CORONA LEAD AND SILVER MINING CO. STRIKE BIG LEDGE

Silver and Lead Mine in Gallinas Mountains Reveals Handsome Ledge of Valuable Ore. Carrizozo Parties Interested.

The Corona Lead & Silver Mining company operating in the Gallinas mountains having lately increased the working capacity, sunk a shaft and drifted to a 100 foot level when they encountered a valuable ledge of ore that will prove to be one of, if not the best paying ledges of silver and lead ever encountered in the state of New Mexico.

The ledge is about five feet in thickness and six feet wide. The ore is of a high percentage silver and according to George Mullen, civil engineer and mining expert, who is constantly on the ground, it is the best paying ledge he has encountered for years. The ledge increases in volume and valuation as the work is carried on. Mr. Ashley Pond of Santa Fe is one of the main promoters of this enterprise and the stockholders being few at the time of this piece of good fortune, it will mean much to the interested parties when dividends are declared. County Clerk Geo. C. Clements and Deputy Floyd Rowland are among the lucky parties holding stock in the company.

Near the Fatal Mark

What might have proved a serious accident occurred Saturday near the station of Robsart, a small place about 8 miles north of here. James Cooper was driving his Buick and making for his ranch at a high rate of speed followed by a smaller car, a Ford containing Ben Lee, wife and baby, George and another brother.

As far as can be learned, one of Mr. Lee's tires became punctured and this caused the car to give a lurch throwing the occupants heavily to the ground, the car turning completely over. Mr. Cooper hastened to the relief of the sufferers most of whom were by this time unconscious. Bryan Hightower soon arrived on the scene and together these two gentlemen placed the injured people in Mr. Cooper's car and brought them to Carrizozo where they were placed in Dr. Wood's hospital, attended by Doctors Shaver and Woods. After an examination it was found that no bones were broken but all parties were badly bruised. On Sunday two of the men were discharged from the hospital and the others will be able to go to their homes by the last of this week, the doctors say. The Lee Brothers are well drillers and live near Ancho, where they were driving for, at the time of the accident.

Robert Hurt of Capitan was a Carrizozo visitor Tuesday.

Wrong Body in Casket at Funeral

East Las Vegas, N. M., Feb. 5.—Relatives and friends of Geo. H. Kinkel, philanthropist and widely known citizen, whose death occurred in Denver Tuesday, received a shock yesterday when they were invited to view his remains just before the casket was about to be consigned to the grave by discovering that the body before them was not that of Mr. Kinkel.

It was later explained that a Denver undertaker had shipped the wrong body to Las Vegas. The body was brought to Las Vegas by Mrs. Kinkel who did not view the body from the time it was turned over to the firm of undertakers.

Big Storms In East

New York, Feb. 6.—Huge waves rolled up by a fifty-mile gale were still sweeping the north Atlantic coast tonight while cities and towns along the shore were trying with indifferent success to dig themselves out of the deepest snow drifts of years. Damage done by the sea to resorts and summer homes along the New Jersey and Long Island coasts was estimated at hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Ships remained at anchor or moved with the utmost caution. In the land-locked waterways around New York huge ice floes menaced navigation.

Cold, snow, ice and high seas have made it almost impossible to transport coal from the tide-water reservoir at Perth Amboy to New York and the city faces a fuel famine unless the weather moderates.

Only A Few Left

Those desirous of obtaining stock in the O. I. L. company should do so at an early date, as there are only a few chances left. A responsible representative will be shortly dispatched for Louisiana, where the company have valuable options on land leases in close neighborhood to where the oil fever is at its highest mark. The representative expects to render a report of the very best to the company after his investigations and leases of the land.

Gov. Larrazolo Calls Extra Session

Santa Fe, Feb. 4.—The Governor has called a special session of the state legislature to meet February 16. Woman suffrage ratification and provision for state troops to handle situations such as the recent coal strike have been emphasized by the Governor as chief reasons for calling the session.

$9,000.00 Worth of Checks Taken from Postoffice

Check artists got more than they bargained for Tuesday night when they rifled the postoffice drawer of the First National Bank and removed a large envelope from the Roy Trust & Savings Bank which contained nine thousand dollars worth of checks.

The thief took his handful of checks to the vacant lot west of Judge Henderlite's office, but for some reason he tore the checks to pieces and cast them to the winds. Luckily the wind did not blow from that time until morning when the loss was found by Mr. Humphreys. He then set himself to work to match the small fragments and succeeded in finding every check complete with the exception of one for three dollars on a local bank.

The envelope with the thumb print has been turned over to the government and the thumb specialists may be able to give the local officers some clue.—Tucumcari News.

Mr. Ziegler Goes East

Mr. Albert Ziegler left Sunday for St. Louis, Chicago and other eastern points ending with New York. This is not an unusual thing with Mr. Ziegler, as he makes two trips every year to buy goods. On this trip, he will purchase goods for the late spring and summer trade. He will as usual make another trip next fall to buy goods for the late fall and winter trade. He will meet Mrs. Ziegler at Chicago where she was called a short time ago from Seattle on account of the illness of her daughter, Mrs. Gutnecht.

As Others See Us

The Albuquerque Journal of Jan. 5 in commenting on an article appearing in this paper last week, says:

"A Methodist revival at Carrizozo caused conscience-stricken people to raise the salary of their minister from $1,200 to $1,800. The time has gone by when a congregation could square things with a preacher and his family by taking them a tableful of cakes and cold chicken every few moons."

The New Hotel

The committee in charge of the subscription list for the new hotel has rendered a good report of the work accomplished since the last meeting one week ago. The subscriptions are now about $23,000 with smaller efforts than will be put forth from now on. The principals in this undertaking are assured of the necessary 50 per cent of the $70,000 within the next two weeks. This will enable the promoters to break ground for the new hotel with the opening of spring.

Miss Herndon Reilly, who has been on the sick list for a few days this week, is improving.

ARMY FACING SCANDALS OVER UNJUST DECORATIONS

False Leg Steals Real Dinero

Denver, Feb. 5.—Orville Harrington, 41, skilled worker in the Denver mint, was arrested early today by Rolland K. Goddard, chief of the local branch of the federal secret service, on a charge of having robbed the Denver mint of gold bullion valued at more than $100,000.

A search of Harrington's home revealed the gold bars buried and hidden in various parts of the premises, and all of it was recovered, according to Goddard.

Harrington, according to the officers, carried the bars out of the mint concealed in a hollow false limb which he wore.

On Eastern Business Trip

O. W. Bamberger, president of the Carrizozo Trading Co., departed for the east Saturday of No. 4. Mr. Bamberger will visit the principal eastern points including New York City to buy goods for spring and summer trade. This is Mr. Bamberger's first trip of the year, the next will be made at the close of the summer season when he will purchase goods for late fall and winter trade. He will be in the east about two weeks.

Who Will Volunteer

The Red Cross Nursing Committee hereby issues a call to those who are willing to serve as nurses, should an epidemic of influenza visit Carrizozo. All those who are willing to serve may obtain information concerning the services they are to render and salaries they will be paid by applying to the undersigned.

Chairman, Red Cross Nursing Committee.

Berger Accused of Fraud Plot Attempt

Chicago, Feb. 5.—In an answer filed today in the circuit court of appeals to a brief filed by attorneys for Victor L. Berger, convicted Socialist, District Attorney Charles F. Clyne declared that Berger tried to perpetrate a fraud on the court and that he should be sent immediately to Leavenworth penitentiary to serve out his 20-year sentence.

The fraud charge is based on evidence that while out on bail under promise to refrain from all such activity, Berger took part in a campaign to induce Socialists to oppose conscription and the war.

Berger's appeal from the sentence passed by Federal Judge Landis is now pending.

Col. J. G. Steese Given Rigid Cross-Examination by Congressman Johnson and General Ansell Before Before Investigating Subcommittee.

Washington, Feb. 3.—A scandal over the awards of war decorations in the army rivaling the controversy started by Rear Admiral Sims in the navy is expected to develop as the result of evidence brought out at a hearing today before a house war investigating sub-committee.

This evidence, which was given by Col. J. G. Steese, president of the army board of awards, under rigid cross-examination by Representative Royal C. Johnson, Republican, of South Dakota, chairman of the sub-committee and former Judge Advocate General Samuel T. Ansell, attorney for the sub-committee, showed that:

1—Secretary of War Baker over-rode the board of awards and personally granted distinguished service medals in many cases in which the board had recommended adversely.

2—These personal awards by the secretary were to civilians.

3—Secretary Baker sent to the board long lists of names over his own signature asking what recommendations had been made in these cases and if they were not entitled to the distinguished service medal.

4—In spite of such suggestions from their superior, who appointed them and had the power to review them, the board declined to recommend medals in the greater portion of the cases.

Bert Morrison's confession had, however, set up another very insistent train of thought in Irene's mind. She realized that Bert, with all her shrewdness of cynicism and masculinity, was really a very womanly young woman, with just the training and the insight into life that would make her almost irresistible should she enter the matrimonial market. And Bert and Dave were already good friends; very good friends indeed, as Irene suspected from fragments of conversation which either of them dropped from time to time. Although she never doubted the singleness of Dave's devotion, she sometimes suspected that in Bert Morrison's presence he felt a more frank comradeship than in hers. And it was preposterous that he should not know that Bert might be won for the winning. And meantime . . .

Another winter wore away; another spring came rushing from the mountain passes; another summer was upon them, and still Irene Hardy had not surrendered. A thousand times she told herself it was impossible, with her mother to think of—and always she ended in indignation over her treatment of Dave. It was outrageous to keep him waiting . . . and somewhere back of her self-indignation flitted the form—the now seductive form—of Bert Morrison.

Irene Hardy chose to be frank with herself over the situation. She had not doubted the sincerity of her attachment for Dave Elden; but, had she experienced such a doubt, the entry of Bert Morrison into the drama would have forever removed it. In fairness she admitted that things could not continue as they were. If she continued to trifle with Dave Elden—

Yes, trifle. She would be frank. She would not spare herself. She had been trifling with him. . . . She would lay her false pride aside. In the purity of her womanhood, which he could not misunderstand, she would divest herself of all convention and tell him frankly that—that—

She was not sure what she would tell or how she would tell it. She was sure only that she would make him know. At the very next opportunity.

It came on a fine summer's evening in late July, while Dave and Irene drifted in his car over the rich ripening prairie.

Everywhere were fields of dark-green wheat, already beginning to glimmer with the gold of harvest; everywhere were herds of sleek cattle sighing and blowing contentedly in the cool evening air. Away to the west lay the mountains, blue and soft as a pillow of velvet for the head of the dying day; overhead, inverted islands of brass and copper floated lazily in an inverted sea of azure and opal; up from the southwest came the breath of the far Pacific, mild and soft and gentle.

"We started at the wrong end in our nation building," Dave was saying. "We started to build cities, leaving the country to take care of itself. We are finding out how wrong we were. Depend upon it, where there is a prosperous country the cities will take care of themselves. We have been putting the cart before the horse."

But Irene's eyes were on the sunset; on the slowly fading colors of the cloudlands overhead. Something of that color played across her face, mellowing, softening, drawing as it seemed, the very soul to cheeks and lips and eyes. Dave paused in his speech to regard her, and her beauty rushed upon him, engulfed him, overwhelmed him in such a poignancy of tenderness that it seemed for a moment all his resolves must be swept away and he must storm the citadel that would not surrender to siege. . . . Only action could hold him resolute; he pressed down the accelerator until the steel lungs of his motor were drinking power to their utmost capacity and the car roared furiously down the stretches of the country road.

It was dusk when he had burnt out his violence, and, chastened and spent, he turned the machine to hum back gently to the forgotten city. Irene, by some fine telepathy, had followed vaguely the course of his emotions; had followed them in delicious excitement and fear and hope. She sensed in some subtle feminine way the impulse that had sent him roaring into the distance; she watched his powerful hand on the wheel; his clear, steady eye; the minute accuracy with which he controlled his flying motor; and she prayed—and did not know what or why she prayed. But a color not all of the dying sunlight lit her cheek as she guessed—she feared—she hoped—that she had prayed that he might forget his fine resolves—that his heart might at last contrive its head.

In the deepening darkness her fingers found his arm. The motion of the car masked the violence of her trembling, but for a time the pounding of her heart would not allow her speech.

"Dave," she said, at length, "I want to tell you that I think you—that we—that I—Oh, I've been very selfish and proud—" Her fingers had followed his arm to the shoulder, and the car had idled to a standstill. "I have fought as long as I can, Dave. I—I always wanted to—to love, you know; and now—I surrender."

Elden lost no time in facing the unpleasant task of an interview with Mrs. Hardy. It was even less pleasant than he expected.

"Irene is of age," said Mrs. Hardy, bluntly. "If she will, she will. But I must tell you plainly that I will do all I can to dissuade her. Ungrateful child!" she exclaimed, in an outburst of temper, "after all these years to throw herself away in an infatuation for a cow puncher when there are men like Mr. Conward!"

"Conward!" interrupted Dave. "He has the manners of a gentleman," she said, in a tone intended to be crushing.

"And the morals of a coyote," Dave returned hotly.

"O-o-o-h!" said Mrs. Hardy, in a low, shocked cry. That Elden should speak of Conward with such disdain seemed to her little less than sacrilege. Then, gathering herself together with some dignity: "If you cannot speak respectfully of Mr. Conward you will please leave the house. I shall not forbid you to see Irene; I know that would be useless. But please do not trouble me with your presence."

When Dave had gone Mrs. Hardy rang up Conward's number.

"Oh, Mr. Conward!" she said. "You know who is speaking? . . . Yes. You must come up tonight. I do want to talk with you. I—I've been insulted—in my own house. By that—that Elden. It's all very terrible. I can't tell you over the telephone."

Conward called early in the evening. Mrs. Hardy had heard the bell and bustled into the room. She had not yet recovered from her agitation, and made no effort to conceal it.

"Come into my sitting room, Mr. Conward. I am so glad you have come. Really, I am so upset. It is such a comfort to have some one you can depend on—some one whose advice one can seek, on occasions like this. I never thought—"

"There, there," he said. "You must control yourself. Tell me. It will relieve you, and perhaps I can help."

"Oh, I'm sure you can," she returned. "It's all over Irene and that—that—I will say it—that cow puncher. To think it should have come to this! Mr. Conward, you are not a mother, so you can't understand. Ungrateful girl! But I blame him. And the doctor. I never wanted him to come West. It was that fool trip, in that fool motor—"

Conward smiled to himself over her unaccustomed violence. Mrs. Hardy must be deeply moved when she forgot to be correct. He had readily surmised the occasion of her distress. It needed no words from Mrs. Hardy to tell him that Irene and Dave were engaged. He had expected it for some time, and the information was not altogether distasteful to him. He had come somewhat under the spell of Irene's attractiveness, but he had no deep attachment for her. He was not aware that he had ever had an abiding attachment for any woman. Attachments were things which he put on and off as readily as a change of clothes. He planned to hit Dave through Irene, but he planned that when he struck it should be a death blow. Their engagement would lend a sharper edge to his shaft.

It may as well be set down that for Mrs. Hardy Conward had no regard whatever. Even while he shaped soft words for her ear he held her in contempt. To him she was merely a silly old woman.

From the day he had first seen Mrs. Hardy his attitude toward her had been one of subtle flattery, partly because it pleased his whim and partly on that same day he had seen Irene, and he was shrewd enough to know that his approach to the girl's affections must be made by way of the acquaintanceship which he would establish under the guise of friendship for her mother. Since his trouble with Dave Conward had a double purpose in developing that acquaintanceship.

He had no compunctions as to his method of attack. While Dave was manfully laying siege to the front gate Conward proposed to burglarize the home through the back door of family intimacy. And now that Dave seemed to have won the prize Conward realized that his own position was more secure than ever. Had he not been called in consultation by the girl's mother? Were not the inner affairs of the family now laid open before him? Did not his position as her mother's adviser permit him to assume toward Irene an attitude which, in a sense, was more intimate than even Dave's could be? He turned these matters over quickly in his mind and congratulated himself upon the wisdom of his tactics.

"It's very dreadful," Mrs. Hardy was saying, between dabblings of her perfumed handkerchief on eyes that bore witness to the genuineness of her distress. "Irene is not an ordinary girl. She has in her qualities that justified me in hoping that—that she would do—very different from this. Need I conceal from you, Mr. Conward—from you, of all men—what have been my hopes for Irene?"

Conward's heart leaped at the confession. He had secretly entertained some doubt as to Mrs. Hardy's purpose in opening her home to him as she had done; absurd as the hypothesis seemed, still there was the hypothesis that Mrs. Hardy saw in Conward a possible comfort to her declining days. He had no doubt that her vanity was equal to that supposition, but he had done her less than justice in supposing that she had any directly personal ambitions. Her ambitions were for Irene. She had hoped that, by bringing Conward into the house, by bringing Irene under the influence of a close family acquaintanceship with him, that young lady might be led to see the folly of the road she was choosing. She had hoped that he would be the successful suitor for Irene. And Conward's heart leaped at the confession.

"I suppose I need not conceal from you," he answered, "what my hopes have been. It is reasonably safe to judge a daughter by her mother, and by that standard Irene is one of the most adorable of young women."

"I have been called attractive in my day," confessed Mrs. Hardy, warming at once to his flattery.

"Have been?" said Conward. "Say rather you are. If I had not been rendered, perhaps, a little partial by my admiration of Irene, I—well, one can scarcely give his heart in two places, you know. And my deep regard for you, Mrs. Hardy—my desire that you shall be spared this—ah—threatened humiliation, will justify me in using heroic measures to bring this unfortunate affair to a close. You may trust me, Mrs. Hardy. Irene is—you will forgive me, Mrs. Hardy, but Irene is, if I may say it, somewhat headstrong. She is—"

"She is her father over again," Mrs. Hardy interrupted. "I told him he should not attempt that crazy trip of his without me along, but he would go. And this is what he has brought upon me, and he not here to share it!"

Mrs. Hardy's tone conveyed very plainly her grievance over the doctor's behavior in evading the consequences of the situation which his headstrong folly had created.

"She is set in her own mind," Conward continued. "We must not openly oppose her. We must adopt other tactics."

"You are very clever," said Mrs. Hardy. "You have been a student of human nature."

Conward smiled pleasantly. Little as he valued Mrs. Hardy's opinion, her words of praise fell very gratefully upon him. Flatterers are seldom proof against their own poison.

"Yes, I have studied human nature," he admitted. "The most interesting—and the most profitable—of all studies. And I know that young couples in love are not governed by the ordinary laws of reason. That is why it is useless to argue with Irene—sensible girl though she is—on a subject like this. We must reach her some other way."

"The way that occurs to me is to create distrust. Love is either absurdly trustful or absurdly suspicious. There is no middle course, no balanced judgment. In the trustfulness of love little virtues are magnified to angelic qualities, and vices are quite unseen. But change that trust to suspicion, and a hidden, sinister meaning is found behind the simplest word or act. We must plan two campaigns: One, which I have already suggested, and one, if that should fail, to cause Elden to distrust Irene. No, no," he said, raising his hand toward Mrs. Hardy, who had started from her seat, "there must be no vestige of reason, except that the end justifies the means. It is a case of saving Irene, even if we must pain her—and you—in the saving."

"It's very dreadful," Mrs. Hardy repeated. "But you are very thorough; you leave nothing to chance. I suppose that is the way with all big business men."

"You can trust me," Conward assured her. "There is no time to be lost, and I must plan my campaigns at once." (TO BE CONTINUED.)

NEW SOURCE OF TURPENTINE

Tree in Central India to Be Looked To for Supply of Really Good Quality.

Turpentine oil and resin are already being produced on a commercial scale in India by the distillation of pine resin. A new source of supply which, though comparatively small, may be valuable, especially for Indian use, has now been found in frankincense or oilbanum. This material is obtained by the natives by making incisions in the stems of Boswellia serrata, a tree widely distributed throughout the dry zone forests of Central India. The resinous substance which exudes from the cuts contains a kind of turpentine, a resin and a gum.

Investigations of the methods of separating these constituents in a marketable form have been conducted since 1912 by the forest authorities in India in co-operation with the Imperial Institute, and the results have been published recently in a paper by R. S. Pearson, forest economist, and Puran Singh, chemical adviser, at the Forest Research Institute, Dehra Dun. The general conclusion reached, based on the results of numerous trials, is that the turpentine oil is equal to good quality American turpentine oil.

Dust to Check Explosions.

Perhaps the oddest, yet one of the most effective, means for preventing—or, at all events, minimizing—disasters in coal mines is the use of rock dust. A lot of it is placed on boards hung by chains from the roofs of mine tunnels. Obviously in case of an explosion the boards will swing and the dust will be thrown off. Following an explosion a roaring flame, let us say, is coming through the tunnel. The air is filled with coal dust (or possibly with inflammable gas) to feed it. But it meets a curtain of non-inflammable rock dust (discharged from the board shelves) and is thereby stopped. Rock dust will not burn under any provocation. Suspended thickly in the air, it acts like an asbestos curtain. The flames cannot get through it.

Temperamental Disposition.

Frequently a burst of temper will throw a whole office out of gear. A temperamental disposition is sometimes excusable in a great executive, because it is his safety valve. But do not think for one minute that it has aided him to get where he is. On the contrary it has made him climb harder, you may be sure. Save your temper, be patient, be pleasant, and you will save yourself many reactions which work against concentration. But if you will go about your work quietly you will find that much more may be accomplished, because your entire attention will be given to your work, instead of being frittered away in bickering and fault-finding, futile and costly detriments to good work of any kind.—New York Evening Telegram.

Antiquity of the Emerald.

The emerald has been known since early times both in Europe and in certain parts of the Orient, where its attractive color and rarity have endowed it with the highest rank. Its name may be traced back to an old word which appeared in Greek as smaragdus, mentioned in Greek by Theophrastus 300 B. C.

Capitan Notes

Johnson Hearst, employed on the Roswell Cattle Company's ranch had quite a novel experience one night last week with a coyote. Near the mid-night hour, uncanny sounds were heard coming from the yard and Mr. H., armed with his shot gun, cautiously opened the door and spied a large coyote sitting on the wood pile and uttering the most mournful howls one could imagine. Mr. H. fired, bringing down the mid-night disturber and on going forth to drag the carcass to the house, discovered that the coyote instead of being dead was very much alive, for he bounded out of his captor's hands and escaped. The next day Mr. Hearst again encountered the wolf in a pasture one mile distance from his home and brought him down for good with a well aimed shot which took off his entire lower jaw. The coyote was of exceptionally large size and is on exhibition at R. C. Sowder's ranch.

"OURS IS THE TRADE THAT SERVICE MADE"

SCHOOL NOTES

(By Supt. E. E. Cole)

All over New Mexico, Flag Day will be observed February 12, in conjunction with Lincoln's birthday. Early in January material was distributed to all the city teachers of Carrizozo and these teachers are working on a special patriotic program for that date. The citizens of Carrizozo are most cordially invited to visit the school rooms at 2:30 on Thursday afternoon of next week.

The beautiful new Boy Scout flag recently received by the local Scouts has been attached to an eight foot pole surmounted by a large bronzed spear head. The work of "polling" was done by the manual training boys, of course.

Last Saturday the Boy Scouts took a "hike" to Willow Hills and Cub Mountain. Six of the Scouts, with assistant scout master Cole, started from town an hour earlier than scout master Kelley, accompanied by ten other scouts. The task of the second group was to trail the first group by means of signs left by the first group, such as marks in the soil, piles of stones, sticks, bent over grass, twigs, and other signs. The scouts visited the big dike, the spring, and the two coal mines on Cub Mountain, passed around the south end of Willow Hills and returned to Carrizozo tired but happy. The purpose of this hike is, of course, to make the scout self-reliant, observant and efficient, and by the close contact with other boys, to rub off his rough edges.

Next week, beginning with February eighth, is the tenth anniversary of the Boy Scouts of America. The celebration will continue for eight days. The anniversary is to have, as one of its objects, a request to every man, woman and child in the nation to "do a good turn daily" for one week, the same as the Boy Scouts do throughout the year.

On the night of February 8th every Boy Scout, wherever he may be at eight fifteen, will stand at salute and repeat the Scout oath, which is as follows: "On my honor I will do my best (1) to do my duty to God and my country and to obey the Scout law; (2) to help other people at all times; (3) to keep myself physically strong, mentally awake, and morally straight."

Rev. Smith, of the Baptist church, was a very welcome visitor at the high school last week. Mr. Smith conducted the devotional services and then gave the students a very interesting and helpful talk. The subject of the talk was "Finish." "Do not get the idea that you know enough at sixteen or seventeen; or that sixteen or seventeen is the best time to get married. The persons who get married at that age generally have a hard time of it. A finished education is a recommendation and a guarantee of success in life. An education is the highest qualification which a boy or girl can have. Have the nerve to finish." Mr. Smith gave two stories which clearly illustrated his idea. The talk was the kind we like to have our visitors give to the pupils of the schools.

Ten days ago, when the "flu" began to spread over the land, the school board of Carrizozo directed the superintendent to purchase an atomizer for each room in the city and to spray the handkerchief of each pupil, each morning, with a solution of mercury bichloride. The pupils are instructed to cough and sneeze into their handkerchiefs, and to take many precautions in regard to health. The school rooms of the city are to be fumigated once a week with sulphur dioxide. With these precautions we hope to keep the "flu" out of our schools and city. The school board is to be commended for the adoption of these wise and sensible measures.

At the meeting of the Teachers' Reading Circle last week

Mrs. Blaney discussed the subject "The Technique of Instruction." Miss Sullivan "The Organization of Subject-Matter," Mrs. Massie "Reading and Literature in the Second Grade." Those present were Mrs. Blaney, Mrs. Gumm, Mrs. Massie, Misses Sullivan, Hughes, Neff, Shook, Jarrett and Mr. Cole.

FOREIGN MONEY TAKES BIG DROP

LONDON FEARS CHAOS IN EUROPE AS RESULT OF MONEY MARKET.

REACH LOW RECORD

CAUSE SAID TO BE DUE TO EUROPEAN DEBT TO AMERICA.

Western Newspaper Union News Service.

New York, Jan. 29.—Rates of exchange on London and all the principal European centers continue to dwindle to new low records through sheer weight of offerings from domestic and foreign sources.

The declines extended to the Orient, the rate moving against Japan for the first time in more than a year. There was little trading in Chinese bills because of the inability of dealers to secure definite quotations.

Advices from London indicated that a feeling akin to consternation had taken possession of the British capital, which for generations dominated the world's exchange markets.

Neither in London, Paris nor here was any solution of the problem offered, although it was realized that matters now have reached the stage where further delay may cause worldwide chaos.

Primarily, the situation as viewed by those most concerned, hinged on the fact that nearly all the European countries are heavily in debt to the United States. Only by the organization of an international exchange committee, and the willingness of American bankers to extend credits already contracted, can existing conditions be overcome, in the opinion of leading mercantile interests.

The low rate of $3.40 on demand bills of the pound sterling marked a decline of 6 cents from previous record low and implies a discount of slightly more than 28 per cent. French and Belgian francs, also lites, all nominally quoted at 5.18½ to the dollar, fell to levels ranging to 1.27, an almost infinitesimal recovery, however, in view of their normal or pre-war value of 32.8 cents.

Toronto.—A warning that "hard times" are approaching if lavish spending is not curbed immediately was sounded here by Sir Edmond Osler, president of the Dominion bank and brother of the late Sir William Osler, "English Investors," he declared, "soon" will be withdrawing larger sums of money from Canada, while no money can be expected from Great Britain until the exchange situation changes."

Washington.—Through Secretary Glass, President Wilson has renewed the appeal to Congress to grant credits of $150,000,000 for Poland, Austria and Armenia to alleviate conditions which threaten "moral and material chaos" in those countries.

Truck Rides Pilot.

Champaign, Ill.—A delivery truck driven by Harry Bullock was struck by a fast Illinois Central railroad train and carried on the pilot of the locomotive for more than 600 feet before the train could be stopped. Passengers tumbled out of the long string of cars and spectators came running from every direction, as the truck was piled off the pilot. The driver who had not moved from his seat, tested out his engine, found it working, so he stepped on the gas and whisked his truck off the tracks, none the worse for the experience.

Organize Police Riot Regiment.

New York.—As a measure of preparedness against riots and serious disorders a regiment of 1,000 sharpshooters and four machine gun squads will be organized by the New York police department. Approximately 400 men will be held ready for action at all times. They will wear steel helmets when on duty.

Virginia Rejects Suffrage.

Richmond, Va.—The Senate committee on elections rejected the woman suffrage amendment to the federal constitution. The House adopted a resolution to refer the amendment to a vote of the people, but as it was not a joint resolution it has no binding effect.

Court Upholds Suffrage.

Austin, Texas.—The Texas women's primary suffrage act was upheld when the Supreme Court refused to grant a writ of error in the case originating in McLennan county, where the third Court of Civil Appeals declared the law constitutional.

Lincoln County

The following is an extract from the eighth annual report of the State Mine Inspector to Governor Larrazolo and should be read by every one interested in the future growth and general welfare of Lincoln County.

The Capitan mines produced several millions of tons of coal from a small area. The El Paso & Northeastern Railroad, as it was called when built; Now the eastern end of the El Paso & Northwestern R. R., was built from El Paso to Capitan mines, a distance of about 125 miles, and for several years Capitan was the terminus; later it was extended from Carrizozo to connect with, and give the Rock Island Railroad entrance to El Paso, and S. P. R. R. connections to the Pacific. It is a peculiar commentary upon the speculative business methods of the day, that no person has considered building a 12-mile branch railroad from Carrizozo to an area of coal at White Oaks, which is much larger in extent than the Capitan coal field, to which 125 miles of railroad was built for the sole purpose of operating the coal mines; nor would the engineering features of the 12-mile railroad be near so difficult as was the Capitan branch beyond Carrizozo, where two switchbacks were necessary to cross the mountain to Capitan. This rather conservative and safe business opportunity has been overlooked while more precarious speculative ventures are embraced.

The White Oaks Coal Company has published a prospectus in which it states that development will soon be commenced upon what was known as the Old Abe coal mine, originally operated for fuel for the Old Abe gold mine and the town of White Oaks and nearby ranches.

The Lincoln Light and Power Company, it is said, has secured control of 1,200 acres of coal lands formerly owned by the Southern Pacific R. R. There is a rumor that this company may become active and extend its business functions to the production of coal for market. As the territory tributary to El Paso, at the mines and smelters and cities and towns of Arizona, as also the same class of consumers in Old Mexico, constitute the principal market for New Mexico coal, the White Oaks coal field has a big advantage in the item of freight on account of short haul to El Paso and markets mentioned as tributary thereto.

There are three coal seams in the field, but only one has been developed. This coal seam as developed in the Old Abe coal mine was from 3 to 4 feet in thickness; and where developed in the mine of the Lincoln County Light and Power Company has a uniform thickness of 4 feet or over. The coal is a first class bituminous variety, very good for steam or domestic purposes.

Aside from the White Oaks field there are isolated areas of coal in several places in the county. The McIvers mine was worked, upon one of those pieces of coal land some years ago, but operations were suspended and the mine neglected and slope caved in.

While Lincoln County has not the vast area of coal land found in some other counties of the state, yet its closeness to market renders it a more than ordinarily favorable coal mining proposition, and prospects are bright for the future success of the coal industry in this county, although it is dormant at present.

THE UNIVERSAL CAR

The Ford car can well be called the "people's car," because there are more than 3,000,000 of them in daily operation. That is about four to one of the nearest follower in the motor car industry. This would not be so if the Ford car had not for sixteen years proven its superiority in service, in durability, and in the low cost for operation and maintenance; this would not be so if the Ford car was not so easy to understand, so simple in construction that anybody and everybody can safely drive it. Once Editor of The Outlook, Dies

On the last day of the month of January, L. H. Rudisille, former resident of White Oaks died at his home in Santa Monica, Cal. Mr. Rudisille came to White Oaks from the state of Ohio, in the year of 1880 at the time the gold fever was at its height and became interested in mining. Seven years after settling there, he was united in marriage to Miss Margaret Monroe to which union Mr. Rudisille referred in after years which we quote from biography as follows:

"Have mined manipulated and mated since coming to White Oaks; have watched the town grow up, flourish for awhile and then grow down; but still have a cinch on the place and am now trying to auction off the climate by the cubic yard, or the acre in tracts and at prices to suit all comers." Mr. Rudisille was a newspaper man; he was at one time editor of the Lincoln County Leader and also edited the White Oaks Outlook which is at the present time the Outlook of Carrizozo. He served two terms as County School Superintendent, in which position he gave Lincoln county the best of service. He was always ready and willing to advance the interests of this community and to contribute to its welfare. He left for California about one year ago and for the first six months of his stay on the coast his health was good, but during the last few months his condition gradually weakened until the end came as mentioned above. Mrs. Rudisille has the sympathy of Lincoln County in general. The remains were interred at Santa Monica.

A Plain Statement

With the offer, to secure a drilling contract backed up by a substantial forfeit on the part of the drilling company, to return all leases to the land owners should such a contract not be made within one year from date of lease, the New State Oil & Gas company continues to round out the block of acreage required for a thorough test well in our community. To those who have not leased we wish to warn against leasing their land before fully considering the above offer. We shall be glad to have you call upon us for information whether you are a land owner or not, and to point out to you the many advantages to be gained by the people of this community with development under our plan. We are also in a position to explain to you the dangers that arise from leasing on any other than a plan made safe by money or securities.

Late French Hats Are Modeled to Adorn the Wearer.

Feathers, Velvet and Ribbons Are Deftly Arranged to Afford Most Becoming Headgear.

The late French hats for winter are practically a collection of lines—lines elusive and obscure, lines impossible and strange, lines pure and girlish, but always the lines that suit the face they are built to accompany.

This may sound easy, but it isn't. It takes an artist to construct a hat of the proper lines which will look smart and trim. But the French, when it comes to hats, are the leaders of the world. A French milliner takes a small piece of velvet, and for before your very eyes she has produced a hat which is the joy of all beholders.

The prettiest French hats one can take into her hand and crush into a round ball. There seems to be no frame and no foundation, and yet they are perfect frames for the faces they adorn. Ostrich feathers of all sorts have a fascinating way of curling over the ears and necks of their wearers. The hats are black or of very dark colors and the feathers are bright.

Many variations of the Tam o' Shanter are shown by the French modistes. They are large or small, trimmed or untrimmed, for sport or for dress, but at any rate the Tam o' Shanter in one form or another seems to be an indispensable part of the hat equipment of 1920. They are made of velvet or of hatter's plush or of tiny ribbons shirred and sewed round and round, and they are in solid colors when they are smartest.

Feather and coque are distinctively good and these come in many daring colors, worn usually with no trimming but with an exquisite lace veil. The veil is more an ornament for the hat than a protection for the face.

Picture hats, wide and spreading for wear with the old-fashioned French costumes and with those that follow the Spanish influence. These are made of hatter's plush or of velvet, beautifully sewn; and their rather high crowns are made soft enough to fit over the head. Sometimes there is a suggestion of trimming about them, but more often they have an inconspicuous band of ribbon.

There is a popular turban of marine made over a sparkling metal brocade band. It is simply a puff of the tulle with the color of the band showing through around the headsize, and then a puff of the tulle droops over the right ear.

CRETONNE HAT FOR SPRING

A facing of turquoise blue silk and field flowers encircle the crown of this charming broad brimmed cretonne hat designed for spring wear.

Fur Frocks.

And now it's the fur frock. One of baby lamb is made on straight chemise lines. A panel effect is achieved by means of seams down the sides, front or back. The sleeves are three-quarter length and have flare cuffs and tassels.

Memo Pad for Housewives

Daily Remind: Will Prove of Much Value and Will Fit into the Kitchen-Picture.

The housewife's memory needs a "lift" now and then, for cures get heavy and it is very likely that she will not be able to carry everything in her memory.

This memo pad for the kitchen will be just the thing for her. To go to her desk and jot down there the things she wishes to remember is really no convenience at all. Such a pad lacks place utility.

A pad which belongs in the kitchen is invaluable and can very cleverly be made to fit into the kitchen-picture.

Make an envelope of tan oatmeal cloth. It should be about 4½ inches in depth. The flap should be cut nicely rounded and made almost as deep at top as the pocket. Give it a loop of brown at the top by which to hang it up. Bind all the edges with brown.

UNUSUAL DRESS FOR MILADY

Navy blue serge with braid trimming and double ruffle of plaited georgette with short length sleeves destined to become so popular.

WORK SYSTEMS TO BLAME

Manufacturers Feel That Increased Cost Is Due to the Week-Work Scheme.

There is now a feeling among women's garment manufacturers that the factor of increased cost, due to the establishment of the week-work in place of the piece-work system, may play a more important part in high prices than it was realized. This point has occurred to some of the leaders in the trade who have not been entirely satisfied that the cost of raw material and other items was alone at the basis of values. Accustomed to piece-work prices, which enabled them to know with the best accuracy just what production cost them, some of the manufacturers, it is explained, may have added unconsciously to their profits when dealing with the new system that does not show costs so easily and correctly.

Gems Liven Black Gowns.

Emeralds are used as a foil for a black lace gown when emerald silk lines the folded bow ends on the soft crushed girdle and sash, and for one notable costume an emerald facing is used on the black lace hat. Colored gems are favored for use with the all-black costumes generally, but jewels of pearl and diamond-set platinum make a most effective accompaniment for a black tulle gown, having an underdress of creamy white. With such a costume a long diamond chain finished with pearl-mounted pendant and used with pearl earrings carries out the long, graceful lines of one of the new soft hanging tunics. Dignity is added to an all-black costume by the use of a diamond and onyx collarette.

St. Charles Man Tells How He Suffered Before Doan's Cured Him.

"Heavy strains on my back and being exposed to all kinds of weather, weakened my kidneys," says John E. Shelton of St. Charles, Mo. "The misery in my back was constant and I had to get up several times during the night to pass the kidney secretions. I got no rest night or day and lost twenty-two pounds in weight. My eyes burned as if there were fire in them. I also had dizzy spells and would feel as if I were going to pitch forward. Sharp catches would take me in my back as if someone were driving a sharp knife into my back. My kidneys were so weak I had no control over them and the secretions were scanty and burned in passage. I had pains in my bladder too. I was discouraged. I tried different remedies but received no benefit. I was advised to use Doan's Kidney Pills and when I did so I was soon relieved of my misery. Doan's cured me."

The Mohawk Excels

The N. B. Taylor & Sons Garage now have a full and complete line of Mohawk Automobile Tires of both the Cord and Fabric Quality. These tires were not placed on the market as some have been, before being thoroughly tested and tried. They kept up the test of the Mohawk bringing it closer and closer to perfection, with a careful study of the weaknesses of the tire game until the manufacturers were thoroughly satisfied that perfection was as near attained as could be possible in making tires and when they went out on the market they carried a guarantee that spoke for itself.

With Cord tires, the cords are embedded in an absolutely gummed cushion. Only the best of Sea Island Cotton fabric is used which most makers avoid on account of the high cost of the same. An extra black thick tread is developed containing only the very best and highest quality of rubber. These tires yield an amount of mileage that creates nothing short of a sensation. The guarantee for the Cord Tires is 12000 miles and for the Fabric 8000 miles. This guarantee is made here at home by N. B. Taylor & Sons and you do not have to wait for a complaint to go back to the manufacturers. Come in and let us demonstrate the sterling worth of these tires and show you our gilt-edged Guarantee—Resolve after reading this article to take no chances, but act at once—Let us serve your wants—N.
