NEW MEXICO NEEDS A THREE CENT FARE

Corporation Commission Ar- gues For Reduction In Appeal To People.

Santa Fe, N. M., Feb. 6.—Hugh Williams, of Deming, chairman of the State Corporation Commission, has taken the fight for a three-cent fare in New Mexico to the people of the state and has issued the following letter:

"To the people of New Mexico: The State Corporation Commission, believing it was serving the best interests of New Mexico citizenship, has been lending its efforts in behalf of securing for the traveling public of our state the same basis of passenger rates that is in force upon federal controlled railroads in every state of the union except Arizona, New Mexico and Nevada.

"This concession, as a factor to the total earnings of any railroad system, is negligible, yet to the local traveling public of the state it equals a reduction of 25 per cent."

Mr. Ziegler Goes East

Mr. Albert Ziegler left for eastern points last Saturday, to make purchases for the coming season's supply of Ladies' and Gent's wearing apparel. Mr. Ziegler will go over the markets carefully in order to secure the best and latest styles for spring and summer wear, and by buying in large quantities will be able to secure the best of goods at a figure which will enable the firm to offer the same to their patrons at reasonable prices. Mr. Ziegler expects to be in the Metropolis long enough to witness the home coming of President Wilson, which will add a good measure of novelty to the trip.

Master Mechanic Here

Master Mechanic J. F. Kimbell came in today and after attending to some matters in connection with his official position left again for El Paso on No. 1.

He Giveth His Beloved Sleep

For the past several weeks the local papers have contained numerous accounts of the passing of citizens of Carrizozo and community, in which old and young were the victims showing that the visitation of the enemy called Death is no respecter of persons, and contrary to the will of God, snatches from the loving home those who are cherished with the fondest of love and reverence.

The last sad occurrence of this nature was the death of Mrs. Hallie Francis Baird, wife of Mr. John Baird, one of our prominent stockmen of this community. Mrs. Baird's condition like many more victims of the recent plague, the worst wasn't experienced until a complication of pneumonia set in and which caused her to sink rapidly, and last Saturday she passed away.

The funeral services were conducted at the Methodist church with the Rev. Lwelling performing the last sad rites. The pastor read from the scriptures which terminated with the one great, glorious and realistic quotation: "IN HIM WE LIVE, MOVE, and HAVE OUR BEING," which was the true statement of Man's relationship to God. The singing rendered by a choir of ladies who were friends and neighbors of the deceased, was beautiful and effective. The Eastern Star, of which deceased was a member attended in a body, following the remains to their last resting place in the local cemetery.

Mrs. Baird was a consecrated, conscientious, Christian woman, who believed that happiness is only gained by the daily endeavor of seeking to make the lives of others happy. She was kind and considerate; a dutiful and loving wife and mother. Her friends could be numbered by the acquaintances she had made, all of whom tender to those who survive her their most heartfelt sympathy.

She was born at Pecos City, Texas, March 12th, 1891, and was married to Mr. John Baird at Fort Stanton, N. M., in the month of November 1909. The Bairds came to Carrizozo shortly after their marriage, where they have since resided.

She is survived by the husband and three children whose ages are five and eight years respectively. The relatives who attended the funeral were: Doyle Murray and family, Tinnie; Lee Hudgeons and wife, Silver City; W. H. Copeland and wife, Capitan; Mrs. A. V. Rogers, of Central, N. M., all of which with the sorrowing husband and children, have a full measure of public sympathy.

J. B. French III

Mr. J. B. French is confined to his home with an aggravated case of influenza, but his condition is improving.

Mrs. Cribb Surprised

When one expects two neighbors to come in and spend the afternoon and eighteen arrive instead, the surprise can be imagined. Mrs. R. T. Cribb was very pleasantly surprised in this manner Wednesday afternoon. It was a jolly company of friends and neighbors, and time flew swiftly to the accompaniment of music, social chatter, readings, "stunts" etc.

A delicious luncheon was served when the shadows began to lengthen, and not even the "hostess" hesitated to pronounce her party a great success. Those who enjoyed the afternoon with Mrs. Cribb were: Mesdames Tennis, Barber, McQuillen, Lemon, Lewelling, Forrest, Ferguson, Hickerson, Hooper, Ross, Barnhart, Laughrey, Tinnon, Stimmel, Fetter, Rogers, Saunders and Miss Sarah Spence.

The Zieglers Entertain

The Ziegler family entertained a circle of friends at Bridge last Wednesday afternoon. The decorations, which were elaborate, consisted of cut flowers and ferns daintily and artistically arranged, giving an air of cheerfulness to the surroundings which were intensely inviting.

An elegant two course luncheon was served after which the Mesdames Day and Shulda entertained the guests with choice piano selections. Mesdames Pitts and Allen held the highest score in the Bridge game.

The Campbells Entertain

Last Saturday evening, Feb. 1, Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Campbell entertained a few of their many friends at their apartments in the Wetmore Block. The table decorations were pink carnations and place cards were laid for the following guests: Mr. and Mrs. J. B. French, Mr. and Mrs. John Bell, Mr. and Mrs. Ira Wetmore. The Campbells will leave the first of next week for the coast, where they will spend the remainder of the winter season.

Card of Thanks

Words can not express our appreciation of kindness extended to us during the recent misfortune in the loss of our darling baby; every word of sympathy, every act of kindness, every song, every flower all of which bestowed with willing hands and loving hearts, we return our heartfelt thanks.

Short Talk With Hon. W. E.

Hon. W. E. Blanchard passed through here last Saturday enroute for Santa Fe to continue his work in the Legislature, he having been called away on some matters concerning the good and welfare of our district. He tells of harmonious action of the Republicans and assures us of some deserved reforms which will be enacted during the term.

Sweet Flower in Path Of Reaper's Scythe

Two weeks ago, we announced that the Pine family though afflicted with the influenza, was out of danger and on the road to recovery which was true with the exception of baby John, whose condition failed to improve with that of other members of the family, and finally a complication of what is called "double pneumonia" set in and with the best of medical aid and nursing, the little flower faded and at six o'clock last Saturday morning drooped and died.

Decomposition setting in so rapidly, necessitated an early burial, and the funeral services conducted by Rev. Lewelling were held the afternoon of the same day at the Pine home. Rev. Lewelling did not prepare a sermon for this scene of sadness, but he appropriately read passages of scripture which picture the receptiveness of the childish thought as an example of innocence and holiness. It would seem that on an occasion like this, a few of the many quotations of the words of the Great Master would be sufficient. "Suffer Little Children to come Unto Me," "Except Ye Become as a Little Child," "Of Such is The Kingdom of Heaven" which breathe to mortal man, the everlasting truth that only the pure in heart shall see God.

In keeping with the pureness of the ceremonies, a quartette of young ladies with Mrs. E. D. Boone at the piano, sang sweet childish songs which like the beautiful flowers that covered the little bier, should have raised the thought above the lifeless clay into the smile of God. The remains were conveyed to the local cemetery, and there interred. Sympathy was attracted to the family more intensely perhaps from the fact that only six short months ago little Harold passed away, but each fearful storm that passes over us; each path of thorns we tread; are but additional evidences of the frailty of what we call life, and are the means whereby our souls acquaint themselves with God.

Card of Thanks

We wish to acknowledge our sense of extreme gratefulness to the many kind friends who so willingly and graciously assisted us during our recent bereavement, and for the beautiful flowers as a last token of love and esteem, to all of which please accept our deepest gratitude.

J. B. Baird and Relatives.

Ladies of the Star

The regular meeting of the O. E. S. was held last Wednesday night at the lodge room over the Exchange Bank, with a good attendance. As usual, the order continues to increase its membership and the interest grows as time goes by.

FIFTY-FIVE THOUSAND WORKERS QUIT IN GENERAL STRIKE

Walkout as Scheduled Occurred Thursday; Biggest Strike in History of U. S.

The general strike, said to be the largest strike ever held in the United States, was called with between 25,000 and 30,000 metal trades workers who left shipyards and contract shops January 21 to enforce demands for $8, $7 and $6 a day for basic trades, helpers and laborers respectively.

Union labor leaders declared today that virtually 55,000 union members are on strike in Seattle. This number includes the 25,000 who walked out of the shipyards January 21.

Seattle's industrial and commercial life virtually will be paralyzed by the strike. The city's general affairs will be as usual.

Broken and Fractured

Conductor J. R. Greene, who runs between here and Duran, suffered a painful accident a few days ago, the result of which was a broken rib, and another fractured. Mr. Greene was coming into the yards at Corona, when suddenly the train gave a lurch, throwing him against the corner of a seat. On arriving at Carrizozo, an examination was made with the above stated results. The injury, while painful, has not prevented Mr. Greene from taking light exercise.

Mr. Bamberger Goes East

Mr. O. W. Bamberger left Friday for New York and other eastern points to make spring and summer purchases of goods while the markets are in a good condition, and the stock is full to select from. Our two leading business firms, the Carrizozo Trading Co., and Ziegler Bros., both have representatives now in the east looking after the interest of the trade.

This is no uncommon occurrence however, as these gentlemen make semi-annual trips to eastern markets, and by arriving early on the scene, are able to bring west a good heavy supply, giving their customers the benefit of what they save by their business transactions. Mr. Bamberger will be gone about three weeks on the trip, and the trade may be prepared to see the "Latest" very shortly.

High School Classes

The High School classes have organized and elected officers for the coming year, notice of which will appear later on in connection with items of interest of the school doings.

No one man can see all of an attack, which may extend over miles of ground, but during the three weeks I was in the trenches on the Gallipoli peninsula we made four grand attacks and many minor ones, so I know in a general way what they are like. Each wave is organized like the others. First come three lines of what you might call grenadiers, though they are not picked for size as the old king's grenadiers used to be. They are deployed in skirmish formation, which means that every man is three yards from the next. They were armed only with grenades, but you can take it from me, that is enough! Behind them come two lines, also in skirmish formation, and armed with machine guns and grenade rifles. The first men on the left carry machine guns, then come three rifle grenadiers, and then another machine gun and so on down the length of the line. After these come two lines of riflemen with fixed bayonets.

Then come the trench runners, or moppers-up, as we call them. They were some gang, believe me. Imagine a team of rugby players spread out in two lines—only with hundreds of men on the team instead of eleven, and each man a husky, capable of handling a baby grand piano single-handed. These fellows were armed with everything you could think of, and a whole lot more that you could not dream about in a nightmare. It used to remind me of a trial I saw in New York once, where the police had raided a yeggmen's flop and had all their weapons in the courtroom as exhibits.

The moppers-up were heeled with sticks, clubs, shillelaha, black-jacks, two-handed cleavers, axes, trench knives, poniards, up-to-date tomahawks, brass knuckles, slung shots—anything that was ever invented for crashing a man with. I guess, except firearms. These knock-down, drag-out artists follow the riflemen very closely. Their job was to take care of all the Turks who could not escape and would not surrender.

There are lots of men in any army who will not surrender, but I think probably there were more Turks of that gameness than men in most other armies. I have heard that it is a part of their religion that a man, if he dies fighting, goes to a very specially fancy heaven, with plenty to eat and smoke. And I suppose if he surrenders they believe he will be put in the black gang, stoking for eternity down below. It was awfully hot at the Dardanelles and I guess the Turks did not want it any hotter, for very few of them ever surrendered, and the trench cleaners had a lot to do. Their job is really important, for it is dangerous to have groups of the enemy alive and kicking around in their trenches after you have passed. Almost every prisoner we took was wounded.

The one thing I do not like to have people ask me is, "How does it feel to kill a man?" and I think the other boys feel the same way about it. It is not a thing you like to talk about or think about either. But this time, at "V" beach, when we got past the first and second Turk trenches and were at work on the third, I do not mind saying that I was glad whenever I slipped my bayonet into a Turk and more glad when I saw another one coming. I guess I saw red all right. Each time I thought, "Maybe you are the one who did poor old Murray." And I could see Murray as he looked when they took him down from the storehouse wall. Then I would stick another one.

The others from the Cassard were red-hot, too, and they went at the Turks in great style. There was nothing to complain about in the way they fought, but I wished that we had had a few more boys from the Foreign Legion with us. I think we would have gone clear on through to Constantinople.

But the Turks were not as bad as Fritz. They were just as good or better as fighters, and a whole lot whiter. Often, when we were frying in the trenches and not a drop of water was to be had, something would land on the ground near us and there would be a water bottle, full. Sometimes they almost bombarded us with bottles. Then, too, they would not fire on the Red Cross, as the Germans do; they would hold their fire many times when we were out picking up our wounded. Several times they dragged our wounded as close as they could to the barbed wire that we might find them easier.

After Murray died I got to thinking a lot more than I used to, and though I did not have any hunch exactly, still

I felt as though I might get it, too, which was something I had never thought much about before. I used to think about my grandmother, too, when I had time, and about Brown. I used to wonder what Brown was doing and wish we were together. But I could remember my grandmother smiling, and that helped some. I guess I was lonely, to tell the truth. I did not know the other garbies very well, and the only one left that I was really very friendly with got his soon afterward, though not as bad as Murray. And then there was no one that I was really chummy with. That would not have bothered me at all before Murray died.

The other lad I spoke of as having been chummy with was Philippe Pierre. He was about eighteen and came from Bordeaux. He was a very cheerful fellow and he and Murray and I used to be together a lot. He felt almost as bad about Murray as I did, and you could see that it changed him a great deal, too. But he was still cheerful most of the time.

CHAPTER XIII.

Limsa, Anzac and Pollus.

One night, while we were expecting an attack, the word was passed down the line to have the wire cutters ready and to use bayonets only for the first part of the attack, for we were to try and take the first enemy trench by surprise. The first trench was only about eighty yards away. Our big guns opened up and at zero we climbed out and followed the curtain of fire too closely. It seemed to me.

But the barrage stopped too soon, as it does sometimes, and there were plenty of Turks left. We were half way across when they saw us, and they began banging away at us very hard. They pounded at us as we came on until we were given the order to retire, almost as we were on them—what was left of us.

As we turned and started back the Turks rushed out to counter-attack us, the first of them busy with bombs. Then I tripped over something and rolled around a while and then saw it was Philippe Pierre. His left leg was dangling, cloth and flesh and all shot away and the leg hanging to the rest of him by a shred. Two or three of our men who were on their way back to our trenches tripped over me as I tried to get up, and then a shell exploded near by and I thought I had got it sure, but it was only the rocks thrown up by the explosion.

Finally I was able to stand up. So I slung my rifle over one shoulder and got Philippe Pierre up on the other, with his body from the waist up hanging over my back, so that I could hold his wounded leg on, and started back. There was only one or two of our men left between the trenches. Our machine guns were at it hard and the Turks were firing and bombing at full speed.

I had not gone more than two or three paces when I came across another of our men, wounded in several places and groaning away at a great rate. Philippe Pierre was not saying a word, but the other chap did enough for the two of them. One wounded man was all I could manage, with my rifle and pack, over the rough ground and the barbed wire I had to go through. So I told this fellow, whose name I could not remember—I never did know him very well—that I would come back for him, and went on. I almost fell several times, but managed to get through safely and rolled over our parapet with Philippe Pierre. They started the lad back in a stretcher right away. When I saw him again he gave me a little box as a souvenir, but I have lost it.

The Turks had not got very far with their counter-attack, because we were able to get our barrage going in time to check them. But they were still out in front of their trenches when I started back after the other garby. I was not exactly afraid as I crawled along searching for the other man, but I was very thirsty and nervous for fear our barrage would begin again or the machine guns cut loose. After what seemed a long time I came upon a wounded man, but he was not the one I was after. I thought about "a bird in the hand," etc., and was just starting to pick this chap up when a shell burst almost on us and knocked me two or three feet away. It is a wonder it did not kill both of us, but neither of us was hurt. I thought the fire would get heavier then, so I dragged the other chap into one of two holes made by the shell. Some pieces of the shell had stuck into the dirt in the hole and they were still hot. Also, there was a sort of gas there that hung around for several minutes, but it was not very bad.

The man began talking to me, and he said it was an honor to lie on the field of battle with a leg shot off and dead men piled all about you, and some not dead but groaning. He told me I would soon be able to hear the groaning, though I had not said I minded it, or anything about it. Then he said again what an honor it was, and asked if I had a drink for him. I had not had any water all day, and I told him so, but he kept on asking for it all the same. Some of the Turkish bombers must have sneaked up pretty close to our lines, for when I looked out of the hole toward our lines, and a shell burst near them, I could see a Turk coming toward us. We played dead then, but I had my bayonet ready for him in case he had seen us and decided to come up to the hole. Evidently he had not, for when he got near the hole he steered to the side and went around.

The other garby was cheerful when he was not asking for water, but you could see he was going fast. So we sat there in the hole and he died. Shortly afterward the fire slackened a little and I got out and started toward our lines. But I remembered about the other wounded man I had passed when I was carrying Philippe Pierre, so I began hunting for him, and after a long time I found him. He was still alive. His chest was all smashed in and he was badly cut up around the neck and shoulders. I picked him up and started back, but ran into some barbed wire and had to go around. I was pretty tired by this time and awfully thirsty, and I thought if I did not rest a little bit I could never make it. I was so tired and nervous that I did not care much whether I did get back or not, and the wounded garby was groaning all the time.

So when I thought the shells were coming pretty thick again I got into a shell hole and it was the same one I had left not long before. The dead garby was there just as I had left him.

The wounded one was bleeding all over, and my clothes were just soaked with blood from the three men, but most of all from him. There was some of my own blood on me, too, for when I was knocked down by the shell my nose bled and kept bleeding for a long time, but, of course, that was nothing compared to the bleeding of the others.

The worst of all was that he kept groaning for water, and it made me thirstier than I had been, even. But there was not a drop of water anywhere and I knew there was no use searching any bodies for flasks. So we just had a stick it out. Pretty soon the wounded man quit groaning and was quiet, and I knew he was going to die too. It made me mad to think that I had not been of any use in carrying these two men around, but if I had gone on with either of them it would have been just the same—they would have died and probably I would have got it, too. When I figured it out this way I quit worrying about it, only I wished the fire would let up.

So the other man died, and there were two of them in the hole. I read the numbers on their identification disks when shells burst near enough so that I could see them, and after a while got back to our lines and rolled in. I could not remember the numbers or the names by that time, but a working party got them, along with others, so it was all right.

My clothes were a mess, as I have said, and I was so tired I thought I could sleep for a week, but I could not stand it in my clothes any longer. It was absolutely against regulations, but I took off all my clothes—the blood had soaked into the skin—and wrapped myself in nothing but air and went right to sleep. I did not sleep very well, but woke up every once in a while and thought I was in the hole again.

During the night they brought up water, but I was asleep and did not know it. They did not wake me, but two men saved by share, though usually in a case like that it was everybody for himself and let the last man go dry. You could not blame them, either, so I thought it was pretty decent of these two to save my snare for me. I believe they must have had a hard time keeping the others off of it, to say nothing of themselves, for there really was not more than enough for one good drink all around. It tasted better than anything I have ever drunk. Go dry for 24 hours in the hottest weather you can find, do a night's work like that, and come to in the morning with a tin cup full of muddy water being handed to you, and you will know what I mean.

At Gaba Tape there were steep little hills with quarries in between them, and most of the prisoners we took were caught in the quarries. We found lots of dead Turks under piles of rock, where our guns had battered the walls of the quarries down on them.

We were fighting about this part of the country one time when we saw three motor trucks disappear over the side of a hill going across country. The detachment from the Cassard was sent over on the run and we came upon the Turks from those trucks and several others just after they had got out and were starting ahead on foot. We captured that whole bunch—I do not know how many in all. They were reinforcements on their way to a part of their line that we were battering very hard, and by capturing them we helped the Anzacs a great deal, for they were able to get through for a big gain.

We held that position, though they rained shells on us so hard all that day and night that we thought they were placing a barrage for a raid, and stood to arms until almost noon the next day. But our guns gave back shell for shell, and pounded the Turkish trenches and broke shrapnel over them until they had all they could do to stay in them.

Finally, our guns placed shell after shell on the enemy's communication trenches, and they could neither bring up reinforcements nor retire. So we went over and cleaned them out and took the trench. But then our guns had to stop because we were in range, and the Turks brought up reinforcements from other parts of the line and we were driven back after holding their trench all afternoon. It was about fifty-fifty, though, for when they reinforced one part of the line some of our troops would break through in another part.

That night there was a terrible rain-storm. I guess it was really a cloudburst. We had all the water we wanted then, and more, too. A great many men and mules were drowned, both of our troops and the Turkish. Trenches were washed in and most of the works ruined. There were several Turkish bodies washed into our trench, and two mules came over together, though whether they were Turkish or French or British I do not know.

I Picked Him Up and Started Back.

A few days after the rain stopped I was going along the road to the docks at "V" beach when I saw some examples of the freshness of shells. There was a long string of mules going back to the trenches with water and supplies of various kinds. We drew up to one side to let them pass. Two or three mules away from us was an old-timer with only one ear, and that very gray, loaded to the gunwales with bags of water. He had had his troubles, that old boy, but they were just about over, for there was a flash and the next instant you could not see a thing left of Old Missouri. He just vanished. But two of the water bags were not even touched, and another one had only a little hole in it. There they lay on the ground, just as though you had taken the mule out from under them. The mules next him, fore and aft, were knocked down by the concussion but unharmed; but the third mule behind had one ear cut to shreds, and the man behind him was badly shot up and stunned.

A little farther on a shell had struck the road and plowed a furrow two or three feet wide, and just as straight as an arrow for three or four yards; it then turned off at almost a right angle and continued for a yard or two more before it burst and made a big hole. That Turk gunner must have put a lot of English on that shell when he fired it. He got somebody's number with that shot, too, and the lad paid pretty high, for there was blood around the hole, not quite dry when we got to it.

MUST PROVIDE FOOD

Duty Devolving on Farmers of This Continent.

Western Canada Well Prepared to Meet the Needs of the Old World—
"The Earth Is a Machine Which Yields Almost Gratuitous Service to Every Application of Intellect"— Emerson.

Speaking with one of the commissioners appointed to make a survey of the food situation in the battle-torn countries of Europe the writer was told that the depletion and shortage of food was far greater than anybody had expected. With the investigation, which at that time had merely started, much had been brought to light that had only been surmised. Herds of live stock were completely wiped out, fields that had been prolific yielders of grain, roots and vegetables were terraced and hummocked by bombs and shells, many of them still lying unexploded and dangerous. Until this land can be gone over and cleaned nothing in the way of cultivation can be carried on, and even where that is done the work of leveling and getting under cultivation will take a long time.

Much more devolves upon the farmer on this side of the Atlantic than was at first supposed. Herds of live stock will have to be replenished, and this will take years; the provisioning of the people in the meantime is the task the farmers here will be asked to undertake. Producing countries will be taxed to their utmost to meet this demand; all that can be provided will be needed. This need will continue for some time, and during this period prices will be high. The opinion of those who have given the question most careful thought and study is that food scarcity will be greater than ever before. The Allies will have to feed Germany, Austria, Turkey and Russia and this in addition to the requirements of European neutrals for increased supplies now that there is no submarine menace.

To the Canadian and American farmer this means a demand for his grain fully as great as at any time in the past. Wheat will be needed, meat will be required. The slogan "don't stop saving food" is as necessary today as ever. The purpose of this article is to direct attention to the fact that hundreds of thousands of acres of land in Western Canada are still uncultivated, and this land is capable of producing enough to supply all needs. On its rich grasses are easily raised—and cheaply too—the cattle that will be sought; in its soil lies the nutriment that makes easy the production of the grain that will be needed, and in both the farmer will be assured of a good profit on his investment. The land can be purchased at low prices, on easy terms, and with the abundance of returns that it will give, it does not mean a matter of speculation. The facts as set out are known, and certainly are guaranteed.

These facts, the low cost of the land, and its great productivity, combined with the admirable marketing and transport facilities at the disposal of the farmer make farming in Western Canada an attractive proposition.—Advertisement.

An Attack of Influenza Often Leaves Kidneys in Weakened Condition

Doctors in all parts of the country have been kept busy with the epidemic of influenza which has visited so many homes. The symptoms of this disease are very distressing and leave the system in a run down condition. Almost every victim complains of lame back and urinary troubles which should not be neglected, as these danger signals often lead to dangerous kidney troubles. Druggists report a large sale on Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root which so many people say soon heals and strengthens the kidneys after an attack of grip. Swamp-Root, being an herbal compound, has a gentle healing effect on the kidneys, which is almost immediately noticed in most cases by those who try it. Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., offer to send a sample size bottle of Swamp-Root, on receipt of ten cents, to every sufferer who requests it. A trial will convince any one who may be in need of it. Regular medium and large size bottles, for sale at all druggists. Be sure to mention this paper.—Adv.

TO LIFT THE BLOCKADE

UNIVERSAL CONFERENCE OF ALL NATIONS AFTER PEACE
TERMS SIGNED.

WILL GIVE ALL A VOICE

CONTROL OF CAPTURED COL-
ONIES UNDER WILSON PLAN ACCEPTED.

Western Newspaper Union News Service

Paris, Jan. 31.—The war council at a meeting considered economic and financial questions and the subject of raw materials. The sentiment was favorable to the relaxation of the blockade so far as it concerned south-eastern Europe, including the Balkans and Austria-Hungary.

Paris.—A universal conference of all states desiring to participate in a league of nations will be the final act in the formation of the league. This conference would be held after the peace conference had approved the scheme now drafted by representatives of the great allied and associated powers.

The universal conference will pass upon the admission of each state into the league, and enemy states will be accepted on the same footing as others. The enemy states, however, M. Bourgeois said, must give proof that they no longer foster lust of conquest and that they will "repay fully for the devastation and ruin they have caused."

The announcement was made in authoritative quarters that the great colonial powers, notably Great Britain and France, had accepted in principle the American proposal put forward by President Wilson for the league of nations exercising supervision over the German colonies and allotting their administration to mandatory powers.

Import Embargo On.

Washington.—In clamping an import embargo on more than 300 commodities, the British have declared open commercial warfare on this country, many government officials and Congress members held. The new embargo has forced the fight, which has been smoldering for days, to a point where definite governmental trade policies must be outlined. It was believed by many members of Congress. They assert that the latest British action should be met with drastic reciprocal measures. Shipping men regarded the new ban as a British lever to pry loose all British-bound cargo for transportation in British-owned ships. It has been known for days that British buyers have been coming to the United States in flocks.

They have been buying commodities in which England already had an import embargo, as well as articles contained in the list made public. American manufacturers who sought to sell direct to English wholesalers without dealing through agents on this side have been very effectually stopped by numerous subterfuges, reports received here show. The British buyers have contracted heavily and every ton of goods bought has been taken on the express condition that it be shipped in British-owned vessels.

Fire at Los Angeles.

Los Angeles, Cal.—A fire in the wholesale district here caused an estimated damage of $125,000. The burned-over area covered two city blocks.

Siege at Wilhelmshaven.

Copenhagen, Jan. 30.—When the Spartans at Cuxhaven and Bremerhaven surrendered, according to advices reaching here, a state of siege was decided on at Wilhelmshaven. The advices say that when the Spartans declared Wilhelmshaven an independent republic the people called a general strike. The authorities closed the postal lines, the telegraph and railway service, and a mass meeting was held, at which the arrest of the workmen and soldiers' delegates was demanded. After the Spartans had raided the state bank, from which they took 2,900,000 marks, street fighting occurred, which resulted in the unconditional surrender of the Spartans.

Williams of Cleveland Appointed.

Cleveland, Ohio.—William L. Williams of Cleveland has been appointed assistant director, division of operation, of the United States Shipping Board Fleet Corporation, it was announced here.

Weekly Health Talks A Word About the Kidneys

BY DOCTOR WATSON.

People are easily frightened when they think something is the matter with their lungs or heart, and well they may be; but few people understand the dangers of diseased kidneys. These organs have a duty of vital importance to perform, and if they are diseased, there is no telling how or where the symptoms may appear. The kidneys are filters, and when they are healthy they remove the poisons from the blood and purify it. When the kidneys are diseased, the poisons are spread everywhere, and one of these poisons is uric acid. The uric acid is carried all through the system and deposited in various places, in the form of urate salts—in the feet, ankles, wrists and back—often forming bags under the eyes. Sometimes the resulting trouble is called rheumatism, lumbago, sciatica and backache. Finally, come stone in the bladder, diabetes and Bright's disease.

Dr. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., in recent years, discovered that a certain combination of remedies would dissolve uric acid (urate salts) in the system. He found this combination to be harmless, so that he made it up in tablets, of double strength, and called them Anuric Tablets. They dissolve uric acid in the human system as hot coffee dissolves sugar. If you have uric acid troubles, don't delay in taking Anuric Tablets, which can be secured in the drug stores. You can write Dr. Pierce, too, and he will tell you what to eat and how to live so that more uric acid will not form in your system. Dr. Pierce will not charge for this advice.

Confined to Her Bed Days at a Time

and Lasting Cure.

Mrs. Herrman Ruschke, 177 Fourth St., Long Island City, N. Y., says: "The pains in my back were almost unbearable. I always felt tired and listless and found it almost impossible to attend to my household. Gradually the pains increased—day by day my suffering became worse. Often flashes of light and black specks would appear before my eyes and dizzy spells would come over me. My hands and feet were swollen and my head pained me so at times I thought it would split. My kidneys annoyed me, too. I became dependent. Sometimes I would have to take to my bed for three or four days at a time. I had the good fortune to hear of Doan's Kidney Pills, so I began using them and was soon back in perfect health again. My cure has stood the test of time, so I am only too glad to recommend Doan's to other kidney sufferers."

Mrs. Ruschke gave the above statement in April, 1916, and on April 4, 1917, she added: "I gladly repeat all I have said about Doan's Kidney Pills, for they have cured me of kidney complaint."

Republican Legislation

(Special Correspondence)

Santa Fe, N. M., Feb. 3.—The necessary delay in the hearings on the budget due to the lamentable death of the youngest son of the Governor and Mrs. Larrazolo means that the questions of taxation and revenue on which the leaders of both house and senate have been working hard for the past two weeks will not come before the legislature until about the 13th of this month.

Meanwhile, although a great deal has not been gotten out of the way, substantial progress has been made. The governor and the members have been on conference with leaders from all over the state. The results have been satisfactory as it was witnessed in the confident statement of H. O. Bursom of Socorro that "we will meet all demands of the republican program for the progressive school and road legislation, we will find money to pay for them and will LOWER the tax levy."

That, in a nutshell, is precisely what this republican legislature is going to do. It will provide better and wider educational facilities, it will go into the largest road building program in the next two years that the state has ever seen and when it is all completed, it will be found that the state tax levy has actually been reduced. On such achievement as that the republican party will feel that it has kept its pledge of an economic state government, made in the last election.

The plans are not yet ready to be given out in their entirety. They include, however, a tax on gasoline which will go directly to the road fund and relieve the state tax budget from that burden, half of the revenue coming from non-reductive use of gas. line by autoists. Other special excise taxes, which will distribute the burden of the state's necessities fairly among the interests able to pay them, are to be imposed.

The building program for the state institutions will be taken up separately from the general taxation scheme and this will enable the state to carry out the fine progressive and constructive program of Gov. Larrazolo without going to the expenditure of two years ago and so permit the reduction of the state wide tax rate.

Legislation of the past week which is to be considered this week includes the reforms and drastic penalties provided for in the bills of both the New Mexico Horse and Cattle Growers' Association and the first discussion of the Sedillo primary bill. The speaker is in earnest in his advocacy of the measure but it is not apparent now that the measure will be passed, unless in a modified form which will make county primaries optional, as will be proposed in a bill by Isidoro Armijo of Don Ana county.

The republicans will undoubtedly report out from committee favorably this week the resolution endorsing National Woman Suffrage and pass it in accordance with the platform pledge of the Republican party.

Governor's Son

Pneumonia Victim

Luis J. M. Larrazolo, died early Thursday morning, Jan. 30th, at the Military Hospital Institute at Roswell of influenza pneumonia following a short illness. The young man was 18 years old and had enrolled as a student there only a few weeks ago.

Mrs. Larrazolo left here Wednesday, called by the serious illness of her son, and did not reach there until after his death. A brother of the young man was with him when he died.

The remains reached Albuquerque Friday night where Governor Larrazolo met his grief-stricken wife and his other son going from there to Las Vegas, the family home, where the funeral is to be held. Gov. and Mrs. Larrazolo and family have the deep sympathy of the people of the state.

The Legislature adjourned Friday morning until Tuesday morning out of respect to Gov. Larrazolo and his family after both houses had appointed committees to attend the funeral. Many state officials will also attend. —State Record.

YANKS PERFORM AMAZING FEAT

Fort Monroe, Va.—Lying at anchor in Hampton roads off Old Point Comfort is the United States mining cruiser squadron whose commanders and crews performed what is now termed by naval authorities the world over as the "greatest naval offensive of the war."

The feat which these men achieved was the mining of the entrance to the North sea from Scotland to the coast of Norway, a distance of 240 miles. It was an undertaking unprecedented in naval history.

It was America's solution of the German submarine problem, a solution so thorough and effective that it rendered the German submarines almost impotent.

The British previously had mined the English channel, but the enemy submarines came out from the bases at Ostend and Zeebrugge and into the North sea, there to work their havoc. Invite Yankee Aid.

The British naval authorities, realizing late in 1917 that the North sea would have to be blocked, invited the American naval authorities to attempt to lay the barrier. The American navy, having just at that time completed with success experiments on mining apparatus far more dangerous, delicate, and powerful than any heretofore used, took up the task.

For that purpose the mining cruiser squadron was organized in December, 1917. This squadron is made up of ten vessels and is under the command of Capt. R. R. Belknap, U. S. N. One of the officers told a graphic but brief story of the desperately dangerous job to which he and his squadron mates were assigned.

"Navy men now call it the greatest offensive of the war," he said. "It solved the submarine problem and it might have been the agency for the destruction of the German navy sooner or later had not the war ended when it did. We mined almost directly across from Bergen on the coast of Norway to the coast of Scotland. The length of the mine field was 240 miles, and we made it 25 miles wide. It was so complete that no ship could pass either over or under it without absolute destruction.

"We have a record of about twenty submarines that we know were destroyed, and often in running parallel with the field we came upon the bodies of dead German sailors, so probably many more than we actually figured on were destroyed.

"Our men, in fact the entire fleet, faced a constant danger of being blown off the face of the sea, for we carried on the ships 2,000,000 pounds of T. N. T., which is the most powerful explosive known.

"Despite all this, we kept at the task, and at the end of about five months had completed it. We stayed constantly on the inside of the field, that is, on the side nearest Germany. We left only a narrow passageway near Pentland Firth between the Orkney islands and Scotland for our own passage out.

"Our most dangerous task strangely was not the laying of the mines, as dangerous as that was. The most dangerous one came after the mine field had been completed. It was an attempt to draw the German fleet out into the North sea where we were to engage it, so that the British fleet could get in behind the enemy to destroy it by gunfire or drive it into the mine field.

"On October 28 last the British government made it known to the German naval authorities through its agents in Germany that we were engaged in mining operations. We were ordered to lay about as though busy at the task, to act as a decoy for the German fleet. We did it, but in doing it we faced positive destruction ourselves.

"I want to hand it to those new navy lads. There were about 4,500 of them and 250 officers on the ships, and while we waited through that fearful day which we never expected for a moment to see the end of alive, they went about their duties, laughed, sang, and stood to their guns as only American lads can do such things.

"Well, all that day we worked along calmly, watching and waiting for the sight of the Germans that meant certain death.

"The Germans never came out after us, and so here I am."

BIG GUNS BROKE GERMANS' HEART

New York.—That the capture of the great fortress of Laon was due to American naval guns mounted on flat cars and manned by naval gunners and that the navy men would have blasted the German frontier to pieces if the war had continued, was the assertion of naval railway battery men who arrived here recently on the transport Henderson.

Mangin Gives U. S. Credit. The appearance of the big naval guns of the 14-inch type on the west front was one of the most unpleasant surprises the Germans got throughout the whole war, they declared. There were only five of them in action, but they were handled with such rapidity that the bewildered Teutons believed there were 30 of them in France.

General Mangin, the famous French commander in that sector, himself credits Rear Admiral Plunkett and his naval gunners with the taking of Laon. The big 14-inch guns pounded the fortress to pieces and hurled giant shells on railroad lines communicating with the city. When the guns got into action they were fired every three minutes, a speed which the Germans considered impossible in handling such monsters. It was this which gave rise to the belief of the Germans that there were 30 instead of five of the guns in action.

There were six more of the giant cannon on the way to France when the fighting ended. They were of the same bore, but were far more mobile, as the five in action could only be used from a pit when they had to be fired at an angle of more than 15 degrees in long-range bombardments.

"Gee, if the war hadn't quit we would have shown these Germans something about handling big guns," sighed John Mason of 1034 Mason avenue, Chicago, "but we showed them plenty as it was."

Three of the five guns, the naval gunners said, were in the American sector in the Argonne and the other two were with the French. One was at Soissons. They had a range slightly in excess of 35 miles. Each shell fired weighed 1,400 pounds and it took 470 pounds of T. N. T. to send it on its path of destruction back of the German lines. When the shell hit and exploded it opened a crater in the earth in which a large-sized American railway box car could be buried.

On the American sector the three big guns were mounted within 200 yards of one another and were always fired in rapid succession. The concussion was terrific.

The gunners told a story of a French soldier who happened to be standing too near the giant cannon when they were fired. When the first one was fired the concussion hurled him violently to the earth. He staggered to his feet just as the second one let go, and down he went again. Up he climbed again, only to be dashed to the ground for the third time as the third gun roared.

He got up, pale but excited, crying in French what in American would mean:

"This will end the war. This will finish the Germans."

HONORED BY ALL

Praise Accorded American Soldiers Is Universal.

To Their Bravery and Chivalry on the Field of Battle Has Been Added Fine Generosity to an Unscrupulous Enemy.

"Let another man praise thee and not thine own mouth; a stranger and not thine own lips," says an ancient proverb; which is easier to obey than it has been sometimes, for the air is resonant with adulation for this country and its people—praises for its benevolence, energy, idealism, army and navy.

We have exulted in the praise bestowed upon the boys in khaki for their chivalry toward women, their gentleness to little children, their high morale amid great temptations, and their courage in battle. But these virtues were all exhibited to friends and allies.

Now comes, however, a testimony to their behavior toward their enemies, which ought, we think, to give us even a deeper joy.

"Español praise," says a dispatch from Amsterdam, "was given the American troops of occupation by a representative of the Berlin foreign ministry on his return from Treves."

"The judgment of all Germans, such as shopkeepers, hotel keepers and men on the street, is that the behavior of the Americans is blameless."

"Blameless!" "Sans peur et sans reproche!"

We pity the man or woman who can read that testimony without choking up a little bit. One ought not to forget that these young Americans are among a people whom they have learned to hate. If there has been one thing above all others upon which they universally agreed, it was loathing and horror for German frightfulness. In all their letters home they wrote of their irrepressible dread that the war might be stopped in some way before they had taken vengeance upon the Huns for their bestial conduct toward wounded men and helpless women and children.

And now they are moving across the country of their hated foes as conquerors! On every highway and at every street corner they see the men who have perpetrated these nameless horrors. Those men are at their mercy. And yet, upon the testimony of these brutes themselves, "their behavior is blameless."

We read that they march through these German cities grim and silent; their faces white and their jaws set; looking neither to the right hand nor to the left; self-contained and self-controlled. These are the men, remember, who went "over the top" in many a bloody battle, slaying "We won't come back until it's over—over there."

"Blameless!" "Sans peur et sans reproche!" What a miracle is such young manhood! How strangely its contemplation moves the hearts. What pride we take in thinking that these blameless youths belong to us! They are our boys—yours and mine!

If the generation of lads now growing up in America is not fired with a spirit of emulation by the conduct of these soldiers of the American expeditionary forces, we shall feel like disowning them. There will be but little excuse for rowdiness, inefficiency, intemperance and cowardice for the boys whose fathers and big brothers have extorted such admiration not only from friends but foes.—Clifford Enquirer.

New Finish for Concrete Floors.

A new polish for concrete floors where a hard surface and a dustless one is desired consists of 95 per cent of iron dust or iron flour. It is added to the dry cement in the proportion of 15 to 25 pounds to each 100 pounds, and one part of the mixture is used with two parts of sand. This preparation is applied as a top coat to a thickness of one-half to one inch. It forms a hard and durable floor, claimed to be waterproof and not slippery. This composition is also made use of where it is desired to make new concrete units with old.

Family Prayers.

Nurse—James, did you know the angels have sent you another little brother?

James—Oh, bother; just as I don't have enough folks to pray for every night as it is.

No Economy.

"The Germans consider themselves great political economists."

"Don't see why they should, after the way they wasted money on propaganda."

THE POTATO SKINS.

"Well, what are you doing?" asked a potato skin of another potato skin.

"I am waiting to be used," said the first potato skin.

"Good," said the second potato skin. "That's fine. Perfectly fine. So am I."

"Some of our brothers and cousins and uncles and aunts have gone to be eaten with the rest of the potatoes," said the first potato skin.

"How is that?" asked the second potato skin.

"They have all been cooked together—the potatoes have been cooked in their jackets, and they are going to be eaten together, too."

"Fine," said the second potato skin. "I suppose you know just how we are going to be fixed, don't you?"

"I know we're to be fixed for eating in some sort of a way, with all of these other potato skins around here," said the first potato skin, as it tried to move an end of itself in the direction of the other potato skins which were lying on the kitchen table.

"But I don't know how we're going to be fixed," it added after a moment. "If you do know, I'll be glad to hear."

"I do know," said the second potato skin. "And I heard the mistress of the house telling the cook that a great, great man made a study of us last summer and decided that we were very nourishing."

"There used to be a horribly unfair time when skins were not considered any good at all. But that day has passed. The potato skin is receiving fair treatment and justice at last."

"What is justice?" asked the first potato skin.

"Justice," said the second potato skin, "is being just and to be just is to be fair. Now do you understand?"

"I do," said the first potato skin. "Please go on with your story, and forgive me for the interruption. I don't know much about manners. I haven't been up in the world enough. The ground is no place for manners, you know; at least I didn't think so. And then our chief callers and friends were the potato buns. They're not overly mannerly."

"I will forgive you," said the second potato skin. "For I don't know that I am mannerly myself."

"Anyway, as I was telling you, a great professor made a study of us and he decided we were not poisonous, as some people have tried to make out, but that we were healthful and good, and that for people who didn't care much for the taste of the skins, we could be ground very fine and cooked with cream."

"Fine, fine," said the first potato skin. "To be cooked with cream sounds very nice indeed."

"That is the way we're going to be used," said the second potato skin. "And isn't it wonderful to think professors study us and our good points?"

"It does sound mighty fine," said the first potato skin. "Somehow one doesn't think of the two together—professors and potatoes—but it is nice to think that we are high enough up to be the companions of professors."

"Ah," said the second potato skin, "we potatoes have been appreciated of late. We have no longer been thought cheap food. We've come into our own."

"Just what do you mean by that?" asked the first potato skin.

"I mean we are receiving all the attention and affection which is due us."

"What affection are we receiving?" asked the first potato skin.

"We're receiving the affection of people—for if they didn't like us, they wouldn't eat us—and to eat us—well, that is affection, to my mind."

"Have you a mind?" asked the first potato skin.

"Of course not," said the second potato skin. "But I can talk as though I had. I have heard creatures, who had mighty little, talk as though they had a lot, so why can't I talk as if I had some when I have none?"

Captures Forty Huns. Kills Two—Given V. C.

Seattle.—Private Walter L. Rayfield of this city, who enlisted with a Canadian regiment soon after war broke out, today is wearing a Victoria Cross. He obtained this coveted award by rushing ahead of his company into a trench occupied by Germans. He bayoneted two and captured ten. Soon after he plunged into a group of 30 Germans and captured them all. Then he dashed through heavy machine-gun fire and rescued a wounded comrade.

Cow Has Quadruplets.

SMUGGLING BY AIR

Laredo, Tex.—It is the firm conviction of Mexican customs officials on the lower Rio Grande border that systematic smuggling by means of powerful airplanes is being conducted between that country and the United States. The American authorities on this side of the international boundary are not yet convinced that contraband goods are being carried in this manner from one country to the other, although they freely admit that it is possible if not very probable that this is being done.

If evasion of the export and import duties by this means is not already being carried on it is only a question of time when the airplane will be brought into service for that purpose. It is predicted by custom officials here and at other places on the Mexican border.

It is with considerable circumstantial detail that the story is told of the aerial traffic by professional smugglers. Jose Longoria, a Mexican river guard stationed at San Ignacio, about sixty miles below Laredo, made a report to his superior officer about three weeks ago that while on duty late at night he saw moving lights pass high above him and heard the whirr of a motor. The object was headed north and came from some point to the south in Mexico. Similar reports were made by other Mexicans who asserted that they saw the strange aerial machine go back and forward across the Rio Grande on several different nights. Up to this time no corroboration of the stories told by the Mexicans have come from American river guards.

It is recommended by the custom authorities of both Mexico and the United States who are on duty along the Rio Grande that airplane control service be established on both sides of the river at the earliest possible time.

Adversity is the parent of virtue.
