Oregon Ship Building Calls For Labor.

Thousands Of Men At High Wages Can Find Employment.

The Secretary of the State Editorial Association of Portland, Oregon, informs us that Oregon's effort to do her part in the building of steel and wooden ships for the war is seriously crippled through the lack of labor.

Latest authentic information gathered points to the necessity of employing at once nearly 12,000 men in the ship building business at Portland, and between two and three thousand in the yards outside.

With contracts already let and certain to be placed in the near future, it is stated by the ship builders that from 20,000 to 25,000 men should be employed by the last of the year, or early next year.

The work is on hand to give this employment and the demand for ships is growing greater every day.

The development of an industry of this magnitude so suddenly has resulted in drawing practically all of the available men within immediate reach, and already the shipbuilders of the state are urging laborers from all parts of the west to take positions in their plants.

Appeals are coming from national officials and all the leading business men of the East for all of the seaboard states to concentrate their energies upon the program of building ships. This is declared to be the greatest duty confronting the nation today and on every hand it is admitted frankly, despite the optimistic statements made of the United States shipbuilding program built by America at a pace absolutely beyond the present program.

The effectiveness of the United States in the European War will be largely reduced, Germany is counting implicitly upon destroying more ships than are built to prevent America from participating extensively in the war. The submarine program is making more rapid progress than the shipbuilding program. For these reasons the federal government is putting the building of ships as the primary patriotic duty of the people of the country, and urging every person who can aid in the work to take it up with as much reverence and as much sense of duty as if they were enlisting in the army.

America's food, munitions, arms, and men cannot reach Europe without an adequate supply of ships. Best authorities declare these should be built of steel and wood as rapidly as the forces of the country can be marshalled for the work.

In the emergency every man who has any mechanical or artisan skill whatever is being adapted to some part of ship construction, wherever he desires to work. It has been necessary to teach labor to do a great deal of work in his own home. All the facilities for such instruction are being provided by the ship yards, the government, and state, and men are having an opportunity to take up lines of employment never presented before at the best wages that have been known in the Pacific Northwest and perhaps the country.

A Ford roadster belonging to C. A. Tharp, driven by Albert Ferguson, was captured when the driver, in an attempt to turn the car around, drove too near to the railroad car in front of the Rock Island hotel, Tuesday night, after having passed through and obtained a pass at Newkirk. No one was hurt, and but slight damage was done to the car.

Encourage Education.

East Las Vegas, N. M., Aug. 16th:—Following the course recommended by the country's best educators, and profiting by the experience of the Dominion of Canada, which has found it a poor policy to encourage young men under 21 years to give up their schooling to go to war, the New Mexico Normal University has prepared to encourage education during the coming school year more than ever before. The school has reason to expect the largest attendance in its history because of the fact that the summer session, just closed, showed a marked increase in enrollment. It was the only summer school west of the Mississippi to show a gain, which demonstrates that interest in educational matters in New Mexico is growing so rapidly that the depressing effects of the war are more than offset.

Because of the fact that many young men teachers will be called upon to serve in the army, positions of responsibility hitherto held by men in the educational institutions will be opened to the graduates of normal schools who are fully qualified, especially young women. Should the war end within the two or three years, male high school graduates of this year's classes, if they enroll in the Normal University this fall, will become eligible to take many responsible educational positions, such as principals, superintendents and instructors in high schools which will be unfilled near the close of the war, and before they reach military age.

The Normal University long has advocated and encouraged the pursuing of higher courses in normal work, with the result that it has many graduates who have attained the highest degree of capability, and with the further result that education in the state has been materially advanced. There has been a constant demand for these trained teachers. Imagine how much greater it will be during and immediately after the war!

The Normal University's president, Dr. Frank H. H. Roberts, is sincere when he urges young men and all young men who are below the draft age to prepare for the career of educators. For this reason he has strengthened his faculty and courses and offers this coming fall stronger attractions to students than ever before. In addition to courses in the regular normal work, the school is emphasizing the preparation of young men and women for instruction in business courses, in domestic science and household arts and in physical training. It also is offering instruction of a nature that equips young people for business careers, and many of its graduates are filling responsible positions in this line of endeavor.

Jumped Overboard And Swam Ashore.

Uncle Richard Yates was routed from his dug out, Sunday night by a deluge of water that broke in during the heavy rain. It appears that the dug out was situated in a manner that water in its endeavor to seek its level found an entrance, and in a very short time Uncle Richard was navigating the interior of his dugout, using his bed as a boat and the broom as an oar, until the level rose to the door when he abandoned the ship and swam ashore thru the door.

SHEEP'S CLOTHING

By LOUIS JOSEPH VANCE

Real Entertainment.

In peace times the Atlantic steamship lines offer smooth sailing a fruitful field of labor. Some are gamblers, some are smugglers, some are thieves of every known variety, including back-mallers. In "Sheep's Clothing" Mr. Vance has written a story whose action takes place principally during a single voyage from England to America, and at least three of his characters are smart rascals posing as honest men—wolves in sheep's clothing. This story points no moral. Its chapters are filled with honest, cheerful, entertaining people; the kind we all like to meet and know—and the ending is happy. No, this isn't a problem novel, but a very pleasant—and sometimes thrilling—tale, and you're all going to enjoy reading it.

THE EDITOR.

CHAPTER I.

In her maiden season the Alsatia, "largest steamship in the world" of her day and generation, was advertised to leave Liverpool for New York via Queenstown, promptly at five o'clock in the afternoon of every third Saturday.

At about one o'clock of a Saturday late in September one forehanded passenger found her way by dint of persistence through the pandemonium in the pier-shade to the Alsatia's first-cabin gangway.

This was a young woman not far beyond her twentieth year, with a tall and slender body, a face of uncommon distinction, and at the time somewhat pale, and a striking abundance of hair the color of raw, red gold. Dressed simply in dark traveling costume, with hat in excellent accord, she carried, in addition to a light wrap and tightly rolled umbrella, a conspicuously new Oxford bag lettered in black, "L. C.—New York." Behind her a porter staggered beneath her only other piece of luggage—a battered black-leather trunk of great age, which, curiously enough, bore the legend in letters of white, half obliterated, "L. C.—London."

Tipping and dismissing the man, the girl confidently ascended the gangway to the saloon deck of the Alsatia, and asked a steward to conduct her to her stateroom, displaying at the same time a ticket entitled "Lucy Carteret, Spinster," to a berth in Room 75, Deck B. Once alone in her room, she bolted the door, lingered before a full-length mirror to remove her hat, eying her reflection with a shadowy, puzzling smile, and turned away to review the cubicle, one-half of which she was entitled to call her own for the next six days. The other half had been engaged by a woman of whom she knew nothing whatever, not even so much as her name.

It was a stateroom unusual in arrangement and luxurious in appointment. Two brass bedsteads stood end to end against the inner wall. The other furniture comprised a capacious chest of drawers, a comfortable sofa, and two wicker armchairs. At one end narrow doors admitted to a cramped but adequate lavatory and a roomy clothes-press. The woodwork was enameled a creamy white, and the walls boasted panels of golden brocade—a color scheme conveying an effect at once of warmth, airiness and scrupulous cleanliness.

With a grave little nod, the girl approved. If expensive—and it was horribly expensive for her slender purse—this stateroom was well worth all it had cost her. There ran in her blood the instinct for luxury, though now her purse, upon examination, yielded but four golden sovereigns, a half-sovereign, a half-crown, a shilling, and a few ponderous copper pennies, barely enough for the inevitable tips at the end of the voyage. She would land in New York practically penniless. But that would be on a day the seventh distant; sufficient unto it its potential mischief.

She was very tired; the last few nights had brought her little sleep, thanks to the excitement engendered by contemplation of a step whose boldness was unprecedented in her history. But now, with that step successfully taken, excitement yielded place to fatigue. Unlocking and in part unpacking both bag and trunk, she appropriated a fair half of the wardrobe accommodations, then wrapped herself in a dressing gown and lay down on one of the beds. Transient, odd visions painted the ruddy glow within her closed eyelids—of the life she had dismissed; of the temerarious adventure that engaged her; of the life to which she looked forward.

In time a knocking sounded on the door. The girl stirred and moved her head impatiently. The knocking grew imperative, and the deeps of sleep were disturbed by other sounds as well, by voices—senses in the act of unfastening the door. But of a sudden she paused with fingers resting nerveless upon half-drawn bolt, eyes wide with apprehension, and her face robbed of all that gracious color with which sleep had imbued it. For an instant she stood so, in doubt and hesitation, listening; then, as if reassured, she drew the bolt clear and opened the door.

Miss Carteret came fully to her

This act disclosed two figures waiting beyond the threshold—a luggage-laden steward and a lady of abundant person and post-mature years, in a gown not three days out of the Rue de la Paix.

"I'm sorry," the girl apologized, standing aside. "I was quite sound asleep, and couldn't seem to wake up."

"But it is I who am sorry to have disturbed you."

With a nod and a smile of acknowledgment, the speaker sallied grandly into the stateroom, a somewhat overpowering Presence.

Submitting perforce to the necessity of traveling without privacy, Miss Carteret hadn't bargained for the company of a dowager duchess; and this Presence bodied forth every redoubtable inch of that high estate. Her sixty years were quick with the aghit of forty. She wore her nose with the high, patrician bridge. A make-up of most excellent discretion supplemented charms by no means hopelessly passive. An impeccable taste in dress achieved a sobriety to suit her age, while escaping gloom and stiffness. There were evidences of a vigorous temper, dominated by a lively appreciation of the humorous, an invincible self-confidence, a seasoned acquaintance with the world, and a devastating curiosity—a handsome figure, a personality to be reckoned with.

By accent and mode of speech a true American, this was no duchess unless through accident of matrimony. But indubitably she was a dragon.

Miss Carteret was quick to endure the lady with a mental nickname, "The Dowager Dragon," a term whose asperity she modified by the admission that, if dragonish, she was most probably a dear. Then she seemed conscious that she had been staring steadfastly, and for a time far too long, at the subject of her reverie.

"I beg your pardon," she murmured, averting her eyes.

"I'm rather fond of you," said the Dowager Dragon brusquely. "If you apologize, I'll have to—I've been staring every whit as hard as you, my dear—and I never apologize." The con-as Peter Traft says, what do you know about that?"

Miss Carteret knew nothing whatever about that, and owned her ignorance with a look of blankness that earned an indulgent chuckle.

"Confess you have never heard of me! But that's only because you're English."

"Oh, but I'm not!" Miss Carteret insisted impulsively. "My mother's parents were English; but I—"

Here she choked in undisguised dismay. But her companion wasn't looking—didn't, indeed, need to look: such is the resource of one ripe in the knowledge of humanity.

"Go on, my dear. Tell me all—as well now as later. You will, anyway, in the end—and if you don't, I'll engage to find you out for myself. By the way, your name would help."

"Lid—" Miss Carteret announced incoherently, stopping abruptly as though half-choked by the monosyllable.

"How very odd!" commented Mrs. Beggarstaff with a straight face. "Miss Lid! Almost as bizarre as Beggarstaff. But that's my own fault: I married it with my hearing unimpaired. But Lid! I never—"

"My name isn't Lid!" the girl interrupted indignantly. "I never said so. Something was tickling my throat. My name is Lucy Carteret."

"Sorry I misunderstood—and glad, Lucy Carteret's much prettier and—ah—human. The Maryland Carters, I hope."

"Oh, no," said the girl hastily. "Too bad; it's a good family. Let me see—there are no Carters worth mentioning in New York. Virginia branch, perhaps?"

"Oh, no."

The iterated denial was less bold than its original; Miss Carteret was beginning to be sorry she hadn't waited for a later steamer, as well as that she had thought it necessary, not to say romantic, to adopt a pseudonym to fit the initials on her luggage.

"Then you can't be anybody!" Mrs. Beggarstaff asserted vigorously. "Too bad. Unless possibly," she brightened, "you come of the English family? There are, I believe, some Carters in Hertfordshire—"

"No!" the persecuted young woman said firmly. "I told you I was an American—and if the matter is of any importance, I'm perfectly willing to admit I'm nobody."

"Don't be cross with an inquisitive old woman, my dear," the Beggarstaffian smile was very fetching. Miss Carteret's indignation melted before it. "I'm only trying to find out if we haven't friends in common. Who are your friends on board? I know everybody, and—"

"I'm traveling alone," the girl interposed meekly, "and to the best of my knowledge I don't know a soul on the ship."

Mrs. Beggarstaff chose shrewdly to disapprove. "That's not right! You're too young and good-looking to travel without at least a chaperon. These transatlantic boats are all alive with adventurers. Luckily, you now have me—unless, perhaps, you're too high-spirited to utilize an old woman's interest."

"You're very kind," Miss Carteret murmured—not altogether insincerely. She was too intelligent to be blind to the advantage of having so thorough-paced a Dowager Dragon to protect and advise her. And she was anything but anxious to incur ill-will by refusing an offer that, however forward, seemed unquestionably to be dictated by the kindest spirit.

"I'm glad you think so—or have the grace to say so, at least. So that's settled. Now tell me more about yourself. Is this your first crossing?"

"It's my first trip home."

"Plainly no help for it: with this persistently friendly body catechizing her, she might as well now as later stand and deliver some account of herself."

"Your first trip home? That means you've been over a long time?"

And in very short order Mrs. Beggarstaff has the confidence of Lucy Carteret, and that young lady is telling the story of her life. Don't miss the next installment.

First Motion Picture.

The motion picture is more than fifty years old, if we understand by that term any device for producing the optical illusion of moving objects. These toys were called by various names, such as thaumatrope, zootrope, stroboscope, phenakistoscope, stereoscope, cabinet, kinematograph, etc. The first exhibition of photographic motion pictures was made by Henry Heyl, in Philadelphia, in 1870.

COMING EVENTS.

Aug. 27.—Bar Association meeting at Roswell.
Sept. 25-28.—Seventh Annual Northern New Mexico Fair at Raton.
Sept. 26-28.—Farmers' Fair at Las Cruces.
Sept. 26-29.—Donna Ana County Fair at Las Cruces.

Carriazo is to have street lights.

At a meeting the carpenters of Silver City formed a local union.

Mrs. Eugenia Barber is president of the newly organized W. C. T. U. at Carriazo.

Bernalillo county will oil its principal roads if oil can be purchased at a reasonable price.

The A. T. & S. F. railway paid more than one-fifth of all the taxes for 1916 in New Mexico.

East Las Vegas is to have more street lights, and contracts have been let to pave more streets.

The old turntable, in use since 1881 at East Las Vegas, is being torn out to make room for a new one.

Members of A battery, New Mexico field artillery, buried Ted, their mascot, with full military honors.

O. N. Marron and Francis E. Wood of Albuquerque paid their fine of $500 each, imposed for contempt by the State Supreme Court.

Governor Lindsey expressed his disapproval of the Gallup deportation in a message sent to John R. McPhee of the McKinley County Council of Defense.

The State Boundary Commission organized by electing Supreme Court Justice Frank W. Parker chairman and Attorney James G. Fitch of Socorro secretary.

The State Corporation Commission announced a formal hearing on Aug. 18 of the request of the railroads for a 15 cents per ton increase in interstate coal rates.

A machine gun company is being organized at Camp Funston, Albuquerque, which will be an additional unit to the first regiment of the National Guard of New Mexico.

It has been discovered by the county registration board that at least nine men of draft age failed to register in the Cerro precinct in the northern part of Taos county.

Additional county councils of defense, to serve in cooperation with the New Mexico Council of Defense, have been appointed by Governor W. E. Lindsey for all remaining counties.

The total expense to the U. S. government for the registration of 32,943 New Mexicans was $3,425.01, according to figures in the office of R. C. Reid, federal disbursing officer.

Seventeen counties of the state increased their tax collections in June, 1917, over the collections in June, 1916, according to figures compiled by Secretary Asplund of the State Tax Commission.

The advance in the price of wheat is resulting in the holding of over 450,000 bushels of Curry county wheat, much of the wheat being held in the stack pending the high mark in the demand for it.

Governor Lindsey wired leaders of the party of miners at Belen, deported from Gallup, granting the party permission to return to Gallup and suggesting that they do not return in a body.

W. P. Musaus of Los Angeles has been appointed by the War Department to be district auditor in charge of all the accounting work to be done for the big army camps at Deming and Linda Vista, Cal.

The Richmond precinct in western Grant county was the scene of a killing. Porfirio Morales, employed on the Foster ranch, was shot and killed by Jose Franco during a quarrel between the two men. Franco claims he shot in self defense.

Seven Young Men's Christian Association buildings and thirty-five paid secretaries will be at Camp Cody, Deming, to look after the spiritual and physical welfare of the 35,000 men to be quartered in the camp, on which construction has been begun.

The greater part of the Sebastian Martin land grant, comprising 45,000 acres, which for several years has been the property of the La Joya Land and Irrigation Company, has been sold to Field Bohart of Colorado Springs, who has recently acquired nearly 50,000 acres of the Cebolita grant.

Thirty men, all that remained of the band deported at the order of the McKinley County Council of Defense, boarded Santa Fé train No. 21 at Belen, bound for Gallup, following their receipt of a telegram from Governor Lindsey which told them that they had permission to return to their homes.

Considering that Curry is a new county, and a dry farming county at that, which a few years ago had no residents, no settlements, no railroad, its assessment return of $10,062,970, as heavy as that of Santa Fé county, is very gratifying to the State Tax Commission.

A request for 3,000 rifles and 60,000 rounds of ammunition, for use in arming home guards in New Mexico, has been made to the secretary of war by Governor Lindsey. The governor also has requested a supply of blank cartridges and 3,000 belts and canteens.

STATE'S INDEBTEDNESS

SHOWN BY TAX COMMISSION
CLERK TO BE $30 PER CAPITA.

The Total Sum is $10,951,768, Representing an Interest Charge of About $1.50 for Each Inhabitant.

Western Newspaper Union News Service.

Santa Fé.—Chief Clerk Rupert F. Asplund of the State Tax Commission has completed his compilation of the bonded indebtedness of state, counties, municipalities and school districts of New Mexico. The total reaches the sum of $10,951,768, or about $20 per capita, or an annual interest charge of about $1.50 on every man, woman and child in the state. The state indebtedness is $3,308,000, of the counties $2,832,337.37; of the municipalities, $3,061,430; of the school districts, about $1,750,000. The state indebtedness, however, includes $1,178,000, series C Santa Fé and Grant county bonds, and $541,000 series B Santa Fé county bonds assumed by the state, the principal to be paid from a special land grant and the interest being met by the counties.

Series of Freak Accidents.

Santa Fé.—A dog cañon farmer with his hand fast in a plow, dragged by frightened horses up and down a field; a Cuervo soda fountain tender with his hand frozen stiff by gas from an exploding drum; a Carlsbad man with his hand pierced to the bone by the fin of a catfish; a 200-pound Socorro man falling through a tin ceiling to a cement floor, and a San Juan county baby falling forty-five feet into a well without injury were among the remarkable freak accidents reported by New Mexico papers. A. C. Ables, the plow victim, will recover though badly bruised and with three fingers gone from his hand. Frank Cunningham, the soda clerk, may have to amputate the frozen hand; Whit Wright, the catfish victim, is threatened with blood poisoning, and Nicanor Pino, the man who was knocked senseless by his fall through a ceiling, got off with severe bruises. The baby was the 3-year-old child of Thomas Ulney, near Farmington.

Strikers Return to Work in Mine.

Gallup.—Every indication now points to the failure of the strike in the mines of the Gallup-American Coal Company. A large number of strikers have returned to work, while many others, discouraged with the turn of events, are leaving town with their families. The conditions at the mines now are nearly restored to normal, and large quantities of coal are being produced every day.

Holloman Named New Mexico Judge.

Santa Fé.—Reed Holloman of Santa Fé was appointed by Gov. Lindsey to be judge of the First Judicial district with headquarters here, succeeding Judge Edmund C. Abbott, resigned, colonel of the New Mexico National Guard mustered into federal service.

Bustos Shot by Deputy Sheriff.

Silver City.—There was a fatal shooting at Fierro, following trouble at a dance, in which Manuel Bustos, employed by the Empire Zinc Company at Hanover, was shot and killed by a bullet from a revolver in the hands of a deputy sheriff.

Deming Preparing for Soldiers.

Santa Fé.—The suppression of vice is being vigorously prosecuted by Mayor Max Nordhaus of Deming. The restricted district has been completely abolished and additional men added to the police force to drive female vagrants out of the city.

Railroads Pay Half Tax in Luna.

Santa Fé.—Although Luna county has experienced unprecedented prosperity because of the war and war preparations, the railroads still carry more than one-half of the total assessment of $11,889,710 returned by the county, the railroads being assessed $6,638,083 of that amount, the telephone lines $37,910 and the telephone lines $63,655, express companies paying taxes on $920 and banks on $188,870.

Cham Omara Hit by Officer's Bullet.

Carriazo.—Cham Omara, daring outlaw, who has terrorized the neighborhoods of this section of New Mexico for the past ten years, met his death after many fruitless and perilous searches by officers and citizens at the hands of Constable Montoya of Arabela in the eastern part of this county.

Farmer Taken to Hospital.

East Las Vegas.—C. C. Willis, a farmer who has been living on a dry farming claim near San Jon, Quay county, has been lodged in the New Mexico hospital for the insane.

Special Counsel in Boundary Case.

Santa Fé.—In connection with an opinion written for the State Boundary Commission, Attorney General Patton formally tendered his services for the prosecution of the New Mexico-Texas boundary suit and the investigation of the New Mexico-Colorado boundary matter. He declared that the boundary matters should be handled by the attorney general of the state, and not by special counsel. The commission named F. W. Clancy and O. A. Larrazolo as special counsel.

Was Laid Up In Bed

Doan's, However, Restored Mrs. Vogt to Health and Strength. Hasn't Suffered Since.

"I had one of the worst cases of kidney complaint imaginable," says Mrs. Wm. Vogt, 6115 Audrey Ave., Weston, Mo. "and I was laid up in bed for days at a time."

"My bladder was inflamed and the kidney secretions caused terrible pain. My back was in such bad shape that when I moved the pains were like a knife thrust. I got so dizzy I couldn't stoop and my head just throbbed with pain. Bedside perspiration would stand on my temples, then I would become cold and numb."

"My heart action was affected and I felt as if I couldn't take another breath. I got so nervous and run down, I felt life wasn't worth living and often wished that I might die so my suffering would be ended. Medicine failed to help me and I was discouraged."

"Doan's Kidney Pills were recommended to me and I could tell I was being helped after the first few doses. I kept getting better every day and continued use cured me. My health improved in every way and best of all, the cure has been permanent. I feel that Doan's saved my life." Signed before me, HENRY B. SURKAMP, Notary Public.

Sociable.

An orderly chosen from among the student officers at Ft. Harrison sits daily outside Brig. Gen. Edwin F. Glenn's office door. A different man is chosen each day, and the other day the post fell to the lot of Charles E. Shafe of Indianapolis, who the Indianapolis News, Shafe went on an errand for the general, and returned just after the general had wished to speak to an officer in one of the other rooms and there being no orderly to summon him, had gone after the man himself.

"By George," Shafe commented to the camp adjutant's orderly, a Tenth Infantryman, fresh from five years in Panama, "the general did some of my work for me."

"Yeah, ain't that nice, now!" the adjutant's orderly returned. "Why don't you go in there now and do some of his work for him, just to be sociable?"

Naturally Grave.

"I have here," said the party with the unbarbered hair who had ejected his person into the editorial sanctum when the office boy wasn't looking, "a little poem entitled, 'A Pauper's Grave!'"

"Huh," growled the editor. "Nothing remarkable about that. Who has a better right to a grave than a pauper? You certainly wouldn't expect his mirth to stop over, would you?"

DENVER WOMAN GAINS 30 POUNDS

Tried Every Medicine Recommended But Couldn't Get Any Relief.

ALMOST LOST HOPE

Declares She Feels Better Now Than For Many Years Since Tanlac Has Overcome Her Troubles.

"I have actually gained thirty pounds and I'm feeling stronger and better than I have in years," said Mrs. Anna Vullota of 8729 Lipen street, Denver, Colo., recently.

"For several years," continued Mrs. Vullota, "I have suffered with my stomach. I got so I couldn't eat anything but what would sour, and the gas would rise up into my chest and throat and almost choke me. I suffered terribly with headaches and was very weak and nervous. I managed to keep going by force of will but more than half of the time I was barely able to drag myself around. I took every kind of medicine that was recommended to me, but kept getting worse until I almost lost hope of finding anything that would help me.

"Honestly I don't know the time I ever weighed over a hundred pounds until I began taking Tanlac. It may be hard to believe, but it's the truth. I now weigh one hundred and thirty pounds—having gained thirty pounds—and if anyone could feel like a new person I do. I am no longer bilious or constipated and my awful headaches are broken up. My appetite is splendid and I can eat anything I want without it hurting me in the least. My nerves are quiet now. I sleep soundly every night and as I said before, I'm feeling stronger and better than I have in years."

Quite Happy.

Through the wild way of her good-for-nothing husband, a hard-working charwoman had to remove to a little two-roomed cottage, where there was scarcely space to sneeze without shaking the ornaments from the mantelpiece.

"It's hard lines for you to be brought down like this, after what you've been accustomed to," said a sympathetic neighbor. "I don't doubt you feel very miserable, Mrs. Jones."

"No, I don't," the charwoman stoutly denied. "I'm happier here by a long way than I used to be in the old place. For one thing, when my husband comes home in a brute of a temper, he can't throw me down the cellar steps, as he used to, 'cos there ain't none now!"—Pearson's Weekly.

Didn't Seem to Be "Free" Seeds.

An Indiana congressman recently made a liberal distribution of free seeds, sending them to his constituents in franked envelopes on which appeared the regular warning, "Penalty for private use, $300," says the Indianapolis News. A few days later one of his supporters wrote:

"I don't know what to do about those garden seeds you sent me. I notice it is $300 fine for private use. I don't want to use them for the public. I want to plant them in my private garden. I can't afford to pay $300 for the privilege. Won't you see if you can fix it so I can use them privately? I am a law-abiding citizen, and do not want to commit a crime."

An Apology.

"Are you not ashamed to use poisoned arrows?"

"I'm doing the best I can in my limited way," whimpered the savage. "Of course, poisoned arrows only get 'em one at a time. But we lack the mechanical facilities for wholesale operations with U-boats."

SAXON "SIX"

A BIG TOURING CAR FOR FIVE PEOPLE

25.9 Miles
Per Gal. of Gas

234 stock model Saxon "Sixes" travel 70,200 miles July 18 and set grand average of 25.9 miles per gal. of gas

To give a national demonstration of the remarkable gasoline economy of Saxon "Six", 234 Saxon dealers joined in a 300 mile drive July 18.

A grand average of 25.9 miles per gallon of gasoline was registered for the 70,200 miles of travel.

Consider that this run took place in 234 different parts of the country, under 234 different sets of conditions, over 234 different kinds of roads.

Consider that these 234 cars were stock model Saxon "Sixes", not "tuned up" special cars, not cars with "doped" gasoline.

That proves that this 25.9 miles per gallon of gasoline is the ordinary, the average performance of 234 Saxon "Sixes" taken right out of stock.

And it proves as nothing else would prove, the gasoline economy your Saxon "Six" will give you. No other car in its class can match this record.

Furthermore, these 234 Saxon "Sixes" averaged 175 miles per quart of oil.

And not a single instance of mechanical trouble occurred throughout the entire 70,200 miles.

There is the proof that Saxon "Six" is your kind of a car. Price f. o. b. Detroit, $935.

Saxon Motor Car Corporation, Detroit

Two elderly New York clubmen who have retired spend much of their time gazing out upon the Fifth Avenue throngs from their leather rest chairs at a club lounge window.

Charles B. Towns was seated near them the other day. A very stunning woman of middle age passed in a handsome turnout.

"I wonder how old she is?" said one. "Woman is as old as she looks," was the reply.

There was a pause. "And man is not old until he quits looking," said the first—and both resumed their gazing.
