MAJOR BUJAC'S REPORT

An Account of his Recent Trip to the Pacific Coast U. S. Army Encampment.

VALUABLE INFORMATION ABOUT ARMY

Carlsbad, New Mexico, June 1st, 1911. Sir:—I have the honor to submit the following report, covering recent service with a Provisional Brigade, U. S. Army, under command of Brigadier General Tasker H. Bliss, U. S. A.:

1. I reported to General Bliss on May 11th, 1911, at Lakeside, California, about twenty-three miles north-east of San Diego. The Brigade remained encamped there during my service with it.

2. This Brigade was composed of the following troops:
8th U. S. Infantry,
30th U. S. Infantry,
Company "E" Signal Corps, U. S. A.

3. The instruction given included map making, map reading, scouting, advance and rear guard; the use of troops over rough ground, attack and defense of positions, writing field orders, operation of field bakeries, camp sanitation, lectures on duties of supply officers, etc.

4. Sanitation:—While the camping held objections due to character of the soil (very dusty on the surface, with underlying hard pan) the lack of shade for the men, and the lack of a plentiful supply of good water, the health of the command was nevertheless excellent. The men were kept in shelter tents, whereas conical tents were available, though left in the camp last previously occupied. All officers and men had been vaccinated against small pox. The beneficial results of practical training were apparent in that both company and field officers were quick to note and correct sanitary needs and requirements, leaving little for the medical officers to suggest.

5. Field problems were limited in extent, due to the presence of but one Arm, instead of all three; and to the restrictions necessary in avoiding trespassing on private property. The ground was generally rough, and the problems afforded excellent instructions in map reading, in taking advantage and in making correct use of ground.

6. National Guard Officers were attached to regiments for quarters; messes with their officers and were cordially received and well treated. I myself was attached to the 30th Infantry, commanded by Major F. R. Day. During the two weeks I was with this command much time and opportunity offered, both in and out of camp, for free discussion of all live military topics; and such conditions alone allow the National Guard Officer to obtain the Regular Officer's true point of view.

(a) I found the Infantry Officers very generally solicitous over the efficiency of their Arm—over the strength of armies, they see keenly the National menace carried by any further procrastination on the part of congress in recognizing and providing for its needs. This feeling is evidenced by all—subalterns and captains no less than by field officers—and the openness of their reasoning and argument is convincing. The conviction is generally with them that efficiency and economy both demand increase—a practical doubling of the infantry as it exists today; while within ten years there has been added to the Nation's care the Philippines, Hawaii, Alaska and Panama, with Cuba twice requiring our military forces in the interest of good government, while another and greater southern neighbor has for months past been in sore straits threatening our own border towns and our citizens throughout that neighbor's realm—when we remember these added cares, and also the fact that the only increase of infantry—the real fighting arm—that has been made to meet these added cares beyond the continental United States, and say nothing of increased responsibilities at home, is but five regiments, giving a present total of thirty regiments, we can begin to comprehend the truth as they see it. Over half the infantry regiments are even now required in our foreign possessions—The Philippine Islands, Alaska, Panama and Hawaii—leaving scant home service for recruiting, instruction and discipline of their men. Unquestionably the need for this increase is immediate and great.

Efficiency and economy also demand the abandonment of all small posts, concentrating all troops at division posts, located near railway and supply centers; the quartering of troops in large barracks, four stories or more in height, with court and area ways of concrete or other permanent construction. Such quartering, as compared with present methods, would lessen first cost of construction, as well as lessening subsequent maintenance thru reduction of the number of heating plants, the amount and extent of plumbing and sewer lines, the number of miles of streets and roads to be maintained and lighted, etc. etc.: Instead of providing at huge cost separate quarters for all married officers in large posts regular post hotels should be erected, in which the proper allowance of rooms should be assigned to officers of every grade. In such hotels the subsistence department should maintain suitable messing arrangements; thus saving the present tremendous cost of equipment for kitchens in all officers' quarters. Undoubtedly some officers would object to this change, yet it must be recognized that the change would not be without its advantages, as it would eliminate the servant problem, which is growing more and more serious in small posts; and it would greatly reduce the cost of living. It would lessen the government expense of furnishing officers' quarters, enable officers to move more quickly and with less hardship under hurry orders, lessen the amount of freight necessary for the government to transport for officers, and so consolidate the garrison, as to lessen guard, police and orderly duties, and generally result in military advantages to the service and to the men and officers as well.

I unqualifiedly recommend the above mentioned increase of infantry and administrative changes.

(b) The creation of an efficient National Reserve is a question second only in importance to the creation of an efficient first line of defense. The present general lack of effective disciplinary measures in the guard; the consequent lack of incentive to the attainment therein of high military ideals; coupled with the constant opposition engendered on the part of all labor organizations due to the employment of the National guard for the suppression of trouble incident to strikes at or near home, are serious obstacles difficult to overcome.

If there were established a constabulary, or civil police, for employment in the suppression of such troubles, the active opposition of the labor element and labor organizations would largely cease; and if the Pay bill for the guard were enacted into law, this would provide effective means for disciplinary measures through summary court fines to be stopped on the pay rolls.

These two changes would instantly and enormously increase the attractiveness of service in the guard in every state, raise the tone of the personnel, both enlisted and commissioned, and would constitute a long stride toward the creation of the actually necessary National reserve, at slight expense and by practicable methods.

(c) However, should there be opposition to the paying of the officers and men of the guard, then I recommend that in each town where there is an organized company, battalion or regiment of the National guard, the National government erect and maintain for the use of such organization a suitable armory with proper accommodations for the social and moral uplift of the officers and men. Thus having such advantages, a well organized military command, armory quarters, social environments, reading rooms, bath-rooms, athletic sports, with other attendant attractions, there would be no trouble in enlisting the very best class of young men in the guard out of every community.

The erection of armories would have an advantage even over pay for the guard, in that it would be a greater inducement to enlistment and a fear of dismissal and a consequent denial of such privileges would be a great weapon for discipline and represent a permanent investment for the government that would shelter its soldiers and safeguard their equipment.

(d) It is a question which is better: The paying of the guard or the erection of armories. I am not prepared to answer, but I lean toward the latter. Respectfully,

(Signed) E. P. BUJAC,
Major 1st Infantry; N. G. N. M.

UNVEILING CEREMONIES

Eddy Grove Camp Honors the Memory of Three Departed Sovereigns

LARGE CONCOURSE OF PEOPLE

The W. O. W. unveiling ceremonies at the cemetery, Sunday afternoon were attended by a very large number of people. The band having kindly loaned its services for the occasion the players were on hand promptly. The Woodmen met at their hall at 10:30 A. M., and marched to the Baptist church where a discourse was preached by the pastor, Reverend Reece, on the beauties of the order. The preacher handled the subject well and the Woodmen were well entertained with the discourse.

In the afternoon at 2 o'clock the members gathered at the hall and also the members of the Woodmen Circle. The captain of the degree team, Sovereign Rader, had charge of forming the line and filled his post well. The line was led by the band, degree team, members and officers and was brought up by the members of the Circle.

of the service at each grave the band played: first, "Nearer, My God, to Thee;" second, "Way side Chapel;" third, "Meditation." The music was first class throughout. The last number on the program was an address by Consul Commander O'Quinn.

Mrs. T. J. Welch will spend the warm days in Seattle. She could not have selected a more ideal clime as the writer has been over the route. As you pass old Mt. Shasta with its cap of snow on a warm day in June has a tendency to make one feel cool. There are many good views and shady nooks among the hills on this journey that make one glad they are living. Mrs. Welch left Tuesday for a long visit with her son Will and family and her sister Mrs. Gadberry.

Lakewood Camp was represented by Sovereigns John Fuller, L. M. Howell, Tuit brothers, Henry Lehman, A. C. Jacobs and their wives who came to assist at the unveiling of the grave of Sovereign Wiles, who was a member of Lakewood camp.

The trip to the cemetery was made in carriages and floats. On arrival at the cemetery the line was formed at the gate, and preceded by the band, marched to the first grave, that of Sovereign S. R. Wood, where the regular unveiling ceremonies were carried out according to the ritual of the order, the Woodmen forming at the grave in the shape of a wedge, with the officers at the point and the sides flaring in each direction in long lines. The unveiling ceremonies should be seen to be appreciated. The consul commander recited the words of the ritual, after which the quartet rendered "Nearer, My God, to Thee." The quartet was composed of Mesdames Rackley and Davis and Messrs. Penny and Armstrong. The reader then recited "Oh, Why Should the Spirit of Mortal be Proud," one of the most appropriate productions for an occasion of the kind.

At the second grave, that of Sovereign I. H. Mitchell, the exercises were almost the same, the exception being that an address was given by Rev. Milton Reece and at the grave of Sovereign Wiles Rev. T. L. Lallance delivered a very appropriate address. At the commence men

A Fishing Party.

A merry crowd of Carlsbad young folk spent Tuesday at the Albert Johnson ranch at Black river, where they spent the day fishing. They report excellent luck in catching the finny tribe, a fine picnic dinner, augmented by plenty of fried fish and a day of general rest and recreation. In spite of the fact that there were thirteen in the party no accident occurred. Captain Mitchener was driver and Mesdames Jolley and Cowan chaperoned the young people who were Misses Jim Penny, Aline Grant-ham, Gladys Jolley, Lora Jones and Helen Cowan; Messrs. Loy Penny, Monroe Christian, Roy Duncan, Billy Lusk and Charley Pierson.

Miss Lucille McKneeley was hostess to the Daisy Club last Tuesday, at her home in this city. The amusement of the afternoon was the new card game "Rook" at which Miss Brashears was the winner and received the souvenir. The following ladies were present some of whom substituted for absentees: Mesdames Brown, Penny and M. R. Smith; Misses Harkey, Grant-ham, Brashears, Price, and the hostess. Refreshments of Ice cream and cake were served.

Otis Sunday School Contest.

The contest between the junior and senior classes of the Otis Sunday school closed last Sunday after a lively and most interesting contest of three months' duration, with 139 points in favor of the junior class. The senior class will therefore have to treat the juniors to a banquet in spite of their protests.

The contest started March 5th 1911, with an average attendance of about thirteen scholars. The attendance now is about 40. The contributions for December, January and February were less than $6.00 while the contributions for March, April and May were nearly $20.00.

Before the class contest the people of Otis took but little interest in the Sunday school and the contributions were not sufficient to pay for the necessary literature.

No Sunday school can beat our record.

Let the great and glorious work continue.

W. T. Reed and family, wife and two children departed yesterday morning for South Texas. Mr. Reed will visit his mother, sister and brother in Fort Worth and Mrs. Reed and the children will visit her father and other relatives in Galveston. Mrs. Reed and the children will be absent a couple of months but Mr. Reed expects to return in a couple of weeks. Paul McLanthen and Ray Blocker will run the Argus during Mr. Reed's absence.

Malaga Items.

A party of government surveyors are camped here tonight enroute for the state line. It is understood they are to settle a dispute between New Mexico and Texas as to our southern boundary.

The Pecos Valley railroad is cutting in a wire at the depot. Hereafter we will not have to phone messages to Carlsbad, and have to know the operator or know some one who does before they are sent.

Lila Foster is visiting this week with Frances Etter of Carlsbad. They were little school mates at the beginning of the last school year and have not forgotten each other.

Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Howard have been employed by the school board for the coming term. They are both well qualified and have had much experience in teaching. They have had charge of the Dayton schools the past two years and come well recommended.

Miss Ruth Houghton teaches the primary again this year. This makes the full corps of teachers. The patrons should be happy in the selection of such an able list of teacher and with your hearty cooperation Malaga should have one of the best schools in her history.

O. C. Epperson has been appointed deputy sheriff for the Malaga district. He will make a fearless officer and at the same time use plenty of good common sense in the discharge of his duties.

Mrs. A. B. Shadinger will combine business and pleasure in a trip to Kansas shortly. Mr. and Mrs. Shadinger were pioneers to western Kansas and still carry a few sunflower seed in their pockets.

The school bonds carried by a vote of 18 to 0. A little different vote was expected, considering there had been some premature caucuses and understandings against them.

Our Band—An Appreciation.

If all the citizens of this beautiful burg are not pleased with the Firemen's band, they would kick if they were playing football or feel crushed if run over by a steam roller. Furnishing the wherewithal and keeping together a creditable band in a town the size of this is a job for the undertakers. It calls for men of tact, resource and generalship. Manager M. S. Groves and Director Joe C. Bunch have made good in the broadest sense. Last Friday night's concert was heard and enjoyed by a large and enthusiastic crowd of townsfolk who did not fail to use their mitts vigorously in evidencing their appreciation of a tooting organization second to none in a long call from Carlsbad. Which is as it should be; applause and appreciation encourage the band boys and also the men who are giving their time and talents practically gratis in keeping the aggregation up to the highest standard.

The county board of commissioners has been in session since Monday morning wrestling with the schedules of tax payers in an endeavor to equalize taxation.

The job is one of much greater magnitude than the average citizen would believe, their being about 4,000 renditions to examine and pass upon as to their proper listing. Many are found that are too low while in some cases the renditions are too high. Those that are considered too low are laid aside and after all are examined some will be raised and the tax payers notified to appear on the first Monday in July when he will have an opportunity to examine all the schedules and learn whether or not his property is in accord with all other property and also present evidence to show whether he has less or not than he is raised to. Those who are lowered are not notified.

There is no use in denying the fact that local merchants hate the mail order houses, and use all the means they know of to induce people to trade at home, which is right and proper; but in many instances they do not go about it in the right way. The best way for merchants to fight the mail order houses is to adopt honest, straightforward, progressive business policy. Take liberal space in the local paper, (that the mail order house would be only too glad to get) let the people know what they have, that it is the best to be had, and also that it is sold as low as legitimate business methods will permit, that trade is appreciated and that efforts will be made to favor and accommodate them whenever it is possible. This policy faithfully carried out, will secure trade against any mail order house in the country and will yield very large returns for the amount invested. If there are any merchants whose backs are so covered with moss that they do not believe in advertising, will not adopt the policy outlined, we are sorry for them, because we can see the end of their business career without a field glass. —Lakewood Progress.

Ex-Governor Hagerman Visits Carlsbad.

Ex-Governor Herbert Hagerman came down Sunday afternoon in his auto from the Hagerman home at South Spring. On being interviewed by the Current Mr. Hagerman expressed himself as being gratified by the very evident signs of development all along the valley and stated that in his opinion, petroleum in paying quantities would some day be discovered in this country. "How about the oil well in which we have heard you were interested?"

"Well, we have drilled 3,000 feet at a point east of Roswell and east of the Pecos but without results, this being probably the deepest hole in the earth in New Mexico."

"What do you think of the constitution?"

"As the document stands it will be impossible to amend while the present leaders of the republican party are in power, for they have so restricted the new state as to enable them to retain control of the legislature for years to come and they no doubt expect to beat the provision, at the polls, to make the constitution easier of amendment. Of course, the counties in this portion of the territory will vote for the amendment to make the constitution easier of amendment, but as there is no specified law to contest an election on this matter there will no doubt be more or less ballot box stuffing in the strongholds of the gang now in control. Should the provision to make the constitution easier of amendment be defeated I would not care to live in New Mexico for I believe the present constitution to be unfair in many ways."

Mr. Hagerman was here on a visit to his uncle, Mr. I. S. Osborne, Mrs. Hagerman, his mother, having gone on a visit to her son, Percy, in Colorado Springs, Colorado, leaving the ex-governor at home alone with only his servants; so he embraced the opportunity to visit here for a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Osborne. Mr. Hagerman has an article in the last issue of the Santa Fe journal, "The Earth" that is one of the best so far as accurate information is concerned. He has always been a booster for this valley in every way, and indeed the whole territory, and like his father, who preceded him, he is a valuable acquisition to the country in many ways being public spirited as well as extremely benevolent, having at heart the welfare of all. It is therefore to be hoped that he will remain to spend all his days in Sunny New Mexico.

Carlsbad, New Mexico, is soon to vote on the proposition of reincorporating as a precedent to reincorporating on a more elaborate scale. And the people of the Carlsbad municipality are so accustomed to voting on matters that pertain to these things through the frequency with which municipal elections are held, that no time will be necessary to arrive at a conclusion. The average citizen of Carlsbad is always prepared to vote and do it intelligently. —El Paso Times.

If some other deliverer doesn't spring up very soon to rid Carlsbad of this irritating cottonwood cotton pest, I propose to appeal personally to Mayor McLenathen for protection. He is the boy to put the everlasting kibosh on the pest if he sets his hand and head to it, and that is not a jest either. If it were not for the fact that the saloons close so soon I would be tempted to seek solace in the flowing bowl until the cotton quits flying.

One paper says there is talk of extending the recall movement to include umpires. Another puts the proposition: "Why would it not be well to dispense with umpires entirely and have the decision come direct from the fans?"

If Alfred Henry Lewis were to come to Carlsbad it is more than likely he would find fault right off with the cotton from the cottonwood trees, so much in evidence these days. But Alfred Henry is a chronic kicker, anyhow. As long as we want to raise cotton on our trees we can do so, regardless of what a few fussy fossils may say.

THOSE HORRID HENPECKERS.

There are some hens remind me of some women I have seen. The way they treat their husbands is most scandalously mean.

They henpeck their poor roosters; They scold them awfully. Why, if my wife got off such stunts I'd chase her up a tree.

But what do these poor roosters do When they are pecked so bad? Do they turn and retaliate— Do they get awful mad?

Oh, no! The asses find a worm And yell, "Oh, wife, come!" Henpecker gobbles down the worm And then henpecks him some.

I've even seen an old fat hen Chew off her rooster's tail And tear his headgear all to bits With her long, sharp toe nail.

Oh, can you wonder that these males So often take French leave, Elope with an affinity And let henpecker grieve?

Indeed, I do not wonder That rooster does not flunk When henpecker on some dark night Is gobbled by a skunk.

of 55 degrees is best.

They should be spread flat on crates covered with clean white paper to avoid evaporation.

Do not wash eggs. Water starts decay. Vinegar is the best cleanser.

Discard filthy eggs, brush off the mud, but set goose and duck eggs as they are.

They are generally dirty because dropped anywhere, but should not be washed, as it removes their gelatinous coat.

Turn eggs once a day, but remember a jar often ruptures the germ. Roll them gently with the palm.

This exercises the embryo and keeps the yolk in statu quo. Don't set old eggs.

A germ has its life limit. It weakens with age, dies and rots. Make your limit fifteen days, but set earlier if possible.

Amateurs often buy too large an incubator for the size of their flock. Most of the eggs get ancient before the full quota is secured.

Eggs shipped by express should settle a day before being set.

It is wise to test purchased eggs before setting, as an unscrupulous dealer may ship you rots and spots.

FEATHERS AND EGGSHELLS. When shipping fowls by express fasten them securely. A train never waits for the expressman to catch a retreating rooster, but you will wait a long, long while before an express company pays a claim.

When a fancier buys a combination incubator and brooder with the brooder on top, and all to be heated so scientifically with one lamp, he'll sleep about as much during the first hatch as a man with a lively stable over head. Then he'll kick the whole shebang out the back door and go and make new resolutions not to swear any more.

When heat in your incubator begins to run way up about the fifteenth day without any apparent cause don't get rattled, but blow yourself a bit. It's a sign you're going to have a good hatch, so keep the heat down to the proper point, and you'll get there O. K.

If low rose combs are seldom frozen they are often soft, especially when quite smooth, and two rose comb roosters can follow out and spoil each other's headgear through a wire fence quicker than two mud women can bring their husbands in a bargain counter battle.

In Philadelphia a tremendous lot of rots and spots contained 125,000,000 germs. In New York the same quantity tested 234,000,000 germs. Kansas City now goes up head with 300,000,000 to the teaspoonful.

There were 305 White Woundsites among the thousands of entries at the New York state fair, while 300 Bantams helped to swell the big cackle at Allentown, Pa., where the poultry entries alone paid $4,842.

Missouri is making such progress in poultry that it is prophesied five more years will see her annual poultry product net $100,000,000.

At the time a hen is hatched, some say, she has the embryos of all the eggs she will lay. Her capacity is declared to be 540 to 600, and it is your business to treat her in such style as to make her lay these in a short while. She will rustle if you hustle.

The Ranocous poultry farm, New Jersey, feeds 20,000 hens three times a day. Each hen costs $1.80 per year and brings a profit of $2.78. Let the poultry postmistress count this up and then shut up.

Skim milk is 90 per cent water without counting what some milkman might add. The best way to feed it is to change it into cottage cheese. It then has about as much protein as fresh meat, worms or grasshoppers.

Among the items consumed last year in Paris were 20,000 tons of poultry, 21,000 tons of eggs, 90,000 tons of horse flesh and 1,500 tons of mule meat.

Quantity and Quality of Milk. Statistics obtained from the records of several thousand Ayrshire cattle in Scotland indicate that the quantity and the quality of milk are inherited separately—that is, that a cow giving a large quantity of milk is just about as likely to give at the same time rich milk as a cow giving a smaller quantity. Of the cows giving less than 500 gallons a year the largest percentage of those were giving over 700 gallons a year tested in the neighborhood of 3.7 per cent. This would indicate that in the Ayrshire breed at least a cow which is giving the large quantity of milk is just about as likely to be giving milk of high fat content as a cow giving a smaller quantity.

WOMEN TAKE PICTURES TO RID CITY OF SMOKE

Unsanitary Places in Your Town Can Be Removed by Camera.

Clubwomen, the wives and daughters of wealthy St. Louisans, armed with cameras, recently made pictures of children's that smoke in the campaign to rid the city of its murky atmosphere. All photographs will be presented to Smoke Inspector Parker. An army of 320 women participated.

It has been suggested that this method might be tried advantageously and effectively with the many eyesores to be found in nearly every town.

places, etc., then publicly exhibit them, showing what a disgrace to the town they are. Public feeling should soon become aroused, and the objectionable spots will be removed. In the illustrations one can see the possible good that can be accomplished in cleaning up your town. They show how an unclean, insanitary, unsightly spot was cleared of its debris and with a little masonry work was converted into a really handsome section.

The Dull Mowing Machine. The mowing machine that chews under ordinary conditions is sadly in need of attention. In nine cases out of ten the fault will be found in one or the other of both of the cutting edges.

The sickle may be dull or the edges worn off the ledger plates. It is only a half remedy to sharpen the sickle and leave the dull ledger plates in.

HER BUSINESS IS CLEANING TOWNS

Kalamazoo Woman Is First Public Housekeeper.

ACCOMPLISHES BIG RESULTS.

The Rev. Caroline Bartlett Crane Made Kalamazoo, Mich., a Spotless Town and Started Improvements in Many Other Places on Contract.

The Rev. Caroline Bartlett Crane of Kalamazoo, Mich., has the distinction of being the first public housekeeper in the world, says Hampton's Magazine. It is her theory, put effectively into practice, that a large part of city government is merely housekeeping on a big scale, very badly done, because men do not know how to keep house.

"We have waited a long time," says Mrs. Crane, "hoping that the men would learn, but now we are tired of waiting. Women are tired of being told to open their mouths and shut their eyes and everything will be done for them. If the home is women's sphere surely the filthy streets through which they must walk in order to reach their homes are a part of that sphere also."

She told the recent conservation congress in St. Paul of the simple, plain, but time tested housekeeping methods that under her direction have been applied in a number of cities and of the excellent results which had followed. So practical were all these sanitary suggestions that immediately after her speech the state board of health of Minnesota voted an appropriation to engage five weeks of her time. The board asked her to visit the twelve largest towns of the state, view them with the eye of a housekeeper and report. Now those cities are getting the house cleaning of their lives.

Some time ago the ideal of public service grew so strong in her heart that Mrs. Crane resigned her pastorate and devoted her entire time to civic work. She organized the Women's Civic Improvement league and started out to clean up Kalamazoo, which sadly needed cleaning at that time. Mrs. Crane offered to take charge of the street cleaning department. After much persuasion the city council gave her charge of six blocks on Main street for three months. Mrs. Crane instructed the plan of "white wings" hand workers and soon had her section of the town entirely clean. Moreover, she was saving money on the job. For a certain allotted space of street Kalamazoo had been expending $8,320. Mrs. Crane cleaned the same space for $5, and handed the extra $3,320 back to the department. Before her three months had elapsed the city had adopted her plan.

This was only the beginning. Mrs. Crane and her Civic Improvement league next went after Kalamazoo's food supply. They visited the slaughter houses, the dairies, the markets, and the reports they turned in to the clubs, the churches and the newspapers were so startling that the town almost lost its appetite. The result of the league's exposures was a law providing for municipal inspection of meat, milk and all market products. All the public institutions in the vicinity of Kalamazoo were next brought under the inspection of the league. The almshouse was found to be in a shocking condition of neglect. The women cleaned it up. Other institutions were examined and found lacking. The women supplied their wants, or, rather, they made the proper authorities supply them.

Having made Kalamazoo into the "spotless town" of the northwest, Mrs. Crane continued, by means of writing and lecturing, to preach the gospel of city cleanliness and order. Soon distant cities began to send for this public housekeeper to tell them their own shortcomings.

The most valuable part of Mrs. Crane's work is that it has proved in almost every case permanent. Her visit and inspection are followed by organization of effort to bring about the changes suggested by her. After her visit to Kentucky the legislature passed state health laws that were a generation in advance of those Mrs. Crane criticized. A few months after her inspection of Nashville they had cleaned the public market and laid new sidewalks throughout the town. Calumet, Ill., was changed in a year from a mining camp into a modern town with parks, good streets and an organized system of public relief.

Unsanitary Hitching Post. Abilene, Kan., has a mayor who is trying to do a few stunts for his city that will take it out of the rut of old fogy towns and make it a pleasant place to live in. One thing he has done is eliminating the unsightly old hitching posts from the main streets. Of course the farmers need places where horses can be tied, but these can be provided in alleyways and side streets. The old hitching post has always been a nuisance, the cause of filth and mud holes and battered pavements.

There is no question but that dealing at home makes a good town, but those who preach this the loudest are very often the persons who do not practice what they preach.

TOULOUSE GOOSE GOSSIP.

"Toulouse geese live sometimes to be over a hundred years old? Mercy, how tough!"

"Yes, and when you buy at market fiddle the goose under the chin, and if it wears a big bill or dewlap don't invest or you'll have to visit the tooth factory."

Up to four years geese show little dewlap; the larger this is and the greater the pouch the more ancient.

Amateurs often fail with Toulouse because they mate young stock. To get large, strong goodlines geese from two or three years old must be mated, not more than three to the gander.

Pairs breed best. When Toulouse run in flocks sexes should be even.

The gander is larger and coarser, hates and chases dogs, leads the procession, hisses the passerby, honks with a shrill, sharp voice, while the geese in house and, unlike most females, seldom speaks above a whisper.

The goose lays about forty eggs a season. Six weigh two pounds and are enough for a big hen to incubate.

The eggs shown were laid in March, gathered and set before they could chill and hatched big girls because from big stock, the gander tipped the beam at twenty-two pounds and the goose at twenty, just two above the standard for each.

In mating don't mistake fat for flesh, as overfat birds lay infertile.

Toulouse are seldom sick and in prime order are sick, active, big eaters, and the pouch is round, full and hangs down.

A thin goose is no breeder; a dirty goose is always sick unless raised on the highest plan.

To raise fine geese there must be careful sanitation and generous feeding.

Breeders should be strong, large and graceful in neck and head, long of body, wide, full and deep of breast, wide, broad and flat of back, with good ponds, short, thick legs, big flappers and straight toes.

Toulouse are mainly gray, shading to pure white in parts; bill, shanks and feet are reddish orange and eyes brown.

DON'TS. Don't ship eggs for hatching in sawdust or buckwheat hulls. The eggs get together, and such packing is too heavy.

Don't be surprised if arrival of that new incubator is delayed, especially if you waited till the rush to order, and don't expect to get those eggs on the minute unless you booked your order in advance.

Don't rush the growler; that's the bulldog's bit. Don't boss Mary; that's contrary.

Don't handle eggs with soiled hands. Oil destroys the hatching quality of an egg and hastens decay when rubbed on an egg for preservative. But elbow grease applied to an egg plant produces poultry prodigies.

Don't say, "Do chickens pay?" That belongs to the fossil's day. Oh, no, you're not old tip Van Winkle, who in the backwoods took a snore that lasted twenty years or more and when he got awake at last was an old mossback of the past.

James-Lowenbruck.

One of the most solemn and impressive marriage ceremonies ever taking place in the Catholic circles of Carlsbad, occurred last Monday morning at 7 o'clock, when Ellsworth James and Miss Teresa Lowenbruck were joined in the solemn bonds of matrimony at St. Edward's church, Rev. Arbogast, the pastor, officiating.

The regular nuptial mass was celebrated at which both the bride and groom-to-be received communion, after which the beautiful marriage ritual of the church was given in full.

The bride was accompanied to the altar, by her sister, Miss Mabel, while the best man was Charley James, the youngest brother of the groom.

The church was crowded to the doors by the friends of the young people who showered all manner of congratulations upon them after the service.

The bride looked beautiful in a simple dress of white voile, with white hat, and carried a shower bouquet of carnations. Her going away gown was a white and black coat suit with hat to match. The groom wore the conventional black.

After a wedding breakfast at the home of the bride's parents, the young couple were taken by Mr. E. Hendricks in his car to Artesia, at which point they boarded the Tuesday morning passenger train to Chicago from which place they will visit the James family relatives in Ashland and Washburn, Wisconsin, expecting to return some time in July.

The young people are both almost natives of Carlsbad having resided here since early childhood coming with their parents when children in 1896. The young man is interested with his father, Mr. J. H. James, in the cattle business and has quite a stock of his own. The bride has been considered by many the most amiable and lovely young lady in Carlsbad and has been of great assistance to her father in keeping books at the U. S. Market.

The prospects for this young couple are indeed bright for both are accustomed to work and are especially prudent in all ways so it would seem that the wishes of scores of friends that they may succeed in life would be fully realized.

The following presents were received by the bride:

J. H. James, check for $200; Mrs. J. H. James, art square; two bedroom chairs; Mr. and Mrs. John Lowenbruck, parlor set; Mrs. Lowenbruck, silk sofa pillow cover; Battenberg dresser scarf; Mrs. Mary James, $100; Frank James, handsome brass bed; Leslie James, $100; Ed. Both young people are well and favorably known in Carlsbad, Mr. Marshall having lived here for about ten years with his parents, his father, Rev. J. F. Marshall having formerly been rector of Grace Episcopal church. Miss Lambert came here a few years ago with several other young ladies to take up a piece of government land and make her fortune in a new country. Instead, she has laid claim to one of the best young men in the town who has many friends, all of whom wish them long life and much prosperity.

Elida Man and D. R. Harkey Have Trouble.

The following account of a difficulty between D. R. Harkey of Carlsbad and a doctor of Elida is clipped from the Roswell Record. Report came to Carlsbad that the doctor was dead but it was learned later that he was not badly hurt and that the affair was not as serious as reported.

Elida, June 7.—Dee R. Harkey, the well known cow man from Carlsbad, Eddy county, was arrested here last night and taken to the Roosevelt county jail at Portales to await the result of injuries he inflicted upon Dr. J. W. Cutler in a street tragedy here at 2:30 this afternoon. The injured man is in a serious condition, being conscious only part of the time. His age makes his condition more serious, as he is 61 years old.

The two men were on the street of Elida and became engaged in an argument over the land laws when Harkey hit the other over the head with an ax handle. The doctor was hit twice over the head and several times on the arms, the handle making cuts wherever it hit.

HARKEY ALLOWED BOND: HIS ATTACK WAS PROVOKED.

D. R. Harkey, who struck Dr. J. W. Cutler with an ax handle at Elida on Tuesday afternoon, was brought to Roswell last night by the deputy sheriff at Portales and upon a showing made to the district attorney, secured bond in the case. He had been first arrested and allowed bond to the amount of $2,000. The district attorney wired for his re-arrest without bond, but upon the showing made here last night, the first charge of assault with a deadly weapon was allowed to stand he was liberated upon the first bond.

The case is not as bad as at first reported, according to reports received here today. It is said that Harkey had been abused by Dr. Cutler in the hotel at Elida on Monday and again on Tuesday and that Harkey was going to exchange the ax handle he was carrying in his hand, he again met the doctor who again started his apuse.

It is now reported that the doctor was struck on the head two or three times but only flesh wounds were inflicted and that the handle broke before any dangerous injury was done. It is said Cutler is not in dangerous condition.

Dr. Cutler came here four months ago and although he has a claim six miles southeast of Elida, has been living in town. His family is still at their old home in Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

D. R. Harkey is well known over the entire Pecos Valley. He has cattle in the north end of the valley and was employing the Zumwalt brothers at Kenna when they killed the Hall brothers.
