NEW MEXICO REPUBLICANS INSTRUCT FOR GEN. WOOD

Republicans in Harmonious Convention Frame Platform And Principles—Instruct Chicago Delegation For Wood—Speeches by Larrazolo and Prichard.

The New Mexico delegation at Chicago will vote for Major General Leona Wood "so long as in their judgment there is reasonable chance for his election."

The delegates are:

E. A. Cahoon, Chavez county; Judge David J. Leahy, San Miguel; Jesus Romero, Bernalillo; Ed. M. Otero, Valencia; Gregory Page, McKinley; Venceslao Jaramillo, Rio Arriba.

The alternates are T. H. O'Brien, Colfax county; O. C. Phillips, Colfax; W. C. Porterfield, Grant; Geo. W. Armijo, Santa Fe; J. E. Reinburg, Dona Ana; Lorenzo Delgado, San Miguel. They all were nominated by Bursum and elected by acclamation.

The republican state convention last Friday handed the delegation the instructions, straight from the shoulder, but only after an uphill fight by pro-instructionists which began with the arrival here of the San Miguel county delegation and did not end until the closing hour of the convention. They gained strength steadily, however, and when the question of whether the delegation should go instructed or uninstructed was brought before the convention they won, 160 to 80.

The key-note speech by Col. Prichard and the speech of Gov. Larrazolo were the two principal things in connection with the convention which added to the general spirit of harmony. The Governor said, that he would gladly withhold his name from being mentioned in connection with State politics in the coming election, if the same would in any manner interfere with absolute harmony.

The Lincoln County delegation lined up as follows:

H. B. Hamilton, J. V. Tulley by J. B. French proxy; Willie Sevier by W. H. Fisher, proxy; W. H. Fisher, Henry Lutz by H. B. Hamilton, proxy; J. B. French, Francisco Analla.

Wilson Silent on Georgia Ballot Proposition

Washington, D. C. April 1.—President Wilson took no steps to prevent his name appearing on the presidential primary ballot in Georgia, it was said today at the white house.

The president had until 1 o'clock Washington time, today, to act. It was understood that he did not reply to the telegram from secretary Gardner of the Georgia Democratic state committee, asking whether he wished his name to appear on the ballot.

Joe Stratton left last Saturday for Oklahoma City with Wm. Barnett's bulls and a car load of his own which he marketed at that point shortly after his arrival.

Narrow Escape On Mission of Mercy

On Tuesday morning, Ramon and Marshal St. John, who are printers at the Outlook and News, received word to the effect that their grand-father, Christobel Chavez, who resided about three miles north of Capitan was ill and at the point of death. As quick as possible they left for that place accompanied by Romaldo Garcia, who drove the car.

In their haste to reach their destination before their grand-father passed away, they failed to realize the danger spot on the turn of the road at the top of Nogal Hill, where so many accidents have happened in the past, and on making the turn, the car reeled and turned over completely burying all the occupants except Ramon St. John, who while in the act of trying to extricate the other men, was assisted by Roy Skinner and Fred Lalone who arrived on the scene in time to help turn the car and liberate the men.

Luckily, however, none of the men sustained injuries beyond being badly shaken up; likewise badly scared. On arriving at their destination they found that their grand-father had passed away before they could reach his bedside. Mr. Chavez was one of, if not the oldest resident of Lincoln County, being nearly 100 years of age and having lived in the locality the past eighty years. Quick trips are often made over the Nogal Hill, and the narrow escape of these men should serve as a warning to those who will hereafter pass the "Danger Spot." It was there that Mr. Garvin lost his life and many other frightful accidents have occurred.

Has to Go to Hell, Yet

(Albuquerque Herald)

Leopoldo Mazon, indicted by the grand jury for assault with the intent to maim, is on trial in the district court today.

Mazon is charged with throwing Lysol, a disinfectant of high carbolic acid content, upon the person of Salvador, a boy, in the Gold Star saloon.

Mazon has been conspicuous in court circles for the past several years. In the September, 1917 term of the district court in Bernalillo county he was convicted of murder in the first degree of Patsy Gonzales, a fireman of the city fire department. He was thereafter acquitted of this crime in the February, 1918 term of the court in Sandoval county.

He was also involved in litigation in the district court of Bernalillo county during 1917 and 1918 in connection with domestic troubles and also with the estate of his deceased father, Leopoldo Mazon.

Mrs. Frank Rolland Passes Away at Los Angeles

Last Tuesday in distant California, Mrs. Frank Rolland of Alamogordo, who had been in Los Angeles for the past three months, passed away after a brief illness, according to a telegram received by Mr. A. J. Rolland, of Rolland Brothers' Drug Store here.

Mrs. Rolland accompanied by her youngest child, left Alamogordo about the first of the year to spend the winter months on the coast. She was in the best state of health as far as can be learned and continued so, until the day of her death when she suddenly fell ill and passed away in spite of the best of medical efforts in her behalf. On receipt of the sad news, Mr. Frank Rolland departed for the coast to return with the body and at this writing he is returning from his sad mission. At the present time, all that can be said is to chronicle the sad facts for just now, all that friends and loved ones can do is to wait with patience until more of the facts can be learned. The Outlook extends its kindest sympathy to the surviving relatives.

Collect Taxes by Telephone

Santa Fe, N. M., April 1.—Bernalillo County has a Treasurer and a Collector, O. A. Matson, who uses perhaps a novel, but nevertheless a simple, natural and what is more to the point, an effective method of getting in the taxes. Nearly 100 per cent of the 1917 taxes and over 97 per cent of the 1918 taxes have been collected in this county. On the delinquent date Mr. Matson went over the tax rolls and listed the names of those who failed to pay promptly. He then saw these taxpayers personally, told them of the penalty involved and secured payment at once in numerous instances. He also used the "ting-a-ling" method, calling up many by telephone, who came in and paid. The result is a low percentage of delinquency in Bernalillo county. Mr. Matson found that, of notices sent through the mail, nearly 50 per cent were returned, having failed to reach the persons addressed. It was for this reason he decided to get in personal communication with those who had failed to pay. Through the collection by this method, the taxpayer was saved a heavy penalty and the county the inconvenience and loss resulting from the delinquency.

Packing House Strike Ends

The big strike of Packing House Employees in the east has been declared off by government interference which promises to submit the entire matter to arbitration, says a dispatch received today.

Matt Allison, a prominent stockman of Savannah, Mo., is here with a carload of fine registered Hereford bulls. The stock is of the good old Missouri type and will be sold readily. The Carrizozo Live Stock Commission Co. will dispose of the bulls for Mr. Allison.

LEAGUE OF SOUTHWEST CONSIDERS DEVELOPMENT

It All Depends On Concerted Action

As the time draws near for the New State Oil & Gas Company to close down on the proposition of getting drilling companies to enter our borders and drill test wells, one thing, and a most vital thing, must be taken into consideration by land owners and holders who have not as yet leased their land to this reliable company. These people mean well when they say that as soon as arrangements can be made with drilling companies, their land is ready, but these people must bear in mind the fact that said drilling companies will not contract without the proof of the acreage in black and white as an assurance on the part of the New State Oil & Gas Co., that they will perform their duty; which of course is the guarantee of the necessary amount of acreage. We cannot expect them to come on promises; it is the guarantee they must have. If you are inclined to feel friendly to the proposition at all, you should so express yourselves now. While the iron is HOT. TURN IN YOUR LEASES.

Mrs. Eugene Jones Passes Away

Last Monday, Mrs. Eugene Jones of Oscurito died after an illness of short duration. Mrs. Jones being well known in the locality was therefore, much loved by her many acquaintances. No alarm was felt at her illness as is evidenced from the fact that her daughter, Miss Laura Jones was in Carrizozo on Monday in company with friends none of whom would have ventured away from the home town should they have entertained a thought of her condition as being dangerous.

The funeral services were held at the family residence on Wednesday, with the Rev. A. C. Douglas of the Carrizozo Methodist Church conducting the same and interment was made in the Oscurito cemetery. The surviving members of the family have the sympathy of the entire community in their bereavement.

Railroad Men Will Strike

A message sent broadcast over the country today conveys the information that the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen will strike on April 4. The message came from Little Rock, Ark.

Another from Roanoke, Va. contains the information that on all Eastern roads the same action has been taken. The news from Little Rock has reference to the action of the men on the Rock Island system. Later news is expected which may involve all lines over the United States which will make the situation grave.

Delegates in Convention at Los Angeles to Promote The Reclamation of The Arid West. Governor Welcomes Guests in the Name of "Flag of The Forest."

Los Angeles, Calif., April 1.—Welcoming delegates to the annual convention of the Southwest, which opened a three day session here today, Gov. William D. Stephens, of California, said in part:

"You are assembled for the purpose of planning the development—to an extent thought impossible a few years ago—of this great southwest section of the United States, and more particularly the great basis of the Colorado river. The possibilities in agriculture and industry through the irrigation and cultivation of lands now barren, and of development of power now latent are almost beyond comprehension.

"The proper conservation, distribution and use for irrigation and power purposes of the waters that fall tributary to the Colorado river and its branches will yield millions of units of power with which to run railroads, operate mines and manufacturing, illuminate our cities and our homes, will add millions of tons of food to the world's supply and will lighten the burdens as well as add to the comforts of all our people."

Scenes Shifting; Now It's The Wild East

Galesburg, Ill., March 30.—An attempt to wreck the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy west-bound passenger train No. 5, two miles west of Naposet, last night, was frustrated by a telephone call from a farmer, it became known here today.

Farmers living near the right of way noticed suspicious looking persons along the track early in the evening and sent a telephone message to the train dispatcher in Kewanee, who warned the train crew. Running at slow speed the engineer discovered a large tie across the track.

It is reported that $150,000 was in the safe in the express car.

Night Riders Loose Again

Mayfield, Ky., March 30.—The first outbreak of night riders troubles in Western Kentucky in 13 years occurred last night when between 200 and 300 tobacco growers from the northern section of Graves county, visited the Mayfield tobacco huts and applied the torch.

The renewal of night riding is said to be the result of the fight of tobacco growers of this section of the state against the dropping prices of tobacco.

WHITE MAN IS DEAF TO ANDREA'S PLEADINGS.

Andrea Pellor, handsome daughter of Lord Pellor, impetuous aristocrat, is doomed to marry an illiterate but wealthy middle-aged diamond mine owner. She disconsolately wanders from her hotel in South Africa and discovers an aviator about to fly from the beach. Impulsively, of course imagining that the trip will be merely a pleasant excursion, and a welcome relief from thoughts of her loveless marriage, she begs to be taken for a flight, although she does not know him. He somewhat unwillingly agrees, and they start. When she realizes her unknown aviator is not going back Andrea in desperation tries to choke him with one of her stockings. He thwarts her and they sail on into the very heart of Africa. Landing in an immense cañon, Andrea finds the natives all bow in worship to her mysterious companion. She is given a slave boy, "Bathub," and the White Man sets about building a hut for her. Andrea is given a glimpse of the home which is to be hers, and wonders at its completeness.

CHAPTER III.—Continued.

"Tell your master that I shall come in ten minutes," she said, watched him go and closed the door after him. Then she turned and hurried to the little mirror on the wall. She flushed with anger as she looked at herself. The excitement coupled with the heat had made her forget her inappropriate garb.

She rehung the looting glass and looked around for implements of toilet. On the little table lay a comb and a single military brush, looking lonely without its mate. There were also a tin of powder, the common sprinkler variety that men use, a fresh bottle of dental lotion and a sealed box, proclaiming itself in loud type the container of the only perfect toothbrush.

"Not so bad," reflected Andrea, and went to work to make the best of what was already one of God's choicest creations. But when she had finished the wonderful result only angered her. The incongruity of sitting down thus garbed to an open-air camp dinner at half past five in the afternoon and face to face with a man in appropriate khaki, outraged her very accurate judgment as to what was fitting. Suddenly she remembered her cloak. She rushed to the door and called to Bathub. He came on the run, received her orders and a moment later fetched the all-concealing garment, still warm from its sun bath. Andrea put it on, her bare shoulders shrinking from its hot touch.

Beneath the acacia gleamed the white table set for two. Near it sat the man, nursing patience with a cigarette as is the way of the waiting male. He arose as Andrea drew near and threw his cigarette away. He was clothed in the full dress of the tropics—white mess jacket, black tie, white waistcoat, black trousers, silk hose and pumps. Clean shaven, hair well brushed, he had dotted the 's and crossed the 's of etiquette and stood for six feet of the best brand of unconscious gentleman.

Andrea stopped several paces away and gazed at him. Her eyes filled suddenly with tears and her heart swelled in the quick answer of the generous to the thoughtful. She drew near and said in a voice that trembled slightly, "You are considerate in all—little things."

She raised both hands to her throat, unhooked her cloak and let it slip from her shoulders. For an instant his eyes were those of a man of her own world. They swept over her as though they took the measure of her loveliness for the first time. They traveled with a flashing gaze from her soft hair to her flushed cheeks, down over her bare neck and into the fiery meshes of her filmy frock, and there they stopped with a jerk as though even in that moment he remembered that very short skirts and a truncated silk stocking might leave a serious gap in the all-too-frail defenses of modern modesty.

Then he came back in one swift upward sweep and met her own gaze, squarely, steadily. She drew a deep breath. Something sustaining had come into the white man's gray-blue eyes, something you could lean upon. He was suddenly not of her old world.

"I am afraid the soup is a little cold," he said as he stepped around to draw her chair for her.

The dinner was good beyond the reach of mere gross appetite, and it was served with a rapidity and smoothness that would have done credit to the oldest of the Pellor butlers.

"Your servants are well trained," said Andrea.

"Each has little to do," said the man. "He must do it well. That, incidentally, is the secret of getting satisfactory work out of an African."

"Is it?" said Andrea absently. "I've always heard they were a shiftless lot and that a white man could do the work of ten niggers."

"So he can, ordinarily," answered the man, almost as absently, "but there are times when ten 'boys,' picked 'boys'— He stopped as if he were lost in some far reminiscence.

A silence fell to the end of the meal, which coincided with the sudden end of the tropic day.

The man spoke to the servants for the first time. They cleared the table, set it again with glasses and liqueurs, cigars, cigarettes and coffee, and moved it slightly to one side. Then, from the nearby hut, they brought out two cushioned wicker chairs, home-made but comfortable. Andrea sank into hers with a peculiar feeling of well-being mixed with suspense. The man sat down opposite her, the table within easy reach of both but not between them. Something swayed with a jerk above their heads. Andrea, startled, looked up just in time to see an enormous white disk unroll from its edges, letting fall in a circle around them a snowy mesh of bobbinet.

They, and all they needed for comfort, became enclosed in an insect-proof cage that swayed softly to the evening stir of air. The servants weighted down its edges with flat stones and then lit two acetylene lamps that stood outside on stands placed at right angles to the couple within the net so that the eyes of both were spared the glare.

The man poured coffee and liqueurs, lit Andrea's cigarette, chose a cigar for himself and sat down. During the coffee they eyed each other in silence, taking each other's measure. "It is too bad," he said finally, "that we can't take this hour for itself alone and drink together a cup of peace and stillness and comfort."

His words were half a question and it was so that Andrea understood them. She drew a deep sigh, shrugged her bare shoulders and turned squarely to her companion. "It is too bad," she said, repeating his words with bitter emphasis, "that I can't forget that on this night I lose everything that matters—too bad I can't brush catastrophe and ruin aside for the sake of a fool moon and a cigarette."

As she spoke, the man braced himself. "Everything that matters," he repeated. "Hush! What have you lost that matters? Wherein have you been ruined?"

The girl stared at him, open-eyed. "You know who I am, what I stand for in my world, and how that world will make a chasm that I can never recross after this night and you can sit there and say it doesn't matter and ask where's the ruin?"

The man looked away from her tense face. "The things that matter," he said quietly, "are health—first of body and then of soul—honor that can stand alone, and the flame of an inner lamp. There is nothing else that really counts and you've lost none of these. As for ruin—" He turned his eyes back to her and in them was a gleam of quizzical challenge. "Shall I define ruin for you?"

"Please do," said Andrea, unsmiling. "Ruin," said the man, "is a burial. Whether it's Pompeii or an entire civilization lying under strata of a ten thousand years' stride of time—or an individual rotting under the sod of conventions, it's all one and the same thing. Routine is a tomb, and when you go so deep in its foul air that you can't keep burning the flame of that inner lamp I mentioned, why you're dead to every intent and every purpose. That, Andrea Pellor, is ruin."

He used her name without prefix, but without familiarity; simply as a corollary to his stark frankness. She realized this almost subconsciously. Her thoughts lingered on the substance of what he had said, but when she spoke she proved herself a woman. "Speaking of names, what is yours?" she asked.

"Mine? My name?" said the man, startled out of his role. He stared absently through and beyond her. "Why, I haven't any—now. Not that amounts to anything." His eyes came back to her. "Call me Mr. White Man as you have begun—just White Man when you feel genial, if you ever do."

"Well, Mr. White Man," said Andrea, with emphasis, "what you said about ruin didn't pass quite over my head. I believe you spoke with genuine sincerity and that, as you doubtless remember, is conversational bad taste. Somehow it didn't bore me, but do you really think that women are persuaded by words?"

The man dropped his eyes. "No," he said listlessly. "I don't. I know, but I had forgotten, that women are persuaded by love alone."

"What!" cried Andrea.

"Women," said the man, "know no conversion except through love." "I have no interest whatever in your abstractions," said Andrea angrily. "I don't care what you think on any subject under the sun. At this moment there is only one thing that concerns me—only one." She turned from him, threw her bare arms across the table and dropped her face against them. "What is to become of me? What do I care about women? I care about myself, about Andrea Pellor."

"I am glad that you do," said the man, and added grimly, "If you cry, if you even start to cry, I shall go to bed."

Andrea threw back her head and turned her face toward him. "I am not crying," she said quietly, "and I will not."

Her anger had died and in its place had come into her eyes something terribly potent, the unforgettable look of a hunted thing at bay.

"I want to ask you," continued Andrea, "to improve you, to take me back. If not tonight, then tomorrow. Flying or on foot, if only we could start now. I will say that it has all been my fault, that you did nothing beyond what I asked you to do in bringing me with you, if only—if only you will take me back. Will you?"

The man clenched his teeth. "I would if I could. I've told you that already," he said almost in a whisper. Then his voice grew clearer and colder.

"It would take eight days by any means at my disposal—eight days there and eight days back. I can't afford it and nothing would be saved or gained as far as you are concerned. It would only entail a loss I have no right to give."

His mood hardened Andrea's. "You mean that when it comes to choosing between my personal loss and yours, you see no reason to hesitate."

The man flushed under his tan and his eyes gleamed as though her words had given them new life. "Mine would not be a personal loss," he said. "I am not a loafer nor am I here for my pleasure."

"I see," said Andrea. "My life against the interests of your employer. Are you a foreman?"

He shrugged his shoulders and ignored the question. "Your life?" he said. "What are you worth, after all? The best specimen of woman in this camp represents an investment on the part of the husband of two pounds ten shillings—say three pounds at the most. Every girl child she bears and rears brings him a hundred per cent return, and in addition she keeps house, cooks, chops wood, totes water and tills his fields."

Again Andrea jerked him out of his role with her inconsequence. "What does tote mean?" she asked rather telly.

"To tote means to carry, fetch, lug, bear—"

"Thank you," she interrupted. "By the way, did you mean to measure me against that three-pound standard?"

"I did," said the man.

She threw out her arms in a gesture of disclosure and laughed. "To think," she said, "that it's only a few weeks since I was knocked down to the highest bidder at twenty thousand a year!"

"Not you," said the man quickly. "He wasn't buying you. You never even thought it. I happen to know him, perhaps better than you do, and I can assure you that the tinsel and the pomp he was bargaining for, innocent enough in themselves, would have become despicable and tainted by his possession."

He was silent for a moment; then, just as Andrea's lips were opening to a remark, he added, "I'm glad you brought him to my mind. The thought of him has freed me from my regret. You're here, I'm glad you are, and you shall stay. The only question is whether you are going to sulk or whether you will smile and accept the cure of the philosophy of contrasts."

"That's a new one," said Andrea.

"Not at all," replied the man. The philosophy of contrasts is based on the idea that a rut and death are one and the same thing."

"You've misused your vacation, White Man," said Andrea flippantly. "You should get your pulpit and turn missionary to society."

"I've got the face of the earth for a pulpit," said the man easily, "and I couldn't do with less."

"I had suspected that there was something colossal about you," replied Andrea quickly, "and now I know it. It is your impertinent self-sufficiency—"

"You misunderstood me," interrupted the man, himself unmoved. "What I mean by that flamboyant statement was that no philosophy has ever lived except through example and one can't fulfill the creed of contrasts with less than the whole world for a playground."

"And has it never failed?" His eyes wandered to the half-wrecked aeroplane. "Yes, it has failed—once."

"A case of 'physician cure'—" began Andrea and stopped. His eyes had swerved back to hers and the naked look of regret in them frightened her. "Well," she continued, glancing away hastily, "do you really want to—convert me?"

He started in his chair and if he had been thinking of his personal troubles, promptly forgot them. Had it been merely a chance shot, he speculated, or was this young lady possessed of that rarest of virtues, a quick wit mischief in the face of adversity? "Women know no conversion except through love," were the exact words he had used. He recalled them perfectly, and watching in silence a telltale flush rise from her bare neck into her hot cheeks, he perceived that she also remembered.

"Oh!" cried Andrea, "I think you are horrible."

"I haven't said anything," remonstrated the man.

"That's why," snapped Andrea. "You could have said something. You keep quiet and give a beastly significance—significance—"

He helped her out. "To a little joke," he finished and added quite gravely: "Be sure I shall do all in my power not to convert you."

CHAPTER IV.

The heat of the day had quite passed. Andrea felt of her arms. They were soft and cool. She laid them on the table and studied them as though she never had noticed them before. She was thinking that all her fright had died away. She was alone with a man, alone by over a hundred miles and yet—never had she felt less lonely, more secure. She threw up her head, turned to her companion with a smile and said, "I've decided not to sulk, White Man. Tell me what your philosophy will do for me if I give it a try."

"It's Only a Few Weeks Since I Was Knocked Down to the Highest Bidder."

The man drew a long breath of relief, examined the ash of his cigar and flicked it off. "First of all," he began, "it will lift a fever from you, the fever of hastening from one little thing to another. Look back and tell me if your memories aren't all stock varieties; I mean don't they all fall into set and dry classifications?"

"I understand," said Andrea. "You mean they are all chucked into about six bins like staples at a grocery."

He gave her a look of undisguised admiration. "I mean exactly that. My philosophy will give you the secret of the happy idle hour. Never again can a city or a great house quite smother you, for it will be in your power to sit spellbound, your eyes fixed ten thousand miles away on a gridle of high-peaked huts, or black women pounding millet, pot-bellied pickaninies at play, a blotch of bronze statues taking an hour off from pose and chanting the news of the hour."

"And an airplane," added Andrea, "trying to push two surprised huts out of the way."

The man made an impatient gesture. "There you go," he exclaimed, "pouncing, claws out, on the one personal element!"

"Why?" cried Andrea, eyes innocently wide. "What's personal about an airplane?"

He looked at her grimly and ignored the trap. "It will give you things to think about," he continued, "and when you have them you'll no longer be afraid of thought in itself, and when you are freed of that fear you will find that sincerity ceases to be conversational bad taste. It becomes rather a weapon, the only probe that can pierce the armor of individuals, for of course you know that every personality wears a shell, thick or thin, close-joined or loose."

She turned her eyes and looked him up and down fleetingly. "What else will your philosophy do for me?" she asked.

"What else?" he repeated. "It will make you gloriously independent—reduce you to the three elements of content—health, honor and an inner flame."

"Let's begin with the inner flame," she suggested. "It sounds mystic."

"But it isn't," he replied. "It's the most practical thing in the world. Ambition, illusion, youth, are a few of its commoner appellations, but the one that comes nearest to imprisoning it in a phrase is, breath of life."

Andrea studied him almost impatiently; inwardly she was rebelling tremendously at finding herself so continually interested by one who was even at the moment calmly doing her a great wrong. If he had spoken as didactically about his precious philosophy she would have found herself at once; but he hadn't. In that point more than in any other lay the charm—charm? Well, call it charm, anyway, of this unusual male.

Having thought the matter out with a view to hearing him browse some more, she said, "Can't you bring it a little nearer?"

"I'll try," he answered after a pause. "Breath of life is that quality which holds back a man from marrying for money and urges another to the desertion of wife and children because he's bored, that makes a preacher leap from the pricking pinnacle of dogma to the heart of the Red Light district and his own destruction, that leads the king-bull of the herd to impatient paths of lonely meditation. In short, it's the perpetual vigilance of self at the apparent risk of the soul."

"Sort of sublimated egoism," remarked Andrea.

"Selfishness, you mean?" He shook his head. "It's not even on that plane; it's so much over it that selfishness as a quality is merely one of the pebbles on the beach below it that the sea has been grinding down to uniform characteristics for a hundred years. Alive, it's a flame; dead, it doesn't even leave a corpse."

Andrea yawned. "Now honor," she said.

"Won't you talk a little?" said the man. "Defining is a great game and I don't want to hog all the fun. Speak for your class. What's honor?"

Andrea thought for a minute; then she smiled. "With women, it's keeping anywhere this side of the Rubicon," she paused.

"And with men?" he urged.

"With men it's the art of not getting caught."

"Capital!" he exclaimed.

"Yes," she murmured. "I thought you would like those answers." He stared at her, but she kept her face innocent of malice. "Now tell me what honor really is."

"I believe you could have told me," he answered, "except for the fact that your exceptionally good taste bars sincerity. It's what is left of morality when you're sure no one is looking."

Andrea stifled another yawn. "Some of the things you say," she gasped, "are almost clever enough for a book to read in bed."

"I beg your pardon. I'm sorry," said the man and clapped his hands loudly. A bundle under the tree, wrapped up head and all in a blanket, resolved itself into Bathub rubbing sleep out of his eyes; arose, seized a rope on a pulley and hauled. The circular mosquito net rolled up from about the table.

"Will you go to your room and tell me if you have everything?" asked the man. "Everything necessary, I mean."

Simply Solved.

He had been calling on the Widow Smiths for some time, and it could not be said that he had made an impression, although he had failed to realize the fact. She decided to speed him on his way at the first opportunity, and it came that night. He heaved a sigh and said, "I have only one friend on earth—my dog." "Well," she answered, calmly, "if that isn't enough, why don't you get another dog?"

RECIPE FOR GRAY HAIR.

To half pint of water add 1 oz. Bay Rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, and 1/4 oz. of glycerine. Apply to the hair twice a

Any druggist can put this up or you can and will make harsh hair soft and glossy.

It will not color the scalp, is not sticky or

What Neighbors Say

Walden, Colo.—"I am glad to add my testimony in regard to what Dr. Pierce's Anuric Tablets have done for me. I am sure they saved my life, and if I can be instrumental in helping others I will feel well repaid. My kidneys and bladder were in very bad condition for a long time and got worse every day. I used one bottle of a well-known kidney medicine without any result, then I took two bottles of another remedy and used them but got worse every day. I was in terrible shape, was disturbed eight to twelve times in a night and suffered excruciating pain and there would be a thick brownish sediment. I was despondent.
At last I saw 'Anuric' advertised in a Kansas City paper and I thought it just suited my case so I sent to Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., for a trial package, which was ten cents. I took two tablets at night and felt much better in the morning and by the second morning I didn't feel any pain at all when voiding the kidney secretion. In a week there was no sediment in the water, and it has been normal ever since. That was eighteen months ago, therefore it would be hard to make the claim for 'Anuric' too strong."

Kansas City, Kans.—"About the only

cate would become run-down very quickly; would suffer loss of appetite. I would give Night thousand persons have been received in Paris. Of this number 850 were killed in Berlin alone.

Septuagets were born to the wife of weighing about two pounds apiece, and each perfectly developed in every re-

The constant pacing of the sentinel

Liquor may be removed by the owner from his home in West Virginia to his permanent residence in another state, according to a ruling at Parkersburg, W. Va. Owners of intoxicants may not remove them from one place to another within the state, however.

Declaring he had reason to believe that intoxicating liquors are being sold "openly and brazenly" to members of the Legislature, Sen. J. W. Calbra Wells, federal prohibition commissioner for Mississippi, appealed to the lawmakers as law-abiding citizens to reveal the source of their "supply."

Announcement has been made that Swift & Co. here had received a carload of frozen veal from New Zealand.
The veal entered the United States by way of San Francisco. The shipment is a tryout, plenty more being available if the pioneer carload proves satisfactory as a method to reduce the cost of living.

MODERN YOUTH HARD TO TRAP

Little Near-Tragedy Story That is an Example of His Quick Wit and Duplicity.

Of course, he shouldn't have done it,
and all that sort of thing, but both Hazel and Betty were charming girls, and it was summertime, and he was young, and he had gone and got himself engaged to both of them. He was sitting on the beach pondering the various problems this situation presented, when two soft hands were laid lightly over his eyes and a soft voice whispered at the back of his head
"Guess who?"

Now, the voices of Hazel and Betty were much alike, too much alike when heard as a whisper to make identification sure. And it didn't help any when the voice cooed—"I'll give you a hint—it's some one you told you loved."

Still he hesitated, his mind in a whirl. Should he name either girl and chance it? Already he felt a cooling of the air, as the voice continued:
"Well, if that doesn't tell you who—"
"Of course I know who it is!" he exclaimed. "It is the prettiest, sweetest, dearest, smartest little girl in all the world!"

"Oh, you dear old boy!" she chirped in satisfied delight. "How did you really know for sure it was I?"

Virtue is almost anti-everything.
Most of the commandments are "don't."

Some men are born kickers and some fall victims of dyspepsia.

Anyhow, They Saw Action.

The untold anti-aircraft battery had gone into position for the first time in the Toul sector. Determined, like most newcomers, not to let anything get away from it, it blazed away indiscriminately and vociferously at every speck that appeared in the sky.

After one particularly active session its commander ran across an old friend, who asked him how the outfit was coming along.

"Oh, not so badly," answered the C. O. without elation. "We brought down five planes the other day."

"Five! Why, that's wonderful!
Mighty few batteries have done that.
Are you sure you got the figure straight?"

"Fact, no doubt about it," replied the captain, gloomily. "One Boche and four allied."—The Home Sector.

Supreme Office.

Robert came home filled with excitement about a new club formed by several of the neighborhood associates.
He said, "Jim is president and Myron is vice president, but I am the most important officer."

"And what are you?" asked Uncle Robert.

"Why, I'm janitor, and they can't get in till I unlock the door!"

On Even Terms.

An old codger, disliking the remarks of the chairman at a political meeting, shouted: "Young man, I was a Republican before you were born."
"What of that?" came back the chairman. "I will be a Republican after you are dead. Sit down!"—Exchange.

What men who do big work say about overalls—

FRED McCULLOCH is one of the biggest corn growers in his state—Edward Gibson is the champion riveter of the U. S. Shipyards—James Heberer runs the Twentieth Century Limited—these men know their jobs from top to bottom.

And they know what to wear on the job. They know how much good, strong, comfortable overalls mean when you do big work.

That's why all three wear Blue Buckles. That's why more men wear Blue Buckles than any other overall in the world.

Tough, longest-wearing denim, sewed with wide, double-stitched seams, goes into every pair. Blue Buckles are big and roomy. They never rip or bind. First-class workmanship makes every detail about Blue Buckles right. They have heavy riveted brass buttons, best quality buckles and loops, a solid back-band, big, convenient, reinforced pockets, and extra wide suspenders. All Blue Buckle coats have free swing, raglan sleeves.

Ask your dealer for Blue Buckles.

To Dealers:—If you want to know where to get Blue Buckles, write to Blue Buckle Overalls, Lynchburg, Va., and we will give you the name of your nearest jobber.

The Woman's Missionary Society of the Methodist Church will meet at the home of Mrs. C. P. Huppertz, Tuesday afternoon, April 6th. A full attendance is desired as there is business of importance. ### Good Improvement Contractor Frank English is busy this week in removing the old wooden culverts on El Paso avenue and replacing the same with concrete. This will do away with a trouble that has been of much annoyance in the past by the wooden culverts continually rotting out and having to be replaced about twice a year.

THE UNIVERSAL CAR

The Ford car can well be called the "people's car," because there are more than 3,000,000 of them in daily operation. That is about four to one of the nearest follower in the motor car industry. This would not be so if the Ford car had not for sixteen years proven its superiority in service, in durability, and in the low cost for operation and maintenance; this would not be so if the Ford car was not so easy to understand, so simple in construction that anybody and everybody can safely drive it. ## SCHOOL NOTES

(By Supt. E. E. Cole)

The County Teachers' Convention of last Friday and Saturday was a big success. About forty-five teachers of the county enrolled, which was really a large percentage. The spirit shown by some of those in attendance, in their efforts to reach Carrizozo, was simply fine. One teacher walked nine miles.

Mrs. Ruth C. Miller, State Director of Home Economics, was unable to be present owing to serious sickness in her family. President Roberts, of the Normal University at Las Vegas, Dean Caroon, of the same institution, and President Hall, of the State Normal at Silver City, were here and were a wonderful help and inspiration to all of us. Dean Caroon was a great help in the absence of Mrs. Miller and Mr. Goodell. On Saturday afternoon he tested little Ruth Brickley, a seven year old girl, for mentality and found her fifteen per cent more bright than the average or normal child of that age.

The music of the convention was good. The lecture of Dr. Roberts on Friday night was so good that several of the high school students, after the lecture, came to the platform to seek further information on some of the points presented.

E. E. Cole was reelected president of the convention for next year, Mabel J. Smith, of Lincoln, vice president, and Miss Mildred Peters, of Capitan, as secretary-treasurer.

We again wish to thank the good people of Carrizozo for their cheerful and ready response to the solicitation for meals and rooms for the visiting teachers. We never saw such a fine spirit of generosity as was shown by the people of Carrizozo.

Last Monday, the teachers' reading circle met in the office of the superintendent. Those present were Mrs. Gumm, Miss Hughes, Mrs. Massie, Miss Neff, Miss Sullivan, Miss Jarrett, Mr. Cole. Miss Sullivan gave a very full and complete report of the styles and methods of teaching penmanship. Miss Neff, in a lengthy and comprehensive talk, showed considerable knowledge of Home Economics. Betts' School Management will be finished at the next meeting of the reading circle.

There are quite a number of the students as well as teachers of Carrizozo and Lincoln County who are planning to attend the Normal University at Las Vegas next June and July. This is a fine place to do summer work. There were 1073 students at Las Vegas last summer, 31 being from Lincoln County. Two of the students in the commercial course have very recently decided to go.

The best investment today is an all-wool "Quality First" Kuppenheimer suit for Easter. Only high-grade clothing will be shown at the Carrizozo Trading Co.

Extract From The Governor's Proclamation

After designating April 9, as Arbor Day, the Governor finishes his proclamation with the following.

"As stated in Arbor Day proclamation of last year, there is also a beautiful sentimental purpose that may be coupled with tree planting this year as well as the year before; that sentiment is to perpetuate in every home in our state the memory of the brave boys from New Mexico who, in the battle fields of France, fought for the preservation of that liberal form of government under which we all live, and which we love so well: many of those boys now rest in their last sleep in the hospitable soil of France; others have come back to us in a maimed and disabled condition, doomed to carry through life the marks and scars that they received in the terrible struggle, while many others have come back to us in the bloom of life, bringing with them, as a pardonable cause of pride to themselves and their families, the consciousness of duty well performed, in the loyal discharge of duty to country and home. That in planting each tree, or a grove of trees, we give to that single tree, or that grove of trees, the name of some loved one of the family who thus signalized himself and his relatives by cheerfully rendering, or offering to render, the last full measure of devotion to his country in that great struggle. That we shall certainly derive great satisfaction and pride, goes without saying, and such a purpose and object in view will stimulate us in bending our efforts and energies in looking to the preservation of the tree, or of the grove of trees, thus lovingly and gratefully planted and dedicated, and I earnestly invite the people of our state, particularly the youths and the children of schools and of all institutions of learning, to carry these ideas into practice on Arbor Day."

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J.

OYSTER, OLD STAND BY
OF LADIES AID, GIVEN
HONORABLE OUSTER

Interchurch World Movement Will Put Church on Business Basis
 Where Won't Need to Beg.

The little oyster, once such an essential money-making factor in church circles, is henceforth to be taboo. It will be regarded by the Ladies' Aid Society as a thing to be shunned. Its help to pay the preacher's salary or to plug the hole in the church roof or to send a missionary to India or Africa will no longer be needed. The Interchurch World Movement is to put the Christian Church on a business man's budget basis.

Of course the oyster will get an honorable discharge from the service, for it did not desert, but was the standby of the Ladies' Aid Society until the women found a better way of financing their obligations for promoting church work. That better way is now being studied in practically all the women's church societies in the United States, according to Miss Laura J.
 Wright, superintendent of the woman's division of the Stewardship Department of the Interchurch World Movement.

"There will no longer be any need for the women of our churches to resort to all sorts of services for raising money for church purposes when they have learned of the better way which the Stewardship Plan provides," said Miss Wright. "The acknowledgement of the principle that God is the owner of all things and that men and women are the stewards makes church financing easy. Wherever the Stewardship Plan is put into operation, oyster suppers, bazaar, rummage sales and the like in churches become a thing of the past. They are not needed. We owe God all that is given to us and we must acknowledge this principle in order to get the most out of our religion."

Read the Church column above and avail yourselves of the opportunity of attending services at the different places of worship on Easter Sunday.

Lift Off Corns!

Doesn't hurt! Lift touchy corns and calluses right off with fingers

Apply a few drops of "Freezone" upon that old, bothersome corn. Instantly that corn stops hurting. Then shortly you lift it right off, root and all, without pain or soreness.

Hard corns, soft corns, corns between the toes, and the hard skin calluses on bottom of feet lift right off—no humbug!

Tiny bottles of "Freezone" cost but a few cents at drug stores

Kindness.

When the Brazen Hussey moved into the house next door, the "Uplifter" said: "Of course, I can't exactly call. But if she comes out on her veranda to sit, I shall smile at her. The only way to get a hold on people like that is to be friendly."

And the Brazen Hussey looked at the "Uplifter" next door and said to herself: "Poor fright! I suppose I might as well speak to her. Perhaps after a little she will let me show her how to do her hair."—Life.

Do Not Get Careless With Your Blood Supply

Impurities Invite Disease.

You should pay particular heed to any indication that your blood supply is becoming sluggish, or that there is a lessening in its strong and vital force.

By keeping your blood purified, your system more easily wards off disease that is ever present, waiting to attack wherever there is an opening. A few bottles of S. S. S., the great vegetable blood medicine, will revitalize your blood and give you new strength and a healthy, vigorous vitality. Everyone needs it just now to keep the system in perfect condition. Go to your drug store and get a bottle to-day, and if you need any medical advice, you can obtain it without cost by writing to Medical Director, Swift Specific Co., 109 Swift Laboratory, Atlanta, Ga.

FASCINATED THE FAIR SEX

Marat, Repulsive in Person and Manners, Was Noted for His Attractiveness to Women.

Jean Paul Marat, one of the leading and most infamous figures of the French revolution, was described by a contemporary as "beyond any question the ugliest man in the whole of France—and not merely ugly, but positively repulsive in person, habits and manners." And yet, in his early years, he was the most popular physician in Paris, not because of supposed professional skill, but on account of his attractiveness to women, the most wealthy and beautiful women of France daily crowding his consultation rooms, pushing, almost fighting, to get a word or perhaps, a single from him. That he turned a cold shoulder to their attentions seemed only to inflame their ardor, and at one time he contemplated flight, so embarrassing became their attentions. Even when he contracted a loathsome skin disease while hiding in the sewers of Paris, fair women continued to adore him.

The Retort Courteous.

He—Don't you try to make a fool of me.

She—Not after your boasts of being a self-made man and doing the job much better than I could.

KING HAD SOME IMAGINATION

Wonderful Story of "Waterless Sea" Would Have Done Credit to Baron Munchausen.

Prester John as a title was like the Egyptian Pharaoh and belonged to whole lines of king who reigned in the East and in Ethiopia in particular. One writer of long ago sets Abyssinia as the kingdom of Prester John. Abyssinia used to be called "Middle India." It is related that before the year 1241 a letter was addressed by Prester John to Manuel Comnenus, emperor of Constantinople, saying that in Prester John's country there is a "waterless sea," which none have ever crossed. It consists of tumbling billows of sand, never at rest, and contains fish of most excellent flavor.

Three days' journey from the coast of the sand sea is a mountain whence rolls down a "waterless river," consisting of small stones, which crumble into sand when they reach the sea.

Whoever Prester John may have been, if he invented that story, he certainly possessed a vivid imagination and considerable originality.

"Three years ago my system was in a terribly run down condition and I was broken out all over my body. I began to be worried about my condition and I was glad to try anything which would relieve me. ## If You Need a Medicine You Should Have the Best

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised, all at once drop out of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain—the article did not fulfill the promises of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medicinal preparation that has real curative value almost sells itself, as like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have been benefited, to those who are in need of it.

A prominent druggist says "Take for example Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a preparation I have sold for many years and never hesitate to recommend, for in almost every case it shows excellent results, as many of my customers testify. No other kidney remedy has so large a sale."

According to sworn statements and verified testimony of thousands who have used the preparation, the success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact, so many people claim, that it fulfills almost every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder ailments; corrects urinary troubles and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism. You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by Parcel Post. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents; also mention this paper. Large and medium size bottles for sale at all drug stores.—Adv.

OPEN NOSTRILS! END COLD OR CATARRH

How to Get Relief When Head and Nose Are Stuffed Up.

Count fifty. Your cold in head or catarrh disappears. Your clogged nostrils will open, the air passages of your head will clear and you can breathe freely. No more snuffling, hawking, mucous discharge, dryness or headache, no struggling for breath at night.

Get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm from your druggist and apply a little of this fragrant antiseptic cream in your nostrils. It penetrates through every air passage of the head, soothing and healing the swollen or inflamed mucous membrane, giving you instant relief. Head colds and catarrh yield like magic. Don't stay stuffed-up and miserable. Relief is sure.—Adv.

Airmen Will Report

Forest Fire

Albuquerque, N. M., April 1.—United States army aviators while patrolling their aerial beats along the Mexican border will take time to locate and report forest fires on the Coronado national forest, in southern Arizona, under an agreement just made by Major Ralph Royce, of the air service, and District Forester Frank C. W. Pooler of the forest service. Under this agreement, army aviators will be permitted to leave their border patrol in order to ascertain the exact location of forest fires, and in certain cases special patrol trips may be undertaken with the permission of the district commander of the air service. The region covered by this patrol includes the Chiricahua, Tumacacori, and Huachuca mountain ranges. When forest fire are discovered by the airmen, notice will be telegraphed to the nearest forest ranger.

Forest fire prevention will hold an equal part with tree planting in the observance of Arbor Day in New Mexico on April 9, according to the Arbor Day proclamation issued by Governor O. A. Larrazolo. In setting forth the need of tree-planting, he points out the equal need of protecting forests from fires, and urges also the planting of memorial trees and groves in memory of New Mexico soldiers who gave their lives in the war.

In urging the planting of trees on Arbor Day, Governor Larrazolo asks school teachers, forest rangers, and all others having knowledge of the prevention of forest fires to give talks before school children and public audiences on the necessity of care with fire in the woods.

As a result of the governor's proclamation, the forest service is taking a part in the campaign to have forest fire prevention taught in all the public schools on Arbor day. Many forest rangers will give talks to school children both on tree planting and on fire prevention.

Help the Game Protector

The petty thief is a menace to society and is universally considered as such. Any one will go out of his way to help apprehend and convict the man who takes that which does not belong to him. Why is it then that so many people are inclined to wink at violations of the game laws? Many sportsmen, while not approving of the gunner who breaks the laws for the protection of game, refuse to assist the game warden in checking the violation. Imagine the predicament the sheriff would be in when called upon to apprehend a violator of the criminal code if those knowing the facts in the case would refuse to give him information they possessed. Can you imagine a citizen in good standing telling an officer of the law that he knew who stole the horse, or who broke into the corner grocery, but that it was the officer's business to catch the thief and he was not going to get mixed up in it? This very condition is an example of what the game warden is confronted with every day.

It is up to the sportsmen to help in every way they can. Does the game law violator deserve any consideration from the sportsman who lives up to the letter of the law? Does he not steal the sport and the game from the man who obeys the law? In shooting during the closed season and in exceeding the bag limit, is he not stealing? Help the local game protector in his effort to catch the thief. If you do not know how to reach the game warden for your district when a violation comes to your notice, write the Association and give us all the facts and we will see that the information reaches the proper authorities. Help enforce the game laws and have "More Game" and better shooting in your locality.—Southwestern Fish, Game and Forest Protection Association, Carrizozo, N. M.

Establish Orphanage in Rome.

By reason of the liberal response from the native Christians in the various mission fields to the 75 Million Campaign, many improvements on those fields have been made possible. Among the enlargements already provided for are an orphanage in Rome, the addition of a girls' department at Rio College in Brazil, and land for a girls' school at Sao Paulo, Brazil.

The Interior China Mission was asked for $7,500 for the campaign, and the missionaries there subscribed this alone, while the native converts added $4,500. The North China Mission has subscribed $50,000, while Brazil will respond with nearly $1,000,000. In South Brazil the campaign as it was carried on in the South, was duplicated with all the special days and other extraordinary efforts and the response is far beyond the anticipations of the Foreign Mission Board. In Argentina the quota asked was $75,000, while the returns from that country have already reached $125,000.

LESS MEAT IF BACK AND KIDNEYS HURT

Take a Glass of Salts to Flush Kidneys if Bladder Bothers You.

Eating meat regularly eventually produces kidney trouble in some form or other, says a well-known authority, because the uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish; clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region; rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity; also to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus avoiding serious kidney disease.—Adv.

OUTLAWS BURN HOMES AND CROPS

VILLA BAND WIPE OUT SMALL TOWN IN CHIHUAHUA IS REPORT.

FIFTY PEOPLE SLAIN

FIGHT FOLLOWS DEMAND FOR PROVISIONS BY OUTLAW BAND.

Western Newspaper Union News Service.

El Paso, Texas, March 25.—An entire Mexican farm settlement near Santa Barbara, Chihuahua, was wiped out recently when Francisco Villa and his followers massacred over fifty men, women and children and burned their homes and crops, according to a report brought to the border here.

Angered because a small party of his men had been fired upon near the community on the previous day, Villa, with 150 men, swooped down on the place. The farmers stoutly defended their homes, and it was not until twenty-five or thirty had been killed and their ammunition exhausted that the survivors, twenty-five in number, surrendered, according to this report.

These survivors there is reason to believe, would have escaped with their lives had not one young man crazed with grief over the loss of his wife and family, attacked Villa and attempted to wrest the rebel leader's gun from his hand. Villa, being larger and heavier than his adversary, subdued the man after a struggle and shot him dead. In his fury Villa then ordered all the men of the community put to death and the houses, grain and other possessions of the community burned, it was said.

According to one of the three men who escaped death at the hands of the rebels, a small party of Villa followers rode up to the village and demanded provisions.

Being refused they threatened to shoot up the community, and members of the local militia, or social defenders, opened fire on them, driving them into the brush.

The reprisal attack began and lasted several hours during which time the farmers succeeded in killing at least fifteen of the attacking party. Among the villagers killed during the fighting were a number of women and children.

Noted Author-Minister is Dead.

Denver.—With the words "Peace, Peace" on his lips, Dean Henry Martyn Hart of St. John's Cathedral, one of the country's leading churchmen, died at his home, 1324 Washington street, here. Although death was not unexpected since he took to his bed Feb. 19 with pneumonia, Dean Hart's passing on came as a personal loss to a very large following in Denver. He had been closely allied with the city's growth since his arrival here in 1879, when, even at that early date, he was one of England's foremost ministers, having been founder of what later became world-wide organized charity, as well as being a popular writer on natural sciences.

H. C. L. Drives Italians to U. S.

New York.—The exodus from Italy because of the high cost of living is continuing. The steamship Argentina arrived here from Naples with 957 Italians, most of whom were former residents of this country who had returned to their native soil after the war with the intention of remaining there.

AFTER 6 YEARS—STILL WELL

Now Strong and Hearty Though Case Looked Hopeless

"Six years ago I was in awful condition," says E. K. Chase, 38 E. Cross St., Ypsilanti, Mich. "My family was told I couldn't live more than two months. I was in constant pain from the uric acid and was so bad with rheumatism my legs seemed all drawn up. My back never stopped hurting. The kidney secretions were held back until only a few drops came, and I bloated until I thought my skin would burst. My legs were twice their normal size. The water seemed to fill my chest and press against the heart. For three months I never moved out of the chair and I choked and gasped for breath like a dying man. All the doctoring failed, and my weight went from 185 to 125 pounds. "Doan's Kidney Pills saved my life. Eleven boxes cured me of every complaint. I have been well six years and able to work as hard as any man."
