Lincoln County Chapter, A. R. C. Holds Its Second Annual Meeting

Pursuant to call the members of Lincoln County Chapter, A. R. C., met at the Court House Wednesday evening. Reports of the various committees were submitted and approved, and that of the secretary and treasurer, showing receipts and disbursements from the organization of the chapter to date.

An executive committee was chosen for the ensuing year as follows: Mrs. John E. Bell, Henry Lutz, Mrs. R. E. Stidham, J. E. Schaeffer, Mrs. R. E. Blaney, Mrs. E. J. Shulda, Mrs. D. S. Elliott, J. B. French, O. T. Nye, H. S. Fairbank, Brent Paden, Jno. A. Haley, Mrs. W. H. Osborn, C. A. Perkins, A. J. Rolland, Mrs. J. B. French, Mrs. H. S. Fairbank and Mrs. Sarah C. Gray.

Upon the adjournment of the chapter meeting the executive committee convened and selected the following officers for the ensuing year; and also the chairmen of committees, each chairman being authorized to name assistants.

Jno. A. Haley, chairman; Mrs. C. E. Gokey, secretary; O. T. Nye, treasurer.

Committee Chairmen: Supply, Mrs. G. T. Dingwall; Knitting, Mrs. Lin Branum; Membership, C. A. Perkins; Publicity, A. J. Rolland; Finance, H. S. Campbell.

Chapter School Committee: Mrs. R. E. Blaney, chairman; Miss Mamie Humphrey, secretary; Mrs. Nora Massie, treasurer.

The reports of Lincoln County Chapter committees and the treasurer for the year 1917-18, and of the Junior Red Cross of Carrizozo School since its organization last April, follow.

SUPPLY COMMITTEE

The work here specified has been done by the Chapter proper, located in Carrizozo, and its various auxiliaries. While the Chapter has thirteen branches at the present time, a number of them have never been very active, and practically all the work turned in has been done by the Chapter in Carrizozo and six branches.

The various shipments of hospital and refugee garments made since organization are as follows:

November 12. Hospital garments, consisting of bedshirts, bedsocks, nightgowns, operating leggings, pillow cases, towels, washcloths, handkerchiefs and napkins, in all 661 garments.

December 15. Case of H. G. bathrobes and bedshirts, 251 garments.

1918
February 12. Case of 66 pajamas, and case of 50 pajamas and 10 bathrobes.

March 28. Two cases of 53 bathrobes, 47 pajamas and 20 bedshirts.

April 19. One case of 100 bedshirts.

May 17. One case of 100 bedshirts.

June 15. Two cases of 17 infants' layettes. These layettes cost from $15 to $20 apiece, and all the money was private contribution. Each layette consisted of 25 sewed garments, such as dresses, etc., and sundry other articles—soap, talcum powder, needles, pins, washcloths, etc. Our Denver headquarters complimented the Chapter on the shipment.

June 29. Case of 100 bedshirts.

July 12. Junior Red Cross made shipment consisting of 10 layettes, 3,000 gun wipes, and 200 sundry articles.

September 17. Case of 107 bedshirts; and 1 case refugee garments, in which were 50 boys' tailored suits, 200 chemises and 110 girls' dresses.

October 30. Case of refugee garments, containing 9 boys' suits, 100 chemises and 205 girls' dresses.

We have on hand a box of miscellaneous articles ready for shipment, as follows: 3 layettes, 85 hot water bottle covers, 40 handkerchiefs, 2 pajamas, 1 bathrobe, 1 nightgown, 1 bedsock, 1 operating leggings, 1 surgeon's operating mask (models), 11 4-year-old dresses, 6 8-year-old dresses, making in all 224 articles in the workroom at the present time.

All of the above were made from new materials, by far the greater part of which was sent us from our Denver headquarters, the rest purchased locally. It totals 135 sewed garments. In addition to this the Chapter shipped on October 24 4 cases of second-hand refugee garments. These garments were all in good condition. There were 655 articles of clothing and 111 pairs of shoes, aggregating 905 pounds, our quota being only 100 pounds.

Add to all this 1528 knitted articles contained in Mrs. Gray's report, and we find the Lincoln County Chapter has made since its organization 8429 garments.

Most of the cases used in the above shipments were made from new lumber, were of standard size, and were made according to specifications sent us from headquarters. They were made by the High School boys and local carpenters, free of charge, lumber being furnished with a liberal discount.

The work now on hand consists of 400 suits of pajamas to be made.

The Supply Committee respectfully submits the above report, and at the same time wishes to congratulate the workers of the entire Lincoln County Chapter on the splendid results achieved. One year ago we were all new to this work, and lots of mistakes were made; but now we know the work must come up to standard, and our workers know how to make it that way. Furthermore, practically everyone throughout the country has caught the spirit of the organization, and the earnest desire of everyone is to go ahead and to do whatever we are asked to do, or make whatever we are asked to make, either for the relief of the suffering refugee

Underweight Turkeys Not To Be Killed, Says Food Administration Head

The Food Administrator requests all shippers and producers of turkeys not to market hen turkeys under seven pounds in weight, and young gobblers under eleven pounds, for Thanksgiving consumption. Turkeys already marketed or in transit, under these weights, may be sold, but on and after November 19 the killing of turkeys not coming up to the weights specified will not be permitted; and shippers and producers are asked not to ship underweight birds to jobbers or commission houses.

The purpose of this ruling is to keep the flocks from being depleted of young birds for breeding, and also to conserve the meat, as in a few weeks these birds will be much heavier than they are at present.

The Food Administration asks the co-operation of retail markets, producers and commission houses to save the young turkeys in the state.

Memorial Services

Memorial services were held at the Methodist church last Sunday night, the pastors of both the Baptist and Methodist churches taking part in the ceremonies and the congregations of both churches attending.

A beautiful song service was rendered; the Baptist pastor, Rev. H. G. Gwin, opened with prayer; Prof. T. W. Conway unveiled the service flag, which bore a silver star for Lieut. Henry Lutz, wounded, and three gold stars for Harvey Hughes, Cecil Morgan and Gladney White, who had died in the service of their country. Prof. Conway's remarks were appropriate, touching and patriotically expressed.

Rev. R. H. Lewellyn delivered the memorial address, and it was filled with ripe thoughts, fervid patriotism and sympathy for those parents and relatives whose dear ones had sacrificed their lives on the altar of freedom.

The platform was appropriately decorated for the occasion and presented a striking, but necessarily funeral appearance. Crosses, tastefully arranged, bore the names of the soldiers in whose behalf the service was held.

These touching ceremonies brought home the closeness of the war and its tragedies, as well, and made everyone realize more fully what our little community had done—and lost—in the great conflict for human rights.

Soldiers, rest in peace. Your sacrifices were not in vain. You gave your lives for a cause for which noble men have at all times been ready to die, and your memories are enshrined in the hearts of your countrymen and an emancipated world lays wreaths upon your resting places.

Health conditions in the county have greatly improved, the epidemic of influenza having about run its course or scattered. A few cases are reported, however, in some of the remote parts of the county.

Thanksgiving Proclamation Issued By President Wilson

"It has long been our custom to turn in the autumn of the year in praise and thanksgiving to Almighty God for His many blessings and mercies to us as a nation. This year we have special and moving cause to be grateful and to rejoice. God has, in His good pleasure, given us peace. It has not come as a mere cessation of arms, a mere relief from the strain and tragedy of war. It has come as a great triumph of right. Complete victory that brought us not peace alone, but the confident promise of a new day as well as justice shall replace force and jealous intrigue among the nations. Our gallant armies have participated in a triumph which is not marred or stained by another purpose of selfish aggression. In a righteous cause they have won immortal glory and have nobly served their nation in serving mankind. God has indeed been gracious. We have cause for such rejoicing as revives and strengthens in us all the best traditions of our national history. A new day shines about us in which our hearts take new courage and look forward with new hope to new and greater duties.

"While we render thanks for these things, let us not forget to seek Divine guidance in the performance of those duties, and Divine mercy and forgiveness for all errors of act or purpose, and pray that in all that we do, we shall strengthen the ties of friendship and mutual respect upon which we must assist to build the new structure of peace and good will among the nations.

"Therefore, I, Woodrow Wilson, President of the United States of America, do hereby designate Thursday, the twenty-eighth day of November next, as a day of Thanksgiving and prayer, and invite the people throughout the land to cease upon that day from their ordinary occupations and in their several homes and places of worship to render thanks to God, the Ruler of nations.

"In Witness Whereof, I have hereunto set my hand, and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

"Done in the District of Columbia, this sixteenth day of November in the year of Our Lord one thousand nine hundred and eighteen and of the independence of the United States of America, the one hundred and forty-third.

"WOODROW WILSON, President.

"ROBERT LANSING, Secretary of State."

Germans Turn Over U-Boats to Allies

Twenty German submarines were surrendered to rear admiral Reginald W. T. Trywhitte, 30 miles off Harwich, November 20 at sunrise, according to a press association dispatch. These are the first U-boats to be turned over to the allies by Germany.

Admiral Trywhitte received the surrender of the German craft on board his flagship, a British cruiser.

The surrendered submarines will proceed to Harwich in charge of their own crews. The U-boats will then be boarded by British crews and inspectors and proceed to Parkeston Quay, nearby. The Germans will leave the submarines there and board transports for their return to Germany.

Twenty additional submarines will be surrendered on Thursday and 20 more on Friday. The remainder of the U-boats to be handed over in accordance with the armistice terms will be given up later.

According to the British wireless service, Capt. Persius, the German naval critic, publishes in the Berlin Tageblatt an article, containing revelations regarding the German fleet.

He says the hope that the German fleet would be able, in a second Skagerrak battle, to beat the British fleet rested upon the bluff and lies of the naval authorities.

In August, 1914, Germany had about 1,000,000 tonnage in warships, the writer points out, while Great Britain had more than double that, quite superior to the German. In the Skagerrak battle, he declares, the German fleet was saved from destruction partly by good leadership and partly by favorable weather conditions. As it was, the losses of the German fleet were enormous, and on June 1, Capt. Persius says, it was clear that the Skagerrak battle must be the only general naval engagement of the war.

On all sides, continues the writer, admiral von Tirpitz was advised to construct only submarines, but he remained obstinate. On October 1 (1915?), several members of the reichstag made an earnest appeal to the army command—not to the naval staff—with the result that an order was issued, terminating the construction of battleships, in order that the material might be used for the making of U-boats.

In the meantime, so great scarcity of material had arisen that it became necessary to disarm a number of the battleships and take the metal. In this manner, at the beginning of 1916, 23 battleships had been disarmed, as well as one newly built cruiser.

At the beginning of this year, Capt. Persius states the German navy consisted only of dreadnaughts and battleships of the Helogland, Kaiser and Markgraf types and some few battle cruisers. All the ships, which von Tirpitz

In wartime economy and efficiency are the keynotes of poultry production. The poultry keeper must save feed and at the same time increase poultry production. It is not the high cost of feed alone, since America entered the war, that has led to more careful attention to the routine work of keeping poultry and to greater production and skill in feeding. The saving of money has been an incentive, but above and beyond that every poultry keeper realizes that getting better production from less feed is doing double duty in conservation and production.

The first result of the wartime conditions was to emphasize a fresh and more effectively than ever the benefits of graded selection of breeding stock and severe culling of the young stock while growing. When this is practiced together with good poultry management the feed bill is reduced but the production of eggs is maintained and even increased in some cases.

Get Understanding of Type.

The first step toward the increase of poultry products—whether meat or eggs—through the use of the types best suited to production, is to get a correct understanding of type. Three distinct types are recognized—the egg type, the meat type and the dual purpose or general purpose type, which is commonly considered as an intermediate of the other two, though in reality it is the primary type of which the others are modifications.

Small size and great activity are commonly supposed to be the characteristics of egg type. Large size and an indolent temperament are supposed to be characteristics of the meat type, and medium size without either marked energy or great indolence are supposed to be the characteristics of the mediocre dual-purpose type. While this, in a general way, is true, there are exceptions, as can be noted in the accompanying tables. These tables show that egg production and meat production are not entirely a simple matter of size, weight and temperament. Table No. 1 is a list of well-known standard breeds grouped according to their general type. Table No. 2 is a list of the same breeds arranged in the order of their weight, beginning with the smallest.

There is a wide range of individual differences among the standard breeds, some strains of a particular breed being better suited for egg production than meat, and vice versa.

Good physical development, vitality, constitutional vigor, a good digestive system, docility and ruggedness and stability of function in the reproductive organs are the distinguishing characters and traits of dependable good layers.

The egg type or laying type of hen, in any breed, is the hen that with the qualities that make for good egg production has no quality which is an obstacle to continual laying. The meat type is not the converse of the egg type, even though the hen that is not a good layer is fit only for meat.

Meat Type Grows Rapidly.

The meat type, in all kinds of poultry, is the type that grows rapidly and at maturity carries abundant flesh, especially where the preferred parts of the meat are produced. The most desirable meat type is rather fine in bone, with the frame well knit but not too compact. Under any kind of good management a hen of this type that is in normal condition will be a good layer. She may not lay any better than a hen not quite so well fleshed, but she ought to lay just as well, and when the time comes to make meat of her she makes more and better meat, and as a breeder she naturally tends to reproduce offspring that will make more and better meat.

Table 2—List of Breeds in Table 1 Arranged According to Standard Weight, Egg Type Breeds in Ordinary Print, Dual Purpose Breeds in Capitals, Meat Type Breeds in Heavy Type.

Breed	Weight in Pounds	Cock	Cockerel	Hen	Pullet
Leghorn	5½	4½	1	2½
Andena	5½	4½	4½	2½
Andalusian	5	5	8	4
DOMINIQUE	7	6	5	4

*Other than R. C. Black.

Such hens are in reality of the dual-purpose type, no matter what their size or breed. They are equally valuable for eggs and meat. That is the kind of stock that will contribute most to the big increase in poultry that is wanted. It is the dual-purpose type of every breed—a type that exists in every breed, and can easily be made the prevalent type without detriment to any breed, and to the benefit of every breed—that has suffered from neglect.

WASHINGTON SIDELIGHTS

Outdid Soldier Son in His Military Swagger

WASHINGTON.—The Union station is filled with soldiers at every hour of the day and night, going to camp or coming from it, off to the battlefields or back from them; the raw recruit, the doughty officer, the wounded man and the man who never has felt a bullet's sting—all of them are there.

It is the raw recruit that interests me most. Catch him either when he is entraining for camp for the first time or just getting back on his first leave. Then the women are in the picture in large numbers. When he goes away to camp—with tearful eyes and apprehension. But when he returns—ah, then, there is a change. The woman folks come with faces beaming pride and hearts thumping martial music. After he has been in the service long his coming to town or going across country to be as interesting as it was at first, and he is not surrounded by a crowd of proud or apprehensive women, and he is not half as interesting as he was when he first forsook the civilian life.

I saw a striking illustration of this on a recent day. A senator who is well along in years came to the train with his son, a husky youth of twenty-one, perhaps, who reared his shoulders back in grand style and carried a general air of confidence that he could whip all of the Heintzes in the world. It was evident from his new suit that he had not been in the service long, but this fact was evident by the manner in which his father carried himself. If there ever was any doubt in the father's mind as to the final result of the war it evidently had been wiped out by the admission of his son to the army. As they swung down the huge train shed the father assumed a far more military air than his son.

Quite a Simple Matter, as Auntie Explained It

A CERTAIN gentleman, who has among his real estate holdings a little house which he has rented for some years to a colored "auntie," has been experiencing difficulty recently about his weekly wash. The colored woman has always done the washing for this man's family, and has always received a good price for the work. Living in the man's property, there was a sort of understanding between them about the washing, and the man little dreamed that the war would affect the state of his shirts, etc.

But the war does a lot of things. The first thing it did to this man's wash was to advance the price from $1 to $1.50. The man cheerfully acquiesced. "The high cost of living," he smiled, good naturedly. But when he received notice that he would have to pay $2.50 next week he got a little riled.

"Auntie," began the man, "how is it that you keep on raising my laundry bill every week?"

"It's the war, boss," returned auntie.

"The war, of course," said he, "but don't you think you have been raising it a little more than the war demands? Here I haven't raised the rent on you—"

"You can't," grinned the woman, sweetly.

"I'll admit it," smiled the man in return. "But don't you think the law works hardship on us poor real estate owners, sometimes? Here I am letting you have this little home for the same modest price that you have always paid, while you are raising the price of our washing week by week."

"I don't know about dat, boss," she said. "I guess I's protected an' you ain't, dat's all."

Bee Really Deserved Feast That He Finally Got

HAVING written stories of a mouse that sings, a sparrow that takes a shower bath, a kitten that attacked a pigeon and a bird that waits on a tree for the master of the house to come home every evening, and not having been branded "nature-faker," I feel at liberty to tell the following tale—also true:

"Bees must have marvelous noses," he said. Ignoring the noses, I asked him why he attributed marvelous powers of smell to bees.

"Well, you see," he said, "it's this way. I went down to the corner grocery store the other day to buy a bottle of grape juice. It was one of those warm days, and on my way home I had to pass a yard surrounded by a hedge. There were quantities of bees buzzing through the hedge. One of them must have seen me coming across the street, for he immediately left the society of his mates and began flying around my head.

"But that fellow knew sugar was near. He never left me. Across streets he accompanied me. He was a faithful as well as busy bee. Into my home he came, and the door closed behind him, but he never faltered. That evening my family drank the grape juice."

"And gave your bee a special cup," I said.

"Well, not exactly that," he replied. "But we set the empty bottle out in the yard, and the next morning we found the bee asleep in the bottom of the bottle."

No Doubt at All About Future of "Soldier Man"

IT IS possible that you have observed the cars—so many sausages stuffed with humans—dash by because of inability to accommodate the proverbial one more, but the chances are that you missed the fine thing that happened Tuesday morning, a few minutes before nine o'clock. It was at that curve at Second and the Avenue southeast, which jerks the life out of you when the conductor stops short to let you out, and the corner was crowded with clerks waiting for a car that didn't come. After waiting and waiting, with every second trimming off the time to get to work, a big automobile whizzed into sight carrying only a chauffeur and a big military man—all blue and gold. When the officer saw the crowd he made the chauffeur slow up and take on six people. He said he was on his way to the state, war and navy building and would be glad to carry any one going that way. Among his passengers was a small woman in black who came home that evening from a long day's work to jubilate over her ride—like this:

"You know I am not of the pushing kind, so I thought I would stand back and let some one else get in, but the officer beckoned me, and—it was the finest big, shiny car I ever was in, and it flew as smooth as glass. I've been thinking about it all day; how kind it was of the soldier man. I tell you, if he keeps on doing helpful things like that for people all the time he surely will go straight to heaven when he dies."

THIS WOMAN SAVED FROM AN OPERATION

By taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, One of Thousands of Such Cases.

Black River Falls, Wis.—"As Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound saved me from an operation, I cannot say enough in praise of it. I suffered from organic troubles and my side hurt me so I could hardly be up from my bed, and I was unable to do my housework. I had the best doctors in Eau Claire and they wanted me to have an operation, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cured me so I did not need the operation, and I am telling all my friends about it."—Mrs. A. W. BINSER, Black River Falls, Wis.

It is just such experiences as that of Mrs. Binszer that has made this famous root and herb remedy a household word from ocean to ocean. Any woman who suffers from inflammation, ulceration, displacements, backache, nervousness, irregularities or "the blues" should not rest until she has given it a trial, and for special advice write Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

While the Boss Is Away.

The following notice scrawled on the wall of his hut by a Bananaland (Australia) timber cutter:

"You all take this notice. I have gone to fight the Germans, and I don't know when I'm coming back; somebody chip round my humpy against grass fire. All my bullocks is sold except Sambo, him with the cockthorn. Anyone finding him can sell him to the — butcher and mind the money till I come back."

Sambo has been collected and his price ($50) banked against the boss' return. The humpy (shack) is regularly chipped round, and anyone who interfered with the old wagon rusting outside, or the gear piled against the wall, would have to fight the whole district.

Pose Exposed.

First Yank—Writing home? The New Yank—Yes! I'm telling the folks I have at last discovered why Napoleon is always represented with his hand plunged inside his coat. First Yank—Well, what's the reason?

The New Yank—You'll know, all right, when you've slept on straw in French stable and heard the cooties sing.

A Question.

"A man becomes what he eats," "Does he feel sheepish after eating spring lamb?"

Little On.

Expediency is an understudy of reason—and often badly trained.

Tribute to Pershing

East Las Vegas, N. M., Nov. 20.—Millions of Americans propose to unite during Thanksgiving week in a practical Thanksgiving tribute to General Pershing and his two million American soldiers in France. Thanksgiving week will be known throughout the nation as Pershing Tribute Week, and during that time the name of every person who buys a War Savings Stamp will be sent to General Pershing as a Christmas greeting to the boys over there.

In announcing this campaign this week Hallett Reynolds, director of War Savings for New Mexico, is urging every county War Savings chairman and worker and all citizens to unite in this effort. It is felt that it is the most practical form of tribute that the American nation can pay to Pershing and his men, and that they will appreciate it more than any other. It will be the final indication that Americans are willing to back their appreciation with their dollars at a time when the government needs money more than at any time in its history. There will be no time for the organization of extensive campaigns by committee workers, but it is believed that every New Mexican will be ready to constitute himself a committee of one and to see that his name goes on the list with millions of other Americans that will be sent to Pershing and his men.

New Mexico is still $5,000,000 short on its War Savings quotas. It is the only war effort in which the state has failed to go over the top. It is hoped that the Pershing Tribute Week may go far in making up the difference.

Hospital Scrap Books, And You Can Help

Among their various activities the Junior Red Cross members are now making hospital scrap books, which will go to the hospitals to relieve the tedium of the stay of our soldiers and sailors in our "over there" and home country hospitals; and in doing this our young people carefully cut out of magazines and other publications pictures, and funny things, and "squibs," and even short stories that are interesting, and anything that is likely to please a soldier or a sailor who's on his back because he chose to fight in a world's just cause. And to get together all this material the Juniors must have your help; but not much, for as a fact the Juniors do all the work—all you have to do is to turn over to them the magazines you have read and are through with, or any other publication you think will please a soldier, and the Juniors will do the rest.

Lincoln county's quota in this work is 600 scrap books of a stipulated size, and that means a good many of the books as Carrizozo's quota. These scrap books are made up in light weight, books or even some magazines being too heavy and difficult for invalids to hold open.

If you can give magazines or other printed matter, hand it to a child to take to the school, where the work of making scrap books is progressing.

Another Soldier Dies

William Randall, second son of Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Greer, Parsons, died at Camp Kearny, California, November 16. The body was brought home for interment, and upon the arrival of a brother, Lester, from Camp Pike this morning, interment will take place in the Angus cemetery this afternoon. Rev. R. H. Lewellyn, pastor of the Carrizozo Methodist church, will conduct the funeral services.

William Randall Greer was born at Rich Hill, Missouri, but came to Lincoln county with his parents in early childhood, and grew to manhood here.

Randall, as he was familiarly known to his family and associates, was east when the United States became involved in war with Germany. He at once enlisted and took a physical examination at Baltimore, Maryland, but was rejected because of an intensely active heart. One failure didn't discourage him, however, and a few months later he made another attempt, was accepted and was sent to Columbus, Ohio, and assigned to a cavalry regiment. His command was sent to Monterey, California, for training and later was merged into the field artillery and stationed at Camp Kearny.

He contracted influenza while at the latter place, pneumonia developed and death ended another career of a Lincoln county soldier. He did not die on the battlefield, but he gave his life in the service of his country, and his country and community accord him the same honor as though he had died facing the foe—where he would like to have been.

Besides father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Greer, three brothers survive: Ira A., in the San Andres; James, a soldier in France, and Lester, in training at Camp Pike; two sisters, Mrs. R. C. Skinner, Nogai, and Mrs. Douglas Cain, Socorro county; to all of whom the News extends sincere sympathy.

Will Owen was here Monday from Corona. He and family recently moved to Corona from White Oaks.

The post office at Deseo has been discontinued. This office was located between White Oaks and Encinosa.

We have just been informed that no permit from any Government official is now necessary to make farm improvements not to exceed $10,000.00 as decided by the War Industries Board on Nov. 10th.

This also applies to buildings in towns and cities; therefore farmers, ranchmen and others can now make such improvements as desired up to this amount, unhampered.

This practically puts us back to where we were before the war.

We have a large stock of building material. Let the wheels of commerce roll over more.

KNITTING COMMITTEE

From September 15, 1917, to November 20, 1918, the Lincoln County Chapter of the A. R. C. shipped nine cases of knitted goods, containing—

Sweaters	330
Socks, pairs	925
Wapkins	110
Helmet	30
Mufflers	43
Shawls	20
Alghans	5
Washcloths and wipes	25

Of the above, 54 pairs of socks were knitted on contract by the prisoners at Santa Fe; and 26 sweaters and 2 alghans were made by the Junior Red Cross of Carrizozo.

There are on hand 102 pairs of socks, 21 sweaters, 1 helmet, and 15 alghans. Also, 75 pounds of sock yarn and 50 pounds of sweater yarn are now out in Carrizozo and branches to be knitted, less 13 sweaters and 35 pairs of socks already turned in.

The quality of the work has greatly improved since September, 1917, and it is to be hoped that all future shipments will be 100 per cent perfect.

The Auxiliaries have done excellent work. In many instances the members have been scattered, making it difficult to turn out uniform work. But all have responded cheerfully to corrections, and now the garments sent in are well made and uniform.

Carrizozo has also done her share, not only by knitting, but in aiding the committee in making over faulty garments.

Especially do we mention the boys and men who have made our boxes, and the men who have so cheerfully donated the drayage.

In the name of this Chapter of the great American Red Cross, and on behalf of the Knitting Committee, I wish to thank every person in Lincoln County who has helped to make these nine shipments possible, and assure you that every effort has been appreciated. Also, I am at your service in the future.

Sarah C. Gray,

Chairman Knitting Committee.

JUNIOR RED CROSS

The Junior Red Cross of the Carrizozo School completed its organization April 14, 1918, with officers as follows:

Chairman, Mrs. M. L. Blaney, Secretary, Miss Mamie Humphrey.

Treasurer, Mrs. Nora Massie.

Supply Committee—Mrs. T. W. Conway, Mrs. W. L. Gamm, Miss Iona Stevens, Miss Olivia Kennedy.

Meetings were held Tuesdays and Thursdays of each week from 3:30 to 4:30 p. m. until the close of the school May 17, and weekly during the month of June from 2 to 5 p. m.

The work completed up to the present time consists of 30 comfort kits, 10 hygiene kits consisting of 250 pieces, 12 sanitary pillows, 11 alghans, 1000 gum wipes, about 100 handkerchiefs, napkins and tracycloths made from old linen donated by the townspeople; 26 sweaters, 84 bedside bags, 56 comfort kits, 80 nation bags, and the decoration and disposal of 200 carryall bags.

At present teachers and pupils are busy gathering material for the county's quota of 600 hospital scrap books. We have asked a number of schools throughout the county to assist in this work and the following have responded: Honda, White Oaks, Lincoln and Capitan.

Much credit is due the pupils of Carrizozo for the great interest manifested in this work.

Mamie E. Humphrey, Secretary.

TREASURER'S REPORT

The United War
Work Campaign

Definite figures have not been submitted on the result of the United War Work campaign for this county, but sufficient reports have reached Chairman Finley to warrant the assertion that Lincoln county has subscribed the minimum quota of $5,400, but possibly has not reached the maximum $8,100. Chairman Finley states that some of the communities had exceeded their maximum quotas, but at last reports some others were behind. We hope for a complete report next week.

Why Compare Beef and Coal Profits?

Swift & Company has frequently stated that its profit on beef averages only one-fourth of a cent a pound, and hence has practically no effect on the price.

Comparison has been made by the Federal Trade Commission of this profit with the profit on coal, and it has pointed out that anthracite coal operators are content with a profit of 25 cents a ton, whereas the beef profit of one-fourth of a cent a pound means a profit of $5.00 a ton.

The comparison does not point out that anthracite coal at the seaboard is worth at wholesale about $7.00 a ton, whereas a ton of beef of fair quality is worth about $400.00 wholesale.

To carry the comparison further, the 25 cent profit on coal is 3 1/2 per cent of the $7.00 value.

The $5.00 profit on beef is only 1 1/4 per cent of the $400.00 value.

The profit has little effect on price in either case, but has less effect on the price of beef than on the price of coal.

Coal may be stored in the open air indefinitely; beef must be kept in expensive coolers because it is highly perishable and must be refrigerated.

Coals handled by the carload or ton; beef is delivered to retailers by the pound or hundred weight.

Methods of handling are vastly different. Coal is handled in open cars; beef must be shipped in refrigerator cars at an even temperature.

Fairness to the public, fairness to Swift & Company, fairness to the packing industry, demands that these indisputable facts be considered. It is impossible to disprove Swift & Company's statement, that its profits on beef are so small as to have practically no effect on prices.

Swift & Company, U. S. A.

Ukrainian Government Has Been Overthrown

Copenhagen, Denmark, Nov. 20.—The Ukrainian government has been overturned and Kiev has been captured by troops from Astrakhan, according to Kiev dispatches to Swiss newspapers.

The Ukrainian national assembly has fled and a provisional government has been established by the captors of the city, who apparently are commanded by Gen. Denikine, leader of the anti-Bolshevik forces.

The Ukraine became a republic after the overthrow of the Kerensky government in November, 1917. There was much fighting there between the Bolsheviks and their opponents, resulting in the defeat of the Bolsheviks. The Ukrainian government made peace with Germany at Brest-Litovsk a few days before the Russian Bolshevik government also agreed to the German terms. Austro-German troops then entered the Ukraine for the purpose of carrying out economic articles of the treaty.

The Ukrainian government was overthrown last May and Gen. Skoropodalski became dictator under the title of hetman, but he has had difficulty in maintaining order there, although assisted by the Austro-Germans.

Gen. Denikine was formerly commander of the Russian armies on the southwestern front. Previous to that he had been chief of staff of the Russian armies.

WILL SIMPLY ALLIES' WORK

New York, Nov. 20.—Report of the overturning of the Ukrainian government by Gen. Denikine's anti-Bolshevik forces was received here today with great satisfaction, and it will make the work of the allies in handling the Russian problem much more simple.

It has been believed for some time that Gen. Alexieff, the former Russian commander-in-chief, had a large force of Cossacks operating in Astrakhan, and the news from the Ukraine seems to confirm this, as Gen. Denikine is a member of the Alexieff army. Denikine has the confidence of government officials of the allies.

It was pointed out today that with the Cossacks, many of whom are Ukrainian themselves, in charge, it will be easy to reach Russia in Europe with supplies and necessary munitions by way of the Black sea, which now is open to the allies.

English Casualties

London, Eng., Nov. 20.—James L. MacPherson, parliamentary secretary for the war office, yesterday announced in the house of commons that British casualties during the war, on all fronts, numbered 3,049,991. The officers killed, wounded or missing aggregated 142,634 and the men 2,907,357. The total loss in the fighting on the Franco-Belgian front were 2,719,642.

Germany's Loss of Men

Copenhagen, Denmark, Nov. 20.—Up to October 31, 1,580,000 German soldiers were killed, and the fate of 200,000 was not known, the Vorwarts, of Berlin, says it learns on reliable authority.

Four million soldiers had been wounded, some several times. The newspaper adds that there were 490,000 German prisoners in hostile countries.

Fred W. Tully came in from Glencoe Friday and got transportation to join the Marines on the Pacific coast.

President to Attend Peace Conference

Washington, Nov. 19.—President Wilson will attend the opening sessions of the peace conference. This was announced tonight officially. He will go immediately after the convening of the regular session of congress on December 2.

This official statement was issued at the White House:

"The President expects to sail for France immediately after the opening of the regular session of congress, for the purpose of taking part in the discussion and settlement of the main features of the treaty of peace. It is not likely that it will be possible for him to remain throughout the sessions of the formal peace conference, but his presence at the outset is necessary in order to obviate the manifest disadvantages of discussion by cable in determining the greater outlines of the final treaty about which he must necessarily be consulted. He will, of course, be accompanied by the delegates who will sit as representatives of the United States throughout the conference. The names of the delegates will be presently announced."

Women's Missionary Society

The regular meeting of the Women's Missionary Society was held at the beautiful home of Mrs. C. Spence last Wednesday afternoon. The large attendance of twenty-six, almost all members, was present.

An interesting and instructive program on "Fruits of the Years in City Missions" was most ably conducted by Mrs. R. H. Lewelling, after which came the business hour with various plans for the future work of the society.

A Thanksgiving program was arranged by Mesdames Fetter, Conway and Hooper for the evening of November 28th at the church.

Refreshments were served, and "a most enjoyable time" was the expression of all present.

Battle Ground Heaped With Bolshevik Killed

Archangel, Russia, Nov. 20 (by Associated Press).—In their attack November 14, the Bolsheviks advanced to the gun positions of the Canadian artillery. The guns continued to fire at point blank range and the ground before them soon was heaped with enemy dead. The allied infantry then counter attacked and swept the Bolsheviks back into the forest, where patrols pursued them throughout the night. The enemy losses on that day were exceptionally heavy, while those of the allies were small.

The Bolshevik bombardment continued on the 12th, but the American and British troops repulsed all infantry attacks and drove the enemy back into the swamps and the forest. Airplanes obtained several direct hits on Bolshevik gunboats in the river.

Sheriff to K. C.

Sheriff Hyde left Monday for Kansas City, at which point two men were held by the authorities who are wanted here on the charge of fraud. The sheriff was armed with extradition papers from New Mexico's governor, and if there is no hitch should return with his prisoners tomorrow or the next day.

J. V. Tully, of Glencoe, was in town Friday to meet Col. G. W. Prichard from Santa Fe, on water association business.

Please, Consult the Directory

CALLING for telephone numbers from memory is not safe from a conservation-of-time standpoint.

A mistake in the number doubles the time of the operator and of the use of the equipment employed.

One's memory is so apt to play tricks with telephone numbers. It is so apt to prompt you, for instance, to say, 9-7-3 when the number really is 7-2-3.

A wrong number wastes the time of the person called, of the operator and of the person called in error, and involves use of needed equipment.

In the end it is necessary to consult the Directory. Why not consult the Directory at the first, if only to confirm the dictates of your memory?

The point is that anything that unnecessarily takes the time of the operators and of equipment may be needlessly delaying calls occasioned by fire, lawlessness, accident, death, serious illness, calls necessitated by the public interest and welfare, calls on Government business or war work or commercial calls of vital importance.

Please do your full share in the task of furnishing telephone service to this community by patriotic consideration of the time of our operating forces.

CONSULT THE DIRECTORY before calling, to insure giving the correct number. Then,

SPEAK DISTINCTLY, LISTEN ATTENTIVELY and MAKE YOUR CONVERSATION BRIEF.

That will help the service. It will help those who are earnestly striving to serve you well.

According to information that emanates from Washington, French troops several weeks ago came upon the emplacement of the last of the "Big Berthas" used by the Hun in hurling shells into Paris. The platform is situated in Corbie Wood, near Amiens, as had previously been determined by sound triangulation and aerial photography. The enemy succeeded in removing the gun before the arrival of the French, but the emplacement was left intact.

Food Conservation Requirements Modified

The State Food Administration has issued the following:

The food conservation program is being modified to conform with changed conditions as rapidly as the Food Administration finds it possible.

Substitutes with wheat flour have been abandoned. The following telegram was received November 15 by the federal food officials for New Mexico:

"All regulations requiring bakers to use substitutes and dealers and consumers to buy substitutes, are cancelled."

As there is a large supply of substitutes in the hands of dealers, the Grain Corporation is formulating plans for purchasing surplus stocks accumulated in furtherance of the substitute rules.

This change in the wheat program does not mean that conservation of staple foods must not continue, as there will be additional need for supplies for shipment overseas. Unless many parts of liberated Europe are fed by America, there will be actual famine in many districts.

The sugar situation is also easier. Confectioners and bakers whose sugar allowance was still further cut for November and December will, after December 1, receive an additional allowance of fifty per cent of the monthly average prewar basis.

Thanksgiving week has been set aside for food conservation and the Food Administration asks the stores to use their display windows during the week to picture the need of food overseas.

Posters and window cards of special design have been issued by the U. S. Food Administration. C. O. Cushman, State Merchant Representative for New Mexico, is directing this work in the state.

The relation of cost of feed and labor to the price of milk has had the attention of the Dairy division of Purdue University. A careful investigation of the cost of producing milk over a period of years has been made. A formula of feed and labor prices as a basis for determining the cost of producing 100 pounds of 3½ per cent milk has just been issued, the Food Administration announces.

This is the result. It takes 33.5 pounds of grain, 48 pounds of hay, 150 pounds of silage, 20 pounds of other roughage, 70 pounds of bedding, and 3 hours of labor to produce 100 pounds of milk. Ten per cent of above cost should be added for management and risk. The value of the above feeds and labor will determine whether the price of milk is reasonable.

In spite of the limiting factors of transportation, terminal, and shipping facilities, the export of food products from America has been phenomenal. In the period of July, August, and September, 1918, the increase in exports of staple foods, except vegetable oils and sugar, is much heavier than in the same period of 1917.

During this period in 1918 the total feed products exported was 171,986,147 pounds as against 93,962,477 pounds in 1917, an increase of 78,023,670 pounds; pork products in 1918, 538,692,400 pounds as against 196,256,750 pounds in 1917, an increase of 342,435,650 pounds; dairy products for the same period in 1918, 161,245,029 pounds as against 150,074,165 pounds in 1917, an increase of 11,170,864 pounds; grains in the same period 1918, 121,668,823 bushels as against 66,

GERMANS TURN OVER U-BOATS

had constructed from 1897 to 1900, at a cost of innumerable millions, had been destroyed, and the U-boats that had been constructed had proved unable to fight against British warships.

In 1917, he states, 83 submarines were constructed, while 66 were destroyed. In April, 1917, Germany had 126 submarines and in October, 146. In February, 1918, it had 126 and in June of the same year, 113, according to Capt. Persius' figures.

Only a small percentage of these submarines were active by operating at any given time, Capt. Persius declares. In January, 1917, for instance, when conditions were favorable for submarine work, only 12 per cent were active, while 30 per cent were in harbor, 32 per cent under repairs and 20 per cent incapacitated.

In the last months, he reveals, it was very difficult to get men for submarine work, as experienced seamen looked upon the submarine warfare as political stupidity.

Capt. Persius tells of the mutiny that broke out at the beginning of this month, when the German navy was ordered out for attack. Had the seamen obeyed, the writer remarks, innumerable lives would have been lost and he declares that every thinking man, therefore, is of the opinion that the seamen on November 5 rendered an invaluable service to their country.

383,084 bushels in 1917, an increase of 55,285,739 bushels; sugar (includes Cuban) 1,065,398,247 pounds in 1918 as against 1,108,559,519 pounds in 1917, a decrease of 43,161,272 pounds.

These figures show conclusively how the American people patriotically saved food to win the war. Compared to prewar exports the actual results in shipping food abroad for the armies and allies are most remarkable.

STOMACH TROUBLE

Mr. Marion Holcomb, of Nancy, Ky., says: "For quite a long while I suffered with stomach trouble. I would have pains and a heavy feeling after my meals, a most disagreeable taste in my mouth. If I ate anything with butter, oil or grease, I would spit it up. I began to have regular sick headache. I had used pills and tablets, but after a course of these, I would be constipated. It just seemed to tear my stomach all up. I found they were no good at all for my trouble. I heard

CHAPTER IV.—Continued.

All the time I was listening my mind was occupied with trying to account for the thrill which had jolted me when I had taken Lucile's hands in mine at the top of the staircase. I decided to put my fortunes to the test. I would sit up until Bopp went to bed and then ask her to marry me.

Kent, the telephone man, retired first. "I think I'll sit up awhile," I said, stealing a look at Lucile and hoping that she would comprehend my intention.

"If you're going to sit up I'll stick," said Bopp, with Machiavellian cordiality. "I'll split a gallon of water with you."

There we sat, and we drank glass after glass of water until 11 o'clock. Then Lucile decided to retire and spoiled the whole game.

"I guess I'll turn in now, too," I suggested tentatively, hoping at least that I would get a chance to speak to her on the stairs.

But, no. Bopp developed a sudden fondness for my society and accompanied me to my room and sat on my bed for awhile talking about affairs theatrical, assuming that I was interested in them, which I was not.

When he finally departed the house was dark and the wind of the storm made unearthly noises around the eaves. I was more tired than I remembered to have been for years, but not sleepy. I don't know whether it was actual hunger or merely the idea that I had not eaten anything for forty-eight hours which haunted me. At any rate, every time that I closed my eyes I'd have a vision of those dog biscuits. I might just as well have pictured a chocolate cake or a doughnut to myself; but, no—it was a dog biscuit.

After an hour or so of that kind of torture I at last decided to satisfy my fool imagination by showing it a dog biscuit in the life and proving that it was not desirable at all. That was the only reason that I went downstairs.

It was rather ticklish business roaming around a strange house wearing no other padding than a suit of pajamas. I banged my shins unmercifully against several hundred pieces of furniture, but I toned my remarks thereat to a pitch below the howling of the storm. An occasional flash of lightning helped me momentarily from timidity, but left me floundering in the intervals.

Finally in the kitchen, I groped my way to the shelf, and the box of dog biscuit was in my hands. Furtively I took one out, fondled it and sniffed it. Being alone there with that unprotected dog biscuit was too much for my moral courage. I decided to throw honor to the winds. There was so much wind and so little honor that no one would notice it.

I set my teeth in the dog biscuit! Suddenly there was a sound on the stairway. I listened intently—the creaking of a stair!

Who could it be? Possibly it was Kent, the ex-wire tapper. His early training might have proved too much for him and he had decided to loot the place and make his escape. I made up my mind to behave valiantly and grasped a dog biscuit firmly in one hand, determined to sell my life as dearly as was consistent with the high cost of living. The box containing the rest of the biscuit I put back on the shelf and crouched behind the stove, ready to spring at the intruder unaware as soon as he entered.

I had one of those flashes of insane bravery which is nine-tenths fear when I saw the light of a pocket lantern struggling along the wall at the foot of the stairs. I jumped four feet straight up in the air when something wet touched the sole of my bare foot which was extended behind me as I knelt behind the stove. My exclamation was drowned in a crash of thunder. Burglar or no burglar, I was about to run to him for protection from that clammy thing which had touched me when a second flash of lightning showed me—oh, horrors! It was Tootles frisking around my feet.

CHAPTER V.

A Mystery.

I CROUCHED behind the stove again in time to see a dim figure enter the kitchen. The lightning revealed Lucile in a dressing gown with her hair over her shoulders. In the single flash of light she appeared to be the most beautiful thing that I had ever seen.

She turned the flashlight on the wall and finally rested its ray on the box of dog biscuit! She went over to it, picked up one of the biscuits, pressed it to her cheek and was about to bite it when she hastily dropped it back into the box, put out the light and stood perfectly still, listening.

There was another sound on the stairs! When I looked to see what Lucile was doing she had disappeared. Probably she, too, was hiding somewhere near, I reasoned.

This time there was less delay. Whoever was coming downstairs was carefully assured and was scratching matches on the wall as he went along to guide his progress. He entered the kitchen. It was Bopp, clad in the sort of pajamas I thought he wore. He was laughing to himself as he came in and went straight to the box of biscuit. He took one out of the box.

And he ate it! Before that I may have disliked the man, but now—A smile of enjoyment spread over his features, plainly discernible when the lightning flashed. Evidently the dog biscuit were delicious. At last he finished and started to leave. I was about to breathe a sigh of relief when I happened to glance toward the shelf where the biscuit were kept.

The box was gone. The fiend was taking them with him. Without a thought for poor Tootles, who would doubtless starve to death, he was going to eat all her food.

With one bound I was upon him. The thought of that poor dog stole my heart. I grabbed him by the throat, and we swayed back and forth in a rough and tumble fox trot movement to the tune of the rolling thunder. Bopp did not know as I did that Lucile was watching somewhere there in the darkness, and on that account he was able to use more forcible language than I, but I had superior weight, and I was slowly bearing him back when all at once he dropped the box of dog biscuit and with his free hand landed a wallop in my stomach. It would have been a foul under any circumstances, but with my inner workings resembling those of a vacuum cleaner it was positively inhuman.

Maddened by that blow, I growled between my clenched teeth, "If you hit me below the belt again I'll tear your pajamas!"

He growled back, "Let 'er rip," and swung on me twice more in the same place.

With mad fury I picked him up and hurled him from me. There was a terrific crash of glass, and then, save for the disturbance outside, all was still.

I lit the light—acetylene gas.

The wreckage of that kitchen was beyond the descriptive powers of a mere dramatic critic. Bopp lay sprawled on the kitchen floor near the table where he had struck when I threw him. The table itself had overturned on to the week's supply of water in glass bottles and had apparently broken most of them. Lucile was standing, pale and disheveled, but still beautiful, in the doorway of the pantry where she had been hiding.

After an interval Bopp laboriously picked himself up and waded toward the stairway through the torrent of discolored water which was streaming across the floor.

"There's your dog biscuit," he sneered, pointing to Tootles, who had discovered the box and was gulping down the contents as fast as she could. "Fasting for a week! Ha-ha!"

Then he disappeared upstairs. I turned to Lucile. She had dropped into a chair and had buried her face in her hands. She was crying.

"What's the matter, Lucile?" I asked tenderly.

"I don't know," she sobbed; "just nerves, I guess."

"You ought not to be about at this time of night," I said sternly.

"I know," she replied. "I just came down to—to feed Tootles."

I would have believed her if I had not seen the biscuit in her mouth. But what man would not forgive a small fib on the part of the woman he loves?

"Listen to me, Lucile, dear," I said authoritatively, taking her hand. "We are not going to fast any more. If your father were here he would call a halt. Here your mother is sick, you are hysterical, and hardly any of us is on speaking terms with the others. Besides, we have got to stop. Our water supply is gone."

Lucile looked up. "Then it won't really be our fault, will it?" she asked hopefully. "If we haven't pure water we can't go on fasting. Lipton 8. Clair says so."

"And that's the best thing he ever said, too," I agreed heartily.

So it was decided that the next day we'd have a new stock of groceries come on the supply boat and telephone the cook to come back. I think the prospect cheered us wonderfully. I know I felt better immediately, and I persuaded Lucile to go back to bed and get some rest before daylight.

She went in to see how her mother was before retiring. There was a cry from Mrs. Green's room, and I rushed in.

MRS. GREEN HAD DISAPPEARED!

You have guessed correctly that this is where the element of mystery enters the story. You doubtless wonder, as we did, if Kent, the wire tapper, had made away with Mrs. Green or if Bopp, balked of his dog biscuit, had become a villain of the deepest dye.

We did not come to any such conclusions at first, of course. That was after we had looked all over the house, up in the attic and down in the cellar. Then I went to Kent's room. He was snoring peacefully. I mistrusted that he might be shamming and poured a pitcher of water on him to see how he would react to the shock. I should say that his reactions were perfectly normal, albeit somewhat picturesque in abusive.

Next we hailed Bopp from his room. He was inclined to be suspicious at first until we told him about Mrs.

We Swayed Back and Forth in a Rough and Tumble Fox Trot.

Green's disappearance; then he was all sympathy and joined our lightly clad searching party in the hallway.

Naturally, Lucile feared the worst, while the rest of us with masculine optimism discounted any danger which might befall the old lady.

"But she wasn't herself," wailed Lucile. "She's been acting funny all the evening."

"Never mind about her," comforted Kent. "A man with a jag can fall off the roof and never hurt himself a bit. A bit of a bun makes anybody lucky."

"Suppose she is out in all this rain?" "A little water, more or less, won't make any difference to her after the last two days," I observed gloomily.

"Let's not stand here any longer," said Bopp in businesslike fashion. "It won't do much good to try to guess where she is. Let's begin a systematic hunt."

"Let's get on some regular clothes first," I suggested.

"All right," in chorus.

Lucile dressed faster than she ever had before or has since, and we men, with the usual celerity of the bifurcated sex, were ready as soon as she was.

As soon as we had assembled in the living room once more Bopp, by reason of his superior nerve, elected himself commander of the expedition.

"Monty," he directed, "you take Jesse James with you and explore the north half of the island. Lucile and I will search the southern portion. As soon as either party discovers Mrs. Green come back to the house and fire off this revolver." He laid a large caliber six shooter on the table.

I might have disputed his arrangement and calm appropriation of Lucile's society, but I judged that it would be a poor time to argue about anything so purely social. Besides, I figured out that the man who was with Lucile was going to have no clench reassuring her that her mother had not met with some terrible taking off. So they went one way, and we departed the other, everybody sloshing internally and externally on account of the large amount of distilled water and rain.

"How are we going to hunt this skirt anyway?" demanded Kent after we had trudged northward for a few moments.

"Just hunt," I replied vaguely, too busy with my thoughts to consider the question seriously.

"This ain't regular," objected Kent, slacking up his pace. "We ought to trail the old dame by her footprints. Did you notice any footprints around the house?"

"No. I didn't think to look."

"Well, let's go back and have a peek."

As that coincided with the methods of reasoning adopted by the detectives in the best sellers, I agreed, and we retraced our footsteps to the house.

BOARD HOLDS NO MEETINGS

President Decides All Questions for Members, but Never Calls Them in for a Conference.

There is no more familiar title among government departments than the board of trade. It seems to be responsible for all kinds of things and all sorts of undertakings and happenings. It will find you a chairwoman or negotiate a commercial treaty. It consists of a president and a large number of members among whom are reckoned the Archbishop of Canterbury and the speaker of the house of commons, a writer in London Tit-Bits states.

By law these members have a right to be called to discuss questions of trade and to help the president to shape his policy, yet the fact remains no meetings are ever held! The president never dreams of calling his committee together. He does much as he likes, comes to his own decisions, and then announces that "the board thinks so and so."

One wonders what would happen if the archbishop or some other member were to insist upon being consulted, this surprising method of doing business should cease.

The board of trade does not stand alone. Every school-teacher in the land knows that "my lords" say this and "my lords" rule that. Their full title is "the lords of the committee of the privy council of education," but they never meet, and the vice president would probably be puzzled to name a half-dozen of them. Mr. Fisher and his predecessors rule without "my lords," but in their name. Thus do they get credit for the good they do and are a refuge in the day of storm.

Protest a Happy Ending.

The Paris correspondent of the Pall Mall Gazette recently reported a curious suit that should interest the readers of Flaubert's romance of Carthage. The action was brought by the niece of Gustave Flaubert against the adapters of "Salammbo" for the cinema.

Flaubert, it will be remembered, finishes his novel with the mobbing and death of Mathos before the eyes of his mistress, who seems entirely indifferent to his fate. This would not do for the film. The adapters not only save the general's life, but ring down the curtain with the marriage of the lovers, who "live happily together ever after," and have a multitude of children to grace their old age.

This platonic and commonplace ending to a masterpiece horrified the dilettantes, who made so much fuss about the caricaturing of the story that Flaubert's literary executor felt compelled to take the matter up, and has appealed to the courts for redress.—Kansas City Star.

Largest Snakes in Brazil.

The largest snakes known are found in Brazil, and one would have to go far into the interior to find them. They are found in the immense valley of the Amazon river and its tributaries, observes a naturalist. This extensive basin, being low ground, consists partly of swamps and forest jungle, into which white men seldom penetrate. The forest and vegetation are so dense that the sun cannot get through to the ground, and being right under the equator, the continual, oppressive, moist heat makes this jungle and swamps the ideal breeding place for the big snakes and other reptiles. However, of the 180 varieties of snakes known in Brazil, not 10 per cent are venomous, and of these very few of the big ones. Of the non-venomous ones the largest and the best known is the boa constrictor.

Your Mental Attic.

We are living in a new age. We use the materials grown in the past for the erection of present structures, observes a writer. But the method of building changes with the age. Instead of the old lumber, men use iron and steel. Instead of crumbling bricks and uncertain firing, they use cement and stone. To build for the future you must use the best that science approves. You will need your attic for new tools and new storage. And to be modern the storage must be temporary. Long holdings are unprofitable. The oftener you can turn your possessions the better the income. Your mental attic follows the same rule.

Flames That Give Off No Heat.

A French scientist, who is keeping the details secret, claims he has invented a flame derived from electricity that will not give off heat.

There was never a time when the sacrifices and the help of women were more appreciated than at the present time. Women should learn war-nursing and nursing at home. ## Everyone His Own Chauffeur at N. Y. Zoological Park

To release the men, who heretofore furnished propulsion for wheel chairs, so that they might find essential work in helping the government, the New York Zoological park has installed the first of a fleet of electric storage battery-driven chairs. Now, every visitor to the gardens may have the pleasure of driving one of these chairs.

The chairs will be installed on all board walks at summer resorts and in hospitals for the use of invalids.

Mothers' Cook Book

What to Eat.

There ain't nobody but a butterfly can fly on buty and git phatt.—Josh Billings.

Bananas, like everything else in the food line, have soared in price, but when they can be bought by weight they are not very expensive in the average market. Variety is the spice of food as well as life, and we need to vary our menus as much as possible.

Baked Bananas, Belgian Style.

Remove the peeling from eight small bananas and scrape each to remove the coarse threads. Lay them side by side in a baking dish suitable to serve from. Grate over them the rind of an orange and half of a lemon; mix the juice of half a lemon, an orange and a half cupful of honey; pour over the bananas; bake in a quick oven until soft. Serve from the dish. One banana will make a serving.

Baked Bananas, Sultana Sauce.

Remove the banana from the skins, scrape and return to its original place in the skin. Set bananas in an agate saucepan to cook until the skin is well blackened and the pulp is soft. About 20 minutes will cook them in a moderate oven. An hour before preparing the bananas put three-fourths of a cupful of sultana raisins with a cup of boiling water on to cook, adding more water as needed. Mix a half cup of sugar and two teaspoonfuls of cornstarch, a teaspoonful of butter and a grating of lemon peel with the juice; cook until smooth and pour boiling hot over the peeled bananas.

Bananas added to a custard pie or iced bananas put on top of a fresh custard pie and served at once make a very tasty pie.

Mashed bananas in whipped cream for cake filling is delicious, adding sugar to sweeten.

Bananas Fried in Crumbs.

Remove the skin from six bananas, scrape and remove the coarse threads; cut in halves lengthwise, then crosswise. Sprinkle with salt, pepper, lemon juice, dip in flour, egg and crumbs and fry in deep fat. Drain on brown paper and serve garnished with lemon and parsley. Serve with lemon sauce.

Bananas as a salad are so well known that it needs but a reminder that rolled in nuts and served with a good dressing they are well liked. The peeling itself may be used for a nest when serving.

Nellie Maxwell

Food for Thought

A woman would be mighty unhappy tied up for life to a man she couldn't find fault with now and then.

A woman is always wanting something her husband can't afford and a man always seems to enjoy telling her that he can't afford it.

The best way to win this war is to send our soldiers so many guns and shells that it won't be necessary for them to have to rise to superhuman deeds of bravery.

The fourth Liberty bonds should go as fast as the Yanks are going along the German frontier.

Wood and Other Ashes Are Most Valuable as Fertilizers and Should Not Be Wasted

Do not waste wood ashes; they are a valuable fertilizer, containing potash and phosphoric acid. The ashes of various trees differ in these contents, elm having from 20 to 25 per cent of potash and from 8 to 10 per cent of phosphoric acid, while oak has 8 to 16 per cent of potash and 6 to 8 per cent of acid. Pin gives from 10 to 15 per cent and from 10 to 13 per cent, respectively; walnut only 2 to 3 per cent and 1 to 3 per cent.

Cigar ashes are even more useful, as they contain 20 per cent potash and 33 per cent of phosphoric acid. Ferns, heather and broom are richer in potash than any of the tree ferns, having from 23 to 28 per cent in their ash, broom from 30 to 31 per cent. All the ashes of these woods contain from 20 to 60 per cent of lime and from 3 to 10 per cent of magnesia, and when mixed with stable manure produce a fertilizer which will enrich almost any soil, but not more than a bushy or two should be applied to a tilled acre, as sulphate or iron is produced in the ground and may be detrimental.

Some Extraordinary Names Are Occasionally Fastened Upon the Innocent Babes

What extraordinary names some people are compelled to bear or choose to assume! I hesitate to call them "Christian names," because they aren't Christian, very often. "Given names" is perhaps the better way of describing them. Perhaps you have heard of the Irishman assisting at a baptism, who, when he heard the godmother answer "Hazel" to the question as to the child's name, broke forth: "For the love my given; the whole confusion is full of the names of blessed female saints, and they do be callin' the baby after a nut!"

I thought of that when I looked through the catalogue of a girl's college the other day and noted these labels: Golde Mae, Eora, Arvilla, Kathryn, Elva, Melba, Iser, Neva, Ramona, Mahelle, Vida, Esta, Millis, Mayme, Mable, Arthetta, Lillian, Bulah, Arhita, Narmie, Ann, Jennie, Roxa, Zurelle, Zulene, Vanja, Mote, Coreana. It was a comfort to get back to Bridget and Margaret! Names are not arbitrary combinations of vowels and consonants; they have, or should have, significance, a historic setting, a personal and family relationship, that dignifies them.

To invent fantastic labels for pet dogs may be allowed; but human beings ought not to be put on that level. So, mispellings of familiar names, Christian or family, seem either uneducated or ignorant, now when fixed spellings have been accepted. Can some one explain Ga Nun and U'Rell, both of which variants intrigue me?—Living Church.

THE FUTURE

What may we take into the vast forever? That marble door Admits no fruit of all our long endeavor. No fame-wreathed crown we wore, Nor garnered lore.

What can we bear beyond the unknown portal? No gold, no gains, Of all our tolling life; in the life immortal No hoarded wealth remains, Nor glids, nor stuns.

Naked from out that far abyss behind us We entered here; No word came with our coming, to remind us What wondrous world was near, No hope, no fear.

Into the silent, starless night before us Naked we glide; No hand has mapped the constellations o'er us, No comrade at our side, No chart, no guide.

Yet fearless toward that midnight, black and hollow, Our footsteps fare; The beckoning of a Father's hand we follow— His love alone is there, No curse, no care.

—Edward Rowland Sill

JESTS AND JINGLES

Partly Right.

"I don't like your heart action," the doctor said, applying the stethoscope again. "You have had some trouble with angina pectoris."

"You're partly right, doctor," said the young man, sheepishly, "only that ain't her name."

In the Dark.

"Your daughter, sir, has referred me to you."

"Well?"

"Can I have her?"

"I dunno. She hasn't given me any instructions, young man."

The Missing Link.

Algernon (excitedly)—Oh, Miss Doering, half an hour ago I was just a minute too late in rescuing a man from drowning! The crowd formed a human chain and—

Alice (interrupting)—You were the missing link?

Dogs of War.

"Some of these war devices of the Prussians have proved clumsy."

"Yes. They were the sort of thing to be expected from a nation that regarded a dachshund as an improvement on a regular dog."

Easy Proposition.

"Whatever induced her to marry the man she did?"

"I think the principal inducement was because he asked her to."

A Father's Disappointment.

"That was a fine letter Josh wrote home," commented Mrs. Cornstossel. "Every line of it was jes' as grammatical as it could be."

"That's what worries me," replied her husband. "He has spelled his style. I thought at first he was going to have a great future as one of those natural-born comical dialect writers."

At the Patent Office.

In 1903 there were 67,980 applications for patents, and 35,025 were granted; in 1914, there were 69,311 applications and 36,276 granted; in 1915, 66,497 applications and 42,734 granted; in 1916, 67,848 applications, and 44,155 granted; in 1917, 68,690 applications, and 52,328 granted.

HAARLEM OIL CAPSULES IF YOUR BACK ACHES

Do you feel tired and "worn-out"? Are you nervous and irritable? Don't sleep well at night? Have a "dragged out," unrested feeling when you get up in the morning? Dizzy spells? Bilious? Bad taste in the mouth, backache, pain or soreness in the loins, and abdomen? Severe distress when urinating, bloody, cloudy urine or sediment? All these indicate gravel or stone in the bladder, or that the poisonous microbes, which are always in your system, have attacked your kidneys.

You should use GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules immediately. The oil soaks gently into the walls and lining of the kidneys, and the little poisonous animal germs, which are causing the inflammation, are immediately attacked and chased out of your system without inconvenience or pain.

Don't ignore the "little pains and aches," especially backaches. They may be little now but there is no telling how soon a dangerous or fatal disease of which they are the forerunners may show itself. Go after the cause of that backache at once, or you may find yourself in the grip of an incurable disease.

Do not delay a minute. Go to your druggist and insist on his supplying you with a box of GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules. In 24 hours you will feel renewed health and vigor. After you have cured yourself, continue to take one or two Capsules each day so as to keep in first-class condition, and ward off the danger of future attacks. Money refunded if they do not help you. Ask for the original imported GOLD MEDAL brand, and thus be sure of getting the genuine.—Adv.

How Acid-Stomach Wrecks Health of Millions

Many people make the mistake of "thinking" that acid-stomach—superacidity—as the doctors call it—merely means an occasional attack of indigestion, bloating, heartburn, belching, sour, gassy stomach, or some other such minor ailment quickly remedied—or will cure it self—and leave no serious after effects. As a matter of fact superacidity is responsible for a long train of serious ailments that cause awful suffering and sometimes buffet the best medical skill. It is a well established fact that many cases of chronic stomach trouble, anemia, asthenia, gastritis, rheumatism, gout, lumbago, cirrhosis of the liver, auto-intoxication, dyspepsia, catarrh of the stomach, intestinal ulcer, cancer of the stomach, and frequently valvular heart trouble and heart failure, can be traced directly to an acid-stomach.

You must get rid of that excess acid. Nothing is gained by taking medicines which merely stimulate and give one a false sense of strength, and that leave the excess acid still in the stomach. You must depend upon your food for your strength—and unless you keep your stomach free from excess acid, pure, sweet and strong, it cannot properly digest food; your whole body suffers.

What you want is relief—yes—and here is the way—absolutely guaranteed—no take no chance. It's been tested tens of thousands of times with universal success. Go to your druggist and get just one package of KATONIC, a wonderful preparation that will literally wipe the excess acidity out of your stomach. The results obtained are nothing short of marvelous. Almost instantly it relieves that painful, puffed up feeling after eating, belching, heartburn, sour stomach, etc. Makes the stomach feel cool and comfortable.

If you need this help it's your own fault if you suffer another day. KATONIC is absolutely guaranteed, no get a big box from your druggist. If it does not help you your money will be refunded. If your druggist does not keep KATONIC, send your name and address to the KATONIC Company, 1018 S. Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill., and they will at once mail you a box and you can send them the money for it after you receive it.
