OFFICIAL COUNTY PAPER DEVOTED TO THE INTERESTS OF LINCOLN COUNTY, NEW MEXICO

VOLUME 19

CARRIZOZO, LINCOLN COUNTY, NEW MEXICO, FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 1, 1918.

NUMBER 44

RICHARD H. HANNA
Of Santa Fe County, Democratic Candidate for Supreme Court

SEVEN years on the bench of the State of New Mexico has proven that Richard H. Hanna is a just, capable and a fearless jurist. There is not a breath of attack on his ability or his integrity. He is a sound lawyer, stands for the rights of the people and has always been fair to labor.

Democratic Chairman to Republican Chairman

Hon. Geo. R. Craig, Chairman Republican State Committee, Albuquerque, N. M.

Dear Judge: I desire to acknowledge receipt of your communication of the 21st inst., with reference to the activities of the State Council of Defense and Democratic criticism thereof.

There was one charge, and one which in my opinion overshadows all others, which you overlooked. That was our criticism of the vicious and shameless editorials appearing in the "New Mexico War News", the official organ of the State Council of Defense, in Secretary of War Baker and Secretary of Navy Daniels.

We are told that one of the purposes of the Hun in buying a New York newspaper was to undermine the confidence of the soldiers and citizens in the officials in charge of the conduct of the war. The editorials referred to were admirably adapted to the Huns' purpose. However, it was not charged that the people's money was purposely spent in the aid of the Hun by the publication of these editorials, but merely action by partisan, Republican incompetents, who had no more appreciation of the consequences of their acts than they had of the impropriety of criticizing a superior officer. When the proper apology is made to the people of New Mexico for this outrage, I will personally examine into the other matters referred to in your letter and from all sources of information available endeavor to ascertain whether or not such partisanship and incompetency has characterized the other activities of the State Council of Defense.

Very sincerely yours,
ARTHUR SELIGMAN,
Chairman.

W. J. Doering came up Tuesday from his Dona Ana county home. It looks natural to see Bill on our streets again and a pleasure to many friends.

Vernon Johnson III

Vernon, the sixteen-year-old daughter of Lieutenant P. H. Johnson, is very ill at Leretta Academy, Santa Fe, with the influenza. Her father secured a furlough and went from Camp Kearney, California, and has been constantly by his daughter's bedside. Friends here receive almost daily reports from the father. Yesterday's report was not very encouraging, yet some hope was held out for the young lady's recovery. Vernon's serious illness is a source of much concern to friends of her and her father here.

Mrs. T. J. Straley was brought down from Angelo Saturday in a critical condition. Her husband and daughter accompanied her. She was given medical attention and placed in charge of nurse Lena Grumbles.

Joe H. Gentry, postmaster at Fort Stanton, was a Carrizozo visitor Tuesday.

WILLIAM B. WALTON
Of Grant County, Democratic Candidate
For United States Senator

PRESIDENT WILSON has appealed to the people of the United States to elect to the United States Senate and Congress the Democratic candidates, that the war policies of the national administration may be upheld.

The people of New Mexico will heed that appeal next Tuesday and vote overwhelmingly for William B. Walton for United States Senator and Granville A. Richardson for Representative in Congress.

The winning of the war and the settlement of those grave problems that will come with peace negotiations rest in the hands of President Wilson, who is today the foremost leader and statesman of the world.

As the commander-in-chief of the army and navy President Wilson should be accorded loyal and patriotic support by the people of New Mexico, irrespective of politics.

Our boys are today giving their lives in France to make the world safe for this and future generations. Every qualified elector faces a solemn and sacred duty on election day. He should go to the polls and vote, for by failing to vote he is neglecting his duty to the boys "over there."

Prof. J. B. Taylor, formerly of Deming but now with the Y. M. C. A. at San Antonio, was here this week in the interest of the United War Work campaign. The county has been fully organized for a campaign beginning November 11, running to the 18th.

THOMAS J. MABRY

Of Bernalillo County, Democratic Candidate for Attorney General

Tom J. Mabry is one of the rising young lawyers of the state and as its attorney general will not be in the hands of any corporate or big business interest. He will continue the law without fear or favor in the interests of the whole people of the state.

Marcus C. de Baca

Marcus C. De Baca is a capable business man and has always stood for the best ideals in political affairs in New Mexico. Unlike many other Republicans when De Baca broke away from the party because of the domination of a corrupt Republican machine he broke away for good. He is clean and fearless and competent. His opponent is the brother of the perpetual present auditor of the state. The only way to end the Sargent 20-year dynasty is to vote for De Baca.

The father and brother of the deceased came from Memphis and accompanied the body to that point.

Three More Deaths

Three more deaths occurred in this locality the past week, the result of pneumonia, each victim having contracted influenza from which pneumonia developed.

Joe A. Shaver, a brother of Dr. P. M. Shaver, died early Monday morning. The deceased and his wife had come from Vaughn to assist Dr. Shaver and family, all of whom were down with the influenza. Following the contracting of Dr. Shaver and family the brother contracted the malady and pneumonia developed. The body was embalmed by Undertaker Kelley and shipped to Vaughn for burial.

Mrs. Ed C. Cooper, niece of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Cooper, died at Angelo the 29th. The Kelley undertaking establishment embalmed the body and it is being held at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. R. R. P. Warden pending funeral arrangements. Interment may take place in the White Oaks cemetery.

The third victim of the epidemic was John Robert Fisher, of White Oaks. The body was embalmed by Undertaker Kelley and shipped to Memphis, Texas, for interment.

Candidate for State Auditor

SYNOPSIS.

Lucile Green, charming, but with fads, is visited at the Green's summer island home by Monty Blainey. She proposes a week's fast. All food is banished.

CHAPTER I—Continued.

I groaned. I had nearly forgotten that there was to be no lunch. It's curious how much you depend on meals to break up the day. All the morning long you keep thinking, "I must get so much done before lunch," and then in the afternoon you spur yourself on to an extra effort with the thought of a better dinner than usual when you get through. Take these meal landmarks out of your day and what is left? Nothing but a dreary, dead level desert of time, a day whose limits seem interminable.

"How many days is it until we eat again?" I asked hopelessly.

"Six and a half," Lucile computed. "Then we get some orange juice and a few kernels of popcorn."

"Then what?"

"That's all for the first day." A few kernels of popcorn! Can you imagine a kernel of popcorn floating hither and yon in all that sea of water and finally giving up with a despairing shriek when it finds there is no place to land?

"You mustn't think of things to eat. You're not really hungry. It is your imagination. Tighten your belt and you won't know that you haven't eaten."

I followed her advice. True enough, the belt was quite loose. A terrible thought struck me—a few days of fasting and I would have to wear suspenders! I had always prided myself on a self-supporting figure, as it were, and had jeered at the fence rail build which is obliged to hang all its garments from its shoulders. Already with one meal missing I was up to the last notch in my belt.

Along toward noon I noticed a distinct headache.

"That will pass away," Lucile assured me. "Lipton S. Clair says so, and he ought to know."

"Why ought he to know?" I snapped. "Did he invent headaches, or is he just generalizing from reading about somebody else's headache? This pain I've got here has settled in my region of thought for a long run, and I defy any Lipton S. Clair to drive it out."

"Don't be cross," Lucile soothed. "Let me dip my handkerchief in this spring here and wet your forehead with it."

She did, and while it didn't do any good I always like to have her fussing around me.

The spring is one that every one visits who comes to the island, and there is a tin cup sitting on a rock near by. I started to get a drink.

"You mustn't drink that water," Lucile stopped me. "You must not drink anything but distilled water while you are fasting."

"Why not?"

"Because when there is nothing else in it the stomach is particularly susceptible to disease."

That was more of L. S. Clair's magazine stuff. I knew it. Probably he got about 5 cents a word for it too.

"That water, pure as it is, may have microbes in it," she continued.

"What chance would a microbe have against my stomach?" I returned bitterly, but I refrained from drinking the water. In those days that woman had me under her thumb.

At nightfall we sat around that white table once more. I think even Lucile's enthusiasm was wavering. It seemed distinctly more of an effort to be cheerful than it had at breakfast. Her mother with a glance which warned me that were we cannibals the laws of hospitality would hardly protect one of my buds.

"Have some water, Mr. Blainey," Lucile said.

"I won't drink another drop tonight," I declared. "unless I can have some flavoring extract in it."

After that we sat around thinking about sweet potatoes and hash and steaks, but talking about the latest books and the moonlight through the trees. But what is moonlight on an empty stomach? Merely moonlight, nothing more.

"What's that?" demanded Lucile, straining her ears to catch some sound out on the water. There was a faint "put-put" out somewhere.

"It's Johnson's launch," said Mrs. Green. "I can tell because it misses every tenth explosion."

"Lipton S. Clair says that fasting makes all the senses extraordinarily acute," Lucile explained.

I know Mrs. Green said "Lipton S. Clair" under her breath, but I did not hear it.

"I wonder what Johnson's boat can be doing out here at this time of night," Lucile speculated.

"He must be bringing some one over here," said her mother. "Ours is the only island for miles which is inhabited as late as this in the season."

"It can't be father," Lucile mused. "He said he wouldn't be home until Sunday."

So we went down to the dock. It was moonlight, and the old launch coming in looking some way romantic. What was she bringing up? Something within me suggested food.

The launch came alongside; a man with a couple of grips jumped ashore; then the boat backed away and limped off again into the darkness.

"Why, Frank Bopp!" exclaimed Lucile, greeting the newcomer. "We weren't expecting you until next week."

"I know it," he said, "but I got two weeks' vacation instead of one, and I thought I'd be welcome, so I grabbed the first train, and here I am."

"Of course you are welcome," Lucile was wondering how she was going to break the news of the fasting to him.

"How are you, Monty?" He hailed me with the nickname I most detest and slapped me on the shoulder blade where the sunburn was the worst.

I assured him politely, but untruthfully, that I had never felt better.

Then we went back to the house. All I had needed was the presence of this mosquito to be absolutely miserable. He knew more different ways of getting on my nerves, even when I was well fed, than any other individual in the world. I hated to think what the next few days would be like with Bopp and hunger for my companions.

"Believe me," Bopp was saying, "I had some dinner on the dining car this evening. There was some fried chicken, with biscuits and gravy, mashed potatoes, corn on the cob."

"Isn't the moon beautiful?" interrupted Lucile. Even she could stand no more.

"Looks like a great big pumpkin, doesn't it?" Bopp blundered.

I am going to put a new verb in the dictionary—namely, "to Bopp," meaning to speak at length on any annoying subject.

Finally Lucile took him one side and explained about the fasting. The idea fascinated him, especially in its application to me. He offered to wager me huge sums of money, which neither of us possessed, that I couldn't last for a week, and if I did he wanted to open a pool on my probable weight and waist measurement at the finish. You can imagine how much his talk amused me.

CHAPTER II.

After the Arrival of Mr. Bopp.

WHEN we got back to the house Lucile passed every one a glass of water. Bopp, with mock alarm, would not let me drink mine.

"Wait till I get a tire gauge," he said, "and see if Monty can stand another glass without bursting an inner tube."

"Don't be funny," interposed Lucile. "About tomorrow you'll feel the way Mr. Blainey does now."

"Why?"

"Any one does after fasting the first day."

"Me fast?" Bopp laughed a clear ringing laugh. "No, thank you. I don't go in for those fads. I think I can have more fun watching Monty do a gradual disappearing act."

Lucile didn't tell him then that there was no food in the house, and I joyfully refrained, for fear of spoiling a little bit of the pleasure I would have in watching him when he discovered it for himself the next morning at breakfast.

"I'm going to bed," I announced stiffly.

"Are you sleepy so soon?" asked Lucile.

"Not sleepy, but very tired," said I, looking pointedly at Bopp. "I think I may read awhile."

I started to get a glass of water.

"Pass Monty the boiler compound," said Bopp. "He's getting full of lime."

"Good night, Mr. Blainey," said Lucile sweetly, to make up for the boor's rudeness.

I held her hand for an instant. "Good night, Miss Green." Then as I turned to go up the stairs I mumbled, "Good night, Bopp."

"Good night, Monty," he returned. "Gee, for your sake I hope we don't have a frost tonight or you are apt to burst."

I went upstairs and slammed my bedroom door. At last I could be alone with my misery. After I got into bed I tried lying on my back, on my side and on my stomach. It was no use; I could not sleep.

At last I heard the others coming upstairs to bed. I wondered if he had kissed her good night in the hall.

Some one knocked at my door. I growled, "Come in."

Bopp stuck his head in at the door. "Excuse me, Monty," he said. "I saw a light under your door, and, thinking you might be awake, I brought you a book to read."

He tossed a volume on my bed, withdrew and shut the door.

I wondered if I had misjudged the man. It certainly was decent of him to bring me a book. I picked up the volume, read the title and threw it at the door he had just closed.

It was "The White House Cookbook."

In an hour or two it was daylight once more, and I dressed my emaciated figure with care, inserting a precautionary safety pin hither and yon in the folds which were once the waist line of my garments. Early as I had risen, Lucile was downstairs almost as soon as I was. We had our tipple standing and at separate times.

"Shall we waken Mr. Bopp?" I asked. "I should hate to have him miss any of this glorious day."

"No," vetoed Lucile, who suspected my motive. "The beauty of fasting is that it relieves one from all the restraint of convention. We are not tied down to meals, to regular rising and retiring. Every one may consult his own convenience in the matter. You choose to arise and glory in nature; he prefers to dream."

There were sounds of some one stirring upstairs.

"Frank is up," announced Lucile with relief. I think she knew there was a storm coming and was glad to get the suspense over with.

Bopp sang as he dressed. I never care for a person who is cheerful before breakfast. It always seems to me as if the person puts it on to irritate others.

The melody which Bopp dressed himself by was "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes," and then as an encore he favored himself with "The Old Oaken Bucket" and "Swanee River." After that he was entitled to all that was coming to him.

He came downstairs smiling and asked pleasantly, "Have you been out to pump your breakfast yet, Monty?"

When he noticed that Lucile was in the room he made no further allusions to eating or water. Then he went out into the kitchen. When he returned his face wore a puzzled expression.

"Do you know where the maid is?" he inquired. "I thought I'd ask her to make me a cup of coffee."

"The maid is taking a vacation," I answered hastily, for fear Lucile would rob me of the pleasure of telling him. "She won't be back for a week."

"Oh!" He received the blow with open mouth. After a moment he recovered. "You won't mind, will you, Lucile, if I get myself a bite?"

"I wouldn't mind in the least," she answered, "but there isn't a thing to eat in the house."

"Nothing to eat?"

"No. That's so we wouldn't be tempted to break our fast."

I sauntered casually over to the piano and with one finger picked out "I'm on the Water Wagon Now."

Bopp was too stunned to notice it much.

"What shall I do?" he yelled, with all the rage of a regular man deprived of his breakfast.

"Why, you'll have to fast, too," said Lucile placidly. "It will make you feel better and will put flesh on your frame."

"But you said that it would make me thin," I interrupted.

"It works both ways," supplied Lucile.

"Me fast?" snorted Bopp. "I guess not—not while I'm within two miles of the mainland! Is the motorboat in running order?"

"Why, yes, I guess it is," Lucile replied doubtfully. It is always well to be doubtful about a motorboat. "But there is no one here who can run it."

"Huh!" grunted Bopp unpleasantly. "I guess I can run it. I don't like to talk about myself, but I have yet to meet the gasoline engine that does not cower at my approach. If there's a spark and if there's any juice in the gasoline tank she's got to go."

"MEAT!" CRY BELGIAN WAIFS

Hungry Children March Through Streets Shouting for Food—Fed by the Red Cross.

The desperate condition of the civilian population of Belgium and northern France, who are being repatriated, and the work of the Red Cross in restoring them to normal health is graphically described in a report to Red Cross headquarters from Evain, where repatriates are received. These destitute people are returning to their land at the rate of 1,000 a week, 60 per cent of them children. Their hardships have been so acute that of the adults who return 30 per cent die the first month from exhaustion.

"There arrived recently," says the report, "a train loaded with Belgian children, 690 of them, thin, sickly, alone, all between ages of four and twelve, children of men who refused to work for the Germans and of mothers who let their children go rather than let them starve. They poured off the train."

"They had come all the long way alone. The children poured out the station, marched along the street, shouting, 'Meat, meat, we are going to have meat!' to the Casino, where they were given a square meal, the first in many months."

That Bore of a Fond Parent.

Of course, you have a bright youngster who says and does amusing things, asserts a writer.

But all children do.

Your child has not a monopoly.

If you wish to be classed with the worst of bores, continue your constant eulogy of all that your child says or does.

If, for instance, some other child said or did what your boy or girl does, would you think it so exasperatingly funny?

Every bright, healthy, intelligent child is delightful in the unfolding.

To each fond father and mother the particular angles of understanding, as they come to light, are most interesting.

But the youngster is chiefly interesting to yourself.

You see traits and characteristics in the light of what you know you are yourself. That is what makes it sound so funny.

How about the mean little tricks that your own child has and that you cannot get away from? They all have them, too. Do you tell these things?

No.

Then your wonderful tales are merely another form of braggadocio. How about it?

Sanitary Fountains.

An investigation of drinking fountains at the University of Minnesota, carried out by the state board of health, led to the rather startling result that the 77 fountains in use at the university, most of which belonged to various supposedly "sanitary" types were found to be improperly constructed to prevent contamination by the consumer, according to the Scientific American. The principal defect was the vertical discharge of the water, making it necessary for the consumer to place his mouth directly over the point of discharge. It was found that the majority of persons drank with the lips touching the nozzle. The investigators devised a new type of fountain in which the discharge is at such an angle that there is no possibility of water falling back from the mouth upon or near the orifice.

Find Skeleton of Giant.

A perfect skeleton was uncovered in Surrey, England, during the work of carrying out alterations to surface water drainage in one of the main streets in Farnham. The chief bones were in a perfect state of preservation, and were sufficient to show that the body was that of a man of unusual stature. Close by was found a bone of a horse. The site of a Norman cemetery is only a little distance from the spot where the body was found, and here some years ago cinerary urns were discovered, which were stated to be perfect examples of first-century urns. Some of these are now preserved in Waverly Abbey.

Running the kitchen successfully always did require brains. Now it demands a considerable degree of patriotism.

The KITCHEN CABINET

In good society a woman is known not by the company she keeps but by the salads she serves. Instinctively, the accomplished housewife puts forth her best effort in the preparation of a salad.

MORE SALADS.

A LAD which is a little different is the following: Cut small ripe tomatoes which have been peeled into quarters without separating them from the stem end, so the tomato lies on the salad plate like an open flower.

Lettuce may be used or not for a nest for the tomato. Heap over the tomato finely chopped apple and celery which has been well mixed with a highly seasoned dressing. Garnish with shredded bits of green pepper.

Golden Chestnut Salad.—Shell, blanch and boil until tender one pint of chestnuts. Drain and dust and set aside to cool. Arrange in a salad bowl on a bed of water cress or of lettuce and sift over them lightly the yolks of two hard-cooked eggs. Hold the egg yolks in a sieve over the nuts and rub them through. Serve with a good flavored dressing.

Tomato Salad.—Scald, peel and chill six firm tomatoes and cut in halves. To one cupful of whipped cream add two tablespoonfuls of lemon juice and the same of grated fresh horseradish, season with paprika, mustard and salt. Place the tomatoes on lettuce, heap on the dressing and sprinkle with a bit of chopped red pepper.

Bacon Salad.—Cut six slices of tender bacon into squares and fry until brown; drain on paper; heat six tablespoonfuls of this fat and two tablespoonfuls of vinegar; beat the yolks of three eggs and one-fourth of a teaspoonful each of paprika and mustard and cook in the fat until thick. When the dressing is cold, toss the bacon over crisp head lettuce and mix with the dressing.

Sweetbreads and Celery Salad.—Mix equal parts of cooked sweetbreads, diced, with celery, also diced. Add a nicely seasoned dressing and serve. The dressing and seasoning is the important point in a good salad.

Within the husk the harvest lies unfolded. The chaff has died; But the sweet life the summer months have molded. Becomes our bread.

THE CANNING OF MEATS.

THE canning of meats is not so common but that the inexperienced housewife approaches the task with fear of losing it by spoilage. Meat may be canned as successfully as any other food, if the proper care is taken.

To be sure that the cans are perfectly sealed and sterile.

Those who live near lakes or streams where fish abound will find canned fish a most savory dish to serve on short notice.

The housewife who has her fruit cellar well stocked with canned fish, meat, soups as well as vegetables, has no fears when an unexpected onslaught of company drops in on her on a busy day, for she knows but a few minutes are needed to prepare a good meal from the good things canned.

Tough meats may be cooked a half hour before packing.

Fish should be soaked in salt brine a half hour before packing. All meats as well as fish should be in perfect condition for canning.

Chicken fried, canned in the late fall, preserves the meat at the most delicious stage and we avoid the expense of carrying them over the winter.

Game and fish may be canned to serve at a time when both are out of season.

Canned Chicken.—A fowl weighing two pounds when dressed should make a pint of solid meat and a pint of stock thick enough to jelly. A four-pound fowl will fill a quart can. Sear the meat in hot fat, or in boiling water, then remove the bones and pack, filling the space with the stock which has been saved from the cooking of the meat and bones. Add one teaspoonful of salt to a quart of meat with other seasonings, if liked. Seal the jar then turn back one quarter way round if a Mason jar; if one with a clamp, leave the lower one unadjusted. Place in the boiler and boil with water to cover three hours. Take out, seal tightly at once. The meat may be packed uncooked, but it does not have as good a flavor as when browned and lightly seasoned while cooking.

A Bird in the Hand

TURKEYS FOR HOLIDAY MARKETS.

The Round-Up of a Turkey Drive.

FATTEN TURKEYS FOR THE MARKET

Finish Fowls When Demand Is Keen and Price Correspondingly Attractive.

EXCELLENT PLAN OUTLINED

New Corn Can Safely Be Fed if Fowls Are Gradually Accustomed to It—Birds Always Make Best Gains on Free Range.

The true test of expert turkey raising is to be able to market a large percentage of the annual crop in the pink of market finish at a time when the demand is keen and the price correspondingly attractive.

In fattening turkeys for the market an excellent plan is to begin early in October to feed night and morning, only feeding enough at a time so that the birds go away still feeling a little hungry, and gradually increasing the quantity until they are given all they will clean up three times a day during the week before marketing. By the latter feeding is meant that they are fed until they leave the feed and walk away. Some turkey raisers feed out during the first part of the fattening season, gradually changing to corn as the weather becomes cooler. Previous to the war, wheat was used in the same manner as oats. The majority, however, begin feeding heavily on corn about November 1, and since turkeys are not accustomed to such heavy feeding, scours often result, especially if new corn is used. New corn can be fed safely if the turkeys are gradually accustomed to it by feeding lightly at first and more heavily afterward.

Confining turkeys during the fattening season to prevent their using so much energy in ranging has been tried to some extent, but with very little success. Those confined to a pen eat heartily for two or three days, but after this they lose their appetite and begin to lose flesh rapidly. On allowing them free range again, they pick up rapidly and are soon eating as heartily as ever. The better method is to allow them free range, as it keeps them in good, healthy condition, and they are always eager to be fed.

Nuts From the Range.

Nuts of various kinds are a natural fattening feed picked up by the turkeys on the range. Of these hick-nuts, chestnuts, pecans and acorns are the most commonly found by them. Many turkey growers in Texas depend solely upon acorns for fattening their turkeys, and when these nuts are plentiful the birds are marketed in fairly good condition.

The marketing season for turkeys is very short, running from the middle of November to the latter part of December. Most turkey raisers sell their birds alive to poultry dealers, who either dress them or ship them alive to city dealers. Farmers near the city markets, and particularly those in the middle Atlantic and New England states, often dress the turkeys and either sell them direct to the consumer or to city dealers. In some sections shortly before Thanksgiving there is held what is known as turkey day. On the day before the event every turkey grower in the neighborhood kills and dresses his turkeys and the following morning brings them into town, where they are bid on and purchased by whatever buyers choose to be there, the birds going to the highest bidder.

In sections in which turkeys are grown in large numbers, as in Texas, dressing plants have been built by poultry dealers, who buy the birds alive and dress them for the various city markets. In such cases practically all the turkey raisers sell to these dealers, who often send buyers out into the country to gather up a drove of several hundred birds by stopping at each farm as they pass, weighing whatever turkeys the farmer may have to sell, and adding them to those already collected. Six or eight men can drive a flock of 1,000 turkeys 10 to 12 miles a day. As soon as possible after the turkeys are received at the dressing plant they are killed, dry-picked, cooled and packed in barrels or boxes for shipment.

Killing and Dressing.

In killing and dressing turkeys on the farm they should first be deprived of feed for 24 hours, but given plenty of fresh, clean water in order to clean the crop and intestines of all feed. When ready to kill, the bird should be hung up by the feet; holding the bird in one hand a sharp, narrow-bladed knife is used to sever the veins in the throat by making a small cut inside the mouth on the right side of the throat at the base of the skull. After making this cut and bleeding begins, the knife is thrust up through the groove in the roof of the mouth and into the brain at the back part of the skull. On piercing the brain the bird gives a peculiar squawk, the feathers are loosened by a quivering of the muscles, and death is instantaneous. In dry-picking the feathers should be plucked immediately, and if the bird has been properly stuck they come out very easily. The tail and large wing feathers are removed first, after which the body feathers are pulled out. When the turkeys are to be marketed locally or are to be shipped but a short distance they are cooled to a temperature of about 35 degrees Fahrenheit by hanging in the open air, provided the weather is cool enough; otherwise they are plunged into ice water and kept there until thoroughly cooled. After cooling they are packed undrawn in boxes or barrels. It is inadvisable for the producer without proper refrigerating facilities to ship dressed turkeys, as losses from improper cooling and from their being exposed to warm weather during transit are liable to occur. Aside from this it is seldom profitable to ship turkeys any great distance except in carload lots; when this is done the turkeys are cooled to 32 degrees Fahrenheit, packed in boxes or barrels, and shipped in refrigerator cars.

Provide Plenty of Water.

Water receptacles for poultry should be large enough to hold plenty of water to last at least 24 hours, so the fowls will never suffer from lack of water. Drinking vessels should be carefully rinsed when fresh water is given. If water is supplied irregularly, the hens will likely drink too much at a time. It should not be exposed to the sun's rays in summer or be allowed to freeze in winter if this can be avoided. A flock of 50 hens in good laying condition will require four to six quarts of water a day.

Shade of some kind should be provided for poultry, and this can often be advantageously furnished by planting fruit trees (such as pear, plum, cherry and apple) in the yard.

Geese live to a great age. The females are reliable and productive for many years.

LIFT OFF CORNS!

Doesn't hurt at all and costs only a few cents

Magic! Just drop a little Freezone on that touchy corn, instantly it stops aching, then you lift the corn off with the fingers. Truly! No humbug!

Try Freezone! Your druggist sells a tiny bottle for a few cents, sufficient to rid your feet of every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and calluses, without one particle of pain, soreness or irritation. Freezone is the discovery of a noted Cincinnati genius.

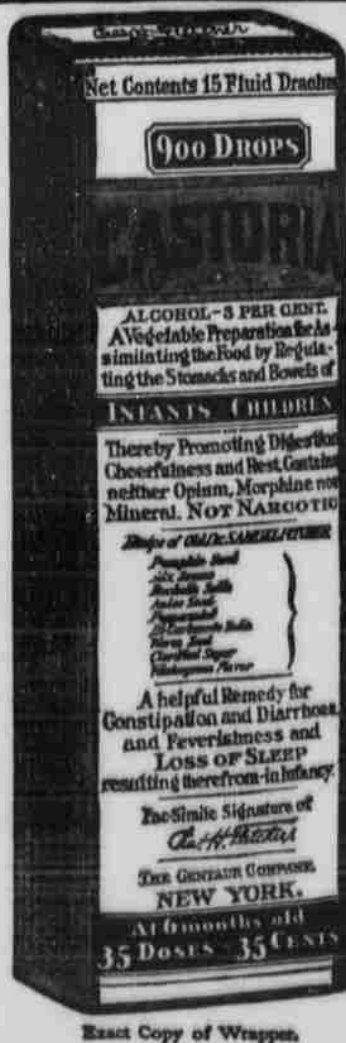

Reputation is a bubble that man blows and then punctures.

Lives 200 Years!

For more than 200 years, Haarlem Oil, the famous national remedy of Holland, has been recognized as an infallible relief from all forms of kidney and bladder disorders. Its very age is proof that it must have unusual merit.

If you are troubled with pains or aches in the back, feel tired in the morning, headaches, indigestion, insomnia, painful or too frequent passage of urine, irritation or stone in the bladder, you will almost certainly find relief in GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules. This is the good old remedy that has stood the test for hundreds of years, prepared in the proper quantity and convenient form to take. It is imported direct from Holland laboratories, and you can get it at any drug store. It is a standard, old-time home remedy and needs no introduction. Each capsule contains one dose of five drops and is pleasant and easy to take. They will quickly relieve those stiffened joints, that backache, rheumatism, lumbago, sciatica, gall stones, gravel, "brick dust," etc. Your money promptly refunded if they do not relieve you. But be sure to get the genuine GOLD MEDAL brand. In boxes, three sizes.—Adv.

NEW MEXICO WILL VOTE TO UPHOLD PRESIDENT WILSON

The people of America committed the government of the United States into the hands of Woodrow Wilson and gave control of Congress to the Democratic party two years ago.

This year the people are vitally concerned in continuing that leadership. They want President Wilson to win the war and to dictate the terms of peace.

Congress is an essential part of the war machinery. In times of war it should always be controlled by the administration party. Congressional action can best be trusted to men in positive sympathetic accord with the chief executive, especially in the Senate, because that body is part of the treaty-making power.

It must be remembered that while the WHOLE WORLD TRUSTED WILSON, in his most recent dealings with Germany's peace overtures, Senator Lodge and other Republican leaders in Congress, alone voiced expressions of criticism and doubt.

These partisan outbreaks do not vouchsafe such unwavering confidence in the President that the country desires in the settlement of the final questions of the war.

If Woodrow Wilson is to lead the nation in settling the war problems, it is most essential that the Democratic party retain control of the Senate.

A Republican Senate under the leadership of Henry Cabot Lodge, would be antagonistic to President Wilson's war aims.

In considering the senatorial candidates in New Mexico at the election November 5, the people of this state must choose between the Democratic nominee, W. B. Walton, who in Congress has stood loyally by the President and his policies, and the Republican nominee, Senator Fall, who is only a 40 per cent senator.

New Mexico on Tuesday, November 5, will vote to uphold President Wilson.

The Nation First

The people of New Mexico are wholeheartedly and unreservedly behind the President of the United States—the Commander-in-chief of their army and navy.

They have seen him lead them through many perils and dangers and hold steadfast always to the right and to their ideals of justice and liberty. Regardless of party affiliations, the plain people of the state are giving their unstinted and unsparring support to the nation's leader.

They demand also that the men whom they will elect to the lesser offices shall be no less earnest and loyal in support of the Commander-in-chief. None but true and tried men shall be put on guard in this hour of national peril.

Everybody knows how the Democratic candidates stand on this question. Walton has been tried in Congress. He has stood by the President. Richardson, Garcia—every man nominated for office on the Democratic ticket—will not hesitate or falter in their support of Woodrow Wilson. They can be trusted, and the people of New Mexico know it.

The Republican candidates, of whom Albert B. Fall is an example, in one breath declare that they have stood by the President and will continue to stand by him, and in the next breath visit upon him carping, partisan criticism.

Woodrow Wilson is your leader in the greatest crisis the nation has ever faced. Put the nation first. Put in office only men you KNOW will give their wholehearted support to the President.

Your Boy and Mine

More than fifteen thousand New Mexico boys—your boy and mine—are fighting the battles of Democracy on the fields of France.

Their leader and ours is Woodrow Wilson, President of the United States and Commander-in-chief of the army and navy.

Can we look these boys in the face if in this election we vote to put men in office who are not in sympathy with their leader? Will our consciences be clear if we elect men whose past record has shown that they will overlook no opportunity to embarrass and harass the Commander-in-chief of the army and navy if by so doing they may gain a partisan advantage?

Never was there a time when a vote meant more than it does in this election. Party standards have passed. The truest patriot today is the man who can forget his party in the sincere effort to put in office men whose support of the President can not be doubted.

Think of that boy when you go to vote and vote the straight Democratic ticket—the Victory ticket.

All Questionnaires

Have Been Mailed

Announcement is made by the Local Board that all questionnaires to registrants of September 12th have now been mailed, the last lot being to those of ages 18-19 and 37-45.

Registrants who do not receive their questionnaires by November 5th should make inquiry of Clerk of the Local Board L. E. Schaeffer.

Patriotism or Politics

This is not an ordinary political campaign. Ordinary standards fall in attempting to reach a conclusion regarding it.

The yardstick of patriotism is the sole measure of candidates for office. The voters of New Mexico are little interested in the tariff and questions of that sort, in this campaign. What they do want to know is whether the men they elect to office have stood by the President in his fight for humanity and world democracy.

Republican politicians who are striving to overthrow Woodrow Wilson's power in the nation protest their patriotism and declare that they have stood by the President, but their records belie their protestations.

If you elect Democratic candidates to office this year you KNOW that they will give loyal, patriotic support to the President. Can you afford to take chances by voting for men who are avowedly opposed to everything for which the President stands?

The masses of the Republican party are loyal and patriotic men. They will not be Republicans this year. Their patriotism will rise superior to their partisanship. When the smoke of battle has cleared their would-be leaders will be found standing alone in the hopelessness of utter defeat.

For this year politics must give way to patriotism in the hearts of the American people. There can be but one answer—vote the straight Democratic ticket—the VICTORY ticket.

DEMOCRATIC SHRAPNEL.

Vote for W. B. Walton for senator. He will make his headquarters in Washington all the time.

Walton worked—Fall shirked. That is the record of the two candidates for United States senator.

Two years of E. C. Hernandez was enough to convince the people of New Mexico that he can do them more good at home than in Washington.

Senator Fall insists he supported the President but he had a mighty poor way of showing it, for instance, read his attack on the selective service act. "Will you tell me that the military establishment of this country, as at present constituted, is fit to be trusted with the lives of our boys, to do with them as they please under the draft system? I have no confidence in the present military establishment of the United States. Let me state that as emphatically as possible." (Page 2447, Vol. 5, Congressional Record.)

A vote for the Republican ticket is a vote to let Bureau crawl under the tent when he couldn't come in at the main entrance.

Have you read "Reflections of a Republican," by Ernest B. Garcia, a delegate to the Republican convention from Bernallillo county? Write Democratic state headquarters for a copy.

Every voter should read "Save a Soldier's Life," "Mr. Patriot," and other Democratic literature. Write the Democratic state committee today and get a copy to read before you vote.

Valencia county has at last thrown off the yoke of political oppression. It has turned down the bosses who have ruled that county for many years and has nominated an independent Republican/Democratic ticket, composed of able and honest men who will be elected November 5.

The voters must not be fooled by Republican propaganda this year with which the state is being literally flooded.

Senator A. A. Jones has returned to New Mexico from Washington and is receiving the congratulations of his

Why the Democratic Ticket Will Win

Actually fighting in the world war will probably cease within a year, but United States Senators are elected for six years. There will be vital questions in our "after the war" legislation, which the Senator we elect November 5 will have to consider. New Mexico owes it to herself and to the rest of the nation to select a Senator who is safe, conservative and dependable, one who will represent all the people. W. B. Walton is such a man.

Verbal pyrotechnics are sometimes effective in catching the unthinking voter back home, but in the United States Senate the man who sticks to his post and works for the interests of his constituents is the one who gets results. W. B. Walton is a consistent worker as his record shows, while Senator Fall has in his six years service averaged but 40 per cent efficient in voting and attendance.

None the less important is the election as representative in Congress of a Democrat to support President Wilson and his administration in these critical times. Judge Granville A. Richardson, of Chaves county, the Democratic nominee, by reason of his service on the district bench and his years of experience as a lawyer, is admirably equipped to serve New Mexico in the national Congress. The people will elect him for they know he will stand by President Wilson.

Felix Garcia will give New Mexico valuable and meritorious service as governor. He is a level-headed business man, of known worth, integrity and ability.

No representative of any special interest, no matter what that interest, is desirable as a member of the supreme bench. Justice Richard H. Hanna is free from all "entangling alliances." By reason of his splendid record, legal ability, independence and experience he will be respected by the people.

The presiding officer of the State Senate must be a man who is an experienced parliamentarian and who has the courage of his convictions. Such a man is Elmer K. Veeder, Democratic nominee for lieutenant governor, who is certain to be elected.

New Mexico's greatest asset is her school lands. They must be well guarded. The election of George A. Davidson as state land commissioner, will mean an honest and capable administration of this important office.

In the candidacy of T. W. Medley as Magistrate for Santa Fe county on the Democratic ticket, a worthy successor to Treasurer H. L. Hall has been named. Experienced in business affairs and banking, Mr. Medley will make a competent official who will creditably administer the affairs of this important office.

Elect Marcos C. de Baca State Auditor and place the administration of the affairs of that office in the hands of a man who will conduct it as a public trust. E. C. THE SARGENT REGIME OF SUCCESSION.

An educator of known ability and experience and a former vice president of the New Mexico Educational Association, Prof. J. S. Long of Huerfano county, Democratic nominee for State Superintendent of Schools, is in every way qualified to direct the state's school system. He will be elected.

Thomas J. Mabry is an aggressive and experienced young lawyer who is in every way qualified to be Attorney General of New Mexico. He is one of the leaders of the state bar. Vote for him on election day.

Juan J. Duran has made good as county clerk of Union county and will make good in the office of Secretary of State. His nomination by the Democrats was a recognition of his efficiency.

D. J. Phelan as Corporation Commissioner will discharge his official duties impartially and fairly. He is experienced in railroad affairs, is the friend of labor, and will not be controlled by any corporation or companies seeking special favors at the expense of the people.

NOT A "RUBBER STAMP"

Senator Fall proudly boasts that he is not a "rubber stamp," and the expression has become the campaign cry of the Republican press. Perhaps the senator has improved, but he must have been a half brother to a "rubber stamp" when he supported the vicious railroad measure, known as the "Hawkins Law," in territorial days—a measure so unfair that it was annulled by congress and denounced by leading members of our national body as the most vicious legislation ever placed upon the statutes.

Yes, it is admitted, Senator Fall is fearless; he has shown an utter disregard to the welfare of the great mass of people—the people to whom he must look for reelection. He is fearless—he is not afraid to support the "interests" every time called upon—and, naturally, the interests are behind him with a fat pocket book.

CAMOUFLAGE

The Republicans tell us they are the "War Party," and if they were in charge they could win the war so much more easily, swiftly and honorably than the Democrats. They also assert that the south is taking too big a part in governmental affairs and the penny-a-liners are fighting the civil war yet.

Now, as a matter of fact, the Republican party was the war party of the 60's, but most everybody but the demagogue and cheap politician had shown a willingness to forget that—and had forgotten it—in the graver perils of the present. As to the patriotic and loyal feature of the present war, a comparison of the two parties does not place the Republicans in an enviable light. A reference to the record in congress is sufficient to contravert the proud boast of the Republicans, if the magnificent accomplishments of America in this war are entirely overlooked—accomplishments that meet the approval of our allies and show that we are far ahead of our schedule in the furnishing of men, munitions and ships.

Reference to this record is made because that record shows that the house and senate contained members of both parties opposed to war, and not only opposed to war, but men who did much to hinder the administration in the prosecution of the war. The summer and fall primaries, then, put the record of these men squarely up to the people on a question of loyalty, with the result that every Democrat who had taken an active part against war measures, save one, was defeated for renomination; while more than fifty Republicans—disloyal in speech and action, have been renominated by the Republican party.

The difficulty with the Republican party is that it lives in the past; it thrives upon the glories of the 60's and is not properly impressed with the bigger things of the present. Its big men—Lincoln, Seward, Chase, Conkling, Blaine—are all dead, and the Republican party is, therefore, like a hill of potatoes—the best part under ground.

WALTON WITH WILSON

W. B. Walton has a record for conscientious attention to duty and work for his constituents and has not spent most of his time at home looking after his business interests while Congress was in session and there was work to be done in Washington.

Walton will work for the vigorous prosecution of the war. Walton will stand first, last and all the time for Americanism. Walton will work rather than talk. Walton will faithfully discharge every trust. New Mexico needs Walton in the United States Senate.

Why is it that the Albuquerque Morning Journal and the Santa Fe New Mexican, for many years fearless independent newspapers, are slavishly supporting the Republican candidate for office this year—candidates whom the Journal and the New Mexican always fought bitterly during the days when these papers were independent? BIG MONEY does not want sound arguments in favor of the election of Democratic candidates to reach the voters in this election. BIG MONEY knows that peace is near at hand and that the commercial, financial and economic readjustment of the country will take place as soon as that comes. BIG MONEY knows that with Woodrow Wilson at the helm and a Democratic majority in Congress in sympathy with his aims, readjustment will be made for the benefit of the plain people. BIG MONEY wants it made in the interests of Big Money. What will happen to the Federal Reserve Law, the Federal Trade Commission, the Farm Loan Law, and the var-

Stand By the President

Woodrow Wilson, a Democrat, is in the executive chair, and the nation is now engaged in the most terrible war of all human history. If there was need to give McKinley a Republican Congress in 1898, how much more imperative is the need to give Wilson a Democratic Congress in 1918? Forget you are a Republican—remember you are an American.

Stand by the President by electing a Democratic Congress.

A 40% SENATOR.

Out of a total of 1,498 "Yes" and "No" votes, Senator Fall of New Mexico was recorded as "not voting" 889 times, or virtually 60 per cent. Out of a total of 2,819 quorum calls, Senator Fall is recorded as "absent" 1,344 times, or 66 per cent, which justifies the fact that he is what might be called a 40 per cent senator.

Some say that Albert B. Fall is an intellectual giant. They also say that he is intensely patriotic, but what good is it for a man to have brains if he does not use them or to be patriotic if his patriotism dominates his every act in order to gain partisan and personal advantage? Walton has both brains and patriotism and he uses both of them all the time for the people of New Mexico and not only 40 per cent of the time.

DON'T let a week go by without depositing some amount of money in a savings account at this bank.

The more of your savings our four per cent interest has to work on, the more it earns for you.

Let the dollars to your credit here pile up weekly, and your bank account—that measure of your persistence which is the character mark for the world's confidence in you—will take care of itself.

MR. VOTER, DO YOU KNOW?

That the State Council of Defense has had $25,000 to spend in the past seventeen months and that no itemized report has ever been issued to tell the people of the state how it has been spent?

That if the next Congress is Republican, the man who will have charge of raising the revenue for the government to carry on the war will be Joseph W. Fordney, of Michigan, a rank puppet who voted wrong on six of the eight war questions?

That more than a million and a half of dollars has been spent by the State Highway Commission on roads the past year? What shape are the roads in in your county?

That Governor Lindsay since the first of last January has pardoned eighty-four men from the state penitentiary, almost 25 per cent of the men convicted of crime within the borders of the state?

That Democrats in the United States defeated for renomination thirty-nine Democratic congressmen and three senators who voted against the war, and that the Republicans have renominated fifty-one congressmen and one senator who voted wrong on war issues?

That of $75,000 loaned to the farmers of the state to increase agricultural production, only $18,000 has been collected and only $675 in interest?

That the Republicans promised to name a clean ticket this year but that Bureau controlled the Socorro county delegation, that Catron controlled the Santa Fe delegation, that Frank Hubbell and Jesus Romero piloted the Bernalillo delegation and that Joe Rogers and Charles Spence controlled the San Miguel delegation?

That if the Republicans control the next House of Congress, that the chairman of the military affairs committee will be a congressman who was born in Germany?

That if the Republicans control the next Senate, the third man in control in raising funds for the prosecution of the war will be the unrepentant Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin?

That the Republicans tried at the special session of the Legislature to appropriate $1,500,000 for the State Council of Defense, composed of all Republicans and one Democrat, and that the Democrats forced it to be reduced to $750,000?

In spite of the $1,500,000 spent on the roads of the state by the Republican State Highway Commission, roads in most counties of the state are in worse shape than they were two years ago?

That although the Republicans claim they must control Congress to insure that the President will have full support for his war measures, one fourth of the Republican strength in Congress steadily voted against war measures and that most of it has been renominated?

That although the law provides that all public moneys must be paid out on itemized vouchers, the State Council of Defense turned over $20,000 in a lump sum to the State College, in which Dr. Crile, Republican, is head?

That the administration of the State Council of Defense is costly so that for every dollar it spends on war work 8 cents is required to pay for salaries and clerical help?

That the vice chairman of the Republican national committee is a man who wrote so strong a pro-German letter home from Berlin that the Republicans refused to stand even for him for national chairman?

That a Republican Legislature appropriated $30,000 to finish up 5 per cent of the work in the Texas Boundery suit and that only $19,000 has been spent in five years by a Democratic administration in doing the other 95 per cent of the work?

That Bureau, Fall, Hubbell and Spence controlled the Republican state convention this year, and do you recall what the Albuquerque Journal and the Santa Fe New Mexican said about these bosses in 1916 when they were opposing the Republican ticket?

That in 1908, when the President and Congress were Republican, Theodore Roosevelt said that Americans who voted for Democrats then, while Republicans were conducting a war were voting against their country?

We meet all competition. Write for our prices.—Western Garage.

Seven Societies

The United War Work Campaign for the purpose of raising $170,000,000.00 will be conducted the week of November 11-18. The seven societies for which this campaign will be made are:

The Y. M. C. A., the Y. W. C. A., the War Camp Community Service, the American Library Association, the National Catholic War Council, the Jewish Welfare Board and the Salvation Army.

Each of these societies perform a specific service at home and abroad though their objects are similar; to aid and comfort our soldiers, relieve their wants and do everything possible to win the war.

Recently M. U. Finley was appointed chairman for Lincoln county and he has, by and with the advice of an executive committee, appointed precinct chairman throughout the county. The executive committee has met with Prof. J. B. Taylor and Dr. Phillips, who, but for the prevalence of an epidemic, would have addressed public meetings and started the campaign off properly. Notwithstanding health conditions, the National Council has decided to push the campaign on the dates given, and every community, every individual will be called upon to aid.

AIRPLANE AFIRE,
HE "CARRIES ON"

British Pilot Tells of Thrilling Experience Spotting for Artillery.

DESCENDS JUST IN TIME

Engine Stops Just as Mission is Completed—Puts Machine into Side-Slip—Tank Explodes Just as He Reaches Safety.

London.—"The fighting pilots don't get all the fun of the war in the air," writes a young 'bird' who had a thrilling experience recently, returning to his base in a flaming plane.

"We were flying over No Man's Land," he says, "spotting for the artillery, and by constantly changing direction and height we had pretty well escaped the attention of the ubiquitous Archie. The 'shoot' was progressing satisfactorily, and our battery would soon be all ranged. Our engine had been running very badly, and had the 'shoot' been less important we should have returned home; but the target was a special Hun bridge, and the battery was shooting excellently.

Airplane on Fire.
"Suddenly a smell of burning wood reached my nostrils. Looking down, I saw the framework near my feet blackened and smoldering. The engine's back-firing must have made a torch of the exhaust. I switched off the petrol supply and opened out the throttle. One steep, swift dive and the fire was out.

"Then I hesitated. Should we hurry for home and safety, or continue the 'shoot,' in which a very little more observing would bring complete success? I turned to the observer. He leaned over and inspected the damage. It was not very bad, really. He shouted into my ear:

"Let's carry on."
"I climbed again and we continued to 'shoot.' Our battery was very soon firing as a battery—all guns—our last message having completed the registration; and now shells were dropping about the target. Our part was done—pretty well, too—and in a few minutes the bridge was entirely destroyed. In our excitement the faulty engine had been forgotten until, with one last splutter, it gave out completely. It stopped.

"The machine was really on fire this time and I was too late. The wood-work was burning independently of petrol and exhaust, and to dive now would only fan the flames about my feet. Yet we had to get to the ground, and very quickly, too.

Quite a Wild Affair.
"I put the machine into a violent side-slip away from the line. The flames were thus fanned toward the opposite wing. The observer, leaning over my shoulder, squirted the fire extinguisher about my feet, which enabled me to keep control of the rudder bar. We were down to 1,500 feet, but the heat was intense.

"The fire had reached the right wing. Things were getting more and more exciting. Would the fabric continue to support us? I pushed down the nose to hasten our descent, keeping the machine also in a side-slip. The rush of air slightly changed the direction of the flames. Now we were nearly down. There were a few shell holes and hardly any hedges. Unless we were unlucky we should not meet any serious obstacle.

"DOLL UP" FOR BOCHES

Yanks Raid Trenches in Grotesque Makeup.

Soldiers Have Pendant for Attiring Themselves in Discarded Civilian Clothing.

With the American Army in France. —Far up near the front, where one never sees a woman, a child nor a male civilian, it is no uncommon sight to come suddenly on a party of youths arrayed in high hats, frock coats, checked trousers and patent leather shoes.

They are American soldiers, billeted in ruined French villages, who have picked up these garments from among the debris of the shell-shattered houses.

Some of them even don women's clothing, picture hats, feather boas, silk blouses and skirts, and I have even seen them wearing blonde wigs which they raked up somewhere amid the wreckage of villas on the Marne.

The boys go about various duties, cleaning horses, driving ammunition caissons, working about their billets

DEAF MEN FAILURES
IN AVIATION SERVICE

Akron, O.—"Silent Bob" Hogan of this city has decided that a deaf man has no business in the aviation service of the army. He tried to get in and found that those who are deaf have no sense of balance. Balance is due to the ear and muscles. The trial of six deaf mutes proves that the ear is one of the requisites for balance.

"The ground rushed toward us. I took off the 'bank' and 'flattened out.' One landing wheel touched with a bump, broke away and continued its course independently. The machine pirouetted on the remaining wheel and finally crashed on its nose and left wing. It was quite a wild affair, but we were unhurt.

"Springing to the ground, we hurried away from the burning wreck just in time, for a second later the petrol tank exploded. We just looked at each other and never said a word, but neither of us regretted having chanced it and finished our job."

and doing the thousand-and-one other odd jobs that fall to their lot, in their ludicrous makeup.

Right on the Vesle some of the Americans picked up some "trick" clothes in gas-drenched Flimes and put them on. They crossed the river and raided a German machine gun nest that had been annoying them during the day by spurring indirect fire on them. They brought in a couple of prisoners who could not conceal their amazement from the German-speaking officer who questioned them that troops could masquerade in such attire in the midst of danger.

Australian and Canadian troops have a penchant for "dolling up" in discarded civilian attire also, and the Anzacs negotiated a raid near Villers Bretonneux under the same circumstances in June.

Boot Queues in Berlin.
The Hague.—Boot queues are forming in Berlin, according to the Tageblatt. It is said to be not at all unusual to see a queue of as many as 20 persons, mostly women, waiting eight hours for a chance to buy a pair of new or second-hand shoes at exorbitant prices.

WON'T MIX WITH SLACKERS

Their Presence in Prison Arouses Patriotic Wrath of Burglars and Felons.

New York.—Two hundred suspected slackers, caught in the greatest man hunt in the history of Gotham, rolled, tossed, groaned and cursed during the first night of their incarceration in the Tombs.

They also aroused the patriotic wrath of other prisoners, such as burglars and felons, drunks and dope fiends.

"Can you beat it?" whined one old-timer, up for cracking a safe. "How do them guys get that way? Take it from me, I don't want to be mixed up with that slacker bunch."

And then, as though drawing the final line of classification, the old-timer shouted to a husky "conscientious objector":

"They hain't no cooties in here, bo. If yuh can't face dese bars and the music, how yuh goin' to face the Hun?"

Catarhal Deafness Cannot Be Cured by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Catarhal Deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE acts through the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system. Catarhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing may be destroyed forever. Many cases of Deafness are caused by Catarrh, which is an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS for any case of Catarhal Deafness that cannot be cured by HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE. Was Told He Couldn't
Live Six Months

But Doan's Brought Mr. Clayton Health and Strength.

G. T. Clayton, 78 N. Broad St., Woodbury, N. J., says: "I had about the worst case of kidney complaint a man could have. My kidneys were in terrible shape, I had sharp, knifelike pains in the small of my back, and my back often gave out entirely. I couldn't stoop to lace my shoes. For two years I was in this helpless condition and didn't do a tap of work and no one thought I would ever be able to work again. In fact, I was told I couldn't live six months. But fortunately I began using Doan's Kidney Pills. They made me feel better from the first and after taking several boxes, I had better strength and health than ever before. I think Doan's are worth their weight in gold, and I recommend them whenever I hear anyone complaining of their kidneys."

HUNS SOME SPRINTERS

Georgia Lieutenant Gives His Estimate of Enemy.

Man for Man the American Has It All Over the Boche, He Says.

Atlanta, Ga.—"Don't worry about me, mother; I'll be better in a few days than before because of a good rest," wrote Lieut. L. V. Stephens to his mother from "over there," after he had recovered from a gas attack and shell shock during the big drive started July 18. He longs to go back into action. Describing the Hun's fighting ability Lieutenant Stephens says:

"What a treacherous, cowardly lot they are," he said. "They'll blaze away with their machine guns and do their best to kill all the Americans on earth, but when we get to within a hundred or two yards of them, out they come with absolutely no weapons on their persons, their hands high in the air and calling for all they're worth: 'Kamerad, Kamerad.' With some few exceptions they absolutely will not mix it with the Americans. This is no exaggeration at all, but a simple fact. I went over the top with the infantry with the exception of the first all through the drive until I was sent back to the hospital, and therefore I know what I am talking about. I tell you, man for man, the American has it all over the Boche. As long as they are massed they fight. But get them separated, even a little, and they are through.

"I am inclined to believe that the Boche have changed their opinion in regard to the amateur soldiers and officers of the American army."

All the public swimming pools and some of the public baths in London are being used for communal kitchens. With their steam plants and heating appliances they are very adaptable.

WASHINGTON GOSSIP

Proof That You Never Can Tell About Alley Cats

WASHINGTON.—Consider the clean plate: Remember the time of flies—and that other time before that, when every day was tagless dog day—it is safe to predict the near future emigration of the street Thomas to that bourn from which not even a cat may return. But while the law hesitates, the food administration has got so far in its system that used-to-be strays that padded around sleek and complacent among canteens of the alley gates have either slunk into the unknown, or, as survival of the unfittest, prowled around gaunt and furtive, seeking what they may devour—and not finding it.

Take Villa, for one. Before the war Villa, who is a robber born, owned by right of unlawful possession an alley of which every back gate was an open pantry, except one. Naturally, he had invaded the Lhasa-like forbiddenness of the locked gate and lidded can, but all the satisfaction he got out of his adventure was a broom-chasing from the leading lady of Lhasa.

Then the meatless days came. And food prices took to rivaling airplanes as to altitude and galvanized cans showed their corrugated bottoms. And Villa began to starve.

Inside the forbidden gate the two ladies of Lhasa considered the bony, creeping thing that had been old Villa, and as no creature must suffer if you can help it, they made a point of saving bits of this and that and setting it in a paper napkin outside on the cobble, away from the gate, so that the old fellow would never suspect and take liberties with his patrons.

But you can't tell about cats! The other morning the women went on their front steps, and there under the cool shade of the bush of golden glow lay old tortoise-shell, perfectly at home, with three brand new kittens—all white.

Suffragette Gatherings That Verge on Comedy

SEVERAL times of late a very orderly little drama has been enacted in Lafayette park, this city, without attracting much more attention than a dog fight. A group of well-dressed women parades solemnly across the park and stops before a statue. One of them ascends the pedestal and assumes an oratorical attitude.

A group of blue-coated policemen with equal solemnity and dignity has approached from another direction, and now surrounds the feminine group like a respectful audience. The lady on the pedestal clears her throat and says:

"We protest—"

A red-haired police sergeant pushes to her side and lifts his cap politely.

"Have you permission to speak, madam?" he inquires.

"No."

"Then we must ask you to stop."

"I refuse," says the speaker quietly. "We protest—"

"Men," says the sergeant in a bored tone, "place these ladies under arrest."

He always says "ladies." The ladies are then conducted to jail.

The interest of this almost formal proceeding lies in the fact that it is a militant demonstration in favor of national woman suffrage.

Woman War Worker Discovers New Capital "Park"

WASHINGTON'S newest—and oldest—park is Parallel park. Never heard of it? That may be, but you certainly have seen it. It covers two squares in the heart of the city, and is considered by many as the city's most beautiful park. Four or five statues of brave men adorn the park. Cannon are to be seen. Soldiers walk through the park. Fair war workers come and go. It is a beautiful square.

Such is Park Parallel. Never heard of such a park?

Well, perhaps this will give you a clue: The park is located in the jurisdiction of local board No. 3, the only draft board in the nation which has a president of the United States living in its territory. Fact! Now you ought to be able to guess. But if not, behold the solution of the mystery.

Two war workers, lovely creatures, were riding downtown. "Let's get off at the next corner and walk through Parallel park," said one.

"Are you sure that's the name?" asked the other.

"Sure," said the first war worker. "Look at those signs on the trees. Funny place to put the name of a park, and I do think it's a pretty cheap way of doing it, but—"

And the second war worker looked at the white signs hitched onto the trees by the curb. The signs are hitched onto the trees with cord. A thoughtful police department put the signs there.

In big black capital letters the cards read:

"Park Parallel."

Irritated Man Felt He Had a Right to Criticize

THE other night a Washingtonian and his wife stood on downtown corners nearly an hour waiting for a street car to come by which would allow two medium-sized persons to squeeze aboard. Car after car shot by, crowded to the guards with people. There wasn't a chance in the world for cars to take on any more, although sometimes the uniformed would stop his vehicle and the earnest conductor would shout:

"Plenty of room up front," and there would be a great jamming and pushing, while three score persons fought over each other to get on the step.

It was late, after the theater, anyway, and as the minutes—and the cars—sped by the man and his wife—especially the man—got peeved. Finally, however, they managed to jam aboard a car, and got as far as a certain park, when they had to get off to transfer.

Here more waiting was in order. Car after car—and all so filled that there wasn't a chance to squeeze in. But all things must come to an end, of course, and at last a car with 14 square feet of space—ha! ha!—stopped, panting at the switch, and our hero and heroine got aboard.

"One of the joys of going to the theater in Washington," said the man in disgusted tones.

A man and woman, walking behind them, overheard.

"If they don't like it here," snapped the woman behind in loud tones, "they know what they can do."

Our hero got mad right there.

"Madam," he called loudly through the dark, "I was born in Washington."

Next Day. It chanced, in the days before the war, that an Englishman in Berlin became acquainted with a young German officer. One day they were lingering over a tete-a-tete luncheon.

The officer got up and said, "I will give you a toast." Raising his well-filled glass, he added: "I drink to 'The Day!'" and there was a smile on his lips which hinted at some hidden jest in the words.

His companion, the Englishman, looked at him quietly.

"Indeed, Herr Lieutenant!" he said: "let me follow your toast with one of my own: 'Here's to 'The Day After!'"

It's Acid-Stomach That Makes Millions Sick and Suffer

Life is dark—not worth much to the man or woman with an acid-stomach.

Acid-stomach kills hope, ambition, energy, courage. It saps the strength of the strongest body—impoverishes the blood—causes untold suffering—makes millions weak, and brings on premature old age.

Millions of people are weak and unfit, suffering all the time, in one way or another, from superacidity or acid-stomach.

They don't seem dangerously sick. Just ailing. Going through life weak, listless, dragging one foot after another.

They're nervous and irritable; lack power and punch, frequently have severe attacks of indigestion, splitting headaches, subject to fits of melancholia and mental depression. And nearly always their stomachs are out of order, even though many experience no actual stomach pains—digestion poor—never getting anywhere near the full strength from their food.

So, you see, it's just this—acid-stomach—that is holding so many people back—sapping up the strength they should get from their food—taking away their vigor and vitality—leaving them weak and inefficient.

Get rid of the excess acid. That's the secret of good health and is the only way to obtain good digestion and assimilation.

It is the right way to be well and keep strong. Ordinary medicine won't do any lasting good. The best they can do is to upset your appetite for awhile.

A modern remedy makes it possible to remove excess acid without the slightest discomfort. It is called RATIONIC, in the form of pleasant tasting tablets. Their action in the stomach is a good deal like a piece of blotting paper taking up a drop of ink—they literally absorb the injurious excess acid and carry it away through the intestines.

Begin using RATIONIC right now—today—and get on the road to bounding, vigorous, vibrant health. Thousands upon thousands of people who have used RATIONIC are enthusiastic in its praise. They say they never dreamed that anything could bring them such quick relief.

RATIONIC is fully guaranteed. Your druggist will give you a big box for only 50 cents with the distinct understanding that if you are not pleased in every way, you get your 50 cents back. If you can't get RATIONIC where you live—send us your name and address; we will send you a fifty cent box and you can send us the 50c when you get it. In Memorium

Like a bolt of lightning from a clear sky came the news of the death of Fred C. Schale, 16-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Schale of White Oaks. He was employed at the Oasis Ranch, Roswell, N. M., at the time of his death, where he was stricken with influenza complicated with pneumonia. Mr. Van Schoyck received a wire Wednesday morning, leaving immediately for Roswell, but death had come to the boy before he reached Roswell, or before medical aid could reach him. Mr. and Mrs. Schale were in Kelly, N. M., at the time of his death, and Miss Josephine in El Paso, where they were summoned home immediately. The remains were interred in the White Oaks cemetery among bereaved parents and relatives Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock, Rev. Lewelling officiating.

A Friend.

Save a Soldier's Life

In his telegram to the Democratic convention Senator A. A. Jones said: "I send greetings and ask you to give me your profound sympathy because I can't be with you. Only my polling public duty could force me to be absent from a New Mexico Democratic convention at this time. The nation is passing through a world calamity and civilization is in the throes of a rebirth. We must make no mistake. The colors of the Kaiser would gladly reflect any evidence of weakness by America in support of our President, who is the recognized leader of world thought in this crisis. To console ourselves with the assurance that America is united in its war policies and that party success at this time should not be considered, would in my humble judgment be a colossal blunder. Should our country fail to return a Democratic majority in both the House and the Senate, our enemies would be encouraged to prolong the war and the potency of the President in advancing peace terms would be lessened. This thought surely will be recognized and I confidently expect this convention to name a ticket which will have the confidence and support of the electorate of New Mexico. If our state does its share, I am sure that the nation at the next election will send a message to the Kaiser in no uncertain language that the policies of our President and commander-in-chief shall and will be maintained."

A. A. JONES.

Voices and Voices

Republican voices in Congress have caused as much turmoil as Republican votes. They have had larger headlines in the newspapers. But they have been more quickly forgotten.

They have been forgotten, perhaps, because they have changed tunes and tunes, or because they have become silent, other Republican voices replacing them. Just now, the voices of Republican Congressional Chairman Fess and Republican National Chairman Hays seem to have drowned out those of Republican legislators raised earlier in the war.

This being true, it may be of interest to recall some of the words flung to the winds before Republican legislators bethought them of a national election.

It was Senator George W. Norris, of Nebraska, who said: "We are about to put the dollar mark on the American flag." This in connection with the War Resolution.

It was Minority Leader James R. Mann, of the House of Representatives, who described the Espionage Act as "foolishness."

It was Senator Albert B. Fall, of New Mexico, who doubted whether the War Department was fit to be trusted with the lives of American boys, saying: "I have no confidence in the present military establishment of the United States." That was in connection with the Selective Service Act.

It was Senator John W. Weeks, of Massachusetts, who, discussing the First Liberty Loan, said: "Everybody knows that the sale of the Liberty Bonds has been a great failure. There is no denying that statement."

It was Rep. Joseph W. Fordney, of Michigan, who speaking of the first great war revenue bill, that

Legislative Candidates

Lincoln county is in two legislative districts—the 16th and the 30th—Lincoln county constituting the 16th, and Lincoln, Torrance and Socorro counties the 30th.

In the 16th Frank Santana, of Picacho, was named by the Democratic party as its candidate, and for the 30th district W. B. Bunton, of Socorro. Both these men come from the people, and if selected by the people to represent them will do so, and not the corporations. These men will not be found supporting legislation antagonistic to the interests of the masses, and if they and those who hold to the same principles control the next legislature, railroad legislation, such as the Hawkins bill and supported by Fall, will never see daylight. Elect these men and have a voice in your own affairs. The more of these men we have in Santa Fe the fewer private cars there'll be.

Spiroela Corsons. Call Phone No. 1. Mrs. G. T. McQuillen. 11-17

for 1917, said: "I firmly hope there is not a Republican on this side of the aisle who will stultify himself by voting for this damnable measure."

It was Rep. Walter M. Chandler, of New York, who, when the McLeure resolution was up in Congress, said: "The false chivalry of this hour and of the request of the President are a disgusting exhibition in the American Congress."

These statements, and many more like them, are to be found in the Congressional Record. If the Congressional Record were as widely and generally circulated as the Republican newspapers through which Hays, Fess, et al are now speaking, these Republican leaders would find it infinitely more difficult to drown out voices they now would have forgotten.

SENATOR FALL HAS BEEN HOSTILE

W. P. Metcalf wired President Wilson regarding Senator Fall as follows:

"Political friends of Senator Fall are claiming that he has earnestly and sympathetically given your administration his support during the war. It is also claimed that his reelection would be satisfactory to you and that you would be willing to depend upon his support in settling our foreign relations at the conclusion of the war. Will you be kind enough to indicate your views regarding these matters for the benefit of those citizens of New Mexico who want to give you their whole support in this crisis." Signed "W. P. Metcalf."

President Wilson answered as follows:

"Your question, 'Would I be willing to depend upon Senator Fall's support in settling our foreign relations' is easily answered. I would not. He has given such repeated evidence of his entire hostility to this administration that I would be ignorant of his whole course of action if I did. No one who wishes to sustain me can intelligently vote for him. If that is the issue the voters of New Mexico wish to vote upon, it is easily determined." Signed "WOODROW WILSON."
