MURDER IN FIRST DEGREE.

JURY RENDERS THIS VERDICT AGAINST CARRY VANSICKLE, FOR THE MURDER OF ANDERSON.

This brings us near the close of the third week of District Court, and although it is grinding slow it is grinding sure. The case of the State against Carry VanSickle for killing Anderson was called Tuesday, Wednesday morning everything was ready for the testimony. All day was consumed taking testimony of various witnesses. By closing time both sides had finished. Thursday morning each side was given three hours to plead their case. McElroy opened for the prosecution, followed by Swan for the defense. Then Davidson for the prosecution, and Underwood for the defence. The closing argument was given by District Attorney Remley. The case went to the jury at six o'clock Thursday evening and about 10 o'clock P. M. the jury notified the court they had come to a decision. Court was then convened, and the jury gave a verdict as above stated. At the time of going to press, the Judge had not passed sentence.

The community west of town organized a Union Sunday School a week ago last Sunday, at the Elliot place on the edge of the bad lands, which they gave the name of Fairview. The people seem to be taking an interest in this school as the attendance last Sunday was thirty four. A. J. Pain was elected Superintendent, Dan Winnans assistant superintendent and Miss Jessie Jack, secretary and treasurer. The school wishes to extend a vote of thanks to those who attended last Sunday from San Jon.

SOWING AND REAPING

(By Rev. B. Q. Masseege)

Be not deceived: God is not mocked for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap. Gal. 6: 7.

Reaping what one sows is a natural consequence: the thoughtful farmer decides he wishes to reap a certain harvest, he proceeds accordingly to select seed of that type to sow. At the proper time he sows the seed he has chosen. At times the prospects are very discouraging but the prudent farmer with holds not the seed but sows them to reap just what he has sown and many times that amount. There is no promise of an abundant harvest literally speaking, but it is made very plain that we reap just what we sow. This is true spiritually.

From a spiritual standpoint we have the promise that we shall reap at harvest time, and that we shall reap what we sow. By the lives we live we are sowing some kind of seed. If our lives are not what they should be we are sure to reap things that will not be pleasant. If we sow card parties we reap the Gambler. From the select dance grow the public Ball, from the Ball room many of our young men and young women drift away into unworthy and shameful lives. I have in mind a bright young man who was raised in a christian home, his mother had unthoughtedly encouraged him to entertain his friends playing auters and FORTY TWO, little thinking what the worst would be. when last seen by a friend this young man was sitting at the GAMBLING TABLE. His life a wreck caused by the seed sown unthoughtedly at home.

How careful we should be in the selection of means of entertaining our children, knowing that the things we teach them in childhood determine the type of men and women our children become in later years. We should be very careful of the lives we live that the influence we have over other people may be as good seed sown, for some one is looking to each of us, and their lives will be to some extent influenced by our own.

At times we think there is little hope of our efforts being effective in leading our lost friends to Christ but this should not be. We remember the promise of him who says, "They that sow in tears shall reap in joy". Again "He that goeth forth and weepeth bearing PRECIOUS SEED, shall doubtless come again with rejoicing BRINGING HIS SHEAVES with him". "Whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap".

"BOUND FOR WESTERN CANADA"

A PRAIRIE SCHOONER SLOGAN, THAT STARTED FROM NEBRASKA.

Four horses abreast attached to a red painted prairie schooner, with windows and a protruding stovepipe, with the words, "Bound for Canada," on the schooner's side, was the object of considerable interest as it passed on the way northward from Nebraska a short time ago through the towns in Nebraska, South and North Dakota.

Although his beginning may be small, it may safely be said that Mr. Jensen, like thousands of others who have begun life in western Canada on no more and with probably much less, will prosper.

HATED TO PART WITH HER

Loving Father Naturally Distracted at Giving Up Daughter But It Had to Be.

"It ain't everybody I'd trust my little gal to," said old Farmer Skinner to the love-lorn swain who had become enamored of Miss Sally Skinner, and wished to carry her from the loving care and shelter of the home nest.

The "little gal," who was five feet 11 inches high in her bare feet, as she was at that moment, hid her happy, blushing face on the dear, fond old father's shoulder and wept happy tears as he said to Sally's deeply moved and sympathetic young lover: "You must take great care of my wee birdling, Jack; recollect that she's been raised kind o' tender like."

"Two acres a day is all I've asked her to plow, and an acre of corn a day is all she's used to hoeing. She kin do light work, such as making rail fences and digging post-holes and burning brush, and all that, but ain't used to regular farm work, and you mustn't ask too much of her. It's hard for her old dad to give his little sunshine up. He'll have to split his own firewood and dig his own taters now, but go, birdie, and be happy."

Half and Half.

Hon. Horace E. Stanton, apropos of the mismanagement of a railroad that had gone into a receiver's hands, said:

"The calm and bland excuses offered for their mismanagement by the road's various heads remind me of Smith."

"Smith, last Sabbath, put in a strenuous day cleaning up his garden for the spring planting."

"But Jones, his next door neighbor, tackled him indignantly in the smoker the following morning and said:

"Look here, Smith, do you think I want all your tin cans and bones and old shoes thrown over into my garden?"

"You haven't got 'em all, old man. You've only got half," said Smith calmly. "Brown, on the other side, got the other half."

Anxious Moments.

WANTED TO KNOW The Truth About Grape-Nuts Food.

It doesn't matter so much what you hear about a thing, it's what you know that counts. And correct knowledge is most likely to come from personal experience.

"About a year ago," writes a N. Y. man, "I was bothered by indigestion, especially during the forenoon. I tried several remedies without any permanent improvement."

"My breakfast usually consisted of oatmeal, steak or chops, bread, coffee and some fruit."

"Hearing so much about Grape-Nuts, I concluded to give it a trial and find out if all I had heard of it was true."

"So I began with Grape-Nuts and cream, soft boiled eggs, toast, a cup of Postum and some fruit. Before the end of the first week I was rid of the acidity of the stomach and felt much relieved."

"By the end of the second week all traces of indigestion had disappeared and I was in first rate health once more. Before beginning this course of diet, I never had any appetite for lunch, but now I can enjoy the meal at noon time."

NICHOLAS, CZAR OF ALL RUSSIA, PLANS A GIGANTIC MONEY TRUST

State is the Richest in Europe, Although People are the Poorest—Nation Owns the Railroads and Telegraphs and One-Sixth of All the Land—Russian State Bank Has Very Large Bank Reserve.

St. Petersburg.—Nicholas II hopes to restore his lost authority by establishing control over all the financial resources of his vast empire. The aim of his present policy and of the policy of his court and ministers, is to create a money trust with political ends. This fact has long been suspected by Russian economists, who ascribe to such motives the vast growth in Russia's revenue and gold reserve, and the increasing grip which the state is getting on private industry.

The state money trust scheme is the creation of the state comptroller, M. Kharitonoff. M. Kharitonoff is one of the ablest of the more reactionary high officials. To the public he is best known by the intentionally lax manner in which he exercises his functions of controlling state expenditure, and by the pliancy with which he allows money voted for a specific purpose to be spent on different aims.

"Money," said Kharitonoff in his memorandum, "is the chief power in the modern state. Your majesty's autocracy was threatened in the past mainly by the rise of a wealthy and independent bourgeoisie existing without favor of the state. The ideal should be rather a relatively poor people and a rich state, and everything should be done to attain this aim."

This program for a state money trust was approved of, continues Kharitonoff, by Count Witte. When minister of finance in 1900, Witte got the czar to consent to a law which forbade the zemstvos, or provincial administrative council, to increase taxation more than a limited amount annually. Witte's aim was thus to divert money, which might be taken in the form of taxes, into the central treasury. The more starved the zemstvos the fatter the imperial budget. In many other respects Witte concentrated money in the hands of the state, and did everything to prevent concentration in private or in local government hands.

As a result of Witte's policy and of the policy outlined by Kharitonoff, Russia, which is the poorest country in Europe, is the richest state. The economist, Afanasieff, shows that the average annual peasant income is only $15.60; and peasants of this kind make up four-fifths of the population. Although Russia has 160,000,000 population, her total wealth, including land at present sale prices, is only $35,000,000,000; while England with a fourth of that population is worth $65,000,000,000, and Germany with a third population is worth $75,000,000,000. The national income of Russia is less than half that of England or France. Yet of all European states Russia has the biggest annual budget. Her present budget is over one billion five hundred million dollars; whereas the British is $950,000,000, and the French and and by Timasheff, the minister of trade and industry. The government claims that it has a right to declare at what prices stocks and bonds shall be sold." As long as stocks go up the government is content, but it threatens trouble when they go down. The assistant finance minister lately summoned the chiefs of the exchange and announced that "the bourse has, in government opinion, fallen sufficiently and it must not be allowed to fall any more." He threatened disciplinary measures against the brokers if the fall continued. Timasheff is at present busy on a plan of state intervention by means of purchases whenever stocks fall unpleasantly low.

By artificially supporting stocks, Russia aims at the protection of her own state property. For the same reason she aims at controlling the prices of products. She has already fixed the prices of raw spirits and sugar, and she has the same policy, in a veiled way, toward the great metallurgical works. Ex-President Zakrewski of the South Russian Metallurgical union complains that the government's aim is a state steel trust, in which the present ironmasters will remain de jure as owners, but, de facto, merely as subordinate employes of the state. The annual trade congresses nowadays merely German each about nine hundred million dollars. Also Russia's budget increases at an unexampled rate. In 1903 it was only $990,000,000; so that there was a rise of over fifty per cent in nine years.

Russia remains the poorest country in Europe precisely because the state is the richest. The sucking dry of the provinces by St. Petersburg checks all normal development. The expenditure per head on local government and productive local enterprises is only a seventeenth of that of England. Money is not to be had because it is all in the capital, and because St. Petersburg jealously checks any expenditure for other aims than those of the central government.

The Russian State bank has now a bigger gold reserve than that of the Banque de France; and a much bigger reserve than the reserve of the Bank of England and the German Reichsbank put together. In April, 1913, her gold reserve was $750,000,000; whereas the French figure was $525,000,000, the German $193,000,000 and the English $151,000,000. The gold reserves of other state banks have stood still or gone back of late; the Russian reserve alone has rapidly increased. Eight years ago a stir was made when Premier Kokovtzeff, then finance minister, allowed a newspaper man to see his glittering hoard of $400,000,000. That such a big sum existed skeptics had refused to believe. Today this sum is nearly doubled. This gold reserve has the function of backing Russia's issue of credit notes. But the reserve is sufficient for 37 per cent more notes than have been issued against it. Witte declares that if there is a great war Russia will have recourse to forced exchange; and this will be able to use at least two-thirds of the gold hoard.

Russia aims at getting as much as possible of the national substance into state hands. What cannot be acquired in this way is to be controlled. The St. Petersburg stock exchange has of late been put entirely under the government thumb. The germ of this policy dates from the days of Finance Minister Vyschnegradski and his successor, Witte, who said: "This view is endorsed by Premier Kokovtzeff, register the orders of finance ministers. This is effected through the government representatives who always attend congresses. Formerly the representatives had the duty of watching and reporting. Now they aspire to lead the congresses. They decide what is to be and what is not to be said, and they practically dictate all price agreements. The law gives the government representatives no power to do this. But the ironmasters depend for three-fourths of their custom upon state railroad and state ship-building orders and they are helpless to resist. M. Zakrewski says that state control has already gone so far that the state might as well purchase the ironworks outright.

In regard to private land, a similar policy is being pursued. Land is a potential economic rival of state finance; and, therefore, land must be brought into subjection. M. Krivoscheine, director of the department of agriculture, preaches this doctrine. As the law does not countenance it, he goes behind the law. This was recently done in regard to two Scheremetieff properties in Moscow and Voronezh provinces. The properties are worth $3,000,000. The owner proposed to sell them to a land speculator named Yelkin. Yelkin has a two-year-old dispute with the state in regard to taxation of his present estates. The government lost the case and the result is a loss of some millions of rubles from taxes of other estates. Krivoscheine came to the conclusion that Yelkin must not be allowed to buy more land. He therefore got Nicholas II to issue a private prohibition to Scheremetieff against selling his estates and the prohibition, though not lawful, had to be obeyed.

Krivoscheine declares that the political hegemony of the state depends upon the concentration of land by individuals. In the end, he says, the Russian state will claim final control over all land. The land and the profits from it will be left in private hands, but the disposal of it by sale will be subject to the control of the state. "Only the state is fit to handle the vast accumulations of capital and the vastly increased land values which are the fruits of modern economic development." If this theory is carried out the Russian state will have in its hands either as absolute owner or as controller everything worth having. It already owns outright 30,000 miles of state railroads; all telegraphs; the vodka monopoly; and lands which cover a sixth of the area of the empire, and are bigger than any single European state. The stock exchange, the iron and sugar industries, and, finally, the privately owned lands are already under government control. This process is bound to go further.

Duma Member Volkoff, who as a "cadet" is a strong opponent of government policy, says that the new money autocracy will be bad for private individuals. A state which, instead of unchallenged political power, has unchallenged money power, will be able to disregard popular wishes in a way impossible in the past. The control of a country by money power, of which much is now being heard in regard to South America, will soon be in Russia an accomplished fact. "By its unparalleled accumulations of wealth and its unlimited power to hurt or help individual interests, the Russian state has a far stronger weapon than even its 1,500,000 soldiers and its system of police espionage."

Howard left for Mexico, she alleged, to avoid prosecution, but returned later and influenced her to obtain an annulment of the marriage. After he had obtained a divorce from his legal wife Howard refused to keep his promise to marry her, Miss Armfield alleged. She says Howard owns property valued at $3,000,000.

FRUIT LAXATIVE FOR SICK CHILD

"California Syrup of Figs" can't harm tender stomach, liver and bowels.

Every mother realizes, after giving her children "California Syrup of Figs" that this is their ideal laxative, because they love its pleasant taste and it thoroughly cleanses the tender little stomach, liver and bowels without griping.

When cross, irritable, feverish or breath is bad, stomach sour, look at the tongue, mother! If coated, give a teaspoonful of this harmless "fruit laxative," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. When its little system is full of cold, throat sore, has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, indigestion, colic—remember, a good "inside cleaning" should always be the first treatment given.

Millions of mothers keep "California Syrup of Figs" handy; they know a teaspoonful today saves a sick child tomorrow. Ask at the store for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups printed on the bottle. Adv.

WAS A PERSONAL SUBJECT

Good Reasons Why Mr. Higgins Was Not at All Sorry the Conversation Was Interrupted.

Mrs. Hiram Higgins was speaking her mind to Hiram in a manner that was emphasis long drawn out. From the room where they were Hiram could see the front porch and when he observed the parson come in and pause at the steps within ear-shot, he told his wife of the visitor, and went out to meet him.

"Ah, good morning, Brother Higgins," said the parson in pleasant greeting. "I hope I didn't interrupt a family conversation. Didn't I hear your wife talking?"

"That's all right, parson. Come right in," said Mr. Higgins, glad enough.

"I hope I didn't disturb her before she finished her subject," said the parson, taking a chair.

"I'm glad you did, parson," said Mr. Higgins, cheerfully.

"What was the subject?" laughed the parson. "Woman suffrage?"

"No, sir; it was me."

Whereupon both of them began to laugh, but suddenly quit as Mrs. Higgins came out smiling.

PAST GOING FOR TWO YEARS

And This Lady Thinks She Would Have Become Helpless, but for Cardui, The Woman's Tonic.

Waldron, Ark.—Miss Gertrude Houston, of this place, authorizes the following for publication: "I want to tell all ladies who suffer from any kind of womanly trouble, among them, weakness, headache, backache, hurting in sides, pains every month, nervousness, etc., to try Cardui, the woman's tonic. Get it at once, as it is what you need. After you use one bottle, you will never regret your start."

I was just about past going for over two years, with the above ailments, and had it not been for Cardui, I would have been helpless, no doubt.

I took one bottle, and my health began to improve, and before the bottle was gone, I was almost well. Now, my health is perfectly all right.

"So, lady friends, if you want a medicine that will do you real good, take Cardui, the woman's tonic."

If you are weak and ailing, think what it would mean to recover as rapidly and surely as did Miss Houston. In the past 50 years, this strength-building remedy has been used by more than a million ladies, who found it of untold value in relieving womanly pains and ailments.

If you are a woman, therefore, try Cardui. You will appreciate its tonic, building effect on the womanly constitution. Begin today.

THINGS ABOUT GUINEA FOWL

Birds Make Excellent Substitute for Game and Many Big Hotels Serve Them as Pheasants.

(By MRS. A. JOSEPH.) The demand for guinea fowls grows stronger every year and is increasing as people become acquainted with the good qualities of their flesh. Those who have learned to appreciate the flavor of the flesh of a plump guinea are not slow to express surprise at the fact that the excellent qualities of this bird have not been more widely recognized.

It is true that the cook book fails to refer to them at all and yet there is not the least question but that they are superior eating to either the duck or the goose.

The young fowl are best broiled, while the older birds may be cooked by any recipe devised for the cooking of chickens, and in any case the result is far more palatable.

The flesh of the guinea is rather dark, but is finely grained, possessing a gamey flavor. For this reason the fowl makes an excellent substitute for game and many hotels in the larger cities serve it for pheasant. The eggs are also much relished on account of their rich flavor.

Every family in the country should keep a few guineas, if for no other purpose than for a "watch" for the poultry flock. In fact, in some places in this state they are called the watch-dogs of the poultry yard.

The high, shrill notes which they possess will quickly put to flight any hawk or crow mischief bent; while after night no prowling animal or person can approach a house where guineas roost without arousing their discordant cries of alarm. Their senses of smell and hearing seem to be very keen.

The time required for hatching guinea eggs is twenty-eight days. The guinea is naturally a wild bird possessing a strong instinct to wander. For this reason it is better to raise the young birds under hens as they are more careful of their young than the guinea hens, and a great deal of trouble to get them to behave like domestic fowls will be avoided and if a few chicks can be placed with the brood when first taken off, so much the better; the guineas will then be inclined to stay along with the other birds and will not be nearly so wild as if kept alone.

OATS WILL PRESERVE EGGS

When Carefully Packed in Barrel and Placed in Some Cool Corner They Will Keep Sweet.

(By MRS. D. RYMER.) Every year I pack a great many eggs and they keep from two to three months, and even longer in perfect condition. I have tried "water glass" and other things, but find that oats will keep eggs longer than anything else.

I pack them in half barrels and use plenty of oats. I first place a layer of oats about three inches on the bottom, and then a layer of eggs, never allowing one to touch the other, or the sides of the barrel. And then follow with another layer of oats until within about six inches from the top, when I fill up the barrel with oats. If the barrel containing the eggs is placed in a cool corner of the cellar or in the attic, or any other dry place, they will keep perfectly sweet, but if allowed to become damp they will spoil.

I have packed eggs in October in this way leaving them in the barn until nearly Christmas and then bringing them to the house. I have used these eggs as late as the following April and have sold them—always stating exactly what they were—and never had a complaint.

Buy a Good Incubator.

It may cost a few dollars more to buy a good incubator to start with, but the saving in eggs which are apt to be spoiled in a poor machine will more than make up the difference in the cost during the first season's run, not to mention the time and work wasted.

Eggs for Hatching. Eggs from old hens should not be used for hatching purposes. Select eggs from young birds of good type, color, form and breed characteristics. Special attention must be given to selection if the breed is to be improved.

GIRLS! GIRLS! TRY IT, BEAUTIFY YOUR HAIR

Make It Thick, Glossy, Wavy, Luxuriant and Remove Dandruff—Real Surprise for You.

Your hair becomes light, wavy, fluffy, abundant and appears as soft, lustrous and beautiful as a young girl's after a "Danderine hair cleanse." Just try this—moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. This will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt and excessive oil and in just a few moments you have doubled the beauty of your hair.

Besides beautifying the hair at once, Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff; cleanses, purifies and invigorates the scalp, forever stopping itching and falling hair.

But what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use when you will actually see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new, hair—growing all over the scalp. If you care for pretty, soft hair and lots of it, surely get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any store and just try it. Adv.

ECZEMA ITCHED AND BURNED

Falmouth, Ky.—"Two years ago I was troubled with skin and scalp troubles. I would have pimples that would break out and form sores on my face and head, with terrible itching. The eczema on my face and head itched and burned and when I scratched it, it made sores and I was very disfigured for the time being. My head became so sore I could not touch it with a comb; it became a mass of sores. My hair fell out gradually."

"I was afflicted about a year before I used Cuticura Soap and Ointment and after using them three weeks I was getting better and in less than three months, after using eight cakes of Cuticura Soap and five boxes of Cuticura Ointment, I was completely cured of eczema." IF BACK HURTS CLEAN KIDNEYS WITH SALTS

Drink Lots of Water and Stop Eating Meat for a While if the Bladder Bothers You.

Meat forms uric acid which excites and overworks the kidneys in their efforts to filter it from the system. Regular eaters of meat must flush the kidneys occasionally. You must relieve them like you relieve your bowels; removing all the acids, waste and poison, else you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment; the channels often get irritated, obliging you to get up two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids and flush off the body's urinous waste get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine and bladder disorders disappear. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys and stop bladder irritation. Jad Salts is inexpensive; harmless and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then, thus avoiding serious kidney and bladder diseases.—Adv.

MERELY A LAW OF NATURE

What at First Looks Like a Peculiarity of Running Water is Easy of Explanation.

Have you ever noticed, when the water has almost all run out of the bathtub, how the light particles on the surface seem then to race out much faster than the water? As a matter of fact, they are traveling faster than most of the water; but no faster than that on the surface.

The reason is not far to seek. Running water, even in a river, goes at different rates; but fastest on the top surface right in the middle of the stream. Friction with the sides and bottom makes the water there go more slowly. So the light particles on top of the water in the bathtub, rush ahead at a good rate.

This peculiarity in rivers is utilized by boatmen when they have to go up a swift stream; they always paddle up near the bank. And at curves, as the water swings outward, they take the inside bank; for there the water is almost still. On the other hand, in coming down, the very center of the stream is chosen.—Sunday Magazine.

Believed in Daylight Saving.

The late King Edward practiced daylight saving on lines similar to those proposed in the daylight saving parliamentary bill. For many years at Sandringham he caused his clocks to be advanced 30 minutes during the summer months, and in the last two years of his life he caused the same rule to be observed at Windsor and Balmoral, and said that he was favorably disposed towards the bill.

ENDS DYSPESIA, INDIGESTION, GAS

"Pape's Diapepsin" cures sick, sour stomachs in five minutes—Time It!

"Really does" put bad stomachs in order—"really does" overcome indigestion, dyspepsia, gas, heartburn and sourness in five minutes—that—just that—makes Pape's Diapepsin the largest selling stomach regulator in the world. If what you eat ferments into stubborn lumps, you belch gas and eructate sour, undigested food and acid; head is dizzy and aches; breath foul; tongue coated; your insides filled with bile and indigestible waste, remember the moment "Pape's Diapepsin" comes in contact with the stomach all such distress vanishes. It's truly astonishing—almost marvelous, and the joy is its harmlessness.

A large fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin will give you a hundred dollars' worth of satisfaction.

It's worth its weight in gold to men and women who can't get their stomachs regulated. It belongs in your home—should always be kept handy in case of a sick, sour, upset stomach during the day or at night. It's the quickest, surest and most harmless stomach doctor in the world.—Adv.

A FREE BOOK

That Teaches the People How to Avoid Catching Cold.

The thirteenth edition of the "Till of Life" is now ready for distribution. Beginning on page three of this popular work on medicine, is an article stating in plain language how any one can avoid catching cold.

The article was written by a doctor. It was written by a doctor eighty-four years old, who is a hale and hearty man. It is his boast, founded upon fact, that he does not catch cold. He explains in detail in this book. Every family ought to have a copy of it. Sent free by the Peruna Co., Columbus, Ohio.

Mr. O. Fred Linstrum, 1923 University Ave., St. Paul, Minn., writes: "I contracted a severe cold several years ago. Through the use of Peruna I fully recovered. I have never had any trouble since."

Mrs. Henry Martin, La Motte, Iowa, says: "I have found Peruna to be a great remedy for coughs and colds of children. A dose at bedtime will relieve them all night."—Adv.

A Message To Women

Those of Middle Age Especially.

When you have found no remedy for the horrors that oppress you during change of life, when through the long hours of the day it seems as though your back would break, when your head aches constantly, you are nervous, depressed and suffer from those dreadful bearing down pains, don't forget that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the safest and surest remedy, and has carried hundreds of women safely through this critical period.

Read what these three women say:

From Mrs. Hornung, Buffalo, N. Y.

BUFFALO, N. Y.—"I am writing to let you know how much your medicine has done for me. I failed terribly during the last winter and summer and every one remarked about my appearance. I suffered from a female trouble and always had pains in my back, no appetite and at times was very weak."

"I was visiting at a friend's house one day and she thought I needed Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took it and have gained eight pounds, have a good appetite and am feeling better every day. Everybody is asking me what I am doing and I recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. You may publish this letter if you wish and I hope others who have the same complaint will see it and get health from your medicine as I did."—Mrs. A. HORNUNG, 91 Stanton St., Buffalo, N. Y.

Was A Blessing To This Woman.

So. RICHMOND, VA.—"I was troubled with a bearing down pain and a female weakness and could not stand long on my feet. Of all the medicines I took nothing helped me like Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I am now regular and am getting along fine. I cannot praise the Compound too much. It has been a blessing to me and I hope it will be to other women."—Mrs. D. TYLER, 23 West Clopton St., South Richmond, Va.

Pains in Side, Could Hardly Stand.

LODI, Wis.—"I was in a bad condition, suffering from a female trouble, and I had such pains in my sides I could hardly move. Before I had taken the whole of one bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I felt better, and now I am well and can do a good day's work. I tell everybody what your medicine has done for me."—Mrs. JOHN THOMPSON, Lodi, Wisconsin.

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No one sick with woman's ailments does justice to herself if she does not try this famous medicine made from roots and herbs, it has restored so many suffering women to health.

It seems from the development of circumstances in the Mexican situation, during the last few days, that Uncle Sam has been directing his demand for an apology to the wrong "Big Injun". No sooner does he start to chastise Huerta, for his misconduct to these United States, than Carranza appears as the central figure in the War Dance and instructed Uncle Sam's Warriors to evacuate Mexican territory and that at once. Our advice to Uncle Sam would be to stick to it, like a 'Pitch plaster to a pine plank, or a bob-tailed pullet to a rickety hen roost'.
