SANTA FE NEW MEXICAN

VOL. 47.

SANTA FE, NEW MEXICO, THURSDAY, MARCH 3, 1910

NO 17

CONGRATULATION FROM TAFT

President of United States
Felicitates Governor of New Mexico.

PARDONS WILL BE VERY FEW

Territorial Engineer and Land
Commissioner Leave on Important Trip.

Governor Mills has received the following telegram:
"The White House, Washington, D.
C., March 1.

"I congratulate you on your inauguration as governor. W. H. TAFT."
From all over the Territory Governor Mills, ever since his appointment
has been receiving many hundreds of telegrams and letters of hearty congratulations.

Trip on Carey Act Matters.
Territorial Engineer Vernon L. Sullivan and Land Commissioner R. P.
Ervin will leave this evening for Las Vegas where they will make examination of the water rights claims in streams south of that city and which are in controversy.

The projects of A. A. Jones, the Ft.
Sumner Irrigation Company, the Disney project, the Lake Urton and the Las Vegas Grant Board projects will be examined. From Las Vegas south
the trip will follow the Pecos river
and will be made in an automobile.
Attorney Oakley of the firm of Wood & Oakley, the celebrated bond lawyers who pass on many New Mexico
securities for investors, will accompany Messrs. Ervin and Sullivan on their trip to see with his own eyes
some of the resources of the Territory.

Withdraws From Territory.
The Texas Life Insurance Company
today notified Territory Superintendent of Insurance Jacobo Chaves that it would not write any policies in New Mexico in 1910.

Quail for San Juan County.
Game Warden Thomas P. Gable today sent 200 quail to San Juan county
for distribution. He recently distributed 100 quail in Santa Fe county. It is his intention in that manner to restock the entire Territory where demand for this is made.

The Matter of Pardons.
While chief justice of New Mexico,
Governor Mills drew the lines on pardons very strictly and generally refused to recommend such. As governor the pardons he will grant will be few indeed and he will be even more rigid in granting pardons than he was in recommending them.

Board of Bar Examiners.
The territorial board of bar examiners has recommended that the temporary license of Attorney J. A. Law be revoked. The charges against Attorney J. E. Matteson of Deming were ordered certified to the attorney general, as he made no reply to specific charges preferred against him.

INTERSTATE COMMERCE COMMISSION IS ENJOINED.

Cannot for Present Enforce Prohibition Against Railroads as to Collection of Fees.

Kansas City, Mo., March 3.—The interstate commerce commission was permanently enjoined from enforcing
the order prohibiting railroads and other carriers from allowing compensation to owners and operators of elevators for the elevation and transfer of grain in transit, in a decision filed
in the United States court here today.
The suit was filed in St. Louis by the Heavy Elevator Company and was supported in its petition by the boards
of trade of Kansas City, Omaha, and other cities of the middle west.

TRAINMEN REJECT PROPOSAL FOR ARBITRATION.

Result May Be General Strike on Baltimore and Ohio Railroad System.

Baltimore, March 3.—The Baltimore
and Ohio train men today unanimously rejected the company's proposal to submit the differences to arbitration
and the train men's general committee will decide later in the day whether a strike will be called. The company announced it would invoke arbitration under the Erdman act.

MOVING PICTURE THEATER AT TUCUMCARI DESTROYED.

Film Caught Fire and Caused Panic
But Audience Escaped—Loss
Estimated to Be $12,000.

Tucumcari, N. M., March 3.—A moving picture film in the Crystal theater caught fire last night. A panic ensued
among the audience, but all escaped.
The theatre, and skating ring adjoining, were destroyed. The loss is $12-000.

STATEHOOD EN- COUNTERS BREAKER

Democrats Look on It as Buffer to Hold Up Taft Policies

TRIBUTE PAID TO BURKE

His Prompt Confirmation Was
an Unusual Incident in the Senate.

Special to the New Mexican.
Washington, March 3.—Senator
Beveridge has called a meeting of the Senate committee on territories for tomorrow, to consider in executive session sundry proposed amendments to the statehood bill which is to be reported late on Friday or on next Monday. Important action is expected next week, but a disposition to fight the bill or to use it as a buffer
to prevent other legislation demanded by the administration, is apparent beneath the surface. The Democrats are lukewarm and in order to make political capital are disposed to do all in their power to defeat statehood at this session.

Delegate Andrews today introduced a bill to pension Captain J. S. Esquivel, Company E, Third New Mexico
Volunteers, $30 a month.
The prompt confirmation of Edward
C. Burke as postmaster at Santa Fe is an evidence of the eminent fitness
which the Washington authorities believe the new appointee possesses.
The affairs of the postoffice at Santa Fe are not regarded as being in the best of shape by the postoffice department and they therefore recommended what they conceived to be a candidate of more than ordinary executive ability. Mr. Burke possesses a host of friends in high quarters at Washington, who are convinced that he will make good as postmaster and will give the Santa Fe postoffice a model administration.

Hearing on Anti-Option Bill.

Washington, March 3.—The anti-option bill hearing was resumed today
before the House committee on agriculture. Representative Hardwick of Georgia, has prepared an amendment to the Scott bill to include cable lines. The bill thus amended, it is believed, will be favorably reported.
The bill would prohibit the transmission among the states and territories
and between the United States and foreign nations of telephone or telegraph messages relating to contracts
for future delivery of grain, cotton, or other farm products, where there is no intimation of actual delivery or receipt. Mr. Hardwick's amendment is aimed at the Liverpool cotton market particularly.

Favorable to Shipping.

Washington, D. C., March 3.—The Gallinger bill to provide for the establishment of mail steamship lines between the United States and South America, Philippines, Japan and China was ordered reported favorably
to the Senate today.

CLIFF DWELLING PICTURES MAKE HIT IN PARIS.

New Mexican's Special Edition Was Read With Interest Abroad—
New Yorker Writes of It.

The New Mexican's special New Year's edition has traveled. And the illustrations in it, especially those of the wonderfully interesting cliff dwellings near Santa Fe have made a "hit"
at home and abroad. A letter has just been received here by a resident stating that several ladies living in Paris saw the edition and have become interested in New Mexico.

Word was also received today from a New Yorker asking for photographs of the cliff dweller's park. It was written by Frank Carlton Loring, a graduate in electrical engineering
from several eastern universities and now in the employ of the Metropolitan Street Railway Company. He says:
"I have run across a copy of the New Year edition of the Santa Fe New Mexican and everyone I have shown
it to has displayed keen interest in the story and pictures. Especially those who have traveled extensively abroad as well as in this country have pronounced Santa Fe to be the possessor of attractions decidedly unique.
To be near a city of 20,000 cliff dwellings must be an advantage that will appeal to the easterners more and more as special editions reach them."

PHILADELPHIA'S MAYOR OPPOSED TO ARBITRATION.

Philadelphia, Pa., March 3.—Mayor
Reyburn, carrying out his announced determination that the city shall not force arbitration in the street car
strike, will recommend to the city council this afternoon that no action be taken regarding the strike. He will call attention to the old law that will permit the courts to handle the situation.

FROM BOSTON TO SPOKANE

Reports of Towns and Valleys Being Endangered
by High Water

FLOODS ARE UNPRECEDENTED

Damage Is Heavy and Railroads
in Particular Are Great Sufferers.

Spokane, Wash., March 3.—Almost unprecedented flood conditions are reported in the valleys of "Inland Empire," especially on the eastern slope of the Cascades into and including Montana, Elberton, Whitman county,
is in danger, and dynamite is being used to break the ice gorges. The Washington Central railroad in Lincoln county is washed out for miles
and many bridges are gone. Wenatchee is flooded, and the valley below
that city is all under water. Lewiston, Idaho, is cut off from rail communication and the creeks at Walla Walla are bank full, but that city is now out of danger.

Cape Cod Railroad.
Boston, March 3.—Four days of heavy rain have caused flood conditions along many rivers in New England. On the Cape Cod railroad the tracks have been washed away and bridges were destroyed. Many factories were forced to suspend operation.

Sixty Miles Under Water.

Ogden, Utah, March 3.—The water
has fallen three feet at Palisade, Nev., since yesterday, but the Central Pacific tracks from Palisade to Battle Mountain, 60 miles, are still under water, and transcontinental traffic is completely blocked. The 120 foot bridge near Palisade was reported destroyed last night, and another washout occurred near Carlin this morning. Trains for California are being detoured at Ogden via Portland.

Flood Condition in Idaho.

Boise, Idaho, March 3.—Water in the smaller streams of Idaho are receding today and flood conditions are greatly improved except in the extreme western portion along the Snake river, which continues to rise
and is out of its banks in many places.

ANOTHER INDICTMENT AGAINST SUGAR TRUST.

Charged With Contempt of Court for Failure to Produce Books and Papers Called For.

New York, March 3.—The federal grand jury today handed in a presentment against the American Sugar Refining Company, charging it with contempt of court in failing to produce its books and papers called for by the grand jury.

LAWLESSNESS IN TEXAS

Infuriated Mob Throws Negro
Out of Window Breaking His Neck

DALLAS SCENE OF LYNCHING

Militia and Police Protecting Jail
From Further Deeds of Violence.

Dallas, Texas, March 3.—Allen
Brooks, a negro, charged with assaulting a three year old white girl last week, was lynched here today by a mob of five thousand men.

Hanged on Elks' Arch.

Dallas, March 3.—Brooks was in the court room awaiting trial when the mob surged past the officers, threw
the negro from the second story window, breaking his neck. A rope was then placed around his neck, the body
dragged ten blocks to the Elks' arch
where it was strung up. The police succeeded in preventing the body of the negro being burned. The mob then marched to the jail and it was feared an attempt would be made to lynch two other negroes, the alleged murderers of Burrell Oates and Sol Arantoff. All available militia and police have been ordered to the jail
to protect it.

Tried to Batter Down Jail Doors.

Later the mob endeavored to batter
down the jail doors with railroad ties.
The officers tried to pacify the mob
by assuring them that both negroes had been taken to Fort Worth. At 2 o'clock this afternoon the mob still surrounded the jail.

AVALANCHE DEATH TOLL GROWING

Eighty-Four Great Northern
Passengers and Trainmen
Among the Victims

RESCUING PARTY IN DANGER

Warm Winds Accompanied by Frequent Showers Working Havoc.

Everett, Wash., March 3.—It is now almost certain that the death toll
in the avalanche that carried away
two Great Northern trains and seven steam and electric locomotives near Wellington, will total 84. Few believe that any of the 67 listed as missing
will be found alive, for now more than forty-eight hours have passed since they were buried beneath tons
of snow and ice and twisted wreckage.
The rescuers themselves are in a perilous position for the danger from snow slides is still great. Warm winds, accompanied by frequent showers, are working havoc with snow and frequently avalanches are seen shooting down the steep slopes of mountains. Rumors were current last night that one of these avalanches had overwhelmed relief parties, but these cannot be confirmed, as wires are all down.

Scenes of Indescribable Horror.

Everett, March 3.—Men from Scenic bring back remarkable tales of heroism displayed by survivors H. P. Purcell and Ira Clary, two conductors,
who extricated themselves uninjured
from a mass of snow and wreckage.
They worked several hours endeavoring to release less fortunate victims.
When the two men crawled out of the snow they were barefooted but found Purcell's shoes and socks. Clary put on the socks and Purcell the shoes and together they dug in the snow for the injured. W. R. Ballet, who keeps a hotel at Wellington, was besieged by a score of half naked, bleeding men,
who asked for clothes to wear so they might go back in the cold and join the rescue work. The first intimation that the passengers had of danger was when the snow swept down upon them
and lifted the cars bodily into the air
and then dropped them over a precipice. Ray Forsythe says that five women and seven children were in his car. Three women and two children escaped. It is believed that others perished. A storm was raging and the lightning flashed incessantly at the time of the catastrophe. The rescue work was done by the glare of lightning. The exact number of dead will not be known until the snow, which is more than forty feet deep in the canon, has melted. The rescuers are digging in the snow and wreckage and report finding the dismembered bodies severed of hands
and arms. Frequently the first intimation, they are digging near a body,
comes when they uncover a great
patch of blood stained snow.

MEETING OF ARCHAEOLOGICAL SOCIETY IS CALLED.

Professor Mitchell Carroll of Washington Will Arrive Here on March 13.

A meeting of the New Mexico Archaeological Society is called for tomorrow evening in the Puye room in the Old Palace by the president, Judge John R. McFie. Officers are to be elected and other important business will come up. The meeting will be called to order at eight o'clock. Professor Mitchell Carroll, secretary of the Archaeological Institute of America, will come here from Washington,
on March 13 and will be the guest of the local society. He will remain here several days inspecting the School of American Archaeology and visiting the cliff dwelling excavations at the Puye, west of Santa Fe. While here he will deliver a lecture before
the local society on "The Growth of the Archaeological Institute and Schools." The lecture will be illustrated.

A large attendance of members is requested for tomorrow evening's meeting. Other citizens are also invited to attend. It is reported that the number of visitors to the Puye

room in the Old Palace is increasing daily and it is already the greatest attraction in Santa Fe to tourists.

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER, JR., WILL GIVE LIFE TO PHILANTHROPY.

He is to Manage Great Benevolent Foundation Created by His Father, the Standard Oil King.

New York, March 3.—John D.
Rockefeller, Jr. will probably become the active head of the new "Rockefeller foundation," and will devote his entire time to the philanthropic work undertaken by his father. To this end the young Rockefeller resigned from the Standard Oil directorate on January 11 and this week severed his connection with the United States Steel corporation.

SUPREME COURT HAS ADJOURNED

Could Not Transact Much
Business With Only Four Judges in Attendance

LONG SESSION THIS SUMMER

Chief Justice William H. Pope
Presided for the First Time Yesterday.

The territorial supreme court adjournd yesterday afternoon, being forced to this by lack of quorum, as
the law prohibits judges from sitting in cases in which they were the trial court, thus leaving only three out of seven competent to sit. Chief Justice William H. Pope presided for the first time, and there were present besides him, Associate Justices John R. Mc-Fie, Frank W. Parker and Ira A. Abbott. Supreme Court Clerk Jose D.
Sena, Attorney General Frank W.
Clancy, U. S. Marshal C. M. Foraker
and U. S. Attorney David J. Leahy
were in attendance.

In Case No. 1045, United States vs.
Marlano F. Sena, from Santa Fe county, an order was entered granting writ
of error to the U. S. supreme court.

Case No. 1300, John Spring, appellant vs. A. W. Thompson, appellee,
from Union county, was ordered
stricken from the docket as appellant
did not perfect his appeal.

In Case No. 1262, Harry Slocum
Friday by his next friend John H. Friday, appellee, vs. The Santa Fe Central Railway Company, appellant, from Santa Fe county, 30 days were granted to file a motion for a rehearing.

The commissions and oaths of office
of Chief Justice William H. Pope and Associate Justice Frank W. Parker
were filed and recorded.

The following took their oath of office as attorneys of the court: Thomas E. Mears of Portales, Oscar Grace of Deming, M. C. Spicer of Elida, Alfredo Ruiz of Gallup, having been admitted in January, and George H.
Spence of Lincoln county, who was admitted upon motion of George W.
Pritchard, having been admitted to practice in the district court prior to 1897.

Court then adjourned to July 19, 2 o'clock in the afternoon, when it is expected to hold a six weeks' session.

Her Dismembered Body Into

Detroit, March 3.—Dr. George A.
Fritsch was today found guilty of manslaughter in connection with the death last summer of Maybelle Mil-

ESTRADA IS DOWN AND OUT

Decisive Blow Dealt General
Chamorro in Bloody Battle
at Tisma.

Blufffields, Nicaragua, March 3.—The insurrection movement headed by General Estrada against the Nicaraguan government has been practically crushed. The insurgent campaign in the west has petered out and nothing is left to the insurgents but to resort to guerrilla warfare. Encouraged by the desperate hope that the United States may yet intervene, in a wish to put an end to the disturbed
condition of the republic, it is now admitted that General Chamorro's campaign was a failure. The destructive blow fell at Tisma, February 22,
when General Chamorro's force was defeated and scattered with a loss of 800 killed and wounded. Chamorro himself barely escaped and with a couple of hundred men fled to San Vicente where General Mena is entrenched. Chamorro estimates the enemy's loss at 1,000 and explains his own defeat by the exhaustion of his supply of cartridges.

BASEBALL PLAYER GETS $9,000 A YEAR.

Augusta, Ga., March 3.—"Ty" Cobb
signed his contract with the Detroit American League base ball club yesterday. Cobb's contract calls for a salary of $9,000 annually for three years.

THIEF STEALS STRYCHNINE

Also Valuable Collection of Photographs From S. S.
McKibbin

OVERLOOKS PRECIOUS POTTERY

Of Cliff Dwellers But Takes Modern Dishes of Little Value.

S. S. McKibbin, an old timer who has been on the Santa Clara Indian reservation and who has been sick
with stomach trouble at the hospital
here, stated today that while he was ill some one broke into his room on burro alley and ransacked one of his trunks. These are the things that are missing:

A good sized bottle containing enough strychnine to wipe out a regiment.

Photographs of the Puye cliffs.
Valuable pictures of noted Indians.
Knives, forks, dishes and a quantity of fire wood.

The thief evidently was of a practical turn of mind and was not a curio
connoisseur for he overlooked two pieces of pottery of the cliff dweller period which Mr. McKibbin considers so valuable that he has declined to sell them. Near the pottery was a spoon made, it is believed by archaeologists, by the cliff dwellers and it is considered one of the most interesting of relics of the period when men had to use crude utensils in their kitchens and dining rooms. The spoon, the handle of which is slightly broken is a large one and evidently constructed in sections, which did not fit very evenly.

The thief also overlooked a $125
shot gun which was concealed between two mattresses. "I hope a family or two will not be wiped out by taking this strychnine which, of course looks like quinine," said Mr. McKibbin today. "The bottle was labeled strychnine, however, and anyone who can read will doubtless recognize its potential possibilities."

Mr. McKibbin says that the thief evidently used a skeleton key to get into the room which he had securely locked before he went to the hospital.
He has decided to leave his valuables
in the house of some friends and the pottery and unique spoon he will likely ask the archaeological society here
to keep for him. He has already given the society some valuable pieces of pottery he has found while living in the cliffs.

Native of New York.

Mr. McKibbin is a tall, spare man with a long white beard and is a native of New York. He formerly lived within a few miles of Hornell, Steuben county and came out to the middle west forty years ago. He has been in and near Santa Fe for nearly a quarter of a century and took up 240 acres for ranching. For four years he has lived out in the Puye cliffs and became greatly interested in the relics found. He has been working on the Santa Clara Indian reservation and will probably go back there as soon
as he becomes better.

Mr. McKibbin today called on a number of curio collectors and dealers
asking them if any one had tried to sell to them a series of photographs
which he had spent years in collecting.

present. Yesterday the maximum temperature in the shade was 60 degrees and the minimum last night was 33 degrees. The relative humidity was down to 29 per cent at 6 o'clock last evening. A year ago today was cloudy, with only 11 per cent of sunshine. The maximum temperature was 54 degrees
and the minimum 31 degrees.

Mr. Stanton in Charge.—Messrs. M.
A. Stanton and J. W. Wood, who have been in charge of the Elks' theatre for the past two months have dissolved

Canon City, Colo. Mr. Wood came here in August and had charge of the moving picture machine. He made many friends here and regret was expressed that he has decided to return to Colorado.

Mighty Nimrods.—The lion hunters passed through Questa yesterday and had with them the dead body of an enormous mountain lion. The animal measured eight feet from tip to tip,
and was killed about five miles east
of town on the divide between the Red River and Cabresto. The dogs
treed the lion after a ferocious fight,
and the hunters then coming up
speedily finished the fight with a well directed bullet. A lion passed through the valley only one mile north of town day before yesterday as evidenced by its tracks. Ed Wetherby has killed three broken bears this winter in the hills five miles to the south.
For big game Teddy and his son Kermit need not to have gone to South Africa.—Questa Gazette.

VEN. SISTER PELAGIA MOYA
VICTIM OF PNEUMONIA.

Well Known Nun and Teacher Died
Yesterday at Loretto Convent—Taught Many Years.

The Ven. Sister Pelagia Moya, one of the oldest teachers in the Territory and who was well known in Taos, Las Cruces as well as in this city, and in Conegos, Colo., died of pneumonia yesterday at Loretto Convent. She was 65 years of age and had spent 47
years as a nun and teacher working principally among the Spanish speaking youth of the Territory.

The news of Sister Pelagia's death
came as a shock not only to the community of nuns with whom she had lived so many years, but to her many friends in Santa Fe. The sister was taken ill with pneumonia about nine days ago and yesterday morning she was considered out of danger. It was only another example of the treachery

TEXAS JUDGE'S DECISION
HITS RAILROAD HARD.

Widow of Man Killed on Cow Catcher
Given $22,000 Damages—Nice
Point of Law Involved.

San Antonio, Texas, March 3.—Affirming the decision of a lower court,
Chief Justice James of the Fourth
court of civil appeals in this city rendered an opinion which is likely to have a far reaching effect in litigation
of that kind. In the original suit Mrs.
Hannah B. McElroy was awarded damages amounting to $22,000 for the loss of her husband, a telegraph line
repairer employed by the International and Great Northern railroad. Mc-Elroy at the time he lost his life was riding on a locomotive for the purpose of locating defects in the telegraph lines of the railroad. He was sitting on the cow-catcher when the engine was derailed and caused his death. The railroad appealed the case on the ground that McElroy was guilty
of contributory negligence by having selected the cow-catcher on which to ride when a safe or safer place was available. Justice James while admitting the value of this argument
based his decision on the fact that it was not the selection of the cow-
catcher as a place on which to ride
that has caused the death of the lineman but the fact that McElroy's life might have been spared had he been in the cab of the engine or possibly on the tender. This is a rather important decision, more so since the selection of the cow-catcher was entirely voluntary on his part.

one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages,
and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh

requires a constitutional treatment.
Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken interna-

thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient

A CORROBORATION

Of Interest to Santa Fe Readers.

For months Santa Fe citizens have seen in these columns enthusiastic praise of Doan's Kidney Pills by Santa Fe residents. Would these prominent people recommend a remedy that had not proven reliable? Would they confirm their statements after years had elapsed if personal experience had not shown the remedy to be worthy of endorsement? No stronger proof of merit can be had than cures that have stood the test of time. The following statement should carry conviction to the mind of every Santa Fe reader.

Toribio Rodriguez, 110 Johnson street, Santa Fe, N. M., says: "Two and a half years ago I gave a statement for publication in regard to my experience with Doan's Kidney Pills. Today I am stronger in my praise of this remedy than ever. I suffered greatly from disordered kidneys, the pains in my back being so acute at times that I had to stop work and sit down. The trouble steadily grew worse and I rarely knew what was to be free from an ache or pain of some kind. Soon after I began using Doan's Kidney Pills, procured from Stripling, Burrows & Co.'s drug store, my pains and aches disappeared and my back was as sound and well as ever. Doan's Kidney Pills have my strongest endorsement."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

A failing tiny nerve—no larger than the finest silken thread—takes from the heart its impulse, its power, its regularity. The stomach also has its hidden, or inside nerve. It was Dr. Shoop who first told us it was wrong to drug a weak or failing stomach, heart or kidneys. His prescription—Dr. Shoop's Restorative—is directed straight for the cause of these ailments—these weak and faltering inside nerves. This, no doubt clearly explains why the Restorative has of late grown so rapidly in popularity. Druggists say that those who test the Restorative even for a few days soon become fully convinced of its wonderful merit. Anyway, don't drug the organ. Treating the cause of sickness is the only sensible and successful way. Sold by Stripling-Burrows Co.

COST OF SNOW BLOCKADE

Aggregate to Railroads This Winter Will Run Into Millions of Dollars

FLANK STEAK IS NOW POPULAR

War Is Declared on Spurious Mixtures of Silk by Textile Manufacturers.

Chicago, March 3.—War on spurious silks, the mixtures and counterfeits of silk, which have hurt the reputation of the real thing, will be declared during the Chicago textile exposition by one concern, which uses each week the product of 75,000,000 silk-worms and handles each day enough silk to girdle the earth six times. In spite of claims, based on government estimates, of an increased consumption of silk during 1909 by American women, the sales have shown disastrous effects from the counterfeits of silks. Women the world over are buying silk doubtfully, and in the United States there is no protection of law against imposition. Fabrics which contain only a small per cent of silk have been selling as silk, and imitations of silk have been made from substances wholly foreign to anything turned out by the industrious silk-worm, which spins the strongest, most durable and beautiful fibre on earth. Notwithstanding the law requires that gold shall be stamped so-and-so many carats fine, and no alloy with less than 10 carats shall be called gold, silk has become the trade name for any fabric that can be made to look like silk. And womankind has learned the difference to her sorrow. She has become so doubtful of all silk that good, bad and artificial have been in less demand, population considered, than when silk was silk, honey was honey and woollens were woollens. The government estimates, which put the silk sales of 1909 in the United States at $165,000,000, also showed that $132,000,000 of that total was of domestic manufacture and that $33,000,000 was imported. A house-cleaning in the United States will disclose, it is said, a great deal of fraud in silk, of which dealers are complaining.

Cost of Snow Blockade.

Never has winter cost the railways of the country radiating from Chicago anything like the huge total already reached by the snow blockade, the damage claims from frozen goods and the unusual operating costs. The aggregate will run into millions, even if the expected freshets and washouts, as result of the heavy snows, do not materialize. The claim departments of all lines are swamped as result of freezing of beers, vegetables and other perishable goods and of the unusual number of accidents which the severe cold, the ice and snow have caused. Every preparation is being made against floods, for the breaking up of rivers throughout the northern states now promise havoc by the thick ice. The breakup is now due, for the first birds arrive from the south by March 1, the bluebird, which always is on the skirmish line of spring, having appeared last year on Washington's birthday appropriately enough in the Field Museum grounds. Snow which fell early in December still lingers, a record not equalled in years. Two months of sleighing in northern Illinois has not been known in many years, some pioneers say in 50 years. The corn, still unpicked in the fields of Illinois and Iowa, is the subject of concern approaching that felt on the freshest ground.

Flank Steak Now Popular.

The meat boycott has been succeeded by the cheaper cut as the solution of the butchers' bill, and in Chicago the flank steak, the rump roast and the beefsteak pie have made their appearance in thousands of homes. Prejudice and pride still clamor for porterhouse steak and rib roast, regardless of the declaration of chefs and domestic economy specialists that they find it a fascinating game to see for how little money they can evolve palatable meat dishes by using the cuts which have largely been neglected. The testimony of wives of switchmen as to the details of the higher costs of living, which is the main argument for a wage increase by the railways, bore on this phase of the problem. "Last week I thought I would buy a ham," one woman testified. "We had not had one for a long time. I asked my butcher the price, and he said it was 19 cents a pound. Then I looked at a nice roast and he said that was 19 cents a pound. There was a shoulder roast on the counter and he said that was 15 cents a pound." She was asked: "Which did you buy?" She answered in the tone of one who is making a confession of guilt, "I bought the cheap roast." Housewives who are economizing by giving rib roasts and porterhouse a rest say they have cut their butchers' bills nearly in two and made some discoveries in culinary art that their families not only are satisfied with but prefer. "Smothered beef," "beef a la mode" and "Spanish minced beef," all made from the cheaper cuts and used so much by French cooks, seem to have come to

Hear Slezak sing "Celeste Aida" in the Edison Phonograph

The New York Tribune says:

"Mr. Slezak dominated every scene, and his clarion voice rang out superbly in the climaxes. He sang the Celeste Aida with effectiveness, and the Nile scene with fire and passion, yet always with regard for phrase."

The New York American says:

"It is but a trifling with words, of course, to say that he was the greatest Rhadames that ever appeared on the American stage. The house was crowded and the standees out in force; yet it was Slezak, not Caruso, who sang the principal tenor role."

These comments represent the consensus of opinion of all who heard Slezak at the Metropolitan in the role of Rhadames. Could you ask for better evidence of the fact that Slezak is the greatest lyric tenor since the days of Tamagno? He sings the "Celeste Aida" and the great arias from Verdi's "Otello" exclusively for the Edison Phonograph. The Slezak Records are Edison Grand Opera Amberols—playing longer than any other Records made.

combines the rich, tonal beauty of the Edison Phonograph with a cabinet that is a masterpiece of craftsmanship. It is charmingly designed and finished and comes in either Mahogany or Oak to harmonize with surroundings in any home. It plays both Standard and Amberol Records. It has drawers for holding 100 Records. The price is $200. Other types of Edison Phonographs, $12.50 to $125. See and hear the Amberola at your dealer's—and be sure to hear Slezak sing "Celeste Aida."

stay as long as beef and pork is high. Fighting for Alaska Properties.

A glimpse at the Morgan-Guggenheim incubus in Alaska was afforded by efforts in Chicago to secure control of a copper property near the Bonanza mine of the Guggenheims that the stock might be put beyond the reach of the Morgan interests. This struggle is a sequel to the recent death in a snowslide in Alaska of H. Curtis Elliott. The annual meeting of the company owning the properties, the stock of which is scattered broadcast among small holders, soon is to be held in Seattle and it was found that a mysterious rival for control was securing proxies. The other faction has now set about getting powers of attorney, which it will use to revoke the proxies given. The scramble promises a lively if not sensational contest that will be typical of the status of the better Alaska properties which are still in the hands of the "small fry." In this case the railroad which the Morgan-Guggenheim crowd is building to the Bonanza mine hundreds of miles inland will furnish transportation for the ore and the company's officers do not expect any one will be permitted to benefit by the railway but the big interests if it can be prevented by stock purchase or acquisition of a lien. Every effort is being made to get a major part of the small company's stock trusted for a period of years, expenses are being cut and the company's affairs trimmed to withstand years of freeze-out tactics, action that is based on the general expense in Alaska which explains the present dominating position of Mr. Morgan and the Guggenheims.

Reform in Paving Contracts.

Reforms in paving contracts demanded by representatives of the engineering departments of 42 cities during the Chicago "paving congress"—perhaps with intentional reference to Chicago as a horrible example—stirred the contractors of Illinois to a militant virtue. Any contractors who practice fraud or graft, declared their association, will be investigated and prosecuted. Notwithstanding these reinforcements, the city engineers are going to keep on the alert and begin reforming by abolishing the "paving surety" graft, which will be a saving to the cities represented in the "congress" of $375,000. The substance proposed is the withholding of 10 per cent of the contract price to cover the cost of maintenance. The sureties for paving contractors in a pinch have evaded liability, it seems. "New Orleans a year ago abandoned the bonding company system and now places its sole reliance on the cash reserve," said a member of the committee which prepared the report. "Kansas City is ready for the same plan, and Chicago representatives will urge the convention to recommend the complete elimination of such concerns. This will effect a saving of $375,000 to the cities represented in the convention, and will force the bonding companies to decide on an uniform policy that has merit, and will offer some real protection to the city."

Taft Will Speak on Conservation.

The cause of conservation of national resources has found for champions, representative men and organizations of Chicago which promise active efforts in behalf of the conservation measure now pending in Congress with the definite aid of President Taft, who will address a great conservation mass meeting on St. Patrick's day. The committees which have been announced are non-partisan in character. The need that water power, coal, soil and timber resources be conserved for coming generations even at the risk of curbing private enterprise has united public-spirited men regardless of politics.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF SANTA FE COUNTY.

The New Mexican is the oldest newspaper in New Mexico. It is sent to every postoffice in the Territory, and has a large and growing circulation among the intelligent and progressive people of the Southwest.

THE PRESS AND GOVERNOR.

From the many favorable press notices, in fact, they are all favorable, the New Mexican will reproduce that of the Albuquerque Tribune-Citizen, as fairly representative of the Democratic attitude. Although arguing from wrong premises such as the "desperate condition" financially of the Territory, the conclusions are not far from those that the Republican and independent citizens have drawn from the inaugural address of Governor Mills. Of course, "desperate condition" of the Territory may mean public treasuries filled to overflowing, the meeting of all just demands promptly; the impartial and close collection of taxes; a high premium on public securities, but if that is a desperate condition, what would be the right words, for the abject financial chaos that prevailed under the last Democratic administration? But here is what the Tribune-Citizen says:

"In line with the proper and time honored custom in the inauguration of public executive officials, ex-Chief Justice Mills, now governor of the Territory, has presented his platform in his inaugural address, defining the lines on which he will work in his administration of the affairs of the Territory as its chief executive.

"His address has the ring of sincerity and a fixed purpose, and is armored with the simplicity that characterizes the expressions of non-pretentious, strong men.

"The keynote of his address is the momentous question of taxation, followed by another very important matter of public interest, the development and improvement of good roads, and progressive schools.

"In the paramount question, which is taxation, we quote from the governor's words:

"As to this there is but one safe, sound and just rule, and this is uniformity of valuation for similar kinds and classes of property everywhere in the Territory. A property owner in one county should not pay a greater or a less tax upon a horse, a cow or an acre of land than the owner of a horse, cow or acre of land of equal value in another county. Nor should one kind of property be assessed at a greater or less proportion of its actual and reasonable value than any other kind of property. All legislation should be framed with a view not only to establishing this rule of assessment and taxation, but also of securing its faithful enforcement by those charged with the assessment and levying of taxes, in every county in the Territory."

"No plainer or more effective language could be used in presenting this very vexatious and important question to the people of New Mexico, who have so long suffered under the reverse of the just rule proposed to be enforced by Governor Mills.

"When he says he expects to receive the hearty support of the people of New Mexico, regardless of party or other affiliations, he stands in his right, and in this position he should be upheld by every good citizen of the Territory.

"It is refreshing to know that an official should be the representative, defender and protector, as well as the executor, of the interests of all those over whom he presides, be they of whatever political affiliation, and we know that we can say safely that the governor may feel satisfied that he will have the support of every citizen, from the most successful business man to the humblest laborer in the Territory, to do that which they ask him to do in relieving the Territory from the almost desperate condition in which it is placed because of the unfair assessment of taxes in the past. Whoever may do anything to handicap him in this great work undoubtedly will be considered an enemy to fair play and to the progress, welfare and prosperity of the commonwealth.

"When the governor supplies himself with all the required information as to the disparity of assessment between the different counties of the Territory, his energy will undoubtedly multiply itself in his decision to correct the multiplied wrongs of a great number of people in this Territory.

"In doing so he will also educate other officials, some through emulation and others through necessity, to do that which they ought to have done long ago.

"The equalization of taxes is a big task and while it will take some time to bring it about, yet it can be done, and, by the tone of the language of our executive, IT WILL BE DONE.

"His position on the improvement of the school system is no less important and timely than that of his attitude on the question of taxation.

"The general position taken by the governor on the question of the constitution is also timely and forcible, and it should have a tendency to kill the partisan spirit which seeks for revenge and personal advantage in the framing of a Magna Charta. In the organization of the Territory as a state. From his words one is led to believe that he will have much to do in an effort to prevent those evils which slip in through personal antagonisms or party bitterness.

"Doubtless past history in the management of lands in New Mexico as well as the entire country has warned Governor Mills and armed him for his future conduct in the protection of the public lands which the Territory has left. In this, as in other matters of public interest, he can rely on the support of the rank and file of the people.

"This paper, although Democratic, will not permit itself through prejudice to fail to do anything that will help the administration and the executive because he chances to represent a Republican administration. We shall always be guided by the actual deeds of public officials, and they will mould our actions, either to applaud or condemn, and in the case of Governor Mills we hope we will never have occasion to condemn any action of his because of partisanship, or the use of his office to advance any interests except those of the people as a whole."

"To say that Governor Mills in his inaugural address has not treated those subjects within the sphere of his authority as executive with that common sense and lack of ostentation and vanity that bodes for a good and just government of the Territory, would be unjust and unfair to a public official. We trust the future will be only a verification of the businesslike and fair purposes enunciated by the new governor."

OUT IN THE OPEN.

Physicians report an extraordinary number of cases of pneumonia in these parts at this time. The ignorant blame it on the weather as if Providence ever made a healthier climate. It isn't the weather that brings pneumonia but the foul air of closed houses, interperate eating or anything that reduces physical vitality. A man in prime condition never caught pneumonia in the open. However, in climates like that of the New Mexico mountains, during the winter, too many people keep doors and windows closed, huddle close to stoves and radiators, breathe again and again the foul air in the houses that do not feel a draft of fresh air in weeks. That is why pneumonia invades so many of the humble adobe abodes and demands its toll of ten per cent or more for death of all those who fall ill, for it is in the adobe home with its small windows, its massive doors, its oxygen consuming coal oil lamps that the air becomes the foulest during the winter. The warmer they are kept, the more liable the inmate will be to pneumonia. In a climate like Santa Fe's it should be a misdemeanor, punishable with fine, to sleep at night in a house with doors and windows closed. The man, woman or child who will unnecessarily spend time in a badly ventilated house with every crevice stopped up, should be dragged forcibly into the fresh air by the police. If that were done, there would be fewer colds, less pneumonia and the undertakers would have to take to the hills. In a climate like that of Santa Fe, there is absolutely no excuse for cramped indoor life.

There are other beautiful aspects of life in the open, such as are told of by Harry D. Kirkover in the National Monthly, when he says:

"Boys and men owe it to themselves to go to the fields and woods and there to get as close to nature as possible. Nature is the great mother, and the boy who plays in her yards is filled with good, clean thoughts, and you can generally rely on him. He breathes in the exhilarating air of freedom and drinks from the streams that are unpolluted by civilization, and takes home with him a supply of health and spirits that money cannot purchase in a city.

"This not only applies to the boy but to the man. A tired brain is renovated and refreshed by a few hours in the open, and the man who communes with nature and becomes intimate with her has a friend, who will never lead him astray. Take to the woods and fields whenever the opportunity presents itself, and if you have boys and girls take them with you.

Teach them to shoot and to become familiar with fire arms, boats, water and woods, birds and animals, and give them a chance to learn and love nature. If you cannot take them let them go with someone in whom you have confidence. You will be surprised how quickly they will become proficient in wood-craft and how soon they will feel the charm of out-door life. The open plants the seeds of independence and teaches the young to take care of themselves. Encourage them in this direction and then try it yourselves just as often as you can.

"It beats sitting around a club. An hour, a day, a week spent in pursuit of fish, feathers or fur, never forgetting to visit nature all the while, will prove an inestimable blessing to the nerve-fagged man or woman. Let me impress upon you that the act of killing is only incidental. Never take advantage of game. Always give it, at least, an even chance, and stop before you have had enough. Remember that there are other days, and others coming after you to enjoy the same pleasures. Obey the game laws but if you have the proper conception of this form of sport and you are a true sportsman at heart, the last admonition is superfluous, as the law always allow a reasonable length of time for its indulgence, and a liberal limit to the daily and season's bag."

WHERE OLD-AGE PENSIONS PAY.

The Santa Fe does not pay pensions higher than seventy-five dollars a month, nor does it pay lower than twenty dollars. The railroad company believes, says Walter Weyl in "Success Magazine," that it is precisely the more poorly paid employees who should be assured of a reasonable pension, since the men with higher salaries may be presumed to have saved at least something. A man who earned fifty dollars a month and had worked twenty years would receive only ten dollars per month on the Pennsylvania, but would obtain twenty dollars on the Santa Fe. The western road discriminates in favor of those who find it hard to lay aside for a rainy day, and in especially meritorious cases the board of pensions is allowed to add twenty-five per cent to the pension to which the man is entitled by length of service.

If you glance at these railroad pension systems superficially, you may think that they do not pay. It seems as though the railroad company is giving out and not getting in. But if you look a little closer, you will see that the railroad is getting more than an equivalent. The whole service has improved. The old engineer has an interest in the company; it is "his" company. He puts a little extra zeal into the work; a little extra intelligence, a little more conscientiousness. If he avoids a wreck which might otherwise have occurred, he saves the company more than the whole cost of the month's pensions. The morale of the force improves. That it pays the railroads is shown by the fact that one railroad after another is adopting the plan. The plan of pensioning old employees is spreading through the entire gigantic transportation system of the United States.

The Gazette, is a newcomer from northern Taos county. It was only recently that Taos county was without any newspaper although the first newspaper in the Territory was published by Padre Martinez at Taos under the name of "El Crepusculo." "The Down." Well, the dawn has lingered real long, but when the village of Questa comes forward with an English newspaper, it is evidence that the day is here. The Gazette is neat in appearance, for nowadays, the weekly printed with stove pipe rollers on a cast iron press, is very rare. Nevertheless, the press and type of the Gazette had to be hauled fifty-six miles overland from the nearest railroad station, Fort Garland, Colorado. J. Matt Alvey is the editor and manager for the Gazette Publishing Company. The New Mexican rather suspects that the Gazette is the herald of a railroad, of a big irrigation enterprise and a new town in that part of Taos county, for there are many indications that the most beautiful, the most fertile, the best watered section of New Mexico, excepting that of the Santa Fe and the Espanola valleys, is about to come into its own. Taos county now has three newspapers and the newest one, with its motto: "Tell the truth and shame the devil," will doubtless soon be followed by papers at such populous places as Penasco or important trading points as Tres Piedras, Red River, too, at one time had a newspaper, and Taos county ought to be as well supplied as are Quay and Curry counties, with periodicals.

The Organic Act vests the pardoning power in the governor of the Territory. Most executives have not regarded it as a prerogative much to be desired but as a responsibility that was exceedingly burdensome. Those who understand human nature, know that there is seldom a criminal or a crime about which some mitigating circumstance cannot be urged. There may be wife and children; there may be friends who plead. In the trial court only evidence that is pertinent to the case is admitted, but when it comes to presenting a petition for a pardon to the chief executive, the floodgates of everything that sympathize can bring to bear, are opened and it must be a hard hearted executive indeed who is not moved, and deeply moved, by practically every case presented to him. It is satisfactory, however, to know, that New Mexico's new chief executive, will not permit himself to be governed by emotion; that he will not grant a pardon unless there has been an actual and evident miscarriage of justice or the circumstances are such that a pardon is justifiable in the full sense of that word. Those who know of Governor Mills' position on the pardon question during the twelve years that he was chief justice, will know that the pardons granted during the Mills administration will be few and far between.

CHAPTER X.

BRAND hung up the telephone receiver with an anxious expression on his face. "Nolan must keep away from this," he muttered tensely. "Let him take a train or go to sleep or bury himself if he wants to. If Bartelmy or Dupuy gets hold of him after I've shown my hand there'll be the merry d— to pay, and if they find him they might succeed in coaxing— I wonder if Nolan will stick; I wonder if Nolan will stick," he kept repeating over and over to himself.

The noise of voices raised in indignation broke in upon him from the outer hall at his right. "Oh, that's a chestnut," some one cried; "he's always out, always when I come."

The editor glanced around and saw Sylvester Nolan leading in his friend Powell, the poet.

"You're not out, are you, old man?" asked young Nolan of Brand. "Who's that fly duck that tried to keep me from coming in?"

"I'm sorry, Nolan; I'm very busy to-night, and you'll have to excuse me. I'm very busy."

"Brand, old boy, I came in on business. Want to get a job for my friend Powell here. He's a poet." He dragged the worn eyed rhymer up to Brand's desk.

The editor looked Powell over.

"We don't carry poets on the payroll," he grunted.

"But just look at this one. Powwow, let Mr. Brand see your ode to the opening of the Omaha exposition. He went in the competition with this."

Powell handed the poem to Brand.

"And I see he came out with it," snorted the newspaper man.

"Yes, sir," agreed Powell faintly.

"People haven't time for poetry," commented Brand.

"That's what I've been trying to tell Powwow," put in Sylvester. "He was born after his time."

"How would you like to be a reporter?" asked the editor.

Powell's eyes gleamed with a sickly color that showed that he was enthused.

"A reporter? Oh, yes, sir," he said. Brand took down the phone.

"Hello! Give me night city editor, please. Hello! That you? I've got a cub here named Powell. Please give him a week's trial. Report to city editor."

"Where is he, sir?" asked Powell, bewildered.

"You're a reporter now. Find out."

"Yes, sir," he started toward the hall door.

"Over here, Powwow," cried Sylvester, leading him in the opposite direction.

Joe Dillon now added to the managing editor's troubles by again coming into the office.

"Thank you, Mr. Brand," he began. "Could you spare me a little car fare?"

Brand tossed him a quarter. "Never mind now," he said. "Say, Joe, go out with that cub tonight. It will give you something to think about, and you can show him as much in a night as he'd learn in a month alone. Mr. Dillon, allow me to present you to Mr. Sylvester Nolan. Mr. Dillon broke me into the business," said the editor to the newspaper owner's son.

Sylvester drew a ponderous wad of bills from his pocket and offered the top one to the old "down and outer."

"You want to handle my friend Powwow with gloves," advised Sylvester. "He's just full of temperance."

The old newspaper man indignantly refused the money which young Nolan held out to him and plunged out of the office.

The poet stood a mute witness to the proceedings.

"Go after him!" commanded Brand.

"Thank you, sir," and Powell darted frightenedly after Dillon.

"Who is that old joker?" asked Sylvester of the editor.

"He was the best reporter that the Advance ever had."

"What's the matter with him?"

"Booze."

"Too bad! Well, a fellow ought to learn to control himself," remarked Sylvester pompously. "Now, Brand, old boy, I want to ask you just one more favor tonight, in reference to a little actress friend of mine, Miss Genevieve McKenzie."

"Oh—come—don't!"

"Run her picture in a prominent place, won't you?" Sylvester handed Brand a photo. "Miss Genevieve McKenzie. Don't you know her? She's in the second row at the Tyrrell, and it's a darn shame. I've got a libretto for her later on. Can't you help her out and get her a small part now?"

"I'm afraid that is hardly in my line."

"You'd be doing a favor to the show, for she's good enough to be a prima donna. She's been kept back by jealousy. Told me so herself. When will you have it in—tomorrow?"

"I scarcely think we can do that sort of thing in the Advance. We don't print pictures of chorus girls unless there's some good story about them—lost jewels, barred from a hotel on account of a dog, divorce or—"

Sylvester broke in relievedly. "Oh, she's been divorced?"

"Has she? When?"

"Last year."

"That's dead. Wait till her next. She doesn't go in."

"Why—why—won't you do it?" stammered the young man, who, deeply appreciating the fact that he was his father's son—yes, indeed—failed to comprehend how any employee on the Advance could refuse him anything.

"She's the cutest little girl you ever saw, you old gazoot. You stick to me, and I'll give you an interest in this paper some day. Why, she was in—"

"That all may be," responded Brand, rising to end the conversation, "but the Advance doesn't issue passes to the stage entrance."

Sylvester's jaw fell in his astonishment at this unexpected blow, and after a moment, after vainly endeavoring to find appropriate words for a reply, he went out of the room.

Brand was impatient because of the precious time that had been wasted. He had work to do and little time in which to do it, and it was the most important work he had ever done in his life.

He sent the office boy to bring the two reporters, Howard and Jeff. Speaking to Miss Stowe, the "central" of the Advance's private telephone system, he said: "Do not put anybody else on this wire until you hear from me, no matter how long it takes. Understand? Connect this phone with editorial room 4 and have it connected until I tell you. Now be sure about this. Understand? Again he repeated, as it concerned the success of his entire scheme, "Don't break the connection until I tell you myself."

The two reporters came in.

"Now, boys, understand what I want you to do. You've got to take, word for word, a conversation I'm going to have here. Go in room 4. You, Jeff, take the receiver."

"Yes, sir."

"And you, Howard, take the extension. Thus you will each hear what is said. Keep it glued to your best ear and take down every word you hear tonight between Judge Bartelmy and me. The judge will sit in the chair at the right of my desk. I will be in my own chair. The telephone will thus be midway between us. Whatever words he and I say will be said almost directly over the mouthpiece of the phone. Now, you see what I am going to do—"

Brand took a lead pencil from his pocket and began a proceeding which the two reporters, accustomed as they were in their business to ingenious strategy, failed at first to understand. Then the scheme dawned on them. Brand took the telephone receiver from the hook, and the metal arm immediately snapped upward, establishing the connection. Then he inserted the point of the lead pencil in the small aperture under the little metal arm or hook and deliberately broke it off. The tiny wedge thus held up the hook. Brand now hung up the receiver, and the pencil point prevented the weight of the receiver from bearing the hook down and breaking the connection. The connection was made continuous without the slightest indication that such was the case. Every word now spoken within a reasonable distance of the mouthpiece would be conveyed to the telephone and the extension telephone in editorial room 4, where Howard and Jeff were to be stationed. They had stenographers' pads with them, on which they were each to take down the conversation in shorthand.

"This phone will be open all the time that Bartelmy is here," announced Brand. "Go in there, Howard, and see if you can hear Jeff and me talking. Sit over here, Jeff." He pointed to the chair at his right. Howard went out.

"Now, Jeff, take down this and take down what you say to me," continued the editor.

Brand turned to Jeff and began to talk in a natural tone of voice.

"Jeff, you know I think the dog in the moon was seven times too slow in his journey through the paths of men, having lost 6,749,739,274,480 pounds in his auto northward. Is that your opinion?"

"No, not entirely. Hence and hereafter we complain of such a miraculous egotism of generality and solecism of peaceful garments and cold thought."

Brand struck a blow on the desk.

"On the contrary, it was unquestionable and with nasty justice, mis-called nambly-pamby—got it?" cried the editor, bending over the mouthpiece. "Come in, Howard!"

Howard hurried into the room.

"Compare your notes, boys," instructed the managing editor.

They held the records side by side and quickly glanced over them.

"They are almost exactly the same," they exclaimed in unison.

A smile of satisfaction spread over Brand's face.

"All right. Now chase back to room 4, both of you."

The office boy brought Brand a card. He took it, and as he glanced at it his eyes narrowed down into little sparks of light.

"He's on time," he murmured. "Very well, Durkin," he ordered, "show him in, and Durkin, remember, don't let any one else in under any circumstances."

A half a minute later Judge Bartelmy stood in the doorway. He nodded briefly to Brand, and his eyes swept around the entire room before he stepped in. Slowly he proceeded in front of Brand's desk.

"Good evening, judge," said the editor.

"Good evening, Mr. Brand."

"Let me take your things. I'll hang them up," offered Brand. Just as Dupuy had been, Bartelmy was in evening dress. He took off his white kid gloves and put them in his pocket and then handed his hat and coat to the editor. Brand opened the door of a closet at the right hand side of the things therein. He closed the door. Bartelmy stepped to the closet, opened the door and peered sharply into its four corners, even fumbling behind his long coat, to make sure that no witness was lurking there to spy on him.

"Oh, that's the way you feel?" commented Brand. "I'll show you over the place. But you shouldn't worry."

Bartelmy coughed nervously.

"One can never be too careful about matters of this kind, Brand. I should think that you would have learned that much by this time."

"This is my first experience of this kind," said Brand.

"Of course it is," answered Bartelmy, with a tinge of sarcasm in his voice. "It always is 'the first time.' But you are assuredly very lucky indeed, Brand, to do so very well at your first try at—"

"Come, look over the place, and let's get through with it," put in the editor.

He crossed and locked the door through which the judge had entered. Then he led his visitor over to the door on the opposite side of the room opening into a hallway which extended to various rooms. He pointed to the room directly across the hall. "It's quite dark, you see," he said. "This is where a couple of editorial writers sit. They go home nights, lucky dogs, not being newspaper men." Bartelmy was quick enough to catch the ironical comment of the busy managing editor on the scholarly men who wrote the opinions of the paper. Brand drew the judge back into his office and locked the door behind him.

"Now we are alone, absolutely alone," commented Brand significantly. He led the way to his desk and pointed out to the judge the chair at the right hand side. Brand dropped into his own chair. "Have a seat, judge," he said.

Judge Bartelmy drew the chair indicated even closer to the managing editor's desk and seated himself in it. He leaned forward toward Brand and rested his elbow on the desk. His face was within ten or twelve inches of the telephone.

CHAPTER XI.

BARTELMY, now that he had taken the final and extremely distasteful plunge and had come to the office of the Advance, waited for Brand to make the opening remarks about the particular object of his visit.

Brand was waiting for the judge to do the same. It was the newspaper man who spoke first, after the two had seated themselves. He was anxious to get the matter over with as quickly as possible, for he well knew that, in spite of all his precautions, affairs in a newspaper office are so uncertain that an interruption of an unexpected nature might occur to ruin the entire plan.

"Mr. Dupuy was here a short time ago," he ventured.

Judge Bartelmy proceeded to explain the appearance of the lawyer lobbyist in the affair. While it was plain to Brand that the judge had sent Dupuy as a go-between so that it would be impossible to connect Bartelmy with the payment of any money as a bribe, the jurist did not propose to acknowledge that such had been his laudable purpose. He gave an entirely different reason.

"Yes, I know," he said. "He found me at the opera with my daughter. I hoped, Mr. Brand, that by allowing me to act through him you would spare me this last humiliation."

"Would it not be safer for you if no third party knew of your transaction with me?" suggested Brand.

The judge pitied the colossal ignorance of this amateur in trickery. Did not he know that in the superior spheres of crooked practices it became necessary to employ third persons on many occasions to put through matters of this sort? And he was a newspaper man of years of experience too. No, this peculiar young man would never finish supplying the judge with surprises; of that Bartelmy was positive. Perhaps it might be in order to observe at this point that, while Brand of course could not know that these thoughts were passing through his visitor's mind, he at the same time would have been ready to confess that he was going to provide several more surprises for the jurist. But there are different varieties of surprises.

"Dupuy is in my confidence," the judge pronounced with an air of finality.

"He's not in mine," responded the managing editor.

"You're mistaken in him. I know him intimately."

"Oh, the pity of it," exclaimed Brand, "that you should be intimately acquainted with such a man as Dupuy!"

Bartelmy could not restrain a sarcastic smile at the editor's sneer at Dupuy.

"Mr. Brand," he said quickly, "your moral reflections at this juncture impart a certain quaint humor to the situation."

"I am afraid that is the trouble with me. My humor is nearly always unintentional." Brand sighed as though sorry for himself.

The judge began to show signs of nervousness.

"Well, shall we get on with it?" the editor asked him.

"Yes, I must rejoin my daughter. She's waiting for me at the opera. She was very anxious that I should not come here tonight. It was curious—her persistency in the matter."

Brand drew his chair closer to the desk—closer to the telephone.

"Let us get to business," he said.

The judge went on talking about his daughter.

"She displays an unusual, I should say an extraordinary, curiosity as to my mission here," he said. "My daughter would have made a great cross-examiner if she had been a man."

"We're wasting time, judge." Now it was Brand who was becoming impatient.

"Am I to understand that the payment of this sum?"—Bartelmy began.

Brand raised his voice to a high pitch.

"Ten thousand dollars?" he said.

"Yes," agreed Bartelmy cautiously.

"Am I to understand that it—ah—wipes out of your recollection not only the incident of which you were speaking, but also as to—"

Brand helped the would be briber to complete his sentence.

"You mean your secret interview last night with Dupuy and the attorney for the Lansing?"

The visitor raised his hand warningly at Brand's loud tones, as though to counsel caution.

"Yes, yes."

"Lansing Iron corporation?" continued Brand, bending close to the telephone.

"Yes. Will this sum, paid in hand, induce you to forget—ah—not only that incident, but also various other matters to which the Advance seems to have taken exception in the past?"

Brand sank back in his chair.

"You mean you want us to let up on you all around?"

"Precisely."

"Then that's understood."

"You will make a memorandum."

for me in writing to that effect—a receipt, so to speak?"

He pushed a pad toward the managing editor.

"All right—certainly," agreed Brand, taking up a pen.

The judge began to congratulate himself on the ease with which he was handling the young man.

"This is—ah—more businesslike," he said.

But Brand gave him another shock when he said:

"Yes; I'll draw it up in duplicate. Each of us will keep a copy—signed."

"Ah—ha—ha!" The jurist leaned back and laughed. "You're a clever lad, Brand. Well, well; youth will be served!" He pushed the pad away.

Brand glanced at the clock fixed in the wall opposite him.

"It's getting late, judge," he warned.

Bartelmy reached into the inside pocket of his evening dress coat and extracted an oblong package. Slipping off a rubber band that encircled it, he unwrapped the yellow paper and laid before him on the managing editor's desk a neat stack of crisp new bank bills, all of the $500 denomination.

Bartelmy started to count the money, but he desisted and pushed the bills over toward Brand.

"Count it," he said.

"You count it."

The judge leaned forward and began the task. His head was within four or five inches of the mouthpiece of the telephone. He picked up the bills, one at a time, and as he counted them he laid them in another pile.

"Five hundred," he said—"one thousand, fifteen—two thousand, twenty-five—three thousand, thirty-five—four thousand, forty-five—five thousand. There is half of it," he remarked.

"Yes; that's $5,000," assented Brand.

"Six thousand," said the judge, continuing with his task—"seven thousand, seventy-five—eight thousand."

"Eight thousand dollars," agreed Brand.

"Nine thousand," counted the judge.

"Nine thousand dollars," said Brand.

"Ten thousand dollars," the judge counted.

"Is that correct?" he queried of the editor.

"Ten thousand dollars, correct," was the reply. "That will wipe the slate clean between us."

Brand held out his hand to take the money.

The judge picked up the pile of bills, compressed them with his hands and extended the money across the desk.

"Take it, Brand," he said.

As the false judge said these words and stood with the money in his hands and held it out to the editor a loud explosion thrilled every nerve fiber in his body. A blinding glare of light filled the room, and the air was filled with the choking gaseous fumes of the smoke of the powder used by photographers in making flashlights.

A pang of terror shot through the craven heart of the would be briber. He started back in his alarm, his eyes almost blinded by the unexpected flood of light that had subsided as quickly as it had come.

"My God! What is that?" he cried, rubbing the back of one of his hands across his eyes.

Wheeler Brand, who had risen in his place at his desk when the judge had finished counting the money, set his face into hard, unyielding lines as the judge besought him to speak, to explain. He had won. He had completely at his mercy this cold, crafty betrayer of the public trust he had sworn to hold sacred. And it was with unmistakable triumph in his voice that he gave the reply that was to be imprinted on the brain of the false judge as long as he was to live—a reply that would haunt him while awake and awake him when he slept.

"It is a picture of you in stripes, Judge Bartelmy," he announced.

The judge, realizing that he had been tricked—that he had been photographed in the very act of handing bribe money to the managing editor of the Advance—displayed rare presence of mind for a man whose complete social and professional ruin had become suddenly imminent. He rushed across the room at the point where the flash occurred, hoping to obtain hold of the camera and destroy the plate. Owing to the pall of smoke he had been unable to see just in what manner the camera had been arranged. But when he reached the side of the room there was no camera to be seen, only a round hole extending through the partition into the next room and from which the camera had been removed. He stood and gazed in dismay. He knew now that he was at the mercy of Brand and the Advance to a degree that he hardly dared to estimate.

He turned around and walked back to the desk. Brand was still standing in his place, looking fixedly at the judge.

Bartelmy was not beaten yet. He knew that he would not be beaten until the Advance appeared in the streets spreading forth to all the world the story of his shame.

Shaking from head to foot in his rage, he pounded the desk and cried out:

"You have gone to all your trouble for nothing. I am going direct to Mr. Nolan's house, and in less than an hour you will receive orders to kill that story—that dastardly pack of lies you want to print!"

Brand smiled calmly. He gathered the $10,000 in bills, which lay scattered on the desk where Bartelmy had thrown them when he dashed for the camera.

"I'll keep these as evidence," he said.

"When they have served their purpose we will return them to you, or maybe we will send them to the minority stockholders in the Lansing Iron company. That's who the money probably belongs to."

Bartelmy accepted the situation with stoical composure for the time. He saw that he would have no chance in a hand to hand struggle with the young athletic editor for possession of the money. Besides, he must see Nolan—must see him at once. That was the most important matter to which he should now attend.

He walked deliberately to the closet and secured his hat and coat. He turned the key and went out of the door leading to the outer hall.

As the judge disappeared Wheeler Brand sank heavily into his chair. He spread his arms on his desk and bowed his head between them until his cheek rested on the cool polished surface.

"Judith, Judith!" he sobbed, and his body shook uncontrollably as he wept for the girl he loved.

Recently interviewed he says: "I have suffered a long time with kidney and bladder trouble and have used several well known kidney medicines all of which gave me no relief until I started taking Foley's Kidney Pills. Before I used Foley's Kidney Pills I was subjected to severe headache and pains in my kidneys with suppression and oftentimes a cloudy vomiting. While upon arising in the morning I would get dull headaches. Now I have taken three bottles of Foley's Kidney Pills and feel 100 per cent better. I am never bothered with my kidneys or bladder and once more feel like my own self. All this I owe solely to Foley's Kidney Pills and always recommend them to my fellow sufferers."

Judges for Medal Contest—The judges for the medal contest tonight will be G. Volney Howard, C. O. Harrison and I. Sparks.

Albuquerque Wedding—Fred M. Russell and Miss Jeanette Kirkland were married yesterday at Albuquerque by Rev. Hugh A. Cooper of the Presbyterian church.

Trainman's Legs Were Crushed—Frank R. Miller, aged 23 years, had both feet crushed and suffered other injuries in a train wreck at South Springs, near Roswell.

Fatally Hurt While Stealing Ride—Jose Cervantes, aged 23 years, was fatally injured last night at Albuquerque while trying to steal a ride. His legs were crushed and he was injured internally.

Epworth League Social—The Epworth League will give a social tomorrow night at the home of Dr. A. J. Casner. Arrangements have been made for special music, games, refreshments, etc. Everybody is invited.

Mrs. Kinsell Seriously Ill—Mrs. George M. Kinsell, wife of Assistant Postmaster Kinsell, is ill with pneumonia at her home, 113 East De Vargas street. Her two children, Miss Pauline Kinsell and Dillman Kinsell, who also have been ill, are reported much better today.

Taken to Vermont for Hearing—Deputy U. S. Marshal W. R. Forbes left for Vermont with Mrs. Shelton, where she will be given a hearing on the charge of extorting a fee of $700 for obtaining a pension for another woman, when the law allows a maximum fee of only $10.

1,500 Corporations Report—Internal Revenue Collector Henry Bardshar announced today that 1,500 corporations had made report of the amount of business transacted in the year 1909 in compliance with the corporation excise law of August 5. Those that failed to comply with the law, attention to which was called in the public press and by correspondence, will have to suffer a penalty.

First to Toe the Mark—Much amusement was created in the federal building a few days ago by the spreading of the news that Forest Supervisor Stewart was the first known victim of the price-raisers of fire wood. It was Mr. Stewart who had to inform the wood cutters in the Pecos forest that the government will require them to pay 25 cents a cord for the material and therefore it was amusing to find out that the woodmen who raised their price from 35 to 40 cents a load had the satisfaction of seeing Mr. Stewart as the first man to be "stuck". The forest supervisor paid the new price, with a philosophical look seaming his countenance.

Sun-Basking Popular—The fact that the sun shone every day in February shows that Santa Fe is in the sunny belt, no matter what month and tourists coming to the city are making the most of it. It is a common sight to see men and ladies clad in walking attire sitting or reclining on hotel porches morning and afternoon, drinking in ozone and taking the sun baths so much recommended by medical writers.

Three Deaths at Duke City—Flora, the eleven year old daughter of Manuel Mestas of Old Albuquerque, died yesterday of typhoid fever. Mrs. Mary E. Matson, an aged Albuquerque woman, died last evening. She was 72 years old. Her husband had died on exactly the same day three years ago. William Krona, aged 69 years, died at Albuquerque yesterday. His wife survives him. He came from Virginia, Ill.

The People Here are Not Nervous—A prominent attorney from Chicago was in the city yesterday and he expressed surprise at seeing so many people here who have not the nervousness of the residents of the windy city. "I used to think that where the wind blows people's nerves become high strung," he said, "but my hat was blown off several times here, yet I do not find Santa Fe residents at all nervous. The pleasures and delights of residence in a city like this cannot be appreciated until one returns to the hustle and bustle, the smoke and the noise of a great city. I'd like to live here a year."

Peculiar Celestial Phenomenon—For every evening during the past three weeks, local observers of the sky have noticed a peculiar cone of light early in the evening extending from the horizon to the zenith, in the southwestern sky. The base is along the horizon while the point is near the zenith. The cone has the appearance of illuminated vapor so thin that the stars shine through it although somewhat dimly. It is in the same portion of the sky as was the comet that disappeared recently after astronomers reported that it was splitting and going to pieces.

EX-GOVERNOR CURRY WILL LEAVE TOMORROW MORNING.

Bade Farewell to Many This Afternoon—Will Return Here in a Few Weeks.

Former Governor George Curry told a good many friends good-bye this afternoon for he will leave tomorrow morning on the Santa Fe Central for Tularosa, Otero county, where he will be engaged in business.

In shaking hands the governor's handsome diamond ring presented him by his official family was much admired. "I shall say so long rather than say good-bye," said the governor, smiling, "as I expect to be back here in a few weeks on social affairs and business."

The retiring governor looked in the best of health despite the many social duties which he had to perform during the past few days before and after the inauguration of his successor.

CALLS PREDICTIONS "HOT AIR CURRENTS."

Jesuit Astronomer in Spokane Says Halley's Comet Does Not Menace This Terrestrial Body.

Spokane, Wash., March 3.—"Forecasts by so-called scientists in various parts of the country that the gases in the tail of the Halley's comet will presently poison mankind or cause other calamities may properly be termed 'high pressure hot air currents.'"

Father Adams, S. J., professor of astronomy at Gonzaga College of Spokane, made the foregoing observation in referring to statements attributed to observers in California and elsewhere:

"Halley's comet has been sizzling around its ordained orbit century after century, just as its creator designed it to do," said Father Adams, adding: "Were there any devastating elements in the appendage of the visitor humanity would have been exterminated regularly every 76 years."

"It seems that such incidents in earthy affairs would naturally attract some attention. They might even have a slight tendency to affect the increase of population and check the progress of human events generally. Very little suspicion along this line is sufficient antidote for sensational predictions as to Halley's comet, even though they are made by alleged scientists."

Father Adams claims he has definitely located the comet, having seen it through a telescope the night of February 22, saying:

"The moon is so bright just now that it is difficult to catch the light from anything else, but the comet showed fairly well. There were little streaks out from the edges that I judge to be evidences of the tail. The comet may be visible to the naked eye early in March at the speed it is traveling, but not sooner. To locate it, take the line formed by the two lower stars of the constellation Orion and follow it north to a point just above the planet Saturn. On that line above and slightly west of Saturn the comet should be found, but not without at least four-inch glasses."

OYSTERS SUGGESTED TO BUST MEAT TRUST.

Spokane, Wash., March 3.—Fresh bivalves, produced at bargain prices on the natural oyster beds owned by the state of Washington, are suggested by State Senator Harry Rosen-hault of Spokane, as meat trust busters, and the solution of the problem of the most important item in the increasing cost of living. Mr. Rosenhault has figures showing that the state owns 15,713 acres of oyster lands on Puget Sound and the Pacific coast, and, he says, with proper management these could be made to supply sea food for millions of people at a price within reach of all. These lands have been cared for and protected by the state, he adds, but are used only for supplying oysters with which to plant the artificial beds owned by private concerns and individuals, who are thus in position to curtail the industry, limit production, combine together and fix prices at an artificially high figure. He believes it would be a far more important and practicable undertaking to re-oyster the oystered-off state lands for the present generation than to reforest the state's timber lands for those unborn.

THOMAS RHODES WANTS A WIFE.

Spokane, Wash., March 3.—Thomas Rhodes, living at Walkiwi Farm, Spokane, wants a wife. He will do the family cooking and baking and fetch his wages, ranging from $100 to $125 a month, home as regularly as the paymaster for Peter L. Peterson, a contractor, passes the pay envelope around on Saturday night. Rhodes recently sent a letter to Mrs. M. Fryrie, matron at the Woman's hotel here, seeking a wife from among the working girls boarding there, but all claimed prior engagements or disinclination to wed. Mrs. Fryrie has volunteered to assist Rhodes in his search for a helpmate and will forward letters from respectable women to the candidate for matrimony, also entertain the bride and bridegroom at a wedding supper. Rhodes is 37 years of age, dark complexioned and stands five feet six inches. He is built like an athlete, is fairly well educated and does not drink or smoke.
