ACT I.

SYNOPSIS.

Scene I. A room in a hotel; Ernest alone, meditating upon the will of his late aunt, (the Countess of Falkenbraun) which provides that her estate shall go to Ernest, on condition that he marry the ugliest of the seven daughters of Ambrose, (a committee consisting of Madame Moorplitz, Madame Schlitz and Madame Kunkel to decide which is the ugliest), otherwise it goes to found a hospital for idiots.

Scene II. Roadside; Ernest lying on the ground with a wound in his forehead; beside him kneels Ernestine who is struck with the familiarity of his countenance. She leads him to the home of her father, Ambrose.

Scene III. Ambrose alone in his library. Ernestine presents the wounded man to her father who in turn introduces him to the remaining six daughters, some of which are aware of his real identity. All partake of a wholesome meal and Ernest is charmed with the hospitality of Castle Falkenbraun.

ACT II.

Scene I. A garden; Ernest alone when Ernestine enters. The lovers exchange vows and Ernest obtains her consent to speak to Ambrose.

Scene II. Room in Ambrose's house. Rosa alone. Enter Madame Kunkel who directs Elise as to the care of her precious Molly, (a cat) and her darling Polly (a parrot). Enter the quashing Madame Schlitz attended by Gabrielle. Enter the blustering, man-nish Moorplitz accompanied by Adelaide. The seven daughters ranged in a row and inspected by the trio of examiners; they delay longest over Rosa who has disfigured herself, finally deciding that she is the ugliest and Ernestine the loveliest. Ernest who has been watching the group falls back in despair.

ACT III.

Scene I. The garden. Ernest and Ernestine alone. Ernest informs her of the decision and she insists upon his giving her up, rather than lose the estate but he passionately exclaims—"Never." Ernestine has a bright idea, a solution of the difficulty.

Scene II. The old ladies sitting in a row whispering together. All the girls except Ernestine in a group. Enter Ambrose and Ernest. Ernestine rushes in excitedly and relates an imaginary catastrophe concerning Kunkel's precious Pussy and the possession of Schlitz and Moorplitz. The old ladies cry "revenge! revenge!" and pronounce Ernestine the ugliest after which Ernestine discloses her scheme, obtains the forgiveness of the old ladies and the consent of her father to marry Ernest.

TUBERCULOSIS LECTURE

A Large and Highly Intellectual Audience Well Entertained by the Learned Physician, Dr. Friedman.

THE COMMITTEE TO ORGANIZE

Carlsbad, with the balance of the United States has become thoroughly aroused and is alive to the importance of doing something to stay the ravages of the great White Plague, and under the leadership of the physicians of the town, assisted by the mayor, much interest has developed on this important subject. A call last week in the papers for a meeting at the Auditorium for Sunday night brought out a large concourse of citizens. The meeting was called to order by Mayor McLenathen who introduced the speakers. Rev. Davis spoke first on the object of the meeting which he stated was to arouse interest and take steps to ward the prevention and spread of tuberculosis.

Dr. Friedman, the speaker of the evening, who is himself a sufferer from the terrible disease and who made the effort at the request of the medical fraternity, was introduced by the mayor in a neat speech. His address was scholarly and well delivered but on account of the subject being so extensive was necessarily long drawn out. The first portion of the lecture was very interesting and made people sit up and listen, but when statistics were applied the interest waned somewhat, but the audience seemed well entertained throughout, being composed principally of a class of thinking people. A brief synopsis of the lecture is given below:

If there be any among you who question the propriety of dealing with a subject of this kind on such a day, I say to him that no sermon was ever preached that had a nobler theme than one that aims toward the prevention of a human ill, and tends towards the prolongation of human life. Man-kind owes a great deal to the untiring efforts of its medical men, the brilliant members of whom have in their labors succeeded in almost entirely banishing many diseases from the face of the globe. Cholera, typhoid fever, small pox, measles, which have in the past slain thousands upon thousands are little feared to-day, the first named disease gaining a foothold now and then only in countries like Russia, where the sanitary equipment is not up to the high standard of efficiency known elsewhere. Since it has been established that a certain species of mosquito was capable of carrying the poison of yellow fever obtained from biting a yellow fever patient, and another species of mosquito capable of carrying malaria, these diseases are no longer the terrors of humanity. Typhoid fever, especially since it has become known that the infected drinking water and the common household when infected, play a great role in the dissemination of the disease, is fast losing ground, and in cities with up-to-date sanitary equipment there are comparatively few cases, and many of these become infected while sojourning in the country. When in Berlin a few years ago I came across but one case of typhoid fever in the hospital, and that case was the only one in all Berlin, a city of 2,000,000 inhabitants.

Finally we come to a disease with which we are all more or less familiar, and to discuss which we are assembled here this evening, tuberculosis. Tuberculosis—a communicable, preventable and curable disease. It is because this disease is so wide-spread that the problem is such a large one, yet as I said a moment ago, the disease is preventable and curable. My friends, it is because the problem is so great that you and I, and our neighbors, and everyone in these United States, are asked by the National Association for the study and prevention of tuberculosis to join hands in this crusade, for the purpose of annihilating this terrible monster. For monster the tubercle bacillus the cause of the disease, surely is, though but one ten-thousandths of an inch in length, and only one one-hundred thousandths of an inch in width, this vegetable, rod-shaped parasite finding conditions suitable in the human economy, multiplies rapidly, burrowing its way into the tissues, living upon these tissues, destroying their usefulness, and in so very many cases destroying the individual. The usual form of this disease is that which attacks the lungs, and it is known as consumption, but it may invade any tissue in the body, especially the bones and joints. A consumptive may give millions of these germs in his sputum daily. Fortunately most of them are dead. To indicate to you how wide-spread this disease must be, let me quote you some figures gathered by the association I mentioned a few minutes ago. Tuberculosis kills 200,000 persons annually in the United States alone, that is one every three minutes. Just think of the terrible slaughter. It kills one-tenth to one-seventh of our people. It kills one-third of all who die between the ages of eighteen and forty-five, the most useful period in man's life. As a matter of fact, were it not that nature has provided us with a protecting substance in the blood, which is capable of preventing active disease in the vast majority of cases, the ravages of this disease would be, though great enough now, still greater. When postmortem examinations are carefully made, there are few bodies found of persons dying in adult age of other diseases, who have not somewhere within their bodies one or several spots of disease which have been manufactured by these same tubercle bacilli. These spots may be so small that during life they would give no evidence of their presence. We come now to the predisposing causes of the disease, first in the person second, in the environment. In the person we have a weakened physical condition, lack of proper food, alcoholism, diseases like grippe, cold, pneumonia, measles, typhoid fever, scarlet fever, diphtheria, strangles, etc., etc., which are the most or throat, pre-disposing, mouth-breathing. In the environment we include lack of proper living conditions, especially in the air, darkness, dirt and dust. A poor physical condition will mean that every organ in the body and every component cell of that organ will be weak, and consequently in a disease caused for the tubercle bacillus, or that matter any other attacking disease, intending health to obtain a foothold. So it is when there is a lack of proper food or inability to assimilate the food. Alcoholism is claimed by some to be a factor by its weakening effect upon the tissues. Diseases that I have mentioned act through the weakening effect produced by them, as well as by the catarrhal condition of the respiratory tract that is also present. This latter process is more vulnerable, because such a mucous membrane is weaker and consequently allows the germ to pass through more readily. In several of the diseases, particularly grippe, measles, scarlet fever, and diphtheria, there is already present disease in the bronchial glands or a latent form and the new disease breaks the capsule, allowing the germs to infect the adjacent tissue. Mouth-breathing is a factor, inasmuch as the respiratory tube is shortened and consequently the extensive provision that the nose affords through its many nooks and crannies and also through its uppermost layer which consists of cells with hair-like projections which have a tendency to expel the bacteria outward, is lost. Impure air tends to vitiate the system and it also may contain the infecting organism. Darkness, or what is Carlsbad Current established November 15, 1908. New Mexico Sun established May 12, 1905. The two papers consolidated October 11, 1907.

Official Paper of Eddy County.

The city of Juarez did not celebrate the Cinco de Mayo this year. The shadow of Madero, likely, being the cause.

Says the Albuquerque Herald: "An eastern paper deplores the fact that most all the men elected to high office hail from Ohio. Yes, but there is consolation in the fact, that most of the men appointed to office by them originated in Ireland."

The new ordinance providing for the sprinkling of the streets in the residence portion of the city is rapidly gaining favor with those benefitted and the howl which rent the air when it was first undertaken has subsided, and the property owners are coming to the front with their pittance and before the season is closed it is probable that even a greater "howl" would go up if the sprinklers should be called off.

Revolution has broken out in China and the El Paso Times thinks that when her "400,000,000 population awakens and becomes thoroughly imbued with the revolutionary spirit there will be something doing in that quarter of the globe." A fairly well grounded assumption, to say the least. Can't imagine what all the row's about, though, unless they are sore because the Chink government has made them cut off their cues. That is nothing to get grouchy about, anyhow.

While the condition of the Cemetery Association is today better financially than ever before in its history there seems to be an inertia among the members of the association that is difficult to account for. The cemetery is in better condition and the graves are better cared for than ever and now to let the association die for want of interest would be a calamity. The officers of the association having resigned it would seem that it was up to the public spirited citizen to get busy.

A number of Americans clad in khaki, were nabbed by the Diaz authorities in Juarez the other day and haled before the Jefe Político (in understandable United States, the police judge, presumably.) Fortunately for the said khaki clads, however, they were detained only a short time, when they were permitted to go their ways, rejoicing. A number of over zealous secret service men, bent upon gaining reputation, it is alleged, caused the arrests, simply because the victims were Americans and wore khaki.

Holy war has been proclaimed throughout Morocco against foreigners by the native tribesmen, and the latter are flocking in great numbers to join in the revolution. The opposition to the sultan threatens to cause his abdication. France is preparing to send 10,000 troops to subdue the rebellious tribesmen, upon which action Spain looks with a bilious eye, and Premier Canalejas, of Spain, is trying to persuade Germany to join Spain in protesting against France's plans in sending an expedition so strong that it might eventually serve the purpose of an army of occupation.

Juarez is now the rebel capital where Madero has organized his cabinet being president of Mexico, with Gomez as minister of foreign relations. The rebels now have every port of entry on the Rio Grande and have taken many towns along the Pacific coast. Had it not been for the federal general who denounced the rebels as cowards, peace negotiations which were in progress when the rebels invaded Juarez would probably have borne fruit. As it is there is no telling how long the war will continue.

WONDERFUL ROAD IN NEW MEXICO.

Car Can Coast Thirty-five Miles Without Using any Brakes.

One of the most unique and surprising mountain road constructions encountered by A. L. Westgard, in the recent transcontinental run, was the government highway down the western slope of La Bajada mountain. From a standpoint of scenic grandeur, there is perhaps no point in the nation where a greater expanse of wild and beautiful country can be seen than on the road between Santa Fe and Albuquerque, where the motorist turned completely around twenty or more times in making the steep descent. Retaining walls are built up in many cases for more than 100 feet, and for thirty-five miles the car coasted without using its motor and depending entirely upon its breaks. This highway was constructed by the government and is famous in all road building circles.

Frank Pocklington and family expect to leave the first of the week for Fort Worth, Texas, where they will make their future home. Mr. and Mrs. Pocklington have been residents of Carlsbad for the past eighteen months, coming from Michigan for the benefit of their daughter's health. The young lady is much improved and her many friends wish for a continued improvement when she reaches her new home. The family has the good wishes of the Current.

The friends of the graduating class of the Carlsbad high school and of the pupils of Mrs. E. W. Substantial Mark.

The boundary commission is now at work and headed north on the Texas-New Mexico Clark survey, marking it as they go with brass plates which are to be set in solid concrete bases, three feet square. These plates replace the piles of stone used by Clark in 1859; there are thirty of them, so they will probably be set about twelve miles apart.

The party has sent word that they will reach Texico in about three weeks, possibly sooner. The line will remain as it is at present, the commission re-establishing Clark's survey and permanently marking it, and connecting the ends of his surveys by running the hiatus, left by him on a straight line.—Texico Trumpet.

Arrangements have been made by the rail road company for the enlargement of the passenger depot at this place. An addition 20x20 feet will be added to the south side of the present baggage room making the room about forty feet square. The sand is on the ground for the new platform which will be laid as soon as the brick arrives. It is to be of vitrified brick and will be twelve feet wide and 150 feet long on either side of the building or 12x300 feet in size. This is an improvement which will be greatly appreciated by the traveling public and is one of the needs of the company as the present platform, made of ordinary pressed brick is to soft and has crumbled in many places which makes it difficult over which to walk and work but it is dangerous as well.

Six Americans Dead at El Paso. Washington, May 9.—One interesting bit of information laid before the cabinet today was a statement of the strength of the federal and rebel forces in Mexico.

The statement shows that there are 23,455 men in the federal army and 23,425 in the insurrecto army.

This statement was compiled from official and unofficial sources.

Many of the farmers of the valley are planting a large portion of their land in cotton this season. It is estimated that the cotton acreage will be about three times what it was last season. The money made from cotton last year by those who had a good crop has acted as an incentive for others to engage in the business this coming season. In many instances the crop is up now and doing nicely with every reason to believe that good stands have been procured and the prospect is most flattering at this time for an active and prosperous season. The gin located at Loving will be enlarged to twice its present capacity in order to handle the increased business which is inevitable. The farmers are rapidly coming to realize which are the staple and most productive crops to be grown in the valley and it is certain that the next few years will witness a market change in the crops grown and also in the returns realized from them.

The S. B. Smith cattle are being gathered and the first bunch is being delivered to the purchaser, Ed Toner, at the stock yards at Lakewood, this week. Mr. Smith has decided to retire from the cattle business and has disposed of his entire stock and they will be shipped to northern pastures as rapidly as they are gathered and delivered.

A portion of the large six-foot drive pulley at the lower power dam broke loose the early part of the week and as a consequence the lower dam has been out of commission since the accident. Some idea of the immense strain which is exerted on the face of the pulley can be gathered when the present condition of the pulley is examined. A section larger than a man's two hands tore loose and folded back on the face of the pulley and the wheel revolving it pounded the belting doing considerable damage to the belt. R. M. Fessenden, manager of the properties of the Public Utilities company, discovered a slight crack in the wheel some time ago and in anticipation of some such accident ordered another wheel from Ohio by telegraph. It was shipped April 7th and arrived yesterday. It was installed immediately upon its arrival. Since the crack in the wheel was discovered the lower plant has been in operation only such part of the time as it was absolutely necessary, in order to save the strain on the wheel. The upper plant was carrying the whole load for light and power until the repairs were made.

The farm is one of the best improved in the valley and has 300 acres of fine alfalfa. The Mennonites will take charge at once through their representative, Mr. Kliwer while several families will follow as soon as they can move from their homes in Kiowa Co., Okla., near Gotebo, where they have resided since the opening of the Kiowa country in 1901.

Charles H. Lamb, supervisor of prisons from Iwhig Palawan, Philippine Islands arrived in Carlsbad the early part of the week for a few days visit with his brothers-in-law R. L. and Less Bates. Mr. Lamb is a native of Paris, Texas. He joined the Texas regiment during the Spanish American war and with it was consigned to duty in the far east. He was chosen at the close of the war to take charge of the prison where he has made good and now has under his supervision three thousand prisoners composed chiefly of Americans, Chinese, Japanese, and natives of the island. On account of his health he has been transferred to a similar position in the United States, and he is now enroute to Washington to receive his new assignment. Mrs. Lamb and baby are in San Francisco where they have been detained by injuries sustained by the latter from a fall on board the ship. As an operation was necessary the little one is confined to a hospital at that place. They expect to come to Carlsbad for a visit as soon as the little one is able to make the trip. Lamb related many interesting experiences including his capture and escape from a Philippine officer and also about the manners and customs of the foreign country. He says the islands are paying a good revenue to Uncle Sam. Mr. Lamb left Wednesday morning for Washington.

The pupils of Miss Emerine Wilson gave a most interesting recital in the auditorium last evening. The program consisted of many numbers which were from the standard authors and were exceedingly well executed and showed good training. Miss Wilson came to Carlsbad about four years ago since which time she has conducted one of the largest classes of music ever organized in the city. She has announced to her patrons and friends that she will close her classes here about the middle of next month for her home in Madisonville, Ky. where she expects to make her future home. Her friends regret that she feels called upon to sever her connection with Carlsbad and the community and join in extending their best wishes for her future welfare.

The new three inch pipes, meters and fittings have arrived for the three new stands which will be put in for the street sprinkling carts. They will be distributed over the sprinkling district thus saving the long trip after water to the stand on Canyon street.

Col. C. W. Merchant, of Abilene, Texas, surprised his friends in this city last Tuesday evening by dropping in on them for a visit. The colonel appears as young and healthful as ever and but for the use of a walking stick which he carries no one would ever suspect that he had endured the two years of suffering through which he has just passed. He will visit with the families of his sons for some time but as all of them reside at some little distance from the heart of the city he will make his temporary headquarters at Hotel Schlitz.

Little Henrita Dilley celebrated the fifth anniversary of her birth in a manner most delightful to herself and about thirty of her little friends at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Dilley, on Canal street, last Friday afternoon. The affair was a "Pink-and-White" party the scheme being carried out in the cake, candy, ices and the five candles on the birthday cake. The little one received many very handsome and useful gifts.

Mrs. Milton Smith was the charming hostess to a very interesting meeting of the Daisy Club at her home in this city. Tuesday afternoon from 3 to 5. "Bunco" was the amusement of the day and for her skill in playing, Mrs. Bunch, who substituted the hostess, received a beautiful souvenir spoon. A dainty two-course luncheon was served at the close of the afternoon.

The Baccalaurent address at 11 a. m. Sunday was largely attended at the Auditorium and was highly commended by all who attended. The music was fine and there was a large audience.

The following are the graduates: Irene Blossom Brown, Mamie A. Lyon, Ira Latun, Ruth Johnson, Maud Ruark, W. G. Hudeburg, Veda Venitia Cummings.

TUBERCULOSIS LECTURE.

better a want of sunshine, permits the tubercle bacillus to flourish. Dirt and dust are factors, inasmuch as they indicate a want of sufficient cleansing and dirt besides being irritating to the mucous membrane may also contain the pus germs, which when added to the affected lung in tuberculous subjects, a more serious form of the disease, known as mixed infection follows. We next come to the immediate cause of the disease. Tuberculosis is acquired and not inherited. No one who is competent to speak upon this subject, will deny that the tubercle bacillus is the only cause of this disease. Without this germ tuberculosis is impossible. The usual method of infection is by inhalation. The dry germs from sputum of consumptives float in the air and are breathed into the lungs; consequently it is important to destroy all sputum and special precautions should be taken in coughing and sneezing, holding something in front of the nose and mouth at such times. Tuberculosis may also be acquired by ingestion, that is by swallowing the germs with infected milk or food. It is also possible to become infected through cuts and wounds. By far the most frequent form is by inhaling the germs. The commonest earliest symptoms are a persistent cough or cold lasting a month or longer, loss of weight and appetite, run down feeling, afternoon temperature, night sweats and spitting of blood or streaks of blood in the sputum. Not every cough or cold lasting a few weeks will mean that the patient has tuberculosis; at the same time when not positively due to some other cause, tuberculosis should be suspected, and if necessary frequent examinations by a physician should be made. Loss of weight and appetite perhaps accompanied by stomach and intestinal symptoms and also anæmia, are due to the absorption of the poisons given off by the tubercle bacilli in the lung infection. Indeed the stomach and intestinal symptoms may be so pronounced, as to make one think that the trouble is there, when in reality it is in the lungs. A run down feeling manifests itself through a lack of desire for work. The individual loses ambition and this may be contrary to his usual disposition. Frequently we find some afternoon temperature. When present it is an important sign. It is produced by the poisons acting on the heat centre in the brain. Night sweats are frequently encountered even early in the disease. They tend to have a depressing effect upon the individual and are caused by an irritation upon the sweat center in the brain. As spitting of blood or streaks of blood in the sputum are highly suggestive of lung disease, particularly in conjunction with other of the above symptoms, of course the physician will examine the nose and throat carefully, to see if the bleeding does not emanate from these regions. If the individual has his condition recognized at this stage the chance for recovery or at least arrest of his disease are exceedingly good, and is far better than in other chronic diseases, such for instance as chronic Bright's disease.

We now come to the disease in children. As I have stated before, it is not inherited. When very young it may become infected from a tuberculous mother when nursing; as the child gets older it plays upon the floor and may get the germs upon its fingers which it afterwards puts into its mouth. The germs being heavier than the air are also likely to be breathed in by the child. An interesting experiment was made by a profound worker in this disease. He placed rabbits in cages which he placed at three different levels in an infected room. After a number of weeks, postmortem examination revealed the greatest amount of disease in the rabbits that had occupied the lowest cage; less in the second and least in the uppermost. A further proof that the disease is not inherited is shown by the fact that if a child born of tuberculous parent or parents, be removed soon after birth and brought up in a home where the chances for infection are not present, that child will have a far better chance to escape the disease than will one that comes from non-tuberculous parents and is reared in an infected home. To me it seems criminal negligence, or ignorance, when I find more than one case of this disease in an ordinary sized family.

How tuberculosis may be treated and cured.

1. Essentials in the cure are fresh air, light, cleanliness, rest and wholesome food.

2. Early discovery of the disease is necessary for cure.

Best method of cure is sanatorium treatment.

3. Avoid patent medicines and advertised cures. They do not cure and are always dangerous.

4. There is no danger from a careful consumptive who destroys his sputum properly and is cleanly in habits.

Fresh air during a maximum number of hours out of the twenty four will of course help to place the body in a condition best fitted to fight the disease. Light is important because of the powerful germ-destroying influence it possesses, and also because of the stimulating effect it produces upon the individual. The tubercle bacillus stands no show when it has to battle against sunshine.

It is fortunate for the human race that this is so. Depending upon the thickness of the layer when tuberculous sputum is exposed to the dry rays of the sun, the tubercle bacilli contained therein are killed off from within a few minutes to a few hours. Even ordinary daylight will kill them within five to seven days. Rest, particularly in those cases with temperature, is a necessary adjunct in the treatment, and the fact that in the past this has not been generally observed, has caused the unnecessary sacrifice of thousands and thousands of lives. Even to-day there are very many who undertake excessive physical feats through which their chances for arresting the disease are either diminished or perhaps entirely lost.

The sooner the disease is recognized the more certain will it be for the individual to be cured. Sanatorium treatment at least for a period of a few weeks is advised inasmuch as it trains the patient to get accustomed to the proper mode of living.

The speaker then told of the evils resulting from the use of patent medicines and advertising sales. They are always dangerous and while being used the patient loses valuable time when he might have had a chance to get well had he undergone proper treatment. It was emphasized that there was no danger from a careful consumptive who destroys his sputum properly and is cleanly in habits.

The disease may be prevented by teaching the consumptive to destroy his sputum, so as not to infect his family or neighbor; by discovering the disease in its early stages and curing the patient; thus removing the source of infection to others. By educating the people to keep in good physical trim, so that they may resist the germs, by advocating fresh air, outdoor life, sunshine, rest, no over work, wholesome food, temperate habits. He also showed the dangers from fatigue and mentioned an experiment that was made upon two series of rabbits. Diseased germs were introduced into a set of normal rabbits and also into a set of fatigued rabbits; the fatigued rabbits after a few weeks were all found diseased, all the others escaped. An organized movement in all parts of the United States is being made to prevent tuberculosis. This consists in educating all of the people with regard to the facts, erection of hospitals, sanatoria, and the securing of proper state and municipal legislation.

My friends, we can do our little mite if those of us who are well lead such lives as to permit us to remain well. Those that are slightly affected should not wait until they break down before they take the care of themselves necessary to restore them to good health, and those that are already affected to be careful, for by doing so they will run less risk of becoming infected in portions of the lung not yet diseased, and what is very important, by being careful they will prove to be no menace to any one.

At the close of the address Mr. McLennan made one of his ringing speeches, asking that an organization be perfected in Carlsbad for the study and prevention of tuberculosis. As it was not possible to form an organization that night, a motion was made to that effect, and the meeting was adjourned to await further action.

JUAREZ REBEL

The Town Opposite El Paso now
Liberated Capital of Mexico—
None Loyal to Diaz. A Very Bloody Battle
in Streets.

SEVERAL KILLED IN EL PASO

El Paso, Texas, May 10.—With the hoisting of the white flag over the barracks of Juarez shortly after noon today, and the surrender of the federals, who had made their last stand, the two days' battle has resulted in a victory for the revolutionists under General Francisco I. Madero, Jr.

The victory was not secured without a terrible loss of life on the American side of the line. The dead may number nearly 80, while nearly 150 have been injured, many of them fatally.

The casualties on the American side of the line number four killed and sixteen wounded.

El Paso, Texas, May 9.—A general engagement between the revolutionary forces and the federals at Juarez is raging today. The entire rebel army broke camp during the night and this morning were swarming into the city.

Privates Emilio Garcia and Cassidy of the American Legion, with the insurrectionists, who came to El Paso this morning to get food, stated that already fifteen Americans were killed and the insurrecto loss would probably reach 150 killed and wounded. The federal loss is more than double that.

Cassidy said Gen. Villareal had arrived from Ojinaga with reinforcements and two troops of artillery.

The prospects of rebel success are dependent upon their ability to use their twelve machine guns in the town.

General Madero admitted today he had given consent to a general attack but declared the federals had opened fire and the men who were reported as revolting against him had attacked the federals of their own accord and could not relinquish their position. Madero said he had made an effort to arrange an armistice last night, but failed because of the progress the attack had already made.

All the leaders had been acting on Madero's orders.

General Navarro would have consented to an armistice if the rebels had evacuated the town, but the rebel chief by that time had given orders for a general attack, principally to reinforce the two hundred brave fellows who had forced their way into Juarez despite the federal trenches and barricades.

Bullets have been pouring into El Paso and the American troops are keeping the sightseers three blocks away from the river.

An Associated Press correspondent returned from the interior of Juarez at 12.10 o'clock and reported that the rebels are slowly gaining possession of the town. The federals are keeping up a continuous fire from the church in the center of the town but from no other place.

The insurrectos are concealing their whereabouts by withholding their fire and are skulking behind houses in a gradual advance toward the federal stronghold.

Couriers returning from Juarez to the Madero headquarters say that the insurrectos have taken the big cuartel, while the federals are holding the church and the small cuartel. Some of the federals are said to be retreating in the direction of the race track on the outskirts of the town. The federals in the church are firing repeatedly.

The rebels have abandoned their field pieces for fear of hitting their own men, who are in all parts of the town.

A big explosion took place near church at the head of Comercio street just before noon. It is believed to have been a federal mine, though it may have been caused by the dynamite which the insurrectos are throwing.

Dr. Vasquez Gomez, who is in charge at the Madero headquarters while General Madero is in the field, announced at 11.20 o'clock that the insurrectos probably would take Juarez within three hours. He has received news from the front that the insurrectos have occupied most of the points of vantage in the town.

Numerous skirmishes at short distance ranges are in progress along the outskirts of the town. At eleven o'clock 500 rebels were seen dashing up Comercio street, the main thoroughfare of the town.

The federals have retreated to somewhere in the hill portion of Juarez, due south from the river front.

Colonel Garibaldi has just given orders to the insurrectos in his command to bring the field artillery into the streets preparatory to shelling the church. Colonel Garibaldi said that of the Americans in his command, only one, a man named Kelly, had been killed, but that Captain Lindafelt, his chief officer, was unhurt. Anderson and Baughman, of the American Legion in the Garibaldi command, have been wounded. The correspondent saw only six wounded in the insurrecto lines.

The federals are gathered not only in the church but alongside a huge gas tank. The telephone and telegraph wires have been severed and are lying across the streets.

Mexicans are in the front rank of the insurrectos, closely followed by the American Legion.

Colonel Stover, of the Fourth U. S. Cavalry, announced at one o'clock that he would permit the transportation of wounded from Juarez across the bridges to American soil, provided the Mexican consul here consented. The church where the federals have taken refuge is being bombarded constantly and is plainly showing the effects of the rebel musketry.

Relatively little change in the position of the two armies was apparent at 1.45 o'clock. The firing, however, was continuous.

El Paso, Texas, May 10.—Stealthily creeping into the federal strongholds under cover of the darkness and keeping up a merciless hand-to-hand fight during the night, the insurrecto army had practically captured Juarez.

At eleven o'clock today Gen. Madero started for the town to establish his headquarters there, while the rebel cavalry under Col. Villas, the fleetest of the revolutionists here, are in hot pursuit of a detachment of the federals, fleeing southward from the town.

The rebels swarmed into the streets. The residents of the town, apparently satisfied that the fighting was over, came out from their shelters and the shouts of exultation and victory could be heard on the American side.

The sun was burning fiercely and the revolutionists, who have been fighting for hours without food or water, were being relieved by the residents of the town, most of whom seem to be insurrectos.

Occasional firing is heard from the barracks, where General Navarro is believed to be stationed. The gray haired leader has determined to make a last stand there. A few days ago he declared that if the rebels had the whole town, and he only the barracks, he still would be able to hold out for a week until reinforcements came.

Dr. Zuniga, in charge of the federal hospital, admitted today that he has treated over a hundred federal wounded, twenty of whom may die.

Around the custom house, the church and jail, between 35 and 40 federals, he said, are lying dead in the street.

Doctor Zuniga also said that he knew Colonel Tamborel, commander of a part of the Juarez garrison, had been wounded. Tamborel is the man who recently taunted the insurrectos and is believed to be largely responsible for the attack. According to Zuniga, Colonel Manuel Pueblito, commanding the federal cavalry, has also been wounded.

The insurrectos took charge of the principal places of business and Col. Garibaldi and his men destroyed all the liquor they could find, to prevent the men becoming intoxicated.

Liberated prisoners arriving here at twelve o'clock declared all the guards about the jail had been killed.

W. F. Kelly, of Stockton, California, received a wound in the shoulder while standing on the canal on the American side, shortly before noon.

At 12 o'clock the insurrectos placed a cannon in position to bombard the barracks, where it is reported Navarro and a number of his men are located. The first shot fired was a telling blow.

The Associated Press correspondent talked with Colonel Pueblito of the federal army who has a wound in his eye. Pueblito declared that Tamborel was dead. He said he hardly had believed the insurrectos could take the town so easily.

Estimates of the dead and wounded are rising rapidly. Most of the dead have been dragged from the streets and buried. The residents of the town are striving valiantly to give succor to the wounded, whose groans of pain are heard in the streets.

An Associated Press correspondent returned from Juarez at 12.10, where he interviewed General Pascual Orozco, the rebel commander. General Orozco, declared that none of his chiefs had been hurt and that he had practically driven all the federals from the town.

J. R. Crum, one of the members of the American Legion, who yesterday was reported killed, was very much alive today. While the federal fire was fiercest he entered the middle of the main thoroughfare to give some water to a dying man. Many bullets whistled by him, but he stood in the street, helping the man, who was American.

Another American distinguished himself by climbing to the top of a big water tank and hoisting a Mexican flag.

Scores of physicians, their Red Cross insignia glaring in the sunlight, are treating federal and insurrecto wounded, alike.

Dynamite bombs, steel bullets and a conflagration that raged for hours transformed Juarez from its usually tranquil and sleepy appearance into a heap of ruins. Numerous adobe houses, characteristic of a Mexican town, have been razed.

As soon as the white flag was hoisted over the barracks, and the surrender of the federals was complete, Mexican flags were unfurled on the house tops and the church bells were ringing in celebration.
