NOTE TO GERMANY

UNITED STATES ACCEPTS KAISER'S INDEMNITY PROPOSAL.

Germany Asked to Explain Interpretation of Existing Treaty on Naval Warfare.

Western Newspaper Union News Service.

Washington, Aug. 18.—The American reply to Germany's last note on the sinking of the American sailing ship Wm. P. Frye, made public here by the State Department, accepts the proposal that damages be fixed by a mixed commission and that the disputed treaty provisions be submitted to arbitration at the Hague, but calls on Germany for a statement meanwhile as to whether she intends to conduct her future naval operations in accordance with her interpretation of the Prussian-American treaty, or that of the United States. The note is regarded as putting the noted case well on the way to settlement. It is addressed by Secretary Lansing to Ambassador Gerard at Berlin. The note, in part, follows:

"You are instructed to present the following note to the German minister of foreign affairs:

"Under instructions from my government I have the honor to inform your excellency in reply to your note of July 30 in regard to the claim for reparation for the sinking of the Wm. P. Frye that the government of the United States learns with regret that the objections urged by it against the submission of this case to the prize court for decision have not commended themselves to the imperial German government and it equally regrets that the reasons presented by the imperial German government for submitting this case to the prize court have failed to remove the objections of the government of the United States to the adoption of that course.

"As this disagreement has been reached after the full presentation of the views of both governments in our previous correspondence a further exchange of views on the questions in dispute would doubtless be unprofitable and the government of the United States therefore welcomes your excellency's suggestion that some other way should be found for settling this case.

"The two methods of settlement proposed as alternative suggestions in your excellency's note have been given careful consideration and it is believed that if they may be adopted they will furnish a satisfactory basis for the solution of the question at issue.

"The government of the United States has already expressed its desire that the question of the amount of indemnity to be paid by the imperial German government under its admitted liability for the losses of the owners and captain on account of the destruction of the Frye should be settled by diplomatic negotiation and it entirely concurs with the suggestion of the imperial German government that the simplest way would be to agree, as proposed in your note, that each of the two governments designate an expert and the two experts jointly fix the amount of indemnity for the vessel and any American property which may have been sunk with her, to be paid by the imperial German government when ascertained as stated in your note. It is assumed that the arrangement will include some provision for calling in an umpire in case the experts fail to agree."

Home Talent Play A Success
The home talent play entitled "Her Friend the Enemy" which was to have been played the second night of the picnic, was brought to a sudden stop when the players were just getting ready and many had secured their seats, by a sudden driving wind and rainstorm that drove the people from the open air dome into the movie building which was covered and at the same time was putting on a five reel feature entitled "In the Days of the Thunder Heard", so those who went in were not so disappointed in their evening's enjoyment, as it was intensely interesting all the way through. The wind blew quite strong for a short time and the rain fell in sheets, but did not seem to detract much of the interest shown in the thrilling western drama. But the next night the home talent players attempted the open air dome again and that time with success, even the low threatening clouds looked ominous. The crowd gathered early, most of them attending the movie while waiting for the appointed hour, then as they poured out of that building into the air dome every available seat seemed to be filled, although the seating capacity must have been near 500.
It was what might be termed an all star play so well did each one act their part.
Zebedia Jinks, (Ed Wise) who appeared first on the program acted the part of the old Southern gentleman to perfection, the daughter Addie Jinks, (Miss Maude Magness) and Cousin Virginia Burton (Miss Della Jobe) had a leading role to play, one of facial expression as that of a jealous girl and the other a haughty demagogue toward an unappreciated lover, which both did well and were interesting all the way through.
Jack Fernbrook (Jeff Hooker) a Northern soldier and lover of the southern girl, Virginia Burton, acted his part splendidly as a true lover, yet also true to his country.
Frank Flemming (Ham Bishop) rival of Jack Fernbrook, kept the audience in a state of expectancy as to his cunning schemes to get ahead of the former and try to win the hand of the girl, who also disliked his attentions, and frightened or threaten her into a marriage with himself.
But true to their southern mistresses, the two negro servants Lige Burton (Jack Magness) and Chloe Burton (Miss Ruby Holifield) would always come in just in time to save her any serious trouble and kept the audience amused at their comical sayings etc.
Colonel James Burton (Emory Yaden) acted with dignity his part, while Mrs. Burton (Miss Ethel Yaden), did her part well both in speech and manner, and her costume was befitting the occasion perfectly being that of an aged lady.
The son Berkly Burton (Herbert Holifield) also played his part well and was even on the alert when there was a duty to be performed. Taking it all the way through, the play was good and the young people are to be complimented on getting it up so well in so short a time, even to the painting of their side screens had to be done before hand, and many were heard to remark that it was as good if not better than anything Lovington has ever had in that line.
No vacant houses in Lovington and still people wanting to rent.
The Scott store has been bought and was moved to Plainview, N. M. Thursday so we learn.

Joe Addington of Portales has rented the Ed Ault house in the east part of town and will move here right away.

Kindel-Yaden
On last Tuesday evening August 24th, at the home of the groom's sister, Miss Sadie Kindel, Mr. Cecil Edward Kindel, and Miss Myrtle Evelyn Yaden were united in marriage.
The night was lovely with the bright silvery moon high overhead and a gentle breeze that, though it was not cold, had a tinge of coolness that made one think of the approach of early fall.
The guests were ushered into a room in a corner of which a table was loaded with beautiful flowers. Promptly at 8:30 o'clock after all guests had arrived the bride looking pure and serene in a dainty frock of white Crepe De Chene, and the bride-groom wearing the conventional suit of black, and appearing quite composed, walked in and stood before the floral corner where the nuptial vows were taken before Rev. W. M. Beauchamp, Methodist minister of this place.
The bride was a popular young lady of our little city having come here some three years ago from Elk City, Okla., and last year was one of the teachers in our school at this place.
The bride-groom also is well known having been a resident of Lovington for about four years formerly coming from near Mineral Wells, Texas, and has had a business interest in the printing office at this place for almost a year, and will continue for some time while he improves his place out of town.
After the ceremony, congratulations were in order and a general wit and humor conversation ensued, during which time a few nice presents were bestowed upon the happy couple.
Delicious ice cream and two kinds of cake were served as refreshments, and after an hour or so of enjoyment the bride and bride-groom took their departure under a shower of rice, old shoes, etc., with many wishes for a long and happy life.

Roswell Extends Invitation To Lovington
Roswell wants to repay the splendid hospitality of the Lovington people as shown at their big barbecue last week, and has extended a general invitation to Lovington and the plains people to attend the big Labor day celebration which will be held there Sept. 6. There will be something doing every minute and the Roswell business men and citizens are anxious to see a large delegation of Lovington people.
There will be a mammoth parade in the morning, two real base ball games, a Motorcycle race, a prize fight between John Connolly and Mike Baca of Santa Fe, who claims the state title at this weight. At night there will be a big ball and a dozen other attractions for the visitors.
These are all little side lines compared to the big free barbecue which will be held at noon. The committee in charge of this is preparing to feed thousands and they will have the necessary equipment and plenty of help so that there will be no delay. All the events will be pulled off within four squares of the business district so that there will be no long walks and everything will be done for the comfort of the visitors.
Claude Simpson, City Editor, The News.
Hurt By Cranking Auto
We learn that W. H. Brennan of Roswell, who is well known at Seminole, Texas, and also here, having had business interests at both places, had the misfortune to break his arm one day this week while cranking up his automobile. Also just having recovered from bruises sustained from his horse falling with him it seems that fate is dealing rather hard with him lately. However we hope that his injured arm will not give him extra trouble.
Not Enough Picnic
The people could not quite get over the picnic, so on last Monday morning another race was put on at the race track between the Walter McGonagill horse, and one from Artesia, and the Dow Woods horse "Lucky" and a horse called "Diamond Joe" from Post, Texas, the visitors winning in both races. And that night the town boys got together at the open air dome and put up a boxing that the boys say was worth the money if they did not charge admittance. And we suppose it was, for the cheering was so enthusiastic that it brought quite a number from their homes that had retired for the night, but just came out to see the fun.
Big Dance At Williams Ranch.
Quite a number of the Lovington young people enjoyed the big dance given at the Williams ranch about twenty-five miles south-west of here last Wednesday night.
It was said that a string band was procured for the occasion and that about 11:30 o'clock a full course supper was served, from a couple of roasted muttons and ten or fifteen fried chickens to fruits and cakes. So we leave our readers to imagine the rest. Those who reported the dance, said they all had a fine time.

ORDER HAD HIM "IN THE AIR"

Boatswain's Mate Considerably Muddled by Command That Was Entirely New to Him.

In all the naval services tradition is strong. As Chief Boatswain McCarthy, U. S. N., has shown in an article in "The Proceedings of the United States Naval Institute," the adherence to custom extends to the manner in which the boatswain's calls are varied for different occasions, and even, in the old navy, at least, it extended to the way in which the officers gave their orders.

The language used in passing words was the vernacular of the sailor rather than academic English, and the officer who did not know that usually got poor results from the boatswain's mate, who had his own ideas about passing the word, and got muddled in interpreting any unusual order.

On one occasion, the officer of the morning watch gave this order: "Boatswain's mate, scrub down with rapidity." This was a new one, and after causing the officer to repeat the order three times, the boatswain's mate became desperate. He grabbed a deck bucket, and forced it into the hand of the nearest apprentice, whom he started on his way with a push that sent the youngster reeling, and followed him with this shout:

"Go to the captain of the hold and ask him for a bucketful of it! I never heard of anything to scrub a deck with but sand and lime, and I don't know anything about these new 'sooty-moodies,' anyway."—Youth's Companion.

ECONOMICAL FEED FOR EWES

Circular issued by Missouri Experiment Station Gives Results Obtained With Rye and Grain.

The feeding of ewes suckling lambs is a factor which materially affects the profit derived from the production of spring lambs. A circular just issued by the agricultural experiment station at the University of Missouri reports the work done with ewes suckling lambs, fed on rye and blue grass pastures. Ewes were placed in four lots. In one lot ewes received grain on rye pasture. Those in another lot received only rye pasture. In a third lot the ewes were fed grain on blue grass pasture, while those in lot four received only blue grass pasture.

The grain for both ewes and lambs consisted of equal parts of crushed corn, oats, bran and rape. The results show that the feeding of grain to ewes on rye and blue grass pasture was not profitable, if the ewes were to be kept. If the ewes were to be marketed with the lambs, the feeding of grain would have been profitable, because the ewes which did not receive grain became very thin and were not in condition to sell on the market, while those receiving grain maintained about the same condition of flesh throughout the experiment.

There was little difference in the efficiency of rye and blue grass pastures for ewes suckling lambs. In cases where grain was fed, the ewes on blue grass had decidedly the advantage, while in the other two lots in which no grain was fed, the rye had the advantage. The difference in each case was small. Rye will come a little earlier in the spring than blue grass, but will not afford as good a pasture in June as blue grass, because the rye heads and the sheep do not like coarse, woody stems.

BEST FEEDER CATTLE TYPES

Steers Intended for Profitable Gains in Feed Lot Must Possess Good Beef Characteristics.

How to select steers that will make good gains and return substantial profits should be well known by the man who plans to market his crops as feed this winter.

Steers, if they are to make profitable gains in the feed lot, must have beef characteristics, a wide, strong back and a large heart girth.

They must have a strong frame and plenty of room for the vital organs.

Prize Cattle.

for an animal with a weak constitution cannot hold up through the feeding season.

A wide head and muzzle, which usually indicate good feeding qualities. Short legs, heavy hindquarters and arched ribs are essential in the feeding animal.

The skin should be reasonably thick, soft and covered by a heavy coat of hair. The animal should have a straight back and low-set appearance, due to the depth of body and short legs.

SAFE AND SURE FOR HORSES

Barbadoes Aloes, Four to Seven Drams, Makes Good Purgative—Castor Oil Is Uncertain.

In preparing a purge dose for a horse the medicine that is safest and surest is aloes; and only Barbadoes aloes should be used, not the Cape aloes. A dose will generally vary from four to seven drams. Lined oil is a safe purgative, but it is uncertain. The dose varies from a pound to a pound and a half.

Castor oil is both uncertain and unsafe as a horse remedy, though it is fine for man. Croton in the form of a meal, made into a ball with lined meal, is a good purge. Doses vary from a scruple to half a dram.

LIVE STOCK NOTES

Fatten the unprofitable ewes quickly and make crooked mutton. It is a fine change for the summer bill of fare.

Arrange the sheep pastures so the flock can be changed from one to the other—in this way keeping the bits right.

The last 200 pounds we can put on a young draft horse is the most profitable 200 pounds of meat we can produce on the farm.

No animal on the farm will respond to good treatment better than the colt. Breeding alone will not keep him from being a scrub.

If you are breeding for sale, see to it that you have horses that are in favor by the men of your locality. Breed up, never down.

The pleasure and satisfaction of breeding and handling good horses remains long after the cost of the foundation stock is forgotten.

DEFINITION OF DRY FARMING

Principal Things Are Water Conservation, Drought Resistant Crops and System of Rotation.

Dry farming simply means good farming. There is no place in the United States where crops are not reduced to some extent every year on account of an insufficient supply of water. The principal things then in dry farming are water conservation, the proper selection of drought resistant crops, and a wise system of crop rotation, large proportion of the land devoted to forage and feed crops, with a sufficient number of animals to consume all the cheap roughage produced on the farm.

In controlling the water supply the first thing to do is to get the water into the ground and then prevent percolation and evaporation. The soil will absorb water more rapidly and hold a greater quantity if it is properly tilled. Hence, fall plowing of the land, if it does not blow, is advisable. The plowing should be deep and thorough. Since organic matter will hold much more water than an equal volume of soil particles, the addition of vegetable matter is very important. After the water is in the soil much of the evaporation can be prevented by frequent and shallow cultivation. An endeavor should be made to keep the loose soil moist, but not a dust blanket, as it is frequently called.

Dry farming consists of: First, tilling so that the water will be absorbed by the soil; second, a good selection of drought resistant crops and the proper utilization of the crops. There have been several good bulletins published on this subject. Most of these bulletins can be secured free of charge by writing to the different stations mentioned below.

"DRY FARMING" IN THE WEST

Just What It Means When Practiced Under Semi-Arid Conditions—Congress Held at Denver.

The extent to which "dry farming" has become a part of our national agriculture is indicated by the preparations that are being made for the congress that is to be held in Denver, September 26 to October 10 next. Thirteen states outside of Colorado have already made direct or indirect appropriations, and seven other states are considering the matter favorably or have indicated their intention to make some kind of state display. These virtually include all of the states west of the Missouri river, together with Wisconsin, Missouri, Arkansas, Louisiana and Minnesota.

"Dry farming" consists essentially in the selection of crops suitable to semi-arid conditions with such methods of cultivation as will secure the most favorable results in production from the scanty rainfall. These special methods of farming, remarks the Pueblo (Colo.) Chieftain, have already added hundreds of thousands of acres to the productive area of the western states, and millions to the annual crop value. A much larger benefit is certain to be realized from this source in the future, and it is not surprising that the people of all the western states should be desirous of learning more about the principles of "dry farming" and their application under the various local conditions.

GET EDIBLE OIL FROM WEED

Hitherto Worthless Plant May Be Utilized for Food—It Is Also Valuable for Live Stock.

The discovery that oil from the devil's claws, a hitherto worthless weed, can be utilized for food may result in making it a valuable industrial product for the semiarid regions of Kansas, according to Prof. E. H. S. Bailey, the University of Kansas food chemist.

Laboratory investigations showed that this weed, now growing abundantly on the waste lands of western Kansas, Colorado, Texas and New Mexico, produces a seed from which an edible oil is extracted that may take the place of olive or cottonseed oil.

The press cake from the oil is also valuable for stock food, as it has a high protein value.

SURE CURE FOR MELON BUGS

Successful Market Gardener Gets Rid of Insects by Liberal Use of Bone Dust Around Plants.

(By C. M. SCHULZ.)

A very successful market gardener told me last fall that he had a sure cure for the little striped melon bugs. He said he had paid $10.00 for the secret and it had been worth $100.00 to him since. It was nothing more nor less than a liberal use of bone dust or bone meal around the plants. He says it will absolutely drive away the striped bugs when everything else has failed. I have not yet had a chance to try it myself, but it is possible that he is right. If so, it is a valuable idea. The bone dust will be a good thing for the plants, anyway, whether it drives away the bugs or not, for it is a rich fertilizer. It can be had from any dealer in fertilizers at a cost of probably $3.00 per hundred pounds.

Cause of Bad Habits.

Feather eating and feather pulling are caused by confining the fowls and leaving them idle. To prevent their getting the vice or to cure them when they have acquired the habit, give them plenty of green food and meat scraps and give them plenty of exercise by making them work for their food. Keep them busy. Rub the fowls that have been plucked with carbo lated vaseline.

Kills Weeds.

Clean cultivation kills weeds.

Sacrifice for Art.

One cold, wet and windy night he came upon a negro shivering in the doorway of an Atlanta store. Wondering what the darky could be doing standing on a cold, wet night in such a place, the proprietor of the shop said:

"Jim, what are you doing here?" "Seuse me, sah," said Jim, "but I'm gwine to sing bass tomorrow mornin' at church, an' I am trying to ketch a cold."

Why We Eat Eggs.

"I am a firm believer in advertising," said a great advertising expert. "I impute a great part of my success to it."

Here the expert's sunburnt and healthy face was illuminated by one of his rare and charming smiles.

"When a duck lays an egg," he said, "she waddles back to the duck pond in indifferent silence. But when a hen lays an egg her frantic cackles make it known."

"The hen advertises."

"And that, my dear friends, is why the world eats hens' eggs instead of ducks' eggs."

He Hadn't Been There.

"Mr. Daubyn said he would keep house while Mrs. Daubyn was away."

"Yes."

"He wrote glowing letters to her about his experiments in the kitchen and the fun he was having washing dishes."

"Fine!"

"When Mrs. Daubyn returned at the end of two weeks Mr. Daubyn, of course, met her at the station and escorted her home."

"And the sequel?"

"At the door he discovered that she took his latch key away with her the day she left."

Off His Guard.

A detective in a Y. M. C. A. lecture in Duluth on crime detection said: "The criminal can't be always on his guard, of course. Well, when he's off his guard, then he gives himself away, like the bank clerk, you know. 'A bank clerk was having his fortune told at a church fair. The pretty fortune teller, holding the young man's hand in hers, said: 'Beware of a dark woman! 'Black Maria' gasped the bank clerk, and he turned pale as death."

Touch Pre-eminent.

"A cozy picture, eh? A man lolling in an easy chair and his beautiful wife leaning over him to light his cigar."

"You haven't seen the companion picture to it, have you?"

"Why, no."

"It's the same man savagely chewing the end of his cigar and writing a check!"—Kansas City Star.

Couldn't Do It.

"I want you," said the fair society leader, "to give me a plain opinion about my latest photograph."

"Madam," said the gallant cavalier, bowing, "to speak in plain terms of that portrait would be impossible!"

His Stunt.

Flatbush—I see in the Indian army all orders are given in English.

Bensonhurst—Well, if the colonel wants some pate de foie gras for luncheon, how does he order it?

Thoroughly Lost.

Othello explained his jealousy. "I thought she lost it waving a Champagne glass."
