Secretary General of the General Labor Confederation (CGT), Saul Ubaldini, told reporters Nov. 23 that economic recovery in Argentina is not yet a reality. He added that financial and commodity speculation far surpasses any real production growth. Consequently, he said, the CGT will demand wage increases to forestall further deterioration of workers’ purchasing power. The administration of President Raul Alfonsin has ruled out any possibility of wage increases in the near future. Ubaldini is scheduled to meet with Alfonsin this week to discuss the CGT program for achieving growth and development. The program includes delays in foreign debt service payments.
