, you blackguard," said Donald.

"I want the two missing pages of Masterman's manuscript."

"Take us all back to the submarine out of this hell's kitchen of yours, then show us the way to the top of the island, and you shall have all the rest of the papers."

MacBeard eyed Donald with amusement. "I offered you your life, not the others," he answered. "One man returning with a story like Masterman's would be called a lunatic; two would awaken doubt; three would be fatal."

And then his eyes fell upon Ida.

She was standing at Donald's side, as brave and defiant as he, and their eyes met. And at that instant something happened to the professor that upset all his calculations, something at which he would have scoffed as entirely incredible.

He fell in love for the first time in his life.

Science has never succeeded in penetrating the mystery of love. It is not known why one man falls in love at fifty and another at nineteen; one at night and another after five years of matrimony and supper parties with the object of his adoration. MacBeard did not know why it had happened to him, but he knew that it had happened. And with it there came the universal instinct to display his superiority to the man at Ida's side, in whom he intuitively sensed his rival.

"You've played your cards pretty badly," he sneered. "You had the secret in your hands, and you surrendered it to me. You think a little more highly of old Masterman now, don't you?"

"You blackguard!" cried Donald again, clenching his fists.

MacBeard stepped out of range hastily. He disliked violence, partly as an attempted violation of the principle of the conservation of energy, but principally because he was a coward. "It is all our lives for the missing part of the manuscript, or none," said Donald.

MacBeard rubbed his hands together. In that infernal light he seemed hardly less monstrous than the creatures about him.

"You will think differently in a few moments," he answered. And taking the implement that he had used before, into his hands, he struck another note.

Instantly the resilient wall closed in about them, and, with the same slow, steady pressure, they were urged forward, Clouts in the lead. The note sounded again; they stopped. Clouts was now immediately in front of the sacrificial knife of bone. And, very slowly, he began to lean forward.

At any other time he would have presented an appearance distinctly ludicrous. He seemed to be waddling slowly, and with great dignity, toward the razor-edged weapon. He stood stock still, planted his legs hard in the ooze, and began to bend forward, as if he were about to undertake some calisthenic exercise.

Donald understood what was happening. The monsters were urging Clouts' body downward in such a way that the edge of the bone knife would lie immediately against his breast. Then, with an increased pressure, Clouts would be forced down until the keen bone sliced his body in twain.

He plunged his hand into the mound and drew out a bone. Whirling it about his head, he struck out right and left with it. He heard the skulls of the monsters crack under the impact.

He clove a path to Clouts' side. He reached him just as the edge of the knife lay across Clouts' breast. As he bent back the sea devils, Clouts straightened himself with a jerk and looked up mournfully.

"It ain't no use, sir," he said, and plunging his hand into his breast, he drew out his mouth organ.

The relief was only momentarily achieved. The monsters came crowding back. They pinioned Donald's arms to his sides by pressure. In another instant Clouts would have paid the debt he never owed MacBeard.

It was then the ruling passion asserted itself in Clouts. Perhaps it was because he thought his chance would never come again, or it might have been mere habit. Setting his hand to his lips, he struck out the reedy notes of "Sally in Our Alley."

Donald saw the phosphorescence run from them along the cave like liquid fire. He heard MacBeard's deep note, saw the fire quiver and vanish in the darkness outside the cave. Meanwhile Sam Clouts played on.

Donald seized Davies' arm in wild excitement.

"Don't you see?" he cried. "It's music, not the sounds, because they can't hear those, but only the vibrations. That's their language. And MacBeard learned somewhere that they wouldn't hurt him if he brought—do you know what he brought? Do you know what it was that he struck?"

"A tuning fork!" shouted Davies.

With their arms linked, they ran into the throng of scurrying monsters, Ida between Donald and Davies, and Clouts to the van, blowing his mouth organ like a madman. The monsters hurried before them in evident panic. The contact with the slippery bodies no longer produced resilience. The elusive phosphorescent gleams shot here and there like will-o'-the-wisps. MacBeard was nowhere to be seen.

At the cave's entrance Sam Clouts paused and turned to Donald.

"I wish I'd brought my bass concertina aboard, sir," he said.

"Never mind; you're doing very well indeed, Clouts," answered Donald. "Play, man! Play!"

The lights, which had remained stationary during the moment's interlude, grew dimmer again as Clouts struck out with his lips the tune of "Cock o' the North."

"The submarine!" gasped Donald, pointing before him as he ran.

But, even as he neared it, it began to grow dim. Not more than a hundred paces away, the vessel sank into obscurity as they raced toward it. It seemed gradually to be blotted out before their eyes.

And slowly, almost imperceptibly, the cloudy curtain began to descend and to dissolve.

Donald gasped for air. He heard Clouts coughing, and saw the middy stagger as he ran. Ida fell back into his arms. The submarine was still fifty paces away, and she was nothing more than a cloudy image upon the night.

On they ran, groping through the complete blackness. The air was like wine jelly. Donald had almost ceased to breathe. He ran with his lungs full of a little reservoir of air, which he exhaled slowly.

He could see neither Clouts nor Davies, but he believed that they were struggling toward the submarine.

And he found it, and them, almost by a miracle. He had the good fortune to blunder into them as they tugged at the outer door of the airlock.

Somehow they opened it. They got Ida inside and followed. The outer door was closed. Clouts, reeling forward, opened the inner one, and the stale, worn-out air within the conning tower seemed like ozone.

CHAPTER XI.

The Interloper.

Ida went into Donald's cabin. Donald himself arranged to sleep in the messroom. Davies had his cabin, and Clouts the first watch. Presently Donald found himself alone.

He got into his hammock, but he could not grapple with the situation. It seemed so unreal that he half expected to awake and find that he had been delirious, and that he was just coming to after rescuing Ida from the wreck of the Beotia. He felt more and more nervous. He got up and sat down at the table, staring into the darkness in front of him.

Suddenly he leaped to his feet with a choked cry. Across the messroom, at a distance of about eight paces, he saw, mistily outlined, the face and body of the woman whom he had imagined that he saw in the house in Baltimore—and again outside!

He stared at her incredulously. He saw her so faintly that once again he believed himself the victim of a hallucination. The faintest illumination played about her, showing only the ethereal spirit that seemed incarnate in a vapory cloud.

But this was no monster such as those devils of the sea. It was the most beautiful woman whom Donald had ever seen or imagined.

He stumbled toward her. He put out his hand. As he did so, the figure moved, and he heard unmistakably the faintest slide of feet upon the floor.

He tried to catch her, to satisfy himself that he was not dreaming, but she eluded him with ease, seeming to float before his eyes, now here, now there.

Suddenly the door opened. Donald saw Ida standing in the doorway, by the light of the candle within her cabin.

"Donald!" she cried. "I thought—I thought I saw a woman pass my door."

"Ida!"

The denial died on his lips. He was not sure. He glanced hastily about him, and, at the far end, he thought he saw the dim outlines of his visitor again.

Ida peered through the darkness. She saw nothing, but she interpreted Donald's movements correctly.

"Donald! Who is she? How did she come here?"

"There is nobody, Ida." He heard the desperation in his voice; and at that instant a yearning toward the ethereal loveliness of that uncanny wraith filled his whole heart. He took a match from his box and struck it.

The spurt of flame illuminated the messroom. It was entirely empty.

"You see, dear," said Donald, turning to Ida with an embarrassed laugh. "You have been dreaming, dear."

"Yes, I suppose I have been dreaming," she answered. But she spoke without conviction. And suddenly she was crying upon his shoulder.

"Donald, you were disappointed when I came in!" she sobbed.

"Dear, you are hysterical. In the morning it will be all right."

"You don't love me any more, Donald."

WRITES HIMSELF TO DEATH

Anagram Writing From Shakespeare's Works Takes Vitality of Noted British Author.

The death of Capt. Basil Willett Charles Hood, the British author, was brought about by his excessive attempts at anagram writing from Shakespeare's works, according to testimony at the inquest in London. He was fifty-three years old and a former officer of the Prince of Wales' West Yorkshire regiment.

The coroner, according to the London Times, said it was evident what caused death. Captain Hood was engaged in a laborious undertaking, constructing writing out of the cryptograms which he alleged that he found in Shakespeare.

"There are reams of writing here," said the coroner. "Every single letter is written most carefully, and it must take months to file all this stuff about secret writing and various messages which he purported to have found concealed by means of cryptograms in Hamlet and other plays. It seems to me that he has been working very late at night and all day at this rubbish—it cannot be called anything else—and has been exhausting himself and wearing out his nervous system by going without a proper amount of nourishment because he thought his brain more active on an empty stomach. All the time he was using his strength in this way he was exhausting his strength."

Efficiency of Sammy's Kit.

It may sound strange to American ears, accustomed as they are to denunciations of our national unreadiness, says Leslie's Magazine, to hear that the American soldier's equipment is conceded by military authorities to be the finest of any army in the world.

Thus it is that Sammy will go to France (or to Russia or Mesopotamia or wherever the fates decree) carrying on his person the most complete, most adaptable, lightest and most thoroughly efficient living, working and fighting outfit of any soldier on earth, not excepting either our enemies or our allies. The personal equipment of the American infantryman (and we take the infantryman because he is both the backbone of the army and the bulk of it) represents American business efficiency and applied common sense in its highest practical manifestation. Each detail of every tiniest article, even the most insignificant strap or lace, is the result of scientific study and experiment. Some things about our army may not be above friendly criticism, but when it comes to the design of the individual soldier's outfit the United States army has no peer.

Scanty Fare.

William Snyder, head keeper at the Central park menagerie, is willing to answer any question regarding animals at any hour of the day or night. That readiness frequently gives him an insight into domestic tragedies affecting the life or liberty of birds, dogs, cats, monkeys and even turtles kept as pets in New York homes, says the New York Herald.

Mr. Snyder was called to the telephone the other afternoon and questioned by an agitated woman who sought to know the proper food for a turtle. Mr. Snyder explained that it depended upon the type of turtle, and upon being informed that it was a little one, 2 inches in diameter, suggested that it be fed one lettuce leaf a week.

"Oh, pshaw!" exclaimed the woman, "and I've just sent the maid over to get it a pound of chopped meat."

Theory That Doesn't Work.

A great social truth, says the Philadelphia Ledger, was enunciated by the janitor of a New York apartment house, who had lost his job, he explained by his wife's jealousy of the elevator girls he had employed and was being sued by her for non-support. "Girls are girls," said this shrewd observer, "and you have to pay more attention to them than you do to men." The theory that women who go into business should be treated "just like men" is held by many, especially by the women themselves. It is an excellent theory, but it does not always work.

Merited Advancement

Mr. R. C. Ten Eyck, who was at one time trainmaster at this place left here to accept a position with the D. and R. G., has made a remarkable showing which has been the stepping stone to merited advancement.

Mr. Ten Eyck was not long connected with the D. & R. G. before he was promoted to the office of Superintendent of the same road. His thorough knowledge of the business which he was associated with, brought him so into prominence, that he was recently elected Vice President and General Manager of the New Mexico Central Railroad, with headquarters at Santa Fe.

Mr. Ten Eyck has many friends in Carrizozo who will be pleased to learn of his well deserved advancement, and railroad men especially will congratulate him on his reward of merit.

WAITING JUSTICE SLEEPS

The conditions at the present time demand strong hearts and willing hands. Straddling will no longer be tolerated! He that is not for us is against us. The Good Lord and "Good Devil" policy will receive its reward. Past experiences have taught us that men have stooped to low-browed methods of evading their share of duty to their country, and that they have been encouraged and assisted by others who have deserted their sacred trust, by using their official influence to this degraded extent.

It will be the policy of this paper to resist to the last ditch, any attempt to encourage slack-ers in their cowardice. In the name of Justice to those who are bearing the burden in the heat of the day, and the Mothers who are making daily sacrifices for them and their country, this practice must stop.

Men who are elected to office throughout this land must show themselves to be men who can stand before demagogues and damn their treacherous schemes without flinching—men who cannot be bought. The time for thinkers has come—the time for action is at hand. Waiting justice sleeps, but the awakening will reward every man according to his works.

Use Ink in Addressing Mail To Soldiers Overseas

Washington, D. C., March 28. —The American postal service in France has asked the postoffice department to urge relatives of American soldiers to exercise care in directing mail to troops abroad. Rank and title should be used instead of "Mr." Given names should be written in full. Return addresses should be given and ink should always be used. It is explained that pencil writing often becomes illegible in transit.

State Road Map

The Outlook is in receipt of a State Road Map, issued by the State Highway Commission, and was presented to us by Judge Y. Hewitt of White Oaks. The map is very descriptive, showing surfaced, unsurfaced, and graded highways. It is well scaled and brings out all of the sections of interest throughout the state. The map will be of an unlimited value to tourists and those who travel over the state for either business or pleasure purposes, and its full valuation can only be arrived at by carefully looking it over, when the full merits will be readily revealed.

Fitness for Army Flying

Sense of Equilibrium One of the Most Important Tests
Applicant Must Pass

The physical examination of candidates for the aviation branch of the army is more rigid than that for other branches. Among the most important tests a man has to pass is that of his sense of equilibrium. How this is done is described by Dr. Charles P. Small of Chicago in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

The candidate is seated in a Barany chair—so called after the discoverer of the organs of equilibration. This is a swing with footrest, a long handle with which it can be whirled around and a catch by which it can be stopped at once with the examiner's foot. The man's eyes are closed and his head is tilted at about thirty degrees. The chair is then rotated to the right, ten revolutions in twenty seconds, and suddenly stopped. The applicant is told to open his eyes and look straight in front of him at some object. If he be normal, his eyes will make jerky movements to the left for about twenty-five seconds.

The test is repeated, with the chair whirling to the left, which will produce eye-jerks to the right.

The examiner stands in front of the still blindfolded candidate, tells him to extend his right arm directly in front of him and with his forefinger touch the tip of the examiner's foot. Then he is told to raise his arm above his head and bring it down to exactly the same spot. This is repeated with the left arm. The chair is swung around ten times in ten seconds, and the instant it stops the examiner touches the candidate's forefinger as before and tells him to repeat the raising and lowering of the hand. If he be normal he will not touch the finger, but will "past point" several inches to the right of it. The test is repeated to the left, and the normal man "past points" to the left.

Those experiments test the normality of the horizontal canals. That for the perpendicular canal follows. The candidate bends forward at an angle of 90 degrees, eyes still blindfolded, his head resting on his fists held on his knees. The chair is rotated to the right ten times in ten seconds. The instant it is stopped the man is told to sit upright. If normal, he will fall toward the right. The test is then made by swinging to the left, when he will fall to the left.

This method of testing the sense of equilibrium has superseded all others because it is the most exact.

Mother's Cook Book.

If I have faltered more or less
In my great task of happiness
If I have moved among my race
And shown no happy morning face
If beams from happy human eyes
Have moved me not, if morning skies
Books, and my food, and summer rain
Knocked on my sullen heart in vain.
Lord, thy most pointed pleasure take
And stab my spirit broad awake.
—H. L. Stevenson.

Food for the Family.

Corn meal dishes are very good when good meal and careful preparation is thought worthy of attention. Even the member of the family who doesn't like corn meal, may be won over if appetizing dishes, well prepared, are served. As a mush with good top milk there is nothing better for the youngster's supper, and even grandfather longs for it, if he has had New England training. Then what was left may be molded and fried for breakfast, a dish fit for the king.

Tamale Pie.

Make a mush by stirring two cupfuls of corn meal into six cupfuls of boiling water, add one and one half teaspoonfuls of salt and cook 45 minutes. Brown one onion sliced in hot fat, add a pound of hamburger steak and stir until well seared, then add salt and pepper and two cupfuls of tomato. A sweet red pepper or a green one as an addition. Grease a baking dish and put a layer of the mush then a layer of the meat and cover with mush. Bake one-half hour.

English sparrows make fine eating. In many places they are caught with a trap and a dozen or fifteen make a good meal for a large family. They may be baked in a pie like the Mother Goose rhyme of four and twenty black birds baked in a pie.

Good Pressed Meat.

Boil two pounds of pigs' hocks in salted water until the meat drops from the bones. In a separate pot, cook a pound of lean beef until tender. Mix the meat adding such seasonings as desired and mold in a loaf. The liquor in which the meat was cooked may be used for soup or to cook corn meal mush, giving it a most appetizing flavor.

Farmers Would Save Quail to War on the Boll Weevil

When a Georgia farmer found the crop of a quail that he had killed on his farm loaded with boll weevils he immediately conferred with county authorities to ascertain if he could keep hunters off his land, which is not fenced. He was very much disappointed when informed that he could not do so.

It is stated on good authority that in farms in this part of the county where the quail and other insect-destroying birds have been protected the boll weevil is but seldom seen, while on adjoining farms, where the public is permitted to hunt, cotton crops have been practically devastated by them.

A concerted movement is now on foot among the farmers to conserve the quail in an effort to combat the boll weevil. The matter will in all probability be brought to the attention of the legislature when it meets this summer, with the idea of having more stringent laws passed for the protection of insect-destroying birds.

Says Hunting Dogs and Common Curs Possess War Service Qualifications

"French war dogs are not the only ones that could be taught to do great service in the world struggle," remarked H. B. Turner, a Kentuckian, discussing the marvelous feats performed by some of the dogs on the battlefields of France.

"The dog of America commonly called a cur has instinct for such service. Some patriotic women in the West have undertaken to train dogs for Red Cross work, and they have found that the 'cur' dog is possessed of all the natural qualifications for war service. But, in my judgment, the Kentucky hunting dog is better adapted for this work than any other because of his wonderful instincts. A few years ago a sportsman of Iowa had a hunting dog bred in Kentucky. It was an unusually fine dog and during the 'racing' season in Kentucky he sent his dog back to Kentucky to take part in the fox chasing. After the sport was over the friends to whom the animal had been sent lost him. They were much perturbed, because they had promised they would see that the dog was sent safe back home to Iowa. After many days of searching, however, they sent word to the owner that the animal had disappeared. Sixty days afterward they were informed that the dog had returned to his home in Iowa."

Special Nicotine Tobacco Grown for Other Purposes Than Chewing and Smoking

While half the trades seem to be busy, to judge by advertisements, producing coffeeless coffee, tanninless tea, and tobacco without nicotine, it does seem a bit incredulous to learn of seedsmen offering seeds guaranteed to produce tobacco with from three to ten times as much nicotine content as is found in ordinary smoking and chewing grades, observes a writer in the New York Times. Of course, that is no evidence that the time-honored belief that nicotine harms humans has been discarded, for in the same seed catalogues one finds tobacco seeds commended to the planter because they will produce leaf with the minimum of the supposed poison. Doctors still tell us to smoke mild tobaccos, and the cigarette with its claim that its makeup carries little nicotine continues to grow in popularity.

But there are not a few uses for tobacco other than smoking, chewing, and snuffing, and nearly all of these demand a weed that has lots of poison in it. Florists buy thousands of pounds every year to burn in smoldering piles in their greenhouses to kill insects and eradicate the tiny moths that lay eggs that produce plant destroyers. And it is the nicotine in the smoke that kills the pests.

Nicotine is about the most efficacious remedy when garden plants are attacked by sucking insects. These destroyers cannot be harmed by eating foliage and stems with Paris green and arsenic of lead, for they have long, sharp beaks; some carry proboscises proportionately as long as an elephant's, and these they drive into leaf and blossom stems and suck out the vital juices. Only a contact poison will kill them, and nicotine does it most surely. A green or pink or white plant louse, busily sucking the life out of a plant, turns brown the instant nicotine touches his body, stiffens his legs, draws out his beak, and drops dead.

Tobacco solutions that carry 30 per cent of nicotine sell for $1.50 a pint, hence the ambition to grow tobacco rich in the deadly essence.

Talking Photoplays Next; Eliminates the Phonograph and Utilizes Film Record

Numerous attempts have been made to link the phonograph with the projector and give speech to the silent drama. Inability to obtain perfect synchronism of sound and motion has been only one of the bugaboos encountered. The limited capacity of amplifying the sound sufficiently for theater purposes without increasing the foreign noises to an objectionable degree, and the impossibility of cutting or mending a film without destroying the usefulness of the sound record have been other of the bewildering enigmas. Their solution has finally been undertaken in a new way and highly promising results attained.

The newest system of talking cinematography eliminates the phonograph and utilizes a film record that is produced by photographic and rendered by magnetic, instead of mechanical, means. This enables the sound and the picture records to be of corresponding lengths and synchronous. This method is described in the March Popular Mechanics Magazine.

The Reason.

"The fortune-telling business is a paying one, isn't it?"
"It ought to be when it starts off with a prophet."

Social Ambitions.

"Mrs. Comeup is not stopping at any expense to break into society. Her prizes at her charitable card parties are really princely."
"What are they? Jeweled ornaments?"
"No, nothing so common as that. At her last party the first prize was a ton of hard coal."

Retribution.

"I understand it was a gasoline car which struck Henry."
"Exactly, and that is one reason he is 'smelling out a suit.'"

Not to Be Disputed.

"Have you any definite theory as to why the cost of living has increased?"
"Certainly; I think it is because prices have gone up."

Ted—"Of course, not. You've lived a lot longer than I have."

LEMON JUICE IS SKIN WHITENER

CHEAP HOME-MADE BEAUTY LOTION TO REMOVE TAN, FRECKLES, SALLOWNESS.

At the cost of a small jar of ordinary cold cream one can prepare a full quarter pint of the most wonderful lemon skin whitener and complexion beautifier, by squeezing the juice of two fresh lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white. Care should be taken to strain the juice through a fine cloth so no lemon pulp gets in, then this lotion will keep fresh for months. Every woman knows that lemon juice is used to bleach a darkened skin and remove such blemishes as freckles, sallowness and tan and is the ideal skin softener and beautifier.

Just try it! Get three ounces of orchard white at any drug store and two lemons from the grocer and make up a quarter pint of this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion and massage it daily into the face, neck, arms and hands. It is marvelous to whiten rough, red hands.—Adv.

The Kaiser as a Killer.

As an exterminator of life the Kaiser stands without an equal in all history; being the prime instigator of the present world conflict, he is responsible for the slaughter of millions of human beings, and figures given by a German forestry journal show that in 1908 he killed nearly 2,000 wild game animals, his total score up to that time being more than 61,700 pieces of game, including over 4,000 stags.—The Pathfinder.

Win the War by Preparing the Land Sowing the Seed and Producing Bigger Crops

Work in Joint Effort the Soil of the United States and Canada
CO-OPERATIVE FARMING IN MAN POWER NECESSARY TO WIN THE BATTLE FOR LIBERTY

The Food Controllers of the United States and Canada are asking for greater food production. Scarcely 100,000,000 bushels of wheat are available to be sent to the allies overseas before the crop harvest. Upon the efforts of the United States and Canada rests the burden of supply.

Every Available Tillable Acre Must Contribute; Every Available Farmer and Farm Hand Must Assist

Western Canada has an enormous acreage to be seeded, but man power is short, and an appeal to the United States allies is for more men for seeding operation.

Canada's Wheat Production Last Year was 225,000,000 Bushels; the Demand From Canada Alone for 1918 is 400,000,000 Bushels

To secure this she must have assistance. She has the land but needs the men. The Government of the United States wants every man who can effectively help, to do farm work this year. It wants the land in the United States developed first of course; but it also wants to help Canada. Whenever we find a man we can spare to Canada's fields after ours are supplied, we want to direct him there.

Apply to our Employment Service, and we will tell you where you can best serve the combined interests.

Western Canada's help will be required not later than April 5th. Wages to competent help, $50.00 a month and up, board and lodging.

Those who respond to this appeal will get a warm welcome, good wages, good board and find comfortable homes. They will get a rate of one cent a mile from Canadian boundary points to destination and return.

ZIEGLER BROTHERS

We Have Done Well

East Las Vegas, N. M. — "We have done well. New Mexico is fifth in the list of states in per capita purchases of War Savings stamps, and the hundreds of faithful thrift stamp workers throughout the state are to be congratulated on the splendid showing they have made. The people who have bought these stamps, to a total on March 1 of $728,000 are to be congratulated on their wisdom and patriotism. We are proud of the result thus far and grateful to the men, women, boys and girls who helped bring it about."

Thus, briefly, is the expression of Hallet Reynolds, state director of the War Savings campaign, on the Treasury department's statement of the war savings stamp sales on March 1. "Good as the showing is," he said today, "we must not fail to recognize that $728,000 is an amount far short of $7,000,000; and that $2.08 per capita, good as it is, is still practically $18 short of our per capita of $20 for 1918. We have a long way to go to reach our state quota and while I firmly believe we will reach it, we cannot do so if a single degree of energy is lost."

Amazing Total

Combined forces of the government, states and counties will spend for highway improvement in 1918 the amazing total of $263,096,610. This is the announcement contained in the first detailed survey of the nation's road building plan issued by officials of the touring bureau of the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Company, who have been in contract daily for two months with highway commissioners of the states.

Warning!

This Year You Must Pay an Income Tax

DON'T feel that the new income tax does not apply to you—you may be pretty sure it does.

Single persons with incomes of $88.33 or more a month ($1000.00 or more a year) and married persons with incomes of $166.66 or more a month ($2000.00 or more a year) must file a statement of this income with the Government. It is only the incomes above $1000.00 and $2000.00 which are taxed.

This statement must be made out on a form which we can now supply you with and must be filed before March 1st. You must not neglect it—for two reasons:

First—It is your patriotic duty in helping to win the war.
Second—There are several penalties to be visited upon you if you do.

YOUR FLAG AND MY FLAG

Render Unto Caesar

Last Sunday was Patriotic Day at the Methodist Church. A large crowd was present to witness a spectacle seldom seen in a town the size of Carrizozo.

Rev. Lewelling preached at the morning services on "Patriotism," and took for his text, "Render Unto Caesar the Things That are Caesar's." He dwelt on man's duty to his country in answering to the call to arms in defense of the principles of democracy, and praised the heroism of the boys at the front.

At the evening services Prof. Conway, in the name of the banks of Carrizozo presented a beautiful flag as a patriotic token of reverence, and in a well worded speech explained the true meaning of its appearance and the spirit which accompanied its presentation. Rev. Lewelling made a hearty and appropriate response.

E. W. Brickley of the First National Bank, who is always ready on an occasion of this kind, made an excellent address of a patriotic nature. In the same tenor as those who preceded him, Mr. Brickley lauded the principles on which the world's battles are being fought today, praised the bravery of the boys at the front, and his words carried with them the unmistakable genuineness of the heroic grit which will win this war for peace and good government that future generations may enjoy.

Last, but by far not least, a beautiful flag bearing a star for each one of our home boys who are now in the service, was presented. The flag is the handiwork of Mrs. C. P. Squier, and its beauty was intensified by the knowledge of the fact that loom nor shuttle could receive no praise for that emblem so lovingly and patriotically bestowed. But nimble fingers, answering to the dictations of the inward recesses of a tender heart, shaped the material into the folds of our country's ever-lasting emblem of justice and freedom, to find its way to forty-four Mother hearts who await with saintly courage and sacrifice, the triumphant return of their boys from a field of honor.

Then let members of evil designing local boards and attorneys who have aided men to escape their share of the responsibility imposed equally on us all, choose this fond faith and reverential patriotism to scorn. That such hideous practices have been indulged in, there is now no doubt, but the agents of this government are daily and hourly tightening the great National dragnet around those who for a mess of pottage would be guilty of selling their National birthright. "He that gathereth not with us, scattereth abroad."

Silver City Publisher Dies

Frederick Bush, for seventeen years publisher of the Silver City Enterprise and one of Grant county's best known citizens died at his home last Wednesday after several years of failing health. His death resulted from tubercular meningitis.

Saw Soldier Cousin in Movies.

At a moving picture performance, says the Boston Post, there was shown "The Battle of Arras" and the retreat of the Germans. One view showed some English soldiers marching through a street in France. In the film the soldiers stopped in front of the camera a few seconds, when suddenly an American soldier jumped to his feet and yelled at the top of his voice, "Give 'em thunder, Johnnie, old top! Give 'em thunder!" The audience almost went wild in its applause; but the soldier, realizing what he had done, blushed and started for an exit, when a young woman usher told him not to mind, but stay and see the show. He later explained that the man in the picture was Johnnie Clark, his cousin.

She Wished Good Service.

Telephone girls have many questions put to them daily, according to a young woman who is employed at the Central Union exchange in this city, notes the Indianapolis News.

But the funniest request made by any of our subscribers in all my experience," she continued, "came from an old woman just the other day.

"Is this the Bell Telephone company?" she asked.

"Yes, ma'am," I replied.

"Well, I want to speak to Mr. Bell at once. There's something the matter with my telephone, an' I want him to come down here an' fix it."

Effect of Learning.

President George Kistner of Hampton college said the other day:

"Learning, profound learning, is the light of the world, but we continually get new proof of the harm a little learning does.

"A lady employed a schoolgirl of twelve to scrub her front steps. The schoolgirl worked well, but suddenly she stopped coming. The lady met her on the street and said:

"What's the matter, Minnie? Why have you stopped working for me?"

"The urchin tossed her head.

"I'm talkin' Latin now," she said, "and I don't scrub steps no more."

WANT CAVE NATIONAL PARK

Natural Wonder of Kentucky Does Not Draw Patronage It Deserves Under Private Management.

Mammoth Cave should be made a national park. Now is a good time to take the necessary action. The federal government should be able to acquire the property, upon reasonable terms. The management of the cave, asserts the Louisville Courier-Journal, has been such as to suggest that an adequate hotel will not be built at once, if at all, but even if it is the intention of the managers of the estate to replace the hotel that has been burned, the history of the cave as a private property is a history of failure to induce the number of visitors which the importance and interest of the natural wonder warrant. As a national park, improved by good roads, provided with a good hotel, Mammoth Cave would be seen by ten times as many persons as see it under present conditions.

The area surrounding Mammoth Cave is well forested, picturesque, well supplied with streams and in every way suitable as a national park. Kentuckians should urge their representatives in congress to interest themselves in securing a sufficient appropriation to acquire the cave and enough ground around it to make a reserve representative of an exceptionally fine section scenically considered and now almost as primitive as it was when Mammoth Cave was discovered.

THE SPRING DRIVE

Our boys are going "Over the top" and into "No man's land" this spring. No one has any doubt of their ability to get there. There will also be a spring drive on this side of the ocean, because March is the year's "blue Monday." It is the most fatal month of the year. March and April is a time when resistance usually is at lowest ebb. It is a trying season for the "run-down" man. But medical science steps in, and says, "It need not be!" We should cultivate a love of health, a sense of responsibility for the care of our bodies. Do not allow the machinery of the body to clog. Put the stomach and liver in proper condition. Take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, to be had at most drug stores in tablet or liquid form, tablets sixty-cents a vial, composed of native herbs. This puts the stomach and liver in proper condition. You may be plodding along, no spring, no elasticity, no vim, but as soon as you have put the body into its normal physical condition—oiled the machinery, as it were—you will find new vim, vigor and vitality within you. A little "pop," and we laugh and live. Try it now. Send Dr. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., 10c. for trial package. A little energy will save the day. The prime necessity of life is health. With spirit and energy you have the power to force yourself into action. The Golden Medical Discovery is the spring tonic which you need.

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE

by MARY GRAHAM BONNER

KING LION'S STORY.

"I heard of a story the other day which made me pretty mad," said King

Lion, as he stroked his mane and looked about him for someone to talk to. He saw Master Lion, whose mane had not yet grown to its full size, and so he was still only a child-lion.

He was called Master Lion, too, for he was only three years old. He heard King Lion talking. He hoped King Lion would talk to him. It was so fine to talk to a king, and to talk to a lion king was one of the finest things he could imagine.

To talk to a king of a country wouldn't have interested Master Lion in the least. In the first place he would have had nothing in common with a king of any land or country.

He was afraid that if he should ever meet a king like that he would certainly want to kill him, and no doubt the king would beg for mercy. The very thought of such a thing made Master Lion angry. "To think of a king begging for mercy." And so he thought, "he didn't want to be impudent, and he thought it would be impudent indeed to speak to King Lion first."

With a king of the lion family, one should always wait to be spoken to. "I heard of a story the other day," repeated King Lion, roaring for all he was worth.

Master Lion longed to hear the story.

"Yes, it was a story which made me pretty mad, which I have already said once. How about hearing the story, Master Lion? Would you like to come and talk to the king?"

"Honored, I am sure," roared Master Lion, and from his roar you would never have thought he was not full grown, though of course his mane was not nearly as fine as the mane of King Lion. And that only comes in its perfect form when a lion is full grown.

"Your majesty," said Master Lion, "I have been longing to hear the story. It grieves me to learn, though, that it made you angry."

"I enjoy getting angry," said King Lion. "I love to roar and snarl. I get a great deal of pleasure out of it."

"Then I am glad you heard a story which made you mad," said Master Lion. It was all very well to fight and argue if a king of a country came along, but not with King Lion. He wanted to agree with all he said.

"But the story made me mad, and I didn't like it," said King Lion.

"I'm puzzled," said Master Lion. "I'm not old enough yet to learn many wise things. Won't you tell me, your majesty?"

"To be sure," said King Lion. "The story made me mad, and very mad. It is true. But still, though I was mad, I enjoyed the feeling. It did my lion heart good to roar about it."

"Are you going to tell me the story?" asked Master Lion.

"To be sure," said King Lion. "You see, it was this way—"

Master Lion looked in all directions to see which way it could be, but King Lion laughed at him. "I don't mean it's any special direction. When I said it was this way I simply meant it was the way of the story, not the way of the road, or the forest path."

"Well, I heard from a hunter (he almost captured me, but I was too quick for him in the end) this story."

"He said, 'What would my little girl do if she saw a real lion?' She hasn't yet visited the zoo and when she heard two at the circus she wanted to pass their cage and see something else. She thought the way they roared about nothing was quite too frightful."

"In her bath every night she puts a toy rubber lion. She can press it and it will squeak. It gives a little tiny squeak something like a mouse would, but my little girl says that's the way she likes to hear a lion."

"Imagine!" said King Lion. "They've made little rubber lions to look like me, the king. And they squeak when pressed. I guess I'd roar and fight if pressed, and I'd win, too! The insulting size of the squeak, too—but then it's so absurd it's not worth thinking about any more. But it did give me a nice, joyously mad feeling for a time."

And It Will Squeak.

That Old Guy.

Mrs. Carico, a middle-aged and talkative ruralist, was appearing in a suit brought by her husband. She insisted on loudly commenting on each answer given by the first witness. Repeatedly the judge requested her to keep quiet, but she persisted in audibly disputing the words of the witness. Finally the judge said:

"Mrs. Carico, the court demands that you remain quiet. Unless you do so you will be held in contempt."

Giving the judge a savage look, the woman turned to her attorney and inquired:

Swift & Company Publicity

At a recent hearing of the Federal Trade Commission there was introduced correspondence taken from the private files of Swift & Company, which showed that the Company had been considering for some time an educational advertising campaign.

The need for this publicity has been apparent to us for several years. The gross misrepresentation to which we have recently been subjected has convinced us that we should no longer delay in putting before the public the basic facts of our business, relying on the fair-mindedness of the American people.

The feeling against the American packer is based largely on the belief that the income and well-being of the producer and consumer are adversely affected by the packers' operations, resulting in unreasonably large profits.

Swift & Company's net profit is reasonable, and represents an insignificant factor in the cost of living.

For the fiscal year 1917 the total sales and net profit of Swift & Company were as follows:

Sales
$875,000,000.

Profits
$34,650,000.

This is equivalent to a $3,465. profit on a business of $87,500.

If Swift & Company had made no profit at all, the cattle raiser would have received only one-eighth of a cent per pound more for his cattle, or the consumer would have saved only one-quarter of a cent per pound on dressed beef.

APRIL 1 LAST DAY FOR FEDERAL RETURNS

Penalties for Income Dodgers Are Severe—Get Your Return
In if You Are Liable.

April 1, 1918, is the final day allowed under the federal income tax law for the filing of federal income tax returns. Persons who are required to file returns under the provisions of law and who fail to get their returns in on time are subject to severe penalties, as follows:

For making false or fraudulent return, not exceeding $2,000 or not exceeding one year's imprisonment, or both, in the discretion of the court, and, in addition, 100 per cent. of the tax evaded.

For failing to make return on time, not less than $20 nor more than $1,000, and, in addition, 50 per cent. of the amount of tax due.

If on account of illness or absence from home you are unable to render your return within the time prescribed by law you may obtain an extension of 30 days if a request therefor is filed with the collector of your district before the due date of the return. In this request you must state the reason why the return cannot be filed within the time prescribed by law.

Collectors of internal revenue are not authorized to grant extensions of more than 30 days, but the commissioner of internal revenue has authority to grant a reasonable extension beyond 30 days in meritorious cases. If you desire an extension of more than 30 days your request should be addressed to the commissioner and should contain a detailed statement covering the reasons which make it impossible for you to file your return on or before April 1.

The internal revenue men are now completing their tour of the country, during which they were in touch with the people of every city and town. If you failed to get in touch with the deputy which visited your section it is not too late to get advice. Consult your postmaster as to where the nearest deputy is now. Get your blank form, study the directions and the requirements as shown thereon and make your return without fail if your income was sufficient to come within the bounds named in the law.

It is pointed out by Commissioner Roper that it is important that the people comply with the federal laws as fully as they are complying with the drafts for men and the conservation of foods and fuel. "The war must be paid for," says Commissioner Roper. "Congress has as much right to conscript a just portion of income as it has to conscript our boys. The tax for 1917 is designed to reach moderate as well as large incomes, so that all persons who are in financial position to bear a portion of the heavy government expenses can be assessed in proportion to their ability to pay."

"The man who is barely making a living or barely supporting a family is not affected by the 1917 law. But the man who is able to bear a share of the burden has been reached by the new law, and he should accept his responsibility in the same patriotic spirit that our young men have shown in offering themselves for this great purpose of the country to make the world safe for people of all kinds to live in and to govern themselves."

This tax is one which recognizes women as on an equal basis with men. The unmarried woman or the married woman with a salary must make tax return just the same as any man. Only the woman supporting her mother or other members of her family may take out $2,000 exemption.

Under the law the head of the family is the one whose earning power contributes to the family's support.

Similarly a widow with small children to support can take out $2,000 exemption and $200 additional exemption for each of her children under eighteen. Thus it is intended that the law shall work no hardship to women having to struggle to get along. But each must file return if her income is $1,000.

A man whose wife dies and who is left with small children to support upon a moderate income may also take full exemption under the new tax law and also claim $200 exemption for each of his children under eighteen.

The widower under the law is a single man and must make tax return accordingly. Married men need not file returns unless they are earning $2,000 or more.

"This is as much a national obligation as the reporting for duty of a man drafted for service with the colors," says D. C. Roper, commissioner of internal revenue. "As it stands, it is much a matter of the man or woman's own conscience. It is for him or for her to determine just how far he is liable to the tax. He must figure

Not the Policy of Agricultural Department to Call Upon Gentler Sex Until Nation's Food Production Is Threatened.

Only when the man and boy supply is exhausted and the failure of the nation's food production campaigns are threatened, should the United States call upon women to do men's work on the farm.

That, briefly, may be said to be the policy of the United States department of agriculture in the matter of women as farm laborers. Badly as labor will be needed to carry through programs of food production this year, the department does not believe the situation yet demands the employment of women for the heavier farming operations. Rather, it believes that efforts now should be directed toward persuading able-bodied men in the cities to do farm work and that community action should be directed to this end.

Work for Women.

But there will be work to do for the thousands of women who are offering to help the farmers with their big task. Helping farm women with their added duties and taking the place of men in the lighter industries, thus releasing male labor for the farms, are important ways in which women may aid agriculture's program, department officials point out. Furthermore, women can be expected to help, as they have in the past, with the lighter work of truck farming, in picking and packing berries and fruit and with much other light labor of food production.

But if a serious labor shortage threatens the harvest of the country's food crops the department of agriculture, in co-operation with the department of labor and other federal and state agencies, will request women to help meet the situation. It has instructed its field agents to aid farmers in obtaining women workers when such conditions arise.

Among the sources from which additional labor may be obtained on the farms are: (1) from among the women already on farms; (2) from relatives of farmers who are living in cities and who are willing to work on farms during slack business or industrial periods; (3) from the foreign women who are accustomed to work in the fields under a system of intensive agriculture before migrating to this country; and (4) from women in nearby villages and towns who might be employed on farms and still live at home.

If in any community it becomes necessary to employ women, the principal problems to be met are to stimulate women to take up farm work and to make farmers realize the necessity of using woman labor in order to maintain production.

Wages for Women.

The farmer desiring woman laborers should indicate the kind of work which he wants done, the amount, and the probable dates and wages offered, and the woman offering herself should indicate the kinds of work she is willing to do, and whether she is willing to work all day and every day in the week. It should be thoroughly understood by all parties concerned that the women are to receive a wage equal to that given men for performing the same amount of work. Wherever possible, this can be brought about by putting the work on the piece basis.

The function of the home demonstration agent and the county agent is to see that the county exchange lists all women desiring work, as well as the farmers desiring women farm workers. If there were a sufficient demand in certain communities for women, one of the local woman committee members might act as the medium of local exchange. The home demonstration and county agents will also keep in touch with the farm help specialist, employed by the office of farm management of the department. She will be ready to advise the various committees as to whether the conditions under which women work on farms are satisfactory, and not detrimental to their health and morals.

Ready for Spring Drive?

Have you ordered the necessary farm implements and machinery, live, fertilizers, and the like? If not, do so at once. Don't wait until the spring rush is upon you. It may be too late then to get what you need. The United States Department of Agriculture has been urging farmers to make arrangements early for these materials this year because of transportation problems. It will soon be too late to be early.

EMPLOYMENT OF WOMEN

As a rule the employment of women in farming operations should not be considered if the agricultural production can be maintained by the employment of men and boys. The department of agriculture does not wish to urge the use of women laborers on the farms unless the man supply becomes exhausted. The lively interest now being shown by women in all parts of the country who are eager to volunteer their services to help the men and boys carry out the nation's food production program this year has forced the attention of federal officials to the fact that needed work can be done by these willing hands. Women who can help farm women with their work and who can release men in the lighter industries to do the heavier work on the farms can give valuable aid in the present labor emergency.

Shed for Implements.

Unless you have one already, now is a good time to build an inexpensive implement shed. Machinery costs too much to be allowed to rust and rot.

THE BIG WORK IN THE WAR

The War Lord Salutes the Field Marshall.

Such is the striking title to a well-timed cartoon in an agricultural paper, showing the War Lord in salute to the farmer. The meaning of it is that 'thout the assistance that the farmer renders in the matter of providing food for the army the fighting ability of that body would be proportionally decreased. While the army is fighting, the farmer is busy. The promptness with which he sprang into the breach was a patriotism equal to that of the man who enlisted and the farmer's record in this particular was worthy of the high record that has become his. All over the United States the appeal is being met by more production. Fields are enlarged, intensive agriculture has taken the place of slash-and-burn methods, more cattle are being fattened, more hogs grown, veal and lamb have become scarce commodities. This is all in keeping with the food-controller's demands, and with the heartiness that is now prevalent, it would seem as if the requirements of the boys at the front and the allies in Europe would be fully met.

Not only are the tilled acres of the United States being brought into regulation, but the wild pasture lands are doing tribute with their cattle and sheep. Working in conjunction with the United States, Western Canada is also doing its share and a pretty large share it is, too. By an arrangement with the United States Government it will now be possible through its employment bureau to secure for the Western Canada fields such help as can be spared. It is thought in this way Canada will have its help to seed its millions of acres of wheat land fairly well met. The large number of young men of the farms who have enlisted and gone to the front has left many of the Western Canada farms weak in the matter of man power. This means that Canada can take all that the United States can spare. The wages will be good and the housing comfortable.

In addition to this the free homestead lands of Western Canada offer the greatest inducement to the man with limited means who is willing to undergo some of the hardships naturally accompanying this enterprise. There is also the large area of uncultivated lands that are waiting the man with sufficient means to purchase and equip. And this is not expensive. The lands are cheap and the terms very reasonable. Equipped with tractor or horse power the cultivation cost is slight when the return is considered. Yields of wheat varying from 20 to 40 bushels per acre may be relied upon, and with a set price of over $2.00 per bushel, it is an easy matter to arrive at the cost. Production, including interest on land, has been estimated at figures not exceeding ten dollars an acre. With a twenty bushel yield, at a two dollar price—forty dollars. Ten from forty and you have the profits many farmers made in Western Canada the past year.

The Dominion and Provincial Governments are working conjointly in an increased production propaganda. Among the important steps that have been taken to bring this about is the recent order by which it is made possible to take into Canada tractors that cost fourteen hundred dollars and less in the country of production. This will give those residing in the United States, owning lands in Canada, the opportunity to place them under cultivation at much less cost than in the past. Another inducement is the privilege of taking sheep and cattle in free of duty. Automobiles form a necessary part of the outfit of a good many farmers that would like to move to Canada. These are now accorded free duty. Provision is also made that those requiring seed and unable to obtain it in any other way, may get it from the Government. So from this it will be seen that it is not only the fertile lands of Western Canada that invite the settler, but the ease and cheapness with which a farmer may establish himself.—Advertisement.

JOKE WAS ON SALOON MAN

Wet Goods Dealer Found That Bundle He So Obliging Kept for Customer Had Its Uses.

Aren't the master workmen of the wet goods establishments easy marks? That is what the gentry who live by their wits are asking each other. They know that the proprietor of a wet goods establishment loses his mental balance and is completely disarmed when he is invited to have a drink. Recently two husky-looking individuals entered a Forty-second street suds emporium. One of the party carried an enormous bundle, which he placed on the top of the mahogany. They both called for a drink.

"Well, it is hopeful that my wife will stop her nagging about the cold weather and being cold when I carry this home," said the man who carried the bundle.

At the end of the bar stood the proprietor of the wet goods establishment. He seemed curious, so the two men invited him to have a drink, which was accepted. One of them explained that he had the finest pair of wool blankets that was ever sheared from the backs of sheep in the package.

"Feel for yourself," he said, as he unfurled one end of the bundle.

The proprietor felt and acknowledged that they were the simon pure wool article.

"I'm taking them home to my wife," said the owner. "She has been kicking about being cold."

Then they had another round of liquors.

"Well, I must be on my way," said the man, as he picked up the bundle.

"Why don't you leave them here until you start for home?" interposed his companion.

"Good idea," he said. And turning to the owner of the cafe he asked if he could leave the bundle.

"Sure," said the proprietor, "but you had better write your name on it to avoid any mistake."

Twelve o'clock came around and the man hadn't called for his bundle. "I can see that fellow getting more h—l when he goes home tonight," said the proprietor as he turned the key in the door.

The next day the owner of the cafe was the first on the job. He took a survey of the wet goods and then went to the rear of the store, where the safe was. Here was a surprise for him. He found the door of his burglar-proof safe neatly reposing on the pair of downy blankets, which had been used to muffle the sound of the explosion.—New York Times.

Maritime Miscellany.

One of the minor and yet exceedingly important articles entering into the construction of a wooden ship is the "knee." A ship knee is a right-angled wooden brace used to give strength to the framing and is fashioned from the natural crook of a tree formed by a heavy, shallow, horizontal root and a section of the trunk. Knees when finished are sometimes as much as six or seven feet high and many of them are four feet high. The tremendous impetus to wooden shipbuilding brought about by the war has resulted in the establishment of a sawmill at Portland, Ore., designed exclusively for the finishing of ship knees. The timber preferred is second-growth Douglas fir, found growing in shallow soil, so that the roots turn off at right angles to the trunk and thus give the proper shape. A tract of timber that will produce five to seven knees per acre is considered a good location for a camp. The standardized wooden ship requires some two hundred knees of all sizes, while another type of wooden ship, also under construction, requires more than one hundred and sixty knees. In addition to the production of knees by the special sawmill at Portland, various operators are also getting out knees by the old-fashioned method of hand hewing in the woods.—National Lumber Manufacturers' Association.

Wait a Minute!

An elder sister approached in an ingratiating way a small girl who, in the breakfast room, was engaged in knitting.

"Well done, well done!" she remarked. "That is really capital. You are doing the work so nicely, and so quietly, and so industriously—"

"Look here," interrupted the small girl defiantly. "If it's anything upstairs at the top of the house, I, for one, am not going to fetch it!"

Broken Stove Lining.

If any one contemplates mending a broken stove lining with a cement made of salt and ashes mixed with water, don't do it. The salt will rust the stove, ruining it beyond repair. Instead, get a quart or so of cement and some sand from the street, and mix with water. Fill all the holes and cracks and your lining will be as good as a new one and your stove not injured.

A NERVOUS BREAKDOWN

Miss Kelly Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Her Health.

Newark, N. J.—"For about three years I suffered from nervous breakdown and got so weak I could hardly stand, and had headaches every day. I tried everything I could think of and was under a physician's care for two years. A girlfriend had used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and she told me about it. From the first day I took it I began to feel better and now I am well and able to do most any kind of work. I have been recommending the Compound ever since and give you my permission to publish this letter."—Miss FLO KELLY, 476 So. 14th St., Newark, N. J.

The reason this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, was so successful in Miss Kelly's case was because it went to the root of her trouble, restored her to a normal healthy condition and as a result her nervousness disappeared.

Careless Papa.

They are telling this one, which may or may not be true, in the centers of civilization along the Eastern seaboard.

A youth hired as an office boy by a New York concern was explaining to his employer the necessity of his having steady employment.

"You see," he said, "I have to help support my mother, because papa isn't with us any more."

"Is he dead?" asked the head of the concern, sympathetically.

"No, sir; he's not dead, but they's got him in jail."

"In jail! What for?"

"Well, sir, he used to work in a bank over in Jersey, and they accused him of taking samples home."—Saturday Evening Post.

Not Taking Any Chances.

Donald was repeatedly cautioned to be careful in crossing the street. One day, as he was about to go out to play, his mother warned him to watch out for autos, etc., to which he replied impatiently: "Oh, I do; I look up and down and every way along the street, and I even look up in the sky to see if any airplanes are coming."

NEW MEXICO ONE OF WORLD'S GREATEST LAND OWNERS

ply to his letter transmitting the official copy of the report, Governor W. E. Lindsey says:

"It is apparent that the revenues from the state's lands have become one of the most important of the state's sources of income and that the volume of these revenues probably will be increased from year to year, with the continued exercise of good business policy and judgment in the administration of the lands. The income from our lands now bears an important relation to the rate of taxation for state purposes and for this reason alone, aside from others of equal importance, it seems proper that the people should be as thoroughly informed as possible as to the lands, their uses and resources.

"The report, I believe, should be printed and given as wide distribution as possible, and I would urge personally that every citizen and particularly every taxpayer in New Mexico give the report a thorough reading."

Acting on this suggestion from Governor Lindsey, the land commissioner has had the report printed for general distribution. A copy will be sent free to any citizen who will apply to the State Land Office, Santa Fe.
