NO 59

THAT $30,000,000 FOR IRRIGATION

It Is Now to Be Attached to Measure for Land Withdrawals

BRANDEIS SUMS UP CASE

Number of New Measures for New Mexico Introduced by Andrews.

Special to The New Mexican.
Washington, D. C., May 27.—The bill having passed the Senate issuing $30,000,000 in certificates for irrigation projects, the house ways and means committee not having reported the provision, it will now be added to the administration land withdrawal bill, with the approval of the President, thus assuring the passage of both bills. There are indications that the final vote on the railroad bill will be taken in the Senate today.

Measures by Delegate Andrews.
Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled:

Section 1. That the surveyor general of New Mexico, be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to cause the lines of the government survey of the lands in the county of Bernalillo in the territory of New Mexico, to be extended over all, or any part of such lands in said county as have not been sectionized, including land grants, and lands held in private ownership; the board of county commissioners of Bernalillo county having the right to designate the lands to be surveyed and over which section lines are to be extended, said survey, and extension of said lines to be completed before March 1, 1911.

Section 2. That before the said surveyor general shall commence the work herein authorized and directed, there shall be deposited by the board of county commissioners of Bernalillo county, with the receiver of public moneys at Santa Fe, amount sufficient, as estimated by the surveyor general, as will defray the expenses of survey. Provided, That so much of the money so deposited, remaining unexpended and unused, shall be returned to the depositors.

The bill was read twice and referred to the committee on territories.

Delegate Andrews has introduced a bill increasing the pension of Thomas Adoniram Carr which the committee on invalid pensions has reported favorably at $24 per month.

Brandeis Sums Up.

Washington, May 27.—In summing up the case of the so-called "prosecution" before the Ballinger-Pinchot investigating committee today, Attorney Louis D. Brandeis, counsel for L. R. Glavis declared that it has been conclusively established that Secretary Ballinger is not a man "so zealously devoted to the interests of the common people, so vigilant and resolute in resisting the insidious aggression of the special interests, that he may be safely depended on to carry forward the broad policy of conservation of our national resources."

"That he is subject to far severer criticism we firmly believe," added Mr. Brandeis.

Mr. Brandeis referred to Mr. Glavis as "the ideal public servant" and to Gifford Pinchot as a "man of character so high as to be even above the suspicion of self-seeking."

He vigorously defended the action of Stenographer Frederick M. Kerby in making public confidential information of the interior department bearing on the preparation of the Lawler memorandum.

"This investigation has been referred to as a struggle for conservation," he said, "it is far more. It is the struggle for democracy, the struggle for the small man against the overpowering influence of the big; politically as well as financially, the struggle to establish that every American is entitled to equal justice—in the public service as well as in the courts."

Mr. Brandeis declared that of 461 Alaska coal claimants whose addresses were secured by special agents early in their investigation 256 appeared to be residents of the Pacific coast and 164 lived in Seattle, Ballinger's home city.

"While these Pacific coast claimants remained undisturbed by further inquiries into the validity of their claims," he said, "most of the others, those residing in Illinois and Michigan were on September 24, 1907, directed to be brought to Ballinger's trip east to see his old friend, Garfield, and his friend and protégé, Bennett, on behalf of the Cunningham claimants."

"He says he was very unwilling to undertake this work and that he rather unexpectedly received only reimbursement of his traveling expenses."

PRESIDENT TAFT OFFENDED

Sends Chairman Tawney of House Committee a Letter

RESENTS UNFAIR CRITICISMS

Democrats Reflect Unfavorably Upon Hospitality of South.

Washington, D. C., May 27.—President Taft today sent to Chairman Tawney of the house committee on appropriations a letter expressing deep resentment at the criticisms passed by the Democrats in the House debate yesterday on the traveling expenses of the President, who says that he is especially distressed by the "suggested reflection on southern hospitality."

Carpenter Sent to Morocco.
Washington, May 27.—President Taft today appointed his secretary, Fred Farmer Carpenter of Sauk Center, Minn., to be minister to Morocco.

JOHN L. SULLIVAN HANDS OUT CHUNKS OF WISDOM.

A Man's Form as a Fighter After 25 Depends on the Kind of Life He is Leading.

New York, May 27.—John L. Sullivan has a few things to say on the Jeffries-Johnson fight on his arrival today from Europe and then staggered his interviewers by taking a long leap into the profundities of European politics. The former champion had been on a honeymoon trip in Europe and returned to see the big fight. "Jeffries doesn't need old fellows like Corbett and Chynski in his training," said John. "What he needs is young fellows with a lot more of speed than he has. After a fellow is 25, he generally begins to feel his speed going from him. Just how fast it leaves him depends a good bit on how fast the life he leads. Jeffries doesn't need a man he can box with. He should have some fellow who can worry him a whole lot." John L. Sullivan never knew a man who left the boxing game and then got back to form again. "There is always a possibility, though," he added, "for Jeffries is a hard man and a fighter from the word go. If he can get back into shape he's a better man than Johnson and can whip him easily."

Sullivan on British Finance.

New York, May 27.—The old fighter side-stepped pugilism and landed on the British budget. "England and Scotland are more impoverished than ever," he said. "All this here money Great Britain has been putting into her navy, you see, which Germany has been scaring her into, has proved an annual strain and this here budget bill is just going to make things terrible."

BREAK RECORD GUN SHOOTING.

Superiority of Uncle Sam's Marksmanship is Emphasized—Made 16 Bulls' Eyes.

Norfolk, Va., May 27.—The world's record for big gun shooting, which incidentally emphasizes the superiority of U. S. naval marksmanship has just been made by the battleship South Carolina. With her forward turret twelve inch guns she made 16 "bulls' eyes" target hits out of sixteen shots in 4 minutes 51 seconds.

GUILTY OF SUGAR FRAUDS

Three Defendants Throw Themselves on Mercy of Court

PROSECUTION FINISHED CASE

Sentence Was Deferred and Adjournment Taken to Tuesday.

New York, May 27.—Three of the defendants in the sugar underweighing conspiracy will plead guilty according to an announcement made today by their counsel Henry C. Cochran. The men are the former assistant dock superintendent, Henry W. Walker and two government weighers, Joseph F. Volker and James Halligan. Shortly after the opening of the trial today, when the prosecution announced it rested its case, counsel for Walker, Halligan and Volker withdrew their former pleas of not guilty and entered pleas of guilty on all charges. Sentence was deferred and court adjourned till Tuesday.

WILL FIGHT RAILROADS

Western Shippers Protest Against Increase in Freight Rates.

ALLEGED ILLEGAL COMBINATION

Will Appear Before Attorney General Wickersham at Washington.

Chicago, Ill., May 27.—Next Tuesday, the day before the new freight rates of western railroads go into effect, a delegation of shippers from the principal cities of the west will appear before Attorney General Wickersham in Washington with a petition to the governor to ask the federal courts to enjoin the railroads from putting the rates into effect. The contention will be that the committee which agreed upon the rates in behalf of the carriers is an illegal combination. The shippers claim to have evidence that will completely support their contention that the rate advance is illegal.

WHY TOURISTS CROSS POND

Record Rush for Europe This Year Explained By Paul Teutsch

OBERRAMMERSGAU IS MECCA

And Belgium Exposition Draws Crowd—European Hotels Cheap.

Despite the movement of the "See America First" enthusiasts, this season has seen the record rush for Europe on the part of people of the United States and the steamships are weighted down with men, women and children who are on their way to foreign shores. This was told in the telegraphic dispatches a day or two ago.

The wonderful scenic beauties of the west and the southwest are passed up; the ozone of New Mexico and the freedom that goes with it are neglected by the cross-the-pond enthusiasts; seasickness which makes any man or woman or child think that life is not worth while is risked rather than miss the European trip and the stay-at-home Americans wonder why?

Paul Teutsch, the prominent Mystic Shriner and who is agent for all of the steamship companies with headquarters in the Duke City said he could explain the phenomenal rush to Europe this year.

"There are reasons why Americans are crossing the pond this year," he said, "and among them may be mentioned the Passion Play at Oberammergau and the exposition that is being held in Belgium this summer. The Passion Play, as you know, takes place but once in ten years, and is a rare and interesting sight to see which many people think a trip to Europe is worth while."

"The moving pictures of the Passion Play, beautiful and wonderful as they are, give a faint idea of the great play enacted at Oberammergau."

"There are also many other reasons why people cross the ocean instead of the continent. There is more or less romance connected with the constantly changing ocean and in these days of gigantic steamships and a knowledge of what to eat and when to eat, that terrible malady the French call 'mal de mer' has lost much of its terrors. Then travel in Europe is a pleasure, a new language being heard, new types of men and women seen and everywhere good music and good cooking."

"It must also be remembered that thousands of people are willing and anxious to stop at four-franc a day (80 cents) hotels instead of spending their time at our American $4 creations. It is well known that millionaires go touring per auto through France and delight in stopping at these little 80 cents a day hotels en route. They escape society and its exactions and get splendidly cooked meals, diversion and lots of novelty."

"As long as Europeans know how to cater to Americans, we are going to see this rush across the pond and after the people have made the grande promenade of Europe we may look for them to tour the great southwest, and seek the cliff dwellings and the wonders of our canons. But just now Europe is in the limelight and America is swelling the box office receipts."

Mr. Teutsch admitted that the sum-

GOVERNOR MILLS MUCH PLEASED

Reception Given Him in Roswell was Most Enthusiastic and Cordial One.

THREE DAYS OF PLEASURE

One Round of Entertainment, Sightseeing, Reviews and Receptions.

Governor Mills who returned last evening from Roswell with Colonel Jose D. Sena, is enthusiastic in expressing his appreciation of the hospitality of Roswell and the kindness of its people. He is also thoroughly impressed with the idea that the New Mexico Military Institute is an institution of which not only the Pecos valley but the entire Territory has reason to be proud. It was one round of entertainment, sightseeing and pleasure from Monday evening, when the governor's party arrived in Roswell until late Wednesday night. The reception on Monday evening brought crowds of people to the National Guard Armory which was crowded to the doors. There was a luncheon, dance and other entertainment on Tuesday, review of the light artillery luncheon at the Country Club, baseball game and visit to the Hagerman farm on Wednesday. In the evening Governor Mills delivered the commencement address at the Military Institute. Governor Mills was the guest of Chief Justice W. H. Pope at Roswell. The only untoward incident was the serious illness of Adjutant General Brooks. On the way to Roswell, however, in the anxiety to make the city early in the evening, the automobiles were speeded and the chief executive not only received a severe shaking up but bumped his forehead against the edge of the seat before him, cutting a gash into his forehead. The return trip yesterday was also attended by ill luck for the automobile broke down twenty miles out of Torrance and the executive reliant on his pedestrian experience started to walk with Colonel Jose D. Sena. They reached the Goldenburg ranch where an automobile was secured which doubled back to get the gubernatorial baggage and then took both him and Colonel Sena to Torrance in good time. Colonel W. A. Fleming Jones of Las Cruces, another member of the party, however, missed his train to El Paso by five minutes and returned by way of Willard and Albuquerque. Altogether, it was a most enjoyable visit and Governor Mills is now a confirmed Pecos valley booster.

Notaries Public Appointed.

Governor Mills today appointed the following notaries public: Fred W. Brooks of Cimarron, Colfax county; Faustín Leyba of Trampas, Taos county; James W. Nicholson of Portillo, Guadalupe county; Jose D. Cordova of Jarales, Valencia county; A. C. Majors of Raton, Colfax county.

District Court.

The following suits were filed in the district court for Santa Fe county today: U. S. Bank and Trust Company vs. Walter Kraul to recover on a note for $150; W. A. Dunlavy vs. Van Horn, for $100.34 on account stated; John H. Sloan vs. Nathan Salmon, involving a piece of land on the south side.

County Finances.

Territorial Traveling Auditor Chas. V. Safford has compiled the financial standing of the twenty-six counties of the Territory on May 1. There was a balance in the various county treasuries on that date of $985,325.35, a snug sum indeed and attesting to the good financial management of the counties. By counties, the balances are: Bernalillo $105,712.56; Chaves $149,766.95; Colfax $30,904.21; Curry $23,630.29; Dona Ana $53,171.85; Eddy $33,298.27; Grant $44,670.48; Guadalupe $15,093.22; Lincoln $59,710.30; Luna $57,198.25; McKinley $18,146.65; Mora $11,171.48; Otero $19,025.44; Quay $35,099.85; Rio Arriba $40,372.65; Roosevelt $15,444.97; Sandoval $18,892.98; San Juan $8,356.52; San Miguel $35,541.32; Santa Fe $15,116.34; Sierra $21,541.55; Socorro $36,194.66; Taos $20,024.95; Torrance $23,239.42; Union $18,271.19; Valencia $75,729.

CONGRESSMAN OVERSTREET JOINS SILENT MAJORITY.

Was Author of Gold Standard Law and Retired From Politics Several Years Ago.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 27.—Former Congressman Jesse Overstreet, author of the gold standard law of 1900, died this morning. Overstreet was a native of Johnson county, Indiana, where he was born on December 14, 1859. He received an academic education and was admitted to the bar in 1886. He was a member of Congress from the seventh Indiana district from 1895 to 1907.

ALL HOPE ABANDONED

Divers Lift Pluviose and Then Lose Her Again

RAISED SUBMERGED VESSEL

Twenty-Seven Men of the Submarine Are Given Up as Lost.

Calais, May 27.—The hope that any of the 27 men imprisoned in the French submarine Pluviose sunk off here yesterday survive, was all but abandoned. This afternoon reports by the divers indicate that the Pluviose was crushed by the collision. A flotilla of torpedo boats and dredges with a force of divers worked throughout the night in efforts to raise the submerged vessel, but little was accomplished.

Sifted and Lost Again.

Calais, May 27.—Later this afternoon the Pluviose was lifted from her mud bed by a swift undercurrent and was swept from the view of the divers who were not able again to locate her.

Carried Away By Swift Current.

London, May 27.—The French submarine Pluviose with her crew of 27 men dead, is today a vagrant in the under waters of the English channel. For hours, divers had struggled to prepare the way for the raising of the 450 ton weight, when the wounded war craft, under the pressure of a swift lower current shook herself free from her mud moorings and drifted away. Later this afternoon she had not been again located. Up to that time every effort was made by wrecking crews under the direction of Admiral De La Peyrere, the French minister of marine, to reach the wreck in the hope that some of those on board might survive. There is little however to encourage this hope. The divers reported that the hull of the submarine appeared to have been crushed, but their examination was not satisfactory, because of the swift current they were unable to get a good view.

LEGISLATORS TIRED OUT

Two Hundred New York Assemblymen Are Going Home.

MANY REFORMS OBTAINED

But Governor Hughes May Call Extra Session for Pet Measure.

Albany, N. Y., May 27.—After a long and sensational session 200 tired New York legislators are leaving for home today, with visions of being called back into an extra session because of the failure to enact the electoral reforms advocated by Governor Hughes. The governor failed to get his pet Dirret nominations scheme but did obtain favorable legislation of all other important recommendations including a general investigation of corrupt practices, placing the telephone and telegraph companies under the supervision of the public service commission and strengthening the laws against race track gambling.

The first part of the program was made up of music, song and class history, will and prophecy. Miss Cheshire sang two delightful soprano solos and Mr. McCord, two bass selections. Miss Hazel Sparks played "The Rustle of Spring" on the piano and

SENIOR PLAY HUGE SUCCESS

"Tax on Bachelors" Aroused Enthusiasm at High School

CLASS PROPHECY AMUSING

And Other Features of Exercises Held the Interest Throughout

The Santa Fe high school Senior class play, "A Tax on Bachelors," was presented in the high school auditorium before a large audience last night and the play was a success from curtain to curtain. There was not a dull moment in it and the cast was admirably balanced. Even the young and old bachelors of Santa Fe turned out to see the production and they led and kept up the applause.

First of all the theme of the play, which is in two acts was a good one. William Ashton, a rich and young bachelor, wins the reputation of being selfish and eccentric because he has been so busy piling up money that he has not allowed the tender side of his character to develop. Suddenly confronted by a baby girl sent to his home with a note asking that he care for it, the bachelor comes out of his shell and it is the old story of "a little child shall lead them." The problem of caring for the baby is a puzzling one to Ashton and an amusing one to the audience. In the second act, the schemes of relatives of Ashton to continue to be his heirs and deprive the babe he has adopted of inheriting his fortune, are laid bare. The play is ended happily, however, after a kidnapping episode, and Ashton throws off the mantle of bachelorhood by proposing to his adopted child's mother.

The Players.

Enough about the play, now for the players. As Ashton, Eugene Fiske was at all times a clever "bitch" and had the note of determination in his voice characteristic of the young American man who mixes brains with his work. Mr. Fiske had a difficult role, for an amateur personally known to nearly every one in the audience it was no easy matter for him to keep from laughing when he was greeted with titter after titter. These titters punctuated his remarks on babes and their care. As Robert Mantle, his private secretary, Rogers Fiske was an able second to his "chief" and curious enough he was one of a class of unhappy married men, thus giving Ashton, his employer, much to admire in the unmarried state of life. John Windsor, as Charles Thorpe, the lawyer, was a dignified barrister and again shone in the play as Dr. Evans. Mr. Windsor's appearance with a moustache decorating his upper lip was the signal for gales of laughter, the girls in the audience furnishing much of the storm. Douglas Walker as Perkins, the valet, was a funny chap, and his clear-cut remarks about his ignorance as to the dietetic demands of wee infants were mirth provoking. Onego Daza made a fine butler, and had all the composure of the European who fills that role with such dignity. As the mother of the babe, Miss Margaret Cunningham, was a dignified lady in black. Her voice was a trifle low to be heard all over the hall, but she did very well. Miss Wittman, as wife of the secretary, was a dashing speculator in stocks and the ease with which she asked her husband for a trifle loan of $5,000 was enough to stagger any poor secretary. Miss Julia Jaffa, as the bachelor's aunt, was a woman of great reserve force and spoke her lines with plenty of voice and self possession. The bachelor's niece, in the person of Alice Candelario, was another interesting character. Miss Candelario portrayed well the type of the young American woman who is capable of thinking for herself and is quick to perceive an advantage.

As Mrs. Belmont, the housekeeper,

Miss Amelia McFie was a winner. She was no docile person to have even a rich and eccentric bachelor boss her, and the way she made the other servants stand around was interesting. As Fanny the maid, Miss Frieda Wientge was pleasing and played an emotional part particularly well.

The scenery was good, tennis racks on the walls being suitable to the season. Of course, the youthful players were hampered by not having a stage such as the professionals use and their performance is therefore all the more creditable. Prof. J. A. Wood, who drilled the players, deserves much credit for last night's performance.

AFTER FOUR YEARS OF MISERY

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Baltimore, Md. — "For four years my life was a misery to me. I suffered from irregularities, terrible dragging sensations,
extreme nervousness, and that all gone feeling in my stomach. I had given up hope of ever being well when I began to take Lydia E. Pink-

Compound. Then
I felt as though new life had been

to all my friends."—Mrs. W. S. Ford, 2207 W. Franklin St., Baltimore, Md.

The most successful remedy in this country for the cure of all forms of female complaints is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It has stood the test of years and to-day is more widely and successfully used than any other female remedy. It has cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, and nervous prostration,
after all other means had failed.

If you are suffering from any of these ailments, don't give up hope until you have given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vege-

are in a fair state of preservation. The stone barricades and some of the trenching made by the conquistadores are also in fair condition and the general outlines of the ancient fort are still sufficiently visible to give one a fair idea of the plans of the officers, who sought to protect the city of Santa Fe and also the troops from attacks by Indians. The tract of land on which the fort was built is an irregular strip, with varying lines, but it takes in a number of acres of land. I am going to plat the entire tract, with the exception of the ancient fort, and make a sub-division to the residence portion of Santa Fe.

"The land on which the fort was built is valuable, but owing to the history that was made there and the great interest in the place manifested by tourists, I could not see my way clear to destroy so valuable a relic of history. I will restore the old fort as far as possible, without in the least altering any of its remaining ramparts, and it will be turned into a park. Prof. Sylvanus G. Morley, the scientist of the American bureau of archaeology in charge of Guate-
graphs and sign writings, who is soon to receive a degree from Harvard for his work, has taken great interest in the old fort and has bought three lots adjoining it on which he will erect a residence, the architecture, to follow the ancient Spanish style which will harmonize with "La Garita." I firmly believe that Santa Fe should preserve every one of the ancient structures and I am willing to save this one at my own expense. The sub-division will be named "La Garita" after the old fort."

The Albuquerque Morning Journal
is authority for the statement that Mr.
Renehan has purchased the Claire hotel from Graham Brothers who were reported to have bought the property recently from Mr. Ellis. It was stated here some time ago that Mr. Renehan had bought the Claire hotel and it was rumored Mr. Graham was his agent.

Mr. Renehan is expected back tomorrow and will probably discuss these two purchases and also the rumor that it is his intention to remove the Capital City bank into the lobby of the Claire hotel and change the hotel into an office building.

Add This Fact to Your Store of Knowledge.

Kidney disease advances so rapidly that many a person is firmly in its grasp before aware of its progress. Prompt attention should be given the slightest symptom of kidney disorder. If there is a dull pain in the back, headaches, dizzy spells or a tired, worn-out feeling, or if the urine is dark, foul-smelling, irregular and attended with pain, procure a good kidney remedy at once.

Your townspeople recommend Doan's Kidney Pills. Read the statement of this Santa Fe citizen:

Jose Ortiz y Baca, Alto street, Santa Fe, N. M., says: "In 1907 I procured Doan's Kidney Pills at Stripling Burrows & Co.'s drug store and used them for pains in my back which had troubled me at intervals for three years. Doan's Kidney Pills brought prompt relief and proved so satisfactory that I willingly gave a public statement in their favor. Now, after two and a half years have passed, I gladly confirm every word of that testimonial. I can add that I have since used Doan's Kidney Pills, giving the more thorough trial and have received the greatest possible benefit. I know that this remedy is a sure cure for backache and kidney complaint."

ARIZONA'S DELEGATE IN CONGRESS

Ralph Cameron Is a Republican and Is a Typical Westerner

HAS HAD CHECKERED CAREER

From Deep Sea Fishing to a Lumber Camp Near Arizona.

(Globe-Democrat.)

Washington, May 27.—A boy, fishing in the Atlantic ocean for a gloomy living, said to himself: "This is no place for a poor man."

There was plenty of room, you understand, but he saw nothing else, which is a sentence, by the way, that a writer with time and spirit for the task could amplify into a doctrine, if he knew his business.

Then the boy went to Boston and sold dress goods to women. The odor of mackerel, dragged from the depths, was in his manner. In his hands were leathery gloves, made by running lines and sail ropes, and in his face were the dyes of sun and tempest. An awkward lad in silks and laces, ordinarily, but this particular lad could enter into changing circumstances. Again he said: "This is no place for a poor man."

Kicked Around Railroads.

Next, it was Kansas at a hazard, with here a job and there a kick around railroads. Thence to New Mexico, merely as a step in an impelling and uncertain direction. Cruising and ever cruising, searching for shoals that do not run out of their latitudes and seasons. Restlessness—in this instance, no doubt, an infection from the inquiet of a familiar ocean—is a form of energy and, like steam, electricity, or any other force, can be wasted. Prudence, chief among the factors in the sum total called common sense, is needed to regulate its speed and set its course.

Eventually, and by accident, Ralph Henry Cameron, always saying, "This is no place for a poor man," and always following a beck he felt but could not see or put his hands on, was halted at a tent and a sawmill on the top of a hill in Arizona. He has been moving ever since, not geographically, but like a piston-rod, back and forth, amid the roar of strange machinery. As a human document, he sounds like a stirring tale of random and remarkable achievement. But the impulse and the purpose of his old words, "This is no place for a poor man," can be traced throughout his personal history.

Engineers, men of mathematics and practical experience, went to the rim of the Grand Canon of Colorado, with transits, tapes and all the instruments of modern surveying. They measured, marked and calculated, and then announced that a trail to the bottom was impossible, theoretically and physically.

Laid and Built Trail.

Cameron, an ax on his shoulder and a bundle of sticks under his arm, laid the trail and then built it. He has hunted train robbers and murderers. Cattle, once falling in price, made him practically a bankrupt. He has prospected for copper and found it.

Now, at the age of 46, gray-eyed and lithe, looking back with a laugh and forward with nervous eagerness and confidence, he says: "I have just begun life." Two years ago he was sent to Congress as a territorial delegate. When Arizona becomes a state, as it will at this session, Cameron, if the Republicans carry the legislature, will be elected to the Senate—an altogether proper place for a poor man, even though he now believes that he is some day to be very rich.

"Tell me," I said, wanting to get

Cook in Comfort

You no longer need wear yourself out with the weakening heat of an intensely hot kitchen. You can cook in comfort.

Here is a stove that gives no outside heat. All its heat is concentrated at the burners. An intense blue flame (hotter than either white or red) is thrown upwards but not around. All the heat is utilized in cooking—none in outside heating.

entirely removes the discomfort of cooking. Apply a match and immediately the stove is ready. Instantly an intense heat is projected upwards against the pot, pan, kettle or boiler, and yet there is no surrounding heat—no smell—no smoke.

the temperature of his zeal and his conversational gait, "something absolutely true about Arizona?"

"In square miles," he replied, fortifying himself at the start with the solemnities of arithmetic, "we are as big as New York, Pennsylvania, Vermont and New Hampshire put together. Did you get that? We have land to be irrigated, land for dry farming, and land for pasturage—72,000,000 acres in all. We are growing the common fruits of the east and middle west, as well as oranges, lemons, olives, figs, and dates. Last year we shipped 125 car loads of cantaloupes. We can match the world on cantaloupes. And beets—sugar beets.

Irrigation is Necessary.

"Anything will grow in Arizona—if it is watered in the regions where irrigation is necessary. I am not mentioning corn, wheat, barley, rye and oats. Those are universal crops with us, as elsewhere. Also, we are rich in wool, mutton and beef. We produce 300,000,000 pounds of copper annually, besides large quantities of gold, silver, lead and zinc. And our climate and alfalfa are best on earth for ostriches. Yes, sir, ostriches. We can beat Africa and Arabia, wherein the prince of birds, financially and in the matter of weight and height, has its natural habitat. There are 5000 ostriches in Arizona. They are picked once in eight months. The average bird will grow a pound of feathers a year—long plumes worth $25, at a net cost in alfalfa of $10.

"For those who like snow, there is snow. Those who like heat can get all they want and more, too. It is the finest region in America, and is inhabited by the finest people. I wouldn't live anywhere else, and I have lived, off and on, from the coast of Maine to the Rocky mountains. Why, sir, Arizona—"

"How," I asked, breaking in, that I might switch the subject to something more human, "did you get there?"

"That would take more time to relate than it is worth," Mr. Cameron answered. "Also a wagon road map of New Mexico and Kansas. I arrived there unexpectedly. Stopped there, I might say, incidentally. I was on the way to California, just because it was the limit of the western country. There was no better reason than I now remember. I got going as men do, and women, too, sometimes. When I wasn't moving, the scenery became prosy, and I lost interest in the neighborhood. Technically, I am en route to California now, but I'll never get there. No, sir; Arizona suits me, it's—"

"Was your father a gypsy?" I inquired.

"No; he built and owned vessels," Mr. Cameron replied, seeing the joke and sensing the object of the question. "Fishing vessels mostly; my grandfather was engaged in the same business. The Camerons of Southport, Me., were prosperous men, but shipping fell off and they fell off with it until nothing much was left. At the age of 13 I went fishing myself. Shipped with Capt. Cameron, but he was no relation of mine. We sailed to the great banks of Newfoundland and fished with lines in fifty fathoms of water. I had to remain on deck, because of my youth and lack of strength, but the others went out in dories. I didn't do very well, nor did any one else.

Heard Loud Noises.

"My second season at deep set fishing was also lean and discouraging. So was the third season. The fourth year we tried for mackerel. One night after my hour on deck at watch I went below. Before I could get my boots off there was a loud noise. Men were bellowing and running back and forth. I stuck my head out of the companionway and saw the bowsprit of a vessel high up over our port side. Then I heard the grinding of the bobstays and felt the shock as the stem struck us and partly keeled us over. Our mast was broken and our sails were thrown into the water. After we limped into port and I got on dry land, I said: 'I have had all I want of fishing.' Besides, I observed to the captain, pointing my finger at the Atlantic, 'that is no place for a poor man.'

"So I went to Boston, where I had an uncle who worked in a store. I asked the manager for a job and he asked if I had ever clerked before. I told him I hadn't but I said nothing about fishing, deeming it wise to keep my red hands behind my back and to orate no more than was needful under the circumstances. 'I'll work a month,' I said, 'on trial.' In a day or two I was standing behind a counter in the dress goods department. Waiting on women made me feel like a girl, compared, of course, with fishing and then picking our catch in the hold.

"But I watched the other clerks and soon learned what to say. They meant to work in stores all their lives, but I didn't. I noticed that they lacked push and were mighty well pleased with their own looks. While they were smoothing their hair, pulling down their cuffs, and adjusting their neckties I was hustling as hard as I could. I got six promotions in two years, and $8 a week at last; not very bad pay, considering the time and vicinity.

Specialist Was Suggested.

"But I began to have trouble with my tubes. I doctored, but doctors of the ordinary sort did me no good. Somebody suggested a specialist. 'I can take your money,' he said, 'but I would rather give you advice.' He was an honest man and bluff. 'Go west,' he said. 'I was in California once and was a fool for coming back. Anywhere out there is better than the east. Just start and then stop and you can't make a mistake, no matter the place. Meanwhile, you will not need the service of a physician. Your throat will get well, away from the raw air of the New England coast.'

"I thought the subject over, and then told the people at the store I was through with clerking. 'This,' I said, 'is no place for a poor man, more especially if he is merchandising.' A young fellow named Kelly, likewise a clerk, said he'd go, too. We bought tickets to Kansas City. Personally, I had no point in view; I simply wanted to go west. From Kansas City we moved to Topeka. It didn't take a great deal for two Yankee boys to live on. Topeka wasn't much of a place—board sidewalks and pine buildings, and some of them unpainted. I moved about and got acquainted. A Boston man was master mechanic of the Santa Fe railroad. He gave Kelly and me passes to Albuquerque, in the territory of New Mexico. I had no reason to go there, except that it was farther along toward sunset. Albuquerque was not impressive, so I went straight through to Winslow, Ariz., which was the end of the railroad at that time.

Assistant to Teamster.

"Machinery was being hauled by wagon to Flagstaff, for a sawmill. I engaged myself to a fierce-looking teamster as his first assistant. Anyway, I would be moving and getting my board while engaged in so doing. Also my lodgings—on the ground, under the wagon. Kelly, unused to roughing, said he'd meet me later in San Francisco. And that was the last I saw of him. Flagstaff was nothing more than a log store, a saloon, and a tent or two in the forest. The man who was building the sawmill gave me a job, although he said I was rather slim for heavy work. Pretty soon we were cutting 5000 feet of pine daily, I working here and there, making up in speed what I lacked in strength and lifting ability.

"As a testimony, individual, I let it

MEMORIAL DAY PROCLAMATION.

Office of the Mayor, Santa Fe, N. M., May 26th, 1910.

In the midst of life it is our privilege and duty, as citizens of this land where equality of the living and tribute to the memory of the dead should be recognized, to devote one day in commemoration and reverence for those brave and valiant soldiers, who died upon the battlefield or have since passed to the great beyond, and for friends and loved ones who have gone before us.

Therefore, Monday, May 30th, 1910, having been designated and appointed by the governor of New Mexico, as memorial day, the said day should be observed as such in the city of Santa Fe, and it is earnestly urged that the people of this city suspend all business, as far as possible, and take part in the memorial services and the decoration of the graves of their departed comrades, friends, and loved ones, on that day, and that all places of business be closed at 12 o'clock noon on said day, and remain closed until 6 o'clock in the afternoon thereof.

ARTHUR SELIGMAN,

Attest: Mayor, THOS. DELGADO, Clerk.

HELP FROM THE OUTSIDE.

The Washington Post and the Baltimore Sun are pitching into the Republican majority of Congress for its failure to pass the statehood bill and while the Democrats failed to admit the territories when they were in the majority and would fail to do it if they had the majority today, yet, it is well for the Republican party to remember that both the Post and Sun are correct in denouncing any attempt on part of the Republican majority in Congress to repudiate Republican platform promises or to defeat the administration program, which includes the enactment of the statehood bill. Says the Post:

"The treatment of the populous and opulent territories of Arizona and New Mexico is evidence conclusive that platforms have no more binding force on political parties than the seven green withes had power to make impotent the physical strength of Samson. In 1908 both political parties solemnly pledged themselves that those two communities should be admitted to full sisterhood."

"It was said to wind and writ upon the sand."

"Leaving out of the account, the original thirteen, there is not a single state east of the Mississippi river that was as populous, as opulent, or as civilized when it came into the Union as either Arizona or New Mexico. Why should they be blackballed year after year, decade after decade? Stephen B. Elkins very nearly brought New Mexico into the Union many years ago. She has been played with, used as a convenience, to be discarded the first occasion of political stress."

"And that recalls that the admission of Colorado as a state determined the result of a presidential election. Eugene Hale (Republican) and Samuel J. Randall (Democrat) fought the proposition; but the sentiment that we must have the 'Centennial State' overwhelmed them, and a Republican Senate and a Democratic House initiated Colorado into the Union just 100 years after Thomas Jefferson reported to the Continental Congress the Declaration of Independence."

"There was a lobby here—not a corrupt lobby—from Colorado composed of Democrats and Republicans. The Democrats persuaded the House of Representatives that, if admitted, Colorado would surely go Democratic that year; the Republicans convinced the Senate that Colorado would go Republican, and so she did casting three votes, for Hayes in the electoral college. Had the thing been postponed for a year, Tilden would have had an undisputed title to the Presidency."

"Statehood should not be a political question; and the hesitancy of a Republican Congress to admit Arizona and New Mexico will tend to make both Democratic, as in the case of Oklahoma."

The Baltimore Sun is more rabid in its Democratic leanings but it is worth while to ponder when it says: "The Republican national platform of 1908, upon which President Taft and the present House of Representatives were elected, contains this plank: 'We favor the immediate admission of the territories of New Mexico and Arizona as separate states in the Union.'"

"The Republican party in Congress has had ample time and opportunity to redeem this pledge, but it has not done so, and the indications are that the Republican leaders intend to repudiate it and so fail to keep faith with the people. In this perjury the President has no part. He is anxious that the promise made to the people when they were asked to vote for him shall be kept, but his party in Congress seems to be inclined or rather determined, to bolt the platform. The reason for this act of bad faith is, of course, purely partisan. The Republican leaders in and out of Congress feel that their party is in a bad way, and they prefer to violate a promise rather than run the risk of increasing the Democratic strength in the Senate and House and in the electoral colleges. The adoption of the statehood plank in the national platform was sufficient evidence that in the judgment of the Republican party the two territories were ready for statehood and worthy of it. To determine the admission of a new state upon party expediency is unjust to a great body of people and most unworthy."

"The Democrats in Congress have determined, so it is reported, to endeavor to compel the Republicans to admit the states according to their pledge by holding up various Republican party measures. This they are entirely justified in doing. If a party will not voluntarily keep its pledges to the people, it ought to be compelled to do so, if such a thing is possible without injury to the public."

"According to an estimate made by the federal census bureau in 1908, the population of New Mexico was 223,000. The territory has great natural resources and is increasing rapidly in wealth and population. Arizona has a population of about 150,000 and great mineral wealth. It is a prosperous grazing country and, by irrigation, its agriculture is rapidly expanding."

"A comparison of the population and wealth of these two territories with the other mountain and coast states, except Washington, when they were admitted, is altogether in favor of New Mexico and Arizona. Nevada was admitted with a population of 40,000; Utah had about 208,000; Wyoming 60,000; Idaho 84,385; Colorado about 190,000; Oregon 52,000, and California 92,597."

"Let the new sisters come in. They are very good looking, and the probability that they will side with Thomas Jefferson instead of Joe Cannon is no reason for slamming the door in their faces, especially after they have received a special invitation."

NEW MEXICO'S LEADING EDUCATIONAL INSTITUTION.

There is no doubt that not only as to attendance, value of plant and equipment, but also as to practical results and importance the New Mexico College of Agriculture and Mechanical Arts at Mesilla Park, is the leading educational institution of the commonwealth and of more value to it at present than all the other institutions taken together. This is not in disparagement of the work done by the others, they are all filling an important niche in the general plan and not one of them can be missed without great loss, but the Agricultural College is not merely an institution in the making, not merely a school great in the prospective, but is doing at the present time the work for which it was destined in its completeness, is accomplishing great results for the territory not only in a general way but specifically answering the needs of the hour. These thoughts are inspired by glancing through the twentieth annual catalog of the college which contains the announcements for the term of 1910-1911. Aside from the fact that the New Mexican Printing Company is exceedingly proud of the typographical appearance of this illustrated book of 160 pages, it is also apparent that the publication in its contents reflects creditably the work and the successes of the college. The college now has an annual income of $100,000, and the faculty, with Doctor W. E. Garrison at its head, is large and compares very well with that of similar colleges in other commonwealths. In fact, under Doctor W. E. Garrison, the school is prospering wonderfully and the long list of students includes young men and young women from every part of the Territory. The list of alumni is growing quite lengthy and includes many men who are eminently successful in their chosen vocations. The educational purpose of the institution is briefly but well stated in the introductory remarks of the catalogue as follows:

"The purpose of this institution is to teach the student those things which make for intelligent manhood and citizenship, and also to give him some special training which will enable him to earn a living. The purpose of the technical and industrial work is to teach him to make a better living; the purpose of all the work, both technical and cultural, is to teach him to live a richer and more useful life."

Premiums exceeding $600,000 were paid fire insurance companies in New Mexico last year. The losses paid were exceptionally high on account of heavy losses in eastern New Mexico where three years of drought had their influence on burnable property. Yet, the premiums collected, exceeded the losses paid by $180,000, a big enough margin for an unfavorable year and sufficient to justify a reduction of fire insurance rates in a city like Santa Fe where fire losses are unusually small and infrequent."

The board of directors of the chamber of commerce of Denver, on one day this week accepted 106 applications for membership. It will be a great day for Santa Fe when the Board of Trade or Commercial Club are thus favored by local businessmen and property owners. But until that spirit is manifest the city will continue to lose ground."

Life insurance companies collected almost three-quarters of a million dollars in premiums in New Mexico and paid out not quite one-fifth of a million dollars, leaving a surplus for the

FOR A SANE FOURTH.

The Department of Education is distributing illustrated circulars pleading for a sane Fourth of July celebration. This is going good work, when it is remembered that during the past seven years 34,000 persons were killed, blinded and maimed in the United States because the young folks have been taught to celebrate the birthday of national independence in the most insane manner that could be devised. Last year 215 boys and girls were killed and almost 6,000 injured, a terrible casualty list. In each of ten states Pennsylvania, New York, Illinois, New Jersey, Massachusetts, Missouri, Ohio, Michigan, Indiana and Wisconsin from a hundred to a thousand casualties occurred last year and ten cities, New York, Philadelphia, St. Louis, Chicago, Boston, Newark, Cincinnati, Milwaukee, Kansas City and Pittsburgh, a similar large number of accidents occurred. However, among the large cities, Cleveland and Washington, D. C., are leading the way for a sane celebration of the Fourth. In 1908, in Washington, D. C., there were 104 cases in the hospitals, on July Fourth for treatment of injuries from explosives. The following year an ordinance was passed forbidding the use of explosives within the city limits and not a single case was recorded at the hospitals. The Cleveland, Ohio, ordinance reads as follows and should be adopted in Santa Fe:

"No person shall fire any cannon, gun, rifle, pistol, toy pistol or firearms of any kind, or fire or explode any squib, rocket, cracker or Roman candle or other combustible fire works, or make use of any sling, within the city."

"No person, firm or corporation shall, within the city, sell, offer for sale, or have in his or its possession or custody any toy pistol, squib, rocket or Roman candle, or fire balloon, or other combustible fireworks, or any article for the making of pyrotechnic display. Provided that nothing in this section contained shall be construed as to prohibit the board of public service from giving pyrotechnical displays of fireworks in the public parks whenever said board is thereunto directed by resolution of council."

"Any person violating any of the provisions, shall, on conviction thereof, be fined in any sum not exceeding one hundred dollars ($100.00), or imprisoned not exceeding thirty days, or both, at the discretion of the court."

WHERE UNCLE SAM LOSES OUT.

As long as Congress acts in a step-fatherly manner toward American shipping, so long other nations will command millions of dollars of foreign trade that should fall to American factories and producers. It was never so clearly apparent that American manufactures must have foreign markets if they are to expand. No body can live on himself and no nation can in the far run depend altogether for existence upon its own trade."

The total foreign trade of South America, imports and exports for one year, was over one billion six hundred and sixty-seven million dollars, out of which our country's share was, roughly, but 16 per cent. South America imported seven hundred and sixty million dollars' worth of products—all of which we manufacture—and yet of this amount we sold them but 14 per cent, according to Charles Johnson Post, in "Success Magazine". In Cuba, where, with the close relations we have held since the Spanish war, we might expect ourselves to make a fine showing, the statistics indicate that there must be some flaw in our methods. Cuba imported one hundred and four million dollars' worth of merchandise, of which we sent them but forty-seven million dollars' worth—less than half, although she is our closest neighbor. In the ten years of our intimate relations with Cuba we have bought from her three hundred million dollars' worth more than we have been able to sell there—hardly a triumph for our commerce."

Champ Clark, the Democratic leader, declared emphatically for free wool, in fact for free trade in everything, in his address in the house this week, and Representative Foss the newly elected Democratic representative from Massachusetts, was equally as emphatic in standing up for free wool specifically and free raw material in general. As long as the Democrats maintain that sort of an attitude the Republicans in New Mexico need not fear for a successful campaign issue this fall."

Premiums exceeding $600,000 were paid fire insurance companies in New Mexico last year. The losses paid were exceptionally high on account of heavy losses in eastern New Mexico where three years of drought had their influence on burnable property. Yet, the premiums collected, exceeded the losses paid by $180,000, a big enough margin for an unfavorable year and sufficient to justify a reduction of fire insurance rates in a city like Santa Fe where fire losses are unusually small and infrequent."

The board of directors of the chamber of commerce of Denver, on one day this week accepted 106 applications for membership. It will be a great day for Santa Fe when the Board of Trade or Commercial Club are thus favored by local businessmen and property owners. But until that spirit is manifest the city will continue to lose ground."

Life insurance companies collected almost three-quarters of a million dollars in premiums in New Mexico and paid out not quite one-fifth of a million dollars, leaving a surplus for the year exceeding half a million dollars. Evidence apparently that either New Mexico is abnormally healthy or that the life insurance business must pay if it is conducted rightly."

The fire risks written in New Mexico during 1909 exceeded $30,000,000 which gives some inkling of the tangible wealth of New Mexico. Yet, the New Mexican believes that the property insured for more than $30,000,000 does not add up more than $3,000,000 on the assessment rolls.

ARIZONA'S DELEGATE IN CONGRESS.

be known that I had once clerked in Boston, Mass. Perhaps I mentioned fishing. When the sawmill company started a store I was asked to operate the same. 'My specialty,' I said, 'is ladies dress goods. I know nothing about kerosene, flour, pork or molasses.' But steady young men were scarce in those parts; I was again solicited. Whereat I began to negotiate. I was getting $50 a month, board and lodging, and assumed an air of indifference. 'We will increase your pay $10 a week,' they said. 'In that event,' I replied, 'I am your huckleberry.'

Kept Everybody's Books.

"We had several log buildings—one for flour, one for coal oil, and so on. Everything came in barrels and boxes. Packages were never broken. Contractors and proprietors of boarding houses would back up their wagons and teamsters would load them. I did no scooping, tying, or weighing. Likewise, I kept the books of everybody in the community. I was no expert accountant, but my minimum receipts, personal, were $10 a day, including the Fourth of July and Sundays. We were sawing lumber for the Mexican Central railroad, then building. Skilled axmen, cutting fires, were making from $50 to $75 a week.

"There was no place to go but the woods. We had no amusement but gambling, but I was not given to that form of entertainment. We were pretty good people, first to last. Nothing was ever locked up. Men were careless with their money, because there was plenty of it. Bill would say to Jim: 'I want to send $500 home and have $200. Lend me the difference.' And Jim would say to Bill: 'Go to my tent and help yourself.'

"By and by our contracts were filled and we shut down for the winter. Drake, chief engineer of the railroad, asked me to clerk for him at Albuquerque for a month or two as an accommodation. Late he wanted to give me a station. 'A railway man,' I said to him, 'works for other people. Any day his job may be missing. To me it seems a pretty uncertain proposition. I guess, obliged as I am to you for your confidence, I shall keep on going. Railroad, as far as I can judge, is no place for a poor man.' And Drake replied: 'Cameron, you have sized up the situation.'

Off For California.

"While standing on the platform of the station for a train to California, along comes Ed Ayres of Chicago, owner of the sawmill and a tie contractor known all through the western country. He said he thought I could wait until the mill started. I told him I wouldn't loaf and take anybody's money. 'I'm off,' I said 'to California.' 'Before you go,' he answered, 'show me and my friends the Grand Canon of the Colorado.' And I promised. I had been there once with the Indians and cowboys. We got an outfit of pack animals, tents and provisions. Right there came a turn in my life, but I didn't realize it. The Grand Canon, you see, kind of worked its way into my imagination. When I got back, Kirkpatrick, a merchant in Flagstaff, wanted to visit the New Orleans exposition and asked me to run his business while he was away from home. 'My friend,' I said, 'I appreciate the compliment, but I am just starting for the Pacific ocean.'

Meets Sheep Owners.

"Well, he coaxed and I promised to stay if he would hurry right back. By that time I had $1400. Kirkpatrick was taken with slow fever in New Orleans—blamed slow—and was gone four months. I got acquainted with a man named McMillan, an old bachelor who lived in Flagstaff and had 6000 sheep thirty miles away on government pasturage. We talked back and forth and as an outcome of our conference he gave me his sheep on equal shares. I was to get half the wool and lambs and keep up the herds. In the summer I took the sheep into the mountains and in the winter I brought them back to the valleys, they feeding all the while on fat grasses. I made $13,000 in two years, dividing the sheep into several flocks, four miles apart, so that the herders couldn't get together and gossip among themselves to the neglect of my business.

"Still money, as I saw it, was rather slow in sheep on the ranges. My desire was to get rich on a gallop, to hurry along and overtake Jay Gould and Vanderbilt. Sheep are also monotonous when one is with them day and night. I bought out Kirkpatrick. As a merchant I was a booming financial success. However, I took to ship-

S. S. S. A BOTANICAL BLOOD REMEDY

Nature in her wisdom and beneficence has provided, in her great vegetable kingdom, a cure for most of the ills and ailments of humanity. Work and study have perfected the compounding of these botanical medicines and placed them at our disposal. We rely on them first because of their ability in curing disease, and next because we can use them with the confidence that such remedies do not injure the system as do the strong mineral concoctions. Among the very best of these botanical preparations is S. S. S., a medicine made entirely of roots, herbs and barks in such combination as to make it the greatest of all blood purifiers and safest of all tonics. It does not contain the least particle of harmful mineral to injuriously affect any of the delicate parts of the system. S. S. S. cures Rheumatism, Catarrh, Sores and Ulcers, Scrofula, Malaria, Skin Diseases, Contagious Blood Poison, or any blood affection or disease even reaching down and cleansing the circulation of all inherited blood troubles. As a tonic S. S. S. is unequalled. It builds up the system in the proper way, by purifying the blood and supplying a sufficient amount of vigor and nourishment to the body. If you are suffering with any blood trouble, or are in any way run-down in health, you could not do better than take S. S. S., a purely botanical blood remedy. It cures without ever leaving any unpleasant or injurious effects. It is perfectly safe for young or old. Book on the blood free to all who write.

THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., ATLANTA, GA.

ping cattle on the side, mostly to California. One day beef on the hoof took a horrible slump. I sold my store, paid my debts and hired out as a cattle buyer to a man in the east. I got $300 steers and sent them to Kansas to be fed for market. Under the contract my work was done. But a hot wind swept over the southwest. Pastures were burned brown, as was everything else. Corn went from 12 cents to 30 cents a bushel in long jumps.

"I rode in a buggy all winter buying rough feed from men who didn't want to sell it. We had paid $293,300 for cattle and $12,000 in freightage to get them to Kansas. I spent $63,000 for fodder, such as it was. Next year I shipped the cattle to Chicago, where they were sold at a loss of $83,000 net. By that time, taking one experience with another, I was pretty tired of cows. Again I started for California. However, I left the train at Flagstaff to visit the boys, whereupon they promptly nominated me for sheriff. I held the office three terms, or six years."

"The words, 'an Arizona sheriff,' I said, 'sound rather melodramatic?' "Sheep and cattle rustlers often raided the country," Mr. Cameron replied, "but we eventually drove them out. I trailed a Mexican murderer all over Arizona, New Mexico and Texas, but caught him at the end of a month. My most interesting experience, taking one thing with another, was with Jim Parker, a train robber. Parker organized a company of six performers and rehearsed time for a month and a half in a quiet place in the mountains. Between times he and his brother outlaws collected forty horses on which to escape. A former railroad engineer was mechanical director of the gang. Only Parker and one other man, however, were directly concerned in the hold-up.

"While Parker puts his guns on the engineer and fireman, his partner cut off the first car of the train, which, in the dark, he supposed contained money sent by express. Instead, it was the one carrying mail. There was a lot of shooting for moral effect. The express messenger ran to the mail car and got on the trucks. When the engine started the messenger climbed up one side of the car, while the robber went up the other. Both men came to the line of the roof together. The messenger fired and shot the robber through the heart. After the engine stopped on a sidetrack Parker looked for his partner in vain. Then he took all the registered mail and rode off.

"I tracked Parker into the Grand Canon. At daybreak on the fourth morning a one-eyed man and I saw Parker leisurely walking down a creek. We hid in some willow brush and when he came along we threw out guns into his face. I took him to Prescott, where there was a strong jail. He and two other men, one of them a big Mexican, overpowered the jailer and got out. The assistant district attorney was upstairs writing a letter to the girl he was soon to marry. Parker shot him dead. The three desperadoes stole two of the sheriff's horses and, the Mexican behind Parker, fled. I again took the trail. Parker flung the Mexican to the ground a short distance from Prescott and left him to his fate. It was a mean trick. The Mexican, oddly enough, escaped. Parker was caught and hanged. But those wild days are past and Arizona is now as orderly as the City of Washington."

"How did you happen to build the Bright Angel trail into the Grand Canon?"

"Simply as a mineral undertaking. That was sixteen years ago, and I have been working on it ever since. It's a boulevard now by comparison. I staked it with a common day laborer and made it, blasting hundreds of thousands of tons of rock, where the mountain was a sheer descent. We worked in winter and drank melted snow, because there was no water at the edge of the canon in the summer time. The trail is seven miles long, although the canon is less than a mile deep. A railroad coming that way, and wanting a monopoly of the entire situation, fought in the courts, the territorial legislature and the interior department in Washington. After years of litigation I won. The trail is now mine in theory and in fact. I get $1 for every animal that starts down ward from the top. Each animal of course, carries a tourist or a guide."

WILLIAM SEYLER ACQUITTED OF MURDER CHARGE.

Mays Landing N. J., May 27.—William Seyler, charged with the murder of Jane Adams on the million dollar pier at Atlantic City last February, was acquitted. The jury was out a little more than five hours.

When the verdict was announced there was a cheer from a portion of the crowd which was quickly silenced by Judge Trenchard. Seyler fairly leaped at his counsel when he realized that he was again a free man.

After greeting his counsel he walked over to the juryman and shook hands with each of them, at the same time warmly expressing his thanks. The crowd in the court room pressed forward and the acquitted man held an impromptu reception.

Orvis Seyler, William's brother, who had been held as a witness, was formally discharged, and the two brothers immediately left the court house and took a train for Atlantic City.

JAPANESE COMMERCIAL EXPOSITION IS PLANNED.

Mexico City, May 27.—The holding of a Japanese commercial exposition in Mexico during the centennial celebration next September now depends on the action of the chamber of commerce of Tokio, according to a steamship representative in this capital. This gentleman has cabled to a number of Japanese firms asking that they participate in the proposed exposition here, and if the chamber of commerce decides to act favorably on the proposition it is certain that the exhibits of the business men of Japan will be on a large scale. Now that Japanese capitalists are heavily interested in a recently established steamship line from Mexico to Japanese ports it is believed here that Japan will desire to get all of the good possible out of an opportunity to place exhibits where they can be seen by the hundreds of thousands of visitors who will come here from interior Mexican towns, and other countries as well.

When the collision came, Delgado took a header over the fence and sustained a wounded arm as the result.

Plays AND Players

All lovers of the legitimate drama will be pleased to hear that Manager Stanton has secured Sanford Dodge, the brilliant young tragedian and romantic actor, for an appearance here in a grand revival of one of his classic and romantic productions. Mr. Dodge's work is of the highest order. He is young, ambitious and possessed of a natural gift that is sure to build for him a merited reputation in his profession. With each successive season his popularity seems to gain so that the announcement of his appearance is always welcome news to the theater-goers, and packed houses are the rule everywhere.

The appearance of Mr. Sanford Dodge and his talented company of dramatic artists in Santa Fe will be greeted with delight by all lovers of the drama. A fine physique, a strong and pleasing voice, and a graceful carriage. He is also a painstaking actor, who believes in paying strict attention to details so that all his productions have an artistic and finished appearance. Mr. Dodge is usually surrounded by a strong and capable company, but this season it is said that he is carrying the best support that he has ever had during his career.

Mr. Dodge is now appearing in grand revivals of classic and romantic dramas.

the drama. The name of Sanford Dodge is a synonym of dramatic excellence, as it has ever been connected with the highest class of dramatic work and this season his productions are superior to any he has ever before attempted.

No other attraction touring the northwest can afford to carry the high class artists engaged by Mr. Dodge as no other actor has the confidence of the play-going public in this territory to such an extent that they will give sufficient financial support to pay the immense salaries commanded by the artists who support Mr. Dodge this season.

Sanford Dodge, whose popularity seems to increase with each succeeding year has won amazing success which has often been the subject of comment and has been ascribed to several causes. In the first place, nature has endowed him with many advantages; a fine physique, a strong and pleasing voice, and a graceful carriage. He is also a painstaking actor, who believes in paying strict attention to details so that all his productions have an artistic and finished appearance. SPUR ALFALFA GROWING IN CANADA BY CONTESTS.

American Settlers' Experience Likely to Aid Them in Capturing Cash Prizes and Trophy Offered.

Regina, Saskatchewan, May 27.—American settlers who are pouring into the province of Saskatchewan are laying their plans to capture all or most of $6,300 in cash prizes and a $250 silver trophy offered in an alfalfa growing contest, which promises to be one of the most unique agricultural tests of skill ever held. The contest, which was inaugurated last January at the convention in Regina of the agricultural societies, as a comparatively small affair, has grown far beyond the original plans.

The societies decided to have a prize of $1,000 for the best ten-acre field of alfalfa in Saskatchewan in 1914. Private parties, the railway corporations, William Pearson of Winnipeg, who colonized the Last Mountain Valley in Saskatchewan, the various officials connected with state and private agricultural schools and institutions, all took such an interest in the affair that its scope was at once broad-

Just Think! Not Even One-Tenth of Lard is Leaf Lard!

Here is what the leading lard packer says in a recent advertisement: "Leaf is the cream of lards. There is not enough of it to supply one-tenth of the people, and so it goes only to those who insist upon it."

Does it not stand to reason that if there is only enough of the proper fat produced to make pure leaf lard to supply one-tenth of the demand that the chances are ten to one against your getting pure lard? The only absolute protection against getting common hog fat when you buy lard is by buying Cottole instead. Cottole is a pure vegetable product—made from cotton seed oil, refined by our exclusive process. It contains no hog fat and makes palatable, nourishing food which will agree with the most sensitive stomach.

COTTOLENE is Guaranteed Your grocer is hereby authorized to refund your money in case you are not pleased, after having given Cottole a fair test.

ened. William Mackenzie gave $1,000. Money for prizes as well as for the other expenses of the competition was offered, and now it is estimated that the cost will total many thousands of dollars.

The settlers from the western and northwestern states of America are conceded to have the best chances of winning the prizes because of their previous knowledge of growing alfalfa in their old homes.

"American settlers," says F. T. Griffin, land commissioner of the Canadian Pacific, "probably will lead in the competition as they are familiar with the alfalfa plant and appreciate its good qualities."

The agricultural societies asked the minister of agriculture to appoint the committee to conduct the competition, and he named as that committee the dean of the College of Agriculture of Saskatchewan, the superintendent of the experimental farm at Indian Head, and the president of the Grenfell Agricultural society. The committee has just formulated the rules for the contest.

The province has been divided into four divisions as follows: District A is that part south of the Qu'Appelle river and bounded on the west and south by the Canadian Northern from Lumsden to Regina, and from Regina to Antler on the Canadian Pacific. District B is that part south of the South Saskatchewan river and bounded on the east by the Canadian Northern from Lumsden to Regina and thence to Antler. The Lumsden Agricultural society and the other agricultural societies on the railway are included in District A. District C is that part bounded on the south by the Qu'Appelle river to the Elbow on the south branch of the Saskatchewan and by the South Saskatchewan river on the west. In this district are the agricultural societies of Port Qu'Appelle and Outlook on the Canadian Pacific. District D is that part lying north of the South Saskatchewan river and bounded on the east by the South Saskatchewan, the agricultural societies at Saskatoon, Kinistino, Mel-fort and Tisdale being in this district.

Six prizes will be given in each district, of $500, $400, $300, $200 and $75.

Each contestant must be a member of the nearest agricultural society. No artificially irrigated crop will be eligible. The crop must have been seeded not later than 1912; it must not be cut in 1914 until it has been judged. The contestants must furnish the director of agricultural extension work of the province—the secretary of the committee—reports from time to time of the growing of the crop.

No contestant can make more than one entry. The entry must be made by August 1, 1913, to the director of agricultural extension work, and accompanied by the nominal entrance fee of $5. The entrance money is to be paid to the treasurer of the local society to which the entrant belongs.

The secretary of the committee is F. Hedley Auld of Regina, and he is already being swamped with entries, communications, offers of special prizes, etc. The committee announces, however, that though cash contributions for prizes will be gladly received and proper credit given them, no special prizes can be accepted.

The object of the contest is to stimulate the interest of the Saskatchewan farmer in the growing of the leguminous crop that is so good for the soil and also such an excellent food for fattening cattle, sheep and swine.

If this be so, so much the worse. If against his will and without expectation of compensation, he undertook this service for such men as Charles J. Smith, Charles Sweeney Horace C. Henry and ex-Governor Moore, then it must have been because their will was law to him.

"Is such a man a safe trustee for the people's property?" As to Mr. Ballinger's assertion that he had had nothing to do with the coal cases he became secretary, Brandeis said:

"It needed no specific instructions. Those by whom he was surrounded were of that category who 'at the twinkling of authority understood a law' and who would never prove in subordinate from overzeal of the public interest."

Concerning the President's action in the Glavis case, Mr. Brandeis said: "It is not surprising under the circumstances, that the letter of the President exonerated Mr. Ballinger," he added that it was surprising, that the President should have sent a letter which condemned Glavis and charged him with falsehood, with the suppression of truth, and with neglect of duty.

You don't graduate very often in this world; some of you only once, perhaps. It's an important event every time, no matter how many times you graduate; it means a good deal to you now and in the future.

For these reasons you want to be especially well dressed for it; you want to look as well as you can for your own sake and for the sake of your friends who will sit in front to see you. They want to see you looking your best.

Hart, Schaffner & Marx clothes are made for the purpose of helping a young man to look his best; they're the kind of clothes that are themselves an educational force in good quality. The fabrics are all wool; the clothes are perfectly made; they're stylish, and they fit right.

We have special models for young men; not small men's sizes, but clothes designed for young men to wear; the kind that bring out and emphasize the strong, athletic lines of the figure. We'd like to have a hand in getting you ready to graduate; we'd like to see you wearing these clothes; we'd be proud of you as our representative, just as your friends will be proud of you as theirs. Blue Serge suits, self striped and plain, black and Oxford gray suits, a great range of fancy weaves. Suits $20.00 to $27.50.
